NOTORIOUS BACKGAMMON — Backgammon of Notoriety for anyone interested in playing backgammon. Call Nolan at 546-5887 or meet at SBA 112, 7 p.m.

WOMEN'S ISSUES TEAM MEETING — Weekly women's issues team meeting. Come get involved in women's issues at UMass. Wed. 4-5 p.m. Ask at CC information booth.

AMERICAS IN TRANSITION — A film dealing with U.S. Intervention Policy in Central America. Presented by people who have recently returned from Nicaragua. 8 p.m. Lewis House Basement.

SOCIETY OF WOMEN ENGINEERS — First general business meeting. Membership, upcoming events, study skills workshop. All engineers welcome. 6 p.m. Marston Hall 132.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON invites all university women to OPEN RUSH!
DATES:
Oct. 3 at 7 pm Round Robin
Oct. 4 at 5 pm Dinner
406 N. Pleasant St. 256-6874

WHAT COLLEGE HASN'T TAUGHT YOU
REAL WORLD 101
was written by two of the country's most successful young professionals. They share everything they learned—the strategies, the tactics, the "inner games"—and show you how to use them to beat out your competition.

You'll find out:
- Why most college graduates have no idea how to go about starting a career, especially according to today's rules
- Why following the advice of many college professors and guidance counselors will get you nowhere
- The one critical mistake most students make when job-hunting
- How to break out of the pack early
- How to present yourself as a "young achiever."

WHAT YOU MUST KNOW!
REAL WORLD 101
is the graduate's one indispensable career guide. You'll learn
- The one golden opportunity you have before you graduate (that you'll never have again)
- How to present the "star" image today's companies are looking for
- How to make an interviewer overlook a mediocre academic record
- The Basics—four skills you must master to succeed
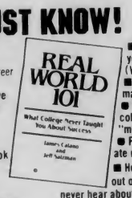
- The Mental Shake-Down Cruise: seven reasons why the real world is simpler than you think
- How to have all the money you'll ever need by age thirty (We're not kidding.)
- How to prevent your college major from limiting your options
- The big inside joke among college graduates who have "made it" as professionals
- Five ways to avoid the immediate money traps graduates fall into
- How to find out about the eight out of ten jobs that most people never hear about and get the highest starting salary an employer will pay
- And much more!

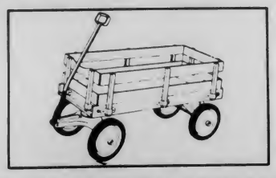


To order: send check or money order for $9.70 (includes postage and handling) to: Dept. PRA (ISBN 0-38-517-5-100) Warner Books, 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10103. Please allow four to six weeks for delivery.
WARNER BOOKS

LEARN to FLY
6652577
YOUR OWN AIRPLANE FOR ONE THIRD OF THE NORMAL COST WITH THE COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB (UMass RSO)
FREE RIDE TO AIRPORT IN NORTHAMPTON, CREDIT FOR GROUND SCHOOL AVAILABLE

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
•Includes Mounting• plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wallaba's Store
549-4704

BACK SCHOOL 101
Prerequisite:
Back pain & a referral from your UHS provider
This 6 session program (classes one week apart) includes information on exercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posture tips, pain relief methods and relaxation
DATES: Tuesdays, October 9, 16, 23, 30 & November 6 • December 4
TIME: 6:30—8:30
PLACE: University Health Center
• Please advise your UHS provider for the proper referral
Call UHS Health Education for Information and Registration: 549-2671, ext. 181.

GREAT GIVEAWAY #2


WIN AN ALL TERRAIN VEHICLE (wagon)
Two vehicles to be given away
vehicle is on display in our Sporting Goods Dept.
OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES
1. To enter, complete the official entry form and bring it to the store. Enter as often as you wish by using only original entry forms. Enter by Nov. 1, 1984 to be eligible.
2. The winner will be selected in a random drawing on Nov. 2.
3. Employees of the University Store and their families are not eligible. Taxes on the prize are the sole responsibility of the winner.
Vehicle BONUS
Register to win an all terrain vehicle. Fill out the coupon & return. No purchase required.
Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Houston Ballet
SWAN LAKE with the Houston Ballet Orchestra
TUESDAY, OCT. 9, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9
BOSTON CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY
SATURDAY, OCT. 13, 8PM
TICKETS: $5
DUKE ELLINGTON'S SOPHISTICATED LADIES
National Broadway Touring Company Production
SUNDAY, OCT. 14, 2PM, 8PM
TICKETS: $22.50, $20.50, $18.50
DIZZY GILLESPIE
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 17, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7
Five College Students Half-Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

Arts

Futuristic perversions

Dr. Adder
By K.W. Jeter
Bluejay Books
231 pages $7.95

By BRADFORD VERTER
Collegian Correspondent

K.W. Jeter's fascinating newly-released novel, Dr. Adder, is not the average science fiction book. More's the pity. Suppressed since 1972, it is at once horrifing and delightful, poignant and absurd. And is, above all, a damn good read.

Dr. Adder is a medical megalomaniac who surgically alters the bodies of prostitutes in order to cater to sexual fetishes. Through his artistry, and the omnipresent pressure of the Moral Enforcers ("MoFos — the fascist religious force), Los Angeles has been transformed into a bleak and desolate microcosm.

Jeter's primary device throughout the novel is to take something pitiful and twist it until it becomes something repulsive. The only amputees are those prostitutes who request Dr. Adder's alterations; fathers whose children have abandoned them rescue urchins from the sewers, make them feel at home...and devour them.

If this sounds vaguely familiar, it should. For all its energetic creativity, the book is highly derivative. The paraplegic and drug sequences are recurring motifs in Philip K. Dick's novels. The sewer rescuing party is an inverted form of Topeka in Harlan Ellison's "A Boy and His Dog" (which is in turn a variation of Damon Knight's classic "To Serve Man").

The pill-popping, scalpal-happy surgeons are straight out of William S. Burroughs. The Video Church is reminiscent of Norman Spinrad's Bug Jack Barron and the polyglotic humor (i.e. the local Buena Maricone High School) is Thomas Pynchon's.

Still, this by no means undermines the book nor detracts from its power. Even Stravinsky plagiarized right and left. In his autobiographies he explains that he is "paying tribute" to the various composers.

So with Jeter. His book is an homage to his favorite artists. He names the hero's father after S. Clay Wilson's midnight xenophobe, Lester Gass. And there are numerous references to science fiction as a genre.

In his afterword, the late, great Philip K. Dick calls the book "a masterpiece." This is understandable. It is a masterpiece in the same way Dick's books are masterpieces: it is chock full of ideas, twists and contemporary angst. Yet it fails in the same way Dick's books fail. There are sections (in this case the ending) which depend very heavily on the reader's suspension of disbelief.

K.W. Jeter's long-suppressed "Masterpiece" Dr. Adder

Its limitations notwithstanding, Dr. Adder is a wonderful novel. It has the daring visionary quality so often lacking in science fiction. Highly recommended—but not for the easily-offended.

Oh my gosh, have you read the Collegian lately?

Activist films

By ELAINE SENAY
Collegian Staff

Education as well as entertainment is a goal of the Women's Film Festival which was kicked off September 25 with My Brilliant Career. Liisa Trocki, coordinator of the Women's Leadership Project, said that the films can present to students the different possibilities for women.

"In college, you are in the process of making decisions which affect making choices and the direction of your life," said Trocki. She believes that students should be exposed to a wide range of choices and options.

Chosen in response to surveys passed out at the Spring 1984 Festival, the films shown this semester focus on three kinds of women's films: films about Asian women, women as activists, and close female relationships.

The six films are international in origin, coming from Australia, Japan, and the United States. The best known is My Brilliant Career, but experimental films have been included to underline growth in that field.

Trocki says that what sets these films apart is the women portrayed are active rather than reactive to their situations. The female characters are not analyzed or focused upon as objects. They tell their own stories.

Trocki pointed out that there is a "conservative mood on campus." People seem reluctant to join activist groups, she said. Introductory meetings of RSO groups have been unusually low this semester.

Movies are "the least intimidating medium," said Trocki, to start students thinking about political activism. It is an alternative way of sparking their interest in women's issues.

The films shown are free and open to the public. All films will be shown in the UMass Campus Center.

On October 16, the films My Love Has Been Burning and No Regrets for Our Youth will be shown at Room 163 Campus Center at 7 and 9 p.m. Both films are portrayals of the struggles of the Japanese woman.

The festival continues with two films about Lizzie Borden, Born in Flames and Regrouping, on November 20. The films will be screened at 7, 9, and 11 p.m.

The modern German woman is the topic of Marianne and Juliane which will be screened at 7 and 9 p.m. on December 11. This concluding film of the festival will also be shown in Room 163.

Theater news

By RONDA APPLEBAUM
Collegian Staff

The following is a list of theatrical productions which will be presented at the University through the beginning of November.

The National Broadway Touring Company Productions, Duke Ellington's Sophisticated Ladies will be performed at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall on October 14 at 2:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $22.50, $20.50, $18.50; and are half price for five college students with valid identification.

Eugene O'Neill's Desire Under the Elms will be presented on Oct. 11 and 12 and on Oct. 17-20 at 8:00 p.m. in the Rand Theater in the Fine Arts Center. Tickets are $4.00 for the general public and $3.00 for five college students and senior citizens.

Porcupines at the University and Other Comic Diversions, a chamber theater production based on stories by Donald Barthelmey will be enacted on October 20 at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $4.00 for the general public and $3.00 for five college students and senior citizens.

The Dance and the Railroad by Davidy Hwang is an original student production which will be presented by The University's New World Theater. Performances are Oct. 5-7 and Oct. 11-13 in Hampden Theater at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $4.00 for the general public and $2.00 for students and senior citizens.

The University's New World Theater will present Love To All, Lorraine, written and performed by Elizabeth Van Dyke from the National Black Touring Circuit of New York. This one-woman show portraying the life of late playwright Lorraine Hansberry will be performed Saturday Oct. 13 at 8:00 p.m. in the Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $4.00 for the general public and $2.00 for students and senior citizens.

Life in th Fast Lane, a one-man tour de force by Hawaiian poet Lane Nishikawa will be presented by the University's New World Theater on Saturday, October 17 at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $5.00 for the general public and $2.00 for students and senior citizens.

For further information for all productions at UMass call 545-2511 or 545-2512.

TUESDAY
RACK-A-VIDEO ENTERTAINMENT
presents
- Giant Ten Foot Screen -
Video Music D.A.N.C.E Party
Experience our new menu.
• Latest Video Releases • • 9 til 1 •
THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST./AMHERST, MA
413-549-1200

Dinner Specials

Tuesday 2 for $8.50
Wednesday meal exchange night
Thursday 2 for $11.00
Friday 2 for $14.95
Saturday 2 for $12.95
or 2 for 14.95

selected menu items for each nite are now available at special prices!

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

TONIGHT

KICK OFF LOUNGE

"Everyone Else's Beer Mug Night"
Bring along any other establishments Beer Mug for a

35¢ DRAFT
12 oz. limit

COMEDY TONIGHT
The BOSTON COMEDY COMPANY, Inc.

No Cover

Lower Level of Justin Ryans
Corner of Rt 9 and University Drive

LET YOUR VOICE BE HEARD
VOTE IN THE SGA STUDENT ELECTIONS
OCTOBER 1 and 2

POLLING PLACES:

Worcester:
Northeast, Sylvan 11-2 and 4:30-6:30

Franklin:
Central, Orchard Hill 11-2 and 4:30-7

Hampshire:
Crampton, Coolidge, Emerson, James, Kennedy, Melville, Prince, Thoreau 11-2 and4:30-7

Berkshire:
Cance, JA, JQA, Mackimmie, Moore, Patterson, Pierpont, Washington 11-2 and 4:30-7

Hatch:
Greeks, Commuters 10-3

SCI-TECH BOOK SALE

65-90% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES

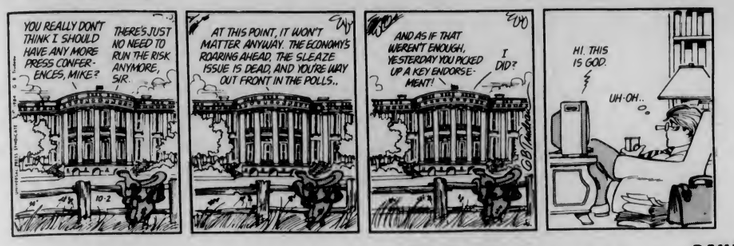
Come pick up a stack of high-level scientific and technical books from leading publishers. Our selection ranges through numerous disciplines including physics, chemistry, medicine, mathematics, engineering, computers, and more. Your savings range from a tremendous 65% to an unbelievable 90%.

On Special Sale Tables located in the Trade Book Dept.

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 10-3
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

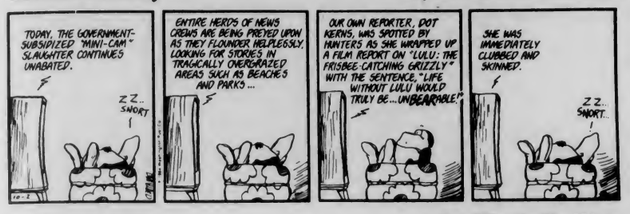


YOU REALLY DON'T THINK I SHOULD HAVE ANY MORE PRESS CONFERENCES, MIKE?
THERE'S JUST NO NEED TO RUN THE RISK ANYMORE, SIR.
AT THIS POINT, IT WON'T MATTER ANYWAY. THE ECONOMY'S ROARING AHEAD, THE SLEAZE ISSUE IS DEAD, AND YOU'RE WAY OUT FRONT IN THE POLLS..
AND AS IF THAT WEREN'T ENOUGH, YESTERDAY YOU PICKED UP A KEY ENDORSEMENT!
I DID?
HI. THIS IS GOD.
UH-OH..

Today's Weather

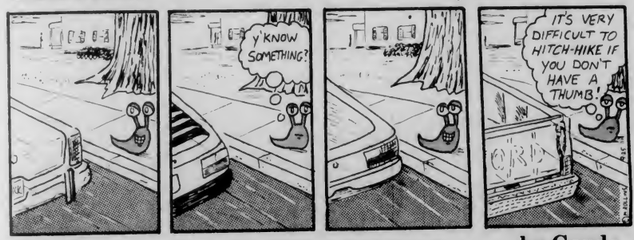
TODAY: Rain likely, temperature in mid-50s.
TONIGHT: Clearing in wee hours, low around 40.
TOMORROW: Sun breaks out, thermometer rises to 60s.

Bloom County By Berke Breathed



TODAY, THE GOVERNMENT-SUBSIDIZED "MINI-CAM" SLAUGHTER CONTINUES UNABATED.
ZZ.. SNORT
ENTIRE HERDS OF NEWS CREWS ARE BEING PREYED UPON AS THEY FLOUNDER HELPLESSLY, LOOKING FOR STORIES IN TRAGICALLY OVERGRAZED AREAS SUCH AS BEACHES AND PARKS...
OUR OWN REPORTER, DOT KERNS, WAS SPOTTED BY HUNTERS AS SHE WRAPPED UP A FILM REPORT ON "LULU: THE FRISBEE-CATCHING GRIZZLY" WITH THE SENTENCE, "LIFE WITHOUT LULU WOULD TRULY BE...UNBEARABLE!"
SHE WAS IMMEDIATELY CLUBBED AND SKINNED.
ZZ. SNORT..

UMass Zone By Mark Rollins



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Italian vacation spot
5 Aquatic performer
9 Triple Crown winner, 1935
14 Mideast name
15 Actress Nazimova
16 Parts of landscapes
17 Gear for a flamenco dancer
19 Fitzgerald and others
20 Fabricate
21 Etonian's mother
23 "All about ——"
24 Friend, in Paris
26 Confines
28 Period of wind and rain
31 Church officer
32 "I wish —— of things": A P Herbert
33 Nav. transport org.
35 Big —— Cal.
36 Relative of a flounder
37 Eject
40 —— Jima
43 —— Fail
45 7th cen. date: Rom.
46 Hard worker
47 Made a movie of 50 Exposes
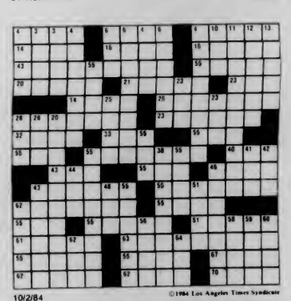
52 Soak, old style
53 Lea au ——
54 Author Betti
55 Native of Tehran
57 Daphnis's beloved
61 Navarro
63 Robinson Crusoe, et al
65 Comedian Arnold
66 Bone: Comb. form
67 Greek god
68 Blends, as colors
69 Back talk
70 Maneuverable

DOWN
1 Alencon
2 Construction support
3 Quantity of a sort
4 Parian
5 Juan or Jose
6 Bulb parts
7 Mont.'s neighbor
8 Endured
9 Like a dull day
10 Before content
11 "Pilgrim's Progress," et al
12 "A —— on earth": Milton
13 Jennies
18 Before sphere or meter
22 Ending to ethyl
25 One of the Hebrides
27 Needle: Comb. form
28 Frenzied
29 Palm leaf
30 Duchess
34 Norm: Abbr.
37 Sculptors' moldings
38 Eye doctors
39 Arm bone
41 Cooking utensil
42 Switch words
44 Once —— blue moon
46 Track
47 Smooth, in music
48 Poetic contraction
49 Constellation and genus of lizards
51 Silicate
52 Exploded
56 Space agcy.
58 Zhivago girl
59 —— and terminer
60 Being
62 "—— Day at a Time"
64 Thy, in France

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	T	A	R	S	I	M	I		W	A	T	C	H
H	A	R	E		O	N	A	N		I	D	A	H	O
I	B	E	X		A	O	I	T		T	E	X	A	S
R	O	C		S	P	I	N	E	S		P	I	P	E
K	O	A	L	A		A	R	R	E	S	T
			O	P	T	I	O	N	A	I	L		T	A	P
O	E	S	I		U	N	O		P	A	V	A	N	E
O	U	T	R	A	N	K		R	O	B	E	R	T	A
C	R	E	E	S	E		O	U	R		R	A	I	L
K	E	W		E	F	F	E	C	T	E	D
		A	M	U	L	E	T		R	I	L	E	Y
R	O	A	N		L	O	T	I	O	N		A	I	L	E
E	N	V	I	O	Y		C	R	O	P		S	T	E	M
E	C	O	L	E		K	E	N	T		A	C	R	E
D	E	N	I	S		S	E	S	S		W	H	I	N

10/2/84



Gorde by Gorde

NEXT DAY AT THE CONCOURSE...
HA HA HA HA HA HA
DO YOU BELIEVE THIS?
WHAT'S GOING ON?
I LOVE YOU!!! MARRY ME!
STUDENT SEARCH FOR LOST LOVE
SOON...
GREAT PHOTO, AY? COST ME $100.00 BUCKS
YOU ARE NUTS!

Yeasthead by E.L.M.

The Lab by Law

BLEEP.. BLEEP...
LOOK MABELLE, A FLYING SAUCER!
BIG DEAL! I HEARD THEY ARE ALL OVER THE PLACE..
WHAT?!
I READ ALL ABOUT IT IN THE "EXPIREROR."

I'd drive across the ocean for the Collegian...

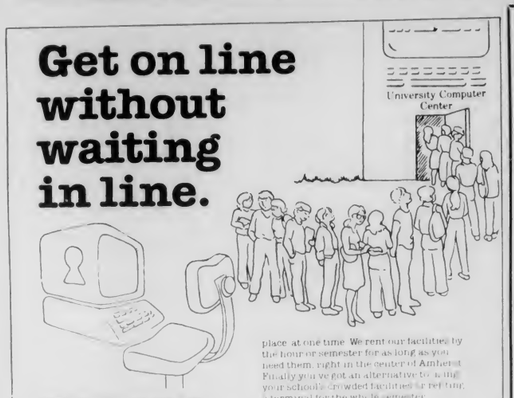
CAN YOU TYPE? WANT CASH?

We will train responsible people with GOOD typing skills on our new typesetting machines. This is a marketable skill to have and could lead to summer positions making well over 7 dollars per hour. For an application and more information stop by the Collegian leave a note or speak with Dode Levenson

Get on line without waiting in line.



"Unbelievable!"

It used to be really hard to get your computer time. It meant late nights, long waits, frustration. Now it's new era for computer access. To make a tough situation worse, most places charge you for precious time that you're in the every time you want to get on line. And you didn't get a print out by the time you need it are about to get out of the state to a Michael Jackson concert.

That is, of course, unless you do your computer homework at the Computer Access Center.

16 chairs, no waiting!

The Computer Access Center is a unique workspace that offers everything you need to do all of your computer work, in one place at one time. We rent our facilities by the hour or semester for as long as you need them, right in the center of Amherst. Finally you've got an alternative to using your school's crowded facilities or renting a terminal for the whole semester.

The Access Center has all 16 work stations fully equipped with computers and terminals, complete modem systems that allow you to tie in to Cyber, VAX, or any other mainframe that you have the access code for, on-site letter-quality and dot matrix printers for instant printouts, and experienced and knowledgeable computer pros always on duty to help you.

Of course, the best part is that at Computer Access Center you don't have to waste precious time standing in line. Now you can plan ahead and reserve time on a terminal that will be waiting just for you.

So what are you waiting for? Call today and see for yourself how easy and inexpensive renting time on a computer can be.

COMPUTER ACCESS CENTER INC.

ON SITE HOURLY/SEMESTER RENTALS 256-1213

79 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA (in left rear of Peter Pan terminal building)

Mon.-Thurs. 9 am-11 pm, Fri. 9 am-6 pm, Sat.-Sun. 10 am-6 pm

2 FREE HOURS OF COMPUTER TIME!

Call today, mention this ad and use one of our computers for two hours at no cost!

Offer good during business hours Monday through Friday until October 15th

50¢ OFF Maybelline®

MASCARAS

" The Fresh Look "

Sale dates: 9/25 - 10/9

Located in the Campus Center

OPEN M-F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:

an evening with

"The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students, Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Oct. 3rd
No ticket line before midnight

UMass ID required with student ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center, and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Biggest Sale of the Year!

$25 OFF

ON JOSTENS GOLD COLLEGE RINGS.

See your Jostens representative.

Date: Oct. 1, 2 - Mon, Tue

Place: Outside Univ. Store

Deposit: $15.00

Time 10-3:30 pm

Get A $25 Rebate On Your Jostens Gold College Ring

UNIVERSITY STORE

Men's and women's tennis off to a promising start

By BRYAN QUENZEL
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts woman's tennis team dropped a close fought match to the University of New Hampshire 5-4 on Saturday. The Minutemen are now 2-2.

Even in defeat, Coach Ned Norris saw promise. "They played mentally tough tennis," said Norris.

Norris was especially pleased with the play of Debbie Ginn and Judy McInnis who won an impressive three set victory in their first outing ever. Norris was also encouraged by the play of top single seen Chris Frazier who took her match.

Meanwhile, the men's team was in action this weekend at the ECAC Tournament in Albany. UMass was one of twenty-five teams to participate in the tournament.

The Minutemen's doubles teams of Earl Small and Mark Weinstein along with Frank Rodman and John DeClerk played well as both advanced to the quarter finals before being eliminated.

Top singles seeds Wayne Peterson and Paul Munsun had disappointing afternoons as both were knocked out in their first matches.

The next men's match is tommorrow against the Army at West Point.

They then play at home on the Boyden Courts this Thursday against Albany College before they leave for the New England Tennis Tournament to be held at Harvard University on Friday.

The women will face the University of Rhode Island today at the NOPE courts at 3:30. The women are riding a 3-2 record on the season so far. They will also be at Vermont on Saturday.

Cross Country: improving

By BUD VERGE
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts' women's cross coutry teams were successful in seperate meets over the weekend. The men, at home, defeated Dartmouth College 36-21. The women finished in the middle of a large field at the Rutgers Invitational in New Brunswick, New Jersey.

The men were paced by the strong sophomore trio of Jan Novack, Paul Stanislawzik, and Wayne Levy. Top runner, Jay Pannconne, took a rest, sitting out with a sprained ankle. The loss of Pannconne did not affect the Minutemen's strength, as they brought up the reserves to helps win the meet. Coach Ken O'Brien was happy about winning his first meet of the new season.

"We still have a long season ahead of us," said O'Brien. "Just because we beat Dartmouth, doesn't make the rest of the season any easier. The Minutemen claimed three of the top six spots. Next week the men hope to have the same results as they host Connecticut, at home on Saturday.

The women, on the other hand, didn't have as good a day as expected. At Rutgers they all ran together, but finished too far back in the pack and recorded an 11th place showing.

Against national caliber teams as Penn State, Villanova, BU, and UNH, the top UMass finisher was 33rd, Sally Howes. Freshman Sarah Kitchell followed, finishing 40th. The rest of the finishers were rounded out by Lauren Doughty, Doreen Erickson, who is back from a preseason injury, and Kim Baker.

Chris Piatt hopes to be back in action next week as the women face Northeastern in their home opener. Coach Caroline Gardiner was, "really excited over my team's performance. Sally ran very good for us, she's had three real good races. Sarah really surprised me, she gets better in every meet." Gardiner added, "Each time we race, we do better as a team. We hope to suprise some people later on in the year."

Just Fun Arcade

Welcomes you to Wednesday Nite
FREE PLAY PARTY!
Any and all games just $2.00
every Wednesday 8:30 - 10:30
Mt Farms Mall, Rt 9

Texas Instruments, Inc,
in Dallas, Texas presents:
AN EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES INFORMATION SESSION
Open to all graduating
Electrical/Computer Engineers
and COINS Majors (scientific applications)
Thursday, Oct. 4, 4-6 pm Campus Center
Refreshments will be served

Sunburst Glass Works, Inc.
Stained Glass Artists

6th Annual BACK TO GLASS SALE
Oct 1 thru Oct 6
20% OFF ALL GLASS
30% OFF 4 ft or more of one color
Highlighting Kokomo Glass
Cathedrals 2.50 sq. ft.
Hot Colors 3.50 sq. ft.
60/40 Solder 5.95/lb. Copper Foil 1.85/roll
Acid Etching Cream - 50% off
Rub 'n Etch Stencils - 30% off
ALL FINISHED WORK - 20% OFF
Don't forget our BARGAIN TABLE!

Mon-Thurs 10-8
Fri & Sat 10-9
Pot Pourri Shops, 241 King St., N'ton, Ma. • 586-6387

STOP YOUR ALCOHOL PROBLEM ...

The Student Opportunity Program (STOP) offers five weeks of education and group support to students whose alcohol related behavior is causing problems.

If you are concerned about how drinking is affecting your studies, work, relationships and/or health, and would like more information about STOP call:

The Alcohol Education Program
Division of Health Education University Health Services
549-2671 Ext. 181

STOP BEGINS...
Monday, Oct. 22, 1984
6-7:30p.m./Room 302-UHS

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

AUTO FOR SALE

1978 Chevrolet Malibu stetion wagon body and engine in great shape runs great good mpg, new cooling system and more $1700 call 546-9665

Honda '78 Civic hatchback, 2 door, 4 speed, runs well, good body, $1500. Call 536-2158 after 5 PM

74 Mustang Ghia 4AT 73000 mi excellent conditions $1100 call 549-4716

74 Pontiac Ventura 3 speed std no rust runs great call Steve eves 549-7818 $50 or BO

1973 Cutlass Supreme 4 door good shape new brakes upholstry battery $725. Call before 4:30 Cheri 549-4136

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock-A-Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks. "MTV" video music call 548-7144

Rock-A-Disc Rock-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7889

FOR RENT

Refrigerator Rental 2 cubic ft R & P. Package Store free delivery call 253-9742

One and two bedroom apts. On bus route cats okay. All utilities included. Wmsburg 268-3624 584-3095

FOR SALE

Moped brand new only 500 mi. excellent condition 253-9418 Brian eve

Used Holton Trumpet for sale. Good condition $100 or best offer call 549-7767

Ski Boots, Nordica mens 9½, 3 seasons new 546-9667 $50

KENYA BAGS FOR $20 Will be back in the concourse OCTOBER 4th and 5th

Hide a bed sofa $250, table $10, single bed $35, stereo $45, 549-6876

FOUND

Sweater outside Mini Store in Student Union Thursday Sept 27 call Matt to identify 546-5531

GUITAR AMP FOR SALE

Roland 60 watts, equalizer, overdrive, reverb $300 or BO must sell call Bob at 546-8905

HELP WANTED

Drivers wanted at Pinocchio's $6.7/hr. Apply in person for details 1177 N. Pleasant

Retail Sales positions full and part time Advanced Video 26 North King St Northampton 586-8901

People's Market is looking for new collective members for fall '84. We need hard workers, people with ability to maintain a strong commitment and willingness to work beyond floor hours. These are musts. Experience with marketing, advertising, and managing helpful. Work 10+ hours per week, at $3.65 per hour. Applications available at People's Market, located at rear of the Student Union. Women, people of color, handicapped, gay, lesbian, and older students are encouraged to apply.

Weekend position available 22 hours per week, starting pay $4.64/hour with Services for Community Living a small innovative Human Service Agency. No experience necessary. Valuable training provided. Call in Holyoke 1-538-8176

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop 26 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098

LOST

Dorm key on lion medallion $5 reward for info. Please call 546-5394 (339 Moore)

$200 Reward for return of two chains and ring left in Boyden Gym please call 546-5001

MOTORCYCLES

Yamaha 750 6000 mi very cheap I need money for Europe 527-1230

PERSONALS

The Christian Science Organization is gearing up for fall. Organizational Meeting on Tuesday, October 2 at 4:30, apt. B-8

North Village Christian Science Monitor table Thursday in Campus Center, volunteers needed, call 549-6876

Drinking getting you down? Tired of hangovers? Call University Health Services (549-2671, x181) for information about the Student Opportunity Program (STOP)

Rande W. Happy Birthday! Have a great day to start off the best year ever.

CHI OMEGA THANKS!!! 1 sastatic pledge love Diana

Keran, Happy 20th! Have a fantastic birthday! Let's celebrate! Love Pam Lori, I'm really sorry - Happy Belated Birthday! Let's go out soon! Love Pam

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers. Cases. Dissertations. Theses on campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 bdrm new! Nonsmoker, on bus route, ½ of 475a call Peter 253-7871 keep trying!

TRAVEL

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 Student/Budget Travel Agency. Free catalog, call (617) 266-1926 or write, 729 Boylston St. Suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

WANTED

Female to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4686

Trade motorcycle for music equipment Suzuki GN400X value $600 bass or PA 533-0601 Dave

WANTED TO RENT

Looking for apartment Townehouse, Brandywine, Puffton area beginning Spring 85 semester. Will pay generously to take over lease. Call 546-9756 or 546-8487

Sports

Fall Fever: Playoffs under way

Detroit and Kansas City: mismatch?

Detroit at Kansas City

Records: Detroit: 104-58 (15 games ahead), Kansas City: 84-78 (3 games ahead)
Where: Royals Stadium, artificial turf
Starters: Detroit: Jack Morris (19-11), Kansas City: Bud Black (17-12)
Game Time: 8:00 p.m.
Television: ABC
The Teams:

Detroit has some quality players that, on paper at least, are much better than Kansas City's.

KC's only advantages come at first base where Steve "Bye Bye" Balboni (27 homers) has a marked edge over the free swinging Barbaro Garbey. George Brett, the Royals' veteran thirdbaseman, also is better than Detroit's combination of Tim Brookens or Howard Johnson.

But Detroit has second baseman Lou Whitaker, shortstop Alan Trammell, the outfield of Larry Herndon, Chet Lemon, and Kirk Gibson. All catcher Lance Parrish and designated hitter Darrell Evans make a potent lineup.

Only centerfielder Willie Wilson and the crafty Hal McRae figure to show they are better than their Detroit counterparts. Frank White is 34, but still can't be counted out.

On the mound, Detroit has a slew of solid starters in Jack Morris, Dan Petry, Milt Wulcox and the lefthanded power of Willie Hernandez out of the bullpen. KC has the likes of Bud Black, Brett Saberhagan and Charlie Liebrandt starting, but the presence of submariner Dan Quisenberry is a formidable one in relief.

The question is this: Detroit hasn't had a game that's meant anything since Memorial Day, KC has been fighting for their lives for the whole season. Who's ready? Sparky Anderson and Dick Howser are veteran baseball men, but the Sparker has the game day edge. Detroit, barring major upset, should advance.

AP Laserphoto

Chicago Cubs starter Rick Sutcliffe will play a major role in today's game vs. San Diego. The right hander went 16-1 this season.

Chicago and San Diego: a fan's dream

San Diego at Chicago

Records: Chicago: 96-65 (6½ games ahead), San Diego: 92-70 (12 games ahead)
Where: Wrigley Field, grass
Starters: Chicago: Rick Sutcliffe (16-1), Eric Show: (10-6)
Game Time: 2:25 p.m.
Television: ABC
The Teams:

The Cubbies are everybody's favorite. But looking at San Diego and their players, this could be one of the best pure baseball playoffs in quite a while.

The Cubbies have an impressive lineup: Bob Dernier, MVP designate Ryne Sanberg, Leon Durham, Jody Davis, and Gary Matthews. The Padres have Kevin McReynolds, Tony Gwynn, Alan Wiggins and Gary Templeton.

The speed factor goes to San Diego with Wiggins and Gwynn. Emotion is with the Cubs.

On the mound this series showcases some incredible pitching. Sutcliffe is 16-1 and has looked awesome while doing so. The Cubs also have Lee Smith out of the pen and the starting can be aptly handled by old friend Dennis Eckersly, Steve Trout and Scott Sanderson. San Diego led the league in shutouts and has lefthanders Mark Thurmond, Dave Dravecky, and Tim Lollar. Ed Whitson, a righthander, has also shone. Goose Gossage comes out of the pen with 25 saves and ten victories. He's tough in the playoffs.

On the bench, the Cubs go with a set lineup but can come in with Davey Lopes and Richie Hebner, two old playoff hands.

San Diego has Champ Summers on the pines with Bobby Brown, Kurt Bevacqua and Tim Flannery.

Jim Frey managed the Cubs with a lot of style this season in a tough pennant race. Dick Williams has been there before with the Red Sox and the A's.

The smooth imported: Manal scoring for UM

Canadian freshman keys Minutemen's good start

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

Scoring goals has never seemed difficult for Kurt Manal. But despite his impressive statistics, it didn't come without hard work, dedication and of course talent.

Anybody that can put 72 goals in the net over a span of 55 games at the age of 16 is talented.

He has also displayed leadership and poise, as demonstrated during his freshman season here at UMass, where he has already compiled six goals and one assist in the first eight games.

They may not seem like overwhelming stats, but considering the Minutemen only scored ten goals all together last season and only won three games (they have five wins under their belt already), you begin to realize that something good is happening to this defensive-minded squad.

Manal, an exercise science major who will turn 19 this Sunday, has not had much soccer experience in the U.S., even though he has played since he was seven years old. He was born in Montreal, Canada, but wanted to come to school in the states, and would like to attend medical school one day.

He was lightly recruited by other schools, but was offered a good scholarship by UMass and believed that Coach Jeff Gettler was sincere about his intentions with the team.

"I thought it was going to be a good team in a couple of years. He (Gettler) puts it in a team perspective and knows a lot about the game. I want to learn and he can teach me a lot," said Manal.

It is a bit surprising that someone with such experience wants to and is able to still learn more about the game. But that is where dedication and hard work pay off.

He attended a training camp for Team Canada to prepare for a tournament at the end of last summer in Trinidad, but tore ligaments and couldn't go, so he played exhibition games here. He has been selected on all-tournament teams (the most recent coming in the Rutgers Tournament), been named MVP, and received top scorer trophies. In 1979, he was first in Quebec and second in all of Canada in the 14 and under category of all around skills as a soccer player.

"Soccer has become huge in Canada in the last five years. There are two pro soccer leagues, and they're getting some games on TV," remarked Manal.

Manal feels that soccer is pretty big over here too, and will be even bigger in five or six years when the young kids just starting to play get older.

"There are so many good players now (in the U.S.). There is more passing in America, and they stress fitness and defense more. In Canada they emphasize attack more and run more and dribble. But I think its great to have good defenses," added Manal.

His biggest thrill as a player came during the only tournament Quebec played at home in 1981. In the finals against a team of future stars from West Germany before his home crowd, Manal scored the winning goal with two minutes left to win it, 2-1.

He feels that his current team is good right now, and will have shot at the NCAA tournament if they continue to play this way.

"Before I came to pre-season, I didn't think we'd do so well, but after I saw the players, I knew we'd have a good team. The players are pretty equal, from the freshmen to the seniors. After BU (a 1-0 opening victory), each game we're getting better and playing closer together," said Manal.

"I'm sure we can get better. Coach says we still have to improve. We will improve next year and the year after. It will take time, but we have a good, competitive team. I'll be really disappointed if by the time I'm a senior, we don't win New England," concluded Manal.

Sports Information photo

Freshman Kurt Manal has been UMass' leading scorer this season.

sports at a glance

UMass Schedule:

Women's Tennis: URI at NOPE Courts, 3:30 p.m.
Volleyball: Mount Holyoke at NOPE Gym, 7:00 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 21 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, October 3, 1984

UMass classrooms violate state building codes

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

Some classrooms at the University of Massachusetts are in violation of the state's building codes and may need major renovations, according to UMass officials.

Keith E. Hoyle, senior fire prevention officer at the Environmental Health and Safety Office said about 20 to 25 classrooms violate building codes because they lack proper safety exits.

"State law says classrooms with 10 or more students must have two separate means of egresses (exits)," Hoyle said. "But some rooms that are now being used were never built for classroom use," he said.

"We have some conditions on this campus that are illegal and some that are potentially illegal," Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey said at the last faculty senate meeting.

"This is a major problem in many areas of the campus and as I understand it, it will play a major part in renovations," he said.

"It's a technicality," Hoyle said, "but this has been brought to the vice chancellors because the problems can be corrected." According to Justin L. Cobb, the director of Space Management, the administration is looking to the legislature for money to pay for the renovations.

Cobb said fire inspectors have "checked out" classrooms that were not intended for more than 10 people and have classified them "unsafe".

"Desks move into classrooms that are not to be used for more than 10 people and then can't be used. It's not an unusual problem," Cobb said

Thomas Fox, a professor of veterinarian and animal sciences, said he lost a classroom in Stockbridge Hall that has been used for 70 years because it did not have two exits. "The fire marshall indicated that the classroom was no longer safe because it did not have two separate escape routes," Fox said.

Fox said he lost a valuable classroom that housed television and video equipment used for instruction.

"It has caused some hardship because the equipment can't be transported," he said.

Hoyle said major renovations would include "cutting a door from a classroom into a stairwell, setting up fire doors to set up egresses, or the entire reconstruction of a room may be needed."

"The state building inspector out of Springfield regulates the number of people allowed in a room by square footage," Hoyle said.

Each person, according to state codes, must have 20 square feet of space per net.

Trustees vote on feasibility study today

The University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees will hold its first meeting of the academic year today in the Campus Center.

Topping the agenda for the regular bi-monthly meeting are a vote to approve a feasibility study for a multipurpose arena on campus, and the creation and filling of a new joint admistrative position, vice chancellor for research and dean of the graduate school.

The feasibility study, announced last week by Dean of the School of Physical Education David Bischoff, will examine sites, design plans, cost estimates and financing for a sports and convocation center.

The study, which will cost about $75,000, will take about a year and if results are approved, construction would then begin on a six year project costing between $15 and $18 million.

Student fees would be raised to partially fund the building, Bischoff said.

Student Trustee James Keller said he opposed the feasibility study for the arena because student fees would go up to pay for it.

"Any time the University wants to spend a substantial amount of money, it comes back to the students," Keller said.

"There are many alternatives that would be a lot more (desireble)," he said.

In two separate votes, the trustees will decide whether to create a joint position of vice chancellor for research and dean of the graduate school and then whether to appoint Samuel Conti, current graduate school dean, to fill it.

There are currently four vice chancellors including administration and finance, student affairs, university relations and development, and an executive vice chancellor under Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

Anne McCrory

Inside:

Gender Gap continues.....p.3
Reagan courts America.....p. 7
Top ranked UMass soccer off to Yale p.16

"You can't always get what you want, but if you try sometimes, you just might find, you get what you need.
—Mick and the Boys

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

SOLITARY WALK — Shong-Fan-Huang, a graduate HRTA student, walks by Whitmore Tuesday morning despite the wind and the rain.

Gender gap is political issue

Women increase status

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

NORTHAMPTON—A referendum on the status of women in the United States is the hidden agenda of the 1984 presidential election, according to an author on the gender gap who spoke at Smith College last night.

Marjorie Lansing, a political science professor, at the University of Michigan and author of Women in Politics: the Visible Majority, told an audience of 50 that the gender gap will not "go away as a force in American politics."

Lansing said support received by right wing evangelical groups represented backlash against the political gains women have made since the 1960's.

Women have made those political gains, Lansing said, as a result of both demographics, and the women's movement.

Regarding the Equal Rights Amendment, Lansing said, "We lost the battle, but we won the war."

Women became much more aware of the significance of politics and of discrimination in pension, insurance, social security and credit, Lansing said. Women also "earned their spurs" as leaders and organizers, she said.

Continued on page three

Senate votes today on SW elections

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

In a move to "eliminate the controversy" surrounding the Southwest area elections last spring, members of the Executive Staff of Southwest Area Government (SWAG) Tuesday issued a letter asking the Undergraduate Student Senate tonight to approve all election results except the SWAG co-presidency.

The letter is a response to the senate's invalidation of the SWAG elections and subsequent freezing of SWAG money at the last senate meeting in May.

The letter also states that with the exception of the co-presidency, "the elections were run in accordance with Southwest election guidelines and the Constitution of the Southwest Residential College."

The senate ruled that because two candidates for the co-presidency were kept off the ballot, SWAG elections were illegal.

SWAG in the letter, asked that the election of the co-vice presidents, publicity coordinator and treasurer be officially recognized.

Jo Bonnie Kaplan and Catherine Turner were elected as the co-vice presidents, Thomas Ierardi was elected as publicity coordinator and Eric Ericson was elected treasurer.

Arthur Stephenson, whose election as SWAG co-president has not been recognized, signed the letter Tuesday and said the letter was "a compromise to keep the (Southwest) area government going and enable it to plan events for Southwest."

Bill Collins ran with Stephenson for the co-presidency.

SWAG has not been able to spend any money since Sept. 23., when its account was officially frozen by Student Government Association (SGA) Treasurer John Mooradian. The account freeze affects the programming of events for about 5500 students living in Southwest.

Mooradian said he froze SWAG's account because officers had been illegally spending money. Since SWAG did not have any officers recognized by the senate, Collins and Stephenson would then have to file nomination papers, and an election open to all candidates for SWAG co-presidents would be held.

The PUB MUGS Are In!
Wednesday Nights 9-1
Music By RACK-A-DISC
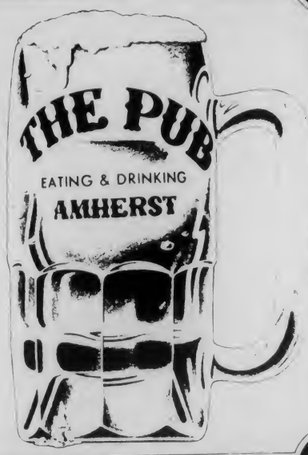
-Requests-
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St
AMHERST



THE NUCLEAR NAVY. RIDE THE WAVE OF THE FUTURE.

You're deep under the sea. There are 4600 tons of nuclear-powered submarine around you. Your mission – to preserve the peace.

Your job – to coordinate a practice missile launch. Everything about the sub is state-of-the-art, including you.

The exercise – a success. You're part of that success and now you're riding high.

In the nuclear Navy, you learn quickly. Over half of America's nuclear reactors are in the Navy. And that means you get hands-on experience fast.

You get rewarded fast, too. With a great starting salary of $22,000 that can build to as much as $44,000 after five years. And with training and skills you'll use for a lifetime.

Then, whether you're in the Mediterranean, the Pacific or the Atlantic, wherever you move around the world, you'll be moving up in your career and in the Navy.

Find out more about an exciting future that you can start today.

See your Navy Recruiter or CALL 800-327-NAVY.

NAVY OFFICERS GET RESPONSIBILITY FAST.

Secretary of Labor sees larceny charge

NEW YORK (AP) - Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan and nine other people pleaded innocent Tuesday to stealing $8 million from New York City on a subway construction contract awarded two years before Donovan joined the Reagan administration.

Donovan - believed to be the first sitting Cabinet member ever indicted - appeared in state Supreme Court in the Bronx along with his nine co-defendants, who include a Democratic state senator. All pleaded innocent to a 137-count indictment charging them with one count of grand larceny, 125 counts of falsifying business records and 11 counts of false filings.

The grand larceny charge carries a maximum penalty on conviction of seven years in prison. The other counts each carry four-year maximums.

The indictment also named as defendants the Schiavone Construction Co. of Secaucus, N.J., of which Donovan was executive vice president, and Jopel Contracting and Trucking Corp. of the Bronx, one of whose owners was the indicted state senator, Joseph Galiber.

The indictment said the money was stolen from the city Transit Authority, which gave a$186 million contract to Schiavone as the primary contractor. Schiavone allegedly padded payments it made to Jopel, a subcontractor.

"They engaged in a scheme whereby they filed inflated, phony, false records with the Transit Authority," Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said.

Donovan said afterward that Merola "may have won today's battle by the misuse of his office, but I guarantee you that he will not win the war."

He said he was shocked to learn that none of the questions he was asked during his appearance before the grand jury last week related to the charges in the 73-page indictment.

"The indictment was obviously prepared before I testified," Donovan said.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Gerry deSimas
Copy Editor Taara Eden Hoffman
Layout Tecnician Peter Soderberg
Photo Technician Paul Desmarais
Production supervisor Lesley Clark
Production Dode B. Levenson, Chris Meagher, Fran Weinberg, Kim Foster, Lynn Nigro, Karen Darr, David Hazeltine, Mike Christ

FUNTASY FANTASY
MID-WEEK SPECIALS
10% OFF 10% OFF
New Comics, Books & Magazines!
★★ TUES. WED. THURS. ★★
• COMICS • • SCIENCE FICTION • • MOVIE POSTERS •
18 MAIN STREET AMHERST, MASS
GOOD UNTIL 10-31-84

BOOK SALE
20% OFF
Regular Price
on All Books
Mon-Sat Oct 1-6
VALLEY BOOKSHOP
Carriage Shops
Downtown Amherst
HOURS:
10:30-5:00
Mon-Sat
Sun 12:00-4:00

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Texas Instruments, Inc,
in Dallas, Texas presents:
AN EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES INFORMATION SESSION
Open to all graduating
Electrical/Computer Engineers
and COINS Majors (scientific applications)
Thursday, Oct. 4, 4-6 pm Campus Center
Refreshments will be served

Collegian photo by Michelle Seagull

NICE TO MEET YA — A robot introduces himself and USA Today to students at lunch at Berkshire D.C. in Southwest Tuesday.

Town Boltwood Project faces opposition

By JOHN MILBIER
Collegian Correspondent

The Boltwood Center Project slated for downtown Amherst has run into opposition from the Gray Panthers and the Amherst Downtown Task Force because both groups say the project is too big and will cause traffic problems.

Century Investment Co. and Roberts Builders designed the project to be a four story building to include retail shops, professional office space, apartments and an underground parking lot.

The project is to be built on the land where the Taco Villa parking lot is, said Downtown Task Force chairman Richard Minear.

"If Boltwood goes through it would be like looking out your back window and seeing the battleship Massachusetts out there," Gray Panther Alan Root said.

Root said the Amherst Re-development Authority (ARA) could build any building on the spot, "as long as it is within the zoning code."

Minear, a UMass history professor said the castle-like building will be four stories and there won't be access to North Pleasant Street.

"Boltwood will take away parking instead of supply it," Gray Panther Winifred Hillicker said.

Hillicker said the Panthers were also concerned about the traffic congestion and the unloading of merchandise behind the stores.

Jurgen Roetter, the ARA chairman said the project would have 140 parking spaces which would take care of the Project .

"Boltwood Park isn't designed to solve downtown Amherst's parking problem. You can't solve the parking problem in one massive sweep," Roetter said.

Roetter said Boltwood was designed with the approval of the board of selectmen and the planning board.

The project still must be approved by the Amherst Zoning Board of Appeals because buildings with apartments and stores in a business district require a special permit.

"Boltwood (the project)came before the town twice , and twice the proposal passed," Roetter said.

Roetter added that the project was needed to help pay off an outstanding bond.

"The bond was issued to the town in October 1975 for $1,435,000 at a fixed interest rate of 6.2 percent. The total debt over 20 years will be $2,458,000 at a fixed interest rate of6.2 percent.

He said if the property is not developed, the defecit would be $385,263.

"We have a good developer and they have a good record, now is the time to move," Roetter said.

Woman, 72, missing from nursing home

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Correspondent

A 72-year-old woman was reported missing from the Amherst Nursing Home Monday, Amherst police said.

Helen Hanson was reported missing at 11:17 a.m. Monday. She was last seen 90 minutes later at a store in town.

Miss Hanson was wearing a blue pantsuit with a red horizontal striped shirt, according to the police. She has reddish-gray hair. Police ask that anyone with any information concerning the woman contact them.

Police also reported the theft of a 1980 Jeep CJ-7, valued at $6500, from the parking lot of Brittany Manor Apartments. The vehicle was last seen Sunday night, and was reported missing at 10 a.m. Monday.

A 19-year-old Haverford, Pa. woman suffered head injuries when the car she was driving collided with a vehicle driven by a North Hatfield woman at Woodside Avenue and Northampton Road. The woman was taken to the Amherst College infirmary. Both vehicles had over $500 worth of damage, and no citations were issued.

A three-car accident on Route 116 resulted in minor neck and head injuries to three Ludlow women Monday afternoon.

The women, ages 23, 52 and 87, were passengers in a car driven by a 25-year-old East Pepperell man. The man was slowing down for a left-hand turn onto Meadow Street, when his car was struck from behind by another vehicle. The accident was blamed on poor road conditions, police said. No citations were issued.

Slippery road conditions were also cited as the cause of an accident on Amity Street Monday. A car driven by a 23-year-old Hull man slid into the eastbound lane, struck a vehicle driven by a Pelham man, and came to rest against a telephone pole. No injuries were reported.

An Amherst resident reported some hit-and-run damage to a lawn early Tuesday morning. A vehicle destroyed two trees and a patch of grass at Bridge and Pine Streets.

Student groups mad at changes

By JOHN VINCENT
Collegian Staff

The Campus Center Board of Governors approved four office changes within the Campus Center-Student Union building complex Tuesday night.

The BOG will also look into what role the University administration has in space decisions in the complex, board chairman Bob Aberle said.

Fraternity Alpha Phi Omega and Sorority Gamma Sigma Sigma will move into room 415A of the Student Union Building, presently occupied by the Key Functions and Governors Program Council offices.

The Key Functions office, a student run business which supervises the use of keys in the complex, will move to room 415 of the Student Union Building. Room 415 is presently occupied by the Music Guild, Distinguished Visitor's Program and Women's Leadership Project offices which will remain there.

The Governors Program Council, which sponsors speeches on campus, will move to the Board of Governors office, room 817 in the Campus Center.

Office moves can be changed if appeals to a Board of Governors subcommittee find that the move was not justified.

Alpha Phi Omega and Gamma Sigma Sigma were moved out of their office, 304 SUB, so the SGA Communications office could move there because the SGA needed better ventilation. They appealed the move because they said they could not function in 415A and they were not told of the move although they had been under consideration for the move since a month before. The appeal was rejected by the space subcommittee.

The Board also told the space committee to study what role the University administration has in space decisions in the complex. Aberle said he wasn't sure the administration had any say. But they made the Student Union complex take in the Off Campus Housing Office or face a loss of student advocacy powers.

UM hosts history

By PAULA JABLONER
Collegian Correspondent

Original letters, photographs, sculpture, and memorabilia of the 19th century women's suffrage movement are on display at the University of Massachusetts as part of the first attempt to compile the works of Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

The collection, titled "Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony: A Photographic leonography," is on display on the 25th floor of the tower library through November 20th. Both Anthony and Stanton were prominent in the women's suffrage movement in the 19th century.

Historians Ann Gordon and Pat Holland are co-editors of the project. Gordon said the reason for studying the women together is that "their collaboration was so extensive, even if you worked on one, you would have to do both."

Stanton and Anthony met in 1851 and their commitment to achieving the vote for women extended throughout their lives. Stanton was much more the thinker, while Anthony was more the organizer and public speaker, Gordon said. A problem in compiling their work is that it is dispersed all over the country and Europe, she said.

"Any man would have had an office with a secretary," Gordon said. There was no central organization for their work and "there are all kinds of ways for papers to be destroyed," she said.

Gordon and Holland's aim is to get as much information as possible in chronological order to see interconnection that independent researchers have not seen yet. By 1988, they hope to have a comprehensive microfilm edition and guide; by 1994, five volumes of selected papers, she said.

The display is sponsored by the Papers of Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony, office of the Dean of Arts and Humanities, the Sophia Smith collection, and Smith College.

The papers of the two suffragists are being compiled on the UMass campus.

The compilation is a major research project in women's history, Gordon said. The exhibit is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

★ Lansing

Continued from page one

Lower birth rates, entry into paid labor work and higher education, and the "great change" in family structure also contributed to women's increased political involvement, Lansing said.

The nomination of Geraldine Ferraro for vice-president for the United States is a breakthrough, the significance of which is only tainted by an unenlightened press, she said.

"Why did the Wall Street Journal assign a reporter to spend a month looking at her finances?" she asked.

Since 1980, she said, the majority of the American public would vote for a woman as readily as for a man "if she were qualified."

"Women leaders used to say: 'We want as many unqualified women in office as there are unqualified men'," Lansing said.

She said she believed the women's movement in the 1980's could be compared to the labor movement of the 1930's and 40's because "there may be short term periods when it won't be there."

But, she said, due to the more liberal voting patterns of the baby boom generation, the increased voting of black and hispanic women, the women's movement will "continue to build on itself."

"Women will continue to strive to be co-signers of the social contract," Lansing said.

Photo by Derrick Roberts

NIGHT LIFE — The campus shines Monday.

SYMPOSIUM ON

INNER SCIENCE AND WORLD PEACE

Keynote Address:

His Holiness the Fourteenth Dalai Lama, Tenzin Gyatso
Topic: A Universal Humanitarian Approach to World Peace

Panelists:

Fern L. Johnson, Ph.D., is Associate Provost for Undergraduate Education, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, and Associate Professor, Department of Communication Studies.
Topic: Feminist Perspectives on Peace

Robert Thurman, Ph.D., is Associate Professor of Religion, Amherst College, President of the American Institute of Buddhist Studies, and author of The Holy Teaching of Vimalakirti, and Tsong Khapa's Speech of Gold: Reason and Enlightenment in the Central Philosophy of Tibet.
Topic: Inner Science and Our Survival

Frances Vaughan, Ph.D., is Professor of Psychology at the California Institute of Transpersonal Psychology, past president of the Association for Transpersonal Psychology, author of Awakening Intuition, co-editor Beyond Ego.
Topic: Transpersonal Perspectives on World Peace.

Roger N. Walsh, M.D., Ph.D., is on the faculty of the Department of Psychiatry and Human Behavior of the California College of Medicine of the University of California, Irvine. Author of Staying Alive: The Psychology of Human Survival and Toward an Ecology of the Brain, co-editor of Beyond Health and Normality and Beyond Ego.
Topic: The Psychology of Human Survival

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
October 3, 1984 7:30 p.m.

UMass Transit Service
presents the
Fall Training Program for Bus Driving jobs.
100 applications will be given out
on Thurs. Oct. 4th at 7:00 pm in CC 917
You Must:
- have 3+ semesters remaining at UM
- be at least 18 yrs old
- Have had a license for a year

Bring proof of your class year (no ID's) to the meeting
for further info, call 545-0056
women/minorities/older students encouraged to apply
UMTS is AA/EO employer

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AT RAHAR'S

Relax and enjoy distinctive Mexican Food and drink, carefully prepared and served in a graceful atmosphere evocative of the American Southwest.
Try La Cazuela soon, in downtown Northampton.
Lunch & Dinner, Tuesday through Saturday
Dinner, Sunday — Closed Monday.

586-0400
7 OLD SOUTH STREET • NORTHAMPTON

SPORT Style

light weight
warm
machine washable
100% polyester

Virgianne

Polar Fleece Jacket
36.95
Embroidered Logo
Plain Jacket Available 34.95

Maroon
White
Lt. Grey
Grey

xs-s-m-l-xl

Lisa

photo by Dwayne Autery

mon.-fri. 9-5
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Black Affairs

Blades to play at FAC

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

For people who are begining to familiarize themselves with Ruben Blades and his music, he has the fine flair of a musician comparable to singer song-writers Bruce Springsteen, Pete Townshend and Jaekson Browne, and the keen edge for lyrics comparable to Gabriel Marque's novels.

But the million or so who have acquainted themselves with his music, Blades, 35, is a politician activist and a spokesperson for his people's concerns sufferings and struggles.

For those who still don't know who Blades is, he will be in concert Friday at 8 p.m. at the Fine Arts Center as part of BCP/AHORA anniversary celebration.

The concert promises to be a HOT one.

Although people are a bit disappointed because they will not be able to dance, Linda Velazques, AHORA's coordinator said the concert is an "educational event."

"How can anyone dance to 'Father Antonio and his altarboy Andres'," she said refering to a cut in Blades' latest LP Buscando America, (Looking for America).

The song is a narrative about a Spanish priest preaching social injustice and denouncing violence in the Central American wild who is gunned down during a mass.

"Antonio died with host in hand and not knowing why; Andres died beside him without meeting Pele and surrendered by surprise and the screaming agonizing once more was the wooden effigy of Christ nailed to the wall."

Blades' songs reveal the realities of Latin America enveloped by cultural traditions and norms.

He was born in Panama of musical parents--his mother, piano player and singer, and his father, a percussionist, police detective and basketball player.

He was raised by his grandmother who instilled in him a sense of justice and being part of one's time. In "Buscando America" the LP's title cut, he conveys his grandmother's plea, "You have been kidnapped, America; you have been gagged and its up to us to free you."

Blades launched his singing career in 1966 with El Conjunto Latino de Papi Arosenena. After obtaining a law degree from the University of Panama in 1974, he joined the Ray Barretto Band in New York City.

Although his musical career has extended with such great salsa singers as Willie Colon and Fania All-Stars, Blades created his own musical spectrum.

He believes his music should convey a political message personally meaningful to his listeners, combining a consciousness about personal roots with universal sentiments.

His music is a combination of Anglo-American rock and roll, West Indian rhythms and the beat of Latin tropical music.

Blades founded Los Seis del Solar (Six from the Empty Lot), in 1982. The band is composed of six of the most talented Latino musicians from the New York City Music scene; Oscar Hernandez, Ralph Irizarri, Ricardo Marrero, Eddie Montalvo, Louis Rivera and Mike Vinas, exceptional musicians in their own right.

Blades is pursuing a master's degree in law from Harvard University. "I am totally convinced that I am going to have a lot to do with the future of my country," Blades said in a July 2 article in Times, "But I don't want people to say, 'What does this guy know? He's been singing'"

As people already know or will soon find out, Blades knows what he is talking about.

Journalists needed now

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Unrealistic expectations are being made by news editors and journalists on increasing the number of minority journalists parallel to the population by the year 2000.

A conference held recently at the University of Massachusetts confronted by minority journelists, possible solutions and how to increase the number of minorities in America's newsrooms.

The conference was sponsored by the American Society of Newspapers Editors, the Journalistic Studies Department and the Afro-American Department at UMass.

The American Society of Newspapers (ASNE) set a goal in 1978 to fully intergrate newsrooms in the United States by the year 2000.

Bebeto Matthews, a photojournalist at The Patriot Ledger commented paralleling minority journalists to the percentage of the population would be "a slow process," unless there is a radical change towards intergrating the newsrooms.

Bernard W. Caughey, associate editor of The patriot ledger and one of the conference's coordinators said the conference was better than he expected it to be. He said the goal should be reached before the prospected year.

"Our paper will reach it," he said adding editors and publishers should also be committed to do the same.

"To reach their goal, they have to add 300-400 minority journalists to the newsrooms of America a year," said Loren Ghiglione, editor and publisher of The News.

ASNE's goal set in1978 has only gone up 1.8 percent, two tenths of one percent a year. At that rate "It willtake until 2255 to be represented," Ghiglione said.

He said there should be bigger efforts on the editors' and publishers' part and a larger target set for small newspapers

"With these efforts, it will make more educational awareness of the need of minority recruiting," said Margy McCay, from the Associated Press in New York.

She had no prediction on how soon the ASNE's goal will be accomplished, but she added,"the sooner, the better."

The conference was a "boom for Howard students" said Kevin Hicks, a business journalism graduate. He said the time was appropriate and the seminars were interesting.

Seleta D. Harris, a junior at Howard was glad she had the chance to attend.

Although she made good contacts, she said the conference needed more dialogue and a broader panel session. She added there was also a need for more interaction between students and participants.

Eugenia Dunn, editor of The Community, the student newspaper at Howard, thinks there should not be 15 years allowed to increase the number. "Why not make it 1985," Dunn said.

Announcements

Interested Latin American students and AHORA's members are encouraged to attend a meeting this afternoon at 3 p.m. Look for room number in front of elevators.

The Third World Legislative Caucus of the Student Government Association will meet tonight at 6 p.m. in the Dukes Room, Student Union Building.

There will be a cultural dinner honoring the tenth year anniversary of the Bilingual Collegiate Program tonight at 7 p.m. in the Anacaona Center, Dwight's basement. The event is sponsored by the Anacaona Center, the Sylvan Cultural Society and the Martin Luther King Center. The dinner is free and open to the public.

The Cape Verdean Student Alliance will have a meeting Thursday Oct. 4, at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House. Guest person Ray Allavera, from the Embassy of Cape Verde, will discuss the future development and growth of the CVSA.

the Hungry U Restaurant

check out our happy hour munchie menu daily!

WEDNESDAY IS PASTA NIGHT for only $4.25

includes spaghetti with a choice of homemade meatball, sausage, fresh eggplant, sauteed mushrooms, or broccoli served with salad or soup, bread and butter, and a glass of wine or beer

Happy Hour 3-6, 9-close 7 days per week
2 in 1 drinks
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

Look into the one market research graduate program that all these companies are involved in:

A.C. Nielsen Company
Advertising Research Foundation
Audits & Surveys, Inc.
Burke Marketing Services
Campbell Soup Co.
Coca-Cola USA
Custom Research Inc.
Frito-Lay
General Foods
General Mills, Inc.
Grey Advertising
Kenneth Hollander Associates
McDonald & Little Advertising
Market Facts, Inc.
Marketing & Research Counselors, Inc.
MRCA Information Services
Needham, Harper & Steers Advertising
NFO Research, Inc.
Procter & Gamble
Ralston Purina Co.
Sears, Roebuck
SSC&B: Lintas Worldwide
The Pillsbury Company
Yankelovich, Skelly & White
Young & Rubicam

The University of Georgia's Master of Marketing Research Program is truly unique. It is governed by a Board of Advisors drawn from the leaders of industry. Their personal involvement results in an outstanding program that prepares you for the real world.

It's an eighteen month program that combines classroom and on-the-job research experience. It was the first and is still the finest integrated program of graduate study leading to a Master of Marketing Research degree.

As you would expect, admission is selective and competition is stiff. Scholarships are available for qualifying applicants.

Professor Fred D. Reynolds
122 Brooks Hall
University of Georgia
Athens, Georgia 30602
Dear Sir:
Please send me complete information on your MMR program.
Name_____
Street_____ Apt._____
City_____ State_____ Zip_____
123

Great sounds to study, play and relax by during the hectic school year!

SALE THRU SATURDAY

Hitachi SW/AM/FM stereo dual cassette recorder, 30.00 off!

139.99
REG. 169.99

With shortwave for international listening, dual cassettes for dubbing and continuous play. Built-in microphones let you record live, tape-to-tape or off stereo radio. With music search, 2-way, 4-speaker system and automatic record level. #TRKW55
Batteries not included

HITACHI

Sharp AM/FM stereo cassette recorder

58.99 REG. 79.99

21.00 off! This boom box features 2-way, 4-speaker system with variable tone and balance controls. Automatic record level and built-in microphones. AC/DC. #GF4646 Batteries not included.

Mini AM/FM stereo cassette recorder

79.99 REG. 99.99

20.00 off! This is a sleek, easy-to-carry boom box with auto stop, tape counter, variable tone and balance controls. With soft-eject and built-in condenser microphones. Available in red and black. #QT-12 RED/BLACK. Batteries not included.

Panasonic recorder

34.99 REG. 44.99

Microcassette, one-touch record. Tape class lectures discreetly! #RN107
Batteries not included
Certron micro 60-min. tape, reg. 7.99 6.99 3-pk.

Sanyo recorder

19.99 REG. 24.99

Slim-line cassette recorder with auto stop and automatic level control. #SLIM8
Batteries not included

AM/FM clock radio

Reg. Price	17.99
Sale Price	11.99
Mfr. Mail-in Rebate	2.00
Final Cost	9.99

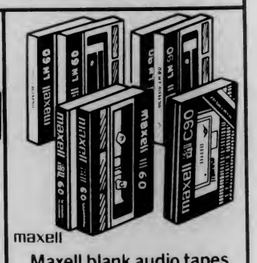
Battery back-up. AM/PM indicator. Wake to radio or alarm. To help you get to class on time! #J202
Details in store



Maxell blank audio tapes

UN60	2.99 2-PK. REG. 3.99	Your choice of 60 or 90 minute cassette tapes.
LXII90, REG. 5.79		EA 4.79
LN90, REG. 5.99		2-PK. 4.99
XLII60, REG. 6.99		2-PK. 5.99

Unusually heavy demands may require our setting reasonable quantity limits on some of the items in fairness to all customers

Bradlees
One of The Stop & Shop Companies

AMERICAN EXPRESS · MasterCard · VISA

CHICOPEE • NORTHAMPTON • SPRINGFIELD • W. SPRINGFIELD

9-4-1

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor	John O'Connell	Black Affairs Editor	Yadira Betances
Business Manager	Andrew May	Women's Issues Editor	Rebecca Thatcher
Business Manager	Elizabeth Young	Arts Editor	Christine D. Manni
Production Manager	Mark Roden	Sports Editor	Peter Abraham
Executive Editor	Rita Murphy	Photo Editor	Andrew J. Heller
News Editor	Greg Brown

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Reagan courting America

Diane Lane

While in Washington, D.C. this summer, I had the somewhat dubious privilege of attending one of President Reagan's televised news conferences. As an aspiring journalist, I found the wary, hide'n'seek relationship between the President and the White House reporters quite interesting, and not altogether comforting.

Questions and answers were choreographed like an exquisite ballet; reporters two-stepping gingerly for fear of trodding on Mr. Reagan's feet and finding themselves an unwelcome partner at the next dance.

At one point from my stolen seat in the second row, I made eye contact with Mr. Reagan as he stuttered out a malnutritioned answer to a loaded question and I was startled to see fear in his eyes, at the sight of an unknown reporter in the wrong chair. Although I was a wallflower at this ball, the script had not called for an extra and he was unprepared and confused.

I am noted for odd associations at inappropriate times, and watching Reagan's glib performance that night I was reminded of an earlier time in my life when handsome and well-groomed boys gained access to my heart and emotions through a timely word or the right gesture on a rainy day.

Shallow, only as an inexperienced 16 year-old could be, I chose my boyfriends from a crop of good-lookers who impressed me with their atheletic skill, or student council position. They would charge into my home on a Saturday night, full of forced innocence; charm my mother, pet the dog, talk sports with my brother and offer, earnestly, to help my father troubleshoot that funny noise in the transmission that had been plaguing him for weeks. Throughout all this, I glowed.

Yet, once outside the house, or in the car, Mr. Everything-to-Everybody would usually waste no time in trying to convince me that my virginity was a loathsome burden only too well lost.

It is this same impression I get in trying to understand America's love affair with Ronald Reagan. Granted, after the shameless way she has carried on with past presidents, America is most surely not a virgin any longer. All the same, I cannot help but see a parallel with the beautiful woman who always seems to show up at parties with a crude and obnoxious man; she carrying on with grace and poise while he dances on the table and throws up on the host's shoes.

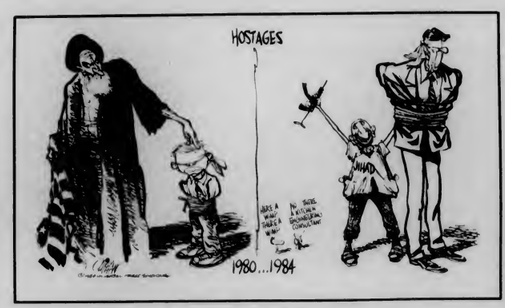
President Reagan bends over America's extended arm to kiss her hand, all the while trying to look down her shirt. He makes smooth-tongued excuses for his infidelities and she, seeing no other choice and coerced by his strong personality, acquiesces in her own rape.

What to expect from a society as shallow as ours? What else from a people who would rather spend their last dollars on landscaping for their mortgaged house instead of insulating and plumbing? Will someone tell the emperor he's not wearing any clothes?

Back again at the press conference, the entertainment stumbles, haltingly on ward. In front of a hostile and frustrated press corps Mr. Reagan is not at his best. He seems awkward with so many unrequited lovers in the same room; prefering instead the unquestioning adoration of America, as seen through the eye of a camera. He is a teen-ager with three dates to the senior prom, searching his limited mind wildly for a plausible explanation. He needs approval and indeed, recieves it enthusiastically from America; she with the taste for big cars, and big money and macho catchwords. no doubt she will give herself to him for another four years.

But, will he resepct her in the morning?

Diane Lane is a Collegian Columnist



The right to disagree

Rusty Denton

In the five-college area, it would be hard to overlook the quality and enthusiasm of arguments for vocal homosexual politics. Those arguments have largely gone unanswered. How should non-homosexuals respond to this movement? It's a very good question.

On the one hand, some of the brightest and most promising minds in this generation are aligned with the homosexual cause. They are a rich human resource; people who deserve a hearing under any circumstances.

On the other hand, many people, including myself, genuinely believe homosexuals are doing something tremendously morally wrong. There are alot of other wrong things people do on campus, but most don't make a federal issue out of their activities.

Since homosexuality is such an issue, the dilemma for many of us is how to cherish the gay or lesbian for their personal qualities without endorsing their homosexuality. And how do I stand up for what I believe in without infringing on somebody's civil rights?

According to gay leaders, the thrust of gay politics is just that: civil rights. They compare the issues with Black civil rights in the 60s. That's a little melodramatic. Blacks, women, and handicapped individuals have no choice when they face discrimination. they can't "come out of their closet" as being Black or female or disabled.

Perhaps it would be more accuratge to compare discrimination against homosexuals with discrimination against communists, "hippies", or "moonies", all of whom espouse alternative ways of life. The homosexual philosophy, in particular, suggests that morality is entirely relative to the desires of an individual. Coupled with militancy, this comes across as a "me first" attitude. Personally, I usually let people with a "me first" attitude look after themselves.

What further constrains my desire to maintain a neutral but friendly relationship with the gay community are their causes, such as "encouraging adolescents to explore their sexuality," "unlimited access" to positions of moral leadership, and "educating the public".

I am the public. If you intend to educate me or my family, then you should consider how to justify to me a lifestyle I can't appreciate; in fact, I am appalled by it.

Civil rights? Amen. But please don't mistake opposition to moral values for opposition to civil rights. There are many of us who would never discriminate against someone's race or sex or disability or personal appearance, but will continue to oppose the gay political movement. We do it not from personal malice nor from fear; we respect individual gays and lesbians too much for that. We oppose the movement because it represents a deterioration in the values of America. That is our civil right.

Rusty Denton is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Stinging criticism or an entomology lesson?

Regarding Anne McCrory's plea for help from Entomology majors (Setpember 25). Let's get the record straight. "Nature's most vindictive species, the KILLER BEE", is a subspecies of the common honey bee known as Apis Melifera adansonii. This tempremental bee does not, and never has, lived in Massachusetts. Apis Melifera, and the other true bees which do inhabit the area feed on nectar and pollen and are attracted to sources of these foods. (By the way Anne, you don't remember your biology well, honey bees overwinter as a colony).

The problem cited in last week's Collegian is most likely caused by social wasps in the genus Vespula, often called yellow jackets. Although these wasps may feed on nectar and pollen sources, they are principally omnivores. They are beneficial in that they eat many caterpillars. They are probably best known for their scavenging habits and their respectable sting (wasps do not die after using their sting, unlike honey bees).

Regarding the "studying outside" incident, McCrory stated that she was reading a newspaper and I suspect that this in fact was not a case of studying. Further, there is nowhere a report of an actual sting, merely the presence of these insects. I contend that the wasps merely find the writer attractive. Why?

It is difficult at this time of the year (when yellow jackets are most numerous) to find a garbage can or a road kill that doesn't have these wasps swarming around it. Considering the weak case presented in the article and the author's gross misuse of the word "precipitating" in the third paragraph, I contend that the wasps are merely demonstrating their characteristic attraction to garbage.

I offer the following advice: 1. Take a Rhetoric course. 2. See a Psychiatrist about your entomophobia.

You have now been stung by a W.A.S.P.!

Donald Eaton
Entomology

Financial Aid Office red tape frustrating

In the last few weeks, the meaning of Financial Aid (Services especially), has eluded me. I have heard and have experienced first hand situations such as this: getting a "...this is your third notice..." in the mail, when I had never received the first two. Finding out that the reason the Pell Grant wasn't processed was because the tax forms weren't received. Of course that may have been because they never asked me for them, BUT, in fact a form for this WAS filed, only my mother signed the wrong line before she left for New Jersey. When we gave it to the person behind the counter, I asked the clerk if it was correct and they said yes and accepted it.

Now for some questions: shouldn't the clerk have realized that the form was incorrect? Granted, they actually had to read two lines before they could have know this, but non-the-less, it should have been a possibility. But today, I was told the reason for this was because, "We deal with so many different forms..." No doubt. But, we the students do as well, yet WE are expected to do them correctly. The University sets its deadlines (March for F.A. forms) and we must meet those. But students have deadlines too, rent, food, and utility bills; would it be appropriate for the University to try to meet these dealines for the STUDENTS?

When does the University receive F.A. from the government? Is any interest made on this money until it is actually meted out? I ask this because I don't see any effort by the Financial Duress Services to expedite the allocation of funds to students. the University works at a fever pitch in August to keep their files updated, so they may properly credit their accounts for tuition, etc.... But somehow, the momentum seems to come to a grinding halt as soon as classes begin. But lo, a solution: while they hold up your aid, they WILL allow you to take out a short term loan, on which they receive interest. Swell, huh? Usually, the watchdog for this office might have tried to deal with these problems, but they can't at the moment — they're defunct.

As students, WHAT ARE OUR RIGHTS on this?

Linda Garofalo
Amherst

Supreme Court left out of referendum story

We would like to call attention to Monday's article, "Senate Cancels a Porno Vote", which ruled on this issue.

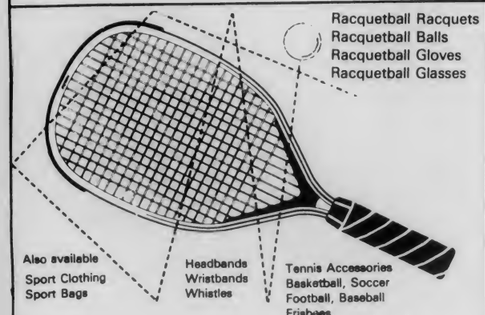
The title states that the Senate cancelled a referendum, scheduled to take place on Monday and Yesterday. It was in fact, a tribunal of the Student Supreme Court which "cancelled" this referendum in a trial which took place on Sunday night.

The word "cancels" was erroneous since the Student Supreme Court granted a motion of dismissal. This dismissal was based on an agreement by both parties to a postponement of the referendum.

Students need to know that it is the Student Supreme Court which decides any legal questions arising out of the actions of the SGA. We hope that in the future, Collegian coverage of trials notes this fact.

Mitchell Roye
SGA Clerk of Courts

SPORT EQUIPMENT



Racquetball Racquets
Racquetball Balls
Racquetball Gloves
Racquetball Glasses

Also available
Sport Clothing
Sport Bags

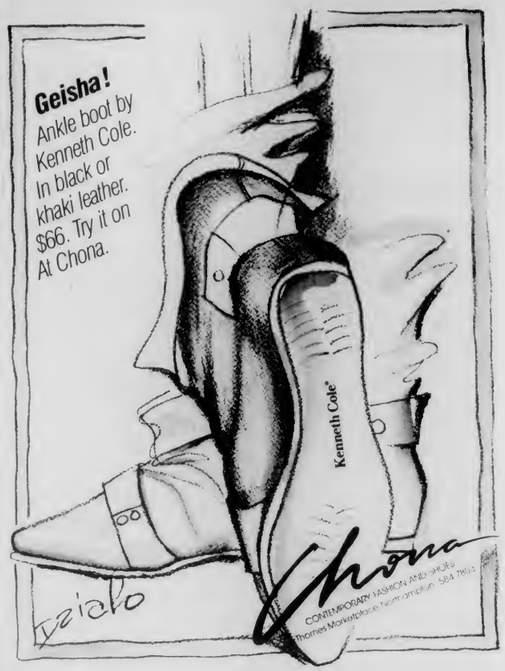
Headbands
Wristbands
Whistles

Tennis Accessories
Basketball, Soccer
Football, Baseball
Frisbees,
Swimming Accessories

Open M F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

Geisha!
Ankle boot by Kenneth Cole.
In black or khaki leather.
$66. Try it on
At Chona.



Chona
CONTEMPORARY FASHION AND SHOES
Thornes Marketplace Northampton 584-7692

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:

an evening with

"The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Oct. 3rd
No ticket line before midnight

UMass ID required with student ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center, and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Arts

A laid-back success

Renee Bacher interviews composer/pianist George Winston

By RENEE BACHER
Collegian Correspondent

The leaves have begun to tumble down upon scenic Amherst. On October 9th, they will have the pleasure of musical accompanyment by pianist George Winston.

The event will take place at John M. Green Hall on the SmithCollege campus. For those of you acquainted with Winston's genius, this is obviously a treat. For those unfamiliar with Winston's piano solos on the Windham Hill label, you are in for many goosebumps.

In a Collegian interview, Winston let us know that it is no coincidence that he has chosen to tour New England in its most beautiful season. Much of his music is based thematically upon the seasons.

His songs are stories. Some are about winter, some about the woods. They are not designed to show versatility or lack of, nor are they about him. He says,"I'm a song writer, not a jazz artist."

The feeling conveyed by his music is totally up to thelistener. He says, "I want people to be themselves and do their thing with my music. If they like it, good. If they don't, good. I'm not here to change anything and I can't speak for anybody."

As a child, Winston was never forced to play piano and he is vehemently opposed to such practice. He explains, "All you can do is make something available. It's ethical. Anything more is an assualt on the intelligence." He adds that forcing music on a child has a rather heavy penalty, "It'slike forcing someone to have sex or go to church. It's ignorant."

Presently, Winston is putting together a book of sheet music. On the first page is the message, "Don't force your kids to play this music." His upcoming album entitled, "The Velveteen Rabbit" is a children's story that will be narrated by actress Meryl Streep.

Growing up in Montana, Winston listened to a lot of popular instrumental music on the radio. He has been most heavily influenced by late New Orleans Blues pianist Professor Longhair and the legendary swing pianist Fats Waller. He occasionally uses Fats Waller pieces in his works although he says Waller is too good and too hard to imitate. He said, "If you're not that person, you can't do it. It's like trying to be somebody else."

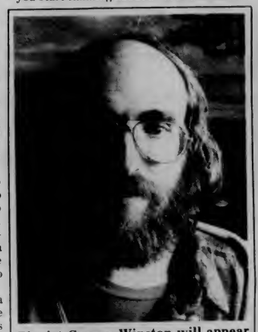
Winston doesn't like to classify his music as Jazz, per say, yet by May 14, 1984, his album entitled "December" was at #5 on the Billboard Jazz Charts. "Autumn" was at #9 and "Winter Into Spring" at #12. Describing success, he said, "The minute you start thinking about awards and charts, you start losing it. If you look in the mirror and say,'Am I beautiful?' then you're not."

When it comes to listening to music Winston says,"People think I sit around and listen to piano. Mostly I listen to soul guitar and harp." Winston urges people to see harpist Andreas Vollenweider, who will be playing in Northampton this fall.

Winston says there is no classical influence in his work. He reads a minimal amount of music saying that it has little to do with playing. He says, "It's like being a baseball player and reading an instruction booklet on baseball."

In addition to touring the U.S. and Europe, Winston has recently started his own label, "Dancing Cat Records". He will be producing guitarist George Cromarty in '85.

George Winston is a mellow, down-to-earth guy who is doing his thing in the music industry and doing it well. If you find those changing autumn leaves beckoning you these days, close your eyes, think pumpkins, wood burning stoves, and call the Iron Horse Cafe at 584-0610 for concert tickets.



Pianist George Winston will appear at Smith College on October 9th. See story for details.

Amour!

By JULIE BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

Until September
Starring: Karen Allen
Thierry Lhermitte
Director: Richard Marquand
At the Hampshire Mall

Although as a love story Until September promises certain grafitications, much of what is delivered is used, cliche material. The action involves an American woman, Mo, (played by Karen Allen) who by missing her plane is forced to remain in Paris and find a room with an old friend from school who now resides in Paris. Though conveniently located, this friend is not home, being away on vacation for a few weeks — until September. Fortunately, at this time our heroine happens to meet her friend's handsome and helpful next door neighbor, Xavier de Pereuse (played by

Continued on page 11

Music Outlet

THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL SALE
ALL RECORDS + CASSETTES 6.49 SERIES 8.98

ALL 45's 1.39 SERIES 1.99
ALL 12"SINGLES 3.49 SERIES 4.98
ALL OLDIES 1.59 SERIES 2.49

DAMON ROAD PLAZA 586-7501
NORTHAMPTON; MASS.
JUST NORTH OF INTERSECT RTE 9+91(NEXT TO CUSTOM CAR SOUND)
m-f 10-8
sat 10-6
sun 12-5

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
DEPARTMENT OF THEATER
presents

Eugene O'Neill's
DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS
October 11 13 17 20

Into the harsh but beautiful New England countryside O'Neill weaves a powerful tale of love, lust and murder. One of the world's greatest tragedies by one of America's greatest playwrights.

William Shakespeare's
A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM
December 6-8, 12 15

Spend a summer night in December at the Rand Theater. Warm yourself with one of Shakespeare's most hilarious comedies replete with a procession of mis matched lovers and frolicking faeries, kings, and queens, in the most bewitched forest you will ever visit.

All Curtains are at 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

SUBSCRIBE NOW AND
Save 25% off ticket prices

Please clip and mail to: Rand Theater Tickets, Fine Arts Center Box Office, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

YES, I WANT TO SAVE 25% ON MY TICKETS

NAME _____ STREET _____
CITY _____ STATE _____ PHONE _____
I wish to order _____ Rand Theater subscription(s) at $9.00 each, for a total of $_____ $4.00 each for the following dates (please circle one date for each production):
DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS October 11 12 13 17 18 19 20
A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM December 6 7 8 12 13 14 15

PHONE YOUR MASTER CARD VISA ORDER IN TODAY AT (413) 545-2511 Toll-Free 1-800-243-4042

Enclosed please find my check for $_____ made payable to: Fine Arts Center Box Office
You may charge subscription to my MASTERCARD _____ or VISA _____ Acct# _____
Expiration date _____ Signature _____
Patron's with discounted tickets must show appropriate ID at the door

OOPS!

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
WED THRU SAT
OCT 3rd THRU OCT 6th
7:00 El Norte
9:20 Ballard of Gregorio
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

UMASS MUSIC THEATRE GUILD
General Meeting - Public Invited
* Spring Show
* Staff positions available
* Dance Marathon
* Upcoming Guild activities
Room 165-169 CC
Wednesday, Oct. 3 8:00 pm

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES FOR DECEMBER GRADUATES

► Training Program geared to the mid-year Graduate
► The Highest Starting Salary in the Industry
► Immediate Responsibility, Exposure and Impact

G.FOX

representatives will be on campus

Thursday, October 4th

to answer questions and provide information on Management Careers.

Stop by our

Open House

Faculty Lounge, School of Management
Between 10 am and 4 pm,
Thursday, October 4

Bring a copy of your resume, if available.

Casual Dress/Light Refreshments

COULD YOU USE $50? IF SO, COMPETE IN (or just enjoy) the LIP—SYNC CONTEST

Tonite At Changes

$750.00 in Cash Prizes to be Awarded over the next 10 weeks

- Along With -
"CLASSICS NIGHT"
The Most Popular Dance Music from the last 5 years!
D.J. Mike Kane
and
99¢ BAR DRINKS ALL NIGHT
No Cover
Changes, Rt. 9, Amherst 256-8284

★ Until September

Continued from page 9

Thierry Lhermitte). He aids her in finding a place to stay.

In their second meeting the romance begins with them exchanging looks of mutual attraction. Though Xavier is married with two children, he asks Mo to dinner and anticipates her return to his bedroom. Mo's intentions do not go as far as that, though, and they part in misunderstanding and anger. In response now to her evasion of him, de Pereuse goes "on the prowl." She finally weakens and he wins her.

In their relationship, Mo and Xavier go through a few obstacles, including falling in love despite his marital status, thus re-defining the terms of faithfulness. They go on comme ca until the turning point when Mo confronts him with the question on what love he has for his wife and the blatent duplicity of his commitments.

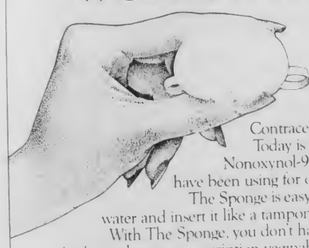
At least beyond the first cliche lines — "you have gorgeous eyes" on their second encounter, to "you're beautiful when you're angry" later, there is a certain hopeful probability about their situation and their love. The story does lead the viewer along just far enough to make one wonder what is going to become of the main characters. But the film is disappointing in its inherent lack of original plot complications, characterization, and resolution.

For example, the complications were one sided, only taking taking into account the problem of marital status and ignoring the possibilities politics, principles, religion, personality, culture, family or morals might have played. The charcterization, also, was very stereotypic: the seductive, amour-craving, French gentleman meets the relative innocence and wide-eyed naivite of the young American.

Rated "R", the film contains nudity and narrative sexual behavior, which though contributing little to the plot or character development, will most probably satisfy the appetite of the love-worn. As a plain, uneventful love story/skin flick, Until September is handled well, but the question is — is that all one wants from American cinema?

I for one expect something more.

IN 1960, THE PILL GAVE WOMEN A NEW FREEDOM.
IN 1984, THE SPONGE GIVES WOMEN A NEW CHOICE.



It's been a long time. Twenty-four years, and there hasn't been a sensible new option in birth control.

Until Today.™ Today, the 24-hour Contraceptive Sponge.

Today is a soft, comfortable sponge that contains Nonoxynol-9, the same effective spermicide women have been using for over 20 years.

The Sponge is easy to use. You just moisten it thoroughly with water and insert it like a tampon, and it works for a full 24 hours.

With The Sponge, you don't have to worry about hormonal side effects. And no other non-prescription vaginal contraceptive has been proven more effective.* It's been through seven years of extensive testing, and over 17 million Sponges have been sold.

Of course, you don't need a prescription for The Sponge. It can be found at your local drug store and at selected supermarkets. In the 3-pack or convenient 12-pack.

And the Today Sponge is the only contraceptive that comes with someone to talk to: our 24-hour Today TalkLine. If you have any questions, or you're just wondering if The Sponge is right for you, visit your student health center or give us a call at 800-223-2329. (In California, 800-222-2329.)

Finally, you have the spontaneity you want and the protection you need. But, best of all, you have another choice you never had before.

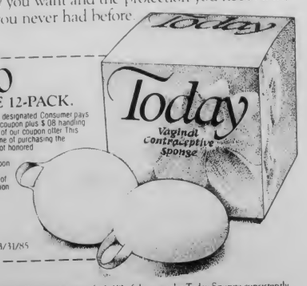
Until Today.

SAVE $1.00
ON TWO 3-PACKS OR ONE 12-PACK.

To Consumer: Limit one coupon per purchase. Good only on products designated. Consumer pays sales tax. To Retailer: We will reimburse you the face value of this coupon plus $.08 handling provided that you and the consumer have complied with the terms of our coupon offer. This coupon is good only when redeemed by you from a consumer at time of purchasing the specified product. Any other use constitutes fraud. Redemptions not honored through brokers or other outside agencies. Invoices showing your purchase of sufficient stock to cover all coupons must be shown upon request. Void if prohibited, taxed or restricted. This coupon in non-transferable, non-assignable, non-reproducible. Cash value 1/20th of $.01. Offer good only in U.S.A. Redeem by mailing to: VLI Corporation P.O. Box 4400 Clinton, Iowa 52734

51366 100140

Offer Expires 6/31/85



*Clinical tests have concluded that women can expect an annual effectiveness rate of 89-91% if they use the Today Sponge consistently and according to label instructions. © 1984 VLI Corp. Today and The Sponge are trademarks of VLI Corp.

BACK SCHOOL 101

Prerequisite:
Back pain & a referral from your UHS provider

This 6 session program
(classes one week apart)
includes information on exercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posture tips, pain relief methods and relaxation

DATES: Tuesdays, October 9, 16, 23, 30 & November 6 • December 4

TIME: 6:30—8:30

PLACE:
University Health Center

• Please advise your UHS provider for the proper referral

Call UHS Health Education for Information and Registration: 549-2671, ext. 181.

It was the Deltas against the rules... the rules lost!

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S ANIMAL HOUSE

A comedy from Universal Pictures

THE MATTY SIMMONS IVAN REITMAN PRODUCTION

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S ANIMAL HOUSE ... JOHN BELUSHI TIM MATHESON JOHN VERNON
DONALD SUTHERLAND
Produced by MATTY SIMMONS and IVAN REITMAN Music by ELMER BERNSTEIN
Screenplay by HAROLD RAMIS DOUGLAS KENNEY & CHRIS MILLER Directed by JOHN LANDIS Song: ANIMAL HOUSE Composed and Performed by STEPHEN BISHOP

R RESTRICTED

Date Thurs. Oct. 4th Time 5, 7, 9, & 11
Admission $1.00 - 5; $1.50 - 7, 9, 11
Place C.C. Aud.
sponsored by: Alpha Chi Omega

"The Best Chinese Food"

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden
Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE

The Best Chinese Food
Try Our New

Luncheon Specials From $2.25 served 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

and

New Buffet & Sunday Brunch ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Buffet Served 5-8 Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served Sunday 11:30-3
Children under 10 $3.00

1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot & Sour Soup

Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.

10 Belchertown Road
at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

charlie's

Super Daily Happy Hour
All Week 3-6 pm
2 for 1 Jumbo Drinks (any shelf)
reduced prices on pitchers & bottled beer
Free Munchies
Plus 2 for 1 Jumbo draft & wine

Super Nightly Happy Hour
All Week 9:30-11:30 pm
2 for 1 Jumbo Drinks (any shelf)

2 for 1 on Jumbo draft & wine

OTHER SPECIALS

Tuesday
8-12 pm Pizza and Beer
$5.95 includes pitcher of beer or carafe of wine & cheese pizza

Sunday
11-3 pm
Bloody Mary pitchers
$5.95

6-10 pm
Pizza & Beer
$5.95 includes a pitcher of beer or carafe of wine and cheese pizza

1 Pray Street, Amherst
Open 11 am - 1 am Daily

Hypercurricula

LIKE LATE NIGHT W/DAVE LETTERMAN? Then come to COMSTU CLUB's meeting for details on how we see it live every year. We'll also be discussing ways to get all your comstu classes. We will speak on our new "h[illegible]n projects" with other RSO groups-Come On! 4:00, E-32B Machmer.

GRENADIER SO ETY-GAMERS NIGHT [illegible] play many board gam[illegible] and miniatures games, i[illegible]cluding Squad Leader, Panzer Leader, Star Fleet Battles, WWII and mode[illegible] tank miniatures. All welc[illegible]me, no experience necessary. 7:00-11:00 p.m., Campus Center.

DENMARK'S IN-TERNATIONAL STUDIES MEETING Informational meeting for all students interested in studying abroad on the DIS program in Copenhagen. Herter 3rd floor lounge. 3:00-4:30 p.m.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING 7:30 p.m. beginners, 8:30 p.m. all others in the Commonwealth Room, S.U.B. Everyone Welcome!

UMMTG GENERAL MEETING Public invited to plan for spring show. All staff positions open. Dance marathon and upcoming Guild activities to be discussed!! Get involved!! 8:00 p.m., Campus Center 165-169.

MORTAR BOARD MEETING The 1st meeting of the Mortar Board Senior Class Honor Society will be held. All members must attend. 6:30 p.m., Campus Center room 811.

GREAT ECLIPSE OF 1984 Slide show and talk on the "great solar eclipse of 1984". Visit to Orchard Hill Observatory after. Sponsored by UMass Astronomy Club. Everyone welcome. 7:00 p.m., Grad. Tower room 1033.

UMASS CHESS CLUB Informational meeting. All levels welcome. You don't have to be good, you just have to want to play! 8:00-11:00p.m. Campus Center (check at info. desk for rm.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
•Includes Mounting• plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Woolbo's Store
549-4704

665-2577
LEARN TO FLY
YOUR OWN AIRPLANE FOR ONE THIRD OF THE NORMAL COST WITH THE COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB (CFC) FREE BUS TO AIRPORT IN NORTHAMPTON, CREDIT THE GROUND SCHOOL INTENSIVE

A SUNDAY EXCURSION
Join us at North Leverett Baptist Church. Let someone else do the driving! Church bus leaves Southwest Horseshoe at 10:00 and Worcester at 10:10.
Coffee and donuts at 10:30
Church at 11:00.
ALL WELCOME!
Rev. Carl McConchie
549-6387

'UPDATE ON THE MIDDLE EAST'
HON. MICHAEL SHILOH

—ISRAEL'S CONSUL GENERAL TO NEW ENGLAND
—FORMER CONSUL TO NEW YORK, TOKYO, BONN.

7:00pm THURSDAY, OCT. 4
112 HERTER HALL, UMASS.

Sponsored by: B'nai B'rith Hillel

ALL U-WOMEN ARE INVITED TO OPEN RUSH at SIGMA DELTA TAU

Tues. Fashion Show 6:30
Dessert and Party
Wed. Dinner, Sundae Party 5:00
Thurs. Surprise Party
409 N. Pleasant
For more info: 545-0527 Lisa Pike
Come to find out how exciting Sorority life can be!

Does Your Organization Provide A Special Service?
Sponsoring An Upcoming Event?

ANNOUNCE IT ON THE UMASS MESSAGE CENTER

Fill Out Form At UVC - 216 SUB
IT'S FREE!

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

HI. THIS IS GOD. NORMALLY, AS THE SUPREME BEING, I TRY TO TRANSCEND PARTISAN POLITICS. BUT THIS YEAR IS DIFFERENT..
THIS YEAR, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN YOUR HISTORY, YOU HAVE A CHANCE TO VOTE FOR THE ONLY PARTY THAT'S ACTUALLY DOING MY WORK — AMERICA'S PARTY.
FORMERLY KNOWN AS THE "G.O.P.", AMERICA'S PARTY STANDS FOR EVERYTHING THAT'S SACRED TO ME. OLD GLORY. MARY LOU RETTON. NUCLEAR SUPERIORITY. SO TAKE IT FROM ME, GOD. A VOTE FOR AMERICA'S PARTY IS A VOTE FOR ME.
PAID FOR BY THE REAGAN-GOD RE-ELECTION COMMITTEE.
©B Trudeau

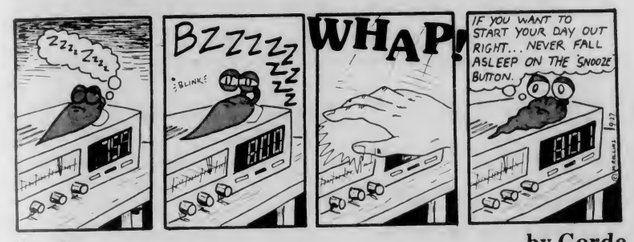
Today's Weather

Today — Sunny skies mixed with occasional clouds. Highs in the mid 60s.
Tonight — Party cloudy with lows in the mid 40s
Tomorrow — A mixture of clouds and sunshine with highs in mid-60s

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

H. HELLO? :COUGH!! IS..IS ANYBODY THERE...? :COUGH! THIS...IS...JEFF GREENBLATT... REPORTING FOR...:COUGH!: EYEWITNESS NEWS...
I'M...I'M THE LAST SURVIVOR... :COUGH!: THEY...FOUND ME FILMING A STORY ON "WHEEL CHAIR MIMES"!... :COUGH!: THEY CUT OFF MY EARS AND SET MY HAIRPIECE ON FIRE... :COUGH!:
EVERYONE...ELSE...:COUGH!: GONE. DEAD...CARCASSES EVERYWHERE...:GAG!: THE...THE ONCE-MIGHTY HEROES OF MEDIA... :COUGH!: ARE WIPED OUT! EXTINCT!
THIS MORNING "GREENPEACE" RELEASED A STATEMENT OF GENERAL APPROVAL

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins



Gorde — by Gorde

WELL, WELL, IF IT ISN'T THE MAN ON A QUEST I SEE YOU'VE MADE THE HEADLINES IN THE PAPER BUDDY. YOU ARE ONE SICK PUP!
HEY!
THANKS.
GIVE THE GUY A BREAK! Y'KNOW, LES, YOU TICK ME OFF! MANGO'S OUT THERE TRYING TO FIND THIS GIRL AND ALL YOU EVER DO IS PUT HIM DOWN! CAN YOU DO BETTER? CAN YOU FIND HER? HUH? CAN YOU?
YES
TWIST CRUNCH
AND FINK- IT'S NOT POLITE TO POINT
I'LL TELL YOU WHAT. I BET I CAN FIND HER, AND IF I DO, YOU HAVE TO WASH AND IRON MY LAUNDRY...
FOR A MONTH! IF I CAN'T, I'LL DO YOUR LAUNDRY
HA! DEAL!
3G

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman

The Lab — by Law

where's femalehead?
satisfied sounds
uh oh! where's femalehead?
He ate her?
Holiday fun
Has sludge killed again?
Did she taste good?
sounds nauseous
Next: Sludge gets Bachelisms?
THIS LOOKS LIKE THE PLACE!
THE DOC SURE HAS A SENSE OF HUMOR. YUK!YUK! IF IT COMES OUT I'LL TAKE A PICTURE OF IT..
BEWARE OF HAMSTER
ROARRROOOOO!!
WITH A TELE PHOTO LENS!

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Bengal royalty
6 Marina skyline unit
10 Give —— (chide)
14 Reconciled
15 "Winnie —— Pu"
16 Tidal designation
17 Kind of black tea
18 Pirate's treasure
19 Fill to repletion
20 Boniface's place
21 "Leaves of Grass" poet
24 Discontinue
26 One of the Ardens
27 Heart-thrilling
30 Abrogate
34 Salad ingredient
35 Plays the busybody
37 SHAEF area
38 Word on a towel
39 Bogged down
40 Early in the 7th cen. Rom
41 Prefix with night or day
42 Raise a glass
43 The city of Rijeka, in Italian
44 Seed
46 Well-regarded
48 Sound of laughter
49 Threadlike structure
50 "The Road Not Taken" poet
55 Ending with book
58 Sone or phot
59 Winglike
60 Enclosure
62 Mom's imperative
63 Reportable income
64 Periodical
65 Hence
66 Slangy assent
67 Catches one's breath

DOWN
1 Nobelist in physics, 1944
2 Like —— of bricks
3 Contemporary American poet and editor
4 Chemical ending
5 Side away from land
6 Ever so long
7 "Thanks ——"
8 Like molasses in January
9 Tied
10 Part of a foot
11 Baff club
12 So long
13 Word with sesame
22 "Do —— say"
23 Burl the "way faring stranger"
25 Maidoes
27 Schlemiel's relative
28 Set in —— way
29 Spiny yellow-flowered shrub
31 Lower case poet
32 One at ——
33 Adored
36 Rolls out
39 Financial 40 Pre-——
42 Stadium feature
43 Sympathized
45 City section
47 "—— of thee"
50 "By the —— bridge. Emerson
51 —— about
52 Crosby
53 Decamp
54 Frog genus
56 Go away!
57 Layers
61 "—— I saw.."

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

L	I	D	O	S	E	A	L		O	M	A	H	A
A	B	O	U		A	L	L	A		V	A	L	E	S
C	A	S	I	N	E	T	S		E	L	L	A	S
E	R	E	C	T		M	A	T	E	R		E	V	E
			A	M	I	E		E	N	C	A	G	E	S
M	O	N	S	O	O	N		D	E	A	C	O	N
A	L	O	U		N	T	S		S	U	R
D	A	P		C	A	S	T	O	U	T		T	W	O
		L	I	A		D	C	L		P	E	O	N
L	E	N	S	E	D		U	N	M	A	S	K	S
B	E	W	A	T	E	R		L	A	I	T
U	C	O		J	O	A	N		C	H	L	O	E
R	A	M	O	N		C	A	S	T	A	W	A	Y	S
S	T	A	N	G		O	S	T	E		A	R	E	S
T	O	N	E	S		S	A	S	S		Y	A	R	E

10/3/84

I'd drive across the ocean for the Collegian...

D.C. Menu

Lunch
Italian Hoagie
Eggroll/Soy Sauce,
Duc Sauce

Basics Lunch
Vegetable Grinder
Eggroll/Soy Sauce,
Duc Sauce

Dinner
Chicken Hawaiian with Hoomalimali Sauce
Sausage Grinder

Basics Dinner
Stir Fry Vegetables and Tofu, Chicken
Hawaiian with Hoomalimali Sauce

cumberland farms

GRAND OPENING

6 a.m. Fri. OCTOBER 5th thru 11 p.m. Sat. OCTOBER 6th

College & South East Sts. AMHERST, MA.

FREE!! 1-Liter Bottle of PEPSI COLA

*with a FILL UP of 8 Gallons or More

PRIZES Enter Our Grand Opening Drawing*

- 1st PRIZE V.C.R.
- 2nd PRIZE Microwave Oven
- 3rd PRIZE $100.00 Worth of Free Gasoline
- 4th PRIZE Gas Grill

See Inside Store for Details

BE ONE OF THE FIRST 100 CUSTOMERS AND RECEIVE A FREE

cumberland farms PAINTER'S HAT WHEN YOU PRESENT THIS COUPON

DRAWINGS • PRIZES
GIFTS • REFRESHMENTS

VOLUTEERS NEEDED
FOR WRITING DIAGNOSTIC TEST
FRESHMEN—SOPHMORES—JUNIORS—SENIORS
GREAT OPPORTUNITY TO EVALUTE YOUR WRITING SKILLS !!!
MWF—UNTIL OCTOBER 19
PARTICIPANTS AND RESULTS WILL REMAIN CONFIDENTIAL
FOR APPOINTMENT CONTACT:
COMMUNICATION SKILLS CENTER
73 BARTLETT HALL 545-0018/0824

HELP WANTED
BREAKFAST and LUNCH SHIFTS
Apply
HADLEY BURGER KING
RT 9

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

Make your autumn weekend a romantic one with fine lingerie from Le Boudoir

We have a wide selection of lingerie in an array of sensuous fabrics. Everything from basic cotton bras & bikinis to luxurious silk teddies and night shirts.

*Calvin Klein Underwear for women is available

Come In And Browse!

Carriage Shops, 233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-6915

EVERY WEDNESDAY 7-1 FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge
PENNY DRAFT NITE
Every Other Draft Beer just 1¢
Rt. 9, Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

SPOT
the SPOT For Your SPORTING Needs including:
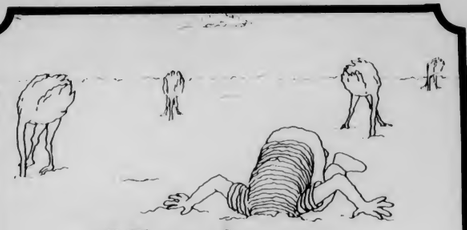
ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR
SOCCER & HOCKEY EQUIPMENT
ACTIVE WEAR
personal checks accepted IVANKO WEIGHTS & LIFTING EQUIPMENT
PLUS MUCH MORE
THIS WEEK: FEATURING MIZUNO VOLLEYBALL SHOES
Visit us
IN THE CAMPUS PLAZA
Next to Super Stop & Shop, Rte. 9, Hadley-Amherst Line
OPEN SUNDAYS 12-5, Mon.-Wed. 10-7, Thurs. & Fri. 10-9, & Sat. 10-6



Heads up.
Register and Vote.

OCT. 1	WORCESTER DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 2	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 2:00 pm
OCT. 2	FRANKLIN DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 3	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 2:00 pm
OCT. 3	BERKSHIRE DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 4	HAMPSHIRE DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 9	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 12:30 pm

UMASS BIG VOTE '84

MASSPIRG SCERA SGA Third World Affairs Student Senate Frontlash MASSPIRG Northeast Area Gov't Peacemakers Public Policy Radical Student Union SCERA SGA Presidents Office SSAM Third World Affairs UMass College Republican Club

Styles by Deborah

FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.

65 University Drive Amherst
by appointment 549-5610
expires 10/30/84
valid with this coupon

STYLE CUTS only $7.00

MOLLY'S
ANTIQUE & VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST. MON-SAT 10-5
AMHERST, MA 01002 413-549-6446

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

AUTO FOR SALE

1972 PINTO Runs great tiny rust spots $375 865-8316

1978 SUBARU, four speed, $1550. Call 256-8467

Honda '78 Civic hatchback; 2 door, 4 speed, runs well, good body. $1500. Call 536-2159 after 5 PM

74 Mustang Ghia 4AT 73000 mi excellent conditions $1100 call 549-4716

74 Pontiac Venture 3 speed and no rust runs great call Steve eves 546-7818 650 or 80

1973 Cutlass Supreme 4 door good shape new brakes upholstry battery $725. Call before 4:30 Cheri 549-4136

VOLKS 73 runs great, need to sell now. $750 firm. 548-1369 David

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock A Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rock-A-Disc Rock-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

Colleges Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0246 or 586-7889

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 bdrm newl Nonsmoker, on bus route, N of 4756 call Peter 253-7871 keep trying!

WANTED

Female to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4695

Trade motorcycle for music equipment Suzuki GN400X value $600 bass or PA 533-0801 Dave

FOR RENT

Refrigerator Rental 2 cubic ft R & P Package Store free delivery 253-9742

One and two bedroom apts On bus route cats okay. All utilities included. Wmasburg 298-3624 584-3095

FOR SALE

Moped brand new only 500 mi excellent condition 253-9418 Brian eve.

Used Holton Trumpet for sale. Good condition $100 or best offer call 549-7767

Ski Boots, Nordica mens 9½ 3 seasons new 546-9967 $50

KENYA BAGS FOR $20 Will be back in the concourse OCTOBER 4th and 5th

Ott. F-100 electric guitar Black w/case Excellent cond. $375 firm. 549-2797.

Synare 53X Electric drum. Excellent condition. $85 or BO. 549-2797.

HELP WANTED

People's Market is looking for new collective members for fall '84. We need hard workers, people with ability to maintain a strong commitment and willingness to work beyond floor hours. These are musts. Experience with marketing, advertising, and managing helpful. Work 10+ hours per week at $3.85 per hour. Applications available at People's Market, located at rear of the Student Union. Women, people of color, handicapped, gay, lesbian, and older students are encouraged to apply.

Retail Sales positions full and part time Advanced Video 26 North King St. Northampton 586-8601

Government jobs. $16,559-$50,553/year. Now hiring, your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext R-9616.

COMPUTER PROGRAMMER. Part-time opening for person experienced with PDP-11 or VAX computers, UNIX, or MACRO-11. Amherst-based company developing communications and real-time control software, is looking for someone able to work part-time during the school year, with full-time employment during intersession and the summer. Excellent opportunity! For information call 549-6884.

Help wanted. Motivated students for 10 hours/week positions in the SGA Presidents Office. Apply in 408E Student Union. 545-0341.

Cash for college available $16.5 million unclaimed. Send $1.00 (refundable) Results guaranteed. S.D.R. 49-10 Downing St. Fall River, Mass 02723.

PERSONALS

Surprise Bunchy Bears!! Love you whole bunches

LAMBCHOP HAPPY BIRTHDAY- A little late but just as much love, Tony.

PHI MU SORORITY

INVITES ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN to open Rush Dynasty Happy Hour 8:30 to Phi Mu Wed Oct. 3 at Phi Mu 388 N Pleasant st for more info call 253-9971

VOCALIST WANTED

VOCALIST WANTED (M or F) To front working R & R band. Experienced, dedicated professionals only please 549-2797 256-8079 After 6pm keep trying.

TRAVEL

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 Student/Budget Travel Agency. Free catalog; call (617) 266-1926 or write, 729 Boylston St. Suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

FOUND

Sweater outside Mini Store in Student Union Thursday Sept 27 call Matt to identify 546-5531

Adorable orange kitten, 2-3 months old. Housebroken, healthy. Call 549-5609 (Dinnertime is best) Found in Newman Center parking lot

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment 253-2088

LOST

Dorm key on Ilon medallion $5 reward for info. Please call 546-5364 (339 Moore)

VW keys and dorm key last Tues, very important, if found call 546-5435 ask for Jim.

Sports

Team Meetings: The men's track team will hold a meeting on Thursday in Boyden 249 at 4 p.m. The wrestling team will have a meeting in the Boyden wrestling room on Thursday at 4 p.m. All interested candidates for both sports should attend. Also, today is the last day for all intramural badmitton entries.

Minutemen soccer teams head south

Top-ranked men face Elis at Yale

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Talk about coming from nowhere.

Four weeks ago, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team was absent from the pre-season polls for New England Division I schools. Now after a meteoric rise that featured victories over traditional N.E. powers Boston University and Providence, the Minutemen have crashed the party. In the latest poll, released yesterday, UMass was voted the number one team in the region.

And the validity of that ranking will meet a stern test today when UMass travels to New Haven, Connecticut to take on fourth-ranked Yale.

Despite the hoopla and notoriety that comes with being number one, Minutemen coach Jeff Gettler still takes a cautious view towards his squad.

"I feel we do have a perfect complement of personalities. But, we're not a great team," said Gettler. "We definitely have weaknesses. We deserve to be number one because we haven't had a New England loss and everybody else had."

To avert such a loss today, the Minutemen must conquer a Yale squad that is 3-0 and hasn't given up a single goal. Anchoring their superb defense is goalie Jeff Dubaek, a member of the National Youth team, and considered one of the best collegiate goalies in the country. Playiing at sweeper is 6-4, 215 lb. Peter Saken, who also plays on the hockey team. Overall, the E L I lineup includes five high school All Americans.

"They're pretty direct in their style," said Gettler. "They play the ball forward very quickly. They've got a lot of speed up front and they're very talented".

"When they win the ball they don't play it a hundred million times square, back, and around. They like to go to the goal right away. They rely on their speed. It'll be a test," said Gettler.

Wrigley will never hold this one...

Bob Dernier belts a leadoff homer to open a Cubs barrage as Chicago belted San Diego 13-0 in the first game of the NL championships yesterday.

UM women face arch-rival UConn

By GERRY DESIMAS
Collegian Staff

It's no secret. The game in women's soccer in New England will be played tonight in Farmington, Connecticut. And both the University of Massachusetts and University of Connecticut teams are well aware of this.

"There is no secret," said UMass coach Kalekeni Banda. "This is a big rivalry game between the top two teams in New England. We have to be mentally prepared to win."

The third ranked Minutemen face the second ranked Huskies at Tunxis Mead in Farmington at 7:30 p.m. tonight. It is the first ever home game away from the Storrs campus.

"We match up pretty well with them," Banda said. "The team that plays the better defense will probably win the game."

Banda said UMass will have to win the battle of the midfield. "We'll have to neutralize the midfield," Banda said, "and that will give us the upper hand."

The Minuteman offense is led by freshman Jolie DePauw, who has scored six goals and leads the team with 13 points. Monica Seta has scored four goals, and Kristen Bowsher three.

UMass, 5-1-2, is anchored by Jeanne Paul in goal with a 0.55 goals against average.

UConn, 8-0-1, is an explosive offense team. Cathy Shankweiler, seven goals and four assists leads the team. Shankweiler scored the two goals in the win over Yale, Saturday.

Freshman Kim Sullivan (6-4- 16 pts) and Donna MacDougall (5-3- 13 points) are other heavy offensive guns for the Huskies. Goalie Laura Skaza (0.90 goals against) is the probable starter.

"Both teams have a mutual respect for each other. But we can't afford to relax," Banda said.

Spikers defeat Holyoke

On paper, it looks like the University of Massachusetts volleyball team romped. Even though there is some truth to that, this wasn't the case entirely.

In fact, the spikers had to regroup from a one game deficit as they came from behind to beat Mount Holyoke College 14-16, 15-7, 15-6, 15-6, before a good crowd at NOPE last night.

"We started out very slow and flat", said coach Elaine Sortino. "But we pulled together and I feel really good about that."

Mt. Holyoke started out very aggresive in game one, often challenging the spikers at the net. UMass led throughout the game before Mt. Holyoke took a 13-11 lead. But the Lyons capitalized on UMass miscues to take the first game.

Games three and four were dominated by the Minutemen, largely behind the hitting of Sally Maher, the serving of Mickey Barys, and the defense of Patti Grant, as she scrambled for several point-saving balls

ROGER CHAPMAN

Tonia Kennedy : A freshman that 'makes it happen' for UM field hockey with some determined play

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts field hockey coach Pam Hixon has said of freshman forward Tonia Kennedy, "She likes to make things happen."

Well, in the little over a month she has been a Minuteman she had done just that; she had made things happen. Usually these happenings prove detrimental to UMass opponents.

But its all in a day's play for Kennedy. "I just try to do my job and play the best game I can when I'm out there," she said. "I try to perform to the best of my ability."

Thus far the New Boston, New Hampshire native leads her team in goals scored with six and is tied for the lead in assists along with senior Pam Moryl, with both having two apiece. Kennedy's number "18" can constantly be seen around the opposition's goal. Speed and aggressiveness highlight her playing style while an intense desire for her team to win earmarks her attitude.

Kennedy, a participant in basketball, softball and track as well as field hockey at Goffstown high school, chose UMass over Boston University, the University of New Hampshire, and Northeastern.

"I came here because the field hockey program is excellent, the student/athletes on the team were great, and I really like Pam Hixon; she's a great coach," said Kennedy. "Of course academics played a big part. The whole atmosphere was great."

Kennedy's first impressions have held true. "We have a well developed team and we work well as a unit. It seems like everyone has a desire to win," said Kennedy.

"Pam is easy to communicate with and she knows field hockey inside-out. She has a real positive attitude towards the team and confidence in players as individuals and as a team," said Kennedy of her coach.

Since coming to UMass, Kennedy feels she has, "Improved as a player all over. I seem to have a little bit more composure, more poise.

But Kennedy gains more satisfaction from her team's performance not her own. "I like being part of a team sport, being able to communicate with others on and off the field," she said.

"Everyone feels the feelings you feel when you're the only one experiencing the victory. I like winning more when it's a team effort," added Kennedy.

When asked about her individual goals for the rest of the season she stated that she would simply like to "continue to play well." However, Tonia Kennedy prefered to downplay her own goals and concentrate on her team.

"I would like to have everyone walk off the field at the end of the season feeling like they had a successful year," said Kennedy.

Sports Information photo

UMass freshman Tonia Kennedy has been one of the driving forces for the Minutemen this season.

Sports at a glance

UMass schedule:
Women's Soccer at UConn, 7:30 p.m.
Men's Soccer at Yale, 3:00
Field Hockey, Yale at 3:00 at NOPE

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 18 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, October 4, 1984

Spiritual leader: mental peace for world peace

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

World peace can only be achieved through mental peace said the Dalai Lama, exiled national and religious leader of Tibetan Buddhists, at a lecture in the Fine Arts Center last night.

"Despite the development of the material through science and technology, humanity is facing new kinds of problems," said the 49-year-old monk. "From my viewpoint we are lacking human warmth," he said.

"We have a very good brain," he said, "but something is lacking in our heart. This I feel is one of the key points in the international level or national level or the family level," he said. "Genuine peace is very much related to this."

The Dalai Lama is taking part in a three day psychology symposium entitled "Inner Peace," at Amherst College. He is on a 44-day tour of the United States.

Last night's symposium was titled "Inner Science and WorldPeace." The Dalai Lama's lecture was the keynote address of the symposium, which filled the Fine Arts Center.

Also speaking at the symposium were; Associate Provost for Undergraduated Education Fern Johnson, Roger Walsh of the Department of Psychology at the University of California, Frances Vaughan of the California Institute of Transpersonal Psychology and Robert Thurman, Associate Professor of Religion at Amherst College.

Born Tenzin Gyatso, he was chosen to be Dalai Lama at the age of two. His education began at age six and he received a doctorate degree in Buddhist philosophy at 24.

"Inner peace you cannot buy from the market or produce from sophisticated machines. Some qualified doctor cannot inject peace of mind or no matter how much love we receive from our parents, nothing can do," he said. "So you see, peace must be developed from within ourselves."

"Through mental training, through awareness, through self-discipline you can develop certain kinds of mental faculties."

"These weapons did not come from the sky or from the earth but from people," he said. "All these things are under the human finger."

"Therefore, he said, we must look inward. "If you really want peace first you yourself must find peace."

"So you see, mental stability, mental calm is something you can use in your daily life," he said.

The Dalai Lama has been living in India since the Chinese military takeover of Tibet in 1959. He assumed full political control when Tibet was threatebed by China'smilitary. Since 1960 he has been living in Dharmsala, India, the seat of the Tibetan government-in-exile.

The Lama's keynote address lasted about 15 minutes. After him, Johnson spoke on "Feminist Perspectives on Peace."

"Men have for too long left home for war, and now it's time for women to leave home for peace," she said, speaking of women's peace camps in Europe and America protesting nuclear missile deployment.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmeraus

Leader of the Tibetan Buddhists Tenzin Gyatso, the Dalai Lama.

photo by Kathy Jordan

ALWAYS ON MY MIND- Zoology major Lon Davis and his nine-month-old pet python Kaa do their own version of the twist yesterday afternoon.

$343 million for repair plan approved by UMass Trustees

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees yesterday approved a $343 million five year capital outlay budget of which $151 million will be appropriated to the Amherst campus if the budget is approved by the state Board of Regents of Higher Education and the Legislature.

The outlay budget, for fiscal years 1986 through 1990, appropriates $104 million for renovations and repairs, $25 million for new construction, including a $20 million polymer center, $11 million for equipment and $11 million for campus landscape improvements.

The first priority on the list for 1986 is the first phase of the replacement of coal fired boilers, which heat the University and are in critical condition.

"The boiler and steam system is in such shape (that) except for extraordinary efforts, we still could have an emergency breakdown," Amherst Chancellor Joseph Duffey said at the Campus Center meeting. "On a campus of this size with a central heating system, it's really not possible to have an emergency heating system. If those boilers go...I don't think we have a backup," he said.

The $10 million requested for the first year of the project would pay for the designing and construction of a new wing for the campus steam generation plant, including two new boilers to provide full pollution control compliance. A total of $22.1 million has been requested to complete the five year overhaul of the plant in order to achieve 100 percent coal-fired, pollution-controlled steam generation by 1990.

A total of $26.4 million is requested for campus building renovations, including the five residence halls. The academic buildings, Marshall, Goodell, Fernald, Wilder, French and Clark, were built between 1906 and 1932; $14.5 million has been requested for their improvement. Baker, Crabtree, and Leach dormitories, all built in 1953, Van Meter dormitory (1957) and University Apartments (1949) will receive $11.89 million worth of renovations.

Pedestrian lighting on campus is another priority in the budget, with just over $1 million requested to help improve public safety and reduce vandalism after dark.

Continued to p.8

Feasibility study for arena OK'd by Board of Trustees

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

A feasibility study for a sports and convocation center at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst received the go-ahead yesterday from the University's Board of Trustees after a motion to postpone the vote because of potential future student fee hikes to fund the project failed.

Student Trustee Jim Keller motioned to table the vote in order to evaluate funding methods other than raising student fees to pay for the building, now estimated to cost between $15 million and $18 million. However, Trustee Frederick S. Troy, who was also concerned that a fee hike could present a "major problem for students," noted that giving approval for the study would not commit the board to any particular means of financing.

The study, to be funded by the UMass Building Authority, will examine sites, design plans, final cost estimates and financing strategies. Once it is completed, the board will vote whether and in what way to go ahead with the plans for construction, which could take up to six years.

The idea for a multipurpose center on campus was initiated with a $3 million appropriation in last year's capital outlay budget that would fund the first stage of

Continued to p.8

Inside:

Students left in the cold..... p. 3
Senate accepts most SWAG officersp 3
An alternative CATE guide..... p. 5
Yeasthead rises!..... p. 9
Soccer team loses, 3-1..... p. 12

"Love is just a four-letter word"
—Bob Dylan, 1965

FBI arrests own agent for selling U.S. secrets

LOS ANGELES- The FBI arrested one of its own agents on espionage charges yesterday, accusing the California-based counterspy of selling secrets to a female Soviet agent who government sources say may have been his lover, and to her estranged husband.

Special Agent Richard W. Miller, 47, a 20-year FBI veteran said to have been in financial trouble, was the first FBI agent ever charged with espionage and the case marked the first known foreign infiltration of the FBI.

Miller, a counterspy based in Los Angeles, was arrested at his home and appeared before U.S. Magistrate Roger McKee in San Diego. He was ordered back to court Thursday to face a charge of conspiracy to gather defense information to aid a foreign government. Maximum penalty upon conviction would be life in prison.

No bail was allowed because "flight is a real strong risk," Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Edwards said. A court document says there was a plan for Miller to go to Vienna, Austria, or Warsaw, Poland.

No plea was entered. Miller winked at his wife, Paula, in court, and she waved. The couple exchanged sign language messages.

Svetlana Ogorodnikova, 34, of Los Angeles, an alleged KGB major, and husband Nikolay Ogorodnikov, also known as Nikolay Wolfson, 51, were also arrested and charged Wednesday in Los Angeles. The FBI said they were born in the Soviet Union and emigrated to the United Stated in 1973.

Digest

By The Associated Press

Mass. senators raise legal drinking age to 21

BOSTON-The Massachusetts Senate voted 34-1 yesterday in favor of a proposal by Governor Michael S. Dukakis to raise the state's legal drinking age to 21 as of next June-or earlier if surrounding states take the same step.

After lengthy and often emotional debate, the Senate endorsed an amendment offered earlier this week by Dukakis that would raise the age from the current limit of 20 years, effective June 1,1985. The law could take effect sooner if a region-wide standard of 21 years is adopted in Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New York and Vermont.

The lone opposition to raising the age limit in the state Senate came from Senator John Olver, D-Amherst, a chemistry professor on leave from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst who represents thousands of college students.

"This law is unenforceable and will always be unenforceable," he said. "There is no statistical evidence to support the idea that people at the age of 20 drink more and get into more accidents than 21 or 22."

He said the Senate was being "stamped" by the threat of a federal funding cut-off.

The measure endorsed by the Senate goes next to the House, which has passed legislation raising the legal drinking age to 21 immediately and recessed until late November.

The Senate, which has resisted raising the drinking age since it was last raised to 20 in 1979, appeared from debate to have been persuaded to change by the threat of losing federal highway funds.

Under a law passed recently in Congress, states with drinking ages below 21 would be penalized 5 percent in fiscal 1987 and 10 percent the following year. State Public Safety Secretary Charles Barry said Massachusetts would stand to lose $10 million starting in October 1986 and $20 million the next year.

CORRECTION: A story in Monday's Collegian incorrectly reported the date of the upcoming John Lee Hooker concert at the Rusty Nail in Sunderland. The concert will be on Oct. 5.

Today's Staff

Night Editor John O'Connell
Copy Editor Larry Bouchie
Layout Tecnician Jaquelyn Fay
Photo Technician Michelle Segall
Production supervisor Ed Tausky
Production Pam Waldman, Becky McGee, Suzanne Reynolds, BethAnne Moskov, Steve Higgins, Cris Schuster, Nancy Muller

charlie's

Super Daily Happy Hour
All Week 3-6 pm
2 for 1 Jumbo Drinks (any shelf)
reduced prices on pitchers & bottled beer
Free Munchies
Plus 2 for 1 on Jumbo draft & wine

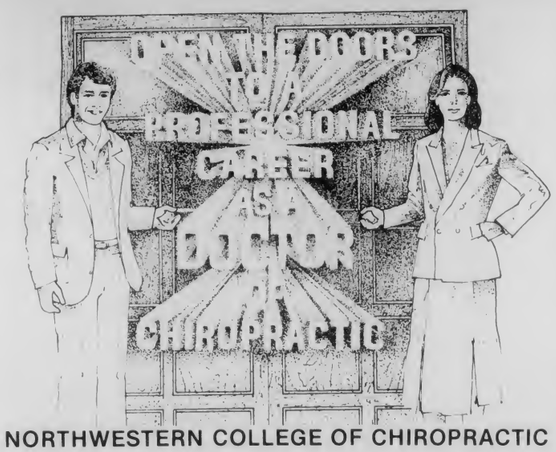
Super Nightly Happy Hour
All Week 9:30-11:30 pm
2 for 1 Jumbo Drinks (any shelf)
2 for 1 on Jumbo draft & wine

OTHER SPECIALS

Tuesday
8-12 pm Pizza and Beer
$5.95 includes pitcher of beer or carafe of wine & cheese pizza

Sunday
11-3 pm Bloody Mary pitchers $5.95
6-10 pm Pizza & Beer $5.95 includes a pitcher of beer or carafe of wine and cheese pizza

1 Pray Street, Amherst
Open 11 am - 1 am Daily



NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE OF CHIROPRACTIC

As the need for specialized health care continues to grow, Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you enter a satisfying career taking care of people as a Doctor of Chiropractic.

Committed to high standards in education and research for over 40 years, Northwestern offers you comprehensive chiropractic training on a modern campus distinguished for its excellent facilities and dedicated teaching staff.

If you would like to know how Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you achieve your career goals, complete the form below or call the admissions office TOLL FREE at 1-800-328-8322, Extension 290 or collect at (612) 888-4777.

Please send me more information on Northwestern College of Chiropractic

Name

Address

City State Zip

Phone ( ) Years of college experience

SEND TO: Northwestern College of Chiropractic,
Admissions Office, 2501 West 84th Street,
Bloomington, Minnesota 55431
1-800-328-8322, Extension 290; collect at (612) 888-4777

117

Texas Instruments, Inc,
in Dallas, Texas presents:
AN EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES INFORMATION SESSION
Open to all graduating
Electrical/Computer Engineers
and COINS Majors (scientific applications)
Thursday, Oct. 4, 4-6 pm Campus Center
Refreshments will be served

THE BAMBOO HUT
IS BACK IN NORTHAMPTON!
MANY SEAFOOD DISHES
DAILY LUNCHES $2.80 & up including Sunday
11:30 a.m.-10 p.m. Sunday-Thursday
11:30-11:00 p.m. Friday & Saturday
TAKE OUT SERVICE
586-8687 586-8688
84 Pleasant St.,
NORTHAMPTON
CHINESE & POLYNESIAN FOOD

"Keep the Summer Alive"
CAPE COD at the PUB
with Cape Cod's# 1
"D.J. GARY TITUS"
of Puffabellies and Cape 104

Experience our new menu.
THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST MA
413-549-1213

Collegian photo by Michelle Seurall

EASY NOW- Physical Plant mason workers Juan Roberts (right) and Ray Hayes put a stone wall into place in front of the Faculty Club near Franklin Dining Commons yesterday.

Student Senate frees funds for Southwest government

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

All Southwest Area Government (SWAG) officers elected in May, except the co-presidents, are now officially recognized and have the power to spend SWAG money as a result of theUndergraduate Student Senate's decision last night to lift its invalidation of those elections.

About 35 minutes of debate, the senate voted to repealits decision last semester that SWAG's elections were illegal, and that none of the people eleected were recognized SWAG officers.

According to Arthur Stephenson, who was elected SWAG co-president and remains unrecognized by the senate, the plan to have the senate approve all election results but the co-presidency is a "reasonable compromise."

Addressing the first meeting of the new 1984-1985 senate, Stephenson said, "For the benefit of the newly elected senators, there is a tremendous political pull in thesenate. Things tend to get dragged through the politics, and (the SWAG election invalidation) is one of those things. I believe it's time to move on because Southwest needs a government more than ever."

SWAG has not been able to spend money since Student Government Association (SGA) Treasurer John Mooradian froze the account September 23. Because SWAG did not have any recognized officers, Mooradian said last night it did not have the signature power necessary to spend money.

According to Mooradian, all spending was therefore "illegal."

The senate vote last night came as a result of a letter issued Tuesday by members of SWAG's Executive Staff asking the senate to recognize the election of SWAG co-vice presidents, publicity coordinator, and treasurer.

The letter stated that because the controversy involved candidates barred from the co-president ballot, only those results should be invalidated.

Bill Collins, who was elected as the other co-president, said that although he disagreed with the original senate invalidation, he supported the motion presented to the senate last night.

"The people in SWAG were kind of surprised about having the account frozen without having a say," Collins said. According to Collins, the freeze also held up SWAG's investment in the Residential College, which held up payment for classes and workshops in Southwest.

New SCERA director forsees 'interconnected' proposals

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

Fighting oppression from a more "interconnected" approach is one goal of the new director of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA).

The new director Debra Piltch was appointed in early September after former director Weissman's tenure ended in August.

Piltch is from Brookline, Mass., and graduated cum laude from William Smith College in New York with a double major in Women's and American Studies and a minor Economics. She wrote a 200 page honors thesis titled Pornography: A Reflection and Perpetuation of Capitalist Patriarchy.

Piltch said she is happy to be at the University of Massachusetts and looking forward to working with students. "They seem very aware of social issues which both directly and indirectly affect them," she said.

Piltch said she believes that SCERA is a "wonderful place to work" and has "a lot of potential."

"It can truly be a force in social change, both at UMass and in the larger society. The issues that SCERA is working on hit at the root problems of the society," Piltch said.

Piltch believes that an "umbrella approach" to combatting racism, sexism, ableism, homophobia and anti-semitism is important to prevent "pitting them against one another."

Piltch said she thinks the majority of the student population does not understand the sexist, racist, and homophobic nature of pornography.

"It is so pervasive and so extensive that it reflects and perpetuates a culture which is characterized by racism, sexism and homophobia," she said.

She said pornography "promotes an environment in which acts of sexual hostility directed against women are not only tolerated but ideologically encouraged."

Women are not the only human beings who are objectified and de-humanized by pornography, Piltch said. "It reduces all people--children, men, and women, to sex objects."

But including the sexual objectification of men in the argument against pornography obscures the "fundamental sexual objectification of women in a masculine society. The victimization and enslavement to which women are subjectd in a male dominated society finds no equivalent in the male experience," she said.

Piltch feels that the legal system is the wrong approach to use to fight pornography. "The legal system is a white male dominated institution. The laws were created to exclude women and minorites," she said.

Another problem with the legal system Piltch said, is that the New Right, which is against pornography for completely different reasons, will also support that approach.

"To go the legal route will eventually backfire," Piltch said, because the New Right would also support legislation that would outlaw books such as Our Bodies Ourselves (a feminist health book).

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

New SCERA Director Deborah Piltch

★ Budget

Continued from p.1

A recent inspection by the US Department of Agriculture that revealed a number of deficiencies in the housing of laboratory animals at UMass and subsqequent legal actions that require the school to correct them have prompted a proposal to build a new centralized facility. An amount of $2.3 million has been requested for this project.

Campus landscape improvements, including grading, drainage, lighting, handicapped ramps, roads, walkways and major plantings will receive $3.5 million if the new budget is accepted.

he five year budget plan requests a yearly amount sliding from $35 million in 1986 to $27 million in 1990. Because of the lack of action on a 1985 capital outlay budget, the 1986 request repeats those items proposed for 1985 and requests funding for subsequent stages of projects approved in 1984.

★ Arena

Continued from p.1

building a sports center, including an ice rink.

Yesterday, the trustees approved a rewording of that appropriation so that it may be used to finance the addition of two needed floors to the University Health Services building in the event that the building authority takes responsibility for completion of the sports center.

Student fees could rise $100 a year if the building authority takes responsibility for completing the arena project. Authority buildings must be paid for with bonds, not tax money, and the bonds, like mortgages, must be paid off with student fees.

Proponents of student fee funding say the project would be completed sooner since there would be no delays while waiting for state approval of funds.

Student Government Association co-President Rick Patrick said he had received a positive response to his request that an examination of students' ability to afford the possible fee increase be included in the project's overall feasibility study.

"It seems logical that by the time the debt service is instituted (in several years), fees (will have) increased considerably so that an additional $100 would make the University inaccessible to some people," he said.

Duffey conducts tour of renovations

A tour of the first academic building to be renovated at the University of Massachusetts was conducted yesterday by Dean Frederick Bryon and Chancellor Joseph D. Duffy for the Chancellor's Executive Committee and the Board of Trustees.

Renovations and expansion of Goessman Laboratory to 25,000 feet of laboratory and office space were completed from May to September of this year. Goessman was constructed in 1926.

"This building now has a unique atmosphere of antiquated windows and high ceilings, with the shining countertops and technical computers," commented Chancellor Duffy while touring a new organic chemistry laboratory.

"Most of the renovated laboratories are reclaimed space and have added greatly to our research capabilities," Dean Bryon noted.

Although the overall cost has not been calculated, a special appropriation from the University's operating budget and part of the $900,000 capital outlay grant were used to fund the renovation.

This entire renovation included new flooring, ventilation systems, plumbing, power systems, plastering, and painting. The increased laboratory space is greatly needed for graduate studies and for continuing research projects, Bryon said.

Also included in the tour was a lecture on polymers by D. Richard Stein. Polymers, long chains of molecules that make up familiar substances such as plastics, nylon, polythylene, and polyurethane, are a major research priority at UMass.

-TIM RYAN

Lack of heat surprises students

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

While students shivered in their dorm rooms, Physical Plant Director Roger Cherewatti met with contractors yesterday to arrange "to turn the heat on as soon as possible."

Cherewatti said the heat could not be turned on yesterday, despite many student complaints, because a "scheduling conflict exists between the Physical Plant" and the private contractors working on the baghouse near the Textbook Annex.

The constructiont the baghouse requires the use of certain Physical Plant boilers that are normally used to heat the residential halls, Cherewatti said.

"I don't want to make any promises I can't keep, but I hope to have the heat on by morning," Cherewatti said yesterday.

John Findley, assistant director of maintenance and operations, at Housing Services, emphasized that the rumor about the Physical Plant refusing to turn on the heat were not true. "They simply cannot turn it on yet," he said.

Dormitory residents across campus expressed dismay at the situation.

Micheal Vasile, 17, a resident of Thoreau, said, "I'm bummed out. It's tough to sleep, and we just have to bundle up all the time."

Brian Kingman, 19, a sophomore who lives in Thoreau, said, "It's the worst at night. It's been really, really, cold."

Mark Hubbard, 19, a Brett resident, said, "It's been really cold, but not unbearable, I hope they hurry up turning on the heat, though."

Sue Weld, 18, who lives in Webster, exclaimed "It's cold! IT'S COLD!

I have an electric blanket though," she said.

Salvadoran revolutionary to speak

A representative of El Salvador's Revolutionary Democratic Front (FDR), an umbrella group for guerrillas fighting against that country's government will speak today at the Campus Center.

Alberto Arene, who works in Washingtoor the FDR as a lobbyist and solidarity organizer, will give a lecture titled "El Salvador: Can Duarte Last•" His talk is sponsored by the UMass economics department and the Western Mass. Latin American Solidarity Committee, and will be at 7:30 p.m. in Room 165.

According to economics professor William Gibson, Arene was a government official in El Salvador's first junta, which was formed in 1979 and included current Salvadoran president Napoleon Duarte. Gibson said yesterday that after the government's collapse six months later, Arene decided "to get out" because the incoming administration "took a big turn to the right."

WMLASC member Cristos Karastamatis said yesterday that approximately 10,000 Salvadorans were killed per year under this military junta, which ruled the country for about three years before Duarte was elected president last spring.

BOB BURGESS

Sport Style

Polar Fleece Shirt 21.95

Embroidered Logo

Plain Shirt Available 19.95

White
Navy

xs s m l xl

light weight
warm
100% polyester
machine washable

Virgianne

photo by Dwayne Autery

Open M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

THE CHEESE SHOP
79 Main St.,
Amherst, MA 01002
413-253-3442

- Over 150 imported cheeses
- Over 20 selected types of coffee beans
- Bulk teas
- Freshly baked croissants & pastries
- Fresh pasta
- Party trays

• SPECIAL •
Fresh Peanut Butter 99¢ lb
Kenyan A.A. $4.99 lb
Mention this ad and receive 10% off on all Oriental Groceries
Coffee tasting Saturday 10 am to 1 pm
Hours:Daily 9:30-6:00; Sunday 9:00-1:00

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
•Includes Mounting• plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

SALE thru Oct. 13
20% - 40% OFF Selected
RUGS - TAPESTRIES
BLOUSES - SKIRTS - DRESSES
****
India Print
Short Sleeve
T-SHIRTS and TANKS
NOW $4.95
Cotton Turtlenecks - 2/$14.00
20% Off Bamboo Blinds
25% Off Bead Curtains
Mon - Sat 10 - 6
Sunday 12 - 5
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
GREAT GIFTS – GREAT PRICES

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:
an evening with
"The Them or Us Tour '84"
FRANK ZAPPA
SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50
Five College Students, Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50
Tickets on Sale Now
UMass ID required with student ticket
Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center, and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870
Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Courses CATE forgot

Ed Robinson

The Course and Teacher Evaluation guides are out and seem to be going like hotcakes. In fact, there are more CATE guides picked up each day than the number of women picked at J.R.'s, Changes, and the Pub combined in an entire year. Or, to give you a better idea of the numbers involved, if each copy of the CATE guide taken from the pallet outside of the University Store were placed end to end, well, they wouldn't quite stretch to the moon, or from Amherst to Boston even, but I'm sure you'd have yourself quite a mess.

Anyway, it's amazing that students are interested in these guides at all, considering that the add/drop period is over, and if you wanted to change a class, after reading in the CATE guide that four out of four respondents had the worst academic experience of their lives in the very same class, you wouldn't be able to, unless you wanted to withdraw and get a big 'W' on your record, which I hear looks as good to future employers as an arrest for drug smuggling or assault with a dangerous weapon.

Not only is the CATE guide late this year, but I think they left out a few courses I would have liked to see evaluated, which I include here for the benefit of myself and other Collegian readers who like this sort of thing:

FOOD SCIENCE 171 CHEWING AND SWALLOWING

Not many respondents enjoyed this class. Many disliked it intensely. Some had violent emotional reactions simply recalling the class and had to be sedated. One respondent thought "There was too much time spent on swallowing and not enough on chewing," and another agreed saying, "I felt not enough emphasis was placed on chewing, while swallowing took up half the semester." In a slightly different criticism a student wrote, "Not enough time was spent on that twilight area between chewing and swallowing, the time for the decision to swallow." The lone person who enjoyed this class wrote: "I feel I swallow much more correctly."

PSYCHOLOGY 527 DEPRESSION

Of the eight respondents, only one enjoyed the class: "I didn't exactly like it, but I'm not going to kill myself over it." Another wrote: "I hated this, really. I hated everything about it, but I don't feel I have the energy to explain why. It just doesn't seem worth it." Although the majority of the evaluators did not enjoy this class they still recommended it to others: "It's better than just sleeping and hanging around watching the paint peel."

MANAGEMENT 369 BRINGING THE BIG BUCKS HOME

Only one person responded. He wrote: "I enjoyed this class. That's all I'm saying unless I see some money on the table."

PSYCHOLOGY 501 HYPNOSIS

An amazing 64 students, 100 percent of the class, evaluated this course. Typical comments were, "the best class taught by the best professor", and "as far as I can remember, this is the best class I've ever taken." All the students agreed with this one: "Professor Mesmer should be given more money."

BOTANY 105 GENERAL BOTANY

Most students (out of the two who responded) were satisfied with this class, although one student was dissatisfied by the emphasis on plants. "Plants, who cares about plants?" this student wrote on the evaluation in a barely legible scrawl.

Ed Robinson is a Collegian correspondent.

One more for the Gipper?

Thomas Pitoniak

Why four more years of the unprecedented Reign of Error? Why more official irresponsibility? People seem to attach minimal weight to such pesty concerns as human rights, the environment, and the sunken federal coffers. To make sure, confiscate any dissenting signs and roll the Young Republicans down to the Mondale/Ferraro rally. The fewer voices in opposition, the fewer glitches in the White House public relations project. The conservatives then can simper at the sight of the media pouring over Ferraro's finances, while the 1980 Reagan/Bush transition team remains in a financial fog. Don't worry. The head of the IRS was a member.

At the Republican convention this summer, Reagan and Bush both declared that there was "no place" for racism or any discrimination in their party. Everyone roared, the cameras whirred, and America was beautiful, as indeed it can be and has been.

But America wasn't so impressive on the day in Tupelo, Miss. when Mondale was unduly harassed by a group of Baptists, bused in from a nearby segragationist school. They yelled "Blacks go home" to those in the audience of a darker skin. These people have a self-righteous, pig-headed attitude toward the world and their proportionate place in it. They are attracted by Reagan's brand of nuclear nationalism.

According to the July 15 New York Times, the Christian Broadcasting Network and Soldier of Fortune magazine are among the private groups who shipped $17 million in food, medicine, and uniforms to Central America. The uniforms and boots were for the fighters against independence for Nicaragua. The Air Force resisted flying the goods free of charge, along with storage. But they gave in "after pressure from the White House, Pentagon officials said." The likes of Jerry Falwell and Jimmy Swaggert have an effective pipeline; the 700 Club seems to play a part in shaping national policy, with democracy falling by the wayside.

Madison Avenue says peace. Reality spells war. George Bush accuses the Carter Administration of "vacillation" in their foreign policy, yet we have turned our backs on the Contadora agreement. Last spring, on trial for mining harbors, we claimed to support all efforts toward a negotiated settlement. But there really is no reason to doubt that, for our interests, we prefer the "divine intervention" of the contras.

The elections in Nicaragua may be insignificant, if the opposition continues to refuse to register. They have good reason to fear a public relations disaster, but why not see if the people support them? The thought of virtual Somozistas re-taking the country might not sell in Managua, even if it does in Dallas.

Win one in Nicaragua for the Gipper. Leave it to Gen. Paul Gorman, leader of the U.S. Southern Command. He had an idea last winter that was no joke. According to Newsweek (March 19, 1984), CIA-piloted planes would "patrol the skies over El Salvador, using rapid-firing cannon to break up rebel troop concentrations." Lights, camera, disaster.

Thomas Pitoniak is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Students paying for quality education

This is in response to Kevin Dwyer's letter in reference to the CATE Guide (Tuesday's Collegian) We welcome constructive criticism of the CATE Guide and appreciate ideas from the University community.However, Dwyer's complaint was in disagreement with the very premise of the Guide. He says we should "...stop complaining about our rights, realize that we are indeed privileged to be here, listen to our professors and learn." While we do feel privileged to be here, we also pay heavily for this privilege, and have the right to receive a quality education. The CATE Guide serves as a vehicle for students to consider the opinions of their peers and to learn that their own ideas and rights are important.

We agree that more student input is necessary. We are also sorry that the books were distributed late due to a foul-up at the printers. We would like to thank all of the students who did turn in their evaluation forms and also Rabbi Saul Permutter for turning in his own copies of student evaluations to us.

We are sorry Dwyer did not like the evaluation he received. Perhaps next year, if he encourages more students to turn in CATE forms, the evaluation will be more to his liking.

Kathleen Offenhartz
CATE Coordinator

Gayle Wintjen
Chair, Academic Affairs

What the issues are in Central America

On Sept. 27, in a most pathetic example of intellectual sterility and narrow-mindedness guest columnist Peter Dow expressed his ignorance about what's at stake in Central America. According to Dow the only problems in Central America are the "communist guerrillas" and the Soviet Union. As far as he is concerned, there never was any problem anywhere in Central America until the "Reds" came.

I am afraid Dow, with his self-confident ignorance will fail to explain why the U.S. has been intervening militarily in that impoverished part of the world since 1898 (with the invasion of Cuba), because there was NO Soviet Union until 1917.

It does not take a communist to make the Salvadorian peasants realize they have been living in abject misery for decades now, while 80 percent of the land has been owned by a small oligarchy of 14 families, while the death squads along with the military have been waging an internal, bloody and sadistic war against all dissidents in the last 50 years, ever since a massive peasant uprising was crushed by the U.S.-backed General Hernandez.

The Reagan administration has sponsored an election in El Salvador, a country torn by civil war. No country on this planet except Israel, Thatcher's England, South Africa and a few other right-wing Latin American dictatorships have recognized these elections as anything close to a legitimate election.

If these elections are actual elections, then would Dow explain why the opposition is forced to have a clandestine radio station. Does Mondale have to use a clandestine radio station to explain his views?

The facts about Central America are staggering: 45,000 civilians tortured to death by right-wing death squads since 1979 (our former ambassador Robert White has recognized that!).

One and a quarter billion dollars (from the taxpayers) were given to the brutal regime of El Salvador by the Reagan administration since 1980.

If Dow questions any of these facts, I will more than welcome public debate.

Sal Assad
Amherst

Diametrically opposed to 'misguided' column

As I read down the opinion page of the Collegian Tuesday, I was confronted by an article that really grabbed my attention. As I read of Rita Murphy tearing apart Alpha Phi Omega's homecoming queen contest, I could not believe that anyone could be so petty and misguided.

Firstly I found myself chuckling because the article itself proved absolutely nothing! Half of the time, the author sang praise to the noble cause of the fraternitiy and then turned around and tore them down. She also restricted her condemnation to this one specific contest and left the major pageants, such as the Miss America, standing unscathed on the grounds that it was not judged solely on looks. What's the difference if you are judged solely on looks or partially on looks, the basic idea is just the same. In addition, the analogies between the Royalty Contest, walking on the moon and slavery are absurd. Walking on the moon was a great technological step for man. Emancipation of the slaves was a great step for racial equality. What will the abolition of beauty contests prove?

It's quite obvious that the contest is for a good cause. And as the author made perfectly clear, the Royalty Contest is a tradition. Every year, for a good 20 years or more, Alpha Phi Omega and a multitude of other organizations have been electing a homecoming queen. As far as I've been able to tell and as far as the winners are concerned, this is an honor. How can anybody call this "oppression"? The girls who entered this contest were hardly subjugated and forced into entering by strong arm tactics.

Finally, the author, in her implication that this harmless little beauty contest is an affront to all womanhood, overstepped her bounds. I personally know of a large number of women who are diametrically opposed to Rita Murphy and I'm quite sure that the contestants in the Royalty Contest disagree as well. Until the day that Rita Murphy can speak for nearly every single woman under one opinion, she does not have enough of a base to ask Alpha Phi Omega to have "the courage and foresight" to abolish their contest. When that day does come, Rita, then I hope you have "the courage and foresight" to stand up again.

Stephen Van Doren
Orchard Hill

You can't afford to overlook this!

★ Special Student Membership ★

★ REDUCED RATES ★
★ COMPLIMENTARY VISIT ★

Leaving the area in January? That's no problem at the Hampshire Fitness Center.....

Join now and take advantage of our 7-month Student Special. Your membership will run from October-December and from February-May, in conjunction with your academic year.

Not leaving in January? Take advantage of our other membership options.

What better time to take advantage of this healthy offer and start looking good and feeling great! Call or stop by today!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER featuring:

★ Indoor Olympic-size Pool
★ Tennis
★ Nautilus, Olympic, Universal & Free Weights
★ Jacuzzi Whirlpool
★ Saunas
★ Snack Bar
★ Individualized Fitness Programs
★ Special Medical Programs
★ Computerized Fitness Evaluations
★ Nutritional Counseling
★ Swim & Tennis Lessons & Clinics
★ Massage Therapy

CONVENIENT HOURS: 7 days/week Mon-Fri 6am-10pm
Weekends 8am-9pm

Limited to the first 100 students!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER
GATE HOUSE ROAD • AMHERST MA
256-6446

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES FOR DECEMBER GRADUATES

G. FOX

representatives will be on campus

TODAY

to answer questions and provide information on Management Careers.
Stop by our
Open House

Faculty Lounge, School of Management
Between 10 am and 4 pm,

Bring a copy of your resume, if available

Casual Dress/Light Refreshments

- SALE - SALE - SALE - SALE - SALE - SALE -

Sport Style

SALE - SALE - SALE - SALE - SALE -

Photo by Dwayne Autery Chris C. Lisa M. Lisa O.

Two Tone Hooded Sweatshirt -
25% OFF ONLY $13.46 Reg. $17.95
Assorted Colors
Located in the Campus Center

Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

WHERE'S THE BEEF?

at

Changes

Tonite from 8 pm to 12 am
Budlight Night
Free prizes & the Budweiser Robot will be on hand

- FREE Hamburgers, Hot Dogs and Munchies
- 2 for 1 Mixed Drinks
- Women arriving before 10 pm receive a complimentary first drink

- NO COVER -

Available for catered private parties and semi-formals at the lowest prices

Changes RT. 9 AMHERST 256-8284

For a 20 x 28 full-color poster of this ad send $6.00 check or money order payable to Anheuser-Busch Inc Dept [illegible] One Busch Place St Louis MO 63118 Allow 4-6 weeks
Offer expires December 31 1984 Void where prohibited [illegible]

Hypercurricula

THE CAPE VERDEAN STUDENT ALLIANCE — Meeting Thursday, Oct. 4, at 5:00 p.m. in the New Africa House. Guest person Ray Allavera, from the Embassy of Cape Verde, will discuss the future development and growth of the C.V.S.A. New members welcomed.

QUEST FOR POWER — A documentary film by Saul Landau and Frank Diamond concerning the rise of the New Right and fascism in America. CC 101 4:30 and 7:00 p.m.

ITALIAN CULTURAL SOCIETY SLIDE PRESENTATION — Slide presentation of the Italian Alps, including the region Val d'Aosta and the city of Lucca. Wine and cheese. Given by an Italian graduate student! All welcome!! 8:00 p.m. 3rd Floor Herter Lounge

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION — Our first meeting of the semester will include Bible and denominational readings, and testimonies of healing through prayer. All those interested are welcome. 4:30-5:30 p.m. CC 165-169

RADICAL STUDENT UNION GENERAL MEETING — We will discuss upcoming events, review the past weeks activities and decide how we can best move forward. Campus Center 5:30 p.m.

ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION MEETING — Our third meeting will be a lot of fun. Come and share ideas. See you there. 7:00 p.m. Campus Center

MICHAEL SHILOH TO SPEAK — Israel's Consul General to New England, the Hon. Michael Shiloh will give an "Update on the Middle East" on Thursday, Oct. 4th at 7:00 p.m. in 112 Herter

WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP PROJECT MEETING — The Women's Leadership Project will meet on Thursday, October 4 at 4 p.m. Come learn to speak up. 4:00 415 Sudent Union

THE WRITING CENTER — The Writing Center offers free, confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignments as writing project. Drop-in. No appointment necessary. 7:00-9:00 p.m. Pierpont Classroom S.W.

WE BUY USED RECORDS & TAPES WE BUY USED RECORDS & TAPES

DYNAMITE RECORDS
PRE-CHRISTMAS SALE!

Maxell UDXL 90's, $1.80
TDK SA90's, $1.80
Maxell XLII 90's, $2.50
Thursday, Oct. 4th only

Thornes, a marketplace plus!
584-1580 150 Main St. N'hampton

LEARN TO FLY 665-2577

YOUR OWN AIRPLANE RIDE ONE THIRD OF THE NORMAL COST WITH THE COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB (UMASS) R.S.O. FREE BUS TO AIRPORT IN NORTHAMPTON / CREDIT for GROUND SCHOOL AVAILABLE

HELP WANTED
BREAKFAST and LUNCH SHIFTS
Apply
HADLEY BURGER KING
RT 9

LEISURE TOURS & TRAVEL, LTD.
PRESENTS
College Party Weekend
In
Montreal
November 2 3 4

YOUR TOUR INCLUDES:

- Round Trip Transportation via Luxury Air Conditioned Motor Coach
- 3 Days/2 Nights at the Quality Inn Downtown Montreal
- Optional Sight seeing tour of Montreal
- Welcome Party at Old Munich
- On Campus Reservation Service
- Services of the Leisure Tours Staff
- Campus Departures Available
- Indoor Pool Facilities

$79

ORGANIZE A SMALL GROUP EARN A FREE TRIP!!

KIM

UMass Transit Service
presents the
Fall Training Program for Bus Driving jobs.
100 applications will be given out
on Thurs. Oct. 4th at 7:00 pm in CC 917
You Must:
- have 3+ semesters remaining at UM
- be at least 18 yrs old
- Have had a license for a year

Bring proof of your class year (no ID's) to the meeting
for further info, call 545-0056
women/minorities/older students encouraged to apply
UMTS is AA/EO employer

MAKEUP CAKES, GREASE PAINT, HAIR SPRAYS, GELS, GLITTERS, BODY COLORS, LIPSTICKS, STRAKS, CREAMS, FORMGLAS, THEATRICAL HAIR, WIGS-TINSEL, MOHAWKS, PUNK, SPIKY WET LOOK, LONG HAIR, AFRO, WITCH HATS, DERBYS, BOWLERS, TOP HATS, TINSEL, BANDANAS, HILLBILLY, GANGSTER, NIXON, REAGON, WOOLY, EINSTEIN, WIZARDS, THUGS, WOLVES, GORILLAS, FEATHERS, SEQUINS, CAT, BIRD, CAPES, GOWNS, GUNS, DEVILS, ACCESSORIES-WHIPS, SWORDS, GLASSES, BEARDS, MOUSTACHES, NOSES, EARS, TEETH, BEAGLE, NOSES, ALIENS, CREATURES, MASKS
The Halloween Shop at Woodland Square
Downtown Amherst
Open Thursday October 4th
25% OFF TODAY
FACES
A Store Full of Faces
Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

Pearl Street

TONIGHT
Thursday, Oct. 4th
$4.00 at the door
The B. WILLIE SMITH Band
C'mon Down an' Get Down
TOMORROW NIGHT
Friday, Oct. 5th
DUO DANCECENTRICITY
Two DJ's Mixing-Up a Dance-Storm
THE DANCE DEMON
D.J. ANDREW WOLFE of WISS 108 FM Boston
Saturday Oct. 6th
Everyone is waiting to hear the 80's Dance Sound of PHOEBE SNOW
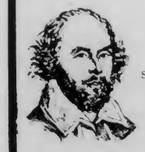
Thursday Oct. 11th
JUNIOR WALKER and the ALLSTARS
Friday Oct. 26th
Pearl is the place to dance Wed. thru Sat.
Wednesday Night is Ladies Night
No Cover for women
Positive I.D.'s required at the door. Photo Driver's License A.B.C. Card
10 PEARL STREET NORTHAMPTON, MA. 413 584-7771

Fine Arts Center
Concert Hall
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Houston Ballet
SWAN LAKE
with the Houston Ballet Orchestra
TUESDAY, OCT 9, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $11, $9
BOSTON CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY
SATURDAY, OCT 13, 8PM
TICKETS: $5
DUKE ELLINGTON'S
SOPHISTICATED LADIES
National Broadway Touring Company Production
SUNDAY, OCT 14, 2PM, 8PM
TICKETS: $22.50, $20.50, $18.50
DIZZY GILLESPIE
WEDNESDAY, OCT 17, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7
Five College Students Half-Price. Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842
VISA

THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS
Adult Education Programs also available
TWO AROUND-THE-WORLD SAILINGS EACH YEAR
Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh. Semester at Sea offers students a superior full semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester full credit experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities.
More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts.
Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available.
Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The SS Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America.
For a free color brochure, write: Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in Pennsylvania (412) 624-6021).
Student Representative will be in the Campus Center
Oct. 9 from 6:30 to 9 Room 174-176
Oct. 10 from 6:30 to 9 Room 165-169
Oct. 11 from 6:30 to 9 Room 101
Financial Aid is available to qualified students

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
DEPARTMENT OF THEATER
presents
Eugene O'Neill's
DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS
October 11-13, 17-20
Into the harsh but beautiful New England countryside O'Neill weaves a powerful tale of love, lust, and murder. One of the world's greatest tragedies by one of America's greatest playwrights



William Shakespeare's
A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM
December 6-8, 12-15
Spend a summer night in December at the Rand Theater. Warm yourself with one of Shakespeare's most hilarious comedies replete with a procession of mis-matched lovers and frolicking faeries, kings, and queens, in the most bewitched forest you will ever visit
All Curtains are at 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
University of Massachusetts Department of Theater
SUBSCRIBE NOW AND Save 25% off ticket prices
Please clip and mail to: Rand Theater Tickets, Fine Arts Center Box Office, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003
YES, I WANT TO SAVE 25% ON MY TICKETS
NAME _____ STREET _____
CITY _____ STATE _____ PHONE _____
I wish to order _____ Rand Theater subscription(s) at $6.00 each and or _____ student senior citizen subscription(s) at $4.00 each for the following dates (please circle one date for each production):
DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS October 11 12 13 17 18 19 20
A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM December 6 7 8 12 13 14 15
PHONE YOUR MASTER CARD VISA ORDER IN TODAY AT (413) 545-2511 Toll Free 1-800-243-4842
Enclosed please find my check for $_____ made payable to Fine Arts Center Box Office
You may charge subscription to my MASTERCARD _____ or VISA _____ Acct# _____
Expiration date _____ Signature _____
Patrons with discounted tickets must show appropriate ID at the door

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

YOU RANG?
MICHAEL DOONESBURY? NOPE.
UH.. ISN'T THIS WALDEN RESIDENCE OF..
MICHAEL DOONESBURY AND THE LOVELY MRS. DOONESBURY, YES
OH. SO WHO ARE YOU?
I'M THE MAID.
GB Trudeau

Today's Weather

Partly sunny, breezy and cool, highs in the 60s. Friday will be sunny with highs in the 70s

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

GOOD EVENING. PLEASE MEET - IF YOU HAVEN'T ALREADY - MY ANXIETY CLOSET.
KNOCK! KNOCK.
..AN ENCLOSURE OF CHILDISH BIGOTRIES AND ASSORTED BOOGAMS... ALL OF WHICH I'VE LONG AGO LEARNED TO DEAL WITH RATIONALLY.
KNOCK! KNOCK!
WHO IIIIIS IT?
JUST ME! YOUR MORTALITY!
YA'LL EXCUSE ME WHILE I CRAWL UNDER THE FLOOR-BOARD'S...
CAN WE TALK?

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Brouhaha
5 Products of the Netherlands
10 Doorframe
14 Ship's gaff
15 Daughters of Zeus
16 Single
17 Cougar
18 Turn away
19 —— tide
20 Burst with laughter
23 Tennis court barrier
24 Cross out
25 Heraldic devices
29 Greek market place
31 Slow, to Verdi
32 Declare positively
33 River of N England
37 Before hero or trust
38 On the loose
39 Do nothing
40 "Trees," e g
41 Homophone of lane
42 Self-assurance
43 —— coming (enterprising)
45 Focal point
46 Vendor
49 Rhine feeder
50 Thrilled
56 Negative contraction
57 —— Gabriel Rossetti
58 Rainbow
60 "There is a ——"
61 State
62 Paul Bunyan's dog
63 Red, White and blue
64 Iolanthe choristers
65 Overwhelmed

DOWN
1 Cookbook abbr
2 Musical composition
3 Moisture
4 Certain exam
5 Gladdens
6 Golfer's no-no
7 The score for Mary Lou Retton
8 Stable inhabitant
9 Commits to writing
10 Rejoicing
11 Negative battery terminal
12 19th cen French painter
13 Worldly-wise
21 Involved (with)
22 Weight of India
25 Applaud
26 City near Lake Tahoe
27 Duck, in Berlin
28 Excites
29 Shy away from 30 Graduation wear
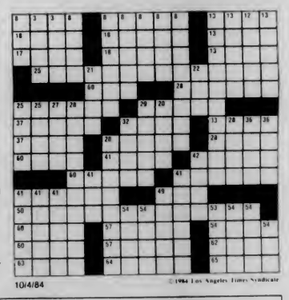
32 Actor Arkin
34 Blue-pencil
35 Otherwise
36 Merlin, for one
38 Got excited
42 Llama land
44 Foot: Lat.
45 Prances
46 Rotisseries
47 "—— Venner," Holmes novel
48 —— hand (help)
49 Michaelmas daisy
51 Assignation
52 Poker stake
53 Caravel of 1492
54 Worker gang
55 Sign on
59 Turf

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

R	A	J	A	S		M	A	S	T		I	T	I	O
A	T	O	N	E		I	L	L	E		N	E	A	P
B	O	H	E	A		L	O	O	T		S	A	T	E
I	N	N		W	A	L	T		W	H	I	T	M	A	N
		C	E	A	S	E			E	V	E
S	T	I	R	R	I	N	G		R	E	P	E	A	L
C	H	A	R	O		N	O	S	E	S		E	T	O
H	E	R	S		M	I	R	E	D		O	C	I	V
M	I	D		T	O	A	S	T		F	I	U	M	E
O	R	I	G	I	N		E	S	T	E	E	M	E	D
			H	E	E			F	I	L	L	U	M
R	O	B	E	R	T	F	R	O	S	T		I	S	H
U	N	I	I	T		A	L	A	I	R		F	E	N	C	E
D	O	N	T		R	E	N	T		O	R	G	A	N
E	R	G	O		Y	E	A	H		R	E	S	T	S

10/4/84



UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

COME ON, STING. LET'S SIT IN THE LOUNGE AND WATCH T.V.
NICE NICE HANCHE + B.J.
OH-NO! I FORGOT THERE'S NO FURNITURE ANYMORE
RADAR, CARRIE'S PIERCE'S
ALL THE LOUNGE FURNITURE IN SOUTHWEST WAS DIVIDED UP TO MAKE THINGS MORE EQUAL IN OTHER LIVING AREAS
GREAT... KIND OF LIKE COMBATTING STARVATION BY MAKING OTHERS FAST.
AT LEAST I'VE GOT A CHAIR

Gorde — by Gorde

HMM. A TAD NERVOUS, ARE WE? GEE, I WONDER WHY!..
KNOCK KNOCK
@#$%!
HI, GUYS! THIS IS EVE
MANGO, I'D LIKE YOU TO MEET A FRIEND OF MINE
NAH, LES, THAT AIN'T HER. SEE YA LATER!

Yesthead — By Jason Talerman

It's hot
Geez, its been a hot week
Nah!
And we all know what happens in extreme heat.
my head's yeast!
That's right: Yeastheads heat rises! Next: the terror of it all.

The Lab — by Law

WEEGEE, ANOTHER GREAT INVENTION! IT'S ENERGY EFFICIENT, NON POLLUTING, NUCLEAR FREE, HI-TECH AND CHEAP TO MAKE!
BEEP
WHAT DOES IT DO?
UH.. NOTHING.
BEEP
BUT THAT'S A SMALL PROBLEM COMPARED TO WHAT IT DOESN'T DO!
BEEP!

Maintenance Person Wanted

Person needed for maintain equipment and general office cleaning. Mechanical aptitude and workstudy required. Mourning hours, Mon - Fri.

Apply in person
9am - 4pm Mon - Fri
113 C.C. (Collegian office)

D.C. Menu

Lunch
Hamburg on roll
Spinach Noodle Casserole

Dinner
Chicken Hawaiian with Hoomalimali Sauce
Sausage Grinder

Basics Lunch
Golden Burgers
Spinach Noodle Casserole

Basics Dinner
Stir Fry Vegetables and Tofu
Chicken Hawaiian with Hoomalimali Sauce

★ HELP WANTED ★

Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen for Spring 85 and next academic year

Free Room and Board
15-20 hrs/week at $4.25/hr
Application available at Butterfield Dorm Kitchen
until October 19th

HEAD TO TOE NIKE.

Mathews SHOES
THE VILLAGE COMMON AMHERST

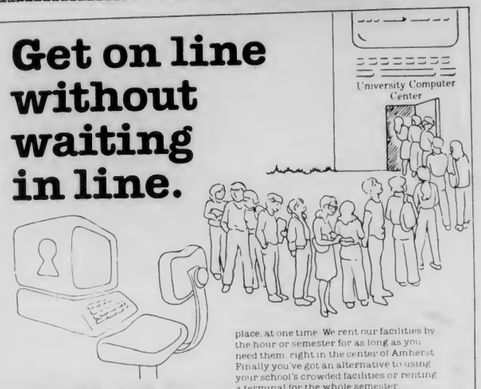
Heads up.
Register and Vote.

OCT. 1	WORCESTER DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 2	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 2:00 pm
OCT. 2	FRANKLIN DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 3	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 2:00 pm
OCT. 3	BERKSHIRE DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 4	HAMPSHIRE DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 9	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 12:30 pm

UMASS BIG VOTE '84

MASSPIRG SCERA SGA Third World Affairs Student Senate
Frontlash MASSPIRG Northeast Area Gov't Peacemakers Public Policy
Radical Student Union SCERA SGA Presidents Office SSAM Third World Affairs
UMass College Republican Club

Get on line without waiting in line.



"Unbelievable!"

It's not bad enough doing endless hours of homework for your computer courses. To make a tough situation worse you've got to plan on spending precious time standing in line every time you want to get on line. And your odds on getting a print-out by the time you need it are about as good as getting seats to a Michael Jackson concert.

That is, of course, unless you do your computer homework at the Computer Access Center.

16 chairs, no waiting!

The Computer Access Center is a unique workspace that offers everything you need to do all of your computer work, in one place, at one time. We rent our facilities by the hour or semester for as long as you need them, right in the center of Amherst. Finally you've got an alternative to using your school's crowded facilities or renting a terminal for the whole semester.

The Access Center has it all. 16 work stations fully equipped with computers and terminals, complete modem systems that allow you to tie-in to Cyber, VAX or any other mainframe that you have the access code for, on-site letter quality and dot-matrix printers for instant print outs, and experienced and knowledgeable computer pros always on duty to help you.

Of course, the best part is that at Computer Access Center you don't have to waste precious time standing in line. Now you can plan ahead and reserve time on a terminal that will be waiting just for you.

So what are you waiting for? Call today and see for yourself how easy and inexpensive renting time on a computer can be.

COMPUTER ACCESS CENTER INC.
ON SITE HOURLY/SEMESTER RENTALS 256-1213
79 South Pleasant Street, Amherst MA (in left rear of Peter Pan terminal building)
Mon.-Thurs. 9 am-11 pm, Fri. 9 am-6 pm, Sat.-Sun. 10 am-6 pm
2 FREE HOURS OF COMPUTER TIME!
Call today, mention this ad and use one of our computers for two hours at no cost!
Offer good during business hours Monday through Friday until October 15th.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount
• 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9488

AUTO FOR SALE

Honda '78 Civic hatchback; 2 door, 4 speed, runs well, good body. $1500. Call 536-2159 after 5 PM

'74 Mustang Ghia 4AT 73000 mi excellent conditions $1100 call 549-4716

'74 Pontiac Ventura 3 speed std no rust runs great call Steve eves 549-7818 850 or BO

1973 Cutlass Supreme 4 door good shape new brakes upholstery battery $725. Call before 4:30 Cheri 549-4136

1978 Suburu; four speed $1550. call 256-8467

Volks 73 runs great, need to sell now $750 firm. 549-1356 David

1972 Pinto runs great tiny rust spots $375 665-8316

Vega Wagon '78 new clutch, brakes, steering box. Body v. good 546-7058 ask for Tim keep trying

'74 VW Bug a must see! Only $50! Need money for lab fees. Call Frank 546-6643

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rack-A-Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks. "MTV" video music call 548-7144

Rack-A-Disc Rack-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

6 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7689

FOR RENT

One and two bedroom apts. On bus route cats okay. All utilities included. Wmsburg 268-3624 584-3095

FOR SALE

G + L F-100 electric guitar black w/ case. Excellent cond. $375 firm 549-2797

Synare S3X electric drum excellent condition $85 or BO 549-2797 after 6

1981 Pioneer HPM-500 stereo speakers – Juent condition great sound! $140 call Andy 6-1140 after 9 PM

2 ten speed bicycles for sale good condition, $95 each. Call 253-7975

Grateful Dead tickets Worc Centrum Oct 9 four available best offer. Ed 546-7942

Digital Decwriter w/ modem and paper ideal for Cyber 549-5216

FOUND

Adorable orange kitten, 2-3 months old

Housebroken, healthy. Call 549-5509 (dinnertime is best) Found in Newman Center Parking Lot.

Mens watch found in Hasbrouck 124 on Oct 1. To identify call 665-2470

HELP WANTED

Retail Sales positions full and part time Advanced Video 26 North King St. Northampton 586-8501

People's Market a looking for new collective members for fall '84. We need hard workers, people with ability to maintain a strong commitment and willingness to work beyond floor hours. Thees are musts. Experience with marketing, advertising, and managing helpful. Work 10+ hours per week at $3.65 per hour. Applications available at People's Market, located at rear of the Student Union. Women, people of color, handicapped, gay, lesbian, and older students are encouraged to apply.

Computer programmer Part time opening for person experienced with PDP-11 or VAX computers. UNIX, or MACRO 11. Amherst-based company, developing communications and real-time control software, is looking for someone able to work part-time during the school year, with full time employment during intersession and the summer. Excellent opportunity! For information call 549-6994.

Help wanted - Motivated students for 10 hours/week positions in the SGA Presidents Office. Apply in 408E Student Union, 545-0341.

Housepeople wanted. Homecooked meals in exchange for light kitchen cleanup call 545-2150 ask for Jim.

Ambitious college student needed part time to organize a Rock and Art Fair. Very rewarding role. 536-3890 anytime.

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment 253-2098.

LOST

VW Keys and dorm key last Tues. very important, if found call 546-5435 ask for Jim

PERSONALS

Cash for College available $16.5 million unclaimed send $1.00 (refundable) results guaranteed S.D.R. 49-10 Downing St. Fall River, Mass. 02723

Christian Science Monitor

Concise national & international news, daily. Special student and faculty rates; information and free copy at CC Concourse table all day Thursday.

Happy Birthday Rosemary!

Help Wanted Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen for spring '85 and next academic year free room and board 15-20 hrs/wk at 4.25 applications available at: Butterfield Dorm Kitchen until Oct 19

Congratulations to the new pledges of Tau Beta Sigma and Kappa Kappa Psi: Lynn, Karen, April, Jen, Ruth, Jodi, Tom, Steve, Gene, Joel, Brian, Andy. Good Luck!

Hey Big M.L., Happy 18th Birthday to the best setter there is! You're finally getting up there! I'm so glad you're here! You're great! Love ya, J.L.

Shara & Steve Happy Winnie B Day the day is approaching Count

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

SAFA

Student's Advocating Financial Assistance will hold the organizational introductory meeting Tues., Oct 9th CC 166, at 7 pm! NEW MEMBERS are ENCOURAGED to attend

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 bdrm newl Nonsmoker, on bus route, ¼ of 475# call Peter 253-7871 keep trying!

TRAVEL

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 Student/Budget Travel Agency. Free catalog, call (617) 266-1926 or write, 729 Boylston St., Suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

Weekend in Montreal, Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer stading room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5126

VOCALIST WANTED

Vocalist wanted (M or F) to front working R & B band. Experienced, dedicated professionals only please. 549-2797 256-8079 after 6 pm keep trying

WANTED

Female to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4686

Deed Tickets wanted call 546-6153

I need any extra Deed tickets you have call JR 253-7622

Needed two Grateful Deed tickets for Virginia and N. Carolina call Jim 549-1727

TONIGHT! FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
99¢ BAR DRINKS till 11 PM
Party with Crazy George
Rt. 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

UPC PRODUCTIONS Presents Tix on sale Monday Sept. 24

R.E.M.
Monday Oct. 15
F.A.C. UMass
Students $7.50 & $8.50
General Public $9.50 & $10.50 Tickets Still Available
UMass ID required with student tickets
Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

The Party Never Stops!
JUSTIN RYAN'S
challenges you to
BEAT THE CLOCK

7:00-9:00	9:00-10:00	10:00-11:00	11:00-CLOSE
50¢ Drinks	75¢ Drinks	1.25 Drinks	1.75 Drinks

Tonight - Thursday Night

KICK-OFF LOUNGE
Catch all the Action
American League Playoffs

HUGHES
THE JOURNEY HAS BEGUN

An impressive technological journey began over three decades ago at Hughes Aircraft Company. Today, with more than 90 diverse technologies ranging from sub-micron electronics to large scale systems, you'll find Hughes people forging new discoveries, new futures.

Become part of the Hughes tradition of technological firsts, if your degree is in:

Electrical, Mechanical, Manufacturing or Industrial Engineering, Computer Science, Physics, Electronics Technology.

Requirements may vary. Check with your placement office about Hughes' company-wide opportunities at any one of 12 Southern California locations and Tucson, Arizona.

Or contact Hughes Corporate College Relations, Dept. NC, Bldg. C2/B178, P.O. Box 1042, El Segundo, CA 90245. Equal Opportunity Employer. Proof of U.S. Citizenship Required.

Hughes representatives will be on campus October 10
(See your placement office for an appointment.)

HUGHES

ON CAMPUS

Golfers third in NE tourney

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

NEW SEABURY-The University of Massachusetts golf team finished third out of a 42 school field in the New England Championships this past weekend at the New Seabury Country Club.

The Minutemen came from 17th place after the first day to finish third. Central Connecticut won the tourney with the University of Hartford finishing second.

"It's our best finish in many years," said Minutemen coach Jack Leaman. "Despite the rainy conditions, all of the players golfed well for us and we did very well."

Individually, sophomore Tim Smith was 12th overall with a 155 over the two days. Junior Brian Fitzgerald was 16th with a 156. Charlie Ross was 20th with a 157. Overall, the Minutemen registered a score of 629.

Other UMass golfers included Joe Petrin with a 161 and Tyley Shearer with a 166.

The Minutemen score the fifth best score on the tougher of the two courses used, according to Leaman.

"The course we played on during the first day was as tough a course as we've seen," said the veteran coach. "We scored a 304 the next day (after a 325 the first day) on the easier course, that was the third best score of the tourney."

UMass beat such highly-regarded teams as Yale (Division 1 playoff representatives) and Providence College.

★ field hockey

Continued from page 12

We came out fighting. UMass is one of the best respected teams in the country. They have a lot of individual talent with Megan Donnelly, Pam Moryl, and Judy Morgan, and they have a tremendous coach in Pam."

Hixon also had kind words for her former Colleagues and current adversaries.

"It was fun today; they're good people. It's nice to know that they (Yale) are getting some good coaching. I know the best interests of field hockey are at heart at Yale," said Hixon.

It took UMass a little less than three minutes to take the lead. With the Yale defense spread out around the goal, Maura Coughlin took qckKefxsqsqsuss across the middle and blasted the ball past a vulnerable Yale goalie, Nada Sellers from four yards out.

The Minutemen took even less time in notching their final goal of the afternoon. After only a minute and fifty seconds had elapsed, Kennedy took w close shot that deflected off another player's stick.

The ball floated over the head of helpless Sellers and dropped in the goal just as the goalie turned around to locate the ball.

The rest of the half looked much like the first with UMass' offense keeping Sellers busy and the Minuteman defense turning back whatever threat Yale could muster.

Overall UMass outshot Yale 19-4. Sellers saved fourteen of UMass' shots (three went wide). Kathryn Rowe stopped all of Yale's shots on her way to her first shutout this season. UMass was awarded fourteen penalty corners, Yale only seven.

Cubs beat Padres, take 2-0 series lead

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Dernier transformed speed into a pair of Chicago runs and Steve Trout continued to silence San Diego bats Wednesday as the Cubs beat the Padres 4-2 to take a 2-0 lead in the National League championship series.

The Cubs moved to within a game of advancing to their first World Series since 1945.

Trout, 13-7, gave up only five hits, struck out two and walked three before giving way with one out in the ninth to Lee Smith.

Smith struck out Carmelo Martinez and got Terry Kennedy on a fly ball to preserve the victory.

Dernier, the Cub's speedy centerfielder, manufactured two important runs by going from first to third on a ground ball before scoring in the first, and stealing a base and scoring in the fourth.

In between, the Cubs scored twice in the third inning on a double by Ron Cey and a sacrifice fly by catcher Jody Davis.

For the second straight day, the National League used amateur umpires to replace the striking regulars. Although not flawless, their performance was without serious controversey. Both Gary Metthews and Ron Cey have 13 playoff RBI apiece, two fewer than San Diego's Steve Garvey.

UMass Rankings

The University of Massachusetts placed three in the Top 20 in national rankings released yesterday.

The women's soccer team tied George Mason for third in the Division 1 poll as voted by the coaches. The field hockey team stayed at seventh in the Division 1 coaches poll.

In a major surprise, the men's soccer team, winners of only three games last season, were 12th in the Division 1 poll with a 6-1-2 record.

Sports

Women go to 6-1-2 with shutout win

Seta, Bowsher tally for minutemen

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

FARMINGTON, CONN.--The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team solidified their claim as New England's team with a solid 2-0 win over second ranked University of Connecticut Wednesday night.

The third ranked Minutemen shut down the Huskies outshooting them 30-10, dominating the game offensively. It was UConn's first loss of the year.

The key was UMass aggressiveness. They beat UConn, now 8-1-1, to the ball and made things happen.

"I think it was a good game," co-captain Lori Stukes said. "We out played them offensively and defensively. We really proved ourselves out there."

Freshmen Kristen Bowsher set the tone of the game early as she popped a shot off the post with a little under two minutes gone in the game

Monica Seta put the Minutemen on the board as she rifled a shot from 23 yards out after a Jolie DePauw pass. Seta's shot, at the 35:40 mark of the first half, sailed into the right side of the net.

"It came down to whoever was hot on a given day. We made and created our chances. It was the best I've seen them play," said a jubilant head coach Kalekeni Banda.

Seta had an outstanding game, as she hustled all over the field. Stukes, Chris Schmidt, and Sue Bird also excelled.

"UMass beat us to the ball," UConn coach Len Tsantiris said. "It threw our game way off. We didn't play as well as we could have. It's still early in the season."

Massachusetts, now 6-1-2, scored the clincher at the 72:15 mark of the second half.

The Huskies' Elanor Cheever was called for a hand ball inside the penalty area and UMass was awarded a penalty shot.

Bowsher rifled a shot into the right side of the net for her second penalty shot goal of the year and a 2-0 UMass lead. Bowsher also scored the winning goal on a penalty shot against the University of California-Santa Barbara.

"This is exactly what we needed," Banda said. "We know that we can go out and beat the best. We have the players, they're just young."

Huskie goalie Laura Skaza made 11 saves while UMass' Jeanne Paul was only called upon to make two stops.

The game was played before 500 spectators at Tunxis Mead Park and was the first UConn women's home game ever held off the Storrs campus. UMass snapped a three game undefeated streak for UConn.

The win was UMass' third in a row and the third shoutout in a row for goalie Paul. UMass faces unrankd New Hampshire Tuesday at Boyden.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Pam Moryl (23) of the University of Massachusetts moves downfield in yesterday's action against Yale. The 7th ranked Minutemen defeated the Elis 2-0. Looking on is Elizabeth Fulton.

7th ranked stickers win as Yale falls victim 2-0

by ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

In years past Diane Moyer and Patti Bozzio used to patrol the University of Massachusetts field Hockey field, one as an assistant coach, the other as a player. Yesterday the two returned for a homecoming of sorts. Although their return could have been better, they had to expect that it wouldn't turn out perfect.

The reason everything wasn't ideal is because they are now in their first seasons as coaches of a very young Yale field hockey team that went down in defeat 2-0 at the hands of their alma mater, which has a field hockey team riding a seven game winning streak and is currently ranked seventh in the nation.

"It was a pleasure to see the familiar buildings and the field," said Moyer, who served as an assistant under UMass coach Pam Hixon in 1981. In a small way I felt at home."

While her team fell, Moyer was still upbeat about the game.

Continued on page 11

Men's soccer done in; Elis win 3-1 in OT

National 12th ranking jeopardized

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

The first 90 minutes, they played even.

When that happens in college soccer, there is something called overtime.

It was in this overtimewhere the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team dropped only their second game of the season to yale, 3-1, in New Haven.

Two goals by the Elis in each of the two 10 minute overtime periods sent the Minutemen home on the down side.

UMass, ranked 12th by the latest national poll, got off to a slow start against Yale. The Elis first tally came at the 35:35 mark of the first half, when a UMass player inadvertantly kicked a Yale corner kick into his own net.

This was the tone set for the entire first half. Yale dominated play, especially in the midfield area, and took early control of the game. Eli goalie Jeff Duback thwarted any UMass attack by stopping crossing passes before UMass could capitalize on them.

But a team must be rated number one in New England for a reason, and the Minutemen showed their composure by coming back in the second half. Sophomore Paul Serafino scored on a heads-up play at the 84:42 point.

Serafino intereepted a pass intended for Duback, went around the shocked Yale goalie, and stuck the ball in the back of the net to knot the score at 1-1.

UMass kept the pressure during the second half. Playing against a strong wind, the Minutemen adjusted their forward line from two to three players. They did control the game more, but just couldn't put the ball in the net.

The rest of the second half ended in a draw and overtime number one began.

About 3 ¼ minutes into the first OT, Yale put together some impressive passing to take the lead that they would not relinquish. Brad Burnbitt sent a beautiful crossing pass to forward Kirk Fernard. Fernard was about seven or eight yards away and just drove the ball paszfUMass goalie Don Donahue.

The second OT proved to be almost a mirror of the first as the Elis would pad their lead with another goal. This time, Charlie Dunfey sent a crossing pass to the top of the penalty area. Jim Tenbrink was right there to receive the pass, had plenty of time to control the ball, and deposited it in the lower right hand corner of the net.

Yale, 4th ranked in New England, held off any UMass pressure to preserve the win. The undefeated Elis now raise their record to 4-0 and stand to move up in the New England, and perhaps national polls.

The Minutemen, now 5-2-2, got a fine performance from John Shannon and Mike Runeare, both midfielders. The three goals they gave up now bring the season total to seven. Next up for the Minutemen is the UMass invitational this weekend.

Yale 3, UMass 1

UMass (5-2-2) 0 1 0 0 -1
Yale (4-0) 1 0 1 1 -3
Scoring: UM-Serafino 84:42 (2nd); Yale-UM player miskick 35:35 (1st), Fernand 93:30 (1st OT)-assist Burnbitt, Tenbrink 102:28 (2nd OT)-assist Dunfey

Shots on Goal: UM 11, Yale 14
Saves: UM-Donahue 5, Yale-Duback 3
Corner Kicks: UM 4, Yale 5

Sports Log

Tony Betros

Just a few thoughts...

Baseball fever is alive and well and living in Chicago. The Cubbies now hold a two game lead over the equally surprising Padres. Yes, the North Side is in a frenzy, after all, it's been 39 years...Can you imagine the party if the Cubs go all the way and take the World Series? They could borrow The Daily Hampshire Gazette to use as ticker tape, no, that would be too cruel to the players... Gary Matthews sure had quite the day in game one with his two homers. Didja ever wonder why Matthews always loses his hat on the field? Perhaps we have another subject for Andy Rooney and his rosy cheeks...Rick Sutcliffe has to be the best pitcher in the world right now. Fifteen straight and he seems almost effortless in his pitching. He is the best thing to happen to the Cubs since Harry Carry went up to the broadcast booth.

A Chichago-Detroit World Series is what NBC is salivating about. Here are two big midwestern cities that have a large national following. There will definitely be some good ratings for NBC...I'm also looking forward to Vin Scully's excellent commentary. He describes a scenario better than anyone and his voice is to baseball what Lionel Richie's is to singing.

It's a little chilly in the air, and that means football's in high gear. Last year, Monday Night Football changed its name to Mundane Night Football and we've had a few yawners already this year. Last Monday's Steelers-Bengals contest had five fumbles and eight interceptions, not exactly your purely played game. In fact, it almost set the record for the clumsiest event, but Gerald Ford's reign as President just beat it out...Linebacker Brad Van Pelt of the Vikings ended his holdout with the club but will pay $76,000 in fines. Only owning a car at UMass will result in more money in violations.

A couple of big signings hoop-wise: Mark Aguirre, who brought the Dallas Mavericks to the playoffs last year, agreed to an 11 million, 11 year contract with the club. Aguirre will stay with the Mavs until the 1996-97 season. I hope he keeps company with the Ewings...Last week, the 76ers inked Charles Barkley, fresh out of Auborn.

In case anybody doesn't know, Barkley stands at 6'6", weighing 280 pounds. Barkley's former job was a speed bump at Pufton Village.

Some final thoughts: It's interesting to see that UMass may have an 18 million dollar sports facility. This would include a 12,000 seat stadium for basketball, hockey, concerts, and graduation--hopefully not all at the same time... I see the Dalai Lama is appearing in the Amherst area. I also hear that he's pretty bright. Let's see how he does in Trivial Pursuit, then we'll see if he's bright.

No more to be said, for now.

Sports at a glance

UMass schedule

Today: Men's Tennis: SUNY-Albany, at Boyden Courts, 3:00 p.m.
Women's Tennis: Amherst College, NOPE Courts, 3:00 p.m.

Friday: There are no sports scheduled

Inside: Golf Team, Cubs win again

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 19 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, October 5, 1984

Collegian photo by Brian Goeve

DOUBLE VISION — UMass students work up a sweat while engaging in a game of hoop in the autumn cool at Orchard Hill Courts.

Non-residents get new bills correcting tuition hike error

By CHRIS POON
Collegian Correspondent

A University of Massachusetts official's error in misunderstanding a state legislature ruling resulted in an extra $44 as part of a 15 percent tuition hike for out-of-state students this fall.

UMass Bursar Robert Mishol added $44 to out-of-state student's bills because he thought a seven-percent tuition cap enacted by the Legislature in July would apply to all students, not just Massachusetts residents.

Out-of-state students in fact had to pay 15 percent more in tuition this year which is the difference between that and the seven percent. Mishol notified the students of the $44 error last week.

The Board of Regents of Higher Education had voted to raise tuition by 15 percent in April but "the Legislature passed a vote to put a seven percent cap on the 15 percent for Mass. residents only in July.

"We delayed mailing the student's bills until the third week of July so we could find out how the Legislature's vote would go," Mishol said. He said he assumed before the vote was taken that a seven percent increase would apply to all students.

Mishol then proceeded to adjust the bills accordingly. By the time he discovered the error, in August students had already received their bills, Mishol said.

"Out-of-state students will have to pay the $44 increase out of their own pockets," said UMass Financial Aid Director Arthur Jackson. He said financial aid awards will not be re-adjusted because of the additional billing.

"Due to the late notification by the Board of Regents and the State Legislature, we could not take into account the tuition increase," he said.

Jackson said the Financial Aid Office will allow students to borrow the additional $44 from their Guaranteed Student Loans to pay the bill.

Mishol said that the out-of-state students were not notified of a billing error until last week because he did not want to hold up the registration process.

MassPIRG will kick off hazardous waste campaign

By ELIZABETH DATEO
Collegian Correspondent

The Hazardous Waste Committee at the University of Massachusetts will take part in National Toxic Actions Week starting Monday by featuring speakers, films and presentations that will culminate with a march in Amherst Friday and a trip to Boston Saturday.

The committee, which is part of the Massachusetts Public Interest Group (MassPirg) is sponsoring the events for the National Campaign Against Toxic Hazards.

According to William F. Giarraputo, committee coordinator, "Out of 50 states, Massachusetts is the third largest producer of toxic substances and hazardous waste, yet does not have a legitimate dump site and does not enforce treatment and storage regulations.

"We can't afford to let industries dictate what to do with hazardous waste," he said.

The National Toxic Actions Week will focus on the presence of hazardous waste and ways to strengthen laws to control its' treatment and storage.

Giarraputo said MassPirg wants to educate the public on the hazardous waste issue, increase awareness and push for passage of the four Senate bills currently being reviewed by the legislature.

The bills include motions to locate potential problem sites and to fund emergency clean-up. In the case of the "Pollution Penalties Legislation Senate Bill 2116", the purpose is to strengthen enforcement of stringent environmental laws.

According to Carlie Gardner, environmental specialist for MassPirg, the pollution penalties bill is the key this year because it has the best chance to be passed. The bill is currently in the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Giarraputo said the bill is "so urgent that I want everyone in Massachusetts to phone their respective senators and congresspeople and tell them to vote in favor of the bill to let them know we will not sit by and watch industry manipulate the situation."

Giarraputo said some environmental groups estimate that there are 1,200 hazardous waste dumpsites in Massachusetts, "yet our legislatures have only identified 120 and suspect only 250 others."

Israeli official says U.S. needs Middle East foothold

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Correspondent

Michael Shiloh, Israel's Consul General to New England, said last night that it is politically and strategically in the best interests of the United States to have a strong Israel located where it is.

Shiloh spoke to University of Massachusetts (UMass) students in Herter Hall as part of an ongoing lecture series on contemporary issues in the Middle East sponsored by the UMass B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation.

In his lecture "Update on the Middle East", Shiloh said "America has always been very kind to Israel, but the U.S. is getting a very good deal."

This year the Reagan administration has given Israel $2.61 billion in military and economic aid but "this was not done because of the general altruism of the American tax payer," Shiloh said.

He said the U.S. has "global interests" in Europe, the Middle East, Asia and South Asia and "is investing to defend Europe and its European allies".

Israel is located at the crossing of three continents and facing Russia Shiloh said.

"If Israel disappeared and the USA had to defend that part of the world, it would cost them over $100 billion," he said.

Israel supplies the U.S. with data on the Russian military that would take them years to find out by themselves," said Shiloh.

He also spoke on the future of the West Bank, saying hat solutions will only be found when the Labor Alignment Party and the Likud party, which make up Israel's coalition government, settle their differences. He said that whereas "the Labor party thinks that the Camp David agreement will settle Israel's problems the Likud party believes that King Hussein of Jordan should be called to an open negotiation table".

Israel's treaty with Egypt as outlined in the Camp David agreement has had "a few disappointments," he added. Although the border is meant to be open between Israel and Egypt "the Egyptians have not kept to this," he said.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Michael Shiloh

Shiloh said that "Israel has sacrificed a lot in giving back the Sinai and could expect the Egyptians to keep their side. We hope relations with Egypt will improve in the next few months."

He also spoke on the situation in Lebanon and said both parties in the government agreed that Israeli forces should withdraw as soon as possible and that he "estimates Israeli withdrawal in three to six months."

Inside:

The war must end.....p.3
Awareness must be seen and heard by all.....p.5
Coming down to the pass for victory..p.12

"Don't be afraid to make a mistake, your readers might like it."
— William Randolph Hearst

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
Friday & Saturday
CRAZY GEORGE TRIVIA PARTY
9-11 PM with 99¢ BAR DRINKS
Open till 2 AM Both Nights
(come early, doors close when full)
Rt. 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

HELP WANTED
BREAKFAST and LUNCH SHIFTS
Apply
HADLEY BURGER KING
RT 9

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Laura Yee
Copy Editor — Bob Burgess
Layout Tecnician — Ansel Zinter
Photo Technician — Brian Gonye
Production Supervisor — Conor Plunkett
Production — Laura Zigman, Lisa Horan, Judy Slater, Andrew Held, Jeff Collins, Deborah Rugg

Bruno's
- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Earn your Credits abroad.

- England
- Israel
- Ireland
- Germany
- Spain
- Italy
- Denmark
- Egypt
- Switzerland
- Mexico
- Canada
- France

Join the thousands of students who have earned college credits studying abroad in CCIS programs

Affordable quality programs with financial aid available

SPRING SEMESTER IN DUBLIN
INSTITUTE FOR IRISH STUDIES
12 - 15 CREDITS
SUMMER PROGRAMS
AT TRINITY COLLEGE
DUBLIN

Dr. John J. McLean
Mohegan Community College
Norwich, CT 06360
886-1931 X243

COLLEGE CONSORTIUM FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

Tiger.
Born To Compete.

Asics Tiger Wrestling Boot
Men's sizes
Reg. $35.99
$27.

Asics Tiger Jayhawk
Extra lightweight jogger
Men's and women's sizes
Reg. $52.99
$40.

Asics Tiger Extender
Suede and nyla-sheen jogger
Men's sizes
Reg. $39.99
$30.

No matter what the competition, brandname Tiger sport shoes are designed to give you extra support and comfort. Put a Tiger on your feet and get that special inborn feeling of confidence.

OLYMPIAN
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

Stop in to
BRAD'S GRAPEVINE
at the
VILLAGE INN
for a quiet
glass of wine, beer
or a mixed drink
(open at 4:00)

Or if you're hungry try:
- Brad's Mexican Food
- Super Burger Baskets (biggest in town)
- Specialty Fried Chicken
- Light Meals

all at very reasonable prices
BRAD'S - 85 Amity St., Amherst

PALACE CINEMA 1·2
RT. 9 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPRINGFIELD
24 HR. TELEPHONE 781-6800
BARG. DAY, WED. FRI, SAT, SUN FIRST SHOW ONLY $3.50
STARTS TODAY

"This year's best film!"
"Mozart's greatest hit..."
Mozart comes raucously alive as a punk rebel, grossing out the Establishment...a grand, sprawling entertainment!"
AMADEUS
EVERYTHING YOU'VE HEARD IS TRUE
PG
10+ GROUP SALES CALL PHYLLIS BEEBE 733-3434

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

GO FOR THE GUSTO — Jeff Kinder, left, James Mulhern and Craig O'bryan prune trees for an arborculture urban forestry lab behind Morrill Science Center.

Dalai Lama stresses patience, control

By JOHN MILBIER
Collegian Staff

One must build a broad mind and see humanity as one, said the Dalai Lama, exiled leader of Tibetan Buddhists, in a lecture at Smith College last night.

"You must look beyond the family, and national matters to global issues, the monk said to an audience of 2,088 people.

"I try as much as I can for the salvation of community and humanity," he said.

The Dalai Lama has been living in India since his exile from Tibet. He fled his country after a Chinese military takeover in 1959.

While speaking on "Enlightenment and Liberal education," he said, "teachers shouldn't only emphasize knowledge but should be an example to the child." He added that "the parent has a special responsibility to build a healthy mind in the child."

The Dalai Lama said children must not only learn from parents and teachers but also from their enemies.

"Imagine your enemy and friend in front of you. With your friend you're warm but with your enemy you have resentment," he said.

He added that when a person becomes angry they are half mad. "Very often your actions are proved wrong," he said.

Kindness, compassion, and tolerance is in the Buddhist teaching, he said. To achieve a happier life, "courage and patience," are also needed, he said.

"The human being's nature is that you can change but not overnight," he said.

The Dalai Lama said there were many cultural and political barriers facing the human species.

NEWSLINES...

Weather forces early firing of heat system

The University of Massachusetts is delayed firing its main boiler system in anticipation of completing a pollution control filteration system. However, because of recent cold temperatures, and for the well being of the University community, a joint decision has been made by the University and the Division of Capitol Planning and Operations to begin operating the three main coal-fired boilers to provide heat for academic, dormitory and office buildings on campus. The heating system is expected to be fully operational by noon Saturday.

— JOHN YONCE

Yom Kippur starts at dusk; time of fasting, confessions

Yom Kippur, the most solemn day of the Jewish calendar begins today at sundown and lasts until the "stars come out" Saturday according to Rabbi Israel Deren.

The day of atonement is set aside for introspection on the year past and to ask God for forgiveness, Deren said. Traditionally, Yom Kippur falls on the 10th day after Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year.

The 26 hour period is observed by fasting, and meditation.

Services at Chabad House will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday with Kol Nidreh service. There will be a morning sevice at 10 a.m., Saturday. Yizkor service will be held at 12:30 p.m. and an afternoon service at 4:30p.m. The breaking of the fast will be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

— TOM MIDDLETON

Off-Campus Housing Office relocates in Student Union

The Off-Campus Housing Office at the University of Massachusetts is closed while it relocates to room 423 in the Student Union. The office will reopen Wednesday at 9 a.m. It was moved to make more academic space available, according to Randy Dorant, director of the student activities office.

— TOM MIDDLETON

Students intending to "Dump Reagan"

By BILL LEMANSKI
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts Radical Student Union (RSU) will send 30 people to the fifth annual Progressive Student Network (PSN) conference at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia this weekend.

The theme of the conference will be "Rewrite the Script: Dump Reagan and Reaganism in 1984 and beyond".

Other campus groups involved include the Western Mass. Latin American Solidarity Committee, and the UMass Peacemakers, said Beatrix Hoffman.

Hoffman said that the conference "is to get student activists together from different areas, build student movement for the '80s, and dumping Reagan."

"If students return to their own campuses with new ideas and skills, along with increased awareness, then our objectives will be accomplished," Hoffman said.

At previous conferences, student activists throughout the country gathered to talk and learn skills from each other, she said.

Another member of the RSU, Monika Giacoppe, a first-year student, said she hopes the conference will "create feelings of solidarity among progressive organizations, and to create a network for power in supporting ideas, to achieve similar goals.

Giacoppe said the conference is an effort to raise consciousness on issues such as Central America and nuclear war. She said the conference is "by no means pro-Mondale."

However, Giacoppe said "vote for Mondale, at least you'll live to regret it."

At the conference, the RSU will have three skill workshop presentations, dealing with communication, publicity, and general identity, Hoffman said.

The PSN was formed Nov. 1980 as an immediate response to the presidential victory of Ronald Reagan. PSN is a part of the Midwest Coalition Against the Draft, and the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide.

The network is an organization of colleges and university groups throughout the Midwest and East Coast.

The network includes disarmament and freeze groups, anti-intervention and solidarity organizations, woman's organizations and other groups working for positive and progressive change

Salvadoran leftist talks peace, help

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

The people of the United States have to act quickly to prevent Americans and El Salvadorans from "dying in vain" in the escalated war in Central America, according to a representative of the revolutionary front who spoke at the University of Massachusetts last night.

Alberto Arene is a representative of the political diplomatic commission to the Democratic Revolutionary Front and the Farabundo Marti Front for National Liberation (FDR/FMLN) in El Salvador.

Arene addressed a group of about 50 people and insisted that the FDR/FMLN is in favor of a political solution to end the war in El Salvador.

"We have an army, we control one third of the territory, and we are at least 10,000," Arene said, "but we don't think the continuation of the war is the best thing for the country."

Arene said the elections were orchestrated by the United States to enable the Reagan administration to provide more arms to the military dictatorship in El Salvador.

"We always know who is going to win the elections in El Salvador," he said.

Arene told the audience to try to picture the mockery of democracy in El Salvador elections.

He said if the chief of staff of the armed forces had killed 2.3 million of the U.S. population in the past three years and the general secretary of the Ku Klux Klan was the leader of both houses of Congress it would be a state of siege comparable to the political situation in El Salvador.

"Nobody would be thinking about elections, they would be thinking of putting on trial those people (in power)," he said.

Collegian photo by Andy Heiler

Alberto Arene

"We have proposed a dialogue without pre-conditions and with an open agenda, we have also come with some provisions," he said.

Arene said a broad-based government with every party except the party of Roberto D'aubuisson has been proposed, as well as many other suggestions, but all of them had been rejected.

D'aubuisson's party had to be excluded from a peaceful solution just as had the Nazis and Mussolini, he said.

"We don't think we have too much time. It's important to mobilize...to educate...to write letters to Congress and to get in contact with the press. It's important to indentify who is sabotaging the Contradora process. Get more people involved and more people educated of the repercussions of U.S. foreign policy in El Salvador," Arene said.

UMass police report DWI, tire slashing

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts police reported that a 21-year-old University of Massachusetts student was arrested Thursday at 1:17 a.m. in lot 21 and charged with driving while intoxicated.

A 26-year-old Belchertown man was arrested at 5:43 p.m. Wednesday for motor vehicle violations, police said.

Police received a report at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday that a AM/FM stereo cassette valued at $250 was stolen from a car parked in lot 44.

Two motorcycle side covers valued at $120 were reported stolen at 4:38 p.m. Wednesday from a motorcycle parked at the Southwest Residential motorcycle parking area.

A car which had its four tires slashed outside John Adams dormitory was reported to police at 10:02 a.m. Wednesday

Forty-five dollars in cash was reported stolen from an unlocked room in Mary Lyons Dormitory at 10:33 a.m. Wednesday, police said.

Twenty-five dollars in cash was reported stolen from an unlocked room on the tenth floor of John Quincy Adams Dormitory at 9:13 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

A student bites a teacher.
The school psychologist goes berserk.
The substitute teacher is a certified lunatic.
And students graduate who can't read or write.

It's Monday morning at JFK High.

TEACHERS

United Artists Presents
An AARON RUSSO Production
An ARTHUR HILLER Film
Starring NICK NOLTE · JOBETH WILLIAMS · JUDD HIRSCH · RALPH MACCHIO
"TEACHERS" ALLEN GARFIELD with LEE GRANT and RICHARD MULLIGAN
Written by W. R. McKINNEY Production Designed by RICHARD MacDONALD Director of Photography DAVID M. WALSH
Executive Producer IRWIN RUSSO Produced by AARON RUSSO Directed by ARTHUR HILLER
R RESTRICTED
SOUNDTRACK AVAILABLE ON Atlantic RECORDS AND CASSETTES
Featuring the music of ZZ TOP BOB SEGER JOE COCKER NIGHT RANGER 38 SPECIAL THE MOTELS FREDDIE MERCURY IAN HUNTER ROMAN HOLLIDAY ERIC MARTIN & FRIENDS

STARTS OCTOBER 5th AT THEATRES EVERYWHERE

"One person is very important; one person is very much." Come share with a person suffering mental illness. A variety of volunteer opportunities available from simply dropping in at weekly coffee hours to long term committments. We help with expenses.
Call or write
Amherst Apartments Program
31 Colonial Village
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
413-256-0711

A SUNDAY EXCURSION
Join us at North Leverett Baptist Church. Let someone else do the driving! Church bus leaves Southwest Horseshoe at 10:00 and Worcester at 10:10.
Coffee and donuts at 10:30
Church at 11:00.
ALL WELCOME!
Rev. Carl McConchie
549-6387

Campus Coin-Op
107 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst
next to Campus Auto & Carpenter Bros.
The newest, cleanest, coin-op in the area
Hours: Mon-Fri 8-10
Sat & Sun 8-7
Comfortable Chairs For Your Convenience
Come In And Check Our Everyday Low Prices For Additional savings, use this coupon
50¢ a wash
first 100 customers with this ad
limit one per customer
OFFER GOOD THRU OCT. 13

C & C LIQUORS
61 Main St., Amherst
FOR FREE DELIVERY OF $15 MINIMUM ORDER. (OFF UMASS CAMPUS)
Dial 253-3091
10% Senior Discounts Except on Specials

C & C coupon
10% OFF All Imported Beer
with this coupon
Beer on Special Not Included
Coupon Good Thru Oct. 6, 1984

Bud	case	Riunite
Bud Lite	12 oz.	Red-White-Rose
Miller	loose	1.5 Liter
Miller Lite	$10.95 + dep.	$4.75

All Specials In-Store Cash Prices
Hurry! Prices Good Thru 10/6/84

California Cooler $3.49 4 pk

Ballentine Beer 12 pk $3.35 + dep.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
DEPARTMENT OF THEATER
presents

Eugene O'Neill's
DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS
October 11 13 17 20
Into the harsh but beautiful New England countryside O'Neill weaves a powerful tale of love lust, and murder. One of the world's greatest tragedies by one of America's greatest playwrights

William Shakespeare's
A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM
December 6-8, 12-15
Spend a summer night in December at the Rand Theater. Warm yourself with one of Shakespeare's most hilarious comedies replete with a procession of mis-matched lovers and frolicking faeries, kings, and queens, in the most bewitched forest you will ever visit

All Curtains are at 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

SUBSCRIBE NOW AND Save 25% off ticket prices

Please clip and mail to: Rand Theater Tickets, Fine Arts Center Box Office, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

YES, I WANT TO SAVE 25%! ON MY TICKETS
NAME STREET
CITY STATE PHONE
I wish to order ____ Rand Theater subscriptions at $9.00 each and ____ student, senior citizen subscriptions at $4.00 each for the following dates (please indicate one date for each production)
DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS October 11 12 13 17 18 19 20
A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM December 6 7 8 12 13 14 15
Enclosed please find my check for $____ made payable to Fine Arts Center Box Office
You may charge subscription to my MASTERCARD or VISA Acct. #
Expiration Date Signature
Patrons with discounted tickets must show appropriate ID at the door

PHONE YOUR MASTER CARD VISA ORDER IN TODAY AT (413) 545-2511 Toll-Free 1-800-243-4842

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor	John O'Connell	Black Affairs Editor	Yadira Betances
Business Manager	Andrew May	Women's Issues Editor	Rebecca Thatcher
Business Manager	Elizabeth Young	Arts Editor	Christine D. Marini
Production Manager	Mark Roden	Sports Editor	Peter Abraham
Executive Editor	Rita Murphy	Photo Editor	Andrew J. Heller
News Editor	Greg Brown

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

The latest get-rich scheme

Daniel J. White

I've discovered a great new way to get rich quick with only a minimum of effort. No, really. I'm going to find a famous person who has died recently and write a cheap expose about him or her. It will include all of their sleazy love affairs, gross drug abuses, decadent Hollywood parties, and whatever else I can think up at the time. I could even add a part about how I was personally involved with the deceased, thereby laying claim to part of the inheritence. Yes, this idea is looking better and better all the time.

And it's not like no one will believe it, either. I read an article recently in a highly respected tabloid which claimed that scientists, using sonar, have discovered a mermaid colony in the Atlantic. It seems that these mermaids are responsible for all the mysterious plane and ship disappearances that we have been attributing to flying saucers. Well, you coulda knocked me down with a feather. If people will believe that, they'll believe anything.

Why should I write for a living when I can write cheap, ridiculous trash like that? Answer: I shouldn't.

To this end I've decided to write a "John F. Kennedy Conspiracy" book. I believe it was done by an organization of the people who thought he was involved in Marilyn Monroe's death: You see, Kennedy ordered John Lennon to bump off Marilyn, since they both belong to the Famous Johns against Famous Marilyns Society of America, a club so secret that only I've hallucinated it, and that was during a severe acid flash back on the Mass Pike a couple of days ago. When the Ordinary People Hired by the KGB Who Like Famous Marilyns Society of America found out about it, they must have nailed them both, along with Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr., to confuse the authorities. See how it all fits in so nicely?

And who was that woman in the car in Ted Kennedy's car that night at Chapaquidic? Maybe they dug up Marilyn's body so the authorities couldn't have it exhumed for further testing. And if that's true, whose body did they replace it with? Jimmy Hoffa's? After all these years, could he still pass for a voluptuous blonde? Maybe the woman was a rubber blow-up doll stuffed with the missing Nixon tapes. But then why would a Democrat be helping a Republican? What did Nixon know? What could be so terrible? How come these questions weren't brought out at the trial? Was there a cover up?

Who really shot J.R.? Did Roger Healy resent his success after leaving the space program? Was it Genie's sister? Just what was her real name and why is it such a closely-guarded secret? Why is Cheryl Tiegs doing clothing for Sears? Is she hard-up for money? Is someone blackmailing her? Who? Why? I want answers.

I've got more questions. What ever happened to the killer bees? Did they stop in Mexico and drink the water? Did Immigration get them? Why is it you always get a zit on your forehead right before a haircut? And why is it that when you finally get a grip on that one booger that's been bothering you all day, someone walks in the room and sees you?

I feel the American public has a right to know the answers to these questions and more like them, and I have a right to make money from that. However, I won't get ridiculous. After all, I have a journalistic integrity to uphold.

Daniel J. White is a Collegian correspondent.

Letters to the Editor

Learn to get the facts right

Although I must commend Martha Nelson, Lisa Trocki et al (Monday's Collegian) for writing a letter concerning their displeasure over the removal of Cosmoparody, from the University Bookstore while Playboy, Penthouse, and Playgirl remain for sale, I must also point out that thier reply is uninformed and incorrect.

Firstly, the Board of Governors did not decide to ban Cosmoparody, as these women state in their opening sentence. The BOG simply cannot decide to ban anything, they can only make recommendations, unless they wish to initiate a lawsuit, which they have not done.

Secondly, how do these women draw the conclusion that the BOG is more concerned with profit margins than the "objectification and oppression of women?" It's the Bookstore that would seem concerned with profit margins, considering the fact they pulled Cosmoparody off the shelves.

Do these women honestly believe that the BOG wants to see the Bookstore make money instead of petitioning for the removal of offensive printed material? If, in fact, they do believe this, then why don't they try to get on the BOG or give them some constructive input?

And lastly, why is it that this "material (is) insulting and degrading to women"? Are they saying that men are not insulted or degraded in Playgirl? Or is it only women that are degraded in these magazines?

Obviously, pornography insults and degrades both men and women, although women are used more often than men. Is this too complicated a point for these women to recognize?

Please people, if you're upset about something enough that you wish to confront it on the opinion page, do a little homework first so you don't confuse an issue further.

Larry Bouchie
Collegian staff

Making dreams into reality

David P. Carney

Members of the Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Men's Counseling Collective, Peoples' Gay Alliance and the Lesbian Union have struggled a long time to let people know that there are happy, openly lesbian, bisexual and gay people on campus. When we receive harassing, life-threatening telephone calls and our posters are defaced and destroyed, we struggle to remain optimistic — we take these incidents as signs that we are having an effect on campus. This is crazy because it denies the seriousness of our oppression. However, recent attempts to cut our groups' funding have turned the focus of controversy about sexuality back to those displaying their homophobia.

Two weeks ago at the Undergraduate Student Senate meeting I had been struggling to understand and articulate why two presumably heterosexual men would strike out against so-called "sexual preference groups" when our heterosexual allies stood up and explained such insecure behavior. I was struggling with my own racist guilt in order to understand how one man's history of oppression as a minority exempted him from being heterosexist (a form of oppression, like racism, but directed against lesbians, bisexuals and gay men) when our Third World allies courageously showed me that it did not. I was terrified to stand before the Senate as an openly gay man. I worried for a number of reasons: first, that I would be beaten up on my way home from the meeting, secondly, that I would be heard as speaking for all lesbian, bisexual and gay people, and third that I would be unable to say anything that could combat the years of myths, stereotypes and lies about homo- and bisexuality, and sexuality in general, that we've all been exposed to. There are an incredible number of lesbian, bisexual, gay men and our heterosexual allies who have been in a deep sleep about our oppression. The reality is that these discriminatory acts have, like other incidents of harassment, unsettled our sleep, leading us to dream of a better life.

However it is clear that there is a lot left to learn before we are all free to live out our own unique orientations fully. For me it has become clear that oppression of different groups is distinct but not separate. I am learning that I won't be able to meet safely with gay friends unless I commit myself to ending Oduro's cruel experience of racism, and Loomer who didn't bring his own criticisms about the issue to the Senate floor. I'm learning that I can't look to my Jewish friends for support if I go to meetings on their religious holidays. I'm learning that lesbian, bisexual and gay student organizations cannot exist independently and that we must work for acceptance and understanding with the entire University community. I'm learning that we can't expect the support of women if we don't work to create more space for women to speak at SGA meetings. I'm learning that many heterosexual males long to give up their rigid ways if I work on believing in them and don't anticipate their hostility. I'm learning that in order to expect handicapped people at the SGA meetings I have to spread the word that the bottom floor of the Campus Center is accessible. I am learning that I can't expect understanding from my lover and floormates if I don't explain how I need support.

Obviously this is overwhelming for one person or even three small groups, but fortunately other lesbian, bisexuals, gay men and our heterosexual allies are coming forward to take on their share of contradicting this culture's heterosexist programming. Together we are discovering that we need a SCERA Heterosexism Awareness Trainer and Office of Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Student Affairs. We need radio shows to play homo- and bisexually oriented music. We need more courses that educate about the oppression of heterosexism. We need stories of our people who have struggle and survived in every culture, in every country throughout history. A few of us have already awakened and begun turning our dreams into reality. The interconnections among our oppressions will become more complex as each new person publicly joins the struggle. We know that we must work out the misunderstandings among us to find our strength. One of the beauties in the struggle to end oppression is that we are challenged to accept ourselves. After such a long, restless sleep we are impatient to share our dreams of freedom and social justice, and to hear yours. Together we can make them real.

David P. Carney is a UMass student.

Television, the brain drain

Over the weekend, I psyched myself into doing a lot of work. Any type of work so long as I kept busy and active. But then I walked to the den and turned on the TV for a second just for a quick distraction. There must have been something wrong with the channel, for I turned and turned and all I could find were football games. I stopped at one that had some significance for me. It was the Pats against the N.Y. Jets. Tony Eason looks like a teenager. Something about his head — it looks like it's on slightly lopsided. He was playing well, though.. I didn't the announcer. He didn't have the flowing voice suited for TV, so I figured that he probably was a former football player. He was starting to grate on my nerves and I thus hoped that he'd succomb to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Anyways, at around 3:30 p.m. I started telling myself that after the next play, I had better get to work or else I would have to go to my room without any dinner. What a hardass I was. But Eason had made such a nice pass that I had to see if the Patriots could convert this drive into a touchdown.

Pretty soon I began feeling like a beached whale. I mean, I couldn't move or do anything. It's like there were little gremlins in the TV forcing me to watch. I was held prisoner. I even watched the commercials. Boy, there are a lot of stupid ads on TV nowadays, but I watched all of them, without even turning the channel. I just sat there, mouth agape, as a montage of images flashed by, of cute little stupid babies on a diaper commercial, of a moronic and obnoxious waitress on a paper towel commercial, and of more stupid babies on some other commercial that I couldn't even make out; all the while, a thick fog of ennui started to settle in. I even noticed that drool had started dripping from my mouth. Boy, was I exhausted. As a dose of strong medicine, I sent myself straight to bed without any dinner, except for a few chicken wings and a piece of chocolate cake. It served me right, so don't tell me otherwise.

Which leads me to the point of all this — a very moralistic message. Before you say "Egad, not another schlepp trying to impose his bombastic views on me, just listen. You may even agree: The very biggest enemy of the college student is not the atom bomb, nor is it zits, It's television. T.V. not only captivates you, but it addicts you and thoroughly drains you of all your energy and then lobotomizes you. Studies on rats have shown that after watching TV they couldn't perform sexually. Besides, except for the A-Team, there's nothing on TV anyways. So what I'm trying to tell you is that TV is not good for you and you should curb this depraved habit. And choose a more worthwhile past-time like reading or something.

Tom Goldman is a UMass student.

Arts

CINEMASCOOP

by Count Ramin Zahed

Sally Field. Sally Field. Sally Field. Boy, can she act. I had the opportunity of seeing Places in the Heart last Wednesday. Let me tell you one thing: Miss Field gives one of the best performances of the year. She is almost as good as Fonda in The Grapes of Wrath. The film itself hits you straight in the heart with its honest portrayal of a family during the Depression. Perhaps it was because of the flu, but we were all sniffling silently in the dark. The kids in this movie are some of the most natural children I have seen in cinema. Eat your heart out Drew.

The new Sidney Lumet movie, Garbo Talks, promises to be the comedy hit of the season. The film stars the priceless Anne Bancroft as an eccentric New Yorker who forces her son to find the reclusive Garbo. This is actually Lumet's thirty-first film shot in the streets of New York.

If you are leaving the area for Columbus Day weekend, you will miss a great opportunity to see one of my all time favorite movies. Children of Paradise (Les Enfants Du Paradis) is having its annual showing at the Pleasant St. Theatre. This beautiful masterpiece by Marcel Carne is about life in the Parisian street threatres after the French Revolution. Some of the scenes in this movie will stay with you as long as you live. Believe me, it is worth many a screening.

The Academy of Music is having the area premiere of an excellent British film called Another Country. This cross between Chariots of Fire and Brideshead Revisited takes a picturesque look at the school days of two Eton preppies during the thirties. Posh and pretty, eh?

By the way, last week's biggest joke was Brooke Shields' statement on the David Letterman show. "I only get an allowance of twelve dollars." Sure, Brooke, and I bet you really earned all those A's last semester by means of endless hours of studying. We love you anyway, as long as you take more acting lessons at Princeton.

This weekend Hampshire Mall witnesses the opening of the Nick Nolte and Jobeth Williams movie called Teachers. The first half of this film about the public education system is said to be effective and funny at the same time. However, the second half reportedly vanishes as fluff romance. Also, El Norte and Eating Raoul will be playing at the Amherst Cinema this week.

Local Loser: Charles Bronson's last movie, The Evil That Men Do is stupid beyond words. If meaningless violence is your cup of tea, you will be in ecstasy. Otherwise, you are better off feeding fig newtons to the swans in the pond.

Killer Question: Marcie Moskowitz did not get the answer right last week. David Bowie is said to be working with Bette Davis. This week's prize, a brand new How to Jitterbug book and record will be awarded to the first person who can answer this question: Jack Nicholson and director John Huston are teaming up in a thriller called Prizzi's Honor: what is the last movie they collaborated on?

Weekend Winner: If you are too cold to go out and would like to sit home and watch TV, I have just the thing for you. Murder, She Wrote is a new who-dun-it in the tradition of Agatha Christie from the people who gave us Columbo. Angela Lansbury stars as the sweet lady from Maine who solves a mystery every week on Sunday nights. She stole my heart from the very first episode.

Have a crisp Columbus Day weekend and remember, only nine more days till Winnie-the-Pooh's birthday.

Theater news

This is a listing of theater productions at the other area colleges during October.

HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE

Light Shining in Buckinghamshire by Caryl Churchill will be presented on October 4, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11, 12 and 13 at 8:00 p.m. in Emily Dickinson Hall. For further information call 549-4600, ext. 351, 1:00-5:00 p.m. weekdays.

AMHERST COLLEGE

Hamlet by William Shakespeare will be presented on October 19, 20, 25, 26 and 27 at 8:00 p.m. in the Kirby Theater. Box office opens Monday Oct. 8. General admission $4.00; students and senior citizens $2.00. Amherst College students free with I.D. For reservations call 542-2277 from 1-5 weekdays.

SMITH COLLEGE

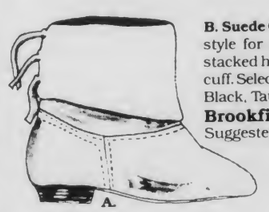
Moliere's The School for Wives will be performed on October 25, 26, 27, 31 and on November 1, 2 and 3 at 8:00 p.m. in Theatre 14. It is a story of female rebellion and a marriage antimanual. General admission is $4.00; students and senior citizens: $2.00. For reservations call 584-3023, weekdays 12:30-4:30 p.m.

Musical Chairs, a musical play in two acts by Barry Berg, Ken Donnelly and Tom Savage with music and lyrics by Tom Savage will be presented on November 1, 2, and 3 at 8:00 p.m. in Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre. Admission: $2.00. For reservations call 584-3023, weekdays, 12:30-4:30 p.m.

Good Looks And Affordable To Boot!

Leave Summer and head into Fall with Brookfield Shoe's most-wanted styles at low, low prices.

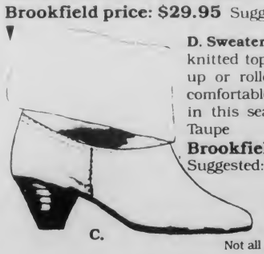
A. Suede Cuff Boot, slip on a pair and walk in style with a flat heel and an adjustable cuff—perfect for any outfit, in all the right colors: Taupe, Grey, or Black.
Brookfield price: $27.95 Suggested: $33



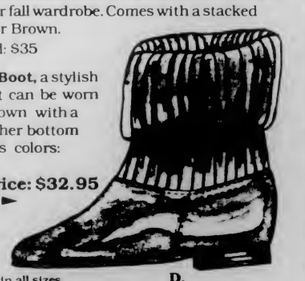
B. Suede Cuff Boot, the perfect style for day or night with a stacked heel and an adjustable cuff. Select from new fall colors: Black, Taupe, or Wine.
Brookfield price: $28.95
Suggested: $34

A. B.

C. Suede and Leather Cuff Boot, the perfect combination of a leather bottom and suede shaft add the finishing touch to your fall wardrobe. Comes with a stacked heel and fashionable colors: Black, Grey, or Brown.
Brookfield price: $29.95 Suggested: $35



D. Sweater Top Boot, a stylish knitted top that can be worn up or rolled down with a comfortable leather bottom in this season's colors: Taupe
Brookfield price: $32.95
Suggested: $37



C. D.

Not all styles in all sizes.

We offer a wide selection of first quality, in-season famous brands at factory direct prices.

Northampton
Hamp Plaza
(in the Big Y Shopping Plaza)
Telecheck
9:30 a.m.-9 p.m. Mon.-Sat.
12-5 p.m. Sunday

Brookfield Shoe Company
A factory outlet

amc THEATRES
$2.25 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW
HOLYOKE MALL AT HADLEY 534-2222
Purple Rain
STEVE MARTIN LILY TOMLIN
ALL OF ME
It's Casual
The Wild Life
GHOSTBUSTERS
BILL MURRAY DAN AYKROYD
HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7556
CHARLES BRONSON
The Evil That Men Do
THE KARATE KID
SAMMY AND ROSIE GET LAID
Irreconcilable Differences
TEACHERS
THE CITIC LATE SHOWS!
FRI & SAT at 12:15 SEATS $ 3.50
ROCKY HORROR
PINK FLOYD THE WALL
AC DC LET THERE BE ROCK
MONTY PYTHON'S MEANING OF LIFE

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting, plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

VALLEY CHURCH OF CHRIST
SUNDAY 10:00 A.M.
PEOPLES INSTITUTE
GOTHIC STREET,
NORTHAMPTON
586-5044

Black Affairs

BCP and AHORA recognize efforts with awards

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Thirty six people received awards in recognition of their efforts and commitment made to the Bilingual Collegiate Program and AHORA during their continuous struggle for survival at the University of Massachusetts last night at the Student Union Building.

Among those receiving award for their support to BCP were pioneers instrumental in implementing the program.

BCP's alumni association awarded Benjamin Rodriguez, director since 1974, for his commitment to the program.

Linda Velazques, AHORA's present leader read Gov. Dukakis's proclamation making Oct. 5 AHORA's Anniversary day.

Delphine Quarles, multi-cultural program consultant at the Student Activities Office was recipient of AHORA's special award.

"We had too many problems, too many doubts, but a triumph was created...we created our program," Edmundo Velazques, a former AHORA president said.

AHORA, the Latin Student Organization at UMass was created in 1971 by students who sought to uplift the Latino race by means of education. AHORA students created the BCP with the help and support of administration and community leaders.

BCP's director Dr. Benjamin Rodriguez at the BCP/AHORA awards ceremony last night at the SUB.

Alberto Guzman, Maria E. Sotolongo, Dr. Pauline Callins from the University Library, Dean William Fields, Luis Fuentes and Sonia Nieto from the School of Education among others received awards for remaining steadfast amid BCP's tough moments.

"I like the University better because BCP is here," Dean Fields said.

Federico Bid, executive director of the Spanish American Union, Father Joseph Quigley, director of the Newman Center, Senator Linda McConia and Senator Edward Bowland were also awarded for their continuous support of the program and bilingual students.

"You are the real hero and heroines of our days," Father Quigley said.

Big plans for Cape Verdeans ahead

By KIMBERLY BURGE
Collegian Correspondent

The Cape Verdean Student Alliance (CVSA) at the University of Massachusetts has big plans for the Cape Verdean students on campus and in the community.

"This is a very important time for Cape Verdeans,"said Ray Almeida, public relations officer from the embassy of Cape Verde,when he spoke to the Cape Verdean Student Alliance at their weekly meeting.

He told the students they are part of a process. "Every time I look at each of you, I see a part of my past as well as my future." Almeida said.

He was very pleased to learn that many of the Cape Verdean students are studying the sciences such as engineering,computers, and pre-med. In the past, Cape Verdean students have studied subjects such as psychology and English. Almeida said.

The CVSA has many plans for the University and the community to become more acquainted with Cape Verdean culture. Included in the plans are a center for Cape Verdean studies, an exchange program that would allow students from Cape Verde to attend the University, and they are trying to find a way for the country to deal with the University directly.

On July 5, 1985 Cape Verde will celebrate its 10th year of independence from Western colonial rule. The CVSA is making plans for a festival to help celebrate the event. Delegations from all 17 Cape Verdean countries will attend.

There are also plans to invite Cape Verdean engineering and technical to meet with Cape Verdeans who are successful in those fields.

The meeting concluded with Almeida saying this, "You are going to need each other when you leave this university. Find some way to form solidarity with each other and make this family work for you."

Students display talent at exhibit

MARANN CASSELL
Collegian Staff

A student art exhibit opened Wednesday at Wheeler Dormitory Gallery at the University of Massachusetts as part of the Bilingual Collegiate Program and AHORA's anniversary celebration.

The six artists are Angelina Phelan, Ruth Arroyo, Orland Cardona, Luis Melendez, and Americo Rebello.

In each artists work there is a strong message of struggle for the awaking of a new age.

Cardona displayed the "figure with iron." He furthered his theme by painting "the life," this time he has a baby at the bottom of a stairs and an old man at the top.

His work was very strong in conveying his message. He used oil and acrylic to bring out feelings in his work.

"When I paint, I try to make my subject so clear that the message can be reached to the public," Cardona said.

Melendez has more of a graphic style, most of his works are edging and collages. He deals with the struggle of people of Latin America: single parent older women and children.

He's very sensitive to the environment around us so when he draws every line is meaningful, he said.

His work is very strong and conveyed deep feelings for the Carribeans, Latin Americans, Cape Verdians, and many of the developing nations.

Arroyo is an artist who deals with crayon, chacoal and ink. She started to take her work seriously at the age of 16, and she made a wise decision because she has a strong movement of line work that captures the emotions of the subjects.

Rebello, has a strong architectural features shown through his art. He did "10:45," "Her Violet Eyes," and "I am this many years old." His work is very strong an to the point. Most of his ideas are from magazines and photographs.

El Norte educates on politics

By MARANN CASSELL
Collegian Staff

When you hear of a movie such as El Norte, you immediately think of a foreign film and that it has got to be good. El Norte is the first independently American made epic and is destined to become a elassic in its genre, and indeed is good.

El Norte is a film that deals with politics in the most unbiased manner. It is not the anti-Americanism we see in the film such as "Stage of Seige". Rather it is a moving story of Rosa and Enrique Xuncaz, a brother and sister from the Mayan highlands of Guatemala, whose parents are killed, by army troops and like so many people of the developing nations they had to flee their country.

The film has many sad moments and yet joyful ones, too. The richness of the culture, communities, and the language, all helps to become involved with the characters.

In the beginning of the film, the characters are speaking in their Mayan language, and as they travel through Mexico, the language changes to a more Mexican style. When they reach the north, they begin to learn English. The movie and the language takes the viewer through the hardship these two young people face with in their young lives.

They are faced with the realities as they arrived to the North. Things are just not what they were told. They are faced with immigration problems and the struggle for survival. This film makes one change their feelings about people who enter the north with undocumented papers.

The hardship and struggle one goes through to get here should at least guarantee their stay. After all when the pilgrims landed, the Indians did not ask them for their green card.

Although 80 percent of the film is in Spanish, and filmed in Mexico, and maybe classified as foreign film, it is made by two U.S. citizens, a husband and wife team, Anna Thomas and Gregory Nava. This may allow El Norte to be eligible for the academy awards.

People talk about BCP significance

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

For community people, alumnis, students and staff of the Bilingual Collegiate Program at the University of Massachusetts, this week's celebration is a dream come true.

"This is a triumph celebrating ten years of achievements," Jose Bou, financial aid counselor said.

"It's like a small ball that started rolling down the mountain and gained momentum and we are going to keep it rolling for one hundred more," Bou, a BCP alumni said.

Lucy Nguyen, one of BCP academic advisors said the celebration "is the beginning of a great era for BCP, the campus, and bilingual students."

Students who are foreigners, may have complexes, and confront prejudices, "but now they know there are people who know they (students) need help and people who care," she said.

Nguyen said the governor's recognition is "a good prize for him (Rodriguez) and BCP."

Nelson Acosta, recruitment coordinator feels both proud and honored to be part "of a very important and unique program."

Acosta, a BCP alumni, is now dedicated to the mission of the program to repay for the program's support he received when he was a student.

BCP was incepted while he was in high school and he owes his college career to the support and encouragement offered by BCP, he said.

"They taught me how to deal with the ropes," It's not easy for a person with a different culture to survive college, he said.

Gloria Ortiz, assistant director of financial aid considers BCP, "a home away from home. It is the key to launch them (students) for four years."

"I can't help to feel good when I see my people achieve so much," Gloria DeGuevera, director of educational access and outreach said.

"Seeing it grow makes me grow. It reaffirms my Puerto Rican heritage," DeGuevera said.

She said the program's recognition will raise the awareness of self-worth, as bilingual people for both the students and the community at-large.

"It will make them see us as respectable citizens contributing to society toward a common goal and common objectives," she said.

Chris Pile, of the New England Farmers Workers Council said the celebration is a marvelous one.

People unfamiliar to the program will become "aware of its existence, its influence services to the bilingual community," Pile said.

Sharon Marrero, a sophomore business major said she is happy and proud of being part of BCP.

"They are very nice and they help me a lot." Marrero has found in her counselor, "an advisor and a friend."

"The BCP is good for me and other Vietnamese students, " said Hiep Nguyen, an electrical engineering junior.

Nguyen said he has benefited for the resources and the counseling, both personal and academic. "We absolutely need BCP in this school."

Rosa Pereira, a human development senior said BCP has helped her "because its there."

Announcement

UHURU, the new performing arts ensemble at UMass, invites all interested dancers,actors, musicians, and singers to audition for their next production, Struggle for Memory: a Five College tribute to Black History Month.

Auditions will be held on Tuesday and Thursday, October 9th and 11th at 7:00 pm in the Hampden Dance Studio, Southwest Residential Area, UMass. Please come dressed and ready to perform. Callbacks will be on Tuesday, October 16th.

DANCE THE WEEKEND AWAY

Changes

(newly remodeled and under new management)

Dance to your Favorite Hits
while Experiencing the Finest Sound System in the Area

Friday and Saturday
Mixed Drinks - 99¢
2 Drafts for - 99¢ til 10 PM

$1. Cover (after 9 PM)

Changes Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284
Proper Identification Required

Friday Afternoon at Mikes
A HAPPY HOUR YOU CAN LIVE WITH
FOOD - ALL YOU CAN CARRY FOR $1.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Eggplant Parmesan
Sausages
Beef Stroganoff
Cold Cuts
Salads
Swedish Meatballs
Marinated Chicken
Beef Ribs
Chicken Caccitore
Spanish Rice
and more
tax and tip included

Get your money back.....here on campus

Nickel-Back
Student Redemption Service

REOPENING
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 9

Most cans and bottles available
at these sites:

WHERE	WHEN
Southwest...Hampden	C...5-7:30 Mon
Orchard Hill. Grayson Re	Rm. 5-7:30 Tues
Central.....Franklin	C.....5-7 Wed
Sylvan.....Brown Rec	Rm.....5-7 Thurs

PIZZA-RAMA

Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

CALL 253-3808
256-0115

FREE DELIVERY!
356 College Street, Amherst

Any Large Pizza	Any Med. Pizza	Any Small Pizza
3 FREE SODAS (cans)	2 FREE SODAS (cans)	1 FREE SODA (can) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons	when you place your order please tell us you have coupons	when you place your order please tell us you have coupons

Sport Style

Hooded 2-Tone Sweat-Shirt
19.95

Grey fleece body
Inset insulated sleeves
Sleeve colors
maroon
black navy

Lisa

photo by Dwayne Autery

mon-fri 9-5 Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

KEGS FOUR SEASONS ICE

WINES/LIQUORS

BEER SPECIALS - BEST PRICES

LITE	12 cans	$10.99
FALSTAFF	12 cans	$7.99
STROHS	12 cans	$9.99
BUSCH	12 cans	$8.99

6-PACK SPECIALS

DAB	$3.99	STEINHAUSER	$3.99
GUINESS	$3.99	MOOSEHEAD	$3.99

LIQUOR and WINE SPECIALS

VOLGA VODKA	1.75 L	$6.99
COLOMA COFFEE	with $8 rebate your cost	$3.00
CUTTY SARK	1.75 L	$19.99
VODKA and GIN	1.75 L	$7.99
CARLO ROSSI	4 L	$5.99
CHANTEFLUER	1.5 L	with rebate $3.99

WE DELIVER
584-8174
333 Russell Street (Route 9) Hadley, MA 01035
in front of the malls

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

IT CAME SPECIAL DELIVERY. MUST BE IMPORTANT.
IT'S FROM THE AGENCY.
FINALLY! THEY'RE ALL MOVED INTO THE NEW OFFICES AT THE WORLD TRADE CENTER! I START WORK ON MONDAY!
REALLY? HEY, WONDERFUL NEWS, MIKE! NO KIDDING! THE BEST!
IT SURE IS. SOMEBODY'S FINALLY BRINGING AN INCOME INTO THIS HOUSE
I KNOW. IT REALLY TAKES THE PRESSURE OFF ALL OF US.
IT DOES NOT, ZONKER!

Today's Weather

Cloudy start with sunny skies later. Windy and chilly with temperatures in the low 50's. Tonight, a visit from Jack Frost with the coldest temperatures yet in the 30's.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

YOUR MORTALITY! THE SANDS IN YOUR HOURGLASS! LIFE ISN'T FOREVER, YA KNOW!
YOU'RE WHO?
SO YOU GOT TO LIVE BEFORE YA DIE, SON! BUT LIKE EVERYBODY ELSE, YA WASTE ALL YOUR TIME! WHY? JUST LOOK AT THAT JUNK!
UNCONSTRUCTIVE TOYS! "TWISTED SISTER" RECORDS! STEPHEN KING NOVELS! COMIC BOOKS! YER WASTING YOUR LIFE! YER— SAY, WHAT'S THIS?
"BLOOM COUNTY"! GREAT...YA MIGHT AS WELL JUST FALL OVER DEAD RIGHT NOW!

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

NICENICE...VIC LEFT AN OPEN BEER ON THE DESK!
GLUG! GLUG! GLUG!
STING! YEAH, YOU SLIME-BALL... YOU DRANK THIS BEER. DON'T GIVE ME THAT INNOCENT LOOK.
I KNOW YOU'VE BEEN DRINKING - YOUR EYES ALWAYS GET BLOODSHOT.
I KNOW! I KNOW! I CAN NEVER FIND THE VISINE!

Gorde — by Gorde

NAH! THAT AUTHORESS THAT'S LOT MY "DERBECH MOMA"... LOTS LIKE "RE DOING MY LAUNDRY" OR "LESS LIKE" SHIRTS STARCHED WHAT!
BUT THAT'S HER!!!
I WILL GET YOU FOR THIS!!! I...SWEAR... ...VENGANCE!
SHE MAD?
A TAD!
SOON...
MANGO JAKE, YOU ARE SCUM! HA HA HA HA
WHAT'S SO FUNNY?

Yesthead — By Jason Talerman

head turning noises
Yesthead's head rises in the heat!
Splash cold water on me
Crystalhead looks up to yesthead but can he save him?!!
refrigeration?
Freakshow
Next: Climax... Excitement?

The Lab — by Law

YOU KNOW WEEGEE, IT'S TIME I WENT OUT IN THE FIELD AGAIN TO DO SOME SERIOUS RESEARCH.
GREAT! WHERE WILL IT BE THIS TIME? THE MOLDOVIAN ALPS? PAGO PAGO? THE ISTHMUS OF BROOKLYN?
MUCH MORE EXOTIC THAN THAT! AN ALL NIGHT SUPERMARKET! WE'LL SET UP A DUCK BLIND IN THE DELI SECTION.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Diplomat's forte
5 American actress Maude
10 "Upstairs, Downstairs" role
14 Brilliantly colored fish
15 Hackneyed
16 There: in Oviedo
17 A —— bagatelle
18 Capsize
20 Earth: old style
21 Social buds
22 Best
23 Regimens
25 Inclined (to)
26 Heavenly instrument
27 Scrutineer, in a way
32 Language of SE Asia
34 Chel's abbr
36 Eastern princess
37 Be on the payroll
38 Sir, in old India
40 Spanish or bounding
41 Listen, in Soho
43 Twining stem
44 Heap of money
45 Sinners
47 Soviet salt lake
49 Mao —— tung
50 Transport plane of the 1930's
53 Glacier sights
57 Easier said —— done
58 Snoop
59 Err while rowing
61 Ancient deity
62 On the briny
63 —— Never Walk Alone
64 Prefix with genarian
65 Cozy place
66 Carved stone pillar
67 Suppose, of yore

DOWN

1 Scholarly volumes
2 A silly act
3 Certain gamblers
4 Much-used article
5 Tries
6 Beats thoroughly
7 Tunes
8 Atlas abbr
9 Formations
10 School —— 11 Choir member
12 Things amiss
13 Thin down
19 Complete
21 German article
24 Prepared, as leather
25 "Ugly —— "
27 Rose's bane
28 Small Chinese boat
29 Slow progress
30 Eye, in Paris
31 Name for a garcon
32 Hem, in a way
33 Mata: the spy
35 Household guard's weapon
39 Can be trounced
42 Blaze
46 Compositions
48 —— Tin Tin
50 —— we dance
51 Carry-on vocally
52 Synthetic fabric
53 Consider nastily
54 Affluence
55 US hwys
56 Room to swing a ——
57 Straighten out
60 Extra bed
61 Rain follower

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

T	O	D	D		F	E	D	A	M	S		I	A	M	B
S	P	A	R		L	I	T	I	A	E		U	N	A	L
P	U	M	A		A	V	E	R	T		B	O	N	A
		S	P	L	I	T	O	N	E	S	S	I	D	E	S
				N	E	T			D	E	L	E	T	E
C	R	E	S	T	S		A	O	D	A
L	E	N	T	O		A	V	O	W		T	I	E	S
A	N	T	I		F	L	O	W	N		I	D	L	E
P	O	E	M		L	A	T	I	N		P	O	I	S	E
			U	P	A	N	O		C	E	N	T	E	R
S	E	I	L	E	R		A	A	R
P	L	E	A	S	E		S	O	A	P	S	U	N	C	H
I	S	N	T		D	A	N	T	E		I	R	I	S
T	I	D	E		U	T	T	E	R		N	E	R	O
S	E	A	S		P	E	E	R	S		A	W	E	D

10/5/84

10/5/84 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50

Saturday thru Tuesday
Oct. 6th thru 9th
7:20 Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders from Mars with David Bowie
9:00 Eating Raoul

DOWNTOWN AMHERST

D.C. Menu

Friday, Oct. 5

LUNCH
Fishburger on Roll
Turkey Divan

BASICS LUNCH
Fishburger on Roll
Pineapple Yogurt
Stuffed Peppers

DINNER
Baked Cod with Newburg Sauce
Cheese Lasagna with Tomato Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Baked Cod with Newburg Sauce
East West Lasagna

STOP

the Mini Store

Located in the Student Union

There's no need to hurry! Our convenient hours allow you to shop early or late.

Candy
Tobacco
Cards
Calendars
Cassette Tapes
Books
Backpacks
Clothing
Gifts
Cosmetics
Health & Beauty Aids

Film
Film Processing
Clocks
Batteries
Electrical Supplies
Lamps
Magazines
Memo Board
Pens and Pencils
Binders
Notebooks
Paper

Newspapers
Tote Bags
School Supplies
Typewriter Ribbons
Glassware
Cups
Decals
Pennants
Chips
Cookies
Popcorn
Umbrellas

Many other items available
545-2528

CONVENIENT HOURS
7:30 am - 10 pm Monday-Friday
8:30 am - 10 pm Saturday & Sunday

Heads up.
Register and Vote.

OCT. 1	WORCESTER DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 2	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 2:00 pm
OCT. 2	FRANKLIN DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 3	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 2:00 pm
OCT. 3	BERKSHIRE DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 4	HAMPSHIRE DC	4:30 pm - 6:30 pm
OCT. 9	CAMPUS CENTER	10:00 am - 12:30 pm

UMASS BIG VOTE '84

MASSPIRG SCERA SGA Third World Affairs Student Senate Frontlash MASSPIRG Northeast Area Gov't Peacemakers Public Policy Radical Student Union SCERA SGA Presidents Office SSAM Third World Affairs

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:

an evening with

"The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students, Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Now

UMass ID required with student ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center, and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Field hockey hosts U Maine

ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

Halfway through its 1984 season, the University of Massachusetts field hockey team has an impressive 7-1 record (including five shutouts), a national ranking of seventh, and a perfectionist.

The perfectionist is the coach Pam Hixon. While her team has enjoyed a good deal of sucess thus far, Hixon still looks for her team to get better right up until the team's final game on November 3. Hixon is simply a coach that refuses to rest on past laurels and strives to put an improved team on the field every game, including against Maine on Saturday at 11 at NOPE.

"As the season progresses we want to build certain phases of our game. By the end of the season we hope to have it all together. We want to be able to defend our goal, attack our opponents,and have our players using each other wisely in the general flow of the game," said Hixon.

So for UMass has handilly overpowered its opponents. Offensively, they have scored twenty-six goals, taken 218 shots, and drawn 128 penalty corners. Defensively, UMass has surrendered only four goals, thirty-eight shots, while opponents have been awarded twenty seven penalty corners.

Amherst Flics presents
Goodbye Girl
Fri, Sat, Sun
8 and 10 PM
$1.50 Merrill, Science Center
Amherst College

安城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 MAIN ST., AMHERST
BEER & WINE LICENSE
Fresh Vegetables from Our Own Farm
CLOSED WEDNESDAY
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTICIAL COLORING
253-7835

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

DELANO'S

OCTOBER SPECIAL
Twofer One
HEINEKEN
plus our original twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight
Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St. 253-5141

the Hungry U Restaurant

FANTASTIC HAPPY HOUR MUNCHIE MENU!

! HAPPY HOUR !
2 for 1 all bottled beer
2 in 1 well drinks
potato skins only $1.99
3 pm - 6 pm, 9 pm till closing
7 days per week
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

Yom Kippur Services
at
Chabad House
Friday and Saturday October 5 and 6

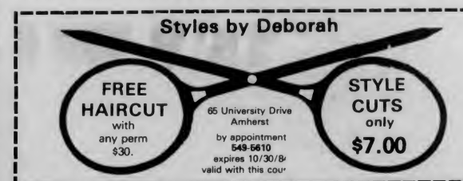
Kol Nidre	6:30 pm
Morning Services	10:00 am
Yizkor	12:30 pm
Mincha' & Neilah	4:30 pm
Break the Fast	7:30 pm

CHABAD HOUSE
where the services are traditional, the people are friendly and the atmosphere is great!
30 N. Hadley Rd. opp. Whitmore at UMass
253-9040

MAKEUP CAKES, GREASE PAINT, HAIR SPRAYS GELS, GLITTERS, BODY COLORS, LIPSTICKS STRAKS, CREAMS, THEATRICAL MAKEUP

Countdown to Halloween '84
21% OFF TODAY
the Halloween Shop at FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

Styles by Deborah



FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.

65 University Drive Amherst
by appointment 549-5610
expires 10/30/8
valid with this cou

STYLE CUTS only $7.00

C

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

AUTO FOR SALE

74 Mustang Ghia 4AT 73000 mi excellent conditions $1100 call 549-4716

74 Pontiac Venture 3 speed std no rust runs great call Steve eves 549-7818 850 or BO

1978 Suburu, four speed $1550. call 256-8467

Volks 73 runs great, need to sell now $750 firm. 548-1358 David

1972 Pinto runs great tiny rust spots $375 665-8318

Vege Wagon 78 new clutch, brakes, steering box. Body v. good 546-7068 ask for Tim keep trying

Dodge Darts, Plymouth Valients, Barracudas Swap Meet! This Saturday October 6 2-6 pm Mirage Garage 30 North Maple Florence 586-4582 classic cars on display free technical advice spare parts

1973 Dodge Charger Deluxe. Mechanically sound, AC, cloth interior, AM/FM cassette quadraphonic stereo, 82,000 orig. miles. VERY CLEAN AND DEPENDABLE CAR. BEST OFFER. 256-6335

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock-A-Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks. "MTV" video music call 548-7144

Rock A-Diac Rock-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-8712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0246 or 586-7689

FOR RENT

One and two bedroom apts On bus route cats okay. All utilities included. Wmsburg 268-3624 584-3095

FOR SALE

G + L F-100 electric guiter black w/case Excellent cond. $375 firm 549-2797

Synara 63X electric drum excellent condition $85 or BO 549-2797 after 6

1981 Pioneer HPM-600 stereo speekers excellent condition great sound! $140 call Andy 6-1140 after 9 PM

2 ten-speed bicycles for sale good condition, $85 each. Call 253-7975

Grateful Dead tickets Worc Centrum Oct 9 four available best offer Ed 546-7942

Digital Decwriter w/modem and paper ideal for Cyber 549-5218

TEAC 4-track reel-to-reel recorder $360.00 or best offer Dave 546-8316

KENYA BAGS FOR $30 will be back in the Concourse OCTOBER 4th & 5th

FOUND

Mens watch found in Hasbrouck 124 on Oct 1. To identify call 665-2470

Found one ball point pen call to identify 549-3631 Daphne

HELP WANTED

Computer programmer Part-time opening for person experienced with PDP-11 or VAX computers UNIX, or MACRO-11. Amherst-based company, developing communications and real-time control software, is looking for someone able to work part-time during the school year, with full-time employment during intersession and the summer. Excellent opportunity! For information call 549-6994

Housepeople wanted Homecooked meals in exchange for light kitchen cleanup call 545-2150 ask for Jim

Ambitious college student needed part time to organize a Rock and Art Fair. Very rewarding role. 536-3890 anytime

Government Jobs $16,559 - $50,553/year Now hiring. Your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext R-9616

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment 253-3088

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Gold Cross Necklace 10-2 please call 6-5191 reward equal to value of necklace very important

NATIONAL STUDENT EXCHANGE

NSE Students Club Meeting Weds Oct 10 Campus Center 168C 7-9 pm elections dues

PERSONALS

Help Wanted Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen for spring 86 and next academic year free room and board 15-20 hrs/wk at 4.25 applications available at: Butterfield Dorm Kitchen until Oct 19

Baby How U been? Get the whip out at midnight. Happy B-Day! I love you. JB

Linda "Fred" Crowley Happy Birthday Honey get psyched for a great day. I love you Michael

To a hard rockin honey from an ex-hon on 4 keep jammin, I miss you Toujours je t'adore

Earn 86-87 an hour delivering pizzas. Must have own reliable car, willing to work nights & weekends. Apply in person after 4:00 PM at Dominos Pizza across from Stop & Shop in Hadley

Linda Crowley Happy B day Hon you're a great roommate!! Love Ellen

Can we talk?!? Mary Porro about spring '84 phone bill Please call 6-1096 soon! Rachel

MQ How about breaking fast together? Have me for dinner. I'll bring dessert! Holly

Tim - Hope you have a Happy 18th, love, The U Mass Crew

Michael L Call Snow 253-9656

Seagate Boy call Snow 253-9656

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed accep tance Nancy 584-7924

REFRIGERATOR RENTAL

Refrigerator Rental 2 cubic ft R & P PACKAGE STORE free delivery 253-9742

ROOMMATE WANTED

Without a living-place? Still hope! Share my apartment at Northwood in Sunderland. Call 665-4284

SAFA

Student's Advocating Financial Assistance will hold the organizational introductory meeting Tues., Oct 9th CC 168, at 7 pm! NEW MEMBERS are ENCOURAGED to attend

SERVICES

Need a tutor? I can help! For more info call 665-4831 after 9:00

TRAVEL

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 Student/Budget Travel Agency Free catalog, call (617) 266-1926 or write, 729 Boylston St. Suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

Weekend in Montreal, Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer trading room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5128

VOCALIST WANTED

Vocalist wanted (M or F) to front working R & R band. Experienced, dedicated profes. sionals only please. 549-2797 256-9079 after 5 pm keep trying

WANTED

Female to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4586

Dead Tickets wanted call 546-6153

I need any extra Dead tickets you have call JR 253-7622

Needed two Grateful Dead tickets for Virginia and N. Carolina call Jim 549-1727

Sports

No passing fancy:

Ehrhardt primed for UMass, Minutemen must improve offense

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

"If we want to beat Rhode Island, it comes down to the pass,"said University of Massachusetts football coach Bob Stull. "We have to stop their air attack and get ours going." The Minutemen, 2-2, will be facing one of the nation's hottest quarterbacks in URI's Tom Ehrhardt, a 6-3 transfer from C.W. Post who threw 410 yards and five touchdowns last week as the Rams crushed Brown, 34-13.

Ehrhardt garnered ECAC and Yankee Conference offensive player player of the week awards for his performance and presents a major problem for the Minutemen secondary.

In four games, the Minutemen have given up 922 yards through the air (230.5 a game). Opponents have averaged 4.8 yards a play against UMass.

Stull is quick to point out that the team has faced some of Division 1 AA's top passers like Lehigh's Marty Horn and Holy Cross' Peter Muldoon, but Ehrhardt, as far as pure passing goes, may be better than both.

"We'll try some things, blitz him a lot, and use Carlos Silva as a fifth defensive back," said Stull. "They don't run a lot (URI uses a one back, two tight end offense) and, like the other teams we've played, I expect them to pass a lot. Again, the secondary has to play well for us to win."

When they have the ball, UMass has managed to move downfield, but can not make the big play.

Junior quarterback Jim Simeone is 49 for 117 (.419 percent) with no touchdown passes and four interceptions. He has been victimized by several dropped balls (including a dropped TD against Northeastern last Saturday in UMass' 3-0 win), and Stull expects his quarterback to rebound.

"It's not all Jimmy's fault, " said Stull. "It's been the whole offense. When we had the ball at the Northeastern seven last week, we killed ourselves with a stupid offsides and then a dropped TD. If we minimize these errors, we'll get into our offense a little more and score some points."

A bright spot for the offense was the play of junior tailback George Barnwell. The speedster rushed for 121 last week against NU and has 310 for the season. Fullback Frank Fay has 262 yards to go along with three TDs. Both average 4.6 yards per carry.

As far as point production goes, the Minutemen have scored only ten points in the first two quarters of all four games. The Minutemen seem to be a fourth quarter team as evidenced by the 30 points they've scored in the final 15 minutes.

"We have to score early against URI and probably keep scoring, " said Stull, who's team has gone from a 26 point opening game effort against Ball State to a 14 point game (Lehigh), a seven point game (Holy Cross) and a three point game (Northeastern).

"It's a dangerous progression," said Stull with a nervous laugh. "We will open it up a little more against URI hopefully with good results."

The game will mark the Yankee Conference debut for the Minutemen. URI is 1-0 in the league by virtue of its 27-0 rout of Maine. UMass dominated this series seven straight victories between 1974 and 1980.

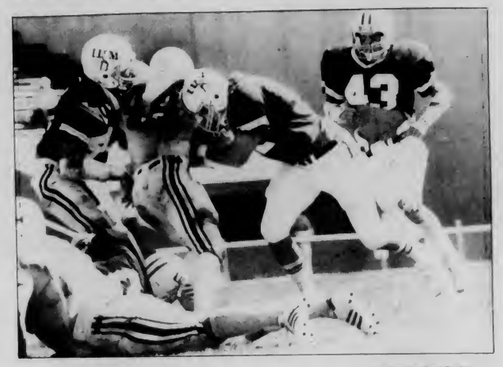
The UMass defense, anchored by the linebackers and nose guard Peter Tracy, will have to get a good rush on Ehrhardt to keep the URI signal caller from getting at the UMass secondary. Freshman punter Jim Tandler (43.0 average) should be able to keep URI deep in their own territory.

Although no starters have been changed, Stull made some second string switches after the Northeastern game. Tandler is now the back up cornerback after being removed from quarterback and split end, junior Bob Shelmire will sub for Fay in place of freshman Ted Barrett. Jim Earle will continue to start at split flanker with John Crowley backing him up.

Right tackle Mike Briggs is still hampered by a shoulder injury and Bob Greaney will start in his place.

"We've got our work cut out for us," said Stull. "URI is a fine team and they can pass, they may be the best passing team in the conference. It all comes down to that, passing. We've got to, and not let them, it's that simple."

Or that complicated.



Collegian by Dave Deuber

Lehigh's Peter Schreck (44) gets wrapped up by the UMass defense in a game earlier this season. UM faces URI on Saturday.

UMass vs. URI

Where: Meade Stadium, Kingston, RI
When: Saturday at 1:30 p.m.
The Latest Line: URI by 9½
The records: UM: 2-2, URI: 4-1
The Series: 28-28-1
Last season: URI defeated UMass 13-3
Injuries: UM: Mike Briggs (OT), shoulder, will not play. URI: Jim Donnelly (P and backup TE), knee, will not play.

Men's soccer hosts tourney, spikers face NU

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The UMass Soccer Invitational will be the highlight this weekend as the 12th ranked nationally and first ranked in New England Minutemen host Northeastern University, Hartford and St. Anselms on Boyden Field, while many other UMass sports teams also are in action.

The booters (5-2-2)play Northeastern Saturday at 1:00 p.m., while Hartford plays at St. Anselms because of scheduling difficulties, with the losers playing in a consolation game Sunday at noon and the winners squaring off for the tournament championship at 3:00 p.m.

"We'll see if we're a good team in our ability to come back after a loss," said UMass coach Jeff Gettler. " The big test is if we come back and play well against Northeastern Saturday. We were riding high all season, and now they feel bad after a loss. If we can win, those things disappear and we'll be back where we were."

Northeastern is a unique team in that they have not had a varsity soccer program in 53 years. They played as a club and off-season in amateur leagues, and in their only contest thus far,defeated Lowell,2-0. Coach Winston Smith, who is a graduate student has recruited a good amount of foreign players and Coach Gettler expects them to be a good team.

Hartford is undefeated at 8-0-1 and ranked sixth in New England, while St. Anselms at 3-2 1 is ranked number eight among Division II schools in New England. Gettler and his squad are happy to be beck at the friendly comfines of Boyden Field.

Saturday is a big day for the UMass volleyball team. The spikers invade Boston to take on Northeastern University, who is ranked #1 in the Northeast.

UMass is ranked #5.

" This is a very big weekend for us", said coach Elaine Sortino. " We really have our sights on doing well."

To do well, the spikers are going to rely on the serving and defensive consistency that has carried them through the season. This means Sally Maher is going to have to hit well on Saturday, and Mickey Barys, Debbie Cole, and Patti Grant must hit the serves that have been a trademark as of late.

On Saturday, at 11 a.m. the men's cross country team (0-2-1) hosts the University of Connecticut (3-2-0).

While UMass' top runner, John Panaccione, is still recovering from an ankle injury, coach Ken O'Brien is hoping to get solid efforts from his sophomore trio of Jan Novack, Paul Stanislawzik and Wayne Levy.

The UMass women's cross country team will also be home on Saturday, entertaining Northeastern University.

The Minutemen defeated the Huskies last season by a 23-33 score, but the Boston-based team defeated the Minutemen by ten points in the Rhode Island Invitationals a few weeks earlier.

The University of Massachusetts water Polo team begins the crucial phase of their season this weekend as they travel to Harvard to compete in the first of two league tournaments. In addition to the host team, the Minutemen will also be facing Columbia, Yale, M.I.T., and Brown.

UMass 'coach Russ Yarworth has developed a deeper bench than he had in the beginning of the season. " Now that the younger guys have more experience," said Yarwoth, " I don't have to keep the same guys in there for the entire game."

Paul McNeil and Mike Hoover (12 goals each in their last four games) will once again be the big guns for the Minutemen.

Both men's and women's tennis teams are also in action as the men coming off a 6-3 loss to Albany State yesterday, which dropped their record to 2-2, travel to Harvard today and Saturday to take part in the New England Tennis Tournament. The women continue an earlier match against Smith today at Smith today at 3 p.m. on the NOPE courts, that was postponed because of darkness. They then travel to Burlington Saturday to take on the University of Vermont.

Also contributing to this story were Roger Chapman, Chris Tremblay, Mike Levine, Bryan Quenzel and Alistair Attwood.

Collegian's NFL picks

The sports staff of the Collegian are getting just too good at picking these games, so to make it just a tad tougher, sports editor Peter Abraham has instituted picking against the spread. The crafty Scott Hood still leads the overall race with a fine 38-17 record. Both Abraham and Hood recorded 10-4 weeks as did the very agile Tony "The Iron Sheik" Betros. As for Gerry deSimas...

			Peter Abraham (36-19)	Tony Betros (37-18)	Kevin DeLuca (34-21)	Scott Hood (38-17)	Gerry deSimas (31-24)
Buffalo	1	Philly	Philly	Buffalo	Buffalo	Buffalo	Buffalo
Chicago	3	NO	Chicago	Chicago	NO	Chicago	Chicago
Cinn.	8	Houston	Houston	Cinn	Houston	Cinn.	Houston
Dallas	6½	St. Lou	Dallas	Dallas	St.Lou	Dallas	St.Lou
Detroit	4	Denver	Denver	Denver	Denver	Denver	Denver
KC	1½	N.Y. Jets	Jets	KC	Jets	KC	KC
Raiders	2½	Seattle	Raiders	Raiders	Seattle	Raiders	Raiders
Rams	1½	Atlanta	Atlanta	Rams	Rams	Rams	Rams
Miami	5½	Pitts.	Pitts	Miami	Miami	Miami	Miami
NE	1	Clev.	NE	NE	Cleveland	NE	NE
SD	1½	G. Bay	SD	SD	SD	SD	SD
T. Bay	1	Minn	TB	T.Bay	Minn	Minn	Minn
Wash.	8	Indy	Wash	Wash	Wash	Wash	Indy
SanFran	3½	NY Giants	SanFran	SanFran	NYG	SanFran	SanFran

Weekend sports at a glance

UMass schedule:

Today:
There are no games scheduled.
Saturday:
Football, at URI, 1:30 p.m.
Field Hockey: Maine, at NOPE, 11 a.m.
Soccer; UMass Invitationals at Boyden Field, all day.
Women's Cross Country: Northeastern, 11 a.m.
Water Polo: at League Tourney at Harvard
Volleyball; at Northeastern 2 p.m.
Men's Cross Country: UConn, 11 a.m.
Men's Tennis: Yale, Boyden Courts
Women's Tennis: at Vermont
Rugby: URI, Boyden, 1 p.m.
Sunday:
Soccer; UMass Invitationals continue

Today is the last day to register to vote

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 24 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Tuesday, October 9, 1984

Students give debate edge to Mondale

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

They came out fighting in the first "Great Debate", each attacking the other's position on the federal deficit, abortion, and religion, and the victor according to many University of Massachusetts students was former Vice-President Walter Mondale.

The debate Sunday night, the first of two scheduled between Mondale and President Ronald Reagan lasted a little more than an hour and a half. Both candidates disagreed on a wide range of topics, further widening the gap between the conservative Republican and liberal Democrat.

"Mondale was more in control. They both looked good, but Mondale seemed more sure of himself. Reagan was kind of floundering. Mondale was more at ease, he was clearly ahead at the end," said Susan C. Varaga, a first year communications studies major from Shelton, Connecticut.

One of the major issues of the debate was the federal budget deficit, with Mondale challenging the President to release details of his "secret" plan to reduce the record $263 billion debt.

Reagan sidestepped that question several times saying he would keep on the path he started in 1980, and if steady economic growth coupled with a low rate of inflation continued, the deficit would go down.

Mondale has already publicly outlined his plan, which calls for tax increase for middle and upper income Americans.

Mondale said Reagan's plan for just "wishing away" thedeficit would not hold water, and from the outset of the debate attacked Reagan's position.

"They both came out trying to attack eachother. They were both getting off on little snitches, both candidates really stuck to their guns but afterwards I had a little bit more respect for Mondale, he handled himself well especially on the issues," said Thomas R. Armstrong, a junior Geology major from Exeter, New Hampshire.

Observers commented on Mondale's composure. At times he even joked at the President and one of his more stinging statements was, "I'm reminded a little bit of what Will Rogers once said about Hoover. He said 'It's not what he doesn't know that bothers me, it's what he knows for sure but just ain't so'."

That comment and others like it helped to establish Mondale's strength in debating.

"Mondale definitely came across more forcefully," said Thoman K. McGee, a senior economics major from Reagan's backyard, Arlington Virginia.

McGee said the debate was somewhat disappointing because "nothing new or novel came out of it."

"I was looking for something dramatic, but there was no drama."

In 1980, Reagan squared off against then-President Jimmy Carter in a series of television debates, which gave a decisive edge to Reagan. Back in 1975 Mondale, then a senator from Minnesota and Vice-Presidential contender faced Robert Dole, President Gerald Ford's running mate. Mondale scored a big victory in tose confrontations.

The debate Sunday night pitted proven debate winners against eachother, and while political experts gave a first round victory to Mondale, immediately following the debate some UMass students either said no one emered vectorious or Reagan had a slight edge.

"Mondale had more composure, but he didn't answer the questions directed at him. I think Reagan came out on top. he answered the questions that were asked, and he answered them better (than Mondale)," said Mark Jeffrey, a junior hotel restaurant and travel administration major from Birmingham, England.

Debra F. Taylor, a 1984 graduate of UMass, said she didn't think either candidate won.

"I just wish Mondale had a little life, he's just so dead," she said.

Vice-President George Bush and Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro's fight will take place this Thursday at 9 p.m.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

HIGH HARVEST TIME — Piero Procaccini of Northampton climbed a tree at Atkins Orchard in Amherst yesterday to pick apples for his family.

Thomas R. Armstrong

Susan C. Varga

Collegian photos by Andy Heller

Debra F. Taylor

Knapp action still awaited on grievances

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

After more than seven years, the graduate student senate is still waiting for University of Massachusetts President David C. Knapp to approve an academic grievance procedure that has already cleared other administrative channels.

Although he was unavailable for comment Friday, Knapp said during the annual address to the faculty senate that he would "make a note of it."

"I brought it up to Knapp at the first faculty senate meeting of the semester and for some reason, he laughed and the senate laughed and everyone thought it was funny," Sanjir Dugal, president of the graduate student senate said.

"We heard the procedure again went through all the channels but it has been a month since I made this statement."

According to Dugal, "a previos attempt to establish a formal grievance procedure was objected to by the president's office in June 1975."

Dugal said the proposal was rejected in 1975 because it lacked "a proper definition of what constitutes grounds for a grievance and the apparent excessive amounts of time, energy and dollars required to operate the proposed procedures.

"We revised it (the procedure) in March 1977 and it differs substantially since some procedures were changed. The procedure was passed by the faculty senate on May 19, 1977 and later approved by the chancellor," he said.

Last May, the procedure was re-read, sent to Duffey and again to Knapp, Dugal said. "And now, it's still sitting on Knapp's desk."

If Knapp passes the procedure, final approval must then come from the University's Board of Trustees.

"I don't know what happened in 1977, but Knapp should have sent the procedure back in a week's time if it needed revisions," Dugal said.

There is no rational explanation so all I can think is that there's something political and they're shuffling their feet over it," he added.

Dugal defined a grievance as "a complaint by a graduate student alleging that some individual member of the faculty or staff has caused him/her to suffer some specific harm as a student."

According to the procedure, graduate students must submit a written statement and decide whether to submit it to informal mediation. The grievance is then passed on to the department head and then to the graduate school dean. The dean appoints a hearing committee, which submits a report and hears any appeals. The dean then renders a decision.

"On campus, the graduate senate as a body has no procedure, no written way nor process when in trouble with a faculty member or advisor,"Dugal said. "It's a great shame. If we have a problem with the faculty or administration, there's no way to go."

Amherst adopts new party policy

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Correspondent

Amherst College students will be supervised at large parties by a corps of their peers, according to a recent decision by the Amherst College Council.

The College Council, which is made up of 3 faculty members, 3 members of the Dean of Students office and 5 students, recommended the program in response to the administration's efforts to deter under-age drinking.

The student supervisors will include about 20 to 30 student bartenders and identification checkers.

"Instead of relying on student volunteers, we'll be relying on students who are trained and paid," said Austin Sarat, council chairman. He said, "the council aims for a policy that will effectively communicate to students the need to take consumption of alcohol seriously."

continued to page 5

Inside:

Nicaraguan leader expects U.S. troops.....p.2
Columnist takes crash course in cheerleading.....p.7
Minutemen drop another close one.....p.16

"Any fool can say, few can inform."
— Peter Townshend

World and National News

Iraqi air attack kills 6 on tanker

(AP) — Iraqi warplanes broke a 22-day lull in attacks on Persian Gulf shipping yesterday by hitting a supertanker with an Exocet missile, setting the vessel afire and killing six crewmen, shipping sources reported.

Six other seamen were badly burned in the attach on the 254,000-ton, Liberian-registered World Knight, marine shipping and salvage sources said in Bahrain.

An Iraqi military communique said "two large naval targets" were attacked southwest of Iran's Kharg Island oil shipping terminal. Iraq commonly refers to ships as "naval targets" in communiques about its four-year old war with Iran.

Marine shipping and salvage executives in Bahrain said only one ship was hit. They said radio operators picked up a distress signal, "We are under attack; we are on fire," from the World Knight at 11:30 a.m., 4:30 a.m. EDT.

The same sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said it was not clear if the tanker was loaded or empty when it was hit.

They said the missile rocked the ship's aft section, wrecking the engine room and setting fire to the crew's quarters. They rported at least one life raft was lowered.

Iranian navy helicopters flew to the crippled ship to aid the rescue effort, and at least one salvage company tugboat took aboard survivors and stayed on the scene to fight the fire, sources said.

The nationality of the victims was not known. The marine shipping sources said the crew was made up of five British officers and 33 seamen from Hong Kong.

The World Knight is owned by the Greek company Niarchos and operated by Hong Kong shipping magnate Sir Y.K. Pao's World Wide Shipping Group, sources said.

The Iraqi military statement said the raid was an "implementation of previous warnings to all ships against sailing to Kharg or other Iranian ports."

AP Laserphoto

Violence erupted in Normal, IL, Saturday night as about a thousand people, mostly Illinois State University students, rallied against a new town ordinance intended to control large, unruly parties. Above, a McLean County sheriff's deputy kicks a protester.

Students rap Farrakhan

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Students at Wesleyan University are circulating a petition to force a referendum on the question of financing a speech by Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan at the school.

The University's student government voted late Sunday night to budget $1,000 in student funds for a speech by the leader of the Nation of Islam.

The decision came amid heated debate between students and faculty that touched such topics as racial harmony, minority rights and the relationship between morality and government.

Farrakhan has gained national notoriety for anti-semitic comments. The proposal to invite him to Wesleyan has sparkeed a campus controversy.

The Student Budget Committee of the Wesleyan Student Assembly originally decided to provide only $500 to Ujamaa -- the University's Afro--American organization -- to cover operational and technical expenses in bringing Farrakhan to the campus.

Sandinista leader: U.S. will invade

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — The coordinator of the Nicaraguan Sandinista junta repeated Monday his assertion the United States planned to invade his country and defended scheduling elections there in November.

"The American government has poised itself to exterminate the Nicaraguan people," Daniel Ortega Saavedra said as backers in a primarily student audience at Harvard University shouted in Spanish, "They shall not invade."

The Reagan administration "has committed themselves to destroying a democratic solution in Central America," Ortega claimed last Tuesday at the United Nations that the United States planned an offensive Oct. 15 to prevent the Nov. 4 vote. The United States denied the charge.

"The machinery is already in place surrounding Nicaragua ready to attack," asserted Ortega before 1,300 at the university's Sanders Theater during a forum sponsored by the law school.

A Harvard Law School faculty member, Abram Chayes, is representing Nucaragua in its claim the U.S. acted illegally in backing the mining of Nicaraguan harbors. The case is being heard before the World Court in The Hague.

Agents identified by a Harvard student coordinator, Paul Galleberg, as members of the U.S. Secret Service guarded the stage. Galleberg said student monitors checked the audience for weapons, posters and banners.

"Let it be known that Nicaragua is not an enemy of the government or people of the United States, but it is this administration ... that has declared war against Nicaragua and its people," Ortega said, referring to the Reagan administration and its complaint that some parties were not being permitted to participate in the November vote.

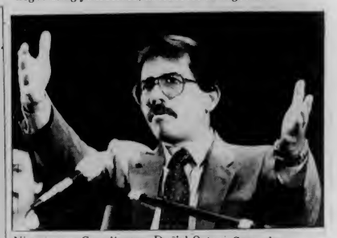
"They threaten not only the people of Central America, but the American people themselves.

"There exists pluralism in....Nicaragua. There is no real pluralism in a country in which only two parties are contenders. But of 11 parties in Nicaragua, seven are registered to participate in the elections. The rest don't want to.

"In the final analysis, we are not asking for economic assistance from the United States. We just want to be left alone in peace."

Mexican Nobel Prize-winning novelist, Carlos Fuentes introduced Ortega and said in a reference to U.S. and Latin American efforts to negotiate a peace:

"Central America has signalled that it can rule itself if left to rule itself. For God's sake, if you are incapable of negotiating yourselves, at least let us negotiate."



Nicaraguan Coordinator Daniel Ortega Saavedra

charlie's

Super Daily Happy Hour
All Week 3-6 pm
2 for 1 Jumbo Drinks (any shelf)
reduced prices on pitchers & bottled beer
Free Munchies
Plus 2 for 1 on Jumbo draft & wine

Super Nightly Happy Hour
All Week 9:30-11:30 pm
2 for 1 Jumbo Drinks (any shelf)
2 for 1 on Jumbo draft & wine

OTHER SPECIALS

Tuesday
8-12 pm Pizza and Beer
$5.95 includes pitcher of beer or carafe of wine & cheese pizza

Sunday
11-3 pm Bloody Mary pitchers $5.95
6-10 pm Pizza & Beer $5.95 includes a pitcher of beer or carafe of wine and cheese pizza

1 Pray Street, Amherst
Open 11 am - 1 am Daily

★ HELP WANTED ★
Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen
for Spring 85 and next academic year

Free Room and Board
15-20 hrs/week at $4.25/hr
Application available at
Butterfield Dorm Kitchen
until October 19th

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Ian Polumbaum
Copy Editor — John Yonce
Layout Technician — Bruce Andrew
Photo Technician — Jocelyn Paul
Production Supervisor — Ansel Zinter
Production: Peter Forget, Maria Cahillane, BethAnne Moskov, Kate Davenport, Kathryn Nobrega

Campus Coin-Op
107 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst
next to Campus Auto & Carpenter Bros.
The newest, cleanest, coin-op in the area.
Hours: Mon-Fri 8-10
Sat & Sun 8-7
Come In And Check Our Everyday Low Prices For Additional savings, use this coupon
50¢ a wash
first 100 customers with this ad
limit one per customer
OFFER GOOD THRU OCT. 13

Photo by Kathy Jordan

MISSED THE PLACE — UMass graduates Kelly Jean and Colleen return to Amherst Center and browse through hats for sale.

UMass 'Big Vote' drive expects to register 2,500

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Correspondent

Last week 1,700 students registered tovote on the University of Massachusetts campus, according to Bill McCaskie of the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, which sponsored the "Big Vote '84" registration drive.

Today is the last day to register in Massachusetts to vote in the election Nov. 6.

MassPIRG, in conjunction with the Student Government association, arranged to have Amherst registrars available on capmus so that students can register quickly and easily for the November elections.

"Students are more apt to register if it's easy and convenient," said McCaskie. "Many students don't even bother to send away for absentee ballots."

McCaskie estimates that by the end of today the number registered will be 2,500.

Although this is less than the figure of 5,000 McCaskie predicted at the beginning of the campaign, hesaid he was not disappointed and that the "registrars' tables have always been full."

Emily Belt, one of the registrars working on the "Vote '84" tables last week, said, "We've been really busy. The students are very supportive."

Registrars will be available today in the Campus Center between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. McCaskie said "UMass can show its voting strength by turning out to register, and then again at the polls in November."

Registrar Nancy Hastings said "students are surprised by how easy it is to register. It takes about two minutes."

Stacy Roth, a political science major helping out as part of the coalition, said the campaign "has had a really good response. Everybody is feeling pretty good about it."

"I don't think I'd have bothered to register if it hadn't been so convenient," said Jason Grosjean, a first-year student. "I thought you had to go through a lot more."

Madeleine Eno, a junior, said "I registered here two years ago. I think it's a really good idea."

Gregg Falon, a first-year student, said "I think it's a very good idea, but I think a lot of people will register anyway."

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's Issues Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

Tuesday — The Women's Leadership Project will sponsor a film on the gender gap at 7 p.m. in Campus Center room 163. Mary Wentworth will speak following the film. The event is free and open to all.

An organizing meeting for the "Not In Our Name" feminist resistance action in New York on November 18 and 19 will be held at 7:15 at Smith College. Call 545-0254 for more information.

Wednesday — The Everywoman's Center will be offering a support group for women in the trades (construction workers, painters, plumbers, electricians, maintenance workers, etc.). This group will focus on issues facing women doing non-traditional jobs and provide a network for women, as well as support. The group will run for eight weeks, beginning October 10 and will meet from 5-7 p.m. For more information and to pre-register, call 545-0883.

The Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom will meet at 5 p.m. Check the Campus Center daily schedule for the room number. New members are welcome.

Thursday — The Women's Leadership Project will meet at 4 p.m. in Student Union 415. The WLP desperately needs new members; come talk about issues which concern you.

The Counseling program at the Everywoman's Center will be sponsoring a support group for women who are concerned about their relationship to food. The group will begin on October 11, and run for 10 weeks. For more information and to register, call 545-0883. Confidentiality is assured.

Saturday — A conference titled The Changing Minority Women: Reaching New Horizons will be held from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at Springfield Community College. Topics included are: What the future holds for women; increasing economic power; political realities of the 1980s; superwomen; networking; issues in the second half of life: health, retirement and family. For more information contact the Division of Continuing Education at UMass.

UMass professor receives 'A' in Guide to Colleges

By SANDRA DIAS
Collegian Correspondent

A professor from the School of Education at the University of Massachusetts who has been described as "cool, smart, funny and teaches interesting courses" has been named "best teacher" in Lisa Birnbach's Guide to Colleges.

Liane Brandon, who recently returned from a year-long sabbatical, said she was "a little bit embarassed about the title."

"There are a lot of good teachers at UMass. It's simplistic to single one out," she said.

Brandon said her new title makes her feel that she must "be on her toes at all times."

"The only drawback on being called best teacher is the sudden publicity," she said.

Brandon said her phone never stops ringing. Newspapers, radio and television stations have called her for interviews among them The Boston Globe, the Daily Hampshire Gazette, WEEI News and WCVB-TV.

Before entering college, Brandon was a professional skier and swimmer and was once a stunt diver, specializing in tricks like diving into a pool through rings of fire.

But Brandon turned in her fins for an office in the School of Education where she teaches three courses which focus on how to use film and media in schools.

Before coming to UMass, she worked as a substitute teacher in a Roxbury elementary school. Brandon said her pupils "weren't very interested in learning" and getting them to open a book was difficult.

Brandon has been making prize-winning films since 1967, and decided to come to UMass in 1974. She brought with her the concept of "learning by doing," a concept she said her students have readily adopted.

Brandon said she is satisfied with her performance as a teacher.

"I have to turn away three or four times as many students as my classes can hold each semester. Students aren't nodding off during class, they come early and hang around late to talk about current projects and ideas," she said.

Brandon said working as a professional adds to the quality of her teaching.

"Working in the film industry helps when you are teaching film production," she said. "To be in constant touch with the thing you're teaching is important. When I learn something new, or find a method better than the one I'm using, I run right in to tell my students."

Brandon stressed the importance of colleagues' support in an environment that allows creative teaching. She added that a good teacher is one "who believes in her students and encourages them to do something non-traditional or slightly out of the ordinary."

Student protesters arrested second time

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

For the second time in as many weeks, University of Massachusetts students were arrested at nuclear weapons protests. Randi Saslow, Caroling Frimpter, Debbi Krutenplon, John Peterson, John Lanford and Jonathan Spaulding of the UMass Peacemakers were arrested at the Underwater Systems Center in new London, Connecticut and charged with disorderly conduct.

Photo by Elmer Mosk

Police arrest UMass Peacemakers member John Peterson (kneeling), who was protesting commissioning of Trident submarine.

They were protesting the commissioning of the Trident submarine USS Jackson. The commissioning, according to the arrested students, is a celebration for executives from the Navy and General Dynamics at which the ownership of the submarine is turned over to the Navy after being built and tested by General Dynamics.

Randi Saslow said the commissioning was a particularly appropriate occasion to protest so as to be visible to "people who make the decisions."

Caroline Frimpter said, "there is something obscene about having a party over it.

"Hanging down from the electric boat factory where the submarine was built was a sign saying 'good luck Jackson','Frimpter said. "Good luck for what?"she asked, "Good luck for it's mission in life?"

The students crossed police barriers after being warned by a police officer, "step over that line and it's broken arms and legs time," according to Jonathan Spaulding, who was also arrested last weekend at the Draper laboratory in Cambridge.

They were trying to form a blockade to prevent the entrance of the buses of executives, Spaulding said. But as soon as they crossed the barricades they were 'attacked" by police and handcuffed, he said.

"We were sitting there handcuffed like criminals," Saslow said, "while the real criminals were going by in buses to the commissioning."

The Peacemakers say the creators of weapons like the Trident submarine are the real criminals because such weapons, which are capable of mass destruction of civilian populations, are produced in violation of many treaties, such as the Nuremberg agreement and the Geneva Convention of 1949, Spaulding said.

"It is our right and duty as citizens of both the U.S. and our planet to speak out against this madness and obstruct further production of mutually suicidal weapons before it is too late," he said.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Anna Dolan, Craft Shop Coordinator, works to ready shop for opening this week. The craft shop, located in the Student Union basement, offers students free use of batik, ceramics, photography, silkscreen and metalsmithing facilities. Users pay only for materials. Workshops and courses are also offered.

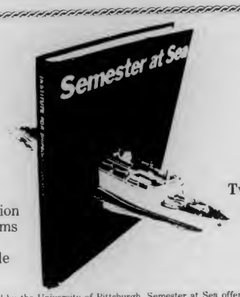
TONIGHT 9:00
FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
YOUNGER BROTHERS LIVE!
99¢ SCHNAPPS SHOTS ALL NIGHT
Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

PUT US TO THE TEST!
LSAT · GMAT · GRE
MCAT · DAT
GRE PSYCH · GRE BIO
MAT · PCAT · OCAT
VAT · TOEFL · SSAT
PSAT · SAT
ACHIEVEMENTS · ACT
• Permanent Centers open days, evenings, weekends.
• Complete TEST-N-TAPE® facilities.
• Skilled instructors and dedicated, full-time staff.
• Homestudy materials constantly updated by Research Experts.
• Low Hourly Cost.
• Transfer privileges to over 120 locations.
NATIONAL MED BOARDS
MSKP · FMGEMS
FLEX · NDB · NPB
NCB · NCLEX-RN
CGFNS · CPA
SPEED READING
ESL INTENSIVE REVIEW
INTRODUCTION TO LAW SCHOOL
CLASSES FORMING NOW!
LSAT
GRE
GMAT
Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
In New York State: Stanley H. Kaplan Educational Center Ltd.
CALL DAYS, EVENINGS & WEEKENDS:
358 N. Pleasant
549-5780

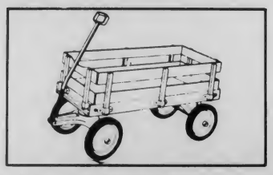
OPENING TODAY!
Fantasia
266 North Pleasant St., Amherst
(behind Silverscape)
253-7070 Tues.-Sat. 10-6
Uncommon Plants ...
— for home, gifts and greenhouse

The fastest-growing profession in America.
According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the need for paralegals is about to double.
Now is the time to become a part of this dynamic profession . . . and there is no finer training available than at Philadelphia's acclaimed Institute for Paralegal Training. After just four months of intensive study, we will find you a job in the city of your choice. We are so confident of the marketability of our graduates that we offer a unique tuition refund plan.
To learn how you can add market value to your college degree, return the coupon or call toll-free: 1-800-222-IPLT.
We'll be on campus October 15, 1984
Contact your placement office to arrange for an individual interview or group presentation.
Housing and Financial Aid available
THE INSTITUTE FOR PARALEGAL TRAINING
Approved by the American Bar Association
RUMA
Mail this coupon to: Institute for Paralegal Training, 19th Arch Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103
Please send a copy of your catalogue.
Name
Address
City State Zip
College (yr. of grad.)
Phone (present) (home)

NURSING: CHECK IT OUT
At New England Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing. Now is the time to apply. You could even start planning your courses to qualify for our two-year advanced placement program.
Just call Joy Erb, recruitment coordinator at (617) 732-8359.
Come join us at our Fall Open House, October 15, 1984, 1-6 p.m. or November 4, 1984, 1-5 p.m.
NEW ENGLAND DEACONESS HOSPITAL SCHOOL OF NURSING
One Autumn Street, Boston, MA 02215
Committed to the concept of equal opportunity in education



THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS
Adult Education Programs also available
Two Around-the-World Sailings Each Year
Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, Semester at Sea offers students a superior full semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester full credit experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities.
More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts.
Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available.
Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The S.S. Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America.
For free color brochure, write, Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in Pennsylvania (412) 624-6021).
Student Representative will be in the Campus Center
Oct. 9 from 6:30 to 9 Room 174-176
Oct. 10 from 6:30 to 9 Room 165-169
Oct. 11 from 6:30 to 9 Room 101
Financial Aid is available to qualified students

GREAT GIVEAWAY #2


WIN AN ALL TERRAIN VEHICLE (wagon)
Two vehicles to be given away
vehicle is on display in our Sporting Goods Dept.
OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES
1. To enter, complete the official entry form and bring it to the store. Enter as often as you wish by using only original entry forms. Enter Nov. 1, 1984.
2. The winner will be selected in a random drawing on Nov. 2.
3. Employees of the University Store and their families are not eligible. Taxes on the prize are the sole responsibility of the winner.
Vehicle BONUS
Register to win an all terrain vehicle. Fill out the coupon & return. No purchase required.
Name
Address
Phone
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

AN IBM PCXT COMPUTER WITH $1,000 WORTH OF PRINTER AND WORD PROCESSING SOFTWARE FOR $4,095???
No. Exactly. But if it weren't for the label, you couldn't tell the difference!!! corona
the Compatible Company
•Desktop or Portable
•High Resolution Monitor
•Graphics Capability
•256K Character Memory
•4 Free Expansion Slots
•10 Million Character Drive Storage
Also available in floppy at lower cost
•DOS 2.0 'PC TUTOR' GW Basic and 'Multimate' Word Processing
•Includes Panasonic KX 1091 Printer

549-7133
Computer Works
228 TRIANGLE STREET
AMHERST
Mon.-Sat. 10-6

★Amherst

continued from page 1

The College Council, which oversees campus residentail and social life, originally planned to require students to wear hospital-style bracelets to identify the students who were 20 years old. A final vote ruled against the bracelets in favor of the student supervisors.

The council's ruling on Sept. 27 came shortly after two campus parties were shut down by police and college security guards because of loud noise. No arrests were made at either party and no charges of under-age drinking were made.

Clay Johnston, a sophomore representative on the College Council said, "I realize the college has to enforce the under-age drinking but it's sad it had to come down to this."

The policy of the trained paid student supervisors will mean that two bartenders and two checkers will be hired to work an average party. The council recommended that the students be paid $5 per hour.

Danyelle Desjardins, a first-year German major, said "Amherst College has traditionally maintained a very relaxed social atmosphere. Now there is a sudden change in policy which has greatly affected the mood."

"What was once a place to have fun and relax on the weekends has been somewhat altered in a very unfavorable way. The fact is the choice has already been made for you concerning drinking," she added.

Peter Taylor, a first-year music major, said the college should not have to set forth such a policy. "It is not the task of the college to teach us responsibility. It is only through freedom of choice, with respect to alcohol or anything else, that responsibility can grow," Taylor said. "We should be allowed to use our own discretion."

College Party Weekend in $68 MONTREAL
includes
* Round Trip Transportation
* 3 days, 2 nights
Hotel Sherbourg, Downtown Montreal
November 2, 3, 4
Night Clubs open 'til 4 AM
Drinking Age 18
No Roadblocks
Call ERIC 549-5017

OOPS!

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
•Includes Mounting• plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

UTOPIA SPAS
Student Special
2 FOR 1
or ½ PRICE
on
1 hour HOT TUB
every Monday and Tuesday
call for Reserations 253-7727
175 University Drive, Amherst, Mass
(next to Stadium Liquors in the Price Chopper Mall)
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues 11 am - 1 am

All things in moderation ...especially alcohol.
That's good advice.
We're learning that moderation is the key to a safe and healthy life. We are each becoming more concerned with nutrition, exercise and overall physical fitness. That's why we're watching our salt intake, for example.
We know that there are certain safety lines and we don't cross them. Because excess means abuse and abuse means problems.
The majority of people who drink alcohol do so responsibly because they do so in moderation.
They know how to enjoy alcohol beverages and gain the social, personal and health benefits that come with responsible drinking.
They know the responsibility they take on when they drink alcohol beverages or serve these beverages to others...a responsibility for safety, health and proper conduct.
And they know the best way to practice that responsibility is through moderation.
By knowing their limits, and sticking to them.
By neither accepting, nor offering "one-for-the-road."
By neither condoning nor contributing to irresponsible behavior.
And by exhibiting at all times, a responsible attitude about alcohol.
They know the special responsibility that comes with the decision to drink alcohol...moderation.
That's the only way to drink...responsibly.
"A Proud Participant of National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week"
October 8-14, 1984
Miller
Beer Brewed by Miller Brewing Co., Milw., WI

Letters policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

PIZZA-RAMA

Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

CALL 253-3808
256-0115
FREE DELIVERY!
356 College Street, Amherst

Any Large Pizza 3 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Med. Pizza 2 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Small Pizza 1 FREE SODA (can) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons

Letters to the Editor

Beauty contest not harmless.

Thursday's letter to the Editor from Stephen Van Doren illustrates how badly more education about the oppression of women is needed on campus.

Van Doren writes, "Walking on the moon was a great technological step for man (sic). Emancipation (sic) of the slaves was a great step for racial equality. What will the abolition of beauty contest(s) prove?"

Well, how about the "emancipation" of women from having to sell their bodies for approval. Van Doren goes on — "The girls (sic) who entered this contest were hardly subjugated and forced into entering by strong arm tactics." Actually socialization in a patriarchal society is a strong arm tactic. The "beauty" contest is not harmless. It encourages men and women to objectify the female body. The idea of money being used as a vote is repugnant.

The personal attack on Rita Murphy was uncalled for. Rita has done a great service to women in the UMass community through her work at the Collegian. She will continue to stand tall along with her sisters, especially those women working in student groups including the Women's Leadership Project, SCERA, the SGA, the BOG, the Third World Caucus, and Commuters.

I would like to remind the brothers of Alpha Phi Omega that the ends don't justify the means. I also invite any women involved in the contest to drop by the Project office to discuss this issue. The Women's Leadership Project is located in Student Union 415, directly in front of Alpha Phi Omega.

Lisa Trocki
WLP Coordinator

'Sensitivity' appreciated.

Thank you for your excellent coverage of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year.

In keeping with the educational mission of this University, your news article informed your readers of the significance of these holy days and how to celebrate them on campus.

I also deeply appreciate your editorial. It conveyed an awareness of the difficulties Jewish students face in coping with the pressures of being a student while observing their religious traditions.

I have since heard of several instances in which professors cancelled classes or postponed quizzes because of Rosh Hashana. Whether this came about as a result of your editorial is hard to say but, in any case, I am encouraged by the sensitivity and respect that you and they have shown.

You have performed a real service to both the Jewish and the general campus communities. Keep up the good work!

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter
Hillel

'Morality' used to hide bigotry

Rusty Denton, take your right to say something and do something with it. I refer to your eight-paragraph introduction to a closing statement that: "we oppose the movement (that of the gays) because it represents a deterioration in the values of America." Spare me the vague attempts at describing your closet-case anxieties and explain how gays are deteriorating the moral fabric of America.

Your letter didn't even approach a discussion of civil rights as they relate to the citizen. It was more an expression of how you (the public) are appalled by something you can't understand. This smacks of unarticulated and unfounded fear. I was taught in grade school these ignorant fears are the foundation of all prejudice. When, while your moral standards were being established, did you decide gays are "doing something morally wrong?"

Despite your best efforts to dilute the venom of your position, it exists as nothing more than the deprivation of homosexuals' civil rights by virtue of their "immorality." Stop candy-coating your ultra-conservative attitude that is the worst form of moral decay, or fall over and rot.

Owen White
Northampton

GET YOUR CAREER OFF THE GROUND.

Launch hour. Throttles are at full power as a supersonic roar sweeps across the flight deck. And you're the pilot.

The catapult fires and G forces slam you back into your seat. Seconds later, you're punching a hole in the clouds and looking good.

Nothing beats the excitement of Navy flying. And no other job can match the kind of management responsibility you get so quickly in the Navy.

The rewards are there, too. Around-the-world travel opportunities with a great starting salary of $19,200. As much as $33,600 after four years with promotions and pay increases.

Take off for tomorrow in the Navy. With top-level training to help you build technical and managerial skills you'll use for a lifetime. Don't just settle into a job; launch a career. See your Navy Recruiter or CALL 800-327-NAVY.

NAVY OFFICERS GET RESPONSIBILITY FAST.

TUESDAY

RACK-A-VIDEO ENTERTAINMENT
presents
- Giant Ten Foot Screen -

Video Music
D·A·N·C·E
Party

Experience our new menu. • Latest Video Releases • • 9 til 1 •

THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST./AMHERST MA
413-549-1200

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Sometimes people forget

Two people: one, a tall, intense, brown-haired man with a mustache and glasses, hunched over his sleek racing bicycle speeding down the zipper-thin white bike lane in front of Morrill.

Two: a woman. A freshman, probably, maybe a sophomore, walking slowly, maybe too slowly, off the curb toward the Campus Pond. She smiled. She was wearing braces.

Time: nine o'clock, Wednesday morning.

What follows is hard to describe. What follows usually makes people stare or cry or say nothing or everything. Clearly the man wasn't thinking about the time of day or the weather or the slippery wet leaves or the blurry person stepping lightly in front of him. The cyclist was thinking about speed, pace, destination when he hit her. He was thinking about getting past her before the dark blue Chevrolet behind him sped up and came too close: "I can make it, fast, faster, she'll move." That's all.

Mary Cresse

The woman did not see, simply. What she saw instead was the pavement and then probably nothing else before the ceiling of the infirmary and later the Boston hospital where doctors discussed dentures and reconstructive surgery on her teeth and gums.

The man got up, uninjured. He stared at the woman, rubbing his scraped palm against his thigh. He checked the spokes of his bike. The wheels worked. He used them, immediately.

Another man sat on the steps of Morrill, reading the Globe. A woman leaning on the rail of a building shook her head and darted inside.

Two people straddling the curb finally picked the woman up and half-carried her to the health center. No one else offered to help.

The car behind waited until as many teeth as possible could be retrieved and the woman was on her way up the hill. It left.

What do you do, huh? Please, what do you do? Do you try to run after him? Do you throw a stone at his spokes, hoping to jam the wheels and stop the bike so you can pull him off it and drag him to the step and say, "Look what you've done, Buddy, you did this and left? And left!" Do you see him later, maybe in a bar, and suddenly kick him or throw your drink in his face?

No. What you do is pick the woman up the best you can and pray inside while aloud you say, "It's okay, baby, we'll get you there, don't worry, don't worry..."

And inside later you wonder, is it not the natural human impulse to simply help one another? Can't we push our shock or disgust — or shame — aside for just a minute so another won't have to suffer? And then you think of other, seemingly unrelated, things.

Like the handicapped ramp at Grad Tower, the one with the signs specifically asking, "Please Do Not Park Bicycles Here." A man once told a Collegian photographer who caught him chaining his bicycle to the ramp that he was "visually impaired" and had the full right to affix his bike to the rail a lot of handicapped people need to use to get inside. If I take off my glasses, I'm "visually impaired," too.

Funny how such things should occur on this campus, huh? Funny how a campus full of civil rights groups and human service offices and awareness workshops can thrive among people ignorant of some of the most basic human needs — courtesy and understanding.

How is the woman? I don't know. Ask the cyclist. His mouth probably works just fine.

Mary Cresse is a Collegian columnist.

Walking triumphantly

Bob Brigham

Morals, again. Always morals. Some things are always right. Some are always wrong. Black and white. No gray. No room for people, only a moral code spelled out A-B-C.

For most gays and lesbians, homosexuality is not a choice. I struggled through high school to be straight. I really did try. Who would want to be gay? Look at how they are hated, put down, harassed, and ostracized. In trying to play straight, however, I kept hitting this wall: my attraction to other men.

Is my "choice" in avoiding discrimination to be straight? That's clearly not possible. "I am what I am," to quote a song. Is my "choice," then, to stay closeted? That means I have to sneak around my parents and lie about where I'm going. That means I have to change all my "he's" to "she's" when I'm talking about my boyfriend to others; or I can just not talk at all. That means I have to silently endure fag jokes and actually laugh along with them. That means my family and straight friends can never fully be a part of my life, and enjoy my triumphs and loves or suffer my defeats and losses with me. Are they, then, really my family, my friends? This way leads to pain, neurotic behavior, mental imbalance, and suicidal feelings. I walked that path once, almost to the end.

I will never walk that way again. I will do what I can to help others never to walk that way. I will be "out."

My attitude is not "me first," but rather "me too; us too." We count. We've been here throughout the history of humankind. This 10 percent minority is in a position unique from other minorities. We don't have to own up to our feelings. We can hide, pretend, and suffer in silence; alone. You usually can't tell to look at us that we are gay or lesbian, unless we want you to know. Also, our culture is rarely passed on to us by our parents. We land in it suddenly, starting in our teenage years when we identify and begin to adjust to our orientation.

I don't believe it is melodramatic to compare the gay rights movement to the Black civil rights movement. I don't find discrimination, harassment, physical violence and murder melodramatic at all. (These are all very real, threatening possibilities for openly gay people.) A more accurate analogy for the gay rights movement, however, might be found in instances of religious oppression. People don't have to admit to a certain religious affiliation. They can practice their religion in private. Recall the Jews in Hitler's Germany. Those whose names did not betray their heritage could silently watch their neighbors be hauled away. They could keep quiet and escape the injustices and carnage. Of course, gay men and lesbians are no longer sought out and murdered en masse like in the Dark Ages or Hitler's day.

The term "faggot," meaning a bundle of sticks or kindling, came to have its slang meaning after the practice of burning homosexuals alive during the Dark Ages. Historians estimate that 500,000 gay men and lesbians were put to death during Hitler's regime. Homosexuals were the very first to die in the ovens. Many were the victims of horrible medical experiments.

Nowadays attacks are usually less organized, but no less deadly. This summer in Maine a 23-year-old gay man, Charles Howard, was thrown off a bridge and drowned by three younger men. Howard had allegedly made a pass at one of them.

Homosexuality is not moral. Homosexuality is not immoral. Homosexuality just IS. It exists. America's values can only be strengthened if I am guaranteed my right to work and be a productive, contributing member of society; to live safely where I choose; and to pursue my life and make my personal choices freely.

Bob Brigham is a Collegian columnist.

Just go ahead and jump, fall

Elizabeth Luciano

Actually, it was kind of funny, in a weird sort of way.

It wasn't that I didn't know how to do flips. A couple of my male friends are UMass cheerleaders, and because I'm basically petite (translate: short), I was always the guinea pig when they needed someone to toss into the air while practicing. I'm used to it.

It wasn't that it was an unlucky day. Granted, 80 degrees Fahrenheit is not the most comfortable temperature at which to do flips at a football game. Granted the Minutemen couldn't do a damned thing right on Holy Cross' Fitton Field—including tell which were the good guys, the reds or the purples? Nevertheless, we were having a grand old time doing a stunt called "toasters," in which six people flip a seventh person over backwards.

I'm not a cheerleader, just an imposter, so I really didn't have any right to try it. But I was dying to be asked.

"Want to try it, Liz?" one of my friends asked obligingly.

"Sure!" Why be shy?

And so, I was launched into the crisp, autumn sky. I felt free. I was flying like a bird, or a DC-10.

Unfortunately, I also landed like a DC-10. As in, my landing gear malfunctioned. As in, I crashed. As in, I sprained my ankle, big-time.

"This is really embarrassing," I said to the nice guy who taped up my ankle before I was carried from the field, in disgrace. I don't even have an excuse for this. I mean, the football players have an excuse to get hurt, and the cheerleaders have an excuse to get hurt. God, even the band has an excuse to get hurt." I later discovered that the same amiable gentleman was the band's trainer. My foot was wedged in my mouth, and it sure didn't taste too good there. Oops.

"Does this prove to you, once and for all, that you weren't meant to be a cheerleader? God, if I could have a dime for every try-out I drove you to," said Helen, on the phone that night.

As you may have guessed, Helen is my mother. Like most mothers, she has never heard of the statute of limitations. She's still pissed about when I drew my initials all over my bedroom wall in Vaseline. I was five at the time.

"That's a low blow, Ma," I said. It was true. I tried for the Matawan Falcons Pee Wee cheerleaders for seven successive, unsuccessful years. This was followed by three equally discouraging years of trying out for the Lloyd Road School Lakers cheerleaders. Unfortunately, I was one of those children who always got an 'A' for effort. It was the Decade of Despair.

Life's too short to dispair forever, though. So now I'm content to sit on the sidelines, downing hot dogs and Cokes while cheering on the red guys. Once in a while, I sniff away a tear, thinking of the sweatsock that got left behind on Fitton Field. It's probably a streetsock by now; tattered and scummy, rotting in a gutter, somewhere. If you're going to Worcester anytime in the near future, please look for it. It's got green stripes, and I think it needs me.

Elizabeth Luciano is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Why can't everyone meet their deadlines?

This is in reference to a letter I received in the mail on Friday, September 28, 1984. It was a bill stating that after I had paid my original bill, they raised the tuition by $44. The bursar's office stated that they were advised of the increase after the initial billing.

Every semester when my bill comes I make sure it is paid that day, to prevent the possibility of losing my housing and my classes. A contract was formed between the University and myself the day I paid my bill for the services to be received. Now that the bill has been paid and I have been in school for over a month, I have been informed that an additional $44 must be paid.

Besides the fact that my out-of-state tuition alone is more than some in-staters pay for their total bill, they demand $44 more for the same services.

What was the hold-up? Couldn't they decide how much more to charge us? What's another $44; it's not coming from their pockets. Does this mean I can look forward to another increase each month this semester? I mean, if they need money for some special project, what better way to get it than charging the out-of-state students. If they want to charge us more money, then I suggest they do it when we are billed, or are they incapable of meeting deadlines?

Andrew C. Halper
Central

DON'T FORGET!

COLUMBUS
did not miss the boat

Don't you miss it
Tomorrow is MONDAY class schedule

idb tips
INFORMATION DATA BANK
TAPED INFORMATION
PHONE SERVICE
A SERVICE OF THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE

50¢ OFF Maybelline Products with coupon*

Blooming Colors Boutique Collection
Big Beautiful Eyes Kit

Glitter Products

*Double coupon does not apply to store coupon
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

50¢ OFF MAYBELLINE valid until Blooming Colors Collection 10/20/84
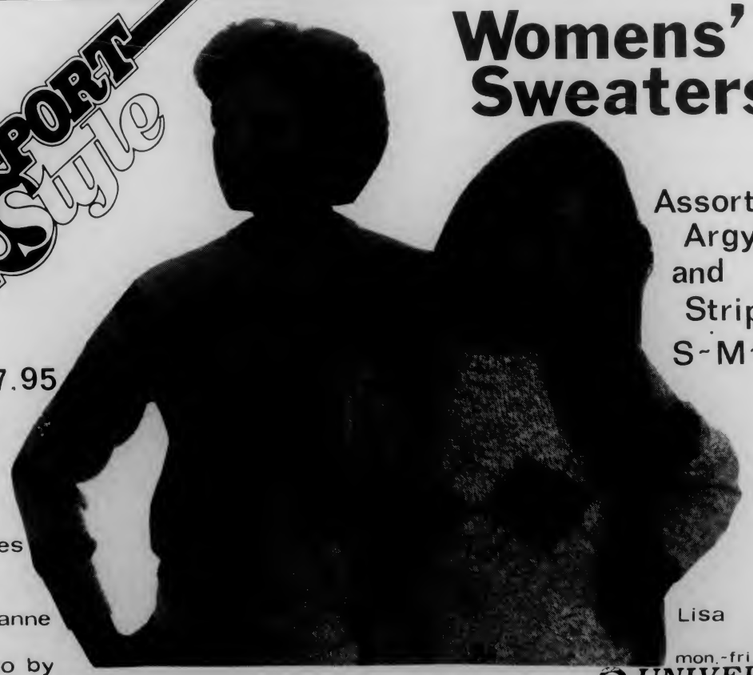
Big Beautiful Eyes Kit
Party Lashes
Glitter Products
UNIVERSITY STORE

SPORT Style
Womens' Sweaters



Assorted Argyles and Stripes
S-M-L-XL

From 27.95
To 31.99

assorted mens' styles available

Virgianne
Lisa

photo by Dwayne Autery

mon.-fri. 9-5
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Arts

Classic stadium rock
Rush plays the Worcester Centrum

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Correspondent

The 14-year career of Rush has seen the band evolve from a power-chording heavy-metal trio with a cult following into one of the more popular stadium acts in rock,with a string of hits to prove it. Their most recent album, Grace Under Pressure, has been their most commercially successful, yielding three hit singles. Success has come, however, with mixed blessings.

This was evident Tuesday night when Rush brought their Grace Under Pressure Tour to the Worcester Centrum. Rush is still one of the most exciting and technically proficient groups around, but the band's newest material lacks the live impact of their earlier works. This is due mostly to their increasing use of synthesizers. Bassist Geddy Lee spent a good deal of Tuesday's show behind a stack of keyboards, adding bass lines with foot pedals, while guitarist Alex Lifeson triggered synth lines from a pedal board in front of his microphone stand. The result was an uneven show, alternating between sterile formula rock and flashy, driving metal.

This odd mixture of hi-tech and heavy metal succeeds admirably on some of their newer songs, most notably "New World Man" and "Distant Early Warning" but the group only really seemed to catch fire on their older, more guitar-based songs, such as the show-opener "Spirit of Radio" and the material from their 1981 Moving Pictures album.

Geddy Lee's piercing falsetto that is so prominent on older songs was hampered by the lingering effects of the flu that caused the group to cancel dates in Providence and New Haven last week. Nonetheless, Lee made an admirable effort to hit the high notes and stay on key, often resorting to blocking one ear in an attempt to hear himself better.

Despite the sub-par vocal performance, the band's 20-song set was nearly flawless instrumentally. After a tape of the "Three Stooges Theme" by way of introduction, the band opened with "Spirit of Radio," followed by "Subdivisions," the band's 1982 hit from their Singals LP.

"Subdivisions" represents one of the positive aspects of Rush's evolution. The pseudo-mystical pap that marked drummer Neil Peart's writing in the 1970's has been replaced by scathing political and social commentary.

While "Subdivisions" is a little too obvious in its condemnation of the conformist attitude society pushes on adolescents, Peart hits the mark in "New World Man," questioning modern man's ability to control the technological monsters he has created. Sitting in the Centrum Tuesday might, I had to wonder if the legions of screaming fans fully appreciated the meaning of the lyrics they were hearing.

There will be a review writing workshop Wednesday night in the newsroom after the general Collegian staff meeting. All Arts writers and any other interested people should attend.

artslines...

No Theater presents Tennessee Williams' Cat on a Hot Tin Roof October 13 and 14. For more information, see Artslines.

UHURU, the new performing arts ensemble at UMass, invites all interested dancers, actors, musicians, and singers to audition for their next production, Struggle for Memory, a five-college tribute to Black History Month. Tracing the achievements of people of color through the African and Afro-American experience, Struggle for Memory will provide a forum of expression and celebration of the many hopes and desires of all people in their attempts to create a world of infinite diversity through infinite combinations. Auditions will be held on Tuesday and Thursday, October 9th and 11th, at 7:00 p.m. in the Hampden Dance Studio, Southwest Residential Area, UMass. Please come dressed and ready to perform. Callbacks will be on Tuesday, October 16th.

Lisa Gutwein, soprano, will present a faculty recital sponsored by the Performing Arts Division on Tuesday, October 9, at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall. Assisting Ms. Gutwein will be John Newell, piano. The concert is open to the public and without charge. For information, please contact the Performing Arts Division office at 545-0519.

Mount Holyoke Friends of Rowing and the South Hadley Chamber of Commerce present An Evening with Robert Klein on October 12, at 8:30 p.m. at Chapin Auditorium, Mary E. Woolley Student Center at Mount Holyoke College. Tickets are available at the box office after 2 p.m. For more information call 538-2178.

The Boston Chamber Music Society (originally the Boston Conservatory Chamber Players) will appear at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall on Saturday, October 13 at 8 p.m. The program will include Beethoven's Serenade in D Major for flute, violin and cello by Ingolf Dahl; and Tchaikovsky's Piano Trio in a minor, Opus 50. Tickets for the performance are available at the Fine Arts Center box office, at DATATIX outlets, and at the Springfield Civic Center. For ticket information call the Center box office at 545-2511.

The tenth annual Multiband Pops comes to the stage of the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center Hall on Friday, October 12 at 8:00 p.m. The musical showcase will feature performances by eight of the university's ensembles, including a feature appearance by the Minuteman Marching Band. Admission is free of charge.

No Theatre presents Tennessee Williams' Cat on a Hot Tin Roof on stage at the Academy of Music, Main Street, Northampton, Saturday, October 13, 8:00 p.m. with a Sunday matinee, October 14, at 2:00 p.m. Tickets are on sale at local bookstores and at Thornes Market. For ticket information, call 586-5553.

The New York Times
Best Sellers

New York Times	BEST SELLERS
Fiction	NonFiction
1. The Fourth Protocol	1. Loving Each Other
2. First Among Equals	2. Pieces of Mind
3. "...and Ladies of the Club"	3. The Kennedys: An American Drama
4. Tough Guys Don't Dance	4. The Rest of Us
5. Lincoln	5. Wired
6. Crescent City	6. The Nightmare Years: 1930-1940
7. The Miko	7. The Fire from Within
8. The Butter Battle Book	8. Good Morning, Merry Sunshine
9. Strong Medicine	9. One Writer's Beginnings
10. The Acquitaine Progression	10. In God's Name

$2.00 OFF List Price
All New York Times Best Sellers
*Hardcover editions only
Open M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Bruno's
- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

Desire Under the Elms
by EUGENE O'NEILL
October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

Hypercurricula

BUTTERFIELD ARTS GROUP — Organization and planning for coffee house. All interested in helping or performing welcome to attend. 6:30 in Butterfield Main Lounge.

BUILDING THE SUCCAH — Meet at 6 a.m. at the Hillel Office (302 SUB) to go and cut corn; at 2 p.m. to finish building the succah. Tuesday, Oct 9

IF YOU LOVE THIS PLANET — Helen Caldicott's film about Nuclear Holocaust. Everyone should see this film. Discussion to follow. 2 p.m., 804,. 7:30 p.m. Hampden Theater, 9 p.m. Hampden Theater.

HOUSTON BALLET'S SWAN LAKE — Full-length performance performance of the Tchaikovsky ballet with the Houston Ballet and the Houston Ballet Orchestra. 8 p.m. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

LESBIAN UNION — The Lesbian Union is holding a business meeting this Tuesday night, to discuss upcoming projects. All members are encouraged to attend. All welcome. 7 p.m. 406G SUB.

WMLASC BUSINESS MEETING — The Western Mass. Latin America Solidarity Committee is working on organizing educational events and Central America (Oct 22-26). All are welcome. 6:30 404 SUB.

AN EVENING WITH ISAAC BASHEVIS SINGER — The 1978 Nobel Prize recipient in literature will be speaking on Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. at Johnson Chapel, Amherst College.

UPC GENERAL MEETING — Last meeting before R.E.M. There's still time to be involved. Still more shows coming up. New members welcome. 6:30 p.m. Thompson 102.

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS MEETING — Committee meeting to discuss academic issues, the General Eduaction Proposal and a Greivance Procedure. 4 p.m. 420 SUB.

SAFA — Students Advocating Financial Assistance will hold the introductory meeting of the semester. Future planning, outline, and officer elections will be discussed New members should attend. 7 p.m., CC 168.

V.I.P.'s — Who do you know? Any V.I.P.'s? Soap stars, celebs, musicians? Who do you want to meet? If you have any info or input contact G.C.P. at 545-2733. 415 SUB.

INVESTMENT SPEAKERS — New York Trip. Edward Heald, Associate V.P. and Branch Manager of A.G. Edwards, speaks on brokerage industry and future of stock market — last collection of trip. All welcome. 8 p.m. CC 169.

HELP WANTED

DOMINO'S PIZZA

Earn $5-$7 an hour delivering pizzas. Must have own reliable car, willing to work nights and weekends, and be at least 18 years old. Apply in person after 4 pm

Now taking applications for full and part time positions. Must be at least 18. Apply in person.

RT 9, HADLEY

BUENOS DEALS

20% Off Appetizers and Dinner!

Take a break from the books without busting your budget. Present this ad for a 20% discount on appetizers and dinner at GuadalaHARRY'S.

It's HARRY'S way of saying welcome to college students. Make it your way to enjoy the best Mexican food South of the Charles River — at the best prices North of the border!

Buenos deals at GuadalaHARRY's.
Limit of 2 guests per coupon
(Offer expires Oct. 19, 1984)
May not be used in conjunction with any other discount or promotion.

GuadalaHARRY'S A Great Mexican Place

20 Clinton Street, Boston next to Quincy Market 720-1190

10/9

©1984 Mexican Foods of America, Inc. UM

Internships in the Law Open Introductory Meeting

The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. If you're considering the legal profession, want to explore career alternatives, or think you'd like to get hands-on job experience in the legal field, come to an open introductory meeting on Wednesday, October 10th, at 4:00 in room 170 of the Campus Center. Representatives of the LSO and the Office of Internships will be there to answer your questions about the office, the internship position, credit arrangements, and application procedures. The Legal Services Office is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer.

For a 20" x 28" full-color poster of this ad send $6.00 check or money order payable to Anheuser-Busch, Inc. Dept. 11-D, One Busch Place, St. Louis, MO 63118. Allow 4-6 weeks. Offer expires December 31, 1984. Void where prohibited. BUDWEISER® • KING OF BEERS® • THIS BUD'S FOR YOU • ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS

Isn't it time you got an "A"? The Student Note & Printing Service Can Help!

We offer Lecture Notes for the following courses...

ASTRON 100	ECON 103D	HRTA 100	PHYSICS 142
BIOCHEM 420	ECON 103E	MATH 104A	PHYSICS 161
BOTANY 100	ECON 104A	MATH 121/Brown	PHYSICS 162
COINS 123	ECON 104B	MATH 121/Janowitz	PYSCH 100E
COINS 544/ECE 544	ECON 104C	MUSIC 100	PYSCH 350
COINS 545	FSN 130	PHYSICS 141

Student Note & Printing Service

403 Student Union (upstairs)
OPEN: Monday - Thursday 9 to 5
Friday 10 to 3
546-2271

SAFA
Students Advocating Financial Assistance
First Meeting
Tues., Oct. 9th
at 7 pm in CC 168
New members encouraged to join
Help educate and lobby those who can affect your Financial Aid while in college

ERIC'S GIANT SUBS

Freshly Sliced Meats — Eat In or Take Out

BREAKFAST
Beef Stew, Soups, Chicken and Seafood

Try Us and See. . .
IF THEY AREN'T THE LARGEST TASTIEST SUBS IN THE AREA!!!

Rt 9 — 253-9521 — 314 College St.

Monday-Friday 6:00 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday 6:30 am - 3:00 pm

Get your money back.....here on campus

Nickel-Back
Student Redemption Service

REOPENING TUESDAY, OCTOBER 9

Most cans and bottles accepted at these sites:

WHERE	WHEN
Southwest	Hampden DC. 5-7:30 Mon
Orchard Hill	Grayson Rec Rm. 5-7:30 Tues
Central	Franklin DC. 5-7 Wed
Sylvan	Brown Rec Rm. 5-7 Thurs

THE PARTY'S OVER COME GRADUATION. OR IS IT?

Right now, many college seniors are understandably . . well, nervous.

The prospect of donning a pin stripe suit, putting one's nose to the grindstone or doing battle in the corporate world is enough to send many seniors off to graduate school. But the future doesn't have to be that bleak. In fact, if you knew what kind of job was waiting for you at TGI Friday's®, you'd be chomping at the bit to graduate.

Imagine a job managing a hot restaurant that grosses $3.4 million annually, with 150 employees and 180 menu items.

A job with a company that has over 100 restaurants in over 30 states . . with new ones opening in 1984.

A job with a twelve week training program and a five day work week.

A job that pays you well and is filled with perks.

A job where you meet new people every day and that you'll hate to leave at night.

A job where pin stripe suits aren't allowed.

If that's the kind of job you're looking for, TGI Friday's is looking for you.

We'll soon be on your campus. Contact your placement office for interview dates and times.

TGI FRIDAY'S

THE WINNER of the GREAT BIKE GIVEAWAY

A FIRENZE 12 Speed Bike

- AMY MORGAN -

Look for details of our Great Giveaway #2 in today's Collegian'

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 10-3

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

UTOPIA SPAS

Keep Your Summer TAN
Unlimited Visits for 30 Days + a Bonus
½ Hour Hot Tub for 2
All this for just $49.99
Call Now for Reservations 253-7727
Offer Good Until 10/15
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues-Sun 11 am - 1 am

Jackson Lip-Sync Productions INC.

Presents
The
N.E. Puttin on the Hits
Lip Sync Contest

Every Wed. Nite at The Blue Wall

Nightly Cash Prizes
Doors Open at 8 pm
Adm. $2.00

Come and impersonate one of your favorite singers or bands in costume
You could become a contestant on the nation-wide T.V. show
"Putting on the Hits"
for a Grand Prize of $25,000.00.

Opportunity only knocks once. For that chance of a lifetime, get your act together and come to the Blue Wall.
BRING YOUR OWN ALBUM.

For more info. write or call:

The Blue Wall to register at anytime 545-1919
ages 18 and over

HEALTH & BEAUTY SALE

$2.49 reg. $3.69 10 oz.

Ivory Shampoo/Conditioner $1.69 15 oz.

$1.49 reg. $1.92 • regular • mint • gel 6.4 oz.

Vitamin E $2.19 100's
Vitamin C $1.09 100's 500 mg.

B & L saline solution/ sensitive $2.59 reg. $3.49 12 oz.

$1.49 7 oz. regular lime sensitive

Always Maxi Pads $2.99 30's

Sale items are also available in the Mini Store

Introducing DOUBLE MANUFACTURER'S COUPONS on all Health and Beauty Aids Products

Located in the Campus Center
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-3
UNIVERSITY STORE

The Elephant is here!

Elephant Computer Disks

YOU'LL BE SEEING ELEPHANTS
TODAY IN FRONT OF THE UNIVERSITY STORE
TUES. OCT. 9th
10 am — 4 pm

Drawings for Elephant hats - shirts

FREE BUMPER STICKERS

FREE BALLOONS* while supplies last

Diconix Stationary Products and Systems
ELEPHANT NEVER FORGETS
UNIVERSITY STORE

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

UH..HI. I'M HERE TO SEE MRS. CONGDON. MY NAME IS..
MIKE DOONESBURY, RIGHT? I KNEW IT. YOU'VE GOT ENTRY-LEVEL WRITTEN ALL OVER YOU. I'LL BUZZ MRS. CONGDON.
THANKS.
MY, YOU'RE QUITE THE CUTIE PIE, AREN'T YOU? ARE YOU MARRIED? GOD, HOW COULD I ASK THAT? I MEAN, WE HARDLY KNOW EACH OTHER.
I DON'T KNOW AS I COULD HANDLE ANYTHING RIGHT NOW, ANYWAY. I JUST GOT OUT OF A REAL HORROR SHOW. YOU'RE A GOOD LISTENER, YOU KNOW THAT? GOD, TALK ABOUT YOUR BOYISH CHARM!
EXCUSE ME, ARE YOU TALKING TO ME?
MRS. CONGDON? THE INCREDIBLE HUNK JUST ARRIVED.
EXCUSE ME? HAVE YOU BEEN WAITING LONG TO SEE MRS CONGDON?
OVER AN HOUR. SHE MUST BE PRETTY BUSY TODAY.
I GUESS, HEY.. YOU LOOK VERY FAMILIAR. DO I KNOW YOU FROM SOMEWHERE?
I DON'T THINK SO. MAYBE YOU KNOW MY WORK.. I'M AN ACTOR.
THAT'S IT! I SAW YOU IN THAT NEW REAGAN COMMERCIAL! YOU PLAYED.. LET ME SEE.. YOU PLAYED..
GOD.
RIGHT! YOU WERE GREAT! BOY, YOU'RE MUCH SMALLER IN REAL LIFE.

Today's Weather

TODAY: Clouds and we could get wet; highs in 60s.
TONIGHT: Partly cloudy, lows in 40s.
TOMORROW: Like, sun!! (Partly, anyway.) Highs in 60s.

Drivers Wanted
see
Mark Roden
or call the
Collegian
at 545-3500

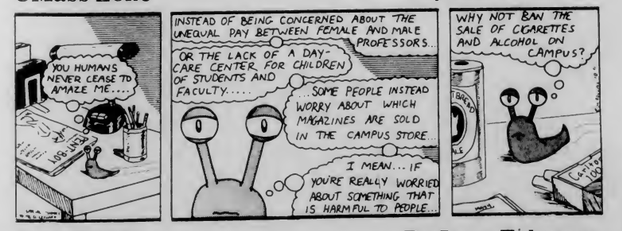
Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

WITNESS, PLEASE, THE INNER SANCTUM OF THE AMERICAN MEADOW PARTY... THE INTELLECTUAL ELITE FROM THIS NATION'S GREATEST POLITICAL MACHINE..
SIGH! SIGH! SIGH! UNGH.
WHAT IS WRONG, O JOLLY ONES?
THE POLLS. CAME OUT.. TODAY
THPTPH.
OH YES...THE "PEOPLE" MAGAZINE POPULARITY POLL...
SIGH!
HOW DID YOU RATE?
JUST ABOVE MONDALE.. JUST BELOW.
PICKLED PRUNES.
THPTPH

Gorde — by Gorde

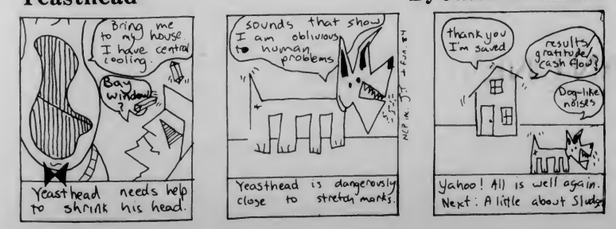
YOU KNOW, FOR SOMEONE WHO'S STILL ON HIS QUEST FOR THE "WOMAN OF HIS DREAMS," YOU LOOK A BIT TOO HAPPY?
MOI?
VERY WELL, HES'S FRIEND WAS HER "THE ONE" I'VE BEEN GOING ARE OVER FOR WEEKS NOW.
WHAT! HOW COME YOU LET HER GO?!!
AND SO, READERS, "HE COME TO OUR EXCITING CONCLUSION, AND TO AN IMPORTANT LESSON: "THERE ARE THOUSANDS OF DREAMGIRLS IN THE WORLD, - BUT HOW OFTEN IS IT YOU FIND SOMEONE TO DO YOUR LAUNDRY FOR A MONTH!!!
BLECH!!
I'M GONNA BE SICK

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins



YOU HUMANS NEVER CEASE TO AMAZE ME....
INSTEAD OF BEING CONCERNED ABOUT THE UNEQUAL PAY BETWEEN FEMALE AND MALE PROFESSORS.. OR THE LACK OF A DAY-CARE CENTER FOR CHILDREN OF STUDENTS AND FACULTY.....
..SOME PEOPLE INSTEAD WORRY ABOUT WHICH MAGAZINES ARE SOLD IN THE CAMPUS STORE..
I MEAN... IF YOU'RE REALLY WORRIED ABOUT SOMETHING THAT IS HARMFUL TO PEOPLE..
WHY NOT BAN THE SALE OF CIGARETTES AND ALCOHOL ON CAMPUS?

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman



Bring me to my house I have central cooling
Bay windows?
Yeasthead needs help to shrink his head.
sounds that show I am oblivious to human problems
Yeasthead is dangerously close to stretch marks.
thank you I'm saved
results? gratitude? cash flow?
Dog-like noises?
Yahoo! All is well again. Next: A little about Sludge

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

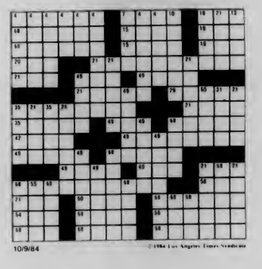
ACROSS
1 Sacred beetle
7 South American vegetables
11 Oh boy!
14 Attected one
15 Impolite look
16 Eggs, to Cato
17 Melodious, musically speaking
18 Soviet sea
19 Range of knowledge
20 Cool greeting
21 Fathom
24 Jeanne d'Arc
25 Overlie
26 Sicilian site
27 Go on —— reduce)
29 Hassle
33 Bonus
37 Vasco da ——
38 Dunne of the movies
39 Poetic sundown
41 —— Mongolia
42 Echoed
43 Buy unwisely
45 Four: Prefix
47 Pumice and obsidian
48 Vague supposition
50 Alphonso's queen
51 Sales pitches
54 Deign
58 1 ve —— sixpence
59 Rush
60 Flurry
61 Place for sloops
64 Comparative words
65 Harold of the comics
66 Counterpart
67 Asian holiday
68 Strays
69 Table linen

DOWN
1 Reaches
2 French landscapist
3 Byplay
4 Classic car
5 Out of Ger
6 Rich fabric
7 Ancient Celtic script
8 Broadloom
9 Separated
10 Moon goddess
11 Roused
12 Warmer
13 Conjuror's rod
22 Deem
23 Problem, mod style
25 Encumber
28 Plant disease
30 Cager Archibald
31 Portend
32 Home feature
33 Back-fence gossip
34 Dies ——
35 Outlet
36 Casablanca star
40 Memorable British actor
41 Greek peak
44 Folklore character
46 "—— Fidelis"
47 More nettlike
49 Glyceride
51 Like a gymnast
52 Giving person
53 Theatrical
54 Relaxed conversation
55 River near Paris
56 Precise
57 Sea birds
62 Memorabilia
63 Attention getter

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

M	A	N	N	A		W	E	L	S	H		N	I	A
I	D	E	A	L		A	D	I	E	U		E	R	R
N	E	W	S	M	O	N	G	E	R	S		W	A	N
I	L	E		A	N	T	E		B	A	S	T	E
M	A	R	I	N	E	S		N	A	A	C	P
		R	A	S		M	A	N	N	E	R	E	D
P	A	N	I	C		I	T	M	I	D		I	D	O
I	R	E	S		R	O	L	E	S		S	N	I	P
M	E	W		A	I	D	E	D		C	A	T	T	Y
A	I	S	E	S	S	O	R		P	H	I
		S	A	K	E	S		P	O	A	C	H	E	R
S	O	U	R	A		S	H	O	T		I	R	O
O	P	A		N	E	W	P	O	R	T	N	E	W	S
L	O	N		G	L	E	A	N		E	E	R	I	E
E	N	D		E	M	E	R	Y		L	E	O	N	S

10/9/84



10/9/84 © 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
DC BURGER DAY
Double Burger on Sesame Roll
Giant Hot Dog with Roll
Boston Burger on Sesame Roll

DINNER
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Spaghetti with Garden Vegetables

BASICS LUNCH
DC BURGER DAY
Oatburger on Sesame Roll
Boston Burger on Sesame Roll

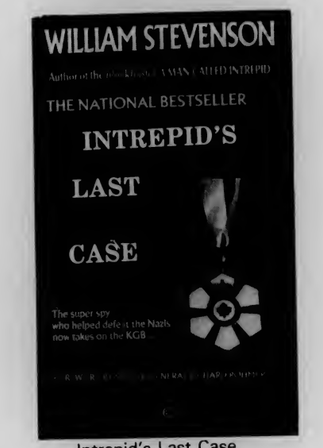
BASICS DINNER
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Spaghetti with Garden Vegetables

Dinner Specials

Tuesday 2 for $8.50
Wednesday meal exchange night
Thursday 2 for $11.00
Friday 2 for $14.95
Saturday 2 for $12.95
or 2 for 14.95
selected menu items for each nite are now available at special prices!

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF



Intrepid's Last Case
William Stevenson

Open: M-F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center

upc PRODUCTIONS presents:

an evening with

"The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students, Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Now

UMass ID required with student ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center, and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

UMass midfielder Paul Serafino (21) dives at the ball ahead of Hartford's Tom Mandrola.

★ soccer

continued from page 16

the team along with forward Paul Serafino) easily converted the kick for his seventh goal of the season and a 2-1 lead they would not relinquish.

The Hartford (10-1-1) game was a very aggressive one in which there were many fouls and stoppages of play due to injuries.

Gettler was upset by the style of play when he said caused seven of his players not to be able to walk in practice yesterday.

"It was the biggest win ever for them. We made their season. They tried to be dirty and it worked. It's tough to play against a team that won't let you get jour rhythm together," said Gettler.

How the AP Top 20 fared

1. Texas (3-0-0) defeated Rice, 38-13
2. Ohio State (4-1-0) lost to Purdue, 28-23
3. Washington (4-0-0) defeated Oregon State, 19-7
4. Boston College (3-0-0) did not play
5. Oklahoma (4-0-0) did not play
6. Florida State (4-0-1) tied Memphis State, 17-17
7. Brigham Young (5-0-0) defeated Colorado State, 52-9
8. Nebraska (4-1-0) defeated Oklahoma State, 17-3
9. Oklahoma State (4-1-0) lost to Nebraska, 17-3
10. SMU (3-0-0) did not play
11. Penn State (4-1-0) defeated Maryland, 25-24
12. Georgia Tech (3-1-0) lost to N. Carolina State, 27-22
13. Michigan (3-2-0) lsot to Michigan State, 19-7
14. Miami (fla.) (4-2-0) defeated Notre Dame, 31-13
15. Louisiana State (3-0-1)did not play
16. Notre Dame (3-2-0) lost to Miami (Fla.), 31-13
17. UCLA (3-2-0) lost to Stanford, 23-21
18. Auburn (3-2-0) defeated Mississippi, 17-13
19. Vanderbilt (4-1-0) lost to Tulane, 27-23
20. Georgia (3-1-0) defeated Alabama, 24-14

★ World Series

continued from page 16

sinkerbaall pitcher, lasted only 3 2-3 innings in his playoff start at Chicago lastt Wednesday night, Giving up four runs on seven hits.

"The attitude I'll take is the attitude I've taken all season long, one pitch at a time," said Thurmond.

Anderson said he would use a three-man pitching rotation in the World Series, following Morris with Dan Petry and Milt Wilcox. Williams will follow Thurmond with right habnder Ed Whitson, then Tim Loller and right-hander Eric Show, using four pitchers.

While Williams did not announce a starting lineup, Anderson said he would go with Lou Whitaker at second, leading off, followed by Alan Trammell at shortstop, Kirk Gibson in right field, Lance Parrish catching, Larry Herndon in left field, Barbaro Garbey at DH, Chet Lemon in center field, Darrell Evans at first base and Marty Castillo at third.

You can't afford to overlook this!

★ Special Student Membership ★
★ REDUCED RATES ★
★ COMPLIMENTARY VISIT ★

Leaving the area in January? That's no problem at the Hampshire Fitness Center.....

Join now and take advantage of our 7-month Student Special. Your membership will run from October-December and from February-May in conjunction with your academic year.

Not leaving in January? Take advantage of our other membership options.

What better time to take advantage of this healthy offer and start looking good and feeling great! Call or stop by today!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER featuring

- Indoor Olympic-size Pool
- Tennis
- Nautilus, Olympic, Universal & Free Weights
- Jacuzzi Whirlpool
- Saunas
- Snack Bar
- Individualized Fitness Programs
- Special Medical Programs
- Computerized Fitness Evaluations
- Nutritional Counseling
- Swim & Tennis Lessons & Clinics
- Massage Therapy

CONVENIENT HOURS: 7 days/week Mon-Fri 6am-10pm Weekends 8am-9pm

Limited to the first 100 students!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER
GATE HOUSE ROAD AMHERST, MA
256-6446

"One person is very important; one person is very much." Come share with a person suffering mental illness. A variety of volunteer opportunities available from simply dropping in at weekly coffee hours to long term committments. We help with expenses.
Call or write
Amherst Apartments Program
31 Colonial Village
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
413-256-0711

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Countdown to Halloween '84
17% OFF TODAY
the Halloween Shop at FACES
A Store full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

AUTO FOR SALE

Vega Wagon '76 new clutch, brakes, steering box. Body v. good 546-7056 ask for Tim keep trying

71 GMC Pickup with cap 6 cyl #850.00 call Brian 586-2769

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock A Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rock-A-Disc Rock-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0246 or 586-7889

FOR SALE

1981 Pioneer HPM-800 stereo speakers excellent condition - great sound! $140 call Andy 6-1140 after 9 PM

Digital Decwriter w/modem and paper ideal for Cyber 549-5216

Eagle II word processing C.P.M. Computer. $1200.00 1-533-9727

Gibson-Marauder maple-neck, mahogany body. Beautiful guitar! With hard shell case $250.00 546-5272

Airlines ticket to Chicago, Seattle, or Anchorage. Best offer. Call 584-5077

HELP WANTED

Computer programmer Part time opening for person experienced with PDP-11 or VAX computers UNIX or MACRO-11. Amherst based company, developing communications and real time control software is looking for someone able to work part-time during the school year, with full-time employment during intersession and the summer. Excellent opportunity! For information call 549-6994

Housepeople wanted. Homecooked meals in exchange for light kitchen cleanup call 546-2150 ask for Jim

Ambitious college student needed part time to organize a Rock and Art Fair. Very rewarding role. 536-3890 anytime

House Cleaner experienced efficient with local references weekly 548-0413 early AM best

Funnybones looking for cocktail waitresses part-time weekend night, occasional week nights. Apply in person 2-5 7 days a week Rt 9 Hadley 586-2770

Funnybones looking for smateur DJs. Apply in person ready to play 7-1 Thursday Oct 11 Rt 9 Hadley 586-2770

Overseas jobs Summer, yr. round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields $900-$2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas 2 for 1 hot tub every Monday and Tuesday night call for reservations 253-7727

LOST

Stolen In Sylvan area or Boyden Gym Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick.

Gold Cross Necklace 10-2 please call 6-5191 reward equal to value of necklace very important

NATIONAL STUDENT EXCHANGE

NSE Students Club Meeting Weds Oct 10 Campus Center 168C 7-9 pm elections due

ORCHARD HILL RESIDENTS

VOTE
Mary Gannon and Carmine Caporelli
OHAG Co-Vice President

PERSONALS

Help Wented Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen for spring '85 and next academic year free room and board 15-20 hrs/wk at 4.25 applications available at Butterfield Dorm Kitchen until Oct 19

Earn $6-$7 an hour delivering pizzas. Must have own reliable car, willing to work nights & weekends. Apply in person after 4:00 PM at Dominos Pizza across from Stop & Shop in Hadley

Can we talk?? Mary Porro about spring '84 phone bill! Please call 6-1098 soon! Rachel

Michael L. Call Snow 253-9566

Seegele Boy call Snow 253-9566

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. government? Get the facts today! Call 1-312-742-1142 ext. 5831-A

Haircuts by Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-8359

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

REFRIGERATOR RENTAL

Refrigerator Rental 2 cubic ft R & P PACKAGE STORE free delivery 253-9742

ROOMMATE WANTED

Without a living place? Still hope! Share my apartment at Northwood in Sunderland. Call 665-4284

Non-smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344

SAFA

Student's Advocating Financial Assistance will hold the organizational introductory meeting Tues. Oct 9th CC 165 at 7 pm! NEW MEMBERS are ENCOURAGED to attend

SERVICES

Need a tutor? I can help! For more info call 665-4931 after 9:00

SUN TAN NOW

Utopia Spas Suntanning Specials call now for special prices 253-7727

TRAVEL

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 Student/Budget Travel Agency. Free catalog call (617) 266-1926 or write, 729 Boylston St. Suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

Weekend in Montreal, Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional! Don't be fooled by tours that offer skating room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5126

WANTED

Female to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4585

Dead Tickets wanted call 546-6153

Tigers cruise into SD tonight

SAN DIAGO AP — Sparky Anderson remembers his last World Series meeting with Dick Williams.

Anderson was managing the Cincinatti Reds back in 1972, and Williams was steering the ultimately victorious Oakland A's. On Tuesday night, the two managers go head to head again, this time with Anderson as the manager of the American League ChampionDetroit Tigers and Williams as skipper of the National League champion San Diego Padres.

"I managed against Dick in 1972. I wish I wouldn't have," Anderson said. "Cincinatti should have won that Series, but Dick outmanaged me. I think Dick won that Series for them."

The tigers are making their first World Series appearance since 1969; the Padres never had goytten to post season play before this year.

The first game of the Series begins at 8:35 p.m. EDT Tuesday, with Game 2 set for Wednesday night.

Game one starter for Detroit will be right-hander Jack Morris, 19-11 during the season and winner of Game 1 on Detroit's three-game sweep of Kansas City in the AL Championship Series. Left-Hander Mark Thuurmond, 14-8, the loser of Game 2 in San Diego's five-game NCLS victory over Chicago, will open for the Padres.

Morris, who had won 12 of his 19 games by the All-Star break, said he felt strong again and was ready to start the World Series. Morris will pitch on seven days' rest because of the layoff sweep.

"My rhythm is better with four or five day rest than seven days, but I was able to throw on the side a little bit and hopefully it won't mess me up too bad," Morris said.

Thurmond, a control and

continued on page 15

Detroit at San Diego

When: Tonight, 8:35 p.m. (TV coverage at 8 p.m.)
Where: Jack Murphy Stadium (San Diego)
Radio/TV: ABC-TV (40, 5), CBS Radio
Pitchers: Detroit: Jack Morris (19-11), San Diego: Mark Thurmond (14-8)
Path to Series: Detroit defeated Kansas City in three games, 8-1, 5-3, and 1-0. San Diego went to five games against the Chicago Cubs, losing the first two, 13-0 and 4-2 in Chicago and winning the next three in San Diego, 7-1, 7-5, and 6-3.
Players to Watch: Detroit: 2B Lou Whitaker, RF Kirk Gibson, C Lance Parrish and RP Willie Hernandez. San Diego: P Goose Gossage, 1B Steve Garvey, RF Tony Gwynn, 2B Alan Wiggins.

Sports

Rhode Island passes UM by, 20-19

Barnwell rushes for 172 yards

By GERRY de SIMAS
Collegian Staff

KINGSTON, R.I. — After the University of Rhode Island quarterback Tom Ehrhardt had his first two passes picked off by the University of Massachusetts' Rod Turner and Chris Wood, the junior was feeling pretty down on himself.

He shouldn't have worried.

For the second week in a row, Ehrhardt threw for over 400 yards and led the mistake-prone Rams to a 20-19 Yankee Conference win over Massachusetts, Saturday.

Ehrhardt was 34 of 54 for 405 yards and three touchdowns. He also tossed three interceptions and the Rams fumbled the ball away twice.

But it still wasn't enough for UMass who blew 10-0 and 16-7 leads. George Papoutsidis missed a vital extra point after UMass' first TD, a six yard tun with 4:40 left in the first quarter by George Barnwell and it came back to haunt UMass. On a fourth and five on the URI seven with 4:20 to go, UM head coach Bob Stull elected to go for three instead of the lead.

"It was a hard decision to go for the field goal," Stull said. "The biggest thing was that there was over four minutes lef and we had three timeouts. I thought we would get another chance."

Papoutsidis hit the 23 yarder and UMass pulled to 20-19 but the Minutemen never touched the ball again.

Ehrhardt converted on two crucial third and short passes to enable the Rams to chew up the last 4:18 on the clock and preserve the win.

"We got off to a shaky start but both the offense and defense played a good game," Ehrhardt said. "I was little down at the start but as soon as I found my rhythm I felt good."

UMass, 2-3 overall and 0-1 in the conference, started out with a big lead. Turner picked off Ehrhardt's first pass and after UMass gained four yards on three plays. Papoutsidid gave UMasss a 3-0 lead.

Five minutes later at 8:05, Barnwell, the game's leading rusher with 172 yards on 29 attempts, led the UMass offense on a 11 play 68 yard drive and a 10-0 lead.

Ehrhardt responded by leading URI, 5-0 overall, 2-0 in the Yankee Conference, right back down the field on a 80 yard march capped off by a 23 yard pass to Dameon Reilly.

After another URI fumble, their second, Barnwell again led the UM offense on a 55-yard drive that ended with Barnwell's one-yard dive. But Papoutsidis missed the extra point, his first of his UM career, as UM led 16-7.

"We got better today," Stull said. "We moved the ball a lot better but not good enough to win."

Turner blocked a Mike Cassidy punt with 11:47 to go in the first half and UMass recovered on the URI 12 yard line. But two plays later Jim Simeone, 10 of 30 for 120 yards, fumbled the ball away and UMass had lost another opportunity.

The UMass defense did their best but just couldn't contain Ehrhardt and URI's top rusher Rich Kelley, who rambled for 145 yards.

"They were good (UMass' defense) but our offense is hard to defend against," said Ehrhardt.

Todd Comeau and Paul Platek each had 13 unassisted tackles while Mike Faverau had seven.

The Rams rallied for two quick scores as the first half ended.

Tony DuMaggio hauled in a 12 yard TD pass with 3:12 left. UMass got the ball back, Barnwell picked up a first down and then three straight Simeone passes hit the turf.

Jim Tandler's 25 yard punt pinned the Rams on the URI 12-yard-line but seven plays and 88 yards later, Brian Forster caught a 10 yard TD pass with 0:43 seconds left. The drive took 0:50. URI's two point conversion pass was broken up bby Wood, who Forster faked out nicely on the TD pass.

The Rams came out in the second half and dominated, controlling the ball with Ehrhardt passing. The Rams had the ball 11:10 in the third quarter and 8:40 in the fourth including the 4:20 that soiled Stull's Yankee Conference opener.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

UMass flanker Jim Earle puts a move on URI cornerback Tony Hill (19) on Saturday. UMass lost to the Rams, 20-19.

Rhode Island 20, UMass 19

URI (5-1)	0	20	0	0	-	20
UMass (2-3)	10	6	0	3	-	19

Scoring:
UM — FG, George Papoutsidis, 45
UM — George Barnwell, 6 run (Papoutsidis kick)
RI — Dameon Reilly, 23 pass from Tom Ehrhardt (Paul Stringfellow kick)
UM — Barnwell, 1 run (kick failed)
RI — Tony DiMaggio, 12 pass from Ehrhardt (Stringfellow kick)
RI — Brian Forster, 10 pass from Ehrhardt (Stringfellow kick)
FG, Papoutsidis, 23
Attendance: 10,227
Individual Leaders:
Passing: UM: Simeone 10-30-120m 0 TD; URI: Ehrhardt 37-54-405, 3TD, 3 int.
Rushing: UM: Barnwell 29-172, Grange 6-39, Fay 8-33; URI: Kelley: 35-145.
Receiving: UM: B. Simeone 3-56; URI: Forster 13-129, DiMaggio 12-152.

Team Statistics:
First Downs: UM: 22; URI: 29
Rushes-Yards: UM: 45-234; URI: 42-150
Passes-Yards: UM: 30-120; 54-405
Punts: UM: 6-36.7; 3-19.3
Fumbles-Lost: UM: 3-2; URI: 3-2
Offensive Plays: UM: 75; URI: 96
Possession: UM: 25:16; URI: 34:44

Men's soccer splits tourney with 'frustrating' loss

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

It was a disappointing second place finish for the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team (6-3-2) as they outplayed but lost to the University of Hartford in the championship game of the 2nd Annual UMass Invitational, 1-0 over the weekend.

UMass made the final round by virtue of a less impressive performance, but still a win over previously undefeated Northeastern University by a 2-1 margin, on Saturday afternoon.

"We didn't play really well tagainst NU). We didn't work hard. We were good enough to win. But we bounded back against Hartford and played the best game of the season. By far, it was our best performance with the ball. We created a lot of scoring chances," said Coach Jeff Gettler.

In the Northeastern game, Andy Bing opened the scoring at the 25:53 mark with his third goal of the year as he easily headed in a Nick Marciano cross that deflected off the goalie's fingertips. NU tied it ten minutes later as a forward broke in alone and pushed the ball by UMass netminder Don Donahue. It was a case of the team letting up in play a little after they had scored a goal.

They redeemed themselves however, when Tom Uschok (who was named to the All-Tournament team) was tripped in the penalty box, and UMass was awarded a penalty kick. Kurt Manal, (also named to

continued on page 15

Stickers crush Maine

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

Sparked by the play of junior forward Christine Kocot the University of Massachusetts field hockey team defeated the University of Maine 5-0 on Saturday. Today the team hopes to raise its record to 9-1 against a visiting Northeastern team.

While Kocot did not score any goals or hand out any assists her aggressive play lead to three UMass scores and set the tempo for the team's play throughout the game.

"I was very happy with the way she played," Hixon said of Kocot. "She was all over the field."

Senior Maura Coughlin scored UMass' first goal midway through the first half. With six minutes remaining in the half Kocot drilled a pass from the right corner into a group of players in front of the Maine goal. When the struggle for the ball was over UMass freshman Tonia Kennedy had put the ball past Maine goalie Tina Ouellette to put the Minutemen up 2-0.

After completing a strong drive to the net and finding she had no shot, senior Pam Moryl dumped the ball off to Kennedy who scored the final goal of the first half.

Pleased as she was, Hixon chose to use the second half to experiment with a new offensive formation. She switched from the team's normal four forward, tow midfielder, three defenseman, and one goalie alignment to a 3-3-3-1 to "see what kind of movement we could get with three forwards," said Hixon.

The switch resulted in another pair of goals for the Minutemen, more than enough to put away Maine.

With ten minutes time elapsed Kocot fired a shot that Ouellette stopped. Kennedy was there to take the rebound and score her tenth goal of the year. Megan Donnelly scored UMass' final goal on a penalty stroke.

sports at a glance

UMass Schedule:
Field Hockey: Northeastern, NOPE Field, 3:30 p.m.
Women's Soccer: New Hampshire, Boyden Field, 3 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 25 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, October 10, 1984

THE WINDUP — Jamie Watson of the UMass women's soccer team gets ready to pass the ball across the field in Tuesday's 8-0 whitewashing of UNH. UMass is ranked 2nd in the nation.

Lawsuit possible over UMass filtering system

By JOHN VINCENT
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts may be brought to court because it has overrun the compliance schedule for making the central heating system environmentally safe.

Stephen Joyce, and official from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, said the University asked DEQE for an extension on construction of a filtering system for steam plant coal dust, and has gone over the extended deadline.

The Massachusetts Attorney General's office has cited UMass in violation of the 1970 Clean Air Act since February, 1983, and Joyce said DEQE referred the case to the state's discretion on whether to seek contempt of court charges.

Stephen Leonard, from the Attorney General's office, would not say what their plans were on the case but said the office does act on cases to force faster compliance of the law.

Construction of a "bag-house" filtering plant began three years ago, after a 1980 suit charged the University of violating the Clean Air Act.

The "bag-house" is the new building adjoining the power plant which is down hill from the Campus Center parking garage. It holds about 17,000 filter bags that catch unburnt coal exhaust from the boilers before the exhaust leaves the smoke stacks.

UMass was first sued for non-compliance with the Clean Air Act in 1977 when the administration decided to change back to the coal boiler heating system rather than fix the new, unused Tillson Farm oil furnace on Orchard Hill.

Roger Cherewatti, director of the Physical Plant, said the nearly completed bag-house will not go into operation until next spring because the boilers were turned on last Friday. Cherewatti said to hook up the bag-house the heat would have to be turned off and this would require the University to shut down.

The supervisor of construction on the bag-house, who asked not to be named, said final construction details will take another six weeks to complete. He said problems with insulating, making fans work, and late shipment of a control panel caused delays. "There are a lot of bugs. It takes time to work them out," he said.

Jack Bradshaw, Associate Deputy Commissioner of the department of Capital Planing and Organization which was responsible for the construction, said "I knew when the decision was made what the legal ramifications were but there are also legal ramifications to leaving the University without heat. Either you have the University grind to a halt or you turn on the boiler."

Bradshaw said with the complaints from the faculty and students of cold he and the physical plant decided to turn on the boilers. He said the bag-house may be able to be turned on over intersession.

Continued on page 4

Senate election information still unavailable to students

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

A week after the Undergraduate Student Senate unanimously approved last Tuesday's 1984-85 senate elections, it is still not known how many on-campus, Greek area, and commuter students voted, or why three election protests were filed.

The Student Government Association (SGA) Governmental Affairs Committee is ultimately responsible for tallying the total number of votes each candidate received for determining the percentage of voters on campus, off campus, and in fraternities and sororities and fielding election protests. As late as Tuesday afternoon, no information was available to the Collegian concerning voter turnout, or reasons for the protests in Thoreau, Thatcher, and McNamara's elections.

Senate speaker Chris Sullivan said Tuesday one problem that may come from the unresolved election protests is that any one of the three dorms with the contested elections may go unrepresented.

"If a dorm does not have a senator before the election and the results are being contested, the dorm won't be represented in the Senate," (because there is no one to fill in from last year) Sullivan said. Sullivan also said he believed Thoreau had a vacant Senate seat.

Governmental Affairs chairman Joel Rabinowitz said Monday that because he had to leave school Thursday night, he did not have time to set up hearings for election protests.

Rabinowitz also said that with the exception of vote counting to determine winners last Tuesday, he had "not really received" help in computing the percentage of voters to total residents in different areas.

Sullivan said that "in the elections I have been involved with, it has usually taken about a day" for this information to be made public

House candidate attacks Conte

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives Mary Wentworth attacked incumbent Republican Silvio Conte for his "unmistakable bias toward the wealthy" last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Conte, she said receives contributions from corporations and residents outside the First Congressional district. As a result of heavy funding by outsiders and the "mythology that he is a moderate," Conte stays in office. He is anti-choice on abortion and has failed to do anything about the hispanic population of Holyoke being the poorest in the country, Wentworth said.

Conte has gone along with the Reagan administration policy of "excusing the rich and the corporations from paying taxes "while transfering funds from social services to the military budget," Wentworth said.

Sighting the endorsement of the Freeze voter '84 as a major boost to her campaign, Wentworth said the peace movement has raised people's consciousnesses to their vulnerability to nuclear annihilation.

Men have been socialized to deal with conflict by getting weapons, whether a fist or a gun, Wentworth said. Women, she said, will come out the loser in situations where force has to be used. "We have always been the peacemakers in family and communities, and now we have to be peacemakers in the world," Wentworth said.

Continued on page 4

Southwest furniture returning

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

Southwest area residents will get their mirrors back, and will have a chance to get soft chairs in their rooms, a Housing Services official said yesterday.

Charles E. Durant, assistant director of residential education for Southwest, said a form letter is in the mail to inform Southwest students that Housing Services reversed their earlier decision to remove chairs and mirrors from Southwest rooms.

The letter from the Southwest Area Government says that "new mirrors will be installed in every Southwest room in the coming weeks."

Soft chairs will be distributed by the House Councils and dorm staff, Durant said. Students have until Oct. 17 to request a soft chair, he said.

"If the requests exceed the number of chairs, SWAG and the House Councils will decide who gets them," Durant said.

The mirrors, soft chairs, and desk lamps were removed from Southwest rooms at the beginning of the semester. Housing officials said they could make dormitory furniture across campus match.

Originally, all the old furniture was going to be sold, but Durant said, "We decided student concerns were more important."

Durant said the decision was reversed after meetings with student representatives from the Southwest Area Government and the Student Government Association. He admitted that "a miscommunication between Housing Services and the residents of Southwest" was a reason for the decision reversal.

Durant also said, "There is a provision on the resale of state furniture, but I don't know if it's a state law."

In the letter announcing the reversal, Bill Collins, a senator from Moore House, said, "This agreement is a fine example as to how the Southwest Area Government can help the residents of Southwest. Collins signed the letter "SWAG Co-President," despite last week's student senate motion to not recognize Collins' position.

Inside

Life goes on after the Amherst frats disappear.....p.3
Women help out blood drive.....p.4
Family Feud movie.....p.9
BCP anniversary Finalizes.....p.11
Field hockey and women's soccer have big wins.....p.16

"People will remember you better if you always wear the same outfit"

—David Byrne of the Talking Heads

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

SHUTDOWN — A man walks by one of the 14 gay bathhouses and sex clubs in San Francisco that were closed because they allegedly promote and profit from the spread of AIDS.

City closes gay 'death' clubs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city's public health director Tuesday ordered 14 gay bathhouses and sex clubs to close immediately, accusing them of "fostering disease and death" by allowing indiscriminate sexual contacts that can spread AIDS.

"These businesses have been inspected on a number of occasions and demonstrate a blatant disregard for the health of their patrons and of the community," Dr. Mervyn Silverman said at a news conference.

He said the 14 establishments, including the 21st Street Baths, Boot Camp, Animals Club Baths of San Francisco, Jack's Turkish Bath and Jaguar Adult Book Store, were among 30 investigated by undercover health officials since an April ordinance went into effect banning "unsafe" sexual activity at sex parlors and bathhouses. The 14 have not complied with the ordinance, said Siverman, sho has been under pressure from Mayor Dianne Feinstein to order the shutdown.

Man ignites wife after TV show

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A 39-year-old man who wanted to "scare" his wife was being held Tuesday on suspicion of setting fire to her shortly after he watched a TV movie about a woman who burned her abusive husband to death, police said.

Sharon Brandt, 37, was hospitalized in critical condition with burns over 95 percent of her body after she was splashed with gasoline and set afire with a cigarette lighter at her home Monday night, said Police Capt. Ian Koprowski.

Assistant District Attorney Gerald Falk said her husband, wearing Army fatigues, was arrested on suspicion of attempted murder after the incident and was being held in the city jail.

Reagan changes his mind

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, abruptly shifting his policy on Social Security after a pointed challenge from Walter F. Mondale, on Tuesday categorically ruled out any reductions or changes in the benefits for current recipients or future retirees.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes announced the policy switch in response to the Democratic challenger's suggestion at a Cincinnati campaign stop that Reagan might revamp Social Security.

"The president will never stand for reduction in Social Security benefits for anybody who is now getting it or future recipients," Speakes said at the daily White House press briefing.

While Mondale battered away at Reagan's cuts in government assistance as examples of "official cruelty," the president met with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres at the White House.

Vice President George Bush and Mondale's running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, spent the day closeted with aides, studying briefing papers in preparation for their Thursday night debate.

Additional aid to Israel is considered by Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres on Tuesday that the UnitedStates will consider increasing U.S. aid to help Israel cope with the economic havoc caused by soaring inflation.

"We made clar our willingness to continue our dialogue and to cooperate the best way we can," Reagan said after meeting two hours with the Israeli prime minster at the White House. However, the president made no specific public commitment to any new aid level.

Peres, who lavished Reagan with praise, repeated his pledge to withdraw Israeli forces from Southern Lebanon if ways can be found to guarantee the security of Northern Israel. A pullout from Lebanon would ease the financial burdens on Israel.

A senior U.S. official, who briefed reporters only on condition he not be identified, said there are "some indications" that Syria, a key to any Israeli withdrawal, may be interested in cooperating in some kind of arrangement to guarantee the security of the Israeli border.

"But much remains to be seen, much remains to be put to the test," the official said.

Reagan announced that a panel of U.S. and Israeli officials had been instructed to find ways to enhance growth and development of the Israeli economy. He said these could include "structural adjustments," increased trade and investment and U.S. aid.

By "structural adjustments," Reagan evidently meant a plan under consideration in which American dollars would stand behind Israeli loans in world credit markets.

Reagan also said that the U.S. and Israeli delegation have been instructed to conclude negotiations within 30 days on forming a free-trade area to encourage Israeli exports to U.S. markets . That would involve the virtual elimination of of all tariffs on goods traded between the nations.

the Hungry U Restaurant

check out our happy hour munchie menu daily!

WEDNESDAY IS PASTA NIGHT for only $4.25

includes spaghetti with a choice of homemade meatball, sausage, fresh eggplant, sauteed mushrooms, or broccoli served with salad or soup, bread and butter, and a glass of wine or beer

Happy Hour 3-6, 9-close 7 days per week
2 in 1 drinks
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

★ HELP WANTED ★
Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen
for Spring 85 and next academic year

Free Room and Board
15-20 hrs/week at $4.25/hr
Application available at
Butterfield Dorm Kitchen
until October 19th

Newsmakers

DANIEL DEE SNIDER — The lead singer of the heavy metal group Twisted Sister, was arrested on disorderly conduct charges after parents compained about "profane and abusive langauge" during a concert, authorities said.

ALAN SHEPARD, — The first American to ride a rocket into space, was treated for minor injuries after he fell from a boat into a lake and was struck by a passing boat's propeller.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Gerry deSimas
Copy Editor Bob Burgess
Layout Technician Pete Soderberg
Photo Technician Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor Lesley Clark
Production: Dode Levenson, Chris Meagher, Brenda George, Kim Foster, Deborah Rugg, David Hazeltine, Michael Christ, Shelley Witkiewicz, Beth Bazinet, Norm Achin, Mat Atkins, Joy McCarty,and Faye.

Amherst College students mourn old frat days

By JOHN YONCE
Collegian Staff

The welcome mat outside the front door of Amherst College's Newport House still has the Greek letters Phi Delta Epsilon printed on it, but to some Amherst students, that's not the only remnant of the college's defunct fraternity system.

Newport House is one of eight buildings the Amherst College administration converted from fraternity houses to dormitories last summer after the Colleg's Board of Trustees voted to abolish the fraternity system last February.

Frat doormats now at a residence hall.

"I still find it uncomfortable calling it Hitchcock House, instead of Alpha Delta," said Jeff Shor, a resident of Hitchcock House and a former member of Alpha Delta fraternity.

Last year we lived together because we wanted to," Shor said."Now the building has lost a lot of character, at least looks-wise."

The Board of Trustees' decision was billed as part of a larger plan to improve social life on the campus, which was dominated by the fraternities. However, it is not clear whether the banning of fraternitites has changed the social scene.

Few changes in social life

"Much of the social scene (so far this year) has replicated what the fraternities provided - large campus parties with lots of alcohol," said Assistant Dean of Students Irwin Mussbaum, who is also the former fraternity advisor.

"Although fraternities no longer exist at Amherst," Mussbaum said, "we believe that friendships built through the fraternities have continued."

Much of the continuance of the associations has taken place in the form of informal "rushing" or GOTE's (Gatherings of The Elite) which have been held, according to one former fraternity member, by at least five out of the eight former fraternities.

Keeping fraternities together

"We're trying to keep the fraternities together as much as possible, "said one former fraternity member who asked not to be identified. "We're kind of doing it against the administration."

About 27 students have made an effort to maintain fraternities by petitioning for and receiving permission to establish a colony of the national Chi Psi fraternity. Chi Psi had a chapter at Amherst from 1864 to 1980, when it was disbanded for not admitting women.

"I am looking forward to the re-establishment of a chapter at the area of Amherst College,' said Herbert P. Carroll, executive director of Chi Psi.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

The former frat house Alpha Delta.

"We respect the wishes of the administration (about fraternities)" Carroll said. Carroll said he plans to visit the fraternity colony sometime in November. The colony has no permanent address, but lists an on-campus phone number.

Many students feel social life has suffered as a result of the fraternity ban.

"They (the administration) have a slightly distorted view of the defintion of social life," said Bea Trowbridge, a sophomore resident of Newport House. "They tend to view it in terms of money instead of fun and relaxation."

New administration policies

The administration has established a Stkdfmt Programming Council, endowed with $30,000 to provide social life for the college. The college has also given a total of $70,000 to the 32 residence halls, according to Mussbaum.

"The administration is still trying to formulate a social, and especially an alcohol policy," said sophomore Marc Ducnuigeen, a resident of Valentine House. "I'm not too optinistic for a good future. The administration is taking advantage of the disorganization of the students."

UM women publish organization guide

'Discrimination' cited for delay

By TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

After dealing with four years of "bureaucratic discrimination," two University of Massachusetts women have published the first training manual of its kind to address the development of women's centers and organizations.

The manual To Make A Difference: A Trainer's Guide For Working With Campus-Based Women's Centers and Other Women's Organizations, was written by Kathryn Girard and Joan Sweeney, co-directors of the Women's Equity Program at UMass.

Girard and Sweeney began working with the Women's Education Equity Act (WEEA) in 1977 to gain funds from the U.S. Department of Education in order to establish four regional leadership training centers across the country.

Girard said that the training centers were active in 1979, and the manual was complete in 1980, but "red tape and bureaucratic discrimination" prevented the publication of the guide. In 1981, Reagan created, in the U.S. Department of Education, a Publications and Audio Visual Advisory Committee (PAVAC) to prevent the duplication of similar government publications, Girard said.

This committee included one member who was instrumental in Reagan's campaign and one member who wanted to remove WEEA from the Department of Education reviews material submitted for governmental publication, Girard said. The Women's Center manual was submitted, Girard said, in 1981 and the committe claimed they have lost it. It was re-submitted, re-"lost", and after "finding" the manual six months later the committee rejected it for publication. WEEA, with the help of Massachusetts representative Silvio Conte, appealed twice and was twice refused the appeal, Girard said.

Only with the help and pressure from Conte's office did the manual pass through these bureaucratic obstacles and get approval for publication at the end of 1983, Girard said.

"Consistently across each age group (a pattern) that effected leaderhsip ability was the ability to think big," Girard said. The women in the mock meetings recognized and stated the necessity of a program, but then they would request the minimal amount of money to implement it, she said.

Women have been conditioned to expect the minimum when working "within a patriarchal setting" not only in business or financial situations, but in all situations, she said.

"How often do women say, 'This is what I need,' and with any belief expect to get it?" Girard asked.

Women calling themselves feminists have "a certain consciousness," though they have had the same "patriarchal" conditioning, Girard said.

"Our knowledge is often way ahead of our own behavior," she said. "Our language and our insight is way ahead of where we are personally."

Women may be afraid to identify themselves as feminists because men decide the definition of feminism "by throwing out scary labels," Girard said. "You have to puncture holes in these (stereotypical images) on a one-to-one basis," she said.

"The plan for global unification of women is not before me," Girard said, but "what we really have to take account for is what we do each day." Women must "reclaim" the word feminism and "take back our power," she said.

VOTING PROMOTED — Gerry Scoppeltuolo (left), Kris Chamberlain (center) and Tim Harris sing in support of voter registration outside the Student Union yesterday afternoon.

Fight, hit-and-run mar long weekend

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts police reported that three men were fighting with another man, at 5:22 a.m. Saturday.

The one man claimed he had glass in his eye and was taken to the infirmary and transfered to Cooley Dickinson Hospital at 6:37 a.m.,police said. All four involved in the incident were non-students and given trespass notices, police said.

A hit-and-run accident Sunday in lot 22 caused more than $500 damage to a 1979 Ford. The car's front bumper and front fender were damaged, police said.

Police reported that a 19-year old University of Massachusetts student was arrested Tuesday at 2:26 a.m. in lot 22 and charged with possession of an altered driver's license. The Southwood Apartments resident was reportedly driving on some grass in lot 22.

A 33-year-old Pittsfield man was arrested by police at 7:23 p.m. Friday on University Drive. Police said the driver was arrested for driving while under the influence of alcohol.

A 30-year-old Northampton man was arrested by police at 12:56 a.m. Sunday for operating a vehicle after suspension of his license. Police said they observed the man turning on Lincoln Avenue from Fearing Street when he failed to keep to the right, police said.

A fire extinguisher and mirror were reported stolen from Thoreau House at 3:24 a.m. Sunday. Police said they have suspects and the case is open.

Police said a 1975 Ford was broken into in lot 44. Police said that the passenger door and dashboard were damaged when the thieves attempted to steal the car's stereo valued at $150.

Police received a report of vandalism at the Fine Arts Center at 12:36 a.m. Saturday. Four window panes worth over $100 were broken. There are no suspects, police said.

Amherst police report DWI arrest, vandals

Amherst police said yesterday that a 23-year old Medway man was arrested Monday after he became irate after receiving a parking ticket. Police said he threw the ticket into the window of a police car, and drove away at high speed.

A patrolman had just placed the ticket on the man's winshield and walked away when the man approached and saw the ticket. Police pursued the man and placed him under arrest, charging him with driving while intoxicated (DWI), failure to provide a license and registration, and being a disorderly person.

A 39-year old Montague resident was topped on Amity Street early Monday morning after police observed him driving erratically. He was charged with DWI and taken to the police station, where a search revealed a small amount of marijuana. Police also charged him with possession of a class D. substance

In other police reports, an automobile owneed by an Amherst resident was struck in the right front quarter panel while it was parked at Hunan Gardens Restaurant, Monday night.

—PHIL SERAFINO

The PUB MUGS Are In!
Wednesday Nights 9-1
Music By RACK-A-DISC
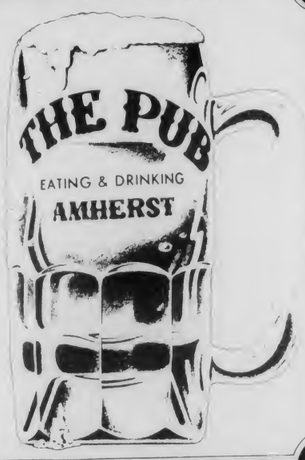
-Requests-
THE PUB
(Behind Pleasant St.)
AMHERST



ANTENNA & RF ENGINEERING GRADS

TALK TO THE FOREMOST RF COMMUNICATIONS RESEARCH LAB IN THE NATION

WHEELER LABORATORY
We'll be on campus: Wednesday, October 24

The Wheeler Laboratory at Hazeltine Corporation is world renowned for the role it has played in advancing RF communications for more than four decades. Founded by antenna pioneer, Dr. Harold Wheeler, the Laboratory's research and development efforts on behalf of industry and government have resulted in significant advancements in the design and development of phased arrays, millimeter-wave systems, wide-band small antennas and reflected antennas. Hazeltine's recent award of the Microwave Landing System contract by the FAA is a direct result of advanced developments in antenna technology by Wheeler Laboratory.

As we continue to grow, we seek highly qualified, innovative grads with a Bachelor's or Master's degree or Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering with an emphasis in Microwave Engineering.

At Hazeltine, you will also have the opportunity to participate in an accelerated Master's Degree Program in RF Engineering at N.Y. Polytechnical Institute. You can receive your advanced degree in less than two years while working at Wheeler Lab four days per week at full salary. And, you'll be working with the recognized leader in RF communications. You won't find a better opportunity for growth and advancement.

Come talk with our college recruiting representatives.

If you are unable to meet with us at this time, send your resume to: Ms. Doreen Cassidy, College Relations Director, telling her of your specific area of interest. Details on the diverse career opportunities at Hazeltine are available in your school placement office.

Hazeltine Corporation

Greenlawn, L.I., NY 11740

An Equal Opportunity Employer Committed to Affirmative Action
A Hazeltine Corporate Policy
U.S. Citizenship required

Blood drive aided by women donors

By LISA STRATOULY
Collegian Staff

A quick glance at the arms pumping blood in the Campus center reveals that at least half, if not more, belong to women.

Since college students have more opportunities to donate, Mary Andrews, a recruiter for the University of Massachusetts Red Cross program, said, the male-female ratio is balanced. In the real world, however, Andrews said that men out-donate women, due to societal pressures that limit female opportunities to donate.

"The opportunities for women to donate are hindered by such factors as pregnancy, weight, and the hemoglobin test," said Andrews.

"Women cannot give blood during pregnancy, or for six months following childbirth. It is more difficult for women to meet the weight requirement (110 lbs) than it is for men. And women more often fail the hemoglobin test, which measures the amount of iron present in the blood, due to their cyclical iron level," Andrews said.

Most female students living in an academic atmosphere are basically free from these pressures (with the exception of an inconsistent iron level) and therefore they donate more frequently, she said.

Andrews, five thousand pints are collected from UMass students each year and this amount is more than half that collected in the entire Hampshire county.

"The high school and college students in Western Massachusettes are the main source of blood for our program," Andrews said.

When asked what contributes to the over-all success of the program, Andrews mentioned the friendly, informal atmosphere of the donation room, as well as its small size.

She also said, "The overall success of the blood program depends upon the good will and generosity of young people."

★ law suit

Continued from page 1

Peter Wozniak, Physical Plant Operations Supervisor, said the project was not given enough priority.

"I think there's been a hesitancy to dive in and solve the nitty gritty problems that add up to the big problem. "No one had time to devote to the work," he said.

Wozniak said there was a lack of communication between the university, the contractor and the government. "The Bailey control panel was not here on time. They waited too long to tell the designer what type of controls were needed. A damper was ordered three years ago, with the corosion, we had to order replacement parts six weeks ago to make it operational.

★ Wentworth

Continued from page 1

Wentworth said she supported legislation that would create "alternative use" committees at all the companies supported by defense contracts to prepare for a peace-time economy rather than a war-time economy.

"The freeze movement has to learn to build coalitions, she said, and refrain from supporting candidates that are anti-choice on abortion.

"As long as we have male representatives who use choice as a bargaining chip our right to chose (to have an abortion) will be a question mark," she said.

AmHerst CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Wednesday thru Saturday
7:00 Basileus Quartet
9:00 Shoot the Piano Player directed by Truffaut
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00 (with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Please Call for an Appointment
Expires 10/31/84
Styles by Deborah
56 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610
FREE CONSULTATIONS

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
•Includes Mounting• plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wahlroba's Store
549-4704

Grad students air concern for TA salaries

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Staff

A survey of University of Massachusetts graduate students, initiated and conducted by a graduate senate executive officer has yielded "very few big surprises," according to Greg Graham, coordinator of the survey.

The majority of the students surveyed are concerned with issues dealing with assistantships which are teaching assistants (TA) research assitants (RA) and teaching associates to. They are concerned with the level of their salaries, and the criteria for awarding assistantships, Graham said.

"There is a great variation in the stipends paid to the same types of assistants," Graham wrote in his summary of the survey. "Some TA's earn three times as much as other TA's. Some RA's earn four times as much as other RA's," Graham added.

Sixty-eight percent of the TA's surveyed said they felt their pay was not adequate.

Sixty percent of TA's responding had full responsibility for teaching a class, lab or discussion section.

The question of criteria for awarding assistantships was a main issue with the unionization movement for graduate student employees which fell due to lack of support last spring. This unionization failure was Graham's original reason for conducting the survey.

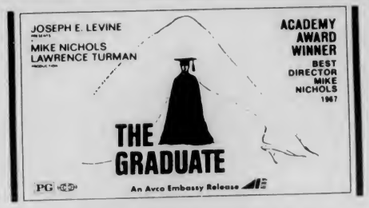
"The whole process for awarding assistantships is pretty hazy," said Graham, because there is now written criteria on awarding them. The distribution of assistantships contained in the Graduate Factbook produced by the Graduate Registrar's office, is "of dubious validity," Graham said.

Eighty-six percent of the students surveyed made increasing stipends a high priority, and 67 percent said they felt that there should be a policy which would make departments draw up specific criteria for awarding assistantships.

441 graduate students responded to the survey, and none of these were from the school of Education, an error Graham attributed to the computer program used to generate mailing labels. The rest of the repondents were distributed amont the other schools, but Graham said that he did not know how representative the sample was of graduate students.

Shear Delight
Beauty Salon
228 Triangle St.
Amherst
549-1502
COMPLETE HAIRSTYLING FOR MEN and WOMEN
Hours: Tues-Sat 9:00-5:30
Walk Ins Welcome
WASH CUT & BLO-DRI $10
req $12
offer good thru 10/20/84

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents
MIKE NICHOLS
LAWRENCE TURMAN
ACADEMY AWARD WINNER
BEST DIRECTOR MIKE NICHOLS 1967
THE GRADUATE
PG
An Avco Embassy Release
Wednesday, October 10, CCA at 5, 7, 9, 11
$1.00 at 5- $1.50 at 7, 9, 11
Sponsored by Gorman House Council



SPORT SPOT
the SPOT For Your SPORTING Needs
20% OFF on BIKE :
Nylon Jackets
2 pc. Nylon Warmups
Knit Shirts (short sleeve)
offer good with this coupon thru 10/18/84
Visit us
IN THE CAMPUS PLAZA
Next to Super Stop & Shop, Rte. 9, Hadley-Amherst Line open daily
personal checks accepted

NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE OF CHIROPRACTIC

As the need for specialized health care continues to grow, Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you enter a satisfying career taking care of people as a Doctor of Chiropractic.

Committed to high standards in education and research for over 40 years, Northwestern offers you comprehensive chiropractic training on a modern campus distinguished for its excellent facilities and dedicated teaching staff.

If you would like to know how Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you achieve your career goals, complete the form below or call the admissions office TOLL FREE at 1-800-328-8322, Extension 290 or collect at (612) 888-4777.

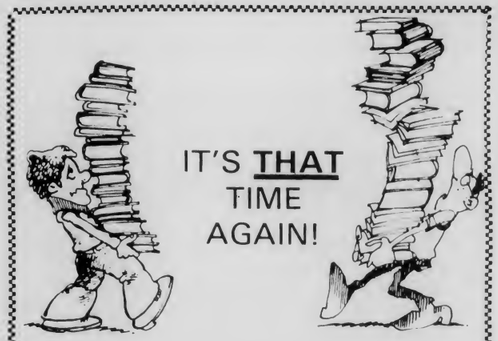
Please send me more information on
Northwestern College of Chiropractic
Name
Address
City State Zip
Phone ( ) Years of college experience
SEND TO: Northwestern College of Chiropractic,
Admissions Office, 2501 West 84th Street,
Bloomington, Minnesota 55431 401
1-800-328-8322, Extension 290; collect at (612) 888-4777



IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX
MUST BEGIN TO RETURN UNSOLD
FALL COURSE BOOKS TO THE PUBLISHERS
RETURNS START
OCTOBER 25
DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK - YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.-4 p.m.
the UNIVERSITY STORE's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

AFTER SHUDDERING TO A HALT FROM A TEMPORARY LACK OF FUNDS, THE MIGHTY MACHINERY OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT SLOWLY GRINDS BACK INTO MOTION

Random Notes

First a case of beer, then an empty feeling

Last Friday night, my girlfriend and I had just returned from a party. A friend of mine had left a case of beer in my car and I was in the process of carrying it back to my room, where I expected him to pick it up later, when I was asked to stop by a police officer. He asked me if I was of age. No, I answered, explaining whose beer it was and why I was carrying it. Of course this was irrelevant and I was given a choice- spend a night in the hokey or dump it. There wasn't any need to answer, and my girlfriend and I went to work. Twenty-four cans later the officer bid us adieu and repeated his warning.

I'm not the only one this has ever happened to, so I'm not complaining. Nor am I blaming the police officer. He was courteous throughout and simply acting on orders from the General Court. It's just that the whole thing got me thinking.

The Twenty-sixth Amendment in 1971 gave 18 year-olds the right to vote. This makes them eligible to run for most political offices, allows them to possess firearms, makes them adults in the eyes of the courts, and compels them to register for the draft.

However, they can't drink. There are many logical reasons for this. No one can ignore the highway death stats pushed up because of young drinkers. Nevertheless, the drinking law is inconsistent with the Twenty-sixth Amendment. By denying a right and extending others, you have created a half citizenship, which many argue, offers responsibility without privilege.

As you can see, it's this galling inconsistency that makes my logic-based brain itch. There seem to be two alternatives to clearing up this jungle of contradictory laws. The first is to reduce the drinking age to 18. This was the case for the first half of the '70s. It was consistent, but produced tragic results on the highways.

The second alternative is to repeal the Twenty-sixth Amendment and offer an amendment which would make twenty-one the age of majority. This would, it's true, take away the right to vote from those of us presently underaged. It would also put off registering for the draft, make us minors in the courts and all the protection that status entails, and (in my mind, the most important) save us considerable amounts of money in income taxes (minors pay much less a percentage of their income). This was the case in most states before the adoption of the Twenty-sixth Amendment, and naturally more consistent than what we've got now. It's a trade-off, but a far fairer, more honest, more logical proposition than we've got now.

Bud Keegan is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Gays should expect same rights as others

In the Collegian Wednesday, Rusty Denton expresses views that gays should not be accepted into mainstream society because some people find their lifestyle "immoral."

Morality is very subjective, and it is offensive and shortsighted for one person to impose his or her moral views on another. I am angered by Denton's views, and disappointed that these "moral" arguments are still surfacing.

Gays are people--normal, healthy, contributing members of society. A person who does not recognize this simply has an innacurate grasp of the facts.

Gays do not need to justify their existence to anyone. Gays exist. And gays have a right to expect to live their lives with openness, respect and dignity.

Paul A. Barrows
Sunderland

Blunders, blunders and more blunders

These remarks are a bit late (due to the pressure of other work), but I couldn't let them pass unsaid.

Your September 27 issue contained an article about the participation of three UMass students in an anti-missile protest in Cambridge. Protestor Jonathan Spaulding, following his arrest for trespassing, was given the option of doing community service in lieu of a fine.

Your article continues: "We will probably work on the (burnt) peach pagoda in Leverett," said Spaulding, a Soviet Studies major.

Really, Collegian editors. "The burnt peach pagoda"? A typo I can understand, but a compound fracture is a lot harder to explain.

Someone--either the reporter, or Spaulding himself--appears to have confused the Peace Pagoda being built by Japanese and American Buddhists in Leverett, with the "burnt" Tibetan Buddhist pagoda in Hawley, which was firebombed a year or so ago by disgruntled Vietnam veterans. The two pagodas, and the two groups, are not related (except spiritually--and even there, the two Buddhist orders have quite different kinds of practice).

Please get your facts straight before blundering off into the ozone with bad research! I suppose we're lucky it wasn't re-named the "apricot pagoda" by your wayward typesetters!

Speaking of which, the following sentence occurs in an opinion piece by Bob Brigham in the next day's Collegian (Sept. 28): "One of the goals of gay fights advocates is to pass laws that prevent discrimination..." Gay fights? Some ultra-militants might be pleased...but I seriously doubt that this is what Mr. Brigham wrote in his original copy.

One last technical note: please make sure all the typesetters know that a quad-left-return--not a simple return--is necessary to end a paragraph...otherwise, the line spaces out to infinity. This seems to be happening a lot lately.

I enjoy the Collegian . But I'm a typographer myself. These things bother me. You owe it to your readers, and yourselves, to set professional standards and try to maintain them.

Dave Drake
Greenfield

All Collegian columnists please remember there is a mandatory staff meeting in the newsroom tonight at 7. Following that there will be an editorial staff meeting for columnists and cartoonists, all columnists must attend or will lose columnist status.

I'm hooked on the Opinion page

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:

an evening with

"The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Now

UMass ID required with student ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center, and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

More programs, not attacks

Deb Piltch
Gerry Scoppettuolo

Recent attempts to trivialize the struggle for lesbian/gay rights by comparing the struggle to a mere moral or lifestyle preference that need not be protected by law can be viewed not only as an attack on gay people but on all oppresed people. Recent views appearing on this page belittle the oppression that lesbians and gay men face by comparing it to the unavoidable oppression that people of color, women, and the disabled face because these people cannot come out of the closet.

If this were an accurate analogy, one might be sympathetic to this argument. However, this is not the case. We suggest a more accurate analogy: comparison between the Jewish population and the gay and lesbian population. Lest we remind you that Jews are often subject to pervasive anti-Semitism, just as lesbians and gays are subject to homophobic attacks, Jews, like gays and lesbians can deny their culture and assimilate. They can "choose" not to "come out of their closet", to deny their Jewishness. We find this rationale, whether applied to Jews or to gays, to be an abridgement of individual rights and identities and is reprehensible.

As to whether the struggle for lesbian/gay liberation is a legitimate civil rights struggle or not, perhaps we should consider the views of people and organizations that are part of the civil rights movement. Following is a partial list of those who not only view sexual orientation as a civil rights issue, but who also support that struggle: Coretta Scott King (widow of the late Dr. Martin Luther King), Rev. Jesse Jackson, Rev. Joseph Lowery (president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference), the American Civil Liberties Union, the YWCA, the AFL-CIO, the National Education Association, the American Federation of Teachers, the National Conference of U.S. Mayors, the Town of Amherst, the City of Boston, the United Church of Christ, the American Psychological Association, the American Psychiatric Association, the American Public Health Association, the American Medical Association, the American Bar Association, the American Library Association, the Mass. Teachers Association, the National Organization of Women, the Unitarian Church, the American Nurses Association, the National Lawyers Guild, Chancellor Duffey, UMass/Amherst, Sens. Kennedy and Tsongas.

Furthermore, the notion that these civil rights represent a deterioration in basic American values is radical right wing ideology characteristic of groups like the Moral Majority and Citizens for Decency Through the Law. These groups and this ideology are on the attack against affirmative Action, Title VII and Title IX of the Civil Rights Act, abortion rights, union rights and more. What a perversion of the truth to portray this right wing ideology as even knowledgeable about civil rights. It is destructive of civil rights.

No oppressed group can rely on the good intentions of people who say they are for you but not your civil rights in the law. What if gays, people of color, Jews, the disabled, women, the elderly had only the "good intentions" of the radical right-wing upon which to rely? Would anyone feel safe? Perhaps as 23-year-old Charlie Howard was being hurled to his drowning death in Bangor, Maine last July by three teenagers who objected to his sexual orientation, he had time to think, in the last few seconds of his life, about the value of the idea that you can be for gay people but not their civil rights. We wish that he were still here and that he didn't have to die because someone objected to his sexual orientation. But his death and the violence directed against lesbian and gay people in their lives point out the need for protective laws.

Finally, lesbians and gays cannot be separated from other oppressed groups because gay people are parts of all those groups. Just ask the gay folks who belong to such gay groups as Black Men/White Men Together, El Comite Latino, Am Tikva (Jewish), Dignity (Catholics), Integrity (Protestant), Daughters of Bilitis (Women), Disabled People's Liberation Front etc. When gays are attacked as a class, all groups feel the pain. What we need is more support and educational programs at UMass for gay people - not attacks that hurt everybody.

Deb Piltch is the director of SCERA
Gerry Scoppettuolo is the Advocate for Research and Training.

Letters policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

And now for Round Two

William Spain

So the first big Reagan-Mondale debate is over. Now, as the dust settles, it is time for vultures (or writers, if you prefer) to pick apart the remains of the vanquished. The problem is that there seems to be a difference of opinion as to just who ended up eating dust and who walked away clean. As for me, I am perfectly willing to dip my beak into both piles of carrion left on the field.

I told everyone a few weeks ago that these battles would be as much fun to watch as Monday Night Football. I was wrong. They are a lot better. You don't often get to see the president of the United States with fear in his eyes. It is a good thing for him that he was a movie actor. If he had tried to make it on the stage, he would have been lucky to get a part as a piece of furniture. The man has serious trouble handling unexpected variations from the script. His usual recourse is to either tell a joke or get angry. Come to think of it, we all should be happy that his aides did not wake him up when our warplanes were fired upon by the Libyans.

All in all, I would have to say that Ronnie had a rather rough time of it last Sunday night. His grasp of statistics, never a strength, exceeded even its usual appalling level. The explanation of why the deficit is going to vanish as the lines converge is a prime example of the simplistic way the guy's mind works. It astounds me that so many business-minded folk are going to vote for someone with fiscal logic like that. Does the hairstyle that won the hearts of Jane, Nancy and millions of moviegoers turn you on, too?

In the interest of fairness, I will now deride Mr. Modale's performance. He, after losing the fight over the format, let the Reagan image-makers force him into their game. I was sorry to see him pandering to the "America-is-kicking-ass" fad that is so loved by his opponent. Presidential elections should not be decided by which candidate can look more sincere while saying the pledge of allegiance. Of course maybe I am just miffed because I bet that Reagan would mention the Olympics more times. You can be sure that I did not enjoy kissing that money goodbye. Thanks a lot, Fritz.

I noticed that Wally was a bit too gracious to the old codger. After hearing him give the presidential compliments for the second time, I was left in doubt as to who he plans to vote for come November. Reagan was allowed to get away with some pretty outrageous statements that night. I realize that one should be patient when confronted by senility. But when it is for such a good cause...?

And now, I will arrogantly offer some advice to these two professional politicians. I am well aware that the chances of either gentleman picking up this issue of the Collegian are fairly remote. That doesn't matter.

To Walter Mondale, I offer these observations:

-Keep smiling, it seems to disturb him.

-Look him in the eye more, it definitely disturbs him.

-Don't forget to crucify him on the environment.

-Forget you ever met Jimmy Carter.

For Ronald Reagan, I have only one recommendation. If the first round was any indication you had better wear rubber underwear next time, you are going to need it.

William Spain is a Collegian columnist.

The truth about Columbus

Dani Burgess

What a great weekend! Good weather, a day off from school, but, what was the occasion? Oh yes, Columbus Day. Good ole Columbus, the Spanish "explorer" who "discovered" America. If you're like me, that's about all I learned in primary education, but last year in a social science course I read a book by Howard Zinn called A People's History of the United States which shed some light on the historic distortions we have received in our education.

Columbus was on a voyage specifically seeking gold and slaves. On October 12, 1492 (492 years ago Friday) Columbus landed on an island in the Bahamas. He was greeted by the inhabitants, the Arawak people, who obviously discovered America long before Columbus was born. Columbus, being navigationally confused erroneously thought he was in India and thus the label "Indians" evolved. Columbus wrote his feelings about the Native Americans in his log, he said "They...brought us parrots and many other things, which they exchanged...They willingly traded everything they owned...they do not bear arms...With 50 men we could subjugate them all and make them do whatever we want." (italics mine). He also wrote, "As soon as I arrived in the Indies, on the first island which I found, I took some of the natives by force..."

Columbus built the first European military base out of the grounded Santa Maria, on the Island of Hispaniola (Haiti) and left 39 crew members stationed there with instructions to find and store gold. He then returned to Spain with what little gold he had found and some Arawak slaves.

The King and Queen of Spain gave Columbus seventeen ships and over twelve-hundred men. Upon his return to Hispaniola, Columbus found that the Arawak people had finally revolted and his men had been killed. Columbus built another base, and was determined to obtain gold and slaves. Columbus launched a massive slave expedition, capturing 1,500 Arawak people.

Columbus, still eager for gold, ordered all of the Native Americans age fourteen and over to collect a specified amount of gold every three months. In exchange for the gold they were given copper beads. Arawaks found without the necessary beads had their hands cut off and bled to death. In two years Columbus and his men were responsible for the death of over half of the Arawak people. In 1515 roughly 50,000 Arawaks were left.

Samuel Eliot Morison, a Harvard historian, wrote in his popular biography, Christopher Columbus, Mariner (1954) "The cruel policy initiated by Columbus and pursued by his successors resulted in complete genocide."

The Arawak women were frequently raped, and soldiers would "test the sharpness of their blades" by "knifing Indians by the tens and twenties and cutting off slices of them...". Columbus Day, A Celebration of Genocide.

It seems brutally inconsistent that one month we celebrate Columbus and another month we celebrate Martin Luther King. I don't know what we, as humanistic people, should do about such inconsistency, but at least we can set the story straight.

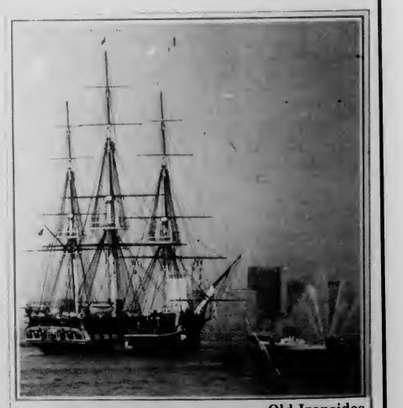
Dani Burgess is a UMass student.

Columbus should've discovered this!
Bluewall Cafeteria
presents
ITALIAN LUNCHEON
~Menu~
Chicken Parmesan
Spaghetti & meatballs
Zucchini Risoto
Parslied potatoes
Garlic Bread
Choc.~pecan pudding
Wednesday, Oct. 10
11:30–2:00

FINE YARNS & NEEDLEWORK SUPPLIES
The Creative Needle
ANNOUNCES AN ANNIVERSARY SALE
Now through Sunday, October 14th, 1984
20% - 50% off entire stock
Be sure to register for Door Prizes
OPEN MONDAY to SATURDAY, 9:30-5:30; SUNDAY, 1-5
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS, 233 N. Pleasant St.,
Amherst, 549-6106

99¢
James H. McManus
eating place
and 99.3 FM HOT SPOT bring you
99¢ Specials
Thursday, October 11th
99¢ Bottle Beer domestic brands
(with food purchase, until 12 midnight)
99¢ Overstuffed New Englander Sandwich
99¢ A Regular Order of Potato Skins
with bacon and cheese sauce
99¢ 2 eggs, toast and coffee
Sun-Thurs 6 am-3 am; Fri and Sat open 24 hours
Super Stop & Shop Campus Shopping Center
Rte. 9, Hadley/Amherst 256-6889
Positive ID required
Coca-Cola
Listen to 99.3 FM for further details

IMPACT
NEW ENGLAND
Presents
LASER PHOTO FOR SALE



Old Ironsides
BOSTON
DATE: Oct. 10 – 12
LOCATION: in front of the UNIVERSITY STORE
TIME: 10 - 4
PRICE: 3 for $10 or $4 each
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Arts

Pianists tackle Stravinsky

By ROBIN ROSIELLO
Collegian Correspondent

A free faculty recital with the unusual featuring of an undergraduate music major begins this month's series of diverse and interesting concerts at the University's Fine Arts Center.

Pianist Nigel Coxe, a member of the University of Massachusetts music faculty, will perform works of Schubert, Stravinsky and Grainger on Thursday, Oct. 11 at 8p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall. Amy Gates, a senior music major currently studying with Mr. Coxe, will join him for the performance of Igor Stravinsky's Sonata for two pianos. As an undergraduate university student who must fulfill core as well as music major requirements, Ms. Gates' opportunity and ability to perform such a demanding 20th-century piece is unusual.

Nigel Coxe, a Jamaican-born, British-trained pianist who is now a resident in the United States has in recent years combined teaching at the University with performing in Europe, Australia and the United States.

For Mr. Coxe who has also taught at the Royal Music Academy in London, it has been an interesting challenge to develop the fundamentals of teaching so that university students - as opposed to music conservatory students who study music exclusively - can make the maximum use of a limited amount of time. Along with individual lessons, therefore, the music department has weekly studio performance classes in which music students gain valuable performing experience, receive criticism, and most importantly develop and articulate their own critical evaluations of a performance. These studio classes take place every Tuesday at 11:15a.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall where anyone interested may listen.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Pianist Nigel Coke with his student Amy Gates

A rare happy moment from Irreconcilable Differences

A Hollywood family feud

Irreconcilable Differences
directed by Charles Shyer at the Hampshire Mall Cinema

By SUE IZZO
Collegian Correspondent

Picture this - a child so wronged by her parents that she decides to divorce them. Poignant, huh? Does it make you want to cry? O.K., now try to picture that scene as the main plot in a comedy. Does it seem misplaced? Awkward? Well, if you answered "yes" to any of the above questions, you will probably be disappointed in the film, Irreconcilable Differences, which openbed at the Hampshire Mall last Friday.

The outline of this movie is rather basic in it's content. A child, Casey Brodsky (Drew Barrymore) takes her parents, Albert Brodsky (Ryan O'Neal) and Lucy Van Patten Brodsky (Shelley Long) to court and then we, the audience, get to see flashbacks of the events leading up to the divorce and, I guess, make our own decision of guilt. The subject of a family seperation and the trauma that it brings on could have been an ideal compassionate film, but, unfortunately for the audience, it is turned into a farce with a childish atmosphere.

The screenplay seems to be at fault here. Many of the scenes, throughout this film, are predictable and pathetically simple. I had to laugh when Albert Brodsky (Ryan O'Neil) quoted Orson Welles by saying "Film is the most emotional medium." Well, if this is true, then this movie bored me to tears.

To say the film was a total failure wouldn't be fair to the one person involved who seems to work harder than anyone else at trying to make her character somewhat believable. Shelley Long succeeds in most of her attempts to show the audience that the character of Lucy Van Patten Brodsky is not as one-sided as the rest.

In direct contrast to Long is Ryan O'Neal. Watching him in this film, it's obvious why we haven't seen much of him in the past years. His line deliveries are forced in tone and have no thought behind them.

Drew Barrymore is in a league of her own. Her acting in this film makes the audience pity her, not because of the character that she is portraying, but because she seems like a child actress that has been spoiled by the movie industry. She has a mature appearance that seems much too old for an eight year-old girl. It is un-nerving to see someone that young with the wisdom of a forty five year old. Be prepared for a lesson in parental morals at the end of this movie, presented by none other than Miss Barrymore. This film is so poorly written acted and directed that it makes one consider a childless life.

All in all, I felt that Irreconcilable Differences was a drawn out, poorly written film. Where's the People's Court when you need it, anyway? I wouldn't recommend it, unless you've got absolutely nothing else to do (this includes homework!) Irreconcilable Differences just doesn't pass the bar.

Desire Under the Elms
by EUGENE O'NEILL
October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

Countdown to Halloween '84
16% OFF TODAY
the Halloween Shop at FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

This unique college campus is limited to only 500 students...

Applications are being accepted now for Spring and Fall Voyages.
...maybe you'll be one!
Study around the world, visiting Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Sri Lanka, India, Egypt, Turkey, Greece and Spain
Choose from 60 voyage related courses to earn 12-15 transferable hours of credit from the University of Pittsburgh
Develop an awareness of our relationship with other countries and a first hand understanding of world issues.
Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed
Special Slide Presentation
Oct. 10, 6:30, Room 165-169
Oct. 11, 6:30, Room 101
SEMESTER AT SEA
For details, write or call:
(800) 854-0195
toll-free
Financial Aid is available to qualified students
Institute for Shipboard Education
University of Pittsburgh
2E Forbes Quadrangle • Pittsburgh, PA 15260

COUPON-COUPON-COUPON

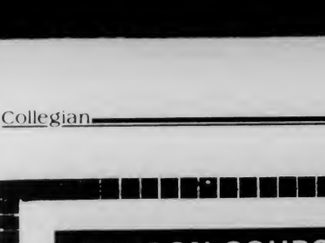
FREE 16 OZ. SODA
with purchase of whole sub.

the sub
11 A.M. TO 2 A.M. / 7 DAYS
33 E. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST / 549-5180

The Kick Off
expires 10/12/84

The UMass Department of Theater presents its production of Eugene O'Neill's Desire Under the Elms October 11-15 and 17-20 in the Rand Theater.

IN 1960, THE PILL GAVE WOMEN A NEW FREEDOM.
IN 1984, THE SPONGE GIVES WOMEN A NEW CHOICE.



It's been a long time. Twenty-four years, and there hasn't been a sensible new option in birth control.

Until Today.™ Today, the 24-hour Contraceptive Sponge.

Today is a soft, comfortable sponge that contains Nonoxynol-9, the same effective spermicide women have been using for over 20 years.

The Sponge is easy to use. You just moisten it thoroughly with water and insert it like a tampon, and it works for a full 24 hours.

With The Sponge, you don't have to worry about hormonal side effects. And no other non-prescription vaginal contraceptive has been proven more effective.* It's been through seven years of extensive testing, and over 17 million Sponges have been sold.

Of course, you don't need a prescription for The Sponge. It can be found at your local drug store and at selected supermarkets. In the 3-pack or convenient 12-pack.

And the Today Sponge is the only contraceptive that comes with someone to talk to: our 24-hour Today TalkLine. If you have any questions, or you're just wondering if The Sponge is right for you, visit your student health center or give us a call at 800-223-2329. (In California, 800-222-2329.)

Finally, you have the spontaneity you want and the protection you need. But, best of all, you have another choice you never had before.

Until Today.

SAVE $1.00
ON TWO 3-PACKS OR ONE 12-PACK.

51366 100140

Offer Expires 12/31/85

*Clinical tests have concluded that women can expect an annual effectiveness rate of 80-91—if they use the Today Sponge consistently and according to label instructions. © 1984 VLI Corp. Today and The Sponge are trademarks of VLI Corp.

VOLUTEERS NEEDED
FOR WRITING DIAGNOSTIC TEST
FRESHMEN—SOPHMORES—JUNIORS—SENIORS
GREAT OPPORTUNITY TO EVALUTE YOUR WRITING SKILLS !!!
MWF—UNTIL OCTOBER 19
PARTICIPANTS AND RESULTS WILL REMAIN CONFIDENTIAL
FOR APPOINTMENT CONTACT;
COMMUNICATION SKILLS CENTER
73 BARTLETT HALL 545-0018/0924

College Party Weekend
in $68. MONTREAL
includes
* Round Trip Transportation
* 3 days, 2 nights
Hotel Sherbourg, Downtown Montreal
November 2, 3, 4

Night Clubs open 'til 4 AM
Drinking Age 18
No Roadblocks

Call ERIC 549-5017

Stop in to
BRAD'S GRAPEVINE
at the
VILLAGE INN
for a quiet
glass of wine, beer
or a mixed drink
(open at 4:00)

Or if you're hungry try:
- Brad's Mexican Food
- Super Burger Baskets (biggest in town)
- Specialty Fried Chicken
- Light Meals

all at very reasonable prices
BRAD'S - 85 Amity St., Amherst

Black Affairs

BCP/Ahora finalizes anniversarywith gala events

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

A gala celebration with Vietnamese, Portuguese and Latin American folk dances as well as speakers finalized the week-long BCP/AHORA anniversary celebration at the University of Massachusetts.

Keynote speaker, Dr. Cleveland Donald, associate to Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey and adjunct associate professor of history, read W. H. Orden's Child of Achilles, a poem about the Trojan War.

Because the poem can also be seen as a tale of two cities, the struggle waged between Athens and Sparta during the Peloponissian War in the Fifth century. There is a connection with the University and the role its students will later play in society, Donald said.

Donald thinks of the University as both a city and as individual citizens, he said. Students must excersise their rights by becoming full participants he said.

"Students are to the University what citizens are to the city," he said adding there are three ways a student can become active. Students can act as an ostrich "burying their heads in the sand ignoring the problems existing." Or she can exercise Jonathan Swift's proposal of stepping onto somebody's foot, or he/she can play the role of a good samaritan, Donald said.

Donald said if UMass had enough "good samaritan students, the University would have the caliber "to be a first rate city."

"Students are the essential element of the character of the University" he said.

Edmundo Velazquez, supervisor of the department of social services in Springfield reiterated the history of the Bilingual Collegiate Program, not for mere repetition, but because "it is a history that must be told constantly. It is your future and our tradition and it has to continue."

"I hope you continue the struggle the way we started."
—Edmundo Velazquez, Supervisor of Springfield Deparment of Social Services

"What we did had to be done," Velazquez said adding "you must participate and keep alert because no one knows the future. Programs like this have to justify themselves," he said.

Luis Fuentes, associate professor at the School of Education said BCP's staff share a sense of community, a sense of ownership and commitment to their goals of increasing the number of bilingual students to the University.

"I hope you continue the struggle the same way we started," Velazquez said.

Velazquez said BCP's influence has expanded as far as Bayland, New Jersey where a college uses BCP as a model for a program offering its students the same advantages.

African students appoint three temporary members

By MARANN CASSELL
Collegian Staff

The African Student Association of the five college area in a monthly meeting last week discussed whether to replace some executive officers that are not fulfilling their duties. Alfred Getonga, the association's president said there are three positions that are occupied where officers of those slots are not fulfilling their duties. The remaining four officers of the executive board are currently left to take on their duties, he said.

"This is not fair for only four members to be left with their duties as well as ours. It is too much for us. This is why we want to appoint new officers to the executive office to take their position until Feburary when we have our general election," he said.

A representative from Mount Holyoke college said, it is unfair for the president to call the general meeting for this pupose. "First of all Mr. President you can not ask us to partake in the appointment of new member to these offices because you have not notified these people in writing, you have not presented these documents to us. I am not doubting your word but, in order to abide by the constitution you must meet these requirements before you come and bring this to the general meeting," but, since you have not done your part, we can not impeach or appoint anyone," Morgie Maskeren said. Mbugi Mutala vice President of the association said, how can we notify these people when we haven't been able to locate people from last semester.

"But we can't go by everything the constitution says, we have to exist, the job has to get done. This is why we need to appoint temporary members to their position until the February election. We are a new organization and we do not want to impeach anyone, but, we must go on, Mutala said.

The members all agreed that there should be temporary officers. The position duties were given and new members were appointed voluntarily to the executive office.

The new officers are Steve Baffour, secretary, Jabu Mphielala, assistant secretary, and Masila Mutysia, public relations officer.

Old and new members from the five college area also reviewed last year's events and set their goals for this year.

Announcement

Casa Latina will hold the third session of FUNCTIONAL SPANISH beginning on October 15, 1984. The purpose of this course is to facilitate the interaction of the community at large with Latinos, while providing basic communicative skills and a deeper understanding foucs on mental health issues.

- During this course students will develop a vocabulary related to topics of interest designed by the class.
- Particpants will acquire fundamental grammar skills that will allow the writing and speaking of simple sentences in Spanish.
- Latino and Latin American Issues will be examined.

TONIGHT
JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place
Ladies Night SPECIAL
FREE BUFFET
and 25¢ Drinks 8-10

MOOSEHEAD BEER NIGHT
THE MOOSE IS LOOSE
AT JUSTIN RYAN's shirts & prizes 7-11
$1.00 Well Drinks
for everyone till 12:00

SHOHAN COMMUNICATIONS

October 1,1984

To the Editor:

I recently ran an advertisement with the Collegian for student interns for my advertising agency, Shohan Communications. The response was outstanding. More than 25 individuals responded. The enthusiam and interest of the students I saw speaks very well for your Communications and Marketing Departments and for the overall quality of the U.Mass. student.

It is gratifying to see such mature and intelligent individuals trying to seek even more opportunities for themselves. Again, thank you and I will know where to turn for other such projects in the future.

Sincerely,
Rachel Shohan, President

81 Bridge St., Northampton, MA 01060 413-586-2135

"The Best Chinese Food"

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden
Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE

The Best Chinese Food"
Try Our New

Luncheon Specials From $2.25 served 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

and

New Buffet & Sunday Brunch ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Buffet Served 5-8 Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served Sunday 11;30-3

Children under 10 $3.00

1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot & Sour Soup

Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.

10 Belchertown Road
at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

OUR CHALLENGES TODAY ARE SETTING THE STANDARDS FOR TOMORROW . . .

WE'RE M/A-COM LINKABIT.

M/A-COM LINKABIT offers engineers and computer scientists unique challenges and opportunities — the kind they can find only in today's most advanced technology environments. We provide all the dynamic ingredients necessary for a successful professional career: cutting edge technology, rapid company growth, a supportive management team and challenging, exciting projects.

Our Government Systems Group, headed by Dr. Harry Van Trees, has a national reputation for excellence in C³I, military satellite systems, satellite, satellite terminals and networks. We're currently involved in building on-board processing devices for military satellites, network research and applications, systems engineering and technical assistance to the DOD which includes support of the Military Satellite Office and MILSTAR.

Furthermore, M/A-COM LINKABIT promotes and rewards your innovative ideas and individual initiative. Engineers can follow the flow of idea to product. And a take-charge professional can build a lasting reputation!

Find your place at M/A-COM LINKABIT. To set up an appointment, contact your Placement Office or send a detailed letter or resume to: Mr. Steve Parker, M/A-COM LINKABIT, 8619 Westwood Center Drive, Vienna, VA 22180. We are an equal opportunity employer. U.S. citizenship is required.

M/A-COM

M/A-COM LINKABIT

We'll be on your campus soon to interview both December and June graduates.

Hypercurricula

RESIDENTIAL ASSISTANT COUNCIL MEETING— This semester's first meeting of Residential Assistants concerned with improving their working environment. This is a forum for improving communication between the Housing administration and RAS/SHRS and it's also a forum to address improvements in the R.A. contract. 6:00p.m., C.C. 805

UMASS BIKE CLUB MEETING— This weeks meeting includes a fall foliage slide show, repair demonstration, day and weekend trip plans, and announcement of more of the club's activities. 7:30p.m., C.C. 803

IF YOU LOVE THIS PLANET— A short, gripping film on Nuclear Holocaust and why working for Peace should be a priority in our lives. Discussion to follow. 2:00 C.C. 804, 7:30 Baker basement classroom 9:00 Grayson Lounge

PSA— The International Meditation Society is sponsoring a free introductory lecture on the Transcendental Meditation Program on Wed. Oct. 10 at 7:30p.m.. The lecture will be held at C.C. 911-15 and is open to the public. Come find out why over a million Americans are practicing the TM technique daily. For more information, please call 549-5335.

HELEN CALDICOTT, 'WE THE PEOPLE'— A video of Helen Caldicott's talk in Brattleboro on the problems of the nuclear arms race. 12:30, in front of the Hatch and in front of the Mini Store

PEOPLE'S GAY ALLIANCE RAP GROUP— Discussion group to share on issues related to gay/lesbian/bisexual. All welcome. 7:30p.m., Check Campus Center Schedule

PEOPLE'S GAY ALLIANCE SOCIAL HOUR— Congeniality and Sociability in a relaxed atmosphere. Refreshments. Bring something to share. All welcome. 3-5p.m., Check Campus Center

UMASS CHAPTER WILDLIFE SOCIETY MEETING— Ken Elowe will speak on the Black Bear in Massachusetts. 7:00p.m., 312 Holdsworth Hall

STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD— Third meeting of the semester. Not too late to join. Please come and see what SHAB is all about. 5:30, 302 University Health Services

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING— THERE WILL BE NO Israeli Folk Dancing on Wednesday, Oct. 10th. Next meeting is Oct. 24th.

SUCCOT SERVICES— On Wed., Oct. 10, there will be services at 7:00p.m. in the Dukes Room (S.U. 310), followed by Kiddush in the succah. 7:00p.m., Dukes

WMUA STATION BODY MEETING— Nomination and elections for Production Director and Third World Affairs Director will be held at this meeting. New members are always welcome. 7:00, 101CC

OLDER STUDENTS SOCIAL AND MEETING— 'Live it up' with the 25 Plus Club. Meet other older students in the relaxed atmosphere of the Faculty Club (behind Morrill). For info. call 545-2148, 4-7p.m.,

STUDIO ARTS CENTER INTERNATIONAL IN ITALY— Informational meeting on SACI Program in Italy with Director showing slides. 2:30 - 4:30p.m., CC 905-909

USED RECORDS & TAPES
WE BUY DYNAMITE RECORDS
SAVE-THE-EARTH SALE:
10% of Oct. 11th's Receipts to be donated to the American Friends Service Committee to SAVE THE EARTH and You, too!!! Thursday, Oct. 11
Thornes, a marketplace plus!
584-1580, 150 Main St Northampton

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

All Collegian Staff
should attend the semester's first STAFF MEETING 7 p.m. tonight
in the News Room
We will discuss problems and good points of the year so far, announce new equipment plans, and take YOUR comments, suggestions, criticisms.

We will also make plans for the Collegian HALLOWEEN PARTY

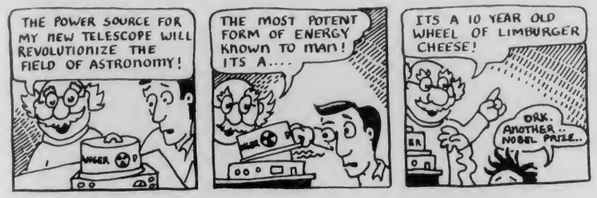
Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

SORRY TO KEEP YOU WAITING SO LONG, MICHAEL. IT'S BEEN ONE OF THOSE DAYS.
OH, I UNDERSTAND, MRS. CONGDON. IT WASN'T ANY PROBLEM.
MICHAEL, I'D LIKE YOU TO MEET OUR PRESIDENT, MR. BELLOWS.
SO YOU WANT TO BE AN AD MAN, EH, SON?
WELL, I THINK SO, SIR..
I MEAN, I CAN'T BE CERTAIN, OF COURSE, BUT IT SEEMED WORTH LOOKING INTO, YOU KNOW, TO SEE IF IT WORKED OUT, IF IT FELT RIGHT AND.. I.. UH..
TRY AGAIN, DEAR.
SO YOU WANT TO BE AN AD MAN, EH, SON?
YES, SIR. WITH A VENGEANCE.
GBTrudeau

Today's Weather

Today: Sunny and mild with highs in the 70s.
Tonight: Partly cloudy with lows in the 40s.
Tomorrow: fiar, and mild highs in the upper 60s.

The Lab — By LAW



THE POWER SOURCE FOR MY NEW TELESCOPE WILL REVOLUTIONIZE THE FIELD OF ASTRONOMY!
HMGER
THE MOST POTENT FORM OF ENERGY KNOWN TO MAN! ITS A....
ITS A 10 YEAR OLD WHEEL OF LIMBURGER CHEESE!
DRAT.. ANOTHER.. NOBEL PRIZE..

WORKSHOPS

COLLEGIAN WORKSHOPS for staff and correspondents training workshop with David Humphreys of the Springfield Daily News.
8 p.m., Wed. Oct. 10, in the newsroom.
— Arts Review Workshop with Chris Marini. 8 p.m., Wednesday October 10, in the business office.
— Training workshop with George Forcier of the Greenfield Recorder 8 p.m., Thursday Oct. 11, in the newsroom.
All correspondents should attend.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

GO AWAY. THE CONTRAPTE IS TAKING A BATH.
YOU'VE DROPPED ANOTHER 136 POINTS IN THE POLLS. ACTION IS NEEDED!
AS EVERYONE KNOWS, THIS ELECTION WILL BE A TRIUMPH OF STYLE OVER SUBSTANCE. IN FACT, MOST EXPERTS AGREE THAT IF ANDROPOV'S NOSE WAS SMALLER, HE'D BE AHEAD IN THE POLLS...
DID YOU HEAR THAT? IT'S TRUE, YA KNOW. WHY DON CHYA COME OUT AND WE'LL DISCUSS IT... HELLO?
...YOO HOO! EL SHMOZOLA GRANDE?
KNOCK! KNOCK!
WOOSH!

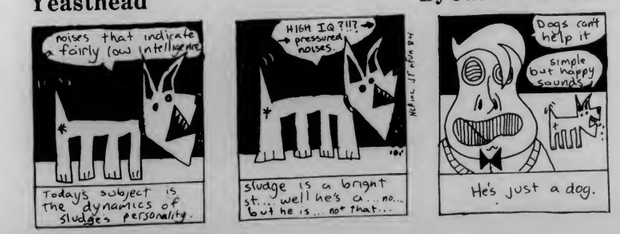
Gorde — by Gorde

AN ART STUDIO IN THE FINE ARTS CENTER...
YYAAAWWWN!!! MAN, I'M BEAT! GEE, IT'S ONLY MIDNIGHT?
I COULD QUIT FOR THE NIGHT? "TO QUIT OR BE STUDIOUS— THAT IS THE QUESTION!"
WHAT'S THIS!!! I'M OUT OF "CHIP-ER-ROOS!!"
WELL, THAT DOES IT!
"ONE CANNOT BE STUDIOUS WITHOUT CHIP-ER-OOS!"

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

MORE POLITICAL ADVERTISING!? YUCK! THAT'S THE SAD THING ABOUT THIS PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION...
AND SO A VOTE FOR ME IS A VOTE FOR CONFIDENCE. PLUS...
THAT NO MATTER WHO WINS...
ISN'T IT TIME FOR A KLIK! WITH YOUR HOST RICHARD.
BZZT!
WE'RE ALL GONNA LOSE.
DAWSON: KLIK! OMNI MAGAZINE!
OBOY MUSH-MASH-MAN!
FRANK, ACT LIKE A MAN FOR PITY'S SAKE!
BZZT!

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman



noises that indicate fairly low intelligence
Todays subject is the dynamics of sludges personality.
HIGH IQ?!!? → pressured noises.
sludge is a bright st... well he's a... no... but he is... not that...
Dogs can't help it simple but happy sounds
He's just a dog.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

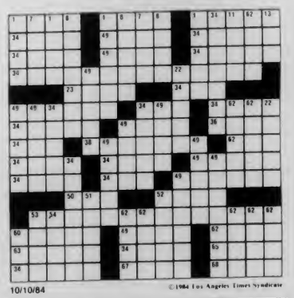
ACROSS
1 Employer
5 Hat feature
9 Theater lights
14 Hindu god
15 Like some TV
16 Correct Comb form
17 Verb for Latin lovers
18 Slaughter of the diamond
19 Records
20 Perfect musical for March 17
23 Wave in Biarritz
24 Deli choice
25 Geese
28 Eastern title
30 Bakery buy
34 Lou Grant's aide
35 Walked on
36 Do a smith's job
37 Those in office
38 Harvard's river
41 Nabokov title
42 Fulda feeder
44 Mimicked
45 Ran
47 Lot
48 Desk or jet follower
49 Physicians
50 Play on words
52 Pamplona runner
53 "Where blue birds fly" in song
60 "Comin' in on ——"
61 Part of QED
62 Rational
63 Income Fr.
64 French friend
65 Corrida yells
66 Long lock of hair
67 Grade
68 Spanish muralist

DOWN
1 Military gp.
2 —— Valley, city near L.A.
3 Name meaning "Young Warrior"
4 Provisions
5 Mingles
6 Washer cycle
7 Novello of British musicals
8 Tableland
9 —— Boy
10 Interrogators
11 Preminger
12 Vitality
13 Mayday!
21 Practical joke
22 Turkish decree
25 Attorney's presentation
26 City in Malaga providence
27 Resource
28 Stop, in St. Lo
29 Pot of ——
31 Chicago landing place
32 Shade of green
33 Conducts
35 Recording
39 Popular contraction
40 Lewis of puppetry
43 Is contrite
46 Ballerina Alicia, et al.
49 Small beard
51 Presses a claim
52 Characteristic
53 Charger
54 Clinger of a kind
55 Listen
56 Columnist Bombeck
57 Big bundle of goods
58 Ace
59 Wild and woolly area
60 School course

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	C	A	R	A	B		O	C	A	S		W O W
P	O	S	E	U	R		G	A	P	E		O V A
A	R	I	O	S	O		A	R	A	L		K E N
N	O	O		C	O	M	P	R	E	H	E	N D
S	T	E		L	A	P		E	T	N	A
			A	D	J	E	T		A	N	N	O Y
D	I	V	I	D	E	N	D		G	A	M	A
I	R	E	N	E		E	E	N		O	U	T E R
R	A	N	G	P		M	I	S	S	P	E	N D
T	E	T	R	A		L	A	V	A	S
			I	D	E	A		E	N	A		A D S
C	O	N	D	E	S	C	E	N	D		G	O T
H	I	E		S	I	T	I	R		M	A	R I N A
A	S	A		T	E	E	N		A	N	A	L O G
T	E	T		E	R	R	I	S		N	A	P E R Y

10/10/84



10/10/84 ©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Deli Beef Sandwich
Broccoli and Califlower Casserole

DINNER
Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce
Chopped Beefsteak Special

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Sanwich
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole

BASICS DINNER
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry sauce, Spaghetti with Garden Vegetables

Water polo third in league

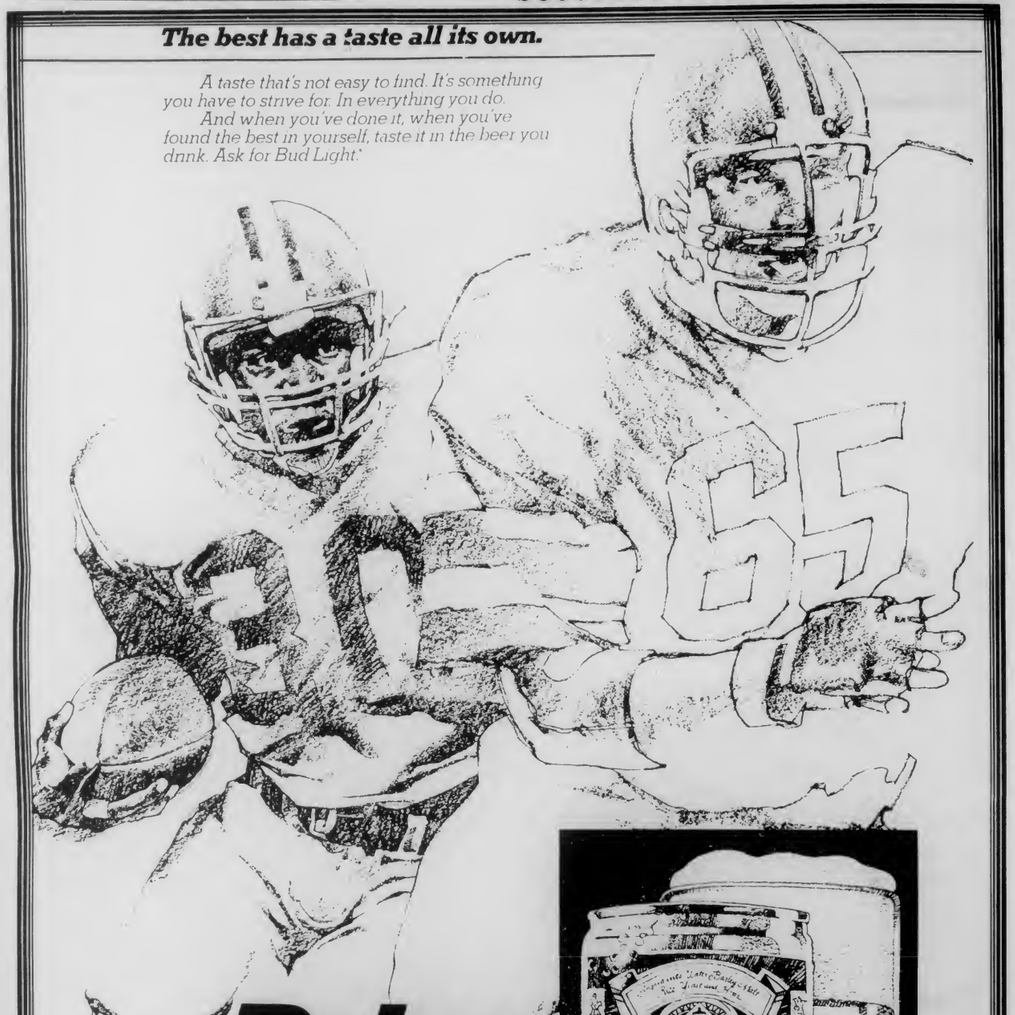
By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

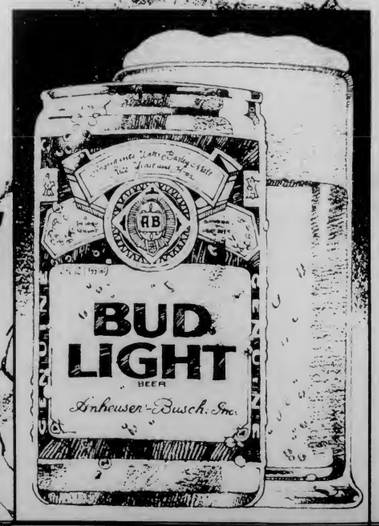
The University of Massachusetts water polo team took third place at the league tournament over the weekend, as the Minutemen took three out of five matches. In their opening game against Cloumbia, UMass outswam the Lions in the second half to turn a 6-6 halftime tie into an 11-7 win. The Minutemen followed that game up with a solid performance against Yale, as the Elis went down by a score of 7-4. Brown then drubbed the Minutemen 15-3 and wound up winning the tournament. In their following game against Harvard, the Crimson won 11-2. In their final game, the Minutemen defeated MIT 8-4. UMass will face these same teams again in two weeks at Brown.

EVERY WEDNESDAY 7-1
FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
PENNY DRAFT NITE
Every Other Draft Beer just 1¢
Rt. 9, Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

The best has a taste all its own.

A taste that's not easy to find. It's something you have to strive for. In everything you do. And when you've done it, when you've found the best in yourself, taste it in the beer you drink. Ask for Bud Light.





Bring out your best.

COULD YOU USE $50? IF SO, COMPETE IN (or just enjoy) the LIP—SYNC CONTEST
Tonite At Changes
$750.00 in Cash Prizes to be Awarded!
8 Weeks Remaining until The Grand Finals
- Along With -
"CLASSICS NIGHT"
The Most Popular Dance Music from the last 5 years!
Dynasty from 9-10 on the largest TV in town!
99¢ BAR DRINKS ALL NIGHT
No Cover
Changes, Rt. 9, Amherst 256-8284

Internships in the Law Open Introductory Meeting

The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. If you're considering the legal profession, want to explore career alternatives, or think you'd like to get hands-on job experience in the legal field, come to an open introductory meeting on Wednesday, October 10th, at 4:00 in room 170 of the Campus Center. Representatives of the LSO and the Office of Internships will be there to answer your questions about the office, the internship position, credit arrangements, and application procedures. The Legal Services Office is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer.

UM x-country splits weekend

By CHRIS TREMBLAY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts cross country teams split their meets this past week with the men defeating Conneticut 25-31 and the women losing by a 26-31 score.

In the men's win, the Minutemen set a new course record, while breaking the old record not only once, but twice. Jan Novak came in first with a time of 25.23 setting the new course record, teammate Paul Stanislawzik was right behind him at 25.26. UMass also took the fourth position with Wayne Levy, while Conneticut's top runner Mike Gagne, who lost his first meet of the year, came in third.

"We thought to win we would have to have three runners in the top four, but not one and two," said coach Ken O'Brien, "I had given the nod to Gagne being the type of runner he is (fourth in New England last year), but Novak took over at the three mile mark of the race with Stanislawzik right behind him and never looked back."

The Minutemen will next travel to Franklin Park in Boston on Saturday where they will meet Northeastern, Lowell and Keene State.

By just about the same score as the men defeated Conneticut the women's team went down to Northeastern in their meet this past weekend.

The Huskies took the top two positions with the third and fourth spots going to UMass' Sally Howes and Deidre Doyle, respectively. Northeastern then secured the win with the fifth and sixth positions, while the Minutemen took seventh through twelfth.

'Because Northeastern came in first and second we needed to take the third, fourth, fifth and sixth positions to win the meet,' said coach Caroline Gardiner, "Deidre Doyle did, however, run her best race of the year."

The women travel to Worcester next week to take part in the Holy Cross Invitational.

Would you believe...

The 1984 college football all-name team as researched by Dan Leberfeld, Collegian Staff member.

Yogi Safferwich, safety, Richmond; Duckworth Grange, running back, UMass; Hiawatha Francisco, running back, Notre Dame; Bill Boy Bryant, wide receiver, Texas; Micah Moon, linebacker, North Carolina; Iran Zubar, defensive tackle, Minnesota; Egypt Allen, running back, Texas Christian; Azizuddin Abdur Ra'off, wide receiver, Maryland; Kirk Lowdermilk, center, Ohio State; Knox Culpepper, linebacker, Georgia; Sanjoy Beach, wide receiver, Colorado State; Lestroy George, nose guard, Texas El-Paso; Donte Wheat, nose guard, Louisville; Colby Schreckengost, tackle, Murray State.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

APPLE MACINTOSH

Computer, imagewriter printer, MacWrite, MacPaint, MS Basic, box of disks, surge protector, diskette file 1-637-1137

AUTO FOR SALE

Vega Wagon '78 new clutch, brakes, steering box. Body v. good 546-7058 ask for Tim keep trying

71 GMC Pickup with cap 6 cyl #650.00 call Brian 586-2769

1970 VW Beetle rebuilt engine new brake system new clutch good tires includes parts car and trailer hitch $1000 call Brenda 549-6999

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock A Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rock-A-Disc Rock-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

6 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0246 or 586-7681

"THE GRADUATE" Tonight at 5, 7, 9, 11 in CCA. $1.00 at 5 $1.50 at 7, 9, 11 sponsored by Gorman House Council

FOR SALE

Digital Decwriter w/modem and paper ideal for Cyber 549-5216

Eagle II word processing C.P.M. Computer. $1200.00 1-533-9727

Gibson-Marauder maple neck mahogany-body. Beautiful guitar! With hard shell case. $250.00 546-3272

Airlines ticket to Chicago, Seattle, or Anchorage. Best offer. Call 584-5077

Scuba Tank 72 cu. ft. steel J-valve hydrostatically tested. $50 call Brenda 549-6999

Four Michelin X2X 70 series 13 inch rims $40.00 247-5067 after 5 PM

HELP WANTED

Computer programmer Part-time opening for person experienced with PDP-11 or VAX computers. UNIX, or MACRO-11. Amherst-based company, developing communications and real-time control software, is looking for someone able to work part-time during the school year, with full-time employment during intersession and the summer. Excellent opportunity! For information call 549-6994

Housespoote wanted. Homecooked meals in exchange for light kitchen cleanup call 546-2160 ask for Jim

Ambitious college student needed part time to organize a Rock and Art Fair. Very rewarding role. 536-3890 anytime

House Cleaner experienced efficient with local references weekly 549-0413 early AM best

Funnybones looking for cocktail waitresses part-time weekend night, occasional week nights. Apply in person 2-5 7 days a week Rt 9 Hadley 586-2770

Funnybones looking for amateur DJs. Apply in person ready to play 7-1 Thursday Oct 11 Rt 9 Hadley 586-2770

Overseas jobs Summer, yr round Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900 - $2000 / mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Government Jobs $16,559 - $50,553/year. Now hiring your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext R-9618

The People's Gay Alliance is looking for an Office Manager. This is a work study position; and duties will be janitorial and clerical. Drop off your name, number, and an informal resume in the PGA Office, 413B SUB. Replies must be in by Oct 16th

CAMPUS REP POSITION Earn high commissions and FREE TRIPS promoting high quality ski and beach trips to Colorado, Daytona Beach and South Padre Island. Call Summit Tours 800-325-0439

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas 2 for 1 hot tub every Monday and Tuesday night call for reservations 253-7727

Utopia Spas private hot tub rentals call now for reservations 253-7727

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Gold Cross Necklace 10-2 please call 6-5191 reward equal to value of necklace very important

NATIONAL STUDENT EXCHANGE

NSE Students Club Meeting Weds Oct 10 Campus Center 168C 7-9 pm elections dues

ORCHARD HILL RESIDENTS

VOTE
Mary Gannon and Carmine Caporelli
OHAG Co-Vice President

PERSONALS

Help Wanted Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen for spring '85 and next academic year free room and board 15-20 hrs/wk at 4.25 applications available at: Butterfield Dorm Kitchen until Oct 19

Haircuts By Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-8366

Kathy, Thank you for the best two years of my life, I love you. Richard

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues., Oct 9 to Fri., Oct. 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3, and the 1983 INDEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

There once was a girl named Alice
Who's dream was to do up Dallas
She traveled a mile to find someone vile
And welcomed him home to her palace
Happy 19th Birthday, Love, Ellen, Suellen
Pamela, Marci, and the Dalai Lamas

Dine, Happy 19th! Hope you had a good one! Love ya, Murrey

Hey Ell! Happy Birthday breakfast not in Denmark Love, your roommies

Sigma Keppa invites all university women to an Open Rush Wed is Ladies Night at Sigma Keppa at 10 at 8:30 PM
Thurs is a Pizza party Oct 11 at 5:00 PM
For more info and to RSVP call 2664-6067

Dinner with Duffy! UMass Jacket! Gift Certificates! ...Just some of the many prizes to be auctioned off at the 23rd annual Las Vegas Night! Friday, October 12th 7:30 PM CCA

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

REFRIGERATOR RENTAL

Refrigerator Rental 2 cubic ft R & P PACKAGE STORE free delivery 253-9742

ROOMMATE WANTED

Non-smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344

SERVICES

Need a tutor? I can help! For more info call 665-4931 after 9:00

SUN TAN NOW

Utopia Spas Suntanning Specials call now for special prices 253-7727

TAMI TETREAULT

We don't have your number! Please come back!

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal, Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer stading room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5126

WANTED

Female to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4086

Dead Tickets wanted call 546-6163

Sports

Anyone interested in being a manager of the men's basketball team should attend a meeting on Thursday at 3p.m. in the Basketball offices in Boyden. Call 545-2610 for more information.

Attention all sports staff members: general staff meeting tonight in the newsroom at 7p.m. Be there and meet Gerry de Simas in person!

Women's soccer pounds UNH, 8-0

Minutemen second in nation, trail only UNC. . .

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Some say that the second ranked University of Massachusetts women's soccer team could be a juggernaut in the making. With six freshmen starters and 14 frosh on the roster, UMass looks to be a team to be reckoned with.

University of New Hampshire women's soccer coach Ken Andrews doesn't need any convincing about the Minuteman team. He knows how strong UMass is now. He found that out yesterday afternoon.

Freshman Jolie DePauw scored a hat trick and one assist, all in the first 21 minutes of the game to lead the Minutewomen to a 8-0 wipeout of hapless New Hampshire at Boyden Field Tuesday.

Women's soccer coach Kalekeni Banda talks strategy with Jamie Watson.

"I've seen most of the top teams in the East and there is no doubt, UMass has the horses. They definitely are the strongest team, I've seen. They have incredible speed, depth and skills. They have got it all," UNH's Andrews said.

The biggest challenge for coach Kalekeni Banda's booters, now 7-1-2, was staying sharp and staying playing at the level the Minutewomen are capable of.

"I thought that this was a tough game to play," Banda said. "Our pre-game talk was on mental aggressiveness. I wanted to see enthusiasm on and off the field. We didn't want to play down because we were playing a weak team."

The Minutewomen came out aggressive and let the Wildcats cross over mid-field just three times in the first half. Kristen Bowsher, another first year starter, missed her first penalty shot of the year with 2:50 gone in the game after DePauw was tripped in the penalty area.

It was the last thing UMass did wrong.

"We scored some good goals," Banda said. "I wanted to see the players develop goals and they did that." And in a hurry.

DePauw crossed the ball in front of New Hampshire goalie Julie Trask and Monica Seta sent it home with just 6:40 gone in the game for the 1-0 lead. And the rout was on.

DePauw, who had scored six goals coming into the game, then began her spree. She dribbled through two defenders, cut to the middle of the field and fired a shot high into the net at the 30:10 mark.

The Arlington, Virginia native scored again at the 27:34 and the 24:04 marks and the Minutewomen were far ahead at 4-0. Senior co-captain Chris Taggart and first year defender Debbie Belkin picked 42 up the assists on the goals.

Then the underclasswomen began to take their turn. Freshman Leah Eicher took a Lisa Merlo rebound and made it 5-0. Catherine Spence took another Merlo pass and it was 6-0 at the half.

"When your down 6-0 at the half it's tough to be enthusiastic about playing the second half. We looked at a matter of experience," Andrews said.

"The second stringers came in and did a good job," Banda said. "Vicki Greymont displayed good skills and stood right in there. Catherine Spence, our top#12 player (i.e. — first off the bench) played a good game."

Ellen Taggart, playing in her first game all year made it 7-0 with 20:16 to go off another Merlo assist, her third of the day. And Merlo finally scored with 16:22 to go off of a Spence cross.

"It was fun," Eicher said after the game. "It was a chance to play and get out and contribute something."

It also gave the subs one vital experience they will need if the Minutewomen advance into the playoffs.

"They are awesome and everybody knows it," Andrews said.

UMass is ranked second in the latest national poll, behind three-time National Champion North Carolina.

Collegian photos by Paul Desmarais

Michelle Rodney drives past UNH's Dawn Purly in yesterday's women's soccer action at Boyden field. The minutemen scored three goals in the first 20 minutes en route to an 8-0 whitewashing over the wildcats.

Campbell to New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Earl Campbell, the powerful Heisman Trophy running back for the Houston Oilers, was traded in a surprise, hastily arranged swap Tuesday to the New Orleans Saints, who gave up their top choice in the 1985 National Football League draft.

The 29-year-old Campbell, a 5-foot-11, 238-pound running back, has been a mainstay of the Oilers since 1978, when he was a No. 1 draft choice out of the University of Texas. The trade reunites him with Bum Phillips, head coach at Houston before coming to New Orleans almost four years ago.

Phillips said Campbell will play against Los Angeles on Sunday.

The trade came as surprise because the running back position is one of the few spots on the Saints' roster that is well-staffed by experienced, healthy players.

UM field hockey records fifth straight shutout, 4-0

Kocot scores a pair

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts field hockey coach Pam Hixon had something to say about yesterday's opponent, Northeastern University after crushing the Huskies 4-0 at NOPE.

"They (Northeastern) played a hard hitting game," said UMass coach Pam Hixon. "They were tough and aggressive plus they ran at us pretty well."

But they did not hit hard enough to keep UMass defensive mainstays Megan Donnelly, Lil Hultin, and Andrea Muccini from repelling most drives that came their way.

Northeastern did not play tough enough to keep midfielder Pam Moryl and forward Judy Morgan from leading the UMass attack with repeatedly strong drives into N.U. territory.

And Northeastern did not play aggressively enough or run at UMass enough to counter the tenacious play of forwards Tonia Kennedy and Christine Kocot.

Thus UMass had little trouble defeating its ninth straight opponent by a score of 4-0. The shut-out was the team's fifth straight and seventh in its last eight games.

Following an authoritative drive from the left corner, along the base line Judy Morgan found she had no shot and fed the ball to Kocot, who scored Umass' first goal of the day. Midway through the first period Morgan was there again only this time she took a rebound off the NU goalie and made the score 2-0 for the home team.

UMass opened the second half much like they did the first. Only two different players connected. Kennedy completed a strong drive down the right base line and put a shot in front of the cage. Erin Canniff was there this time for UMass and tapped the ball in for the score.

Kocot took a rebound and put it past a sprawling NU goalie for the final score of the contest.

"Chris Kocot played another great game for us today," said Hixon. "Usually she's around the action and making things happen for us but not getting any goals or assists; things that will get her noticed.

"So I was really glad to see her get play the way she did today and get some results like that."

"We scored a lot and that pleased me. But in the first half we were doing too much along the left sideline. However we made the adjustment in the second half and directed the ball towards the right side. That was good. Against the better teams we'll be playing we're going to have to be able to make changes like that," said Hixon.

While Hixon feels "everyone has been contributing" she noted the play of midfielders Donnelly and Moryl.

"Between the twenty-five yard lines; that's where the game is played. In order to control the game we must control the midfield. As the season has progressed we've done that. We've been able to use one another well and spread the opposing team out all over the field," said Hixon.

Overall, Umass outshot NU thirty to three. UMass goalie Katherine Rowe saved all three NU shots while her counterpart saved twenty-one shots (five went wide). UMass was awarded twelve penalty corners, Northeastern only three.

sports at a glance

UMass schedule:
Men's Tennis: at Clark
Volleyball: at New Haven

Detroit 3, San Diego 2

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXIV, Issue 18 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, October 11, 1984

WSYL radio lacks station license, funds

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association's (SGA) Finance Committee refused Tuesday night to grant $2,000 in funding to the WSYL radio station, because the station doesn't have a license to operate.

The station asked for the money to buy the final component in a three to 30 watt digitally adjustable transmitter at a total of $6,000, according to station technical director Patrick Mahoney.

The station received a $1,500 grant from the University of Massachusetts Arts Council, contingent on the station raising the remainder of the money needed. The station raised $800 in a fundraiser in September. The station needs to raise the remaining $3,700 to purchase the component.

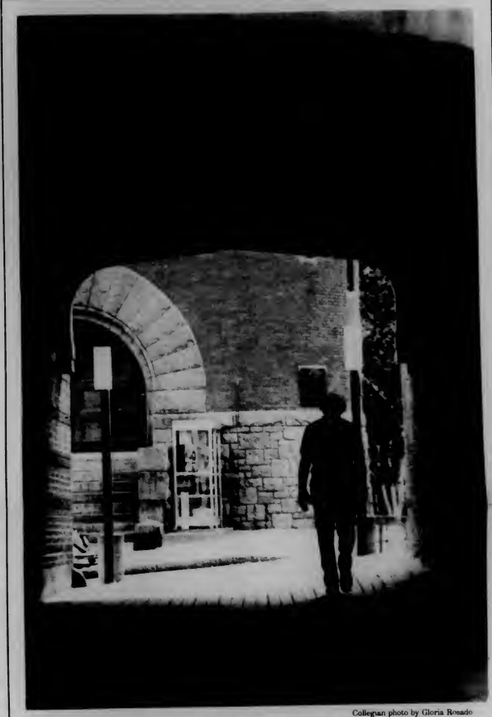
"I personally do not know of WSYL ever possessing a license" to operate, said Mahoney. According to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), which licenses radio stations, a fine of up to $10,000 per day may be imposed for operating without a license. WSYL is still operating.

Last year, the SGA loaned the radio station about $1600 to buy two $800 turntables and three transmitter components, Mahoney said. The Sylvan Area Government paid off the loan he said.

According to Finance Committee Co-Chair Dennis Martin, it takes nine to ten months to obtain a license from the FCC. "They could feasibly have a license by now," Martin said. Mahoney said that Martin, who was once a disc jockey for the station, informed the finance committee of the stations lack of a license. Mahoney said that the Greek Area was trying to buy WSYL's equipment to start it's own station. Martin is a senator from the Greek Area.

Beth Miller, head advocate for the Greek Area and Finance Committee Co-Chair said, however, that the Greek Area is not planning to start a radio station.

But Martin said Miller's statement was a "falsehood."



Collegian photo by Gloria Rosado

TUNNEL VISION— Solitary figure walks from Amherst Police Station to connecting parking lot in Downtown Amherst.

SAFA concentrating on legislature

Possible aid cuts foreseen

by NANCY A. BUKAR
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Students Advocating Financial Aid (SAFA) has plans to educate the student population here and nationwide on the possible cuts to financial aid included in the 1986 national budget.

Lobbying efforts in Washington D.C., meetings with Massachusetts state legislators and a letterwriting campaign to all senators and representatives running for reelection are all part of the plans for this year. These plans were announced at the first meeting of the semester Tuesday night.

"We are letting people know that we do exist and we do care" about finanical aid, Cindy Howland SAFA president said. SAFA will send letters to all candidates from Massachusetts congressional offices and to the presidential candidates, asking for their positions on financial aid. The letters will inform that all responses or the lack of responses will be made public to the student body at UMass.

SAFA began as an outgrowth of professor Gerry Grady's Legislative Process class four years ago.

"Some people think that this is the best RSO group on campus because it has a focus," Grady said.

Jim Shaw a member of the executive council and a past officer of SAFA said, "It (SAFA) is a genuine educational experience. You learn a lot about the legislative process."

Each spring semester for the past four years, SAFA has made a trip to Washington D.C. "There are people down there (Washington D.C.) that think that all financial aid is a waste of money," said John Buckley, treasurer of SAFA.

The group's focus for this semester will be on the state house. "We want to let the reps know what issues (on student aid) are of concern" said Howland.

SAFA is located in the Student Union room 423B and will hold office hours to answer questions and assist students who have problems with financial aid.

The next SAFA meeting will at 7 p.m. on Oct.23. When elections will be held for new officers and an executive council.

SGA seeks investment divestiture

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night approved a proposal demanding that University of Massachusetts Treasurer Robert Brand sell University stock in all companies doing business in South Africa.

The proposal, which failed to pass unanimously, also establishes a Student Government Association (SGA) monitoring system to guard against university and student money from being invested in questionable ways in the future.

Sponsored by the South African Divestment Committee (SADC) and the Student Center for Education and Research Advocacy (SCERA), the demand is the senate's first official denunciation of the Board of Trustees shareholding in the Thomas & Bett , Foxboro, Tektronix, and Proctor & Gamble corporations in South Africa.

SADC member John Ruddock said last night that in addition to demanding that Brand sell UMass stock and establish a monitoring system, the senate would also be making a contribution to rectifying an administration "mistake."

"What we're trying to show is some responsibility on behalf of the University that a mistake has been detected and a solution sought," Ruddock said.

South Africa's white administered system of government keeps the black majority from voting, moving freely, and assembling.

Steve Chase, a senator from Northeast, said the university stock is "blood money," and urged the senate to vote for the plan.

Rod Snelling, a commuter senator, told the senate that because the issue was of "such an intricate and sweeping nature" more time was needed to decide. SADC and SCERA have been working on their survey of University South African investments since Apr. 10.

Ruddock said SADC was also seeking to explore the possibilities of "restitution" to South Africans who had been "oppressed due to the profits from said stock investment."

This, according to Ruddock, may result in the SGA giving groups "advocating equal rights for all South Africans." He mentioned some possible groups include Amnesty International, the American Committee on Africa, and the American Friends Service Committee.

Also at last night's meeting, the senate voted ot sponsor mandatory social oppression workshops for all senators, and also elected new members to the senate nominating subcommittee.

The workshops, according to senate speaker Chris Sullivan, are being held later this month in efforts to create a more socially aware senate.

The dates of the workshops are Oct. 16, Oct. 18, and Oct. 22 from 7-9 p.m.

Senators Jay Flynn, Bill Collins, Choe-Hui Rice, and Craig McDermott were elected members of the nominating subcommittee which chooses senators and non-senators for positions on SGA committees.

Inside:

Fire safety, alcohol awareness stressed....p3
Intersession in the Soviet Union?....p.3
Horsing around at Tillson....p.3
'Burning Bed' stokes anger....p.6
TV debate raises age issue....p.8
Women's soccer team a juggernaut....p.16

"Don't let schooling get in the way of your education."
—Mark Twain

Today's Staff

Night Editor Richard Martin
Copy Editor Larry Bouchie
Layout Technician Jacqueline Fay
Photo Technician Michelle Segal
Production Supervisor Ed Tausky
Production: Becky McGee, Mary Ellen Riley Andrew Held, BethAnne Moskov, Cris Schuster, Steve Higgins, Mark Roden, Marsha Wilcon, Martha Connors, Mat Atkins, Ruth Devine

Digest

By The Associated Press

Russia accused of violations

WASHINGTON The United States on Wednesday accused the Soviet Union of 17 violations of arms control agreements, including the strategic arms limitation agreement, along with a number of "suspicious" activities and "breaches of good faith."

The accusations were contained in an unclassified 15 page summary of a report, required by Congress, and submitted by President Reagan to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

More AP news — p. 4,5,6,7

AP Laserphoto

CYANIDE VOTE— Students at Brown University line up to vote on whether or not the school's infirmary should stock cyanide capsules for suicide in case of nuclear war.

MOLLY'S
ANTIQUE & VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST. MON-SAT 10-5
AMHERST, MA 01002 413-549-6446

Desire Under the Elms
by EUGENE O'NEILL
October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 P.M
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

人生座談會
「人生的探索」：座談會
主講：唐佑之教授(愛荷華大學哲學博士)
時間：十月十三日星期六下午二時正
地點：Hills Central, Hills Building
歡迎參加討論

The Party Never Stops!
JUSTIN RYAN'S
challenges you to
BEAT THE CLOCK

7:00-9:00	9:00-10:00	10:00-11:00	11:00-CLOSE
50¢ Drinks	75¢ Drinks	1.25 Drinks	1.75 Drinks

Tonight - Thursday Night
KICK OFF LOUNGE
Catch all the Action
Bruins Season Opener 7:30 PM

GENERAL DYNAMICS
WILL BE CONDUCTING ON CAMPUS
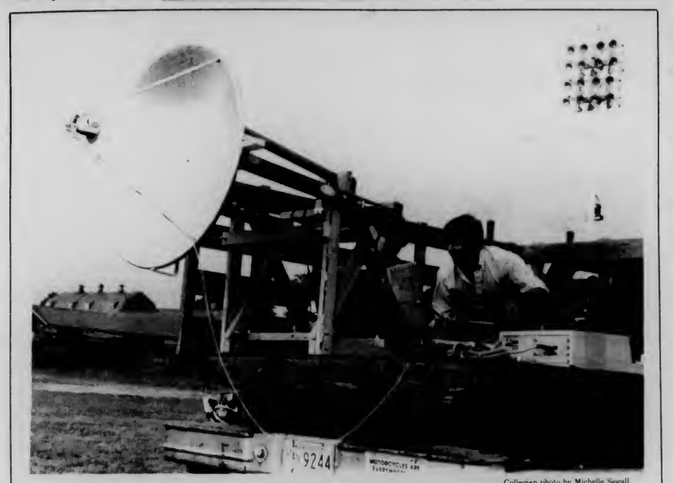
JOB INTERVIEWS
PLEASE CONTACT
THE PLACEMENT OFFICE
FOR DATE AND TIME
OF OUR INFORMATION
MEETING
ATTENDANCE REQUESTED

THE CHEESE SHOP
79 Main St.,
Amherst, MA 01002
413-253-3442
* Over 150 imported cheeses
* Over 20 selected types of coffee beans
* Bulk teas
* Freshly baked croissants & pastries
* Fresh pasta
* Party trays * SPECIAL *
Fresh Peanut Butter 99¢ lb.
Mexican Altura $4.99 lb.
Mention this ad and receive 10% off on all Oriental Groceries
Coffee tasting Saturday 10 am to 1 pm
Hours:Daily 9:30-6:00; Sunday 9:00-1:00



Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

RADAR MAN— Grad student John Anastasi, an electrical engineering major, controls "scatterometer" Wednesday afternoon at Boyden Field. Radar system will be used along withan airborne plane to gather agricultural data.

Awareness grants available this week

By KATHY KELLEY
Collegian Correspondent

The University Committee on Alcohol Use will soon be giving grants to student organizations to promote the responsible use of alcohol.

The debut of this grant program coincides with natioanal Alcohol Awareness Week, Oct. 7-13.

The Committee is made up of students, faculty members and staff. The chairperson of the committee, Carlene Riccelli, said the committee's "charge is to be an advisory committee, not a policy-making committee." She said that it was important to have a "positive program concerning alcohol use."

She said she feels that the majority of students are not abusing alcohol but they do need education about it. Activities like film series, coffeehouses, and student produced workshops on alcohol are examples of programs which will be considered for funding, Riccelli said.

Two kinds of grants will be available. Matching grants of up to $500 are available to partially fund larger, usually cooperatively sponsored activities. Mini-grants of up to $300are available to fully fund small demonstrations.

The money has been provided by the offices of the Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs and the Chancellor's Office. This is money they have available for student programs which they feel are important, Riccelli said.

To apply for either grant program, applicants should pick up guidelines and applications from residential area offices, the office of Greek Affairs, the Student Activities office, the Student Government Association office, the Faculty Club or the Health Education Office of the University Health Services.

Applications must be received at least 30 days prior to the date of the proposed event. No applications will be accepted after Nov. 16 for Fall 1984 or after April 17 for the Spring 1985 semester.

Prevention of fires stressed this week

By BARBARA WILLIAMS
Collegian Correspondent

A University of Massachusetts fire official says 30-40 percent of all campus fires are related to careless smoking.

According to David Beaudin, the senior fire inspector for UMass, careless smoking is only one of the many unsafe practices that the Office of Environmental Health and Safety is publicizing this week.

The E.H.S. Office sponsored a series of films Wednesday depicting scenes of violent and destructive damage caused by fires in dormitories and small apartment buildings. The films were shown at a booth in the Campus Center as part of the effort being made during National Fire Prevention Week.

"We received a good response from students who have passed by yesterday," said Beaudin.

In addition to the films, Beaudin was present at the booth during the day to answer questions and distribute brochures on topics such as apartment and condominium safety, prevention of electrical hazards, general fire safety habits, and cautions on fire evacuation hazards.

The display had several appliances that caused fires because of careless or improper use.

"One student was surprised to see that a small desk lamp started a fire simply because a one hundred watt light bulb had been used instead of the regulation sixty-watt bulb," Beaudin said.

Keith Hoyle, a UMass fire prevention officer sjid, "The goal of Fire Prevention Week at UMass is to raise the awareness of the campus population to the importance of fire safety precautions."

He said the greatest problems at UMass are careless dusposal of cigarettes, the improper use of candles and kitchen appliances in dormitory rooms.

He also stressed the danger of setting off false fire alarms, which he said, "Encourages vandalism and evacuation hazards."

The Office of Environmental Health and Safety is responsible for fire prevention programs for classes like Public Health and for laboratories in chemistry, Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration, and all courses using heat or electricity.

Horse driven carriages at UMass

By WILLIAM COLLINS
Collegian Correspondent

The national competition for combined carriage driving of horses is being sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Equine Center this week.

Competitive carriage driving is a sport in which a team of horses, or a single horse, draw carriages in various competitions that tests the horses' abilities. For instance, dressage tests the precision and balance of the horses' movements, while the obstacle course challenges their precision and speed.

Dressage will be held on Friday at 8 a.m. on the Winthrop Dakin farm, 650 East Pleasant St., Amherst. Following that phase of the competition, the horses will form a parade with antique carriages that will finish at the Amherst Common. During the parade the contestants and horses will be judged for elegance.

On Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. the horses and carriages will navigate a marathon cross-country obstacle course in Shutesbury.

In conjunction with the carriage driving competition, a number of other events are being staged to draw attention to other sports that the Equine Center sponsors. The horses and carriages will be on display to the public between events at the Robert P. Lawrence Arena at the Equine Center.

In addition, State Representative James Collins will lead the parade part of the competition, while UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey will present elegance awards to the winners of the elegance portion.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Carriage competition organizer Beth Coffey holds the reins of Ingrid at Tillson Farm. National competition for carriage riders begins Friday.

Radar stolen, apartments burglarized

By JOEL COFIDIS
and PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Correspondents

A $250 radar detector was stolen from a parked car in Lot 47 near Sylvan Residential Area, University of Massachusetts Police said Wednesday. Police said the car's rear window was smashed.

Police said $75 in cash was stolen at 11:22 a.m. Tuesday from fourth floor fraternity office in the Student Union Building.

A wallet containing $23 cash was reported stolen from an unlocked room on the first floor of Van Meter Dormitory at 9:06 p.m. Tuesday.

Amherst Police said a 1977 Toyota Celica valued at $4000 was stolen from Townhouse Apartments Tuesday.

The car, last seen Tuesday morning, was reported missing that afternoon.

A 39-year-old Leverett man received three citations Tuesday in connection with a accident of North Pleasant Street. He was cited for failure to use care in starting, not having a registration, and having an expired inspection sticker after the car in which he was driving struck a vehicle operated by a 52-year-old Amherst woman.

An Amherst police officer had to destroy a deer after it was struck by a car on Belchertown Road Tuesday morning. The car, driven by a 74-year-old Belchertown woman, received minor damage to the front fender after striking the deer.

In other police reports, a portable stereo and a camera and lenses, valued at $470, were reported missing from Hollister Apartments Tuesday.

According to police the back door of the apartment was forced open sometime Tuesday morning.

Police also said that a silver baby cup, a silver and turquoise bracelet, and a bottle of liquor were taken from Presidential Apartments Tuesday. Entry was gained by forcing the back door open

Russian tour offered to students

Five College-area students have the opportunity to travel and study for three weeks in the Soviet Union this January with Amherst College's Russian Department.

Many students from the University of Massachusetts did participate in previous years, but last year none went because of increased U.S.-Soviet tensions, Barbara Mudgett, Amherst Russian department member, said. After the Soviets shot down Korean Flight 007 carrying Americans, many students worried that being in Russia would not be safe, she said.

The tour is mainly geared for Russian language and literature students, but is open to all students and faculty. Professor Stanley Rabinowitz of the Amherst College Russian Department said that most of the trips were considered successes, with the students enjoying both educational and recreational activities. Many students make friends with young people there and continue correspondence after returning home, he said.

The trip includes extended visits to Moscow and Leningrad, with short excursions to Novgorod, Zagorsk, Pushkin, and Pavlosk. The group will depart from John F. Kennedy Airport in New York Jan. 2, 1985. It will return Jan. 23, with an overnight stop in Helsinki, Finland.

Professor Rabinowitz or Barbara Mudgett at the Amherst Russian Department, Clark House, (542-2350) have more information about the tour.

—Kathy Kelley

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

JAM SESSION— UMass band members Barbara Stanley, Andy Susskind and Laura Allen relax Wednesday afternoon at Boyden Athletic Fields.

ERIC'S
GIANT SUBS
Freshly Sliced Meats
Eat In or Take Out
BREAKFAST
Beef Stew, Soups, Chicken and Seafood
Try Us and See. . .
IF THEY AREN'T THE LARGEST TASTIEST SUBS IN THE AREA!!!
Rt 9 253-9521 314 College St.
Monday-Friday 6:00 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday 6:30 am - 3:00 pm

Jailed lawyer granted parole made 'a serious mistake'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Mary Evans, a former lawyer who fell in love with an armed robber, helped him escape from prison and spent 139 days with him on the run, won parole Wednesday after telling corrections officials she made "a serious mistake."

Ms. Evans, 27, is to be released Feb. 4, 1985, after serving nearly 11 months of a three-year sentence, the Board of Paroles ruled in a 3-2 decision. The law requires her to serve a minimum of just under 11 months.

During a parole hearing a the Women's Prison, Ms. Evans sat quietly with her parents, answering questions from board members about her part in the 1983 escape of convict William Timothy Kirk.

"There's no doubt in my mind at all that it was a serious mistake," Ms. Evans said. "I do regret the pressure on my family. I do regret the most all they have had to go through because of me."

Psychiatrists testified last March Ms. Evans was mentally ill, that she was attracted to Kirk and may have loved him "in the sense that an infant loves a parent."

You can't afford to overlook this!

★ Special Student Membership ★
★ REDUCED RATES ★
★ COMPLIMENTARY VISIT ★

Leaving the area in January? That's no problem at the Hampshire Fitness Center.....

Join now and take advantage of our 7-month Student Special. Your membership will run from October-December and from February-May in conjunction with your academic year.

Not leaving in January? Take advantage of our other membership options.

What better time to take advantage of this healthy offer and start looking good and feeling great! Call or stop by today!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER featuring
• Indoor Olympic-size Pool
• Tennis
• Nautilus, Olympic, Universal & Free Weights
• Jacuzzi Whirlpool
• Saunas
• Snack Bar
• Individualized Fitness Programs
• Special Medical Programs
• Computerized Fitness Evaluations
• Nutritional Counseling
• Swim & Tennis Lessons & Clinics
• Massage Therapy

CONVENIENT HOURS: 7 days week Mon-Fri 6am-10pm Weekends 8am-9pm

Limited to the first 100 students!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER
GATE HOUSE ROAD • AMHERST, MA
256-6446

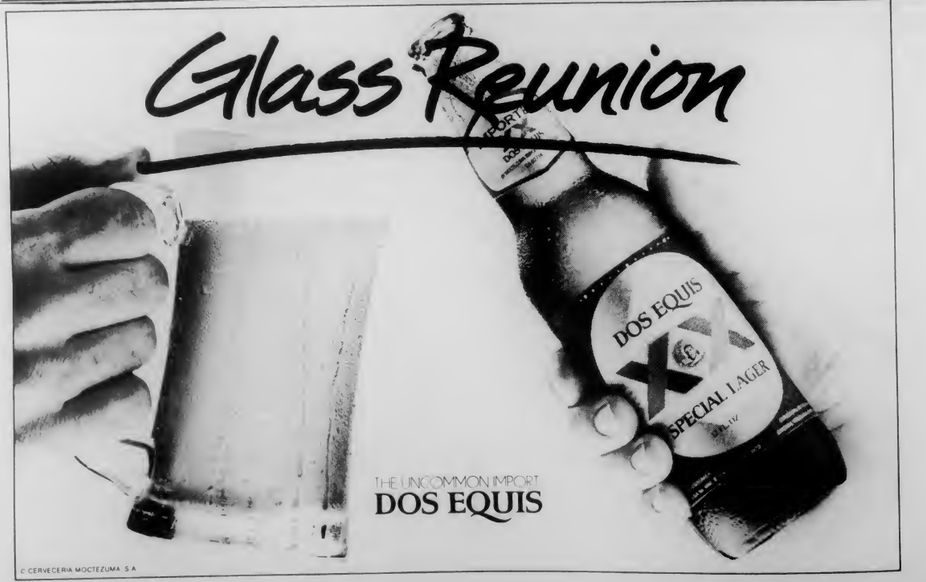
WORKING FOR ENERGY INDEPENDENCE, NATIONAL SECURITY, AND A QUALITY ENVIRONMENT.

ON CAMPUS THURSDAY OCTOBER 25

Ask your Placement Office for details on our upcoming campus visit, or see our ad in this paper next Thursday, October 18 for additional information. LLNL is an equal opportunity employer, m/f/h. U.S. citizenship is required.

University of California
Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory
P.O. Box 5510, Dept. JCR, Livermore, CA 94550

Glass Reunion



THE UNCOMMON IMPORT
DOS EQUIS

© CERVECERIA MOCTEZUMA, S.A.

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

BOSTON CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY
SATURDAY, OCT 13, 8PM
TICKETS: $5

DUKE ELLINGTON'S SOPHISTICATED LADIES
National Broadway Touring Company Production
SUNDAY, OCT 14, 2PM, 8PM
TICKETS: $22.50, $20.50, $18.50

DIZZY GILLESPIE
WEDNESDAY, OCT 17, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7

Peter Nero CONDUCTOR/SOLOIST with the PHILLY POPS
FRIDAY, OCT 19, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

Five College Students Half-Price. Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

TAKE A TASTE OF THE BIG APPLE FOR YOUR JUNIOR YEAR ABROAD.

The Academic Year In New York City

Find out about the program! or Contact Tien Rinehart 206 Whitmore 545-0428

Meet with the Directors on Friday, October 12 12 noon — 1 p.m. Campus Center, Room 811

Florida healer uses dowsing to search for missing boy

BOSTON (AP) - Their 17-month search for a missing boy at a standstill, police spent Wednesday analyzing the findings of a Florida religious healer who claims to locate the missing by tracking their energy with metal rods.

"Somebody asked me do I believe in this man. I said 'I believe in God,' " said Boston Police Deputy Superintendent Edward Walsh.

"This fellow seems to believe in this divining rod and if there's any possibility - well, I've been around long enough to know stranger things have happened," Walsh said.

Police spent Wednesday performing lab tests on the pile of oil-soaked clothing and debris pulled from a drainage shaft Tuesday at a downtown construction site across from South Station.

The materials were located last week by Lloyd Youngblood of Clearwater, Fla., a retired Air Force sergeant who had offered to assist police in their search for Wilfredo Torres, who disappeared in May, 1983, at the age of 9.

Youngblood, who uses a pair of L-shaped rods to pinpoint missing people and objects, was asked to ply his trade - called "dowsing" - by Rev. David Venator, of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, who assisted him in his search last week.

Venator said Youngblood began his search by studying a photocopy of a picture of Wilfredo, and then describing a shaft, with a ladder and white bricks nearby. He then studied maps of Boston.

From there, they began searching downtown Boston, ending up at the construction site and the drainage shaft, which matched the area described by Youngblood.

"Basically it's the same thing as a divining rod - you're plugging into the energy of whatever it is you're looking for," Venator said. "You could do it. Anybody could do it."

JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place
Don't Miss Friday Night
CELEBRITY NIGHT
MYSTERY ? GUEST

Help bring Diverse and Interesting Speakers & Lecturers to Campus

Distinguished Visitors Program Recruitment Meeting

Tonight 7 pm Room 803
Campus Center

WIN: A TAN FOR ALL SEASONS
• Win a FREE Tan
• 50 x safer than the sun
• comfortable, relaxing, affordable
• walking distance from UMass campus, located right across the street from the Pub
• UMASS students receive 1 FREE session and the special offer of 6 sessions for only $19.
Call 253-9454
Stop by Information Table TODAY and Tomorrow in Campus Center Concourse

FREE
• Safer than any other Tanning Method
• FDA Registered
• Free Tour & Brochures at no Obligation
• Cannot & will not Burn your Skin, only Tan you a a Golden Brown
• Try It You Will Like It
• You cannot Believe It until you see it
FREE

Ira and Mike TANNING CENTER
Luxury SUN TAN SALONS
264 N Pleasant
2nd floor above Silverscape
Bring this Coupon for a FREE Complementary Tanning Session and have Fun!
Call for an appointment 253-9454

FREE
Limit one person new clients only Expires 10/30/84
Private and Very Comfortable Stereo Headset in each Sun Room
FREE

Tonite at

Changes

From 8 PM to 12 AM

• Free Hamburgers, Hot Dogs and Munchies!

• 2 for 1 Mixed Drinks

No Cover

Changes

The Entertainment and Service Leader!

Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284

TERADYNE

From TERADYNE

A Very Large Scale Invitation from a Technology Leader

In electronics, the era of very large scale integration (VLSI) has arrived, leaving many companies with products suddenly obsolete and engineering staffs struggling to catch up.

But not Teradyne. Thanks to $75 million spent on R&D in 1981-1983, Teradyne was ready and waiting for VLSI.

Ready with VLSI memory testers, logic testers, analog testers, board testers.

Ready in Boston, Ma. and Woodland Hills, Calif., where Teradyne develops ATE for the electronics industry.

Ready in Deerfield, Illinois, center for Teradyne's telephone system testing operations.

Ready in Nashua, New Hampshire, where Teradyne produces backplane connection systems and state-of-the-art circuit board technology designed to meet VLSI requirements.

This kind of technology leadership spells growth. Excitement. Challenge. Career opportunities you just can't find anywhere else.

Teradyne. A company ahead of its time, looking for some good people to keep it ahead.

For more information, see your Placement Counselor.

SHARE IN OUR SUCCESS

TERADYNE

'Bed Burning' spurs calls

Boston (AP) - A network television film about a battered wife who burned her abusive husband in his bed spurred hundreds of calls to Massachusetts shelters from tearful women as well as angry men seeking help, social workers say.

"I personally got a call from a woman whose husband had just beaten her because of the movie," Phoebe Soares, a staff member of Transition House, a shelter and hot-line center in Cambridge, said Tuesday night.

"He said she wasn't going to get any ideas from the movie, and he would get her first."

"After the program, the calls more than tripled. I would say we get 12 to 15 calls during the day, 18 to 20 over a 24-hour period, she said."

"In the first half hour after the movie and after the news Monday night, we got 30 calls; in the next half hour, 27. We got at least 100 during the night."

The nonprofit shelter's number was flashed on the WBZ-TV, Boston, screen after the Monday night NBC-TV procuced film, "The Burning Bed," which starred Farrah Fawcett.

Mrs. Soares said one caller to her Cambridge shelter was a man.

"Before the movie, his wife hadn't prepared dinner, and he had beaten her severely," she said. "He said he had a problem: What could he do for himself. I referred him to EMERGE, a men's counseling group in Boston that has been fairly successful in counseling men who were abusers."

Jurors selected for Westmoreland suit

NEW YORK (AP) - Jury selection was completed Wednesday in retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland's $120 million libel suit against CBS over the network's broadcast of a documentary about his actions in the Vietnam War.

Westmoreland and CBS News correspondent Mike Wallace, who narrated the 1982 documentary, sat a few feet apart in the courtroom but did not speak to each other.

Westmoreland, who commanded American forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968, claims CBS falsely and maliciously defamed him in its "CBS Reports" documentary, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception." The broadcast depicted him as the head of a 1967 conspiracy to understate deliberately enemy troop strength in order to maintain political support for the war.

On Wednesday, Westmoreland walked past without stopping as Wallace sat at the defense table.

Outside the courtroom, Wallace paused to display a quotation from his book "Close Encounters," in which he quotes from a 1972 letter he received from Westmoreland. The general congratulated Wallace on "a first-class piece of reporting" for a "60 Minutes" story on wounded soldiers. Wallace said he still has the letter, but does not know if it will be introduced at the trial.

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS

$7.00 (with this coupon)

$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry

$11.50 Long Hair

Please Call for an Appointment

Expires 10/31/84 C

Styles by Deborah

Amherst, MA 549-5610

FREE CONSULTATIONS

Rent One of Ours

Car

Truck

Passenger Van

North Amherst Motors

Rt. 63 No. Amherst

549-2880

College Party Weekend in

$68. MONTREAL

includes

* Round Trip Transportation
* 3 days, 2 nights
Hotel Sherbourg, Downtown Montreal

November 2, 3, 4

Night Clubs open 'til 4 AM

Drinking Age 18

No Roadblocks

Call ERIC 549-5017

Kerry raps Shamie about memos

BOSTON (AP) - Republican Senate candidate Ray Shamie says he hopes the publication of internal campaign memos, including advice on how to minimize his contact with the John Birch Society, will "clear the air" and enable him to resume his campaign.

But Democratic opponent John Kerry said Wednesday that "all decent Americans" reject Shamie's attempt to describe the Birchers as "'sincere patriotic Americans."

Shamie, stung by a WBZ-TV, Boston, report and a front-page story in The Boston Globe on the leaked campaign documents, said they were prepared by a campaign consulting firm he had hired and did not represent the tactics or philosophy behind his campaign.

"I had never seen or even knew such memos even existed," Shamie said at a news conference where he repeatedly criticized the Globe for running the story and reprinting the memos over a two-page spread.

But Kerry later issued a statement in which he criticized Shamie for trying to soft pedal the Birchers.

"The characterization today by my opponent of the John Birch Society as "'sincere patriotic Americans" ignores the principles of freedom and democracy.

Springfield symphony to feature sports music

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - Symphony Hall will resound with the sweet sound of a baseball hitting a bat Thursday as the city's symphony orchestra celebrates the 100th birthday of Springfield College - one of the nation's oldest physical education schools - with a concert consisting of sports music.

"I doubt whether anything like this has ever been done before," Robert Gutter, the orchestra's musical director, said Wednesday. But, Gutter said, he had no trouble filling the 90-minute program.

"Initially I knew there were several things we could use, but I was really astounded at the vast area of music related to sports," he said. "Of course composers have always had a lot of interest in sports. Mozart played an excellent game of billiards, Tchaikovsky croquet, Rossini liked bocce and Beethoven was a great walker. There's always been that natural connection."

The concert will open appropriately enough with the "Olympic Theme."

Then will come the William Tell Overture. "Not only was Tell a master marksman, but an incredible oarsman," Gutter said.

EXCITING 1984

MINUTEMAN FOOTBALL

Saturday, October 13th

Beautiful Alumni Stadium

1:30 P.M. Kickoff

UMASS vs. RICHMOND SPIDERS

Fun • Color • Excitment

• Outstanding Collegiate Football

• The Powerful and Entertaining Marching Band!

A Great Tailgate!

Great Entertainment

RICHMOND SPIDERS

Never having met before on the gridiron, this duel between the Spiders and the Minutemen should be a thrilling ballgame from start to finish. When the Minutemen take the field they will welcome the Spiders to UMass in grand fashion. This will be a great game to see.

Purchase Tickets at the UMass Athletic Office or at the Stadium on game day:

Reserved tickets. . .$6.

Unreserved. . .$5.

Children (14 & under). . .$3.

UMass Student with valid ID - no charge

Call Ticket Office for Group Rates (413) 545-0810

"Keep the Summer Alive"

CAPE COD at the PUB

with Cape Cod's# 1

"D.J. GARY TITUS"

of Puffabellies and Cape 104

Experience our new menu.

THE PUB

15 E PLEASANT ST AMHERST MA 413-549-0??

If you know the letters, we've got the numbers.

For BDIC info call 545 1555

and ask for tape 1011

- PGA 2690
- UPC 2362
- SGA 1319
- EWC 1410
- RSO 2350

Information Data Bank(545 1540)

Taped Information Phone Service(545 1555

A Service of the Dean of Students Office

idb tips

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown

Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Curtain falling on Reagan?

Andrew M. Paven

I sat down to write this article the morning after the presidential debate. I was going to write that even though Walter Mondale had beaten President Reagan, handily in my opinion, that most people still believe what they choose to believe and hear that which they choose to hear.

I was going to write that Reagan looked shaky and uncomfortable in the debate; that Mondale had figured out that he would get nowhere trying to win over Reagan's supporters by trashing this political incarnation of John Wayne/Superman— the president who stands for "truth, justice, and the American Way"—and thus was slyly deferential. "I like President Reagan," said Mondale; that I thought that the American public would be reluctant to trade leading men at the intermission—November 6—of this eight year long epic movie, "Mr. Reagan Goes to Washington."

"I think no matter what happens," I was going to write, "the American public wants to stick around after the Nov. 6 intermission and see how Reagan's eight year-old movie ends...dim the lights...pass the popcorn...let's apply to grad. school in Geneva.

That's what I started to write. Then I put my typewriter away for a couple of days, because I had assigned work that I had to get finished. In the meantime, of course, I've been reading the newspapers and watching the T.V. news—I may not be a great communicator but, the great procrastinator, yeah, that's me.

On Tuesday, both the Wall Street Journal and the Los Angeles Times ran front page stories concerning President Reagan's advanced age. At 73 he is already the oldest president ever; he will turn 74 three weeks after Inauguration Day.

On Tuesday evening both the McNeil Lehrer News Hour and ABC's Nightly News (I told you I was a great procrastinator) ran extended stories on the "age issue."

On Wednesday, the papers were filled with columns about Reagan's debate blunders by the syndicatedd pundits, ranging from Republican critics like Mary McGrory, "The old actor, a ghost of his 1980 self, missed cues, flubbed lines, lost his place." To Republican faithful like George Will, "so he (Reagan) left Louisville with a big lead—something like being ahead two games to none in a best-of-five baseball series. Ronald Reagan, call the Chicago Cubs." And Rowland Evans and Robert Novak, "The most one-sided presidential debate since they began in 1960...Not even the White House wuld seem capable of blowing so massive a lead, but the texture of the 1984 campaign has been transformed by Louisville."

The Washington bureau chiefs of both the New York Times, James Reston, and the Boston Globe, Robert Healy, agreed. Reston wrote, "What Louisville did was not to expose his (Reagan's) age, which everybody knew, but to expose his mind, which the voters didn't know." Healy wrote:"He (Reagan) lost one to television which he has used so well for more than 25 years. This time television was brutally frank. It caught Reagan in snapshots of confusion when he appeared unable to explain his own tax program and in ramblings that gave the appearance at least of Reagan using repetition to cover a lack of knowledge."

And the Washington Post's David Broder, considered by many the dean of Washington columnists wrote: "It is going to be intriguing to watch what the voters make of all this—and particularly those young voters among whom the President has been rolling up his widest margins over Mondale. My guess is that some of them may be taking a second look. Youth is not particularly tolerant of the vagaries of age such as Reagan has displayed." Let us hope so.

The second Reagan-Mondale debate will be held Oct. 21. It will be interesting to see what Reagan does then, and between now and then, to defuse this issue. Old age is not something which can be avoided or deflected with a good joke. Shakespeare wrote that "nothing stands but for his scythe to mow."

So do I now think that the American electorate is prepared to change leading men on Nov. 6? If not it wouldn't be the first time the public has disregarded the columnists-sic-pundits advice. But still, "Hope springs eternal in the human breast."

Meantime, asked if age is an issue that might help Mondale, Reagan responded with a familiar tilt of his head, "I'll challenge his to an armwrestle anytime."

But it's not your biceps we're concerned about Mr. President—it's your mind.

Andrew M. Paven is a Collegian columnist.

MR. DONOVAN IS TAKEN BY THE DREADED SLEAZE.

Religion a personal choice

Dan Miller

There are those who believe that once a religious faith is found and followed, the rest of one's life will follow a cogent, certain chronology.

However, intelligently finding It or God or whatever one calls it is something that must be planned. Do not let the practice of religion assimilate you. Assimilate it.

Lynne would not be assimilated. She would not allow the religious complacency of others make her forget her own dissatisfactions and in a positive sense—ambitions.

A year ago, while attending UMass/Boston, she met Adele in a freshman writing course. They started having lunch together and got along perfectly.

When Adele asked Lynne if she would join a Bible study class run by Adele, Lynne could not find a reason not to. Adele's classes were held Wednesday nights.

"It was really nice," Lynne said. "They were all very nice and very sincere people and I felt that I was learning about the Bible, which I really hadn't bothered to do before then."

Sunday nights, Lynne and other students from similar Christian groups met at the Lexington Church of Christ. Later Lynne chose to take part in Christian rallies on Friday nights. Lynne chose to commit time from three weekdays. That was Lynne's choice.

But for Adele and the church, time wasn't enough. Lynne was told—not encouraged—to commit herself to learning as much about the Bible as she could.

"I told them I wasn't making any commitments. They said I just had to accept it," Lynne said. "They also said, that in order for me to become a Christian, I would have to be baptized by complete emergence (in water). Once they baptized a (woman), but her hand was out of the water, so they had to baptize her all over again."

She was told that she must date Christian men only; only those relationships would be "true", any other would be a "mistake."

The worship of God had become a package of regulations. Then it boiled down to the question of who to believe.

Lynne's mother had always objected to the necessary celibacy of priests. A Jehovah's Witness told Lynne that her Catholic mother's argument was fruitless, because in the Jehovah's Witness's opinion, Catholicism is a "cult."

"There was always someone who could tell you that the teachings you were following were wrong, and that theirs were right," Lynne said. "And they could always justify their arguments.

"My grandmother is 87 and goes to the Catholic Church every Sunday. I don't see why she should not go to heaven."

By the end of that semester, Lynne made another choice: to transfer to UMass/Amherst. UMass/Boston did not offer courses suitable to Lynne's career goals.

Adele called her and said that transferring would be a "mistake." Adele used the very word that she used to describe a relationship between Lynne and a non-Christian. By this time Lynne had been enlightened to many possibly mistaken ideas, before being given a chance to act on them to find out for herself.

Lynne told Adele that she wasn't going to change her mind. Adele acknowledged that there was nothing to be done. They said goodbye and hung up. Lynne has not heard from Adele since.

Letting Lynne go was the best thing Adele did for her. Adele was a friend who evolved into a limitation.

I'm not trying to tell you to be an atheist. I am not an atheist, because whether one is aware of it or not, atheism forces one to supress an insight if it has any semblance to religion, if it cannot be "proven," but exists only as a matter of faith. Imagine forbidding yourself from thinking about certain things, because you call yourself an atheist!

But if you must cultivate your spirituality in a group with its own set of rules and its particular biblical interpretations—keep in reserve your right to make your own choices.

Dan Miller is a Collegian Columnist.

Letters to the Editor

'Thank you' to some very special friends

Editor's note: James A. Ryan,Jr., a UMass student, was killed this summer.

Words alone cannot express our appreciation for the loving support that you have shown our family during this very difficult time in our lives.

Following the sudden death of our son and brother, James A. Ryan, Jr., his friends at the University of Massachusetts opened their hearts and surrounded the Ryan family with a blanket of loving support and prayers that will never be forgotten.

Your cards, letters, the Mass recently offered at the Newman Center, but especially the memories that some of you shared of your time spent with Jimmy have touched our family in a way no words can adequately convey. Most especially, we would like to call attention to the many young men and women from the University who surrounded us with such love and concern in a very quiet dignity for those very trying days.

They were with us constantly, praying, giving, sharing, and loving in a solemn and respectful manner, expressing both physical and spiritual support to us that gave us the strength we needed at the time.

Jimmy so loved attending the University and being with the friends he made at school, it touched us deeply to see Jimmy surrounded by his loving friends as he was laid to rest. We will be eternally grateful to all of you.

God bless you all.

The Ryan Family

UMass 'Big Vote' result of many people

Please allow me the space to reply to the article on the UMass "Big Vote" drive in Tuesday's Collegian. Although the article stated that UMassPIRG solely sponsored the drive to register students and coordinated efforts with the SGA to get the Amherst registers to come to campus, these are incorrect statements and contrary to what the UMass Big Vote 84' coalition is all about. UMassPIRG and the SGA are only a small fraction of a coalition of various student groups here on campus who are sponsoring the drive.

As the coordinator of UMass Big Vote 84' I feel responsible for this error in reporting and would like to apologize and give credit to the following RSO's who have played an integral part in this campaign: Frontlash, Northeast Area Gov't, Peacemakers, Public Policy, SCERA, SGA President's Office, SSAM, Student Senate, Third World Affairs, UMass College Republican Club and the Radical Student Union. I hope that we can continue to work together and get the student vote on November 6.

Bill McCaskie
UMassPIRG

D.B., phone home

Everyone loves a good animal story on the order of Lassie Come Home in which a lost and bewildered creature miraculously finds its way back home. Thus we read with great anticipation the September 21 Collegian article "Birds of a Feather Flock to Gorman". This endearing script related how a lowly parakeet was rescued from the wilds of ZooMass by two caring humans (John Goggins and David McGill) from Gorman Residence Hall. In the apparent spirit of animal care, the rescuers were willing to risk sheltering their newfound (albeit illegal) pet in their dormitory room rather than set the bird free. This would appear an admirable action, as most of us realize (with the exception of a consulting veterinarian) that a bird of tropical origin cannot long survive local climatic conditions.

Thanks to the Collegian article, we contacted Goggins and McGill and identified our pet bird that had inadvertently flown from our office in Morrill Science Center three days earlier. Anticipating the return of our parakeet that we fondly came to know as "D.B.", we made several attempts and arrangements to receive "D.B." back into our care, but were eventually told without qualification, that the bird had been released "out the dorm window."

We condemn this irresponsible action and its dismal consequences on the fate of the parakeet. Such an act appears inconsistent with both the published story and the visions of someone "seriously considering becoming a zoology major."

We gratefully acknowledge the staff of the Collegian for its role in making this animal story a potentially happy one. Regrettably, "D.B. Come Home" won't be a bestseller.

Allan Smits
Peter Kimmel
Diana Oiveras
Alan Pinder
Morrill Science Center

Contras are a strong force

Peter Dow

Opponents of the United State's policy towards the Sandinistas have lately increased their verbal attacks on the Nicaraguan counter-revolutionaries, claiming that they do not have popular support in Nicaragua and are just puppets of the CIA. Yet if we sift through this cloud of myth surrounding the contras, we will find some facts as to their true goals, strength, ideals and composition.

In 1979, the Sandinistas ovethrew the Somoza regime in a popular revolution that promised to make Nicaragua a free and democratic society. It was with this in mind that the United States assisted the Sandinistas with massive amounts of economic aid. Since then, however, the Sandinistas have not only forgotten their promises to the Nicaraguan people, but they have also moved steadily towards instituting a totalitarian society. This progression is evident in many ways. First, the power rests solely in the hands of the FSLN, with no opposition parties allowed to become involved in the political process. The Sandinistas have also seized control of the media, and the one remaining newspaper (La Prensa) is subject to heavy censorship. In addition, the Sandinistas have also persecuted the Catholic Church, which has led much of the peaceful opposition to the Sandinistas; and the entire Jewish community that had lived in Nicaragua has been forced into exile to escape the government's repressive religious policies.

But perhaps what the contras despise the most are the Sandinistas' genocidal attacks being waged against the Miskito Indians and other Indian tribes. These Miskitos have been forcibly removed from their villages by the Sandinistas and placed in prison camps, where most have been tortured and many have been murdered. These actions are just a few more contributions to the mounting evidence of the FSLN's ruthless brutality against which the contras are fighting.

Indeed, many Miskito Indians have managed to escape into the Honduras and join forces with the contras; about 3,000 of them are in rebellion on the Caribbean side of northern Nicaragua. In addition, the contras have a wide spectrum of support within Nicaragua, which includes Catholics, Protestants, workers unemployed due to the demolished economy, and volunteers who once supported the Sandinistas but who are now fighting against them. All of these various interests have been aggregated into two inseparable goals: the overthrow of the Sandinistas and the development of a true democracy for the Nicaraguan people.

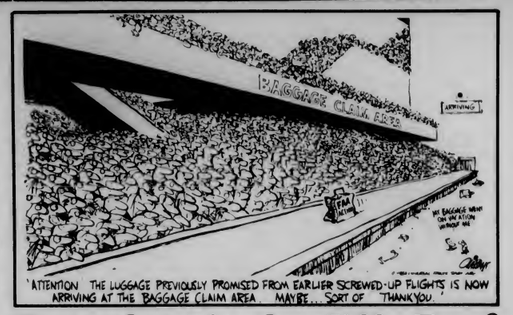
Many liberals in America have tried to persuade us not to support the contras since (as they claim) the contras are just remnants of the Somoza regime looking for one more chance at power. Again, if we wade through the sea of myths we discover some facts concerning the backgrounds of the contra leaders.

The leaders who are active in the contra movement were opposed to Somoza just as much as they are opposed to the Sandinistas today. The chairman and commander of the FDN (the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the largest contra group), Alolfo Calero, was a longtime Somoza opponent and was jailed by Somoza in 1978. Calero also supported the FSLN until they betrayed the Nicaraguan people. Then he joined the FDN, which has grown in troop strength from 500 in 1982 to its current size of over 8,000.

The force in southern Nicaragua is the ARDE (the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance) and is led by Eden Pastora and Alfonso Robelo. Like Calero, both were Sandinistas to begin with but are now leading the ARDE force of about 4,000 volunteers.

Meanwhile the FSLN still maintains an iron grip over Nicaragua's political apparatus, controlling the society and the individual rights of its people. Yet the contras' demands remain simple: that the Sandinistas honor their promises that so many people believed—to accept a democratic and pluralistic government. This is a very honorable goal and a very attainable one. But the United States Congress continues to bicker ove the contras' covert funding, even as armaments from Nicaragua steadily flow into El Salvador to fuel that guerrilla war. The first step in preserving democracy in El Salvador and Costa Rica is a victory for the contras in Nicaragua. In short, nothing could bring peace to Central America so quickly as the overthrow of the Sandinistas, and the subsequent establishment of a democratic government that respects the lives of the Nicaraguan citizens.

Peter Dow is a Collegian columnist.



BAGGAGE CLAIM AREA
ARRIVING
DEPARTING
ATTENTION THE LUGGAGE PREVIOUSLY PROMISED FROM EARLIER SCREWED-UP FLIGHTS IS NOW ARRIVING AT THE BAGGAGE CLAIM AREA MAYBE.. SORT OF THANKYOU.

But where's the Jiffy Pop?

Andrew Heller

It was a beautiful day. the sky was clear and the sun was shining. Maybe the weather got the best of me; perhaps I got a little out of hand. All I know is by the time I spotted the police cruiser at the side of the road it was too late. I hit the brake in a desperate attempt to bring my car at least close to the speed limit. Glancing in my rear-view mirror I could only pray that the officer was reading his newspaper rather than his radar monitor.

The flashing blue lights that filled my mirror shattered any hope that may have remained in my heart. After nearly six years of driving with a clean record, my luck had finally run out. I could only pull my car to the side of the road and face the music. I watched the nightmare unfold as I continued staring into my mirror. One of Belchertown's finest got out of the cruiser and approached me with a look of determination on his face.

"Can I see your license and registration?" I fumbled with my wallet looking for them, sifting through piles of cards, my UMass ID and long-forgotten phone numbers written on little scraps of paper. Finally I found the needed documents and handed them over to the officer. He stared at my license for a while, trying to determine if the bearded character in the car was the same as the clean-shaven guy in the picture.

Convinced it was actually me, he started in with the typical routine. "Mr. Heller, do you know why I pulled you over?" I felt like saying, "How many guesses do I get?" However, the seriousness of the situation snapped me back into reality and I responded in a customary fashion. "Well officer, I must have been going a little too fast."

"According to my radar, you were travelling at 50 mph. Do you know what the posted speed limit is Mr. Heller?" Once again I felt like I was on a T.V. game show, with a correct answer giving me an all-expense paid trip to Las Vegas or a lifetime supply of Jiffy-Pop popcorn. The pressure was really on this time. What was the speed limit? I remained calm, thought it out for a second and finally came out with—35 mph.

"That's correct, Mr. Heller." "Wait here while I write you a ticket." I just couldn't understand it. I got the question right. I should have won. Where was my trip to Las Vegas or the Jiffy-Pop? Life just wasn't treating me fairly that day. Finally, the officer returned with the ticket and asked me to sign it. It was then when I realized that the fine was $50. What happened to the good old days when a ticket was $25? I should have learned my lesson then, when it didn't cost as much.

Just as I was about to continue on my way I rationalized the whole situation. If $50 would raise my consciousness and make me a safer driver it was worth it. Besides, I heard it was raining in Las Vegas and I never did like popcorn that much anyway.

Andrew Heller is the Collegian photo editor.

Looking for an equal future

Larry Soucie

Have you ever wondered whether or not you would have supported Hitler if you had lived in Germany during World War II? Of course, history has made it clear that Hitler was a monster, but to the people of Germany during that time, he was a charismatic man who made them feel good about their country. I'd like to think that I would have been one of the few perceptive souls who saw him for what he was, and opposed him. I'd also like to think that I would have marched with Martin Luther King during the 1960s. But that was then and this is now. It is easy to look back on history and see who was right or wrong, but what of today? We have our own Hitlers to oppose and our own social problems to fight for. It is very important to me to be able to look back on my life when I am an old man and see that I was on the right side of the issues. One of the issues we face today is the Equal Rights Amendment. The line is drawn pretty clearly this election year: the democrats say yes, the republicans say no. Is there any way we can figure out who is right? I believe we can.

One of the ways we can determine what the right side of an issue is to look at trends. We shake our heads in bewilderment at our forefathers for not recognizing that women should be allowed to vote. It is so obvious to us now—how could they have been so blind? Well, women got the vote and as the trend continues toward equality, we have seen the first woman on the Supreme Court, the first American woman in space, and the first woman vice-presidential candidate. Slowly, ever so slowly, women have been getting what history will one day show they should have had all along: equality with men. So, if it is inevitable that women will one day have the same rights as men, why don't we just cop out and pass the Equal Rights Amendment? Well, one reason we don't is that the leader of the free world is opposed to the idea. President Reagan is a conservative, and a conservative is, according to Webster, "disposed to maintain existing institutions", and I would add, be they right or wrong. Reagan says he is opposed to the wording of the amendment. Here is the complete text:

SECTION I. EQUALITY OF RIGHTS UNDER THE LAW SHALL NOT BE DENIED OR ABRIDGED BY THE UNITED STATES OR BY ANY STATE ON ACCOUNT OF SEX.

SECTION II. THE CONGRESS SHALL HAVE THE POWER TO ENFORCE, BY APPROPRIATE LEGISLATION, THE PROVISIONS OF THIS ARTICLE.

SECTION III. THIS ARTICLE SHALL TAKE EFFECT TWO YEARS AFTER RATIFICATION.

I asked one of my sisters if she saw anything wrong with the wording. She said she thought Section 3 should be re-worded so that it takes effect immediately. I agree. Unfortunately, if Ronald Reagan and his right-wing conservative buddies in the Senate are re-elected, history and women will have to wait four more years.

Liberals— republicans as well as democrats—have been dragging conservatives into the future for the last 50 years. This has been a nice arrangement: the conservatives have kept the liberals from running too far too soon. But now, with conservatives in control of the Senate and the White House, progress on all fronts has slowed to a crawl. Sooner or later we will suceed in prying the cold, dreamless fingers of the conservatives from around our throats. It is inevitable, women will one day have equality with men. Why not make it sooner than later? Join me in voting for the democratic ticket this fall.

Larry Soucie is a Collegian columnist.

Random Notes

A policy is only good when enforced

Many Jewish people on this campus during the past several weeks had to make what was, for many, a painful decision: to attend classes and miss observance of the holiest days in the Jewish religion, or to honor their religious tradition and miss classes and labs. In this instance, the University played the same historic role as many American institutions: requiring Jews to work or attend classes on the Sabbath or during the holidays has often forced Jews to disassociate themselves from their traditions and their history.

Here at the University, for those who chose to miss classes, the pain was the psychological one of having to ask, "Am I a Jew first, or student first?" Yet for some the pain went beyond this one of internal questioning—for some it meant actually being penalized by professors for missed attendance.

Some of the penalties have included being assigned make-up work disproportional to the amount of class or lab work missed, losing the extra credits granted for perfect attendance, and having the missed test or lab count as the low score in courses that drop the lowest grade. In each of these cases, the students have been penalized as a result of their religion—clearly a form of discrimination.

The academic calendar issued to all faculty and students this year stated:

Quizzes and exams should not be scheduled, or make-ups should be provided so that students are not penalized or disadvantaged as a result of religious observance. Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur,, and Passover begin at sunset of the preceding day.

Many professors did follow this policy, and thereby honored the cultural/religious needs of Jewish students. This policy sets an important precedents for allowing students of all religious groups the opportunity to honor their traditions. Yet there are a number of professors who chose not to follow this policy, perhaps because they do not recognize the diversity of our campus population—a diversity that mirrors the nature of the society around us.

If you, or anyone you know, has been penalized as a result of religious observance, there is something that you can do. The first step is to talk to the professor responsible; if this proves unsatisfactory, talk to the department head. If you would like someone to help advocate for you, call Rabbi Saul Perlmutter at Hillel or Marcia Black, Jewish Awareness Advocate at SCERA. The advocacy/mediation services offered through Hillel and SCERA have worked in the past, and we strongly encourage students to contact us if they feel they have been discriminated against as a result of their religion.

The calendar policy undertaken by the University is an important one, yet it is only effective if we insist that it be enforced.

Marcia Black, Heidi Holland and Debbie Kutenplon are members of the SCERA Anti-Oppression team.

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS.
MUG NIGHT!
20 and Over
and
DANCING
8:30 to 12:30
$2.00 cover
20 and over

FRI.
SOCIAL HOUR
with PAUL WAYNE
3 to 6 • no cover
20 and over
WMUA OLDIES night
8:30 to 12:30
18 and over

SAT.
HILLEL DANCE
9 to 1
$2.00 Cover
18 and over

(14 colors)
Saturday Clothes
197 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-9729

SALE
100% cotton
Turtlenecks
$8.95 regularly $12.00
or 2 for $17.00
or 3 for $24.00
OPEN 7 DAYS
Thurs and Fri
till 8 pm
Bring this ad in Thurs or Fri nite between 6-8 PM & get another 10% off on this sale

upc PRODUCTIONS
presents:
an evening with
FRANK ZAPPA
"The Them or Us Tour '84"
FRANK ZAPPA
SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS
UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50
Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50
Tickets on Sale Now
UMass ID required with student ticket
Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center, Springfield Civic Center, and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Arts

A master bluesman

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Correspondent

Texas bluesman Stevie Ray Vaughan displayed qualities that are all too rare in the music business Sunday night at the Agora Ballroom.

Guitarist Vaughan and Double Trouble, his rhythm section consisting of bassist Tommy Shannon and drummer Chris Layton, eschewed the standard rock-concert cliches and instead provided a 90-minute set of honest, ass-kicking rhythm and blues.

The simple fact that Vaughan is trying to make a career as a blues musician is evidence enough that he is dedicated to his music and not concerned with commercial success. If he was, he could have sold out long ago and made formula pop a la ZZ Top. Instead, Vaughan continues to serve as almost the only proponent of this uniquely American form of music to achieve nationwide success.

From the opening notes of "Scuttle Buttin", an instrumental from his recently released Couldn't Stand the Weather LP, the Austin native put all of his intensity andemotion into his music, rarely pausing for a breather. After two opening instrumentals, Vaughan launched into a spell-binding version of Jimi Hendrix's "Voodoo Chile (Slight Return)." This cover has gegarnered him a lot of attention, but may cause people to overlook the fact that he is in most respects a traditional blues guitarist. He proved it for the audience Sunday with his anguished, searing leads in slow blues tunes such as "Texas Flood", the title track from his debut album, and "Lenny," an ode to his wife also from Texas Flood.

Although Vaughan is only an adequate vocalist, he more than compensates with his emotion and virtuoso guitar playing, as evidenced by his lightening-fast riffs in "Testify" and "Love Struck Baby," and soulful jamming during an extended version of "Tin Pan Alley."

Stevie Ray Vaughan's honesty and persistence have been rewarded with a degree of commercial success. "Pride and Joy" from his first album and "Cold Shot" from Couldn't Stand the Weather both received significant airplay on thr radio, and were warmly received by the crowd Sunday night.

Vaughan succeeded in giving the audience their money's worth despite the nearly inhuman conditions in the Agora. The capacity crowd was packed tightly into the unbearable hot and smokey confines of the club, with only the lucky few directly in front of the stage and on an elevated side platform able to see the stage clearly.

The tenth annual Multiband Pops concert, featuring performances by eight of the University's ensembles including the Minuteman Marching Band, will take place Friday October 12 at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. This yearly event is free and open to the public.

Salsa's diplomat of song

by JON STRYMISH
Collegian Staff

Ruben Blades, the king of salsa, and his band, Seis Del Solar, played the Fine Arts Center Friday night and it was a cause for celebration for the Hispanic community of Western Massachusetts. There was dancing in the aisles and on the barricades. Blades is a major innovator, who attempts to unite the Spanish world through his music's lyrics, and humor. The show was inaccessible to non-Spanish speakers, but this seems to come with the territory. He has plans to partially change this and extend his influence further into America by including English lyrics.

Blades has an interesting history. He moved to New York ten years ago from Panama. He plans to return there someday to enter into politics. He has collected law degrees from universities in both New York and Panama, along the way selling over ten million records and writing some of the most well known singles in South America. His single, "El Tiburon" (The Shark) got him banned from Miami radio stations for being "communist." This song was his encore Friday night.

Salsa is traditionally bold and brassy music with party lyrics. The melodies are complex but repetitive. This poses a problem in concert for those like myself not educated in the nuances of this music. But on his record it didn't cause any problems. Blades' musical reform includes dropping the brass sections and scaling down the melodies while scaling up the lyrics.

Seis del Solar, or "Six from the Tenement" his backing band are young, fast and intense, but in concert a little over-anxious, speeding up the music a bit for dancing and maybe taking a little feeling out of it. Their style is much like a fifties backing band, staying in their own place and creating a continued wall of the same sounds and rhythms. Blades, on the other hand, is a very charismatic performer, dressed like a 50's rock and roller in loose black coat and T-shirt. Blades' funky style showed that he was a real showman and his friendly raps with the audience created a feeling of genuine warmth throughout the audience. (Incidentally, Joe Jackson has copped much of Blades' style, especially when he played at the Fine Arts Center two years ago. Jackson, who has never been known for originality, also used Blades' music as the inspiration for Night and Day.)

In between songs Blades told about getting mugged in New York. The mugger told Blades that he was a musician and he couldn't get a job. When Blades told the mugger that he should write a song for him to put on a record so Blades could pay him for it, the mugger replied, "No, I'd rather mug you."

He also made fun of our useless high school Spanish lessons, comparing them to his useless high school English lessons. Ruben Blades' music reflects a sense of humor and a mind which should drive him to his goals, which are political and humanistic. He does not think he can change the world, but he does expect to change people's attitudes.

This may have been the only concert Ruben Blades will play this year because of his college commitments. We were lucky that he played it here.

The National Broadway Touring Company brings Duke Ellington's Sophisticated Ladies to the UMass Fine Arts Center on Sunday, October 14 for two performances. For more information call the box office at 545-2511.

The new Southern sound

by Elizabeth C. Langlois
Collegian Correspondent

Certain pockets of the U.S. have always managed to produce great bands. The South is no exception. Earlier on, there were the Allman Bros. and Lynyrd Skynyrd, and now there's REM, the dB's and Let's Active, to name just a few.

For the uninitiated, the dB's were and still are one of the finest producers of slightly twisted but great pop music. But no major label signed them until recently. Their long awaited album Like This finally appeared in the stores last month. The departure of former co-leader Chris Stamey has left its mark on the band, and has propelled the dB's away from oddball pop to a more streamlined sound.

Like This is not an immediately accessible album. Neither were its predecessors. But it has a sneaky way of infiltrating your mind. The single "Love is for Lovers" is a Nazz-influenced piece if I ever heard one.

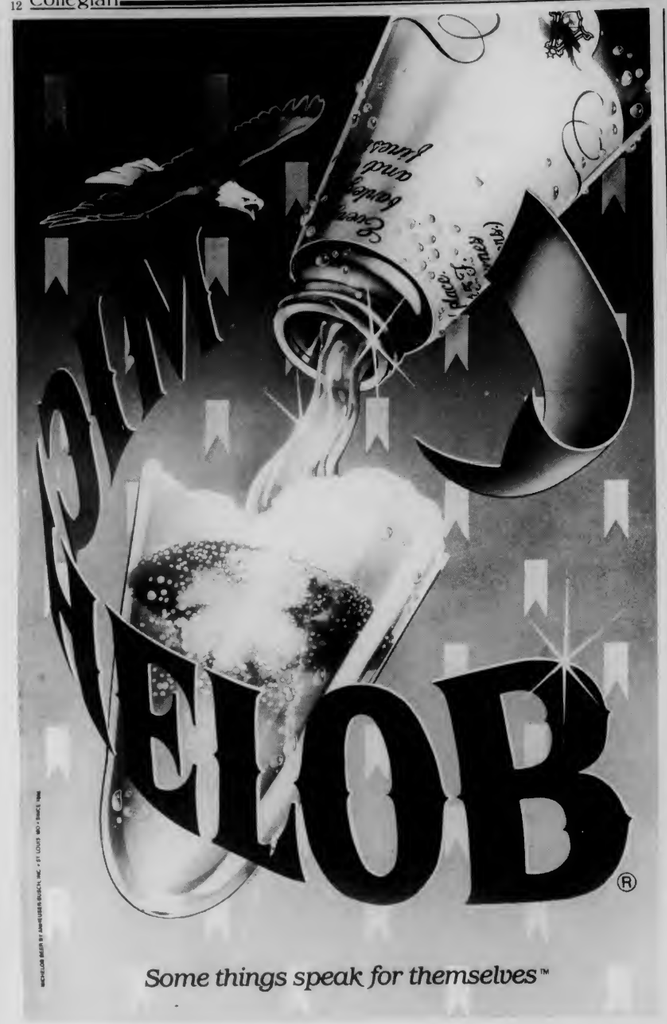
The shadow of Bearsville wizard Todd Rundgren may indeed hang over the dB's because this track reminds me of classic Nazz or Rundgren's early solo efforts. The Beatles are another influence that always seem to creep into the dB's music, and this outing is no exception.

Although the dB's have done quieter songs on their other albums, the two softer pieces here, "Lonely is (as Lonely does)" and "On the Battlefront" sound different from anything they've ever done before. "Lonely is" is another insidious song that continues to grow on me with repeated listenings despite its melancholy flavor. Holsapple and Stamey always had the ability to do that - to draw one back with fascination to the hooks you swear you've heard before, but can't quite place.

The only thing which doesn't really belong here is "Amplifier" which doesn't really belong here is "Amplifier" which appeared originally on Repercussions, and is not significantly different than the original. Perhaps Holsapple wanted their first major label release to include something familiar from the hard to find Albion LPs.

Anyhow, although not the treat that their first two albums were, this is a fine release. It has a more integrated sound, and by rights it should do very well. Charlie Daniels once wrote a song called "The South's Gonna Do It Again." Although he may not have had this current crop of talent in his mind, his words couldn't have been more apt. Go see the dB's and REM on October 15th in the FAC. It should be a helluva show.

The dB's (see review, left) will open for REM's Monday night concert at the FAC, sponsored by UPC.



Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day before they take place except Monday which will carry Monday's and Tuesday's events. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

THE WRITING CENTER-The Writing Center offers free, confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignments or writing project. Drop-in, no appointment necessary. 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Pierpont Classroom, S.W.

AHORA MEETING-Come help us plan our Caribbean Week at UMass. Let's make the Latin American presence felt by sponsoring cultural, political and educational activities concerning the people of Latin America. Come join AHORA. 7:00 p.m. Campus Center (Look for room number in front of elevators)

SUPPORT GROUP FOR WOMEN WITH EATING-RELATED PROBLEMS-Many women of all ages are dissatisfied with their eating and weight-control patterns.

Yet most of these women feel isolated and alone in their concerns.

The Counseling Program at Everywoman's Center will be sponsoring a support group for women who are concerned about their relationship to food. The group will begin on Thursday, October 11, for ten weeks.

For more information and to register, contact EWC by calling 545-0883. Confidentiality is assured.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM RECRUITMENT MEETING-Introductory meeting for all students interested in joining the Distinguished Visitors Program. All UMass students are welcome. 7:00 p.m. CC803

MANAGEMENT CLUB HAPPY HOUR-The 1st meeting of the management club. Old and new member and all majors are welcome. Upcoming events will be discussed. An opportune chance to get involved and have fun!!6:00 CBA Faculty Lounge Rm. 312

LESBIAN UNION-Weekly support rap groups held on Thursdays. Everyone is welcome to bring ideas, talk, listen. 7:00 p.m. 406 SUB

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Pepperidge Farm® bakes 34 deliciously tempting cookies like Mint Milano, Date Pecan and Chocolate Brownie Nut. They're freshly baked with only the finest ingredients, then sealed tightly in foil-lined bags. And, of course, in true pepperidge farm cookie tradition, they don't contain any artificial colors, flavors or preservatives.
Persuade your shopkeeper to part with a bag.
And surrender to sweet indulgence.

15¢ STORE COUPON 15¢
PEPPERIDGE FARM®
SAVE 15¢ ON ANY PEPPERIDGE FARM COOKIE.
CONSUMER: One coupon per purchase. Good only on product indicated. Consumer pays any sales tax. Not valid in Pepperidge Farm Thrift Stores.
GROCER: Redeem at face value by customer upon purchase of product indicated. ANY OTHER USE CONSTITUTES FRAUD. For reimbursement of face value plus 8¢ mail handling send to Pepperidge Farm Inc. Dept. 1901, El Paso, Texas 79966. Failure to produce on request invoices proving purchase of stock covering coupons redeemed will disqualify submitted level of future redemptions. Coupons mailed or presented by other than retail store of our products. Cash value 1/100¢. PEPPERIDGE FARM, INCORPORATED
14100 701144
MILANO

99¢ James H. McManus 99¢
eating place
and 99.3 FM HOT SPOT bring you
99¢ Specials Tonight!
Thursday, October 11th
99¢ Bottle Beer domestic brands
(with food purchase, until 12 midnight)
99¢ Overstuffed New Englander Sandwich
99¢ A Regular Order of Potato Skins
with bacon and cheese sauce
99¢ 2 eggs, toast and coffee
Sun-Thurs 6 am-3 am; Fri and Sat open 24 hours
Super Stop & Shop Campus Shopping Center
Rte. 9, Hadley/Amherst 256-6889
Positive ID required
Listen to 99.3 FM for further details
Coca-Cola

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

MIKE, HERE'S THE POOP OUR TOP ACCOUNT HAS JUST HANDED US A RUSH CAMPAIGN, AND I NEED A YOUNG COMER WHO CAN GET IT ON TRACK FAST. CASS HERE SAYS THAT YOU'RE MY MAN!
WELL, SIR, I'LL DO MY BEST NOT TO LET YOU DOWN. I'M VERY EXCITED ABOUT BEING A COPYWRITER, AND I'M ANXIOUS TO GET GOING!
AS LONG AS I'M SELLING SOMETHING I BELIEVE IN, I'LL GIVE YOU EVERY THING I'VE GOT!
GREAT. I WANT YOU TO SELL RONALD REAGAN TO BLACK VOTERS.
I CAN'T STAND IT.
I SEE A CALVIN KLEIN APPROACH RECLINING BLACK TEENAGERS TALKING ABOUT THEIR FIRST JOBS.
GB Trudeau

Today's Weather

TODAY: Morning cloudiness, becoming mostly sunny in the afternoon, 70-75.
TONIGHT: Clear, 45-50.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

"YOU'RE 94 POINTS BEHIND," THEY SAID. "GO HAVE A RALLY ON A COLLEGE CAMPUS," THEY SAID. "TAP THAT BOTTOMLESS WELL OF YOUTHFUL IDEALISM!"
SO THE CANDIDATE FOR V.P. ARRIVES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF BLOOM COUNTY KNOWING DARN WELL WHAT HE WILL FIND...
RAMPAGING RADICALS!
DOUGH?
NUKES? SURE!
RRRUUMMBLE!!

Writers' Workshop

George Forcier, News Editor of the Greenfield Recorder, on writing and interviewing 8 p.m. tonight in the newsroom
All correspondents who want to make staff status should attend

The Lab — By LAW

TIME TO WOW THE WORLD WITH ANOTHER INVENTION! THE RUDOLF SNAKELY DISAPPEARING RAY!
I'LL TAKE THIS BAG I FOUND AND MAKE IT THE FIRST TEST ITEM!
MY LUNCH!
DON'T WORRY! IT WILL MAKE YOU FAMOUS!
KRA-KA-POW!
WELL! IT WORKS BUT I THINK IT NEEDS SOME ADJUSTMENTS
A MORE CONTROLLED FOCUS PERHAPS

Gorde — by Gorde

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

I CAN'T BELIEVE HOW YOU SPOIL THAT SLUG OF YOURS. WHAT ARE YOU MAKING?
WELL, YOU KNOW HOW MUCH HE LIKES TO LISTEN TO THE POLICE...
I MADE STING A TINY PAIR OF HEADPHONES TO GO WITH MY WALKMAN.
GREAT! PUT ON A TAPE AND SEE HOW HE LIKES IT.
OOOH! OOOH! OOOH!
HMMMMMM....
GUYS SOMETHING TELLS ME THIS ISN'T GOING TO WORK.

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman

I'm sitting at home... oh. A knock at the door.
Yeasthead is sitting at home when there is a sudden knock on the door.
suspenseful noises
Dogs will be... dogs.
It is me, your long lost Brother, SNACKhead
Oh, it is my long lost brother, Snackhead
Yeasthead gets the door.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Part of a vessel
5 What comedians do
10 Bench's protection
14 Bull, in Barcelona
15 Removed the center
16 Molding
17 Give vent to 18 Bernstein and Mehta
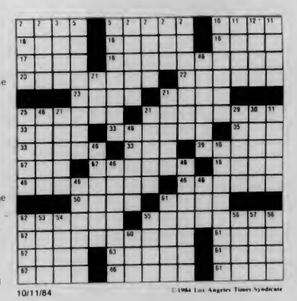
20 Tints anew
22 Stone piles
23 — to the occasion
24 Treaty org
25 Cyclist's protection
28 Relaxations of tensions
32 Roman music halls
33 Veteran thespian
35 Early English money
36 Veranda vine
38 Adjectival suffix
39 NW European peninsula Abbr
41 Days gone by
42 Equestrienne of fame
45 Land mass
46 Earned
48 Wonders of the World, e.g.
50 Reward
51 Row
52 Ending with land
55 Reproduces
59 Washington worker
61 Dribble
62 Unique thing
63 Mountain ridge
64 ——— creature was
65 Being, in Nice
66 Amens
67 Night sight

DOWN
1 Speed or road ending
2 Library work
3 Name for a Viking
4 Haulage vehicle operator
5 Approaches
6 Melba of song
7 Coffee containers
8 But: Lat
9 Tutor
10 Time and —— study
11 Borodin's Prince
12 Sea bird
13 Hardy figure
19 Provides provender
21 Kind of detector
24 Israeli desert
25 —— up (hidden)
26 Roman official
27 Guides
28 Michelangelo masterpiece
29 Breaklast bite
30 Sesame Street muppet
31 Memorable Egyptian
34 —— over
37 Sees eye to eye
40 Nemo and Ahab, e.g.
43 Detailed map area
44 Aims for the stars
47 Victoria's realm
49 Be credulous (with "up")
51 Struck
52 Blackthorn
53 Copper
54 Ripener
55 Natives: Suffix
56 Street sound
57 Miss Kett
58 Mosel feeder
60 Common verb

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

U	S	E	R		B	R	I	M		S	P	O	T	S
S	I	V	A		L	I	V	E		O	R	T	H	O
A	M	A	T		E	N	O	S		N	O	T	E	S
F	I	N	I	A	N	S		R	A	I	N	B	O	W
			O	N	O	E			R	Y	E
B	R	A	N	T	S		A	G	A		R	O	L	L
R	O	S	S	I		T	R	O	O		S	H	O	E
I	N	S		C	H	A	R	L	E	S		A	D	A
E	D	E	R		A	P	E	O		H	A	R	E	D
F	A	N	T	A		S	E	T		G	A	L	E	N
			P	U	N		T	O	R	O
O	V	E	R	T	H	E	R	A	I	N	B	O	W
A	W	I	N	G		E	R	A	T		S	A	N	E
R	E	N	T	E		A	M	I	E		O	L	E	S
T	R	E	S	S		R	A	T	E		S	E	R	T

10/11/84



10/11/84 ©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

Lunch
American Chop Suey
Monte Cristo Sandwich

Dinner
Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce, Chopped Beefsteak Special

Basics Lunch
Boursin and Sprout Sandwich
Soybean, Corn, Tomato Casserole

Basics Dinner
Golden Carrot Bake/White Sauce
Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce

THE SOUND COMPANY'S

STORES OPEN THURSDAY• FRIDAY NITE

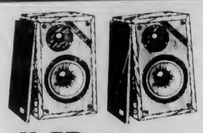
Twenty-Third ANNIVERSARY SALE

STORES OPEN THURSDAY• FRIDAY NITE

AKAI JENSEN AM/FM Stereo Cassette & Phono Component Music System — SAVE $200 — 399.99

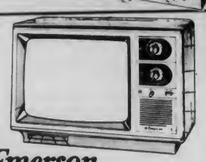
Emerson AM/FM Stereo Cassette Phono Music System — SAVE $100 — 249.99

Technics COMPACT STEREO DISC PLAYER — SAVE $200 — 299.99



AVID 80 TOP RATED SPEAKERS — SAVE $70 — 79.99 ea.

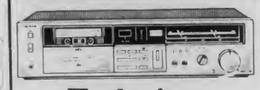
Panasonic AM/FM STEREO (box) CASSETTE — SAVE $30 — $89.99



Emerson 12" B & W T.V. — SAVE $30 — 59.99

Technics LINEAR TRACKING TURNTABLE — SAVE $60 — 109.99

AKAI SOFT TOUCH DOLBY CASSETTE — SAVE $30 — 109.99



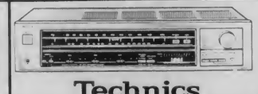
Technics DOLBY & DBX CASSETTE RECORDER — SAVE $40 — 129.99

Technics SEMI AUTO BELT DRIVE TURNTABLE — SAVE $20 — 69.99

CROWN CAR AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE — SAVE $40 — 39.99

JENSEN JENSEN CAR AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE — SAVE $80 — 89.99

ALPINE ALPINE AM/FM STEREO AUTO REVERSE CASSETTE — SAVE $20 — 139.99



Technics TECHNICS 35 WATT AM/FM RECEIVER — SAVE $40 — 129.99

SINCE 1961

The Sound Company

AMHERST 201 N. PLEASANT STREET 256-0744 Open Thurs. & Friday Evenings 'til 8 P.M.

CHICOPEE FAIRFIELD Mall near Caldors 593-5330 Open Every Evening 'til 9:30 P.M. Open Sunday 12-5

SPRINGFIELD 477 SUMNER AVE (at the X) 736-3626 Open Thurs. & Fri. Till 9 P.M.

SPRINGFIELD BOSTON RD. Marshall's Plaza 782-7082 Open Thurs. & Fri. Til 9 P.M.

NO RAIN CHECKS. Quantities Limited. All items not available in all stores and NO DEALERS

CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS

THE GREAT DINNER MOVIE DEAL!

TOP of the CAMPUS RESTAURANT & LOUNGE fine dining ...a meal with a view

CHOOSE from our starring entrees:

★ PEPPER STEAK
★ T.O.C. SCROD
★ CHOPPED SIRLOIN
★ ROAST TURKEY

served with our SALAD BAR and your choice of beverage, and RECEIVE a FREE MOVIE PASS

DINNER SPECIAL is available TUESDAY-THURSDAY nights

MOVIE PASS is valid SUNDAY-THURSDAY

ONLY 7.95

8 Theaters... Your choice for entertainment amc THEATRES 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

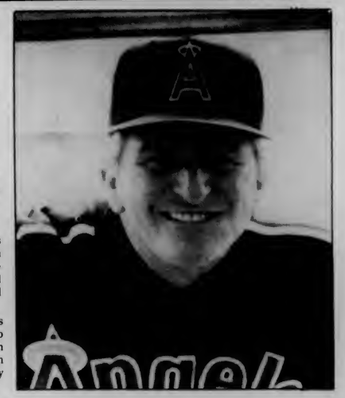
New Bosox Skipper?



BOSTON- Former California Angels manager John McNamara is reportedly ready to join the Boston Red Sox as manager for the 1985 season.

McNamara announced his decision to resign from California on Tuesday. He has been meeting with Red Sox owner Haywood Sullivan at the World Series in San Diego. He would step in for the retired Ralph Houk, who resigned from the club citing family reasons.

Houk guided the Sox to a fourth place finish in the American League East.

John McNamara may be the new manager of the Boston Red Sox.

MAKEUP CAKES, GREASE PAINT, HAIR SPRAYS, GELS, GLITTERS, BODY COLORS, LIPSTICKS, STRAKS, CREAMS, FORMS, THEATRICAL HAIR, WIGS, FEL, MOHAWKS, PUNK, SATIN, VET LOCK, LONG HAIR, AFRO, WITCH HATS, DERBYS, BOWLER HATS, TUTUS, TIARAS, HILLBILLY, GANGSTER, NIXON, REAGON, MONDY, EINSTEIN, BEARDS, THUGS, WOLVES, GORILLAS, SEQUINS, CAT, BIRD, CAPES, GOWNS, DEVILS, ACCESSORIES WHIPS, SWORDS, GLASSES, BEARDS, MOUSTACHES, NOSES, EARS, TEETH, BEAGLE, NOSE HAIR, MAKEUP CAKES, GREASE PAINT, HAIR SPRAYS, GELS, GLITTERS, BODY COLORS, LIPSTICKS, STRAKS, CREAMS, Downtown Amherst Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

Countdown to Halloween '84

15% OFF TODAY

the Halloween Shop at FACES

A Store-full of Ideas

FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge

TONIGHT 7-1

AMATEUR DJ NITE!

Guys and gals come try your hand and spinning the discs at Funnybones.

* No experience necessary *

Try it just for fun, or to possibly become a regular DJ here at Funnybones.

* 2 FREE DRINKS for all contestants *

Come ready to play anytime 7-1!

Rt. 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION

RADIAL TIRE SALE

P155/80R13

$29.95

•Includes Mounting• plus MA State Tax

North Amherst Tire & Auto Center

"Full Service Tire Store"

78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA

Across from Wairoba's Store

549-4704

Laundromat — Amherst Sunshine Center

• Washers: Single, Double, Triple
• Dryers with DuraPress Cycle
• Dry Cleaners

326 College St. (Rt.9 East)

253-9030

Car Wash — Amherst Sunshine Car Wash

Automatic Wash/Wax Bay
Self Service Bays
Vacuum Cleaners

381 College St. (Rt. 9 East)

253-9661

"OUR ATTENDANT IS HAPPY TO ASSIST YOU"

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

APPLE MACINTOSH

Computer, Imagewriter printer, MacWrite, MacPaint, MS Basic, box of disks, surge protector, diskette file 1-637-1137

AUDIO

State of the art stereo system: JBL L-110 speakers with stands, Onkyo TX-30 digital receiver, JVC LF-41 turntable, quartz, with Pickering cart., paid $1800-must sell $700 Warren 546-9787

For sale - Pioneer A-800 car AM/FM cassette with music search, supertuner 3 Paid $219 - must sell - $100 Warren 546-9787

AUTO FOR SALE

Vega Wagon '79 new clutch, brakes, steering box, Body v. good 546-7068 ask for Tim keep trying

1970 VW Beetle rebuilt engine new brake system new clurch good tires includes parts car and trailer hitch $1000 call Brenda 549-6999

79 Dodge Omni AC A/T stereo many new parts 548-0381

1973 Dodge Charger deluxe. Mechanically sound, AC, cloth interior, AM FM cassette quadrophonic stereo, 82,000 orig. miles. Very clean and dependable car. Best offer 256-8335

DON'T MISS

Mystery guest ster performing Friday night at JR's someone worth seeing

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock A Video entertainment glam 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rock-A-Diac Rock-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0246 or 586-7089

FOR SALE

Digitel Decwriter w/modem and paper ideal for Cyber 549-5218

Eagle II word processing C.P.M. Computer, $1200.00. 1-533-9727

Gibson-Marauder maple-neck, mahogany-body. Beautiful guitar! With hard-shell case - $250.00 546-3272

Airlines ticket to Chicago, Seattle, or Anchorage. Best offer. Call 584-5077

Scuba Tank 72 cu. ft. steel J-valve hydrostatically tested $50 call Brenda 549-6999

Four Michelin XZX 70 series 13 Inch rims $40.00 247-5087 after 5 PM

Couch $95.00 549-0875 Camaro $1750.

Technics 28 watt digital receiver 7 presets, quartz lock tuning excellent condition $125.00 546-7468

Akel integrated amp 70 wts Akai tuner 7 presets $250.00 Yamaha turntable low mass B + O cartridge $125.00 549-7526

FOUND

Set Nite (10/6) @ Pub I found your Levi's jacket, size 36, after you took mine, size 18, keys in pocket. 549-1879

Calico and Tiger striped kitten approx. 4 months old found in NE section on Oct 7 call 6-5468 for more info

HELP WANTED

Housespopte wanted. Homecooked meals in exchange for light kitchen cleanup call 546-2150 ask for Jim

Ambitious college student needed part time to organize a Rock and Art Fair. Very rewarding role. 536-3880 anytime

Oversees jobs. Summer, yr. round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900.-$2000. mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

The People's Gay Alliance is looking for an Office Manager. This is a work study position; and duties will be janitorial and clerical. Drop off your name, number, and an informal resume in the PGA Office, 413B SUB. Replies must be in by Oct 16th.

CAMPUS REP POSITION Earn high commissions and FREE TRIPS promoting high quality ski and beach trips to Colorado, Daytona Beach and South Padre Island. Call Summit Tours 800-325-0429

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas 2 for 1 hot tub every Monday and Tuesday night call for reservations 253-7727

Utopia Spas private hot tub rentals call now for reservations 253-7727

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2088

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, benkcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4086 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Gold Cross Necklace 10-2 please call 6-5191 reward equal to value of necklace very important

Light and dark blue backpack on 10-5-84 if found please call 665-4187

At TTKA (Thursday nite) jean jacket and red key chain with 2 keys and 2 ID's if found, please contact Ane at 549-4002

Sylvan Area on Oct 4 red wallet containing essentials reward Amy 546-5817

Lost a 20" gold chain large reward if found call John 549-0606

Prince tennis racket call Erika 6-9338

PERSONALS

Help Wanted Junior Manager Butterfield Kitchen for spring '85 and next academic year free room and board 15-20 hrs/wk at 4.25 applications avalable at: Butterfield Dorm Kitchen until Oct 19

Haircuts by Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-8368

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues. Oct 9 to Fri., Oct 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3. and the 1983 INDEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

Help bring diverse and interesting speakers and lecturers to campus join the Distinguished Visitors Program tonight 7:00 PM Campus Center Room 803

Philip Vettreino Happy 22nd this Sunday! Love me

Heppy Anniversary Tobe Two years thanks for everything Round Top, Hampton Beach, Mr. Johnson, (sniff sniff), the Bowmen Club, Chuck E Cheese, etc. Love you - Brigid

Open Little Sister Rush to all University of Lambda Chi Alpha 374 N. Pleasant St. tonight from 7 to 9:30 pm. Attn Sue and Gwen

There have been times - everywhere for this person. Have you guessed who? You have to see it to believe it! It is going to blow your mind. It's BIG!

Michele McKeon! Sorry I missed your B-Day. Hope it was a good one! Let's get together. Call me! 6-7694 love E!

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

REFRIGERATOR RENTAL

Refrigerator Rental 2 cubic ft. R & P PACKAGE STORE free delivery 253-9742

RIDE WANTED

R.T. ride wanted to Montreal will help pay expenses. Any weekend! Call 256-8413

SERVICES

Need a tutor? I can help! For more info call 665-4931 after 9:00

SUN TAN NOW

Utopia Spas Suntanning Specials call now for special prices 253-7727

TAMI TETREAULT

We don't have your number! Please come back!

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal. Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer stading room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5126

WANTED

Females to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4089

Tire(s) 165 SR-13's radials, good condition. Please call 253-8054 evenings

Steady Babysitting Job ! love kids! Few negotiable call anytime Louise 256-8760

Sports

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Freshman forward Julie DePauw in action against New Hampshire. The Minutemen are traveling to Springfield today to face Springfield College.

Women's soccer on a roll; Springfield is next foe

Banda looking for another big win

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

It won't do the opposition of the second ranked University of Massachusetts women's soccer team any good to key on leading scorer Jolie DePauw.

If DePauw is bottled up, it will probably leave left wing Monica Seta, the team's second leading scorer or right wing Chris Taggart, a enior All-American open to score.

"It would be almost useless to mark me," DePauw said, "because there's an All-American on the right wing and the team's second leading scorer on the left. They better mark everyone."

The Springfield Chiefs face the tough assignment of shutting down the Minutemen's explosive front line when they meet today at 5 p.m. at Benedum Field in Springfield. The game will be played on artificial turf.

This front line has been responsible for over half of the team's 31 goals this season. The Seta-DePauw-C. Taggart connection have scored 17 goals. DePauw leads the team with nine goals and three assists for 21 points. Seta has six goals, one assist, for 13 points.

"As far as the game is concerned, we have to take it just like any other game. Just go out and win," DePauw said. The freshmjman scored a hat trick in Tuesday's 8-0 win over UNH.

"We have to take things one game at a time," head coach Kalekeni Banda warned after the blowout over UNH. "We have to be game-sharp all the time." The Minutemen face fifth ranked Cortland State on Sunday.

"Of course, when your team is at the top, everyone is gunning for you," DePauw said. "We really can't look past anyone."

The Minutemen's New jEngland region (Mass., VT. NH. and Maine) games will take on added importance as the season winds down. UMass still faces rivals Dartmouth, Harvard and Boston College. The top ranked team in the region receives an NCAA berth.

Strangely enough, the top ranked team in New England, overall, is Brown, who is ranked fourth nationally. UMass is second in New England. Brown upset UMass 1-0 two weeks ago.

But today the opponent is Springfield, and the Chiefs have quite a challenge in front of them to stop the 'minutemen.

Jeanne Paul will start in goal for UMass against Springfield College.

New cross-country coach

Gardiner hopes to improve women's squad

By CHRIS TREMBLAY
Collegian Staff

It was only two years ago that fifth year senior Caroline Gardiner was running on the women's varsity cross country team, today she's coaching the team.

Gardiner, who's a 1983 University of Massachusetts graduate with a degree in fine arts, is not only the head coach of the cross country team, but is also the assistant coach of the women's indoor-outdoor track team. She was asked to take over the team when Julie LaFreniere left prior to the beginning of the school year. "Julie had told me in the spring that she may be leaving and asked if I would want the job."Gardiner said, "But it wasn't final until the end of August."

Although Gardiner is coaching at UMass it isn't her first coaching job. She previously coached indoor-outdoor track at Newton South High School and had other plans lined up if UMass didn't contact her.

"I was coaching track at Newton South when Julie told me about the job." Gardiner said, "I just waited to find out. If I didn't coach here then I would have applied for other coaching jobs."

Gardiner, a Sudbury, Massachusetts native, began her running career in her junior year at Lincoln-Sudbury High School, where she ran both indoor and outdoor track.

She soon found herself out of high school and in college, where she continued to run.

"I came to UMass planning to run as your basic half-miler." Gardiner said, "But I knew I had more to learn about running and cross country itself."

As far as Gardiner is concerned her freshmen and sophomore years weren't really taken seriously, due to sickness and injury, but the last few years were.

"My freshmen and sophomore years weren't taken seriously because I had mono and some injuries." Gardiner said, "I took my last years seriously though and didn't even run my junior year because I thought I might be taking an extra year for school. It worked out that way too."

When Gardiner was running for the Minutemen there were only five runners on the team. Two of those runners (Maureen O'Reilly and Kim Baker) are still on the squad's roster, but Gardiner sees no difficulty in coaching them.

"It's not difficult to coach them because I was away for a year," Gardiner said, "At the time they were sophomores and I was a fifth year senior, I just helped the team to the best of my ability. Besides, we're good friends and if there's a problem we talk about it."

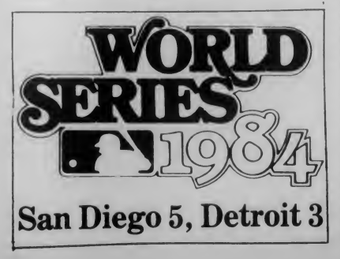
Although this year's team is a young one, for the most part, Gardiner gives a lot credit to LaFreniere.

"Julie tried to put together a team with depth because when I was a senior there were only five runners on the team." Gardiner said,

"Today I have a good body of young runners (only three seniors) and I'll try to teach them the competitiveness of cross country. It's a team effort and you can't win unless you try hard as a team."

Gardiner will also be working on building a good indoor-outdoor team and teaching the girls to be mentally competitive throughout the whole race, but needs to do some good recruiting of freshmen.

The team hasn't faired to well so far this year, but Gardiner attributes the losses to people not being in top shape for the beginning of the season. They should, however, be reaching their peak soon and should be ready for the New Englands at Franklin Park in Boston on October 27, trying to outdo last years fourth place performance.



San Diego 5, Detroit 3

Latest Minutemen rankings

The University of Massachusetts fared well in the latest national rankings.

The women's soccer team, 9-1-1, are second in the nation behind North Carolina. In the New England rankings they are also second, behind Brown University.

The field hockey team stands at eighth nationally with a 9-1 record.

The men's soccer team enjoyed only one of national recognition, falling out of the top 20. They are fifth in the New England Division 1 poll, falling from first.

Sports Log

Tony Betros

Just a few thoughts...

The Fall Classic is underway on NBC. If anyone had told me in the beginning of the season that the Tigers and the Padres would be in the World Series, I would have spat on them more than once. But here they are...The Tigers took care of the Royals in three staight and are the obvious favorites. But how about the Padres? They showed their poise and came back to beat the Cubs...The way I figure it, it will be the year 2023 before the Cubs win another division title. Maybe by then they will bring the books from Goddell into the Tower.

As for the World Series, the Tigers look extremely tough. In game one, they played the best fundamental baseball I've seen. In one inning, they threw out a runner trying to stretch a double to a triple, they made a nice play in getting out a runner attempting to bunt, and pitched out to get a runner trying to steal second. That is why the Tigers had the best record in all of baseball...They also have WillieHernandez, who in 32 save oppoortunities made 32 saves. 32 out of 32 —sounds like an astronomy 100 exam...The Padres have one of the better one-two hitters in Alan Wiggins and Tony Gwynn, who combined for over 100 stolen bases. They also have Steve Garvey, who makes Dale Murphy look like a Communist... It should be a well-played series, but I can't see the Tigers losing it. They should take it in five or six.

The football news is a happy one out of Foxboro, as the Pats look to go 5-2 against the hapless (a great sportswriters word) Cincinnatti Bengals. They celebrated Christmas early in Cleveland with that 17-16 gift last Sunday...Somebody please tell me how a coach, a pro coach mind you, would pass the ball at the opponents' 20 yard line with 23 seconds left when you can try a field goal instead. Sam Rutigliano woud do very well at Whitmore.

The Earl Campbell trade is a very interesting one. The Oilers got squat in return and the Saints have a backfield of Campbell and George Rogers. They may give the NFC West some trouble...The Cowboys have been slipping up a bit. They've already lost two games to eastern division opponents, with the Redskins up next...I don't think Neil Lomax is on Tom Landry's Hallmark list.

Hockey is underway tonight with the Bruins and Penguins going at it on the USA Network home of Tuesday Night Titans. With Klusak, Pederson, and Crowder out, the B's are in trouble. The Celties played well in Hartford against the 76ers, sans Maxwell and Henderson. Maybe they've overestimated their value...I have one question only The Outlaws can answer: How does the Iron Sheik have a medal from the Pan American games when he's supposedly from Ira• Maybe the rumor that he's from Springfield, Missouri isn't just a rumor.

sports at a glance

UMass schedule:
Women's Soccer: at Springfield, 5 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 27 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, October 12, 1984

D.H. Jones may buy Village Inn

Do we say so-long to old "Drake" hangout?

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

Amherst will lose a landmark gathering place if realtor Denison H. Jones goes through with his plans to buy the Village Inn, popularly known as the Drake, and convert it to apartments or condominiums in June 1985.

Jones is seeking to renovate the Drake into 30 to 50 one- and two-bedroom apartments. The four-story building at the corner of Amity and Prospect Streets now contains a rooming house with 30 rooms and suites, a restaurant-bar, on the first floor and a bar in the basement.

The realtor has said there is "absolutely no way" he would maintain a restaurant or bar.

The Drake has long been known for it's clientele, and as a place where students can drink alongside older customers from all walks of life.

It is also considered one of the only watering holes in the area where blacks and whites mingle comfortably, according to its clientele.

"This is the only place a combination of both the mature and the college crowd can come together and yet respect each other," said Frederick Holt, a manager at the Belchertown State School and a six-year regular at the Drake's first-floor lounge.

"I always come back here," said Holt, who is black and gives his age as "in my 40s...You go to most places and they have loud blasting noise. This is the one (bar) I feel most comfortable in. People get along much better here.

"You also have a choice here," he said, noting that the Drake has three bars: the first-floor lounge, the unfinished Willy's Rathskellar downstairs, frequented by a younger noisier crowd, and the tiny, quiet Brad's Grapevine that was added last year.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Longtime Drake bartender Willy Whitfield may open his own establishment if this Amherst landmark dries up next June.

The basement is named after 69-year-old Willy Whitfield, who has lived in a room upstairs and tended the bar since he came to town from Delaware 25 years ago.

"I love it here," Whitfield said as he made a drink for a white-haired woman and filled pitchers of beer for students. But he said the news of the impending sale didn't surprise him. He said 72-year-old owner Bradford Parker "has been wanting to sell it for a long time."

Parker, who is on vacation this week, told the Amherst Bulletin that he and his wife want to sell the Village Inn "while we've still got all out cookies and can enjoy life."

Whitfield said "the place has changed quite a lot. It used to be a rowdy crowd, with a lot of fights. It's calmed down a whole lot."

Now he said he believes that the Drake's reputation as a rough hangout is undeserved. "I can't remember the last time we had a fight," he said.

He praised the Rathskellar's tolerant atmosphere. "You could pull your clothes off and nobody would know it as long as you didn't bother any customers."

A five-year Village Inn resident and basement regular who would not give his name concurred, "This is the only place where you can feel at home and party and get as high as you want."

"It's the last real bar in Amherst," added the resident. "People coming to Amherst on the bus ask where the Drake is," he said.

With the loss of the Drake, Whitfield said, "Black people might decide they want to go into business for themselves. I might open up a place of my own. I'd like to stay in Amherst."

One customer said, "A year from now, I won't know where to find my friends. Now they all come here."

Fac senate reviews cores

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

More changes, revisions,and major considerations will be made before the faculty senate can approve or reject the final draft of the general education proposal that would change the University core requirements for next year's incoming class.

Further action to have the proposal passed will not occur until the program and budget council considers the financial ramifications of the bill, according to David Booth, rules committee chair.

Rick Patrick, Student Government co-president and member of the council, said "The Program and budget council have not yet met. No one can find the chairman," he said.

"Before anything can happen, the council has to consider the costs of implementing the proposal. We have to cnosider the specific resources and the great costs of getting TA's (teaching assistants) for every 50 students," Patrick said.

The general education proposal replaces the current C, D, and E core requirements with coursework in the areas of "social world," "biological and physical world" and "analytical reasoning."

Before the senate yesterday, Booth recommended a condensed version of the proposal that raised questions and debate of amendments by the faculty.

The senate decided that transfer student credits would fulfill the analytical reasoning requirement, which has two parts.

Robert S. Kirk, professor of chemical engineering noted that "all transfer credit must be approved by the transfer affairs office," but said that two or more courses taken at another college would satisfy the tier II requirement and one course could fulfill the first.

The senate also passed a motion stating that the second tier of the analytical reasoning requirement could not be satisfied by "courses whose primary purpose is remediation of high school mathematics."

Former CIA agent, professors speak on nuclear war

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

A former CIA agent's analysis of President Reagan's "star wars" weapon system and the possibility of a nuclear winter are some of the topics to be discussed in an all-day symposium at the University of Massachusetts on Saturday.

The symposium, titled "Educating Ourselves About Nuclear War," will consist of a panel discussion, workshops, and lectures by specialists in nuclear war. Registration will begin at 8:15 a.m. and the program will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium.

Dr. Jonathan Fine from the National Physicians for Social Responsibility will discuss the possiblity of a nuclear winter.

"The idea of an environmental disaster, a nuclear winter, might result from extensive use of nuclear weapons," Robert Page, professor of public health, said.

"People feel hopeless and helpless. The threat of nuclear war makes life very difficult," Page said.

The "Star Wars" weapons system proposed by the Reagan administration will be analyzed by Peter Clausen, co-author of the recently published Fallacy of the Star Wars.

Clausen, a senior arms analyst for the Union of Concerned Scientists in Cambridge has been a political analyst for the CIA and a nuclear energy specialist with the Department of Energy.

"People feel hopeless and helpless. The threat of nuclear war makes life very difficult."

— Professor Robert Page

Page said the weapon system is "the idea that we can get up satelites that can detect hostile activity which would be able to destroy missiles in flight. This would be the ultimate defense against our adversaries," Page said.

"If five years from now we have the perfect defense, what will our adversaries do? Long term results may be good, but short range results may be very disabilizing," he said.

Shelly Burman, one of the founders of Education for Social Responsiblity and Libby Neighbor, a high school student, will speak on "Education and the Threat of Nuclear War."

"A lot of young people down to the elementary grades has shown profound concern," Page said.

Noted historian Henry Steele Commager from Amherst College will speak on "Avoidance of the Nuclear Threat" and Alan Krass, physics and science policy professor at Hampshire College will discuss "Verification; A Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty."

Page said he will moderate a panel discussion. Two consecutive workshops will be held on each of the seven topics.

Page said the symposium was originally scheduled in the school of Management auditorium but because of the anticipated audience, the events have been relocated to accomodate the "expected 300 people.

Inside:

UMass professor provides data for Yale strikers p.3
Homophobic acts must not be tolerated p.7
Teachers in a state of confusion p.11

"Sleeping is no mean art. For its sake one must stay awake all day."

— Friedrich Nietzsche

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

Outer space hosts first female guest

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Exulting, "this is really great...superb...I love it," astronaut Kathy Sullivan yesterday became the first American woman to walk and work in the inhospitable environment of open space.

She and David Leestma spent more than three hours outside Challenger's cargo bay, often shouting with joy like kids at a playground. They seemed almost reluctant to come back in and had to be prodded several times by commander Robert Crippen.

"Six seconds, front and center," he said once. "Good job, time to come in," he said later.

Sullivan acted as a plumber's assistant to Leestma as he attached a refueling line to a tank fitting, testing tools and techniques that may someday refuel spent satellites that are now abandoned as space junk.

Later, her body dangling over the side at a 90-degree angle to the spacecraft, Sullivan helped Leestma align a loose antenna, so that pins could be driven into two holes electrically from inside the cabin.

Before the flight, there had been 38 space walks by Americans, all of them men. A soviet cosmonaut, Svetlana Savitskaya, became the first woman spacewalker last July 25.

Ferraro attacks 'voodoo economics'

PHIADELPHIA (AP) - George Bush said last night he's a supporter of President Reagan's economic program, "every step of the way," because "it's brought America back." Geraldine Ferraro retorted in the campaign debate that Bush once called that program "voodoo economics, and it was, and it is."

Ferraro declared in the opening moments of the 90-minute televised confrontation that, "I can make the hard decisions" required in high political office.

"I have enough experience to see the problems, address them," said Ferraro, the first woman to run for national office on a major party ticket.

She said the vice president had declared Reagan's economic program "voodoo economics" during the campaign for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination. "It was and it is," she said.

Bush said there was little difference between himself and Reagan on most issues, and said "the president turned it (the nation) around and I've been with him every step of the way."

"I believe firmly in his leadership. He's really turned this country around," Bush said in a firm defense of the man whose own debate performance last Sunday worried his supporters and provided a boost for the Democrats.

Bush said Ferraro disagreed with Mondale on several issues, including tax breaks for parents of private school students and school busing.

Bush attacked Mondale repeatedly in the opening moments of the debate, at one point holding his arms aloft as he said, "Contrary to Mr. Mondale's - I'd better be careful - contrary to Mr. Mondale's just saying everything's bad.

"I mean, somebody says there's a sliver lining out there," Bush said. "Whine on, harvest moon."

Ferraro criticized Bush for claiming credit for legislation on civil rights that the president signed. The bill "passed despite his opposition," she said. And he signed it because "he had to."

Bush said there were other ways of looking at civil rights, citing for one example that, "We look at civil rights as something like crime in your neighborhood."

He said Ferraro had asked some auto workers why some of them would vote for Reagan-Bush and she had told them "We deliver." Said Bush, "We deliver...optimism," adding of the Democrats, "They deliver the wrong things."

He then went into a string of negative economic statistics that he attributed to the tenure of Mondale as Jimmy Carter's vice president.

Ferraro said Bush understated Democratic achievements and oversold what's happened under Reagan.

"I'll be a one-woman truth squad and we'll start tonight."

AP Laserphoto

Vice President George Bush and Democratic candidate Geraldine Ferraro begin last night's debate.

Military papers found in store pinata

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — FBI agents are trying to determine how U.S. military documents got inside a pinata bought at a department store near here, and whether they are classified.

The $6.99 pinata was purchased at a Sears, Roebuck & Co. store in the nearby village of Victor, said Dale Anderson, who heads the local FBI office. The papier-mache pinata should have been empty when purchased, but was crammed with the documents, he said.

"We are conducting an investigation to determine whether a violation of the espionage statute has occurred," Anderson said.

"I guess there was some other stuff in there other than what's supposed to be in there," said Anderson, who would not say how many documents were inside, or talk of their nature.

"Those kinds of things I'm just not at liberty to discuss because it is under investigation," he said.

Thatcher OK after bomb blast

BRIGHTON, England (AP) - A large explosion was reported early today at the Grand Hotel, where Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has been staying during the Conservative Party conference in this seaside resort.

The British Broadcasting Corp. said Thatcher was in the hotel at the time, but was not hurt and was taken away under police escort. It said the lobby of the hotel was crowded at the time of the explosion.

Britain's domestic news agency, Press Association, said six floors of the hotel were believed to have been damaged.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Anne McCrory
Copy Editor — Taara Eden Hoffman
Layout Tecnician — Pete Soderberg
Photo Technician — Brian Gonye
Production Supervisor — Conor Plunkett
Production — Laura Zigman, Kathryn Nobrega, Susanne Reynolds, Pete Soderberg, Jeff Collins, Kenny Patrick, Catherine Hall.

Correction:

Due to an editing error, in a page one article in yesterday's Collegian, it was incorrectly stated that Dennis Martin called Beth Miller's comment regarding a greek area radio station a "falsehood." Martin had made the comment in response to a charge by Pat Mahoney.

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
TONIGHT! LIVE 9:00
F.C. POHAKU!
THE HOTTEST BAND IN THE VALLEY
($1.00 cover at the door)
DON'T MISS THE EXCITEMENT OF THAT ORIGINAL ROCK-FUNK BAND
Open till 2 am Friday & Saturday but come early, doors close when full
It doesn't matter how you get here.

Just get here.
RT. 9 HADLEY (across from Mt. Farms Mall 586-2770)

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Friday and Saturday
7:00 Basileus Quartet
9:00 Shoot the Piano Player
Sunday Only Bedtime for Bonzo FREE
Sunday thru Tuesday
7:00 Blues Brothers
9:15 Purple Rain
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting, plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
75 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

INQUISITIVE SOULS — Swan greets Madeline Lenski with Daniel, 3, and Shoshannah, five months, at the Campus Pond yesterday afternoon.

Off-campus students can save money with heating co-op

By KATHY HART
Collegian Correspondent

Off-campus students who heat their house or apartment with oil can save 8 to 20 cents per gallon by purchasing oil from the new Heating Oil Co-operative.

The co-op was formed by the Off-Campus Housing Office (OCHO) in cooperation with Mass Fair Share.

According to Joanne Levenson, OCHO director, arrangements have been made with several oil dealers in the Amherst area to supply oil to co-op members at a price below the average retail price.

"We are the only university to ever offer such a service to commuter students," said Levenson. "It's convenient, and it will save you money," she added.

Forms to join the co-op are available at the OCHO Office in room 423 of the Student Union Building. There is a $5 fee for membership through July, 1985.

"Co-op members are guaranteed that their prices will always be lower than the current retail price," said Levenson, even if the wholesale price goes up.

Levenson said the dealers participating in the co-op "are establishe - mpanies with good track records." The co-op will also offer burner maintenance and emergency repair service.

There will be three payment options, cash on delivery, a budget payment plan, and 30 day billing.

Chris Sullivan, the speaker of the student senate said he joined the co-op to "save money and support OCHO."

Levenson said fraternities and sororities could really benefit because they are heating large houses.

"Co-op members are guaranteed that their (oil) prices will always be lower than the current retail price."
— Joanne Levenson, off-campus housing director

OCHO is concerned with energy conservation, and has held energy conservation workshops in the past.

"It costs people a fortune to heat their homes and apartments," Levenson said. "Join the co-op and you'll be warmer — there will be no more fights with roommates over how cold the apartment is."

UMass professor researches the 'staggering wealth' at Yale

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

A 16-day old strike at Yale University that has closed 14 of the school's 15 dining commons and prompted professors to hold classes in their homes has been supported by information on Yale's "staggering wealth" provided by a University of Massachusetts professor.

The union of 2000 clerical and technical employees, which is 82 percent women, went on strike Sept. 26 at the Ivy League school. About 1000 maintenance and dining commons employees are honoring the picket lines, resulting in about 3,000 employees not working, according to a spokesperson at the strike headquarters.

Negotiations continued yesterday, but no progress was reported as of last night.

In addition to teaching a variety of economics courses at UMass, Professor Richard D. Wolff is an economic adviser to Yale's clerical and technical employees union, Local 34.

A member of the New Haven Revenue commission as well, Wolff has researched Yale's finances and says he can show that the university can afford to pay the union members "fair wages."

Wolff said he was able to investigate Yale's finances with little trouble because the university is so unaccustomed to being challenged.

"For Yale to claim economic hardship is obscene. It is like Rockefeller saying to a beggar on the street, 'sorry I don't have any money with me today,'" Wolff said.

Yale misleads its unions, alumni, the city of New Haven and student's parents by saying they have just barely balanced their budget, Wolff said.

In fiscal year 1983, Yale's revenues exceeded their expenses by about $35 million, but the institution re-invested the money and claimed that it barely broke even, Wolff said.

Reinforced by Wolff's research, Local 34 has requested higher wages, better pensions, dental and medical coverage and job security.

The strikers emphasize that they want an end to economic discrimination against clerical and technical workers, Aldo R. Cupo, a member of the negotiating committee, said.

Lucille Dickens, another member of the negotiating committee, said the clerical and technical workers are "grossly underpaid."

She said a truck driver at Yale makes $18,000 a year, while an administrative assistant who "has responsibilities and makes judgments and has a two-page job description makes about $15,000."

"Why shouldn't this person be paid as much as a truck driver?" she said.

AP Laserphoto

Striking Yale University employees picket yesterday as AFL-CIO head Lane Kirkland addresses group.

Colonial resident sees defacement, harassment

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Correspondent

Slurs against homosexuals were painted on a car and an apartment door at Colonial Village Wednesday, Amherst police reported.

Police said yesterday that the owner of the car also received a letter telling him to "get out of Colonial Village." Police would not release any other details, except that the letter was harshly worded. No arrests have been made.

In other police reports, a 33-year-old Amherst man was charged with driving while intoxicated, speeding, and operating with a suspended license. He was stopped on Gatehouse Road Wednesday night.

Police arrested a 29-year-old Amherst man on Route 116 early yesterday morning on a warrant issued by South Yarmouth police for traffic violations. He was also charged with driving an unregistered, uninsured motor vehicle and attaching improper plates.

A resident of Bay Road reported the theft of a brown, pure-bred French rabbit from a cage in front of his house. The rabbit, valued at $30, was reported missing at 8:39 a.m. Wednesday.

In other police reports, a license plate was reported stolen from a car in the parking lot at Townhouse Apartments Wednesday morning.

The manager of Plumbley's Restaurant reported a liquor law violation Wednesday after a minor attempted to purchase alcohol with an altered driver's license. Police said the license was confiscated and the youth will be summoned to court.

Holyoke police recovered a 1977 Toyota Celica early yesterday morning. The car, which was stolen from Townhouse Apartments Tuesday, was recovered partially stripped.

Police also received a call from a Pioneer Valley Transit Authority bus driver requesting assistance in removing a person from a bus. Police took the man into protective custody after he refused to get off the bus because he was drunk.

Photo by Derek Roberts

COMING ATTRACTION — Tim Joliat, Mark Farnon, Tarin Walsh, Iinnea Olson and Marie Hart (top to bottom) assemble billboard for the Rand Theatre's production of "Desire Under the Elms."

Class of 1989 parents to visit UM

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

More than 450 parents will arrive on campus today to get an "intense and varied view" of the University of Massachusetts through the Office of Alumni Affairs and Development's Parent's Weekend.

Valerie Falk, assistant director of the office, said this is the first year the office has invited the entire first-year student class.

"Parent's Weekend used to just be offered to kids of parents on the deans list, but Jon Hite, the director of the Alumni Office, decided to invite the freshmen parents because the kids will be here for four years," Falk said. "Parents can see what the University is like. We will try to give the parents an intense and varied view of what the University has to offer."

The weekend's events that begin Saturday include "The Classroom Experience: The University for your Sons and Daughters," which will give parents an up-close view of what classes are like for students," Falk said.

The "Classroom experience" will consist of lecturers from many departments within the University, ranging from "Mark Twain and American Realism" by English Professor Jules Chametzky, "Analyzing the 1984 Election" by Journalism Professor Ralph Whitehead to "High Technology and Engineering in America" by Engineering Professor Mel Miller.

The second part of the Classroom Experience, titled "The University for You" has been "especially designed for the parents," Falk said.

Lectures to be offered include "Financial Planning for your Future" by Anthony Krzystofik, School of Management and "Reconstructing the Ivory Tower: The Effect of Feminist Scholarship on the Academic Disciplines" by Joyce Berkman of history and Alice Rossi of Sociology.

Stephen B. Oates, the Paul Murray Kendall Professor of Biography, will address the parents at a banquet Saturday night. Oates is a professional biographer and noted historian who is best known for his biographies on John Brown, Nat Turner, Abraham Lincoln and Martin Luther King.

Move-A-Thon to be held for battered women

By TARRA EDEN HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

People are encouraged to walk, jog, skip, and move in any manner in Northampton on Saturday in a Move-A-Thon titled "Breaking Through: Moving With Dignity" sponsored by Necessities/Necesidades, a local organization for battered women.

"The theme is mourning and celebration. To mourn for women who have been battered, murdered, and to celebrate the women who are survivors," said Laura Prescott, assistant fundraiser coordinator for Necessities.

The goal of the event is "to publically make a statement that we will not tolerate violence in our society, in our community, or in our personal lives," Prescott said.

Women often don't speak up "out of fear, but we're not going to let that fear stop us," she said. "It's too dangerous to stop making statements."

The movie "The Burning Bed," televised nationally earlier this week, depicted a woman's ordeal of 12 years of physical abuse by her husband. Women's shelters across the country reported numerous inquiries following the film, though the local network broadcast only a Springfiled battered women's hotline number. The number for Necessities in Northampton is 586-1125.

The organization is hosting a day of events to commemorate the Week of Unity/Domestic Violence Awareness Week and to supplement the income of the group, said Robin Shaikun, administrator/coordinator of Necessities. Money raised will go toward a nine-month old women's shelter in Hampshire County which has provided refuge for 50 women and 69 children since December 1983, a 24-hour hotline at the shelter, and an emergency collection used for women in need of immediate funds, Shaikun said.

"The day's events provide a forum for local people to gather to be silent and at the same time have an opportunity to clap hands and dance," Prescott said.

Though women face individual oppressions, "they are unified by the fact that they all face indignities," Prescott said.

Registration for the Move-A-Thon is at 12 noon in front of the Unitarian Society at 220 Main Street, Northampton.

3,000 bodies of water to be tested by Fisheries and Wildlife Division

The second phase of the Acid Rain Monitoring Project at the University of Massachusetts will being Sunday with the testing of about 3,000 bodies of water across the state.

The project is funded by the state's Division of Fisheries and Wildlife and will measure acidity and the presence of elements such as arsenic and zinc in the water.

There will be 23 volunteer testing stations across the state, according to UMass chemistry department Professor O.T. Zajicek. After initial testing at the stations, the samples will be brought to UMass for more complex testing, Zajicek said.

The first phase of the project, conducted last year, tested 1,229 bodies of water and found that 70 of them were acidic enough to "cause severe losses of fish and other aquatic life," according to a report released by the project.

Upon completion of the second phase of the project, Massachusetts will "be in the unique position among the states by having an inventory of the susceptibility of 100 percent of its surface waters," according to the report.

The project involves more than 800 volunteers statewide collecting samples from lakes, streams and reservoirs.

— TOM MIDDLETON

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Jean B. Elshtain
"On Patriotism"

Thursday, October 18, 1984 at 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Amherst Democratic Town Committee Presents

Bedtime For Bonzo

Sunday, October 14 at 2:00 pm
Amherst Cinemas, Amity Street
FREE ADMISSION

Ad sponsored by University Democrats

C & C LIQUORS
61 Main St., Amherst
FOR FREE DELIVERY OF $15 MINIMUM ORDER, (OFF UMASS CAMPUS)
Dial 253-3091
10% Senior Discounts Except on Specials

Repeat of a popular special offer!
Clip and Save
OFF ALL
10% IMPORTED BEER
Beer on special not included
Coupon good thru Sat., Oct. 13, 1984
C & C Coupon

SUITCASES of Bud, Miller, Bud Light, Miller Lite, only $10.95 ea. plus deposit

Jack Daniel Liter $9.99 SAVE $3.26

All Specials In-Store Cash Prices
Hurry! Prices Good Thru 10-13-84

VODKA Liter $4.99

6-PACK SPECIALS Beck's, Grolsch Steinhauser, Nordick Wolf $4.25

DANCE THE WEEKEND AWAY
Changes
(newly remodeled and under new management)
Dance to your Favorite Hits
while Experiencing the Finest Sound System in the Area
Friday and Saturday
Mixed Drinks - 99¢
2 Drafts for - 99¢ til 10 PM
$1. Cover (after 9 PM)
Changes Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284
Proper Identification Required

Black Affairs

Conf. to face women's changes

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

In an attempt to help minority women identify and develop personal strength when confronted with the challenges in today's world, a conference will be held tomorrow at Springfield Technical Community College.

The Changing Minority Women: Reaching New Horizons will also teach minority women how they can make better use of their community resources.

The day-long conference is in its second year. Luahn Schofield director of the division of Continuing Education at UMass said participants' interest is greater than last year.

She is enthusiastic because, she is doing a "good thing." "Programs like this one don't happen in our area for minority women," she said.

Last year's conference was an "extremely positive event" according to the participants' responses Schofield said.

Topics for the morning session include What the Future holds for women, increasing economic power, political realities of the 1980s, issues in the second half of life: health, retirement and family.

Reverend Robin Harden of UMass will be keynote speaker. Topics for the afternoon session include, Superwoman: balancing work and home, networking, tactics for job hunting and how to manage stress.

"We have a good idea that can become a regional event," Schofield said.

In the next years, she said the forum will deal with more specific issues faced by minority women.

"We'll make it an event for people to look forward to," she said.

The conference is sponsored by the Urban League Guild of Springfield, Horizons XXV, Inc., and the Division of Continuing Education at the University of Massachusetts.

Blades awakens audience

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

An audience of 700 people were given cultural awakening in a ride through the streets of New York city, the Central American wild, el barrio and the Caribbean sea as Ruben Blades & Los Seis del Solar played recently at the Fine Arts Center at the University of Massachsuetts.

Blades & Los Seis del Solar helped celebrate AHORA's twelfth year anniversary celebration. The event was dedicated to Maria Voorhees, a Bilingual Collegiate Program academic advisor instrumental in the growth and development of AHORA.

Blades, the newest Latino sensation to hit the U.S. started what proved to be a fabulous night, with "Plastico" from the 1979 album Siembra recorded with Willie Colon.

Plastico describes the American Latino whose facade of vnaity and presumptions prevents him/her from showing their true selves.

"What a fault,"Blades said between each description to then advise them:

Listen Latino, listen brother, listen friend, don't sell what you are for gold and commodities... Work, study and be somebody first, that's where salvation lies.

Warming up the anxious public with "Plastico," Blades clubbed them with "Pablo Pueblo" another all-time favorite. The song reveals the realities of a Latin American man who struggles to change society. "Pablo Pueblo," literally Peter of the People knows a change can occur if he exercises his voting right, only if the new leadership gave him the opportunity.

Blades' concert was a cultural enlightening experience, not only because of the mixture of Afro-Caribbean, jazz and rock and roll, but because of the dashing political and social issues blended in his lyrics.

With his lyrics, he took the audience on a rollercoaster ride of emotions, sometimes sad, sometimes cynical, sometimes loving, but always hopeful.

"He walks with no hurry and he drags hope," his song "Pablo Pueblo." In "Padre Antonio y Su Monaguillo Andres," bells ring for hope.

He continued with such great hits as "Como una Naranja" (As an Orange), "Pedro Navaja" (Peter Blades), "Maestra Vida" (Teacher Life), "Silencios" (Silences), "Todos Vuelven" (Everybody Return), "Sin tu Carino" (Without your Love), "Buscando America" (Looking for America), and "Tiburon" (Shark) as an encore summarizing their contents for his American fans.

Blades resembled more a 50s rock singer dressed in black than a salsero whose usual attire is somewhat formal.

But Blades, as far as music is concerned, is a citizen of different worlds.

This musical potpourri accounts for Blades' sometimes mellow, jazzy , sometimes wild rhythms. He said he would like "to intergrate other forms of south American music and bolero" into his rhythms.

One thing is certain, though, whatever rhythms Blades and his invigorating band sought to bring the public, he certainly helped bring out people's Africanness, as we say in Latin America, for people either stomped their feet, swayed their heads from side to side or left their seats to dance on the aisles.

But people also listened to Blades' music for what is worth respecting songs with messages as strong as a two bladed sword.

"You might see people swinging their heads, but the words ring in their ears and are making their hearts cry," said Altagracia Rivera, 38 of Hartford.

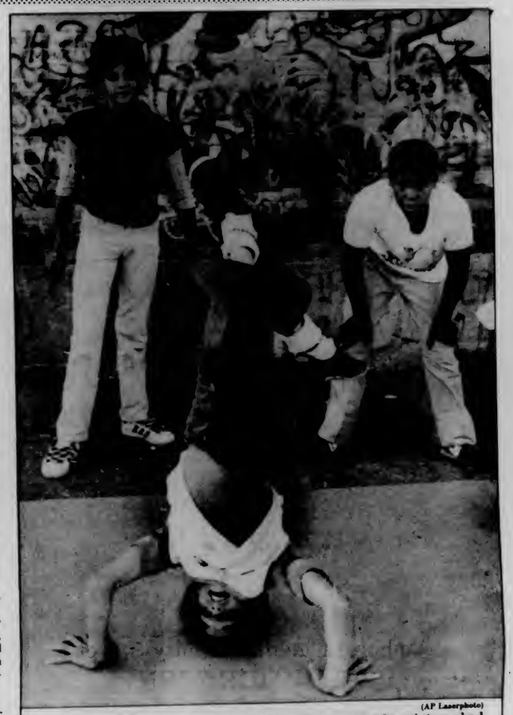
"It is not Ruben's music that makes him so famous, but (his) lyrics that make you stop and question the world you are a part of," she said.

With songs such as "Father Antonio and his Altarboy Andres," "Pedro Navaja," "Buscando America," "Maestro Vida," and his encore, "Tiburon," the public did stop and listen.

During "Padre Antonio...," people listened listlessly as the mellow sounds drained their thoughts to be reawakened with strong and vibrant rhythms of the congas and timbalero.

Marta Ramos, a labor relations graduate student said she appreciated Blades' concert for his contribution to raise consciousness to Latinos.

"His music presents the reality of Latin American and we need change in our society," Ramos said.



(AP Laserphoto)

LAWRENCE — Returning to Normal — One month after riots rocked the city of Lawrence, children are back in the street break-dancing as things seem to be returning to normal. The riots lasted for two nights causing extensive property damage and numerous injuries.

BCP counselor is recognized

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

The director of the Bilingual Collegiate Program (BCP) and a BCP academic advisor were awarded in recognition of their years of services to the University community by the Department of Educational Access and Outreach at the University of Massachusetts, Tuesday.

Benjamin Rodriguez, BCP director since its inception in 1974 and Maris Voorhees, advisor since 1978 were the recipients of the annual recognition.

"I was totally taken by surprise," Voorhees said. "I'm glad the administration is giving me this recognition."

Voorhees' mother, an educator and social worker in Puerto Rico, was influential in her career goals. Voorhees worked with her mother for fifteen years and seeing how satisfying the field was, she was encouraged to pursue it.

Today, she said she would not think of doing anything else. "I'm not a machine person. I like to work with people."

Voorhees is a UMass alumnus with a degree in education.

"It's not they money," she gets her rewards during graduation when she sees people getting their diplomas and accomplishing their goals.

"You see students that came to the University empty-handed, scared, confused and when they pick up the diploma they look sreeure. You see scary little girls blossom into women," Voorhees said.

She likes students for what they are, and students like Voorhees for what she is.

"She is always there," said Isabel Pereira, an international relations junior.

"She deserves the recognition more than anybody else. She has done a lot for BCP and the students," Pereira said.

Gerry Narvales, hotel, restaurant and travel administration junior said Voorhees' best quality is her ability "to give us confidence so we can tell her anything without fear."

"She deserves this and more," Narvales said. Although he is not one of her students, Narvales said Voorhees tries to solve the problems one way or another.

Blades plans political involvement to educate Americans

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

He is unlike any other salsa singer.

Although Ruben Blades is a produet of a macho society, he said he was able to reexamine the values and teachings. Today, he seeks to instill a sense of awareness about the social and political problems of Latin America through salsa music.

Blades wants to be "an instrument of change for Panama youngsters. He wanst to show them that regardless of economic constraints or the surroundings, "as long as you have honesty and you see quality in what you do you can get to be anything you want to be," he said.

Although Blades acknowledges his country loves him as a singer, he said it's necessary for him to establish his credentials for his future political plans.

He plans to intergreat a woman in the six-man band to write and possibly sing about women's problems. He feels if he writes on such issues it would "place me in the same category of control and of interpreting what a woman feels," he said.

When asked about U.S. policies in Latin America, Blades said Americans took "a totally unreal approach for the solution of Latin American problems."

"It is sad that they have in fact succeeded in pushing us more and more away by their so-called solutions than if they had addressed the issues attending the realities of the real causes," he said.

Blades said blaming the Soviets for the Latin American problems is a political tactic. He noted if the Soviets were not present in the area, there will still be armed forced repression, land monopoly and a high rate of child mortality and unfair distribution of wealth. What he called a "simple and myopic" approach has created a sensationalism in Latin America and support for states practicing such kinds of repression.

Until the United States realizes how wrong they are in assessing the Latin American realities, they'll continue to have problems," he said.

Blades intends to find the America, "faded by those who fear the truth," by raising more issues of concern for all Americans, thus creating more participation.

LAGNAF 85

UMASS SKI CLUB

Be Part of the Tradition

SUGARBUSH VALLEY

Ski and Party Week

14th Annual BUSH BASH

Jan. 20 - 25

Package Includes:
5½ Day Lift Ticket
5 Nights' Lodging
Continental Breakfast
(hotel only)
Free Beer & Wine Parties
Famous UMass Parties
All Taxes & Gratuities
Condo Package $194.
Hotel Package $149.

For more info 545-3437
call UMass Ski Club 430A SUB
Info and Sign Up Metings:
Monday - Campus Center Room 162 at 4:00 pm
Wed. - Hampden Commons, Southwest 7:00 pm

Letters to the Editor

Tuition hike: Is it illegal?

The Legal Services Office has questions concerning the legality of the recent billing of out-of-state students for $44.00 more in tuition for the fall semester. It is our understanding that the Bursar's office knew, or should have known, that the Legislature had approved the Board of Regents' 15 percent increase in tuition for out-of-state students. Nevertheless, the Bursar's office billed affected students for $44.00 less than this amount.

Generally, normal legal contract principles apply to the university/student relationship. Students should be able to rely upon the stated policies and procedures of the university, which in the case of tuition and other charges involve advance billing and payment by a due date of such charges for each semester. Students who have paid their tuition bills for this semester should not be required to pay additional charges resulting from the University's unilateral mistake.

If a student fails to pay this bill, the University may attempt to collect a $25 late payment fee, and/or initiate the adminstrative withdrawal process, but students have substantial appeal rights under this process.

Unfortunately, students who have already paid this bill will probably not be able to have it refunded.

Students who have questions concerning this additional charge are encouraged to contact the LSO as soon as possible.

Thoman Coish, Esq.
Danial Avery, Legal Assistant

Let's get the facts straight

Peter Dow's column yesterday "Contras are a Strong Force" contained a factual error. Dow writes, "First, the power rests solely in the hands of the FSLN, with no opposition parties allowed to become involved in the political process." In fact, there are six opposition parties participating in the upcoming elections.

Geoffrey Feldman
Amherst

College Party Weekend
in $68. MONTREAL
includes
* Round Trip Transportation
* 3 days, 2 nights
Hotel Sherbourg, Downtown Montreal
November 2, 3, 4

Night Clubs open 'til 4 AM
Drinking Age 18
No Roadblocks

Call ERIC 549-5017

Come and Enjoy

a dramatic reading of Aristophanes
The Clouds
at Lounge
Amherst College

The reading will be performed by both faculty & students

on Oct. 18, 8 PM

IMPACT NEW ENGLAND FINAL DAY

Presents

LASER PHOTO ART
FOR SALE

DATE: Today
LOCATION: UNIVERSITY STORE
TIME: 10 - 4
PRICE: 3 for $10 or $4 each

Boston Skyline

BOSTON

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870
Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Manni
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

It's a question of respect

Respect is often a forgotten word.

Wednesday, a person or persons with total disregard for the word respect attempted to degrade, humiliate, and dehumanize another person because of that person's sexual preference.

Amherst police reported that slurs against homosexuals were painted on a car and apartment door at Colonial Village Wednesday. Police also reported that the owner of the car also received a letter telling him to "get out of Colonial Village."

Does this mean Utopia is back?

Three years ago a UMass student and member of the gay community received death threats from a group named Utopia and was forced to move out of his dorm room. And still the threat continued.

Two years ago, both men and women in the Northampton area received threats because they chose to live their lives out in the open and not in a dark closet.

And the threats and attacks continue.

People regardless of their cultural, ethnic, religious, political or sexual preference deserve the right to live their lives as they choose without the threat of violence.

We feel this kind of action is reprehensible.

Respect is a word which needs to be remembered.

All unsigned editorials represent the views of the majority of the Board of Editors.

Welcome to UMass

This weekend is parents' weekend. For many students, this campus is home.

While you are here, see the Campus Center where nearly every student passes through at least once a day to eat lunch, meet friends, study, or just hang out. Also see the Fine Arts Center, the largest concert and performance hall in the area, which seats over 2,000 people and is acoustically perfect. The Center has been the site of performances by Marcel Marceau, J. Geils, and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, to name a few in the past years.

That tall red brick building that you will see reaching for the sky is our Tower Library. On the 26th floor, you can see the beautiful western Massachusetts countryside for miles, with fall foliage at its peak.

The campus itself is a botannical garden with trees from all over the world. The horticultural designs reflect the University's heritage as a land-grant, state agricultural college.

We hope you will be able to see as much of this campus as possible during your short visit here.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Board of Editors.

The meaning of "service"

Deborah Kutenplon

Last semester Financial Aid sent me my Solomon amendment slip, requiring me to swear that I had either registered for the draft or was ineligible, and threatening to cut off my financial aid if I did not comply. The arrival of this form brought to mind the debate surrounding this amendment, some of which went like this: "If you won't agree to serve your country, why should you country do anything for you?"

I always cringe when people talk about military "service." It's time to examine the meaning of "service."

Is service working to militarily defend the privilege of some people over others, both within the U.S. and in Third World countries? Why are there so many Blacks and poor people in our armed forces, people who traditionally have had no other choice economically? Is it coincidental that increasing militarism in this country has run parallel to rising unemployment, providing an ever-growing pool of people for "voluntary" enlistment?

People who sincerely join the military to defend democracy should know that the top ten recipients of U.S. military aid are also, according to Amnesty International, the world's top ten dictatorships or violators of human rights. These Third World governments, in exchange for U.S. military aid, allow U.S military bases on their soil, and favorable investment climates for U.S. multinational companies. No unions, low wages, cheap raw materials, and little or no government safety regulation or taxation impoverish the countries' populations to provide us with cheap consumer goods.

By accepting the privileges of the U.S. standard of living, we are each responsible for the exploitation and oppression of whole peoples. Is our right to less expensive coffee really more important than a South American peasant's right to earn a wage that will feed her family? Do we have a right to defend our "way of life" (which seems to be most importantly the right to consume, and only secondarily the right to democratic rule) at the cost of other people's right to self-determination?

Maybe we should look at why we need such a strong military. Maybe financial aid should be linked with a truer form of service, complete with forms asking:

Are you serving your country? Are you working for justice, for the right of every human being to have at least the basic needs taken care of — food, shelter, health care, safety, and opportunity to work, dignity? Are you working for not only charity, but change, to eliminate the need for charity?

Are you working to ensure human rights and equality, including respect, for all people simply because they are human, without disqualifying any group? In short, are you working to make military "service" unnecessary?

Deborah Kutenplon is a UMass student.

Random Notes

Presidential debates shouldn't just 'happen'

Now that the President and Mr. Mondale have had the first of their debates, it has been ordained that Fritz is to be taken seriously. Before the debate all you could read or hear about Mondale were words like "wimp" and "dull." He wasn't really considered to be a threat. And now? One 90 minute debate and he's "Fighting Fritz", a viable candidate.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not decrying Mondale's new-found popularity. What scares me and makes me a little angry is the fact that the debates might never have happened at all. To attend or not to attend was the President's choice. He didn't have to. He almost didn't. He agreed to debate only if they were structured debates, only if they weren't face to face, open discussions of the issues.

There is something fundamentally wrong with a political system that allows the President, an elected public servant, to decide how and when he is going to inform us of his positions on the issues. We should be allowed more of a chance to see the man on his own, without cue cards, a prepared speech, or Nancy whispering the answers in his ear.

Mr. Reagan likes to tell us that we have a pressing need to return to "traditional American values." I presume he is referring to the values and morality that were prevalent before the 1960s. Why not go a little further back? Why not go back to the spirit of the Lincoln-Douglas debates. They had no tele-prompters, but their messages most certainly got to the public.

Why don't we make it a law that the President must debate his opponents? It is our right to be able to see the men who would be our leaders defend their platforms against direct opposition. We should demand to know exactly what each man intends to do if elected. Only informed voters can make the best decision for our country. We should elect our leaders for their ability to do the job, not for their personalities. Presidential elections were never meant to be poise and popularity contests.

Jim Averill is a Collegian correspondent.

Letters to the Editor

CATE exposes unconcerned professors

This is in response to Kevin Dwyer's letter (October 2), regarding the Course and Teacher Evaluation Guide. I can understand Mr. Dwyer being upset if he didn't get a glowing evaluation (especially if he feels that he has taught to the best of his ability), and I am not writing to debate on whether the CATE guide is a "fair and constructive method of choosing courses." However, the CATE guide is the only published guide that is available to aid UMass students in evaluating and selecting specific courses, and the professors and T.A.s that teach those courses.

Mr. Dwyer's letter seems to suggest that the guide is made up entirely of apathetic students who are out to get back at the professors who flunked them. If Mr. Dwyer had read past his own evaluation he would have found that many T.A.s and professors received positive and even outstanding evaluations from very content students.

Mr. Dwyer cannot understand why some professors and T.A.s should be publicly humiliated and suggests that instructors are all-knowing and should be revered by students. While it is true that instructors are specialists in their fields, not all instructors are great teachers. Nor are all instructors concerned about, or fair to their students. It is these professors and T.A.s who should be exposed. Students and their parents pay good money to pay for college and shouldn't put up with lousy professors.

As for Mr. Dwyer's comment regarding the usefulness of the guide ("published one week after the end of add/drop"), most students will use this year's guide to select spring courses and courses for next fall.

I am sure both professors and students would agree that the most accurate form of evaluation information would be the publication of in-class evaluations that are completed at the end of each semester. Unfortunately, legal implications make that impossible. The CATE guide is the only source of information available to students on specific courses and professors, and shouldn't be used to place blame.

David R. Feakes
Amherst

Friday Afternoon at Mikes
A HAPPY HOUR YOU CAN LIVE WITH
FOOD - ALL YOU CAN CARRY FOR $1.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Eggplant Parmesan
Sausages
Beef Stroganoff
Cold Cuts
Salads
Swedish Meatballs
Marinated Chicken
Beef Ribs
Chicken Caccitore
Spanish Rice
and more
tax and tip included

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AT RAHAR'S

Relax and enjoy distinctive Mexican Food and drink, carefully prepared and served in a graceful atmosphere evocative of the American Southwest.
Try La Cazuela soon, in downtown Northampton.
Lunch & Dinner, Tuesday through Saturday
Dinner, Sunday — Closed Monday

586-0400
7 OLD SOUTH STREET • NORTHAMPTON

Bruno's
- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
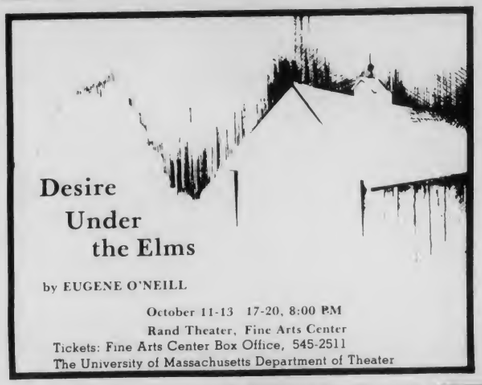
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

Countdown to Halloween '84
14% OFF TODAY
the Halloween Shop at FACES
A Store Full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5



by EUGENE O'NEILL
October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

Spirit Haus

DOMESTIC BEER SPECIALS
Budweiser loose cns $10.95 cs + dep
Lite loose cans.... $10.95 case + dep.
Michelob loose cns $12.50 cs + dep

IMPORTED BEER SPECIALS
Wurzburger Oktoberfest ..... $4.50 6 pack + dep.
Steinhauser... $3.95 6 pack + dep.
Becks Light or Dark ..... $3.95 6 pack + dep

WINE SPECIALS
Engelsburg German Wine 1.5 L..... $2.99
Chianti 750 ml..... 3 for $4.99
Soave, Valpolicella 1.5... $3.99

LIQUOR SPECIALS
Kimnoff Vodka 1.75 L.... $8.75
Jim Beam Bourbon 1.75 L..... $11.99

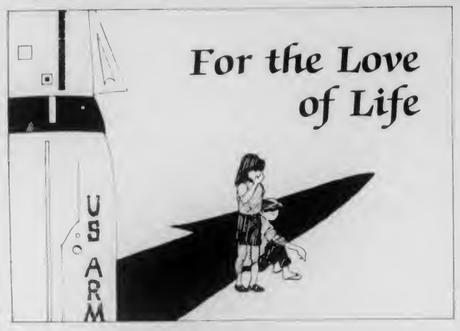
Wine Tasting Saturday 12:00 - 6:00 pm
338 College Street Amherst 253-5384
not responsible for typographical errors

JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place
DON'T MISS TONIGHT
CELEBRITY NIGHT
MYSTERY ? GUEST STAR

SALE thru Oct. 13
20% - 40% OFF Selected
RUGS - TAPESTRIES
BLOUSES - SKIRTS - DRESSES

India Print Short Sleeve
T-SHIRTS and TANKS
NOW $4.95
Cotton Turtlenecks - 2/$14.00
20% Off Bamboo Blinds
25% Off Bead Curtains

Mon - Sat 10 - 6
Sunday 12 - 5
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
GREAT GIFTS — GREAT PRICES



© Karen Cowan

EDUCATING OURSELVES ABOUT NUCLEAR WAR

A SYMPOSIUM SPONSORED BY

Physicians for Social Responsibility/Pioneer Valley
University of Massachusetts, Division of Public Health
Social Workers for Peace and Nuclear Disarmament/Pioneer Valley

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1984

SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT AUDITORIUM,
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS, AMHERST
(near the Fine Arts Center on Mass. Ave., parking lot across the street)

PROGRAM

8:15 Registration
8:45-9:00 Welcome and Introduction
Andrew A. Sorensen, Ph.D., Director of Division of Public Health
9:00-9:45 The Nuclear Winter
Jonathan Fine, M.D., Past Chairman, Executive Committee National Physicians for Social Responsibility
9:45-10:30 Star Wars
Peter Clausen, Ph.D., Senior Arms Analyst, Union of Concerned Scientists
10:30-10:45 Break
10:45-11:45 Education and the Threat of Nuclear War
Shelly Berman, one of the founders of Educators for Social Responsibility, coordinator of Boston area and author, and Libby Neighbor, high school student
11:45-12:15 Panel Discussion (speakers)
Robert Gage, M.D., M.P.H., U Mass Div of Public Health, moderating
12:15-1:40 Lunch
1:40-2:00 Avoidance of the Nuclear Threat
Henry Steele Commager, John Simpson lecturer, Amherst College
2:00-3:00 Verification; A Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty
Alan Krass, Ph.D., Professor of Physics and Science Policy, Hampshire College
3:00-5:00 Workshops
Two consecutive sessions will be held on each of seven topics. See registration form

Donations to cover the cost of the conference will be gratefully accepted with pre-registration or at the door
Pre-registration is optional but encouraged

For more information, write Tom Crowe, M.D., 3 Longworthy Rd., Northampton, MA 01060

1. Rebuilding the Economy for Jobs, Peace and Justice
Frank Clemente, National Program Director, Jobs With Peace
2. The Catholic Bishops' Pastoral Letter on War and Peace
Annette Rafferty, S.N.D.
3. Stopping the Nuclear Arms Race
Frances Crowe, American Friends Service Committee
4. Civil Defense and Crisis Relocation Planning
Matthew Leighton, editor, The Front Line, a newsletter of New Century Policies
5. What About the Russians?
Karl W. Ryavec, Ph.D., Prof. of Political Science, U. of Mass
6. Teaching for Conviction, Commitment, and Empowerment
Shelly Berman and Libby Neighbor
7. The People Speak: Scenes of Russia

☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆

Half of this ad was paid for by the UMass Division of Public Health. The rest was paid for equally by the student organizations listed below. We join together to welcome this symposium to UMass, and we urge other students to take advantage of this opportunity to learn about the critically important issues that will be addressed, especially since elections are coming up in November. As student organizations, we have many diverse interests, but we are all concerned in one way or another with the future and our role in shaping it. We share a common interest in motivating students here at UMass to learn about the issues that affect their lives and to GET INVOLVED.

WE ALL WELCOME NEW MEMBERS!

Hunger Task Force
International Club
Radical Student Union
United Christian Foundation
University Democrats (RSO status pending)
University Peacemakers
Western Mass. Latin America Solidarity Committee

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

BOSTON CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY
SATURDAY, OCT 13, 8PM
TICKETS: $5

DUKE ELLINGTON'S SOPHISTICATED LADIES
National Broadway Touring Company Production
SUNDAY, OCT 14, 2PM, 8PM
TICKETS: $22.50, $20.50, $18.50

WEDNESDAY, OCT 17, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7

Peter Nero CONDUCTOR/SOLOIST with the PHILLY POPS
FRIDAY, OCT 19, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

Five College Students Half-Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

KEGS FOUR SEASONS ICE

WINES/LIQUORS
BEER SPECIALS - BEST PRICES
LITE.....12 oz cans.....$10.59
BUSCH.....12 oz cans.....$8.99
PIELS.....12 oz. cans.....$6.99
GENESEE.....12 oz. btl.....$6.89
6-PACK SPECIALS
DAB.....$3.99 RINGNESS.....$3.99
MOOSEHEAD.....$3.99 GRIZZLY.....$3.99
WURZBURGER OCTOBERFEST.....$3.99
LIQUOR and WINE SPECIALS
VOLGA VODKA....1.75 L....with rebate $5.99
MOHAWK VODKA & GIN....1.75 liter....$7.99
RON ROBERTO RUM.....1.75 liter.....$9.99
COLOMA COFFEE LIQUEUR750 mlwith rebate $3.
LIEBFRAUMILCH.....750 ml.....2 for $5.00
BEAUJOLAIS NOUVEAU
If you want some before Thanksgiving - special order it now! 584-8174
WE DELIVER
584-8174
333 Russell Street (Route 9) Hadley, MA 01035
in front of the malls

Arts

Toronto's hot rocker

By JACK BRESNAHAN
Collegian Staff

Canada's Bruce Cockburn (Co-burn) will be playing this Sunday, Oct. 14th at the Rusty Nail in Sunderland. This native of Toronto, Canada, has just released a new album, Stealing Fire, with a new band and sound. This show will be the 3rd of his 30 date tour, the first two being in Burlington Vt. on Friday and Boston on Saturday. We should consider ourselves fortunate that he'll be playing out in the sticks of Sunderland on Sunday.

I think it's fair to say that Cockburn is unique in that he is as much a humanitarian as he is a musician. Those who are familiar with him know that there is a lot of thought behind his lyrics, many of which could stand on their own as poetry. And musically, he's kept crowds rocking in four continents for well over ten years. His accomplishments include the equivalent of ten Canadian Grammy awards and his new single, "Lovers in a Dangerous Time," is already in the American Top 100. However, he hasn't rested on his laurels as other stars do, living in a world within a world. In fact, he spent a great deal of time in Central America a few months ago, and much of this album reflects his time spent there.

In speaking with Bruce on Wednesday on the phone, he conveyed a far worse situation in Central America than we are being led to believe. He spoke of seeing spent American mortar shells near bombed out buildings, Guatemalan refugee camps being attacked by troops, even that refugee camps in Mexico were being attacked. In his opinion, Honduras represents the worst of Central America's status quo. Says Cockburn, "It is a characteristic relationship with the government of U.S. and Canada. In 1950 the CIA installed a military government in Guatemala, and one has to read a magazine like Soldier of Fortune to realize the extend of our involvment. It's not far away and it's not easy to ignore."

The songs on the record are political, caring, coming from a man with experience and a point of view. Differing from Cockburn's previous albums, the music is more rhythmic, a combination of African pop, reggae, and rock. He intends his music to "communicate and entertain," which he's sure to be doing on Sunday night at the Nail. It's good to see a star who cares more about the real world than himself.

[This show should sell out.]

"Canada's Springsteen" Bruce Cockburn plays the Rusty Nail in Sunderland this Sunday night. For tickets to this not-to-be-missed show, call 584-0610.

Teachers confused, inept

TEACHERS
Directed by Arthur Hiller
Starring Nick Nolte, Judd Hirsch, and Jobeth Williams at the Hamphsire Mall

By HERB RAMY and MATT MACHERA
Collegian Correspondents

Arthur Hiller's latest film Teachers, is actually two films in one. One is a satirical look at the teaching profession and the school system in general. The other is a melodramatic look at the problems in education. Unfortunately for Teachers, neither point comes across quite strongly enough, and the viewer is left in a state of confusion.

Teachers' best moments come when it is trying to be satirical. It is unfortunate that these moments are too few and far between to save the movie. Richard Mulligan (Soap's Bert), however, stands out in a small supporting role as an out-patient of a mental institution who is mistakenly hired as a substitute teacher.

As for Nick Nolte, Judd Hirsch, Jobeth Williams and the supporting cast, their satirical comments seem to come at some of the most dramatic parts of the movie. These inept and ill-placed lines caused us to laugh when it appeared that the movie should have been trying to make us cry. One such misplaced line comes when Nick Nolte is driving a student home after an abortion. She asks him for a cigarette, and when he hesitates she says, "I just had an abortion, I think I'm old enough to have a cigarette." Sadly, this is just one example of the pathetic dialogue that occurs throughout the entire movie.

Some of the situations in the movie are just as unintentionally humorous as the dialogue. We are still trying to understand why the love affair between teacher Nick Nolte and former student Jobeth Williams occurs at all, because in no way does it enhance the plot and at times even seems to weigh it down. The most wasted actor in the film, though, has to be Ralph Macchio of Karate Kid fame. In this movie he plays the stereotypical and unoriginal streetwise punk that we've all seen before in dozens of films. This time we have the most underdeveloped interpretation since Matt Dillan in My Bodyguard.

We found that the brightest spot in this movie to be the theme song "Teacher, Teacher" performed by .38 Special. We highly recommend that you save the $4.00 admission charge and use it towards buying the soundtrack. At least your money will be spent on something worthwhile.

Good clean hardcore fun

Slip It In Black Flag
SST Records

By BILL LEMANSKI

"Say you don't want it. You don't want it. But then you slip it in."

"Slip It In is the latest LP, including eight new songs, by Los Angeles' Black Flag, America's number one hardcore rock 'n' roll band. "Slip It In" the title cut, is about a girl that betrays her boyfriend and then feels lousy for what she did the next day. (She definitely had too much to drink.) Throughout the song there are sexual noises, and the song ends with a scream of release by lead singer Henry Rollins.

Rollins roara about the intensity of a caffeine buzz in "Black Coffee." "Staring at the wall, I think I know what I see, anger and coffee feeding me." Anybody that enjoys black coffee is missing something if they haven't heard this strenuous tune. "Stab to my heart, stab to my heart, but it's all in my mind." Pour another cup for that one.

In "Wound UP" possibly the hottest tune on the album, Rollins exclaims how he gets so wound up, just to feel so let down. "Don't you ever see the way I look at you? Can't you understand why I feel the way I do?" asks Rollins. "Wound Up" is an emotional outpouring of energy, displaying the bitterness that Rollins feels toward an ex-girlfriend.

"Rats Eyes" teaches us a different way to look at the world. "I see the world through rats eyes, rats eyes, rats eyes." Only Rollins realizes what it's like down there. Rollins urges listeners to look into his eyes, to see, to touch, and to feel the filth.

"Obliteration" is a rare instrumental by Black Flag. Here Gregg Ginn, the band's guitarist, guides the group through this six-minute jam.

"The Bars"starts with a bass lead by female bassist Kira Roesseler. Billy Stevenson, on drums, follows with his usual, consistent drum thrashing. Again Rollins is at war with himself. "My mind hates my body. My body hates my soul. I close my eyes and fight, inside my own black hole."

The most powerful song is probably "My Ghetto." Play this song at high volume, especially the forceful beginning. Then try to figure out what he is saying.

Black Flag will be making another east coast appearance October 21, at the Channel, in Boston. If you want to see some real rock 'n' roll, check this show out. In the meantime get a copy of Slip It In, and let your neighbors hear it too.

Stop selling out!

STOP MAKING SENSE (Sire)
Talking Heads

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Staff

Stop Making Sense is the least consistant Talking Heads album yet. The music is good, but because of numerous questions of morality the theory that accompanies the album is terrible.

The record is supposed to be culled from the soundtrack to the upcoming film of last year's Talking Heads tour. That tour ended in October and the movie was shot at a special concert in December. And then the soundtrack was overdubbed in a studio. That perhaps is the most glaring fault of the album; that the movie is billed as a no-nonsense, no frills production (no special effects) and yet the album is full of obvious overdubs.

The album contains four songs from Speaking in Tongues as well as an acoustic version of "Psycho Killer", their three most overplayed hits ("Take Me to the River", "Life During Wartime", and "Once in a Lifetime"), and one surprise inclusion, "What a Day that Was." All the songs sound good, best when played loudly.

As live albums go this one is pretty good. "Slippery People", finding its milieu, is really great. The material from Speaking in Tongues either jells or collapses on this album. "Girlfriend is Better" falls into the latter category. It must have been included because it contains the title line. Why are all four greatest hits included and not something which hasn't been on a live album yet?

Let the buyer beware: The taped version of this album contains about forty-two minutes of music and has extended versions of five songs. I bought the cassette. I can't imagine what the album sounds like. It doesn't matter. It's slack as hell not to put twenty-one minutes of music on an album side. If anyone has the power to, it's David Byrne.

This album could have easily been a double or triple album. Laurie Anderson is releasing a five album set containing the full performance of her piece, United States. On this short single album production it seems awfully commercial to include songs which were on their last live album.

Stop Making Sense is an extremely appealing album but at the cost of the band's integrity. Could it be that Talking Heads are becoming just another great rock band, instead of an attitude redefined?

The Boston Chamber Music Society performs in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall Saturday October 13. For more information call 545-2511.

the T.O.C. Restaurant regrets that the Great Dinner Movie Deal
ad as appeared in yesterday's Collegian is incorrect - and is no longer offered in the T.O.C.
We are sorry for the inconvenience!

the Hungry U Restaurant
CHECK OUT OUR MUNCHIE MENU!
! TODAY ONLY !
3-6 pm
75¢ WELL DRINKS (one liquor)
DINNER SPECIAL:
Veal Parmigiana $6.70
SUPER-SALAD with spaghetti and beverage
3 pm - 6 pm, 9 pm till closing
7 days per week
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

Jonathan Reid LTD

ENTIRE STOCK OF SWEATERS ON SALE NOW
and
LEVI PILE LINED CORDUROY
WINTER JACKETS
ON SALE NOW
HAMPSHIRE MALL, RT. 9

"If the Collegian
didn't arrive so early, I'd get more sleep."
ANDREW W. MAY, Bus. Mgr., Massachusetts Daily Collegian
"Every lunchtime I make sure I get to work as early as the Collegian does. That way I'm sure to read it before my first class."
"You see, the Collegian is THE source of information, hypercuricula, Nummo, DC Menus, and other vital tidbits. Information I NEED to help make decisions."
"So even though I lose some sleep reading it, I wouldn't dream of starting my day without the Daily Collegian."
The Daily Collegian
'll the news you need. Bright & early.

Hypercurricula

For Friday Oct. 12

SUCCOT SERVICES — There will be services at 7:00 p.m. in the Dukes Room (S.U. 310), on Friday, Oct. 12, followed by kiddush in the succah.

MULTIBAND POPS CONCERT — The tenth annual Multiband Pops will feature performances by the Minuteman Marching Band and seven other University ensembles. Admission is free. 8:00 p.m. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

T.G.I.F. — Celebrate Friday with singing and fun Christian fellowship. Everyone is welcome to join us at 7 p.m. on the 8th floor of the Campus Center. Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ.

LAS VEGAS NIGHT FOR CHARITY — $3.00 gets you $5000 in play money. Prizes auctioned off at end of the evening (i.e. — UMass jacket, jewelry, many, many gift certificates). A good time guaranteed. 7:30 - 11:00 p.m. CCA.

IF YOU LOVE THIS PLANET — Helen Caldicott's gripping film on Nuclear War. Take the time to see this excellent film. Discussion to follow. 2:00 Campus Center, room 804.

SEMINAR ON ENTREPENERIALISM/NEW BUSINESS DIRECTIONS — Prominent local executives, dynamic young entrepeneur, and John Ciccarelli from School of Management discuss perspectives on entrepenerialism, venture capital and new business directions. 2:00 Student Union Ballroom.

For Saturday, Oct. 13

25-PLUS CLUB HARVEST MOON DANCE — Meet other older students and dance to "Evening Pro Blusica," 6-piece Blues Band. Cash bar, free munchies, no cover. Open to older students and guests. 9 p.m. - 1 a.m. CC 1009.

BIG SHMOOZE 2 — A bigger and better Shmooze will take place on Saturday, Oct. 13th, from 9-1. Sponsored by Hillel. Call for location: 545-2526. Everyone welcome! 9 p.m.

BOSTON CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY — An evening of chamber music by Beethoven, Tchaikovsky, and Ingolf Dahl performed by six members of the Boston Chamber Music Society. 8 p.m. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

"LOVE TO ALL, LORRAINE" — One-woman drama by Elizabeth Van Dyke portraying the life of the late playwright, Lorraine Hansberry. 8 p.m. Bowker Auditorium.

For Sunday, Oct. 14

COMMUNITY WORSHIP — An informal worship service fashioned in the style and spirit of black church tradition. Open to all willing to share their Christian faith. 11:15 a.m. James House Classroom.

WSYL STAFF MEETING — There will be a meeting for all staff of WSYL. Board members please attend at 7 p.m. DJ's promptly arrive at 7:30. 7:30 p.m. Cashin Basement.

GRAD GROUP HIKE — The Hillel Grad Group (Grads, older undergrads, and working folks) will be having a Succot hike on Sunday, Oct. 14th. Meet at 11:00 a.m. at 43 Harlow Dr. Rain date Oct. 21st. More info: 545-2526.

ACID RAIN — Volunteers are needed to help analyze Massachusetts surface waters as part of the Acid Rain Monitoring Project, Phase II. Many tasks do not require a technical background, so if you love your environment and want to help in its improvement, come join us. The marathon session will be on Sunday, Oct. 14, 1984, starting at 1:00 p.m. If you want to contribute a few hours to this worthwhile project, contact Dr. O. T. Zajicek of the Chemistry Department in Room 403E, Lederle Graduate Research Tower, or call 545-1521.

NEW TESTAMENT FELLOWSHIP — Come join us for worship, teaching, and a good time of fellowship. 10:15 a.m. Campus Center, check schedule for room number.

SOPHISTICATED LADIES — The National Broadway Touring Company production of Duke Ellington's "Sophisticated Ladies", a jazz extravaganza featuring actress Freda Payne. 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

PIZZA-RAMA
Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

FREE DELIVERY!
356 College Street, Amherst
CALL 253-3808
256-0115
Any Large Pizza 3 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Med. Pizza 2 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Small Pizza 1 FREE SODA (can) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Busch 12 oz. cans. $9.35 case + dep.
Rolling Rock 12 oz. refills. $10.00 case + dep.
Miller Lite 12 oz. cans. $10.95 case + dep.
Strohs 12 oz. cans. $5.50 12 pack + dep.
Steinhauser, St. Pauli, Grolsch $4.25 6 pack + dep.
Grizzly Canadian Beer $3.59 6 pack + dep.
$13.95 case + dep.
Asti Spumante $3.99 + up 750 ml.
Vodka or Gin 80° $8.49 1.75 liter
ALL SPECIALS ARE COLD & READY TO GO!!!

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

YOU WANT ME TO WORK ON A SPOT FOR THE REAGAN CAMPAIGN?
THAT'S RIGHT. AN APPEAL TO BLACK VOTERS.
BLACK VOTERS? THAT'S GREAT! HEE, HEE! SERIOUSLY?
SERIOUSLY
HEH..
THIS IS A TEST, RIGHT? TO SEE IF I HAVE ANY SHAME?
CAREFUL, MIKE..
WHAT'S THE PROBLEM, SON?
SIR, I CAN'T SELL REAGAN TO BLACK VOTERS..
YOU CAN'T? CASS ASSURED ME YOU WERE UP TO THE CHALLENGE
CHALLENGE? WITH ALL DUE RESPECT, SIR, RONALD REAGAN IS THE WORST THING TO HAPPEN TO CIVIL RIGHTS IN 35 YEARS!
TO SAY OTHERWISE, I'D HAVE TO RENOUNCE EVERY STANDARD OF TRUTH I'VE EVER SET FOR MYSELF!
THIS IS THE REAL WORLD, SON. IT HAPPENS ON MY FIRST DAY?
ED, LET ME TALK TO HIM ALONE..
WHAT IS THIS, CISS? I TOLD YOU NO MORE WIMPS!

Today's Weather

Today and Saturday will be sunny and mild after some morning cloudiness. Highs will range from the 60s over the north and along the coast to the 70s over the south.

FUTURE CALVIN KLEINS!!!

The Collegian Fall Fashion Special needs your illustrations! Get published and be a part of New England's largest college daily! For more information, call Michelle Hyde, 545-3500, or stop by the Collegian office.

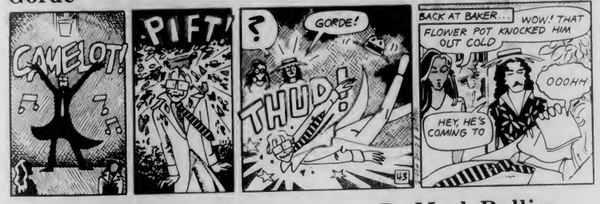
Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

The Bloom Beacon
CAMPUS REVOLT
STUDENTS SEIZE COLLEGE IN PROTEST OF RUMORED THREATENED TO BLOW UP ART BUILDING UNLESS G. GORDON LIDDY NAMED CHANCELLOR
OH, MILO, IT'S AWFUL. THE DEAN CAPTURED BY A MOB OF YOUNG REVOLUTIONARIES!!
THEY SEEM TO BE MOSTLY BUSINESS STUDENTS WEARING TIE-DYED POLO SHIRTS, GETTING STONED ON BEER AND DEMANDING SEVERE CUTBACKS IN SOCIAL PROGRAMS!
OH, THESE CRAZY, IDEALISTIC KIDS, MILO!..
DON'T TRUST ANYONE UNDER $30,000 A YEAR!!

Gorde — by Gorde



UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

HELLOOO!
YIKES!! IT'S OUR LANDLORD, MR. RYPOFF. HE'S DOING HIS MONTHLY PET CHECK.
I'D BETTER HIDE
NOPE, NO PETS. I DON'T SEE NO DOG HAIR OR SMELL ANY CAT LITTER BOX
GOO... THAT CIGAR... I THINK I'M GONNA AU
CUBS
THAT'S FUNNY, I WOULD HAVE SWORN THEY HAD A PET OF SOME KIND
ACHOO!
WHAT THE..
MMMM. NOTHIN' HERE I'VE GOTTA STOP MIXING SCOTCH WITH MY COFFEE
WHEW

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman

It's been many years
yes, hello
Yeasthead + Snackhead have not seen eachother for many years.
You look good
thank you
Uh Oh! the dreaded conversational lull.
thank you
being just a day, Sludge doesn't have this problem.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

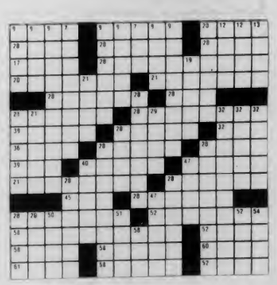
ACROSS
1 Barbs of a feather
5 What a miss is as good as
10 Too bad!
14 Islands off Galway
15 Designer's logo
16 Ring
17 Gielgud and Redgrave
18 Item in
19 Maker of French chemist
22 Kept away from
23 Inure
25 Have trouble
26 First name on the court
28 Entices
33 Papal vestment
34 Food for baby
35 Macaw
36 Cupid et al
37 Let up
38 Tiny amount
39 Conclude
40 Namesakes of a Jackson
41 Romero of the movies
42 Deprive of enthusiasm
44 Watchword of a type
45 Canton in Switzerland
46 Tar
48 TV's Magnum
52 Print a pattern
55 Abode for a flyer?
57 Whirlybird
58 Neap, for example
59 Buddy of Barnaby Jones
60 Jacket
61 Simon —
62 VIPs on campus
63 Auld Lang —

DOWN
1 Imitate
2 Domingo specialty
3 Actress Jean's territories?
4 Sets up for service
5 Make reference to
6 City official in France
7 — — Saud
8 Mother of Castor and Pollux
9 Railroad
10 Scourge of God
11 Olivier title
12 Naut. cal. term
13 Luge
19 Black, in Blois
21 Pennsylvania port
24 Indians of Cape Cod
26 Warned beforehand
27 Native of Shiraz
29 — bien!
30 Milieu for Johnny?
31 Test of faith
32 Cavalry sword
34 Mrs., in Poland
37 Adorned
38 Throws out of order
40 Buenos —
41 Showed up
43 Beats
44 Church plates
47 City in the Ruhr
48 NCO's
49 Author-director Kazan
50 Recording by Kenny Rogers
51 Port on Osaka Bay
53 Element
54 Isolated
56 Dos Passos title

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	T	E	M		A	M	U	S	E		M	I	T	T
T	O	R	O		C	O	R	E	D		O	G	E	E
E	M	I	T		C	O	N	D	U	C	T	O	R	S
R	E	C	O	L	O	R	S		C	A	I	R	N	S
		R	I	S	E		N	A	T	O
H	E	L	M	E	T		D	E	T	E	N	T	E	S
O	D	E	A		S	T	A	G	E	R		O	R	A
L	I	A	N	A		V	E		S	C	A	N	D
E	L	O		G	O	D	I	V	A		A	S	I	A
O	E	S	E	R	V	E	D		S	E	P	T	E	T
			M	E	E	D		S	P	A	T
S	C	A	P	E	R		U	M	I	A	T	E	S
L	E	G	I	S	L	A	T	O	R		I	O	T	A
O	N	E	R		A	R	E	T	E		N	O	T	A
E	T	R	E		Y	E	S		E	S		S	T	A	R

10/12/84



D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Pizza
Tuna Oriental

BASICS LUNCH
Pizza
Tuna Oriental

DINNER
Savory Beef Strudel/
Mushroom Sauce
Jalapeno Shrimp
and Rice

BASICS DINNER
Broccoli and Cheese
Strudel
Jalapeno Shrimp
and Rice

PALACE CINEMA 1·2
RT 5 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPRINGFIELD
54 MIL TELEPHONE 785-4600
BARGAIN MAT. WED, FRI, SAT, SUN
FIRST SHOW ONLY $1.50
STARTS TODAY
"This year's best film!"
"Mozart's greatest hit..."
Mozart comes raucously alive as a punk rebel, grossing out the Establishment a grand, sprawling entertainment!
AMADEUS
PG
FOR GROUP SALES CALL (413) 733-5134

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

安城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 MAIN ST., AMHERST
BEER & WINE LICENSE
Fresh Vegetables from Our Own Farm
CLOSED WEDNESDAY
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLORING
253-7835

amc THEATRES
$2.25 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW
MT. FARMS 4 584-9153
Purple Rain
STEVE MARTIN LILY TOMLIN
ALL OF ME
It's Casual
The Wild Life
GHOSTBUSTERS
BILL MURRAY DAN AYKROYD
HAMPSHIRE 4 586-7550
The Madness Inside.
NINJA III THE DOMINATION
Freedom Made The Difference.
TEACHERS
THE CLOCK LATE SHOWS!
FRI & SAT at 12 15 SEATS $ 3.50

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Please Call for an Appointment
Expires 10/31/84 C
Styles by Deborah
FREE CONSULTATIONS

VALLEY CHURCH OF CHRIST
SUNDAY 10:00 A.M.
PEOPLES INSTITUTE
GOTHIC STREET,
NORTHAMPTON
586-5044

R & P PACKAGE STORE
BEER WINE SODA
Three minutes from Brittany Manor and Riverglade
* Large Selection of Domestic Beers *
* 60 Varieties of Imported Beer *
* 75 Varieties of French Wines *
* 25 Varieties of German, Italian, Spanish and Hungarian Wines *
Hours: Monday - Saturday 10:00 am 'til 11 pm
COME CHECK US OUT!
460 West St. 253-9742 So. Amherst, MA

★ field hockey

continued from page 16

has little bearing on this year's series leaving Hixon to muse, referring to the rebuilt team she has this year, "We have people who don't even know who Old Dominion is. Which is good."

The teams also met in the National Championship post-season tournament last year. There UMass defeated Temple 3-1 in the quarter finals. Again, however, they lost to ODU 3-2 in overtime in the semi-finals.

Forwards Tonia Kennedy and Judy Morgan will lead the potent UMass offense. Kennedy is the team's leading scorer with ten goals. Midfielders Pam Moryl and Megan Donnelly will control the team's transition game while Hultin and Andrea Muccini serve as the defensive mainstays along with goalies Lynn Carlson and Katherine Rowe, who have seven shut-outs to their credit.

★ previews

continued from page 16

RPI, and at 3:15, the 'B's' take on Queens College.

The women's cross country team heads into Worcester, along with 13 other teams to take part in the Holy Cross Invitational this weekend.

Coach Caroline Gardiner will be giving Sally Howes a well deserved rest, while Maureen O'Reilly is out indefinitely with a pinched nerve in her hip.

The men's cross country team will also be on the road this coming weekend at Franklin Park in Boston where they will meet Northeastern, Keene State and Lowell.

The volleyball team travels to Connecticut for the Southern Connecticut tourney on today and Saturday.

The UMass rugby team, 3-2 on the season, faces Boston College at Chestnut Hill on Saturday. BC is considered one of the better teams in the region. The Minutemen will be hampered by injuries as both John Sullivan and Peter Leary will not play, but captain Lou Luciano said he has "a lot of confidence" in the reserves and looks for the UM backs to beat the Eagle defense.

[Also contributing to this story were Alastair Atwood, Chris Tremblay and Mike Levine.]

DELANO'S
OCTOBER SPECIAL
Twofer One
HEINEKEN
plus our original twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight
Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St. 253-5141

Pick your Own Red & Golden Delicious Belchertown Only Sun. 10 - 5
Tel. 253-9528
ATKINS FRUIT BOWL
CORNER OF RTE. 116 & BAY RD. SOUTH AMHERST, MA
Open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
A Mountain of PUMPKINS to choose from
Full Line of Atkins Orchards own Fresh Picked Apples
Red Delicious Golden Delicious Macoun
Empire Cortland McIntosh Greenings
Other Varieties also available. For baking, sauce, or just plain good eating - You will find what you like and need at Atkins
Bartlett Pears for canning & eating
Crab Apples for Jelly
STOCK UP NOW & SAVE on Mass. WINTER KEEPING Potatoes Onions, Cabbage Squash (more than 6 kinds) & more!
Atkins Sweet Cider
No Preservatives
10/12 - 10/18 Mass. Native Vegetables On Special: SPINACH 39¢ lb. BUTTERNUT or ACORN SQUASH 14¢ lb. YELLOW ONIONS 5 lbs. for $1.
10/12 - 10/18 Bakery: CHEESECAKE SQUARES 3 for $1.35 (reg. 55¢) Delicious, creamy cheesecake on a graham cracker crust & topped with pineapple, blueberry or cherry - no preservatives
SLICED AMERICAN CHEESE 99¢ ½ lb.
FRESH BAKERY PRODUCTS Made Everyday
COOKIES BREADS MUFFINS Full line Pastries
OLD FASHIONED Raised Donuts Fruit Pies
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Earn your Credits abroad.
• England • Israel • Ireland • Germany • Spain • Italy • Denmark • Egypt • Switzerland • Mexica • Canada • France
Join the thousands of students who have earned college credits studying abroad in CCIS programs
Affordable quality programs with financial aid available
SPRING SEMESTER IN DUBLIN
INSTITUTE FOR IRISH STUDIES
12 - 15 CREDITS
SUMMER PROGRAMS AT TRINITY COLLEGE DUBLIN
Dr John J McLean
Mohegan Community College
Norwich, CT 06360
886-1931 X243
COLLEGE CONSORTIUM FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

Collegian's NFL Picks

Despite picking against the spread for the first time this season, sports editor Peter Abraham recorded a fine 10-4 record last week. He moves into a three-way tie with Tony Betros and Scott Hood.

Kevin DeLuca had a sub-par 6-8 week last week to fall to a distant second. As for the infamous Gerry deSimas...a 7-7 week kept his record at a mediocre 38-31. Best of luck to you Mr. deSimas...

			Peter Abraham (46-23)	Tony Betros (46-23)	Kevin DeLuca (40-29)	Scott Hood (46-23)	Gerry deSimas (38-31)
Atlanta	4	Giants	Atlanta	Atlanta	Giants	Atlanta	Giants
Cleveland	E	Jets	Jets	Jets	Jets	Jets	Jets
Detroit	3	TB	Det	Det	Det	Det	Det
Raiders	10	Minn	Raiders	Raiders	Raiders	Raiders	Raiders
Miami	17	Houston	Houston	Miami	Miami	Miami	Miami
NE	7½	Cinn	Cinn	NE	Cinn	NE	NE
NO	3	Rams	Rams	NO	NO	Rams	NO
Philly	6	Indy	Philly	Philly	Indy	Indy	Indy
SD	2½	KC	SD	KC	SD	KC	SD
SanFran	8	Pitts	SanFran	SanFran	SanFran	SanFran	SanFran
Seattle	11	Buffalo	Buffalo	Seattle	Buffalo	Buffalo	Buffalo
St. Louis	3	Chi	StLou	Chi	Chi	StLou	StLou
Washington	5	Dallas	Wash	Wash	Wash	Wash	Wash
Denver	7	GBay	Denver	Denver	Denver	Denver	Denver

UM prevails in 3-0 win

Spence tallies twice off the bench

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

"It was a nightmare," head coach Kalekeni Banda said of the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team's game against Springfield College last night, at Benedum Field in Springfield.

The second ranked Minutemen triumphed 3-0 over the unranked Chiefs but "we were not as smooth as we wanted to be," Banda said. "We played really bad. It was our worst game of the year."

Cathy Spence, a freshman, came off the bench and sparked UMass with two second half goals to give UMass, now 8-1-2, a little breathing room.

"When you're a good team, you try to find ways to win and I think we did," Banda said.

The Minutemen face a stiff challenge Sunday when they travel to Cortland State and face the nation's fifth ranked team. Cortland defeated UConn 2-1 last Saturday.

"This is a young team. They will make mistakes. Maybe this was the time to do it. This isn't a time for panic," Banda said.

Springfield played an aggressive game on the artificial turf and both Jamie Watson and senior co-captain Lori Stukes came out of the game limping.

UMass took the 1-0 lead on freshman Jolie DePauw's tenth goal of the year off of freshman's Carolyn Micheel corner kick with 12:00 gone in the game. However, the Minutemen couldn't put away the scrappy Chiefs.

"We just didn't do the things we had to do," Banda said. "We made the job tough for ourselves."

UMass started playing better in the second half and started to create some opportunities for itself, Banda said. Springfield got a bit too confident and started to make some mistakes that UMass capitalized on.

Spence took a Debbie Belkin (another freshman) pass and gave UMass the 2-0 lead. Kristen Bowsher, yet another of the six freshman starters for UMass, assisted on Spence's last goal with 5:00 to go in the second half and the 3-0 final talley.

"We have a good team," Banda said. "We just had a bad day. As a team we could play better as it showed in the second half."

Regatta at Holyoke, tennis teams in action

By JOHN A. NOLAN
Collegian Staff

In preparation for next week's race at the "Head of the Charles," both the men's and the women's Crew teams hit the water this weekend.

The men's team travels north to Nashua, N.H. on Saturday to continue their assault against Division II opposition while hoping to improve upon their strong showing at Lowell two weeks ago.

"We're really flying. I think we've really impressed some people with our size and speed," said coach Dave Kumlin. "I'm really anxious to see how we stand, but I think we'll do quite well."

Two weeks ago, the men fared quite well against some pretty tough competition while defeating the Division II field by a good 15-20 seconds. This time, chief competition comes from Division I powerhouse Northeastern, Coast Guard and Holy Cross.

The women's team, meanwhile, heads down the road to south Hadley to compete in the tenth anniversary of the Mount Holyoke Women's Regatta in what is hoped to be another solid showing. Saturday's race is considered by some to be the Women's Nationals, but coach Maria Mnelkas doesn't agree.

."I guess some people think so, but the Head of the Charles is what we're looking for."

The team is coming off a strong performance at Lowell in which the team placed second behind MIT. The showing was particularly satisfying in that Simmons College, fifth in last year's Nationals, finished third, more than a minute behind the Minutemen.

The format for this weekend's Regatta will have the Minutemen racing twice. The qualifying race starts at 11:30 with the second to commence at 3:30. Junior Varsity teams begin approximately one half hour earlier than the start of each varsity race. The location of the race will be at Brunnel's Marina on the Connecticut River.

The men's tennis team had an up and down week with a respectable showing at the New England Tennis Tournament and a split of their two matches. At the NETT, UMass placed eighth in the ten team field, but did well against those teams within their class.

On Monday the Minutemen dropped a close 5-4 decision to RPI despite the absence of key players due to injury. They came right back to even their record at 3-3 on Wednesday with an impressive 8-1 victory over Clark University. Their next match is this Saturday at the University of Rhode Island and then Westfield State on Tuesday in their last home match this fall.

Collegian File photo

Senior forward Maura Coughin (8) stickhandles past a Yale defender in action earlier this season. UMass faces top-ranked Old Dominion on Sunday. See the preview story on Page 16 for Ed Hayward's analysis on the big game.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

APPLE MACINTOSH

Computer, imagewriter printer, MacWrite, MacPaint, MS. Basic, box of disks, surge protector, diskette file 1-637-1137

AUDIO

State of the art stereo system. JBL L-110 speakers with stands, Onkyo TX-30 digital receiver, JVC LF-41 turntable, quartz, with Pickering cart, paid $1800-must sell-$700 Warren 546-9767

For sale - Pioneer A-800 car AM/FM cassette with music search, supertuner 3. Paid $219 - must sell - $100 Warren 546-9767

AUTO FOR SALE

Vega Wagon 76 new clutch, brakes, steering box. Body v. good 546-7058 ask for Tim keep trying

1970 VW Beetle rebuilt engine new brake system new clutch good tires includes parts car and trailer hitch $1000 call Brenda 549-8986

79 Dodge Omni AC A/T stereo many new parts 549-0381

1973 Dodge Charger deluxe. Mechanically sound. AC, cloth interior, AM FM cassetta quadrophonic stereo. 82,000 orig miles. Very clean and dependable car. Best offer 256-8336

73 Volks Fastback, runs great fuel injected 1600 549-1358 David

DON'T MISS

Mystery guest star performing Friday night at JR's someone worth seeing

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rack-A-Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks. MTV video music call 549-7144

Rack A Disc Rack A Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 Collage Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 546-0245 or 586-7695

FOR SALE

Eagle II word processing C P M. Computer. $1200.00. 1-533-9727

Airlines ticket to Chicago, Seattle, or Anchorage. Best offer Call 584-5077

Scuba Tank 72 cu. ft. steel J valve hydrostatically tested $50 call Brenda 549-8999

Four Michelin X2X 70 series 13 inch rims $40.00 247-5067 after 5 PM

Couch $95.00 549-0675 Camero $1750.

Technics 28 watt digital receiver. 7 position, duets lock. Very excellent condition $125.00 546-7458

Akai int. amp 70 w/ch chan. Akai tuner w/7 preset $250.00 Yamaha T table w/low mass B + O cartridge 549-7526

United Ticket Hartford to Los Angeles morning October 21 for $100. call 549-0235

GUITAR Peavey T-60 225 i ray mor amp 100 Boss heavy metal pedal 85 installations phase shifter 40 546-4921

LAB series LS 100w guitar amplifier great condition $375 OBO Rob 546-5316

Corduroy Couch for sale good condition call Elizabeth 549-1773

FOUND

Sat. Nite (10/6) @ Pub I found your Levi's jacket, size 36, after you took mine, size 38, keys in pocket 549-1879

Calico and Tiger striped kitten approx. 4 months old found in NE section on Oct 7 call 6-5469 for more info

Found 2 keys 1 Volvo and 1 brass w/tag that reads Sharon call John 546-3279

Found Ring outside Brandywine Apts September 29 describe call Pam 549-5188

HAPPY BIRTHDAY DONNA

Happy Birthday Donnal with love from your housemates enjoy!

HELP WANTED

Ambitious college student needed part time to organize a Rock and Art Fair Very rewarding role 536-3890 anytime

Overseas jobs Summer, yr round. Europe, S America, Australia, Asia All fields $900 - $2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mer, CA 92625

The People's Gay Alliance is looking for an Office Manager. This is a work study position, and duties will be janitorial and clerical. Drop off your name, number, and an informal resume in the PGA Office, 413B SUB. Replies must be in by Oct 16th

CAMPUS REP POSITION Earn high commissions and FREE TRIPS promoting high quality ski and beach trips to Colorado, Daytona Beach and South Padre Island. Call Summit Tours 800-325-0439

Need Meets? Sorority needs kitchen help for lunch & dinner, Monday - Friday, flexible 546-2152 Kathy

Responsible mature person, 4-5 afternoons per week. Childcare for two boys ages 7 and 10, light housekeeping, meal preperation. Own car desirable. $60 + per week. Needed Mon, Tues, Thurs 3-6 and Wed 1-8 pm call Susan 256-1886

Government Jobs. $16,568-$50,553/year. Now hiring, your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext R-9616

Office Manager for SWAG needed. Organization and governmental experience helpful. For more information call 545-0960

Artist position for Southwest Area Government available. For more information call 545-0960

Work study secretarial position available for Southwest Area Government. For information call 545-0960

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas 2 for 1 hot tub every Monday and Tuesday night call for reservations 253-7727

Utopia Spas private, hot tub rentals call now for reservations 253-7727

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Light and dark blue backpack on 10-5-84 if found please call 665-4187

Sylvan Area on Oct 4 red wallet containing essentials reward Amy 546-5917

Lost a 20" gold chain large reward if found call John 549-0606

Prince tennis racket call Erika @ 9338

MOTORCYCLES

Honda XL176 on/off in great condition many new parts $475 OBO Rob 549-5316

PERSONALS

Haircuts by Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-8359

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues., Oct 9 to Fri., Oct. 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3. and the 1983 INDEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

There have been lines everywhere for this person. Have you guessed who? You have to see it to believe it! It is going to blow your mind! It's BIG!

It's Suzanna's Birthday. Call her in JQA and wish her a Happy 20th 546-8372 have a great time! Love, Josh

Officer, Thank you for your help MG

Happy 20th, Spical Make em want you! Maybe you'll get lucky DG

UMMB The Flying Dutchman will be docking tomorrow! Get psyched!

MARK KELLY Thank you, thank you. You saved my beg and my GPA! Suzie

Goaty, Happy 22nd Birthday, love the kids

D. O'Brien and "T. Stanton" YOU have the problem - grow up!

Michael L. Happy 21st Birthday and many more, Mr. Butter! Love always, Nina

Hey Pseudo! Happy B-Day watch out for those next guys! Love Donna

5th ANNUAL BATTLE OF THE BANDS! Deadline for applications available Nov. 2. All bands invited to apply. Applications available at the Southwest Area Government Office, Hampden Student Center 545-0960

SOUTHWEST AREA GOVERNMENT ELECTIONS Nomination papers fro SWAG president available starting October 11 at the Senate Office, 420 SUB. Papers are due October 18, 5 pm at 420 SUB. Open to all Southwest residents

To all university men CL says nothing goes together as well as polo and foliage

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus low rates guaranteed accepetance Nancy 584-7924

REFRIGERATOR RENTAL

Refrigerator Rental 2 cubic ft R & P PACKAGE STORE free delivery 253-9742

RIDE WANTED

R.T. ride wanted to Montreal will help pay expenses. Any weekend! Call 256-8413

SERVICES

Need a tutor? I can help! For more info call 665-4831 after 9:00

SUN TAN NOW

Utopia Spas Suntanning Specials call now for special prices 253-7727

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal. Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer stading room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5126

WANTED

Female to share large bedroom in Townehouse call 549-4585

Tires! 195 BR 13's radials, good condition. Please call 253-9564 evenings

Steady Babysitting Job I love kids! Fee negotiable call anytime Louise 256-6750

Sports

Minutemen ready to step on Spiders

Stull looks to Barnwell for offense...

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

As much as he likes to pass the football, University of Massachusetts football coach Bob Stull knows that talented running backs have their purpose.

"The way our passing game has faltered and the way our running attack has become increasingly better, we've changed the way we've looked at the offense," said Stull. "You've got to go with your best."

Stull's best at the moment is tailback George Barnwell. The 5'9" junior saw little of the football early in the season as Stull installed an attack centered around the passing of quarterback Jim Simeone and the running of fullback Frank Fay.

But with Simeone completing only 40 percent of his passes and having yet to throw a touchdown and Fay finding life as a 180 pound fullback difficult, the move went to Barnwell.

He responded with a solid game against Holy Cross before busting out with an 121 yard day against Northeastern and a 172 romp against Rhode Island, 145 yards in the first half alone. He carried the ball 29 times and scored twice.

"I'd have to say that George is going to see the ball a lot this week," said Stull. "And hopefully we can help take the pressure off of the rest of the offense."

UMass' opponent Saturday at Alumni Stadium, the University of Richmond, may be only 2-3 in record, but were up until last season a Division 1-A team and still possessthe skill players to compete on that level.

"They were an awful 1-A team, but for a 1-AA team, they're pretty good," said Stull.

"They have good receivers, good backs and a good quarterback in Bob Bleier. Their lines are good sized and I'm sure they'll give us all we can handle."

Tailback Greg Grooms leads the Spiders with 566 yards rushing and had 171 yards last week in a 29-16 loss to Wake Forest. The Richmond offense has been averaging 401.2 yards-per-game, exactly what the Minutemen are giving up.

The Minutemen, 2-3 on the year, moved the ball better on offense last week at URI, totaling 354 yards, but a lack of production from Simeone and his receivers has Stull worried.

"Jimmy's still far and away our best quarterback and I'm confident in what our receivers can do," said the coach. "But we need some touchdowns through the air soon. It's so important to get that first one and get our confidence up. We've kept things fairly simple for Jimmy, his defensive reads are the same, hopefully things will work out."

When Richmond has the ball, Bleirer and Co. will have to worry about the UMass linebacking corps of Todd Comeau, Mike Favreau, Dave Cavanaugh and Vito Perrone.

Comeau had 11 unassisted tackles last week, Perrone had 12 and caused two fumbles. The foursome make up four of the top six UMass tacklers this season with Perrone leading the way with 49 primary stops and 24 assists. Cavanaugh leads the squad in sacks with four.

Not helping the Minutemen will be injuries to defensive tackles Mike Dwyer (bruised shoulder) and Ed Sullivan (sprained ankle), if either can not play, Mike Kowalski will step in.

On offense, Stull has put sophomore Stan Kaczorowski at left guard in place of Vince Reppert. Reppert will alternate with Kaczorowski after coming back from a nagging leg injury suffered against Holy Cross.

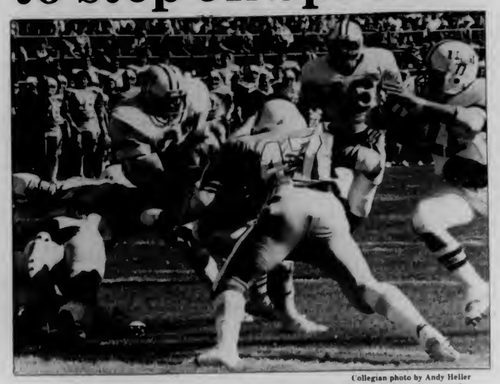
Massachusetts has allowed only a single touchdown in the fourth quarter this season while the offense has found the final 15 minutes its most productive with 33 points over the five games.

"That's a good sign," said Stull. "We held URI scoreless in the second half last week and if we can keep on denying the opponent cheap touchdowns I think the offense has the confidence and ability to take it from there."

A matter of concern is the seconday, UM has allowed 1327 yards through the air this season, over 265 a game. They have, however, picked off 11 passes (CB Chris Wood has four, only one behind Eastern leader Tony Thurman of Boston College).

"That's the key, we aren't letting them score," said Stull. "The defense is bending but not breaking, we've let up a lot of yards, but we're holding them inside the 20."

"But the offense, on the other hand, is failing inside the 20, we fumbled down there twice against URI and we have to improve upon that, minimize our mistakes, and concentrate a lot more. It can happen."



Collegian photo by Andy Heller

UMass tailback George Barnwell (27) scores against URI last week. The junior will play a major role against Richmond this week.

UMass vs. Richmond

Where: Alumni Stadium
When: Saturday, 1:30 p.m.
The Series: first meeting
The Latest Line: UMass by 1½
Injuries: UM: Ed Sullivan (DT), ankle, is questionable, Mike Dwyer (DT), shoulder, is probable, Dave Cavanaugh (LB), ribs, will start, John Crowley (FL), hamstring, will start; R: no injuries.
The records: both UMass and Richmond are 2-3
Last week: UMass lost to URI, 20-19, Richmond lost to Wake Forest, 29-16.
Radio: WMUA-FM (91.1), WTTT-AM (1430), WSPR-AM (1270) and WEBC-AM (1420) will carry the game.

Field hockey hits the top

face no. 1 ODU, Temple

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

Talk about big plans for the weekend. How about a road trip to Virginia? That's what the University of Massachusetts field hockey team has scheduled.

Awaiting the eighth ranked 9-1 Minutemen will be two tough challenges as they battle Temple University of Pennsylvania (ranked third) on Saturday and host team Old Dominion University, the number one ranked team in the nation, on the Norfolk playing fields on Sunday.

"This is a mark in the season," said UMass defender Liz Hultin. "It's something everyone gets up for. Everyone has to play very well; there can't be any letdowns. This is part of what we've worked for thus far this season: to see if we can't shut down the top teams in the nation."

"We're going for the first win on the first day," said UMass coach Pam Hixon. "When you play back to back that's what you have to soot for."

"Whatever happens with Old Dominion, win, tie, or lose, does not matter. We're underdogs all the way so all we have to do is go out and play hard. A win or tie is gravy in the second game," she added.

Temple, currently 9-1, has an excellent forward line plus an equally strong midfield, said Hixon. She sees UMass's biggest job as taking advantage of Temple' defensive corps and goalie.

"Those areas are the weakest parts of their game so it's our job to keep play in those parts of the field. All in all I expect a physical and aggressive game," said Hixon.

Old Dominion brings an unblemished 9-0 record into the weekend. They are also the defending national champions.

However, Hixon disregards the team's past success, as she does with all her opponents, and simply waits to see what Old Dominion has to offer on game day.

The three teams are not strangers to one another. In last year's regular season they assembled at Temple in a similar series. In those meetings, UMass defeated Temple 1-0, but lost to Old Dominion by the same score. But that

continued on page 14

Soccer looks to end slump at URI, others in action

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

The outcome will undoubtedly change the minds of few voters, but Univeristy of Massachusetts men's soccer coach Jeff Gettler pulls no punches in describing the importance of Saturday's game against the University of Rhode Island at Kingston.

"This si a must win for us. If we don't beat them we have little or no chance of advancing to the post-season. They're a good team (sixth ranked in New England; UMass is fifth ranked) and they'll give us a good game, but this is a big pressure game. It's a game we have to have and it will show whether we're a good team or not."

With only the top two teams in New England advancing to post-season tournament action, the loser of tomorrow's matches will have its chances of qualifying severely hampered, if not destroyed.

UMass comes into the game banged up, yet well rested. The last action the Minutement saw was Sunday, when they lost the championship game of the UMass Invitational to the University of Hartford, 1-0.

"We needed the break," said Gettler. "It came at a perfect time. Hartford beat the heck out of us (physically). We've been able to rest and get some players back to snuff."

Utilizing the strong soccer-playing Portuguese community in and around the Ocean State, URI employs a counter-attack style anchored by a strong defense. They returned everybody from last year's 14-4 squad that finished fourth in New England. Prime players include goalie Sal Frank, sweeper back Agilida Elmada, and striker Tony Funtz.

The University of Massachusetts Water Polo Tournament takes place tomorrow at Boyden Pool with both the UMass 'A' and 'B' teams playing and strong hope for a championship from coach Russ Yarworth.

"I don't anticipate any problems on Saturday," Yarworth said. "We've got to convert on our opportunities and stay alert on defense, but I doubt that that will be a problem."

The Minutemen, coming off a third place finish at the league tournament last weekend and currently ranked third in the Northeast with an 8-6 record have been getting solid goaltending from Fred Marius, as well as good play from senior Bob Cameron and sophomore Owen McGonagle.

The UMass 'A' team starts the tournament off with a 9 a.m. game against Boston University, followed by a game between the UMass 'B; team and the University of Rhode Island at 10:15. At 11:30, the 'A; team plays

continued on page 14

Villanova to join YanCon

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Villanova University, which dropped football after the 1980 season and reinstated it last December, has accepted an invitation to join the Yankee Conference in 1988.

The addition of the Philadelphia school brings the total membership of the conference to nine. Delaware and Richmond were admitted this year. The Wildcats will begin I-AA play in 1985 under new coach Andy Talley, who was appointed in June.

"Joining the Yankee Conference is an important step for Villanova football," said Athletic Director Ted Aceto.

"It was the most viable and attractive option for Villanova football."

weekend sports at a glance

Today:
Volleyball; at S. Conn Tourney
Men's Tennis: at ECAC Tourney
Saturday:
Football: Richmond, Alumni Stadium, 1:30 p.m.
Field Hockey: vs. Temple at ODU
Soccer: at URI
Women's Cross Country: at Holy Cross
Water Polo: UMass Tourney, Boyden Pool, all day
Rugby: at Boston College
Volleyball: at S. Conn Tourney
Women's Tennis: at MAIW Tourney (Holy Cross)
Sunday:
Field Hockey: at Old Dominion
Water Polo: UMass tourney continues

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 82 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Monday, October 15, 1984

Acid rain testing throughout Massachusetts in second phase

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

Preliminary tests on water samples from about 3,000 bodies of water across Massachusetts were conducted yesterday at the University of Massachusetts and 23 other sites as part two of the Acid Rain Monitoring Project.

The project which is funded by the state's Department of Fisheries and Wildlife will produce an inventory of acidity in all the state's water bodies, according to Professor O.T. Zajicek of the chemistry department.

About 35 UMass volunteers tested 470 water samples Sunday for acidity and the water's ability to absorb it, Zajicek said.

This week samples taken from other parts of the state will be delivered to UMass where they will be tested for the presence of 20 metallic and six non-metallic elements, he said. It will take about two months to complete the testing.

A study by the National Academy of Sciences has linked acid rain to the air pollutants released by factories in the Midwest. According to the report, pollutants mix with water vapor in the atmosphere and are carried by eastward weather patterns. When it rains or snows the pollutants fall to the ground with the water. The acid polutants eventually build up in lakes, ponds, rivers and streams. The end result is water which is too acidic for fish and other animals to live in.

"Even phase one of the project had a lot of impact" in Washington D.C. he said.

Lt. Gov. John Kerry went to Washington and showed the results of phase one to governors and others, Zajicek said. "He was able to get comments from the governor of Indiana," who said that the problem was worse than expected.

A report released by the project after the first phase stated that 70 percent of the 1,229 water bodies tested were acidic enough to "cause sever losses of fish and other aquatic life."

"Actually, the first phase verified what we thought was true," Zajicek said.

It was a "modest effort" which roughly sampled 25 percent of the states water bodies, Zajicek said.

A second set of samples will be collected and tested in April and will conclude the project. Water samples taken Sunday will represent the water's best conditions which occur after the summer. Samples taken in April will show the water's worst condition because of snow and weather conditons.

Collegian photo by Brian Tonye

ONE, TWO, THREE . . . TESTING — Volunteers Geof Dangerfield, left, Cecelia Gochoco, Andy Vezis , and Tom Lok work on 3,000 water samples for acidity and alkalinity of the areas lakes and rivers.

Education on nuclear arms a necessity

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

A second Reagan administration would spend $26 billion during the next five years on feasibility research for space-based weapons system that will not work, a former CIA political analyst said at an all-day symposium at the School of Management Saturday.

Peter Clausen, senior arms analyst for the Union of Concerned Scientists in Cambridge, said that although the proposed "Star Wars" satellite anti-missile system is "a radical vision...a blind alley," the Reagan administration is prepared to spend billions developing it.

Speaking at the symposium "Educating Ourselves About Nuclear War," Clausen said the "Star Wars" weapon system is "less reliable than other weapons. It is totally computerized and there is no way to test it."

The "Star Wars" weapons system proposed by the Reagan administration would orbit satellites that could monitor Soviet nuclear missile launch sites and destroy the missiles with laser beams after launch in case of a nuclear attack against the United States.

"To attack in the boost phase is the key," Clausen said. "But after a nuclear missile is launched, it releases multiple warheads that would give the system "ten to fifteen...targets to shoot at," he said.

"Another problem is, where do you put the weapons? It would have to hover over the Soviet Union, or a satellite orbiting the country has been suggested," Clausen said.

"What happens if the Soviets send up decoys? It would still count as a missile," so the radar could not know which is which, he said.

"It has a superficial appeal but it really is a fraudulent solution. It can't get us out (of nuclear war), Clausen said.

"Once the Soviet missiles are launched, a computer makes the decision" to destroy, he said.

Also at the symposium was Dr. Jonathan Fine from the Physicians for Social Responsibility who described the effects of a nuclear winter. Shelly Burman, a founder of Educators for Social Responsibility, and

continued on PG. 3

Collegian photo by Brian Tonye

UP, UP and away— UMass cheerleaders toss each other about to root for the home team but to no avail. see story p. 12.

Amherst holds swearing-in of new president

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

About 2,000 students, faculty and friends of Amherst College attended yesterday's inauguration of Peter R. Pouncey as the 16th president of the school.

The ceremony at the New Gymnasium was a colorful and spectacular event, highlighted with speeches by Pouncey and former Mount Holyoke College President David Truman.

The new gymnasium was bedecked with flags, the faculty wore their academic gowns of blue, pink and black, and the music was written for the inauguration by Professor Louis Spratlan of the Amherst music department and performed by the Amherst Choral Society.

Although "celebration" was the theme of the ceremony, it was not without serious moments. Both Truman and Pouncey focused their speeches on the role of education in the global issues of nuclear war and the selfishness of man.

Truman spoke of "the connection between education and the prospects for solving two persistent problems that face the world and society."

"One problem is how to choose not to do what we are capable of doing", specifically "the use of nuclear weapons," Truman said.

He said the other problem is how "to sustain the framework of civility essential to civilized existence and non-violence."

"This is an enterprise that is not alien to the traditions and commitments of Amherst," he said.

Pouncey spoke on whether human nature is essentially selfish and whether "human nature in the last analysis will be proven noble or mean."

continued on PG. 3

Inside:

Egypt ready to conduct business with U.S. ..... pg. 2
Historian says UMass has an inferiority complex . pg 3
UMass football team fighting a losing battle . pg 12

"With time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes a silk gown," Chinese Proverb

World and National News

Rebels meet with El Salvador leader

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador - Two top leftist rebel leaders arrived Sunday for meetings with President Jose Napoleon Duarte aimed at ending the country's long civil war. It was the first time in more than four years that rebel leaders had appeared in public here.

Guillermo Ungo and Ruben Zamora, president and vice president respectively of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, political alley of leftist guerrillas fighting the government, arrived at 2:30 p.m. EDT aboard a Columbian air force turboprop plane accompanied by Latin and European diplomats. They landed at San Salvador international airport, 25 miles southeast of the city.

A guerrila leader said four key points remained to be settled by government and rebel forces for the talks to Salvador Samayoa, a member of the seven-member political-diplomatic commission that represents the rebels' political and military fronts in negotiations, said Duarte, has created a "circus atmosphere" in La Palma.

"There are no controls on the population and this could lead to an unpleasant incident," he said in a telephone interview from Panama with Radio Sonora of San Salvador.

Duarte has invited his supporters in the labor movement to organize a caravan of thousands of workers and peasants to accompany him to La Palma.

AP Laserphoto

TALKING WITH THE PRESS — Guillermo Ungo, President of the democratic revolutionary front, left and Vice President Ruben Zamora.

Egypt wants U.S. arms for Jordan

CAIRO, Egypt — Egypt asked the United States on Sunday to sell Jordan air defense weapons whose sale was cancelled earlier this year because of opposition by Israel and members of the U.S. Congress, Egyptian sources said.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the request was made during meetings Sunday between U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and President Hosni Mubarak and other senior Egyptian officials.

The sources said Weinberger refused to commit President Reagan's administration to supporting the sale of Stinger ground-to-air missiles, which Egypt said should be sold as an incentive to bring Jordan's King Hussein into the peace process with Israel.

They said Weinberger also refused to give assurances that the United States would meet Egyptian requests for more advanced weaponry for its own armed forces. Weinberger arrived Saturday for a three-day visit.

The Stinger is a shoulder-fired, heat-seeking missile most effective against low-flying aircraft. A major objection to its being sold to Jordan was the fear that it could fall into the hands of terrorists.

The sources said Egyptian officials, including Defense Minister Field Marshal Abdel-Halim, were disappointed by Weinberger's initial response.

There was no comment on the report by U.S. officials traveling with Weinberger.

Egypt's request on behalf of Jordan for the missiles and for more military and economic aid for Egypt followed Hussein's decision on Sept. 25 to restore full diplomatic relations with Egypt. Jordan and 16 other Arab states severed diplomatic ties with Egypt following its 1979 peace treaty with Israel.

The Egyptians were believed eager to show Hussein and other Arab leaders that Cairo's unique status as the only Arab country with relations both with Washington and Israel gives it a special role in promoting Arab causes.

Cocaine bust nets 3 lbs. and 3 arrests

BRAINTREE, Mass. Federal officials have arrested three men, including a sheriff's son, and charged them with attempting to sell three pounds of cocaine to undercover officers.

Glen Hunter, 29, of West Dennis, was arrested following the alleged drug transaction with federal and state officers in the parking lot of a Braintree restaurant Friday, police said.

Police estimated the street value of the drugs at up to $400,000.

Police said his alleged companions, John Bowes Jr., 39, the son of the Barnstable County sheriff, and Brian Melanson, 22, both of Boston, were arrested following a chase that involved speeds up to 100 mph.

While trying to escape, the pair threw a manila envelope out a window that contained $32,000 in $100 bills the agents had paid for the drugs, police said.

The envelope was found by Bob Stella, a photographer for the Patriot-Ledger in Quincy, who notified authorities.

Robert Stutman, agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Agency, said the three were arraigned Friday.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Laura Yee
Copy Editor	Nancy A. Bukar
Layout Tecnician	Amy Constant
Photo Technician	Brian Gonye
Production supervisor	Peter Soderberg
Production	Lisa Arseneault, Maria Cahillane, Brian Solov, Rob Skelton, Wendy Edenfield, Linda Hudon Andy the driver

A Grateful Dead Blues Extravaganza
Tuesday morning October 16th, '84
WMUA 91.1 FM
Nine A.M. 'til Twelve Noon
on
"The Blues Express"

LAGNAF 85
UMASS SKI CLUB
Be Part of the Tradition
SUGARBUSH VALLEY
Ski and Party Week
14th Annual BUSH BASH
Jan. 20 - 25

Package Includes:
5½ Day Lift Ticket
5 Nights' Lodging
Continental Breakfast
(hotel only)
Free Beer & Wine Parties
Famous UMass Parties
All Taxes & Gratuities
Condo Package $194.
Hotel Package $149.

For more info 545-3437
call UMass Ski Club 430A SUB
Info and Sign Up Metings:
Monday - Campus Center Room 162 at 4:00 pm
Wed. - Hampden Commons, Southwest 7:00 pm

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Please Call for an Appointment
Expires 10/31/84 C
Styles by Deborah
Amherst MA 549-5610
FREE CONSULTATIONS

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

College Party Weekend
in $68. MONTREAL
includes
* Round Trip Transportation
* 3 days, 2 nights
Hotel Sherbourg, Downtown Montreal
November 2, 3, 4
Night Clubs open 'til 4 AM
Drinking Age 18
No Roadblocks
Call ERIC 549-5017

Come and Enjoy
a dramatic reading of Aristophanes
The Clouds
at Lounge
Amherst College
The reading will be performed by both faculty & students
on Oct. 18, 8 PM

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
•Includes Mounting• plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

Collegian photo by Derek Roberts

Rappaccini's Garden — a plain railroad bridge by the Connecticut River is encased with the beauty of the height of autumn's foliage season.

Biographer tells parents that 'negativism' exists at UMass

By RITA MURPHY and JAMES P. SHANAHAN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts is a first rate institution with an inferiority complex said noted historian and history Professor Stephen B. Oates Saturday.

Since the early 1970's UMass students have been "vaguely hostile and generallly unhappy....an air of negativism has set in," said Oates, keynot speaker at the first parents weekend held in the Campus Center.

Oates, a Paul Murray Kendall Professor of Biography at UMass, best known for his biographies of John Brown, Nat Turner, Abraham Lincoln, and Martin Luther King Jr., has taught at UMass since 1968.

Oates said when he came here in the late 60's there was "an air of infectious enthusiasm," but that has since changed and now UMass is referred to as "zoomass."

But, Oates told the 140 parents they should be proud to be sending their son or daughter to UMass.

"I'm tired of the zoo image. Calling it the zoo is just another form of bigotry," Oates said.

"We represent the state of Massachusetts...I know 49 other states that would love a school like this," he said.

Oates said much of the negativism is because of the media's poor perception of UMass.

In 1979, for example Boston Magazine ran a story about UMass which "did not have one good thing to say about faculty or students."

"It made us out to be an Alcatraz," he said.

Oates was the keynot speaker at the 3 day event which attracted more than 400 parents of first year students.

Other events included a speech by Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey where he called parents weekend "a new experience on this campus."

"We have emerged as a major university not just in size but in the quality and strength of our students. This state is just beginning to get a sense of pride in the university; pride and support of its parents and students," Duffey said.

Valerie Falk, an organizer of the event and assistant director of the office of alumni affairs and development, said the weekend was "well received" and it will probably be a yearly event.

Hasbrouck was bomb threat target

University of Massachusetts police said they received an anonymous call at 6:43 p.m. Thursday that a bomb was planted in Hasbrouck Laboratory. The police checked the building and advised the inhabitants of the situation and left it to their discretion to leave. No bomb was found in the building, police said.

Two University of Massachusetts students were arrested at 1:18 a.m. Friday and charged with being minors in possession of alcohol, police said. The 18 and 19-year-old men were seen carrying beer next to Cance Dormitory in the South west Residential Area, police said.

A 19 year-old University of Massachusetts student was arrested at 1:36 a.m. Friday for a motor vehicle warrant. The Moore House resident was arrested at the Southwest Residential Area Mall, where he was seen earlier driving on the sidewalk near John Quincey Adams Dormitory, police said.

Police received a report at 4:56 p.m. Thursday that a car parked in lot 22 was scratched on both its sides and hood. The cost of the damage is unknown, police said.

— JOEL COFFIDIS

Conference recalls Eleanor Roosevelt's honors

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

At the 100th anniversary of Eleanor Roosevelt's birth interest in her public policy career is increasing, according to two University professors who spoke at a conference on her life at Vassar College this weekend.

The conference, titled "The Vision of Eleanor Roosevelt: Past, Present and Future," is part of the Eleanor Roosevelt centennial celebration which is being held throughout the United States this fall.

Born Oct. 11, 1884, Roosevelt was a writer, humanitarian, government official and a U.S. delegate to the United Nations from 1945 to 1953. As first lady, she lectured throughout the country on social issues and wrote a syndicated column, "My Day".

UMass political science professor Jean Elshtain said Roosevelt's "career is undergoing an important kind of re-evaluation."

Elshtain said Roosevelt believed that women had certain important responsibilities, such as making the world more peaceful, which she wrote in her 1930 book, It is up to the Women.

She said Roosevelt's ideas "complicate feminist argument and feminist thinking," because she attributed positive stereotypes to women.

Roosevelt, who was born into an American aristocratic family, never abandoned her status as a lady, but kept extending the definitions, Elshtain said.

She used her status as a lady to "espouse politically unpopular opinions," Elshtain said.

Her greatness, Elshtain said, can be sensed through her "astounding gasping in disbelief."

"You can't understand Eleanor Roosevelt unless you understand that she totally defined herself as a Christian," Elshtain said. "She believed in guiding yourself completely by what Christ enunciated in the New Testament."

UMass economics professor Samuel Bowles said Roosevelt's "vision that treating people decently makes economic sense is as relevant today as it was during the New Deal."

"The spirit of the conference is that trickle down economics is not morally justifiable or economically sensible," Bowles said.

Bowles, who is the co-author of Beyond the Wasteland: A Democratic Alternative to Economic Decline said at the conference that most people are convinced that a simple re-distribution of wealth does not solve the economic inequities either.

A viable economic alternative which considers the effects of the economic gender gap, militarization, and the control of the work process is necessary, Bowles said.

Working "ultimately toward reversing the now dominant conservative ideology that makes money for businesses makes economic sense for the rest of us," he said.

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's News Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

Monday - A general women's support group will meet for eight weeks starting today 7-9 p.m. Contact the Everywoman's Center for location.

Maggie Kuhn, internationally recognized elder advocate, will speak at 7:30 p.m. in Thompson 106 on "Politics, Advocacy and Aging in 1984."

The Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom (EERE) will meet at 5 p.m. Check the Campus Center information desk for location.

CEERF will also be commemorating the death of Rosie Jimenez who died seven years ago from an illegal abortion. For more information, stop by their table in the concourse today.

Tuesday - Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Men and Heterosexual Allies are invited to Speak Out on heterosexist discrimination at 9:30 p.m. in the Commuter Collective Lounge, Student Union.

The Women's Leadership Project is sponsoring two films: MY LOVE HAS BEEN BURNING, NO REGRETS FOR OUR YOUTH at 7 and 9 p.m. respectively in 917 Campus Center. The first film is the story of the struggles of a 19th century feminist and the second is the first postwar attempt to portray the modern Japanese woman. The films are free.

Wednesday - The Women's Caucus of the Undergraduate Senate will meet in the Campus Center at 4 p.m. All women Senators are urged to attend. Elections for Caucus Coordinator will be held. Call the senate office at 545-0341 for room number.

Thursday - TRIVIA: A Journal of Ideas and the Smith College Women's Resource Center will present Harriet Ellenberger, "In Search of Lesbian Theater" at 7:30 p.m. in Seely 10 at Smith College. A donation of three dollars is requested.

The Women's Leadership Project will begin an informal discussion series titled "Women's Images, Women's Lives" The topic of the first discussion is beauty contests. Refreshments will be served. Check the Campus Center schedule for room number or call 545-0254.

Sunday - The Women's Media Project will be on the air 7-10 p.m. The show features female vocalists, all-women bands, music of all styles, and news with a feminist perspective. The call number is FM 91.1, WMUA Amherst.

★ Pouncey

continued from pg. 1

"Arms races make war" and "what we fear is what is in ourselves: the possibility that some human malice, inefficiency, or depraved miscalculation will set a chain of events in motion that will be sudden, uncontrollable and irrevocable," he said.

"I do not believe the present level of tension can be sustained much longer," he said. He said "I would hope from this small college, men and women will go out armed with awareness of human weakness and human possibility and spread their light, their decency and their sanity across the earth." Pouncey's conclusion "that is what I hope for this school" was greeted by a standing ovation.

Mitch Edelson, a 19 year-old neuroscience major, said Pouncey "will be excellent for the school. He is outgoing and friendly on campus." "There is a buzz on campus at the moment. Pouncey has brought a lot of excitement."

Pouncey received undergraduate degrees in classical literature, ancient history and philosophy from Oxford University in 1964 and a Ph.D in classics from Columbia University in 1969. He was dean of Columbia college from 1972 to 1974 and was chairman of Columbia College's Contemporary Civilization Program from 1982 to 1984.

★ nuke

continued from pg. 1

Libby Neighbor, a Cambridge high school student spoke on education and the threat of nuclear war, and Amherst College historian Henry Steele Commager discussed avoidance of a nuclear threat.

The syposium was sponsored by the area's Physician's for Social Reponsibility, the Socila Workers for Peace and Nuclear Disarmament and the School of Public Health at UMass.

"The nuclear explosion is incomprehensible," Fine said. However, astronomer Carl Sagan and other scientists have described the after-effects on life on earth, he said.

Fine said a nuclear winter would result from nitrocarbon clouds that would form after a nuclear attack and destroy the ozone layer of the atmosphere. This would allow more radiation to come through while blocking out sunlight, he said.

David Hooker, a graduate student in the School of Public Health at UMass, said the "smoke-screen" would plunge temperatures to 40 degrees below zero range "for at least three or four months before the sun comes out."

Letters to the Editor

I saw Kevin today. I had not seen him for three weeks. He was all dressed up in a suit and tie. There was not a hair out of place. I had never seen Kevin looking so sophisticated.

Yet, I was not happy to see him. In fact, it was one of the saddest days of my life.

Kevin was killed in a car accident this weekend. I don't know what really happened. I was told he fell asleep at the wheel. My friends and I assumed that he was drunk. We don't know if he was or not.

My boyfriend promised never to drink and drive again. What about our immortal drinking buddies? Will we soon forget

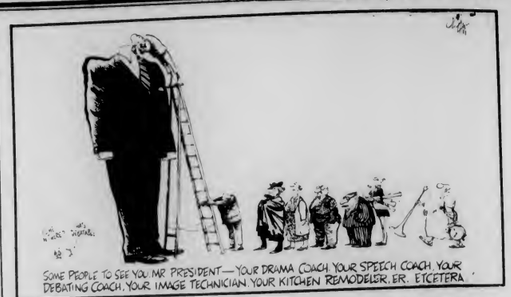
It shouldn't have to end this way about Kevin? This weekend some of us will go to a bar, get drunk and have no way to get home but drive. Drinking is a national pasttime.

Unfortunately, drinking is almost always linked with driving. What can we do? The solution is complex.

Raising the drinking age to 21 will at least keep most of the sixteen, seventeen and eigthteen year olds sober. But the best solution is on a personal level. Why not take a bus or a taxi? If you have to drive, go in one car and elect one person to stay sober so he or she can drive everyone home.

I know my friends and I will never forget Kevin. We all learned from his death. I hope others will. A wake is the saddest way to say good bye to a friend.

Spring Horne
321 Wheeler



SOME PEOPLE TO SEE YOU, MR. PRESIDENT—YOUR DRAMA COACH, YOUR SPEECH COACH, YOUR DEBATING COACH, YOUR IMAGE TECHNICIAN, YOUR KITCHEN REMODELER, ER, ETCETERA.

Filtering through the rhetoric

I find the conflict between the statements of Roger Cherwatti and Jack Bradshaw in the Collegian October 10 article "Lawsuit possible over UMass filtering system" to be disturbing.

Cherwatti, UMass Physical Plant director, said the bag-house cannot go into operation until next spring, because to hook it up the heat would have to be turned off and this would require the University to shut down. But Bradshaw, Associate Deputy of Capital Planning and Outlay, said the bag-house may be able to be turned on over Intersession.

Does he mean that the workers who usually remain on duty during Intersession should wear ski hats and long underwear, or that we will be temporarily dismissed, perhaps to the Bahamas, until the smog clears?

I can well understand the pressures that physical plant workers are up against and the frustration of dealing with governmental red tape. What I cannot understand is who got their heat turned on, why, and why a whole community was consequently made to suffer.

Today's news of the University's ongoing failure to comply with the Clean Air Act needs to be followed by a joint statement from Cherwatti and Bradshaw. If it includes specific work schedule and times tables, they may be able to clear the now very muddied air. We need to know who is really in charge and what we may expect in the ensuing months.

Gail Abbott
Secretary
Herter Hall

Read the editorial page

EVERY MONDAY 7-1
FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
NICKEL NITE
Every Other Drink 5¢
Party with Crazy George in Main Lounge
Football in Pub
RT. 9 HADLEY (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

Get the Tubby's Tingles
The Ultimate Hot Tub Spa
(413) 534-4399
Reservations Requested
Gift Certificates Available
OCTOBER SPECIAL
(Mon.-Thurs.)
1 HOUR OF HOT TUBBING for price of ½ hour with ad
Hours: Mon.-Thurs. 5-1
Fri.-Sun. 11 to 1 a.m.
Children under 12 FREE
(must be accompanied by an adult)
TUBBY'S
250 Westfield Rd.
Holyoke, Mass.

The New York Times
Best Sellers
New York Times BEST SELLERS
Fiction / Non-Fiction
1. The Fourth Protocol
2. "...And Ladies o The Club"
3. First Among Equals
4. Lincoln
5. Strong Medicine
6. Crescent City
7. Tough Guys Don't Dance
8. The Miko
9. The Acquitaine Progression
10. The Butter Battle Book
1. Loving Each Other
2. Pieces of My Mind
3. The Bridge Across Forever
4. The Kennedys: An American Dream
5. The Rest of Us
6. Hey, Wait a Minute
7. Close Encounters
8. One Writer's Beginnings
9. A Light in the Attic
10. The Wendy Dilemma
$2.00 OFF List Price
All New York Times Best Sellers
*Hardcover editions only
Open M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Monday & Tuesday
7:00 Blues Brothers
9:15 Purple Rain
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

the Hungry U Restaurant
FANTASTIC HAPPY HOUR MUNCHIE MENU!
! HAPPY HOUR !
2 for 1 all bottled beer
2 in 1 well drinks
potato skins only $1.99
3 pm - 6 pm, 9 pm till closing
7 days per week
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Practice what you preach

Two weeks ago, out-of-state students received notice of a $44 increase in tuition because of an error made by the University of Massachusetts Bursar's Office.

More than 2,600 out-of-staters were given only two weeks in which to scrape up the extra cash. For many students, this is a hardship. The fact that the bill came as a surprise makes the situation that much worse.

According to the Bursar's Office, students who refuse to pay the bill will not be administratively withdrawn or charged the $25 late fee. The $44 will, however, be added to their bills for next semester.

This is a breach of contract between the University and students, according to the Legal Services Office.

Figures released by the office last April showed that out-of-state tuition for this fall would be $2,016–$44 less thjan the August bill. Although the Bursar's Office was uncertain what the Board of Regents' decision would be, this is no excuse for billing students this late in the semester.

We urge out-of-state students not to pay the bill, and the Bursar's Office to refund the $44 to students who did pay it.

UMass is staunch and inflexible when students miss financial deadlines. Students who are a day or two late are denied housing, classes, and/or financial aid, depending on the situation. Now the administration has missed a deadline. It, too, must be penalized.

The administration preaches responsibility in meeting deadlines. It's time for them to practice it.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Students and the future

Brown University undergraduates overwhelmingly voted last week to ask their school to supply the health center with cyanide pills so students can commit suicide in case of nuclear war.

We commend the 1,044 students who supported the non-binding referendum.

Some students called the idea "sheer stupidity" while others have praised the students for caring about and thinking about the future.

In Thursday night's nationally televised vice-presidential debate, Geraldine Ferraro said the nuclear arms issue is the single most important issue facing not just Americans but all people.

The students at Brown should be praised for facing this issue and for their very clear political and moral message - We care about the future and we are concerned about it.

Despite the fact Brown's president said the University would not comply with the request, there was a victory for students there, here and everywhere.

We, here, should be proud of our counterparts at Brown for calling attention to the nuclear arms issue, and should learn from them. We must continue the dialogue they helped begin.

We must also say, in our own way, that we too, are concerned about our future. We urge the undergraduate Student Senate to pass a motion at its meeting Wednesday commending the action of Brown students.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Letters to the Editor

Voting must be a priority

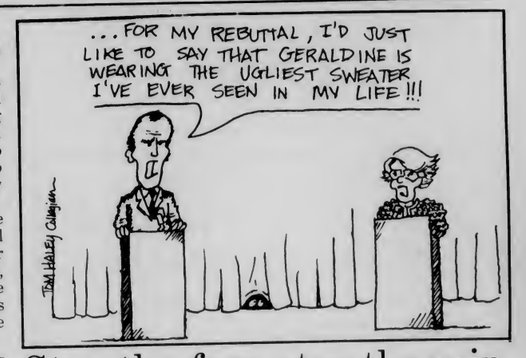
Activities and events cry out for our attention: The World Series, studying, the Presidential election, classes, etc. We all should focus our concentration on one concern; our future.

Our future as it is influenced by the election of the next President of the United States. We all should prepare for the election by reading the paper, watching the last debate on October 21, and formulating our own opinions. Take time to think through the issues. No, not the issues of who wore the most make-up at the last debate or who can win the arm wrestling contest. We should focus our concentration on the policies which can safely and best serve us in the years to come. And lastly, but most importantly, we should take time out to vote. Our future deserves to be a priority.

John J. Mehringer
Amherst

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.



...FOR MY REBUTTAL, I'D JUST LIKE TO SAY THAT GERALDINE IS WEARING THE UGLIEST SWEATER I'VE EVER SEEN IN MY LIFE!!!
TOM HALEY Collegian

Stop the fear, stop the pain

When I was a child, my father taught me to be scared of the dark. He said creatures would crawl in my bed if I did not fall asleep at once. I always lived in fear of amorphous and monsterous creature that could spring up from anywhere. But this weekend, my fear of the dark was reinforced by a greater evil.

While taking advantage of the cool, breezy autumn weather and walking home, a man--or a monster--offered me a ride. "No. Thank you," I said, for I was only five minutes from my house. "Come on sweetie, I F-good," he answered holding his penis.

At this moment, I knew I had to run for my life. But I ran not because I was scared--I'm always protected by God--but because I was defenseless.

I've been a victim of incest. I know the horrors of brutalized sex and its permanent scars, but as a woman who lost her mother at a very early age, I am defenseless.

I looked in my father for the love I lost, but he turned my love into desire to satisfy his own male ego. I feel defenseless because I can't trust the men next to me or the stranger who, according to God, is my brother.

The reason why I'm requesting anonimity is because I don't want those who know me to feel sorry for me. I've felt sorry for myself for 12 years. I want to bring my case to the open to raise more awareness and to find support and a greater commitment to STOP VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN.

But this can only be accomplished if all of us do our part.

Though I can sleep with the light on for the rest of my life, the nightmares will haunt me forever. I just pray to God that the moon shines brighter for my sisters walking home.

Editor's note: Due to the sensitive subject matter the following column is anonymous.

The Mondale predicament

Sal Assad

"Let's Nuke the Russians" approach? After all, the frivolous grain embargo was adopted by Carter.

The new cold war was initiated by Carter, and there is no recorded opposition of Mondale to the policies of his benefactors.

The fact is that every major military venture in this century was started by a Democrat: World War I by Woodrow Wilson, World War II by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Korean War by Harry Truman, and the Vietnam War by John F. Kennedy.

The fact is that Mondale is not willing to recognize that the problems in Central America have nothing to do with any "communist conspiracy", or that revolutions in those countries are results of decades opf oppression by right wing dictators supported by our foreign policy in the past.

He does not challenge the cold war myth that somehow we have a messianic and apocalyptic responsibility to destroy international communism, (a myth that has cost us 45,000 lives in Korea, 56,000 in Vietnam, 300 in Lebanon, untold misery and destruction in all of those countries who were blessed by our generous bombings and interventions).

He doesn't approach the issues with a more realistic and fresh view, challenging the basic assumptions of Reagan. He doesn't have anything new to offer. However, we all need to vote for him to put an end to the "Ronnie Horror Show."

Sal Asad is a UMass Student.

The Mondale predicament

Two weeks ago, out-of-state students received notice of a $44 increase in tuition because of an error made by the University of Massachusetts Bursar's Office.

More than 2,600 out-of-staters were given only two weeks in which to scrape up the extra cash. For many students, this is a hardship. The fact that the bill came as a surprise makes the situation that much worse.

According to the Bursar's Office, students who refuse to pay the bill will not be administratively withdrawn or charged the $25 late fee. The $44 will, however, be added to their bills for next semester.

This is a breach of contract between the University and students, according to the Legal Services Office.

Figures released by the office last April showed that out-of-state tuition for this fall would be $2,016–$44 less thjan the August bill. Although the

Brown University undergraduates overwhelmingly voted last week to ask their school to supply the health center with cyanide pills so students can commit suicide in case of nuclear war.

We commend the 1,044 students who supported the non-binding referendum.

Some students called the idea "sheer stupidity" while others have praised the students for caring about and thinking about the future.

In Thursday night's nationally televised vice-presidential debate, Geraldine Ferraro said the nuclear arms issue is the single most important issue facing not just Americans but all people.

The students at Brown should be praised for facing this issue and for their very clear political and moral message - We care about the future and we are concerned about it.

Despite the fact Brown's president said the University would not comply with the request, there was a victory for students there, here and everywhere.

We, here, should be proud of our counterparts at Brown for calling attention to the nuclear arms issue, and should learn from them. We must continue the dialogue they helped begin.

We must also say, in our own way, that we too, are concerned about our future. We urge the undergraduate Student Senate to pass a motion at its meeting Wednesday commending the action of Brown students.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

PUT US TO THE TEST!

LSAT · GMAT · GRE
MCAT · DAT
GRE PSYCH · GRE BIO
MAT · PCAT · OCAT
VAT · TOEFL · SSAT
PSAT · SAT
ACHIEVEMENTS · ACT

- Permanent Centers open days, evenings, weekends
- Complete TEST-N-TAPE facilities
- Skilled instructors and dedicated full-time staff
- Homestudy materials constantly updated by Research Experts
- Low Hourly Cost
- Transfer privileges to over 120 locations

NATIONAL MED BOARDS
MSKP · FMGEMS
FLEX · NDB · NPB
NCB · NCLEX-RN
CGFNS · CPA
SPEED READING
ESL INTENSIVE REVIEW
INTRODUCTION TO LAW SCHOOL

CLASSES FORMING NOW!
LSAT
GRE
GMAT

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
In New York State: Stanley H. Kaplan Educational Center, Ltd.

CALL DAYS, EVENINGS & WEEKENDS:
358 N. Pleasant
549-5780

JIM PLUNKETT
has a new home in Amherst
See him
Wednesday Night

ATTENTION
UMASS STUDENTS
UMASS BOWLING TEAM is looking for new members
we meet and practice
Tuesday Night at 8:30
at
NORTHAMPTON BOWL
525 Pleasant Street, Northampton
Bring a friend and come join the fun.
We compete with other colleges from all over New England
Become Part of our U-Mass Team

Halloween '84

Paints, sprays, streaks, gels, tinsels, wigs, masks, feathers, mirrors, capes, hats, etc!

Visit the Halloween Shop at FACES
downtown Amherst
Mon-Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5

HEALTH & BEAUTY SALE

MAXIMUM STRENGTH ... NEW with Sorbonyl for 12-hour all-day stopping power! OXY10
$2.49 reg. $3.69 10 oz.

Ivory Shampoo/Conditioner
$1.69 15 oz.

Crest Crest
$1.49 reg. $1.92 • regular • mint • gel 6.4 oz.

Vitamin E $2.19 100's
Vitamin C $1.09 100's 500 mg.

B & L saline solution/ sensitive
$2.59 reg. $3.49 12 oz.

foamy gel
$1.49 7 oz. regular lime sensitive

Always Maxi Pads
$2.99
30's

Sale items are also available in the Mini Store

Introducing DOUBLE MANUFACTURER'S COUPONS on all Health and Beauty Aids Products

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

M-F 9-5
Sat 11-3

PIZZA-RAMA

Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

CALL 253-3808
256-0115

FREE DELIVERY!
356 College Street, Amherst

Any Large Pizza 3 FREE SODAS (cans)
Any Med. Pizza 2 FREE SODAS (cans) When you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Small Pizza 1 FREE SODA (can) When you place your order please tell us you have coupons

THE FUTURE OF ADVERTISING

- SPEAKER: Leo Bogart, General Manager, Newspaper Advertising Bureau
- DATE: Tuesday, October 16, 1984
- PLACE: Campus Center Room 162-175
- TIME: 7:45 P.M.
- SPONSOR: Marketing Department

Arts

Daring new fiction

Vintage Contemporary series

"in some ways avant-garde"

Far Tortuga
by Peter Matthiessen
Vintage Books
408p $6.95

Dancing in the Dark
by Janet Hobhouse
Vintage Books
229p $5.95

by BRADFORD VERTER
Collegian Correspondant

The new series of of contemporary novels published by Vintage is at once conservative and daring; the books are for the most part reprints of best sellers considered in some way avant-garde.

A representative sampling includes Peter Matthiessen's beautiful book, Far Tortuga. Dealing with the turtle hunters of the British West Indies, this seafaring tale is of a tradition rare in modern novels.

As the tale chronicles the lives of the ill-fated crew, the histories of the men unravel like a tightly wound ball of string. Through their knowledge of each other, the men, like unraveled string, become so irrevocably tied as to form a Gordian knot of claustrophobic interdependency. One can only watch with fascination as the story builds to increasing psychological intensity.

Matthiessen's characterization is remarkably realistic and believable. He captures the rhythym and pattern of the Carribean dialect effectively. Although a narrative of the sea, this is clearly not a story about water, but of people.

The tale is conveyed through a series of images. Poetic and poignant, each one is a fable unto itself:

The sky is poised for the sudden dark. The swallow flutters up and down the deck, and Brown, amidships, catches it and tosses it high into the slipstream of the masts; it returns and he catches it again, and laughs. Again he throws it and again it returns; again he laughs. He casts it away, but this time the bird is caught by a wave leapt up along the hull and is sucked down and swept away into the wash.

Mattheissen's combination of old genre with new style is approached with the considerable verve the genre dictates. This makes for an ethereal and exciting book, well worth seven bucks.

Quite unlike Far Tortuga, Janet Hobhouse's work for the series is very disappointing. Despite the laudatory blurbs which envelop the book, Dancing in the Dark is a nasty little novel, attempting to be intellectual and chic in the pretentious and annoying New York manner.

The story revolves around Morgan and Gabriella Callager. We skip the boy-meets-girs, boy-loses-girl, boy-gets girl stages and start off with the boy-and girl-are-getting sick-of-each-other-and-are-looking-for-new-kicks stage.

The new kick for the Callagers is in the form of Claudio, their gay friend. Gabriella is entranced by Claudio and his frolics, while the more serious Morgan recedes from the group. A rift develops, and the book deals with the ensuing social tensions.

Some nebbish from the Philadelphia Inquirer compares Hobhouse's dispassionate account to Austen, Eliot and Woolf. At best, the book is a rip-off Francios Sagan's Those Without Shadows. Hobhouse has simply reversed the genders, and transcribed the setting from Paris to New York.

Hobhouse's depiction of New York is particularly repulsive. She litters her novel with references to all that is nouveau chic: Busby Berkley, Weimar Germany, "Morgan read his Ovid in the bath; Gabriella snaked off occasionally to Stowe", &c.

Furthermore, all the characters have multitudinous pet peeves. Gabriella is "delighted" that Caludio simply will not drink coffee unless it's expresso. Hobhouse seems easy to impress. A few idiosyncracies make a character realistic, a glut of them make the character a parodyx.

If this wasn't enough, the characters are romantically stereotyped from the New York point of view to a ridiculous extent. For example, Morgan Gabriella met at Yale; she was a chorus girl in his retranslation of Bacchae. Give me a break! There remains nothing in this book which is believable.

Throughout the book men have been a constant source of disappointment to the women. There is a message Hobhouse is trying to convey: Girls just wanna have fun, but men-the bastards-they screw it up for them Why can't they all be gay?

A silly novel by a bitter woman, Dancing in the Dark has been vastly overrated. Indeed, the best thing about the book is the cover photo.

Jazz legend Dizzy Gillespie will perform at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall on Wednesday, October 17 at 8 pm. Tickets are available at the FAC box office (545-2511), local DATATIX outlets, and the Springfield Civic Center.

artslines...

The fifth program in the series "Writers Speak: America and the Ethnic Experience" will be held on Wednesday, October 17 and 8:00 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 162 at the University of Massachusetts. The speaker will be Linda Hogan, a native American poet, author of Daughters, I Love You(1981), Calling Myself Home(1982), and Eclipse (1984), which was given honorable mention in the Western States Book Awards. Her work has appeared in the The Remembered Earth: Anthology of Contemporary Native American Literature (1978) and other anthologies. Ms. Hogan's new book of poems entitled Seeing Through the Sun will be published by the University of Massachusetts Press in 1985. "Writers Speak: America and the Ethnic Experience" is a series of the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities and is made possible by a grant from the Massachusetts Foundation for Humanities and Public Policy.

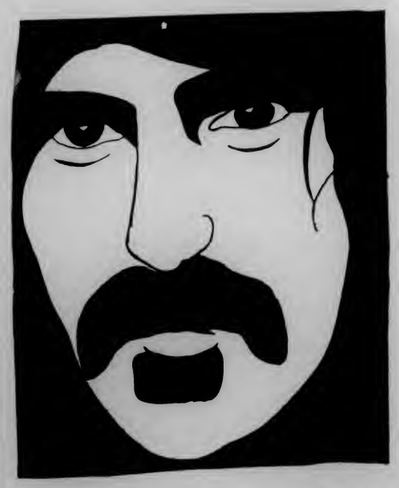
UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:

an evening with

"The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!
Tickets on Sale Wed. Oct. 17



SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students, Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Now

Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.

UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center

No cans, bottles or recording devices.

UTOPIA SPAS
Student Special
2 FOR 1
or ½ PRICE
on
HOT TUB
1 hour
every Monday and Tuesday
call for Reserations 253-7727
175 University Drive, Amherst, Mass
(next to Stadium Liquors in the Price Chopper Mall)
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues 11 am - 1 am

Hypercurricula

PREMENSTRUAL SYNDROME: FACTS, FALLACIES AND A SENSIBLE APPROACH MESSAGE: — Presented by Sharon Weizenbaum, Registered Acupuncturist, and Veda Andrus, R.N. and Nutritional Consultant as part of the Valley Family Health Alliance lecture series at the Beyond Words Conference Space, 2nd floor of Thornes Market, 150 Main St., Northampton, October 15, 7:00. Free. For information call 584-3847

ANIMAL RIGHTS COALITION — Join us for a discussion on animals used in experimentation. Help us plan for the coming semester. Newcomers welcome.
7:00 pm at Campus Center 804
Oct. 15

COALITION FOR ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY — General meeting to discuss upcoming project, our resource library, elections. We need your commitment! New members welcome
7:00 pm in CEQ office rm 306 SU
10/15/84

OUTING CLUB MEETING — Will include announcements of upcoming trips and a slide show by Steven Gilroy on the Tetons, Wind Riber Mountains and Yellowstone. Everyone is invited.
7:00 pm at CC164-175
Monday, October 15
CC804

THE WRITING CENTER — The Writing Center offers free, confidential peer tutoring for all University Students. Bring any assignment or writing project. Drop-in, no appointment necessary.
7:00 pm Pierpont Classroom, SW
Monday 10/15

BREAD AND BIBLE DISCUSSION GROUP — Dinner and open conversation on contemporary moral and political issues from a Biblical perspective. Call Robin Harden, 545-2661, if you plan to attend.
7:00 pm
10-15-84

DON'T WASTE YOUR TIME STUDYING.

For the time of your life in college, come to one of our free One Hour Evelyn Wood Seminars.
We'll show you the way to have more free time by cutting your study time in half. While you raise your grade point. There's a lot more to college than textbooks, tests, and term papers. And Evelyn Wood is the way to enjoy it.
Now's the time to make your move. Bring a friend and join us at our seminar. It's only an hour. It's free. And it's definitely not a waste of time.

Free Seminar Schedule
LOCATION: MURRAY D. LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER
ROOM 174-176
MONDAY 10/15 5:00PM AND 7:00PM
TUESDAY 10/16 12:00PM, 2:00PM AND 4:00PM
EvelynWood College Programs
Choose the day and time most convenient for you. Reservations not necessary. For more information call 1(800) 447-READ.

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

SO HOW'D IT GO, HANDSOME?
GREAT. THEY OFFERED ME THE NEW REAGAN ACCOUNT.
THE WHOLE ACCOUNT? WOW! YOU ACCEPTED OF COURSE.
OF COURSE.
GOD, YOU ARE A FAST-TRACKER! I KNEW IT! SO HOW DO YOU FEEL?
LIKE A GOOD GERMAN.
UH-OH. TORTURED-BROW TIME. NEED A SHOULDER?
GBTrudeau

Today's Weather

Breezy today with a mish-mash of sun and clouds with temperatures in the 60's. Clear tonight with lows in the 40's and tomorrow, ditto of today.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

BONK!
OFFICER, AS A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE PROTESTERS, I'D LIKE TO POINT OUT THAT WE ARE ALL DISPLAYING A FLAGRANT AND OBNOXIOUS DISRESPECT FOR CIVIL AUTHORITY.
BEING HARD CORE RIGHT-WINGERS, WE DEPLORE SUCH BEHAVIOR AND DEMAND IMMEDIATE POLICE ACTION.
BUILD THE MX
NOW YOU JUST WAIT ONE SEC--
BASH OUR HEADS! BASH OUR HEADS!!

FUTURE CALVIN KLEINS!!!
The Collegian Fall Fashion Special needs your illustrations! Get published and be a part of New England's largest college daily! For more information, call Michelle Hyde, 545-3500, or stop by the Collegian office.

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

EVERY DAY VIC LEAVES FOR SCHOOL, AND I'M LEFT HERE ALL ALONE.
SNIF!
SNARF!
SOMETIMES IT GETS VERY DEPRESSING.
BEEP! BOOP! BAAP! BEEP! BARP! BOOT! BOOP!
THE USUAL, SIR?
YAH!
THANK HEAVENS FOR PIZZA DELIVERIES AND M*A*S*H RERUNS
RADAR, WHERE'S PAPER BURNS?
IN THE NURSE'S SHOWER! L-R

Gorde — by Gorde

OOOOHH! GWAIN, SEE IF THEE CAN FIND THE COURT PHYSICIAN! THY HEAD IS KILLING ME
HEY, HE DOESN'T KNOW WHEN TO STOP KIDDING AROUND. DOES HE? ENOUGH WITH THE CAMELOT GARBAGE
UH... GORDE?
EGADS!!! THIS BE NOT CAMELOT!! WHERE IN HEAVEN'S NAME ARE THY?
I, ARTHUR PENDRAGON, KING OF BRITIAN, LORD OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE, DEMAND TO KNOW
?
?

The Lab — by Law

I DONT KNOW WHY I LET LIZBETH TALK ME INTO THIS DRAWING COURSE.
HERE COMES THE NEW MODEL. IT CAN'T BE AS BAD AS THE LAST ONE. SHE LOOKED LIKE AN OLD RUTABAGA WITH HAIR.
SHUFFLE... SHUFFLE
I AM NOT AN ELEPHANT!
SHEESH

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman

Fungus
Let's do fun things
Yeasthead takes the First, big, step Fun.
yes, fun
Later, at a large place of fun... @7:30
I'm exhausted let's go.
yes
sounds that indicate I don't care about whether or not I have fun
These guys must be on a slower emotional scale! Next: DANGER!!

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

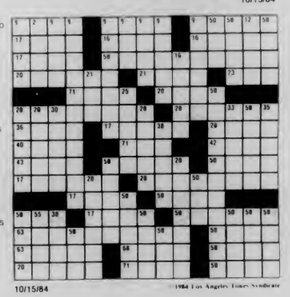
ACROSS
1 Yes follower
5 Sphere of work
9 Raccoon's relative
14 Gudrun's spouse
15 Visionary
16 Biblical king
17 RR stops
18 State of the Union
20 Squabble
22 Like Aesop's grapes
23 City trains
24 Molecule parts
26 Gov. agent
28 Track support
32 Juliet, for one
36 Put on ——
37 Unverified suppositions
39 Branchlike divisions
40 Java's neighbor
41 Ibsen character
42 —— de vajeros (passenger train)
43 At the pinnacle
44 Mountain nymph
46 Pay attention to
47 Tabby at mealtime
49 Fast walkers
51 Pelvic bones
53 SW Asian capital
54 Little, in Berwick
57 Super
59 Printer's devils at times
63 President, city or state
66 Spoken
67 Martian, perhaps
68 Ring locale
69 Tropical plant
70 Cup, in Cannes
71 Camelot character
72 Suit to ——

DOWN
1 Prepare, as potatoes
2 —— boy
3 Too bad!
4 Jackson's locale
5 Attempts on Annapurna
6 American caricaturist
7 Wiggly ones
8 Boisterous
9 Of a singing group
10 Poetic contraction
11 English composer
12 Slave
13 Namesakes of a Lupino
19 Does a slow boil
21 —— Alamos
25 Guitar's kin
27 Manitoba's neighbor
28 Inner circle
29 Rancher's rope
30 Snip's deck
31 Alleviates
33 Doughboy's mecca
34 Eastern title
35 Certain fruit features
38 Conductors concerns
44 Heavenly hunter
45 All in
48 Stritch or May
50 Country stopover
52 Viewpoint
54 "Sultan of ——"
55 Powers of Hollywood
56 Sale stipulation
58 College near Windsor Castle
60 Part of Q.E.F.
61 Wonderful
62 Blackthorn
64 "For —— a jolly ..."
65 Kimono accessory

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

P	I	A	N	O		V	A	M	P		H	A	I	R
I	N	N	E	R		I	B	A	M		A	M	D	A
P	O	S	E	S		O	L	L	A		L	E	N	O
E	N	E		O	N	L	Y		I	L	O	N	A	S
		A	N	Y	A		E	R	I		S	S	E
R	E	F	U	S	E	D		N	I	T	R	A
O	B	E	D		T	A	N	G	E	R	I	N	E	S
O	R	I	S		M	I	L		E	N	U	R	E
M	O	N	O	P	H	O	N	I	C		S	I	N	E
		S	U	E	R		S	L	E	E	T	E	D
A	P	O		M	A	E		H	E	N	S
Z	I	T	H	E	R		A	H	O	G		S	A	L
U	N	T	O		S	O	L	D		U	N	T	I	E
A	T	E	S		A	D	A	R		L	E	A	N	S
E	A	R	S		Y	A	R	N		F	O	R	T	E

10/15/84



10/15/84 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable Hot Pot
Humus Vegetable Pocket Sandwich

LUNCH
Ham Grinder
Italian Shell Casserole

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Nut Loaf/ Mushroom Sauce
Chicken Cutlet/ Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce

DINNER
Chicken Cutlet/ Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce
Roast Lamb/Gravy, Mint Jelly
Tuna Salad Plate with Chips

HALLOWEEN SAVINGS

NESTLE TOUCH OF GLITTER or COLOR GLO

$1.49

SNACK SIZE BAGS
- Hersheys (plain or almond)
- Milky Way
- 3 Musketeers
- Snickers • Reese's Cups

$1.88

LITE-UP LIGHTSTICKS

77¢ save 42¢

BRACH'S CANDY
- Candy Corn
- Autumn Mix
- Indian Corn
- Harvest Jelly Beans
- Mellocreme Pumpkins

your choice

99¢

GREAT SELECTIONS OF HALLOWEEN
Costumes/Masks/Party Needs

COVER GIRL BRUSH-ON BLUSH
$1.77 save $1.12

CLOSE-UP TOOTH PASTE
6.4 oz.
$1.29 save 50¢

PLIAGEL Cleaning Solution
0.85
$2.33 save $1.12

PHISODERM
5 oz.
$1.66 save $1.09

ST. IVES SHAMPOO
18 oz aloe or jojoba
$1.55 save 60¢

AVIATOR PLAYING CARDS
59¢ save 40¢

Archer Kent

191 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-3534

sale ends Oct. 21

THE UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND
FAIRCHILD SCHOLARS PROGRAM

A unique way to earn your M.S. or Ph.D. in electrical engineering.

Work 3 days a week at full salary; study 2 days a week under full fellowship.

Apply today if you have a B.S. (in science or engineering), the background for E.E. study, and a G.P.A. above 3.2 (4.0 scale).

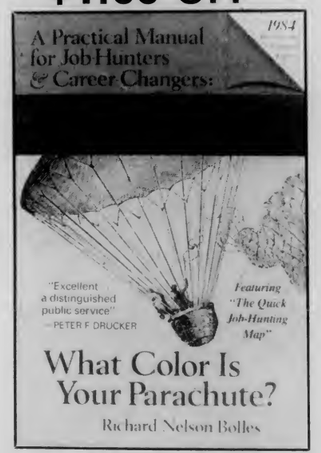
To apply, write or call Prof. Anthony Ephremides, director of the Fairchild Program, Department of Electrical Engineering, The University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742. Phone (301) 454-6199/ 6845/6871. U.S. citizenship required before employment begins.

Or contact the Fairchild Program representative when he visits your campus.

DATE OCTOBER 18, 1984
TIME 9:00 - 4:30
PLACE UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE

A Cooperative Partnership of Fairchild Industries and The University of Maryland

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF



1984
A Practical Manual for Job Hunters & Career Changers:
"Excellent a distinguished public service" — PETER F. DRUCKER
Featuring "The Quick Job-Hunting Map"
What Color Is Your Parachute?
Richard Nelson Bolles

What Color Is Your Parachute?
A Practical Manual for Job-Hunters and Career Changers
Richard Nelson Bolles

Open:
M-F 9-5
Sat 10-3

UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center

"Bless you boys", Tigers roar over Padres, 8-4

DETROIT AP - The Detroit Tigers capped a classic runaway season and captured their first World Series since 1968 by defeating the San Diego Padres 8-4 Sunday in the fifth game, as Kirk Gibson drove in five runs with two homers.

Gibson's second homer, in the eighth inning, came off relief ace Goose Gossage, who had not allowed a run in seven previous World Series appearances. Lance Parrish also homered off Gossage in the seventh inning.

The victory completed a three-game sweep of the Padres at Tiger Stadium after the two teams had split at San Diego.

The American League champions in the final game untracked a potent offense that led the major leagues with 839 runs and 187 homers during the season.

They combined the timely hitting of Gibson in this game, Alan Trammell throughout the Series and two complete-game victories by Jack Morris to dominate the Padres. Trammell went 0-for-4 Sunday, but he still hit .450 with six RBI in the Series.

The Tigers also took advantage of shoddy padre fielding and baserunning to turn a game that was tied at 3-3 into a runaway.

Men's soccer falls to U.R.I.; volleyball places second

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

A must win it was. But a win they didn't get.

And thus, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team, ranked number one in New England and 12th in the country only two weeks ago, saw its prospects for advancing to post-season play just about fade away under the Kingston, Rhode Island sunshine on Saturday as they fell to the URI Rams, 2-1.

With UMass and URI entering the game ranked fifth and sixth in New England respectively, and since only two teams from New England qualify to advance to the NCAA tournament, the game took on titanic proportions. With the loss, UMass will probably fall to the lower depths of the top ten, or maybe even out of the polls.

Although the first half ended in a scoreless tie, the team chemistry so vital to soccer success simply wasn't present for the Minutemen as URI controlled the momentum.

It was the same tale in the early second half before URI broke through at 68:03 when John Lopes, taking advantage of UMass' fullback's inability to clear the ball from the zone, chipped a shot over the head of UMass goalie Don Donahue. Less than two minutes later it was 2-0 as Jim Monteiro scored for URI.

In an attempt to comeback, UMass employed four forwards in the final 20 minutes. Several opportunities went for naught before Paul Serafino netted a goal, his third of the season, at 81:43.

UMass had several chances to tie the game in the closing minutes, but URI goalie Saal Frank held firm and time finally ran out on the game and maybe the season.

Once 5-1-2, the Minutemen have lost three of the last four games to drop to 6-4-2.

In volleyball action, the UMass volleyball team travelled to New Haven, Connecticut to participate in the Southern Connecticut tournament over the weekend.

The Minutemen started things off in pool play with a convincing victory over Rhode Island College, 15-7 and 15-2. They then faced New Haven, who happens to be the twelfth ranked team in the nation. UMass lost a tough first game in the best of three series by a score of 15-13 but valiantly fought back to take the second game 18-16.

Game three was played early the next morning, and the Minutemen couldn't adjust, dropping the contest 15-0.

A sweep of host school Southern Connecticut brought an end to pool play, and the quarterfinals began.

Central Connecticut was the first victim for UMass as they fell 15-7, 15-5. This relatively easy victory sent UMass to the semifinals against Eastern Connecticut, and like the other Connecticut schools in the tourney, the Minutemen rolled on to victory with scores of 15-12 and 15-5.

That brought UMass to the finals where they faced, one more time, New Haven. The spikers dropped game one 15-12 but, just as in their match with New Haven yesterday, the Minutemen rebounded to take game two 15-10. They were now one game away from taking their first championship in this tourney.

But it was not to be.

Men's crew rows to win

Water polo wins own tourney easily

by JOHN A. NOLAN
Collegian Staff

Last weekend proved to be a study of contrast as the UMass Crew teams passed their final tests in preparation for this Sunday's "Head of the Charles" in Boston.

The Men's team got off the line in a hurry and never looked back as they rowed to victory in Nashua, N.H. In dominating squads from MIT, Connecticut College and URI, UMass simply stuck to strategy.

We planned to row at a lower pace for the first half mile and then pick it up for the mid mile," said co-captain Steve Arthur. "But we felt so good coming into the last half mile that we decided to push a little extra."

The race began with a staggered start, each boat leaving at intervals of 15 seconds in a race against the clock. UMass was the first Varsity boat to hit the water after the start of the JV race, and after the Minutemen had passed several struggling JV boats it was apparent that the team was well on their way to a winning performance.

The outing was particularly important because it served as a tune-up for this Sunday's big race.

"This year we're much better prepared," said Arthur. "Everyone's doing a lot of extra work and we're looking to surprise a lot of people next week. Everybody is fired up."

The women, however, had a lot less to cheer about as they struggled through a long afternoon at the Mount Holyoke Women's Regatta to finish behind a large group of schools headed by Mount Holyoke and Smith College.

The day started off on a positive note with the Minutemen finishing sixth, but more importantly, only ten seconds behind the winning squad from Mount Holyoke. Their sixth place performance, however, left them out of the finals, qualifying for a consolation race instead.

Despite the support of a handful of enthusiastic Novices, the afternoon painted a more somber picture as the lack of actual racing experience showed in a disappointing third place finish in the consolation race.

"Friday was really the first time we've had a set squad," said Lisa Davidson. "It takes a while to get used to the people you row with. Not knowing where you're sitting or who you're with does tend to throw you off. But we're not too concerned now that we're set."

What was to be the championship game of the University of Massachusetts water polo tournament turned out to be nothing more than an intrasquad scrimmage, as the UMass 'A' and 'B' teams won their two preliminary games to advance to the championship where the 'A' team dominated, 17-2.

"I would rather have played another team," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth, "but at least we had some fun out there."

The 'A' team's road was a rather easy one, as the Minutemen defeated a good Boston University team 16-5, then walloped R.P.I. 25-2.

Mike Levine also contributed to this story.

How the AP Top 20 fared

1. Texas (3-0-1) tied Oklahoma, 15-15.
2. Washington (6-0-0) beat Stanford, 37-15.
3. Oklahoma (4-0-1) tied Texas, 15-15.
4. Boston College (4-0-0) beat Temple, 24-10.
5. Brigham Young (6-0-) beat Wyoming, 41-18.
6. Nebraska (5-1-0) beat Missouri, 33-23.
7. SMU (4-0-0) beat Baylor 24-20.
8. Ohio State (5-1-0) beat Illinois, 45-38.
9. Florida State (4-0-1) lost to Auburn, 42-41.
10. Miami (Fla.) (5-2-0) beat Cincinnati, 49-25.
11. Penn State (4-2-0) lost to Alabama, 6-0.
12. Louisiana State (3-0-1) beat Vanderbilt, 34-27.
13. Oklahoma State (4-1-0) did not play.
14. Purdue (4-2-0) lost to Iowa, 40-3.
15. Georgia (4-1-0) beat Mississippi, 18-12.
16. Auburn (3-2-0) beat Florida State, 42-41.
17. S. Carolina (5-0-0) beat Pittsburgh, 45-21.
18. Florida (4-1-1) beat Tennessee, 43-30.
19. Kentucky (5-0-0) beat Mississippi State, 17-13.
20. Georgia Tech (3-1-1) tied Virginia, 20-20.

Pats rebound, beat Bengals

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Tony Eason scrambled for touchdown runs of 25 and 13 yards as New England edged the Cincinnati Bengals 20-14 Sunday for the Patriots' fourth come-from-behind victory of the National Football League season.

Dominated early when rookie Boomer Esiason's two touchdown passes boosted Cincinnati to a 14-3 halftime lead, the Patriots surged a head with 3:52 gone in the fourth quarter on Eason's 25-yard run, his fourth rushing touchdown of the season.

The victory gave New England, 5-2, its first three-game winning streak since 1980. Cincinnati, which lost its first five games this year, fell to 1-6 for the second consecutive season.

The Patriots scored on their opening series on the first of Tonly Franklin's two field goals, a 20-yarder. But Esiason, who led Cincinnati to victory last week in his first NFL start, threw scoring strikes of 34 yards to M.L. Harris late in the first quarter and 7 yards to Cris Collinsworth with 3:30 left in the second.

New England began its rally on its first possession of the second half. With a third-down-and-3 situation at the Patriots' 33-yard line, Eason threw a short pass to Stanley Morgan, who raced up the right side for a 52-yard gain to the Bengal 15.

On the third-and-8, Eason evaded Eddie Edwards' rush and bolted up the middle for a 13-yard score.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498!

AUDIO

State of the art stereo system. JBL L-110 speakers with stands, Onkyo TX-30 digital receiver, JVC LP-41 turntable, quartz, with Pickering cart. paid $1600 must sell $700 Warren 546-9767

For sale Pioneer A-600 car AM/FM cassette with music search, supertuner 3. Paid $219 - must sell $100 Warren 546-9767

AUTO FOR SALE

1970 VW Beetle rebuilt engine new brake system new clutch good tires includes parts car and trailer hitch $1000 call Brenda 549-6999

1973 Dodge Charger deluxe Mechanically sound, AC, cloth interior, AM/FM cassette quadrophonic stereo, 82,000 orig miles. Very clean and dependable car. Best offer 256-8335

73 Volks fastback, runs great fuel injected $600 549-1358 David

1978 Chevy Malibu station wagon engine and body in great shape good mpg new cooling system snow tires and more call 546-9895

1980 Chevette 4-door 57000 miles good condition. Call 256-8151 after 5:30

VW "Thing" collector's item best offer Gene 323-7582

1973 Plymouth Satellite good condition must sell 900 call Wendy 253-3396

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock A Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rock A-Disc Rock A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7689

FOR RENT

2 cubic ft refrigerator R & P Package Store free delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Eagle II word processing C.P.M. Computer. $1200.00 1-533-9727

Airlines ticket to Chicago, Seattle, or Anchorage. Best offer. Call 584-5077

Technics 28 watt digital receiver 7 presets, quartz lock tuning excellent condition $125.00 546-7458

GUITAR Peavey T-60 225 Treynor amp 100 Boss heavey metal pedal 65 smallstone phase shifter 40 546-4521

LAB series LS 100w guitar amplifier great condition $375 OBO Rob 549-5316

Corduroy Couch for sale good condition call Elizabeth 549-1773

Beautiful dried flower baskets for sale. 431 Hills House North. Across from Newman Center.

Twin Mattress and Boxspring 25.00 you must take away call 549-6041

'74 Comet no rust excellent engine new transmission reliable $800 or BO tel 549-4926

FOUND

Found 2 keys 1 Volvo and 1 brass w/tag that reads Sharon call John 546-3279

Found Ring outside Brandywine Apts September 29 describe call Pam 549-5188

HELP WANTED

Overseas jobs Summer, yr. round Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields $900 - $2000 mo. Sightseeing Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

The People's Gay Alliance is looking for an Office Manager. This is a work study position, and duties will be janitorial and clerical. Drop off your name, number, and an informal resume in the PGA Office, 413B SUB. Replies must be in by Oct 16th.

Need Meals? Sorority needs kitchen help for lunch & dinner, Monday - Friday. flexible 545-2152 Kathy

Responsible mature person, 4-5 afternoons per week. Childcare for two boys ages 7 and 10, light housekeeping, meal preparation. Own car desirable. $50 + per week. Needed Mon., Tues., Thurs. 3-6 and Wed. 1-6 pm call Susan 256-1896

Office Manager for SWAG needed. Organization and governmental experience helpful. For more information call 545-0960

Artist position for Southwest Area Government available. For more information call 545-0960

Work study secretarial position available for Southwest Area Government. For information call 545-0960

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas 2 for 1 hot tub every Monday and Tuesday night call for reservations 253-7727

Utopia Spas private hot tub rentals call now for reservations 253-7727

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

Math Tutor, many 100 levels, call Joe, 665-2304, after 5 PM

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick.

Sylvan Area on Oct 4 red wallet containing essentials reward Amy 546-5917

MOTORCYCLES

Honda XL175 on/off in great condition many new parts $475 OBO Rob 549-5316

PERSONALS

Haircuts by Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-8369

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues., Oct 9 to Fri., Oct. 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3. and the 1983 INDEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

5th ANNUAL BATTLE OF THE BANDS! Deadline for applications available Nov. 2. All bands invited to apply. Applications available at the Southwest Area Government Office, Hampden Student Center 545-0960

SOUTHWEST AREA GOVERNMENT ELECTIONS Nomination papers fro SWAG president available starting October 11 at the Senate Office, 420 SUB. Papers are due October 16, 5 pm at 420 SUB. Open to all Southwest residents

Suzanna of Dickinson, Happy 19th Birthday!! (Look, no nickname) Go Wild! Love, Mike (Who has a nickname)

Happy Birthday Donna Schollerd! Boy, you're older than the night now! Hope it was fun! Tootles!

To 2nd South you guys are a treasure to me for making me feel like a person love you all me Ragida

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses on-campus low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

TRAVEL

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 student budget travel agency. Free catalog Call (617) 266-1926 or write, 729 Boylston St. Suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

Sports

All intramural volleyball and racquetball entries are due in the office (Boyden 215) Tuesday. All Foul shooting and one-on-one entries are due on Wednesday.

Richmond pounds UM, 24-7

Spiders run-up 555 yards

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

In spite of the offensive failings of the University of Massachusetts football team this seaso n most people think that the Minutemen have a solid defense.

Think again.

UMass allowed an incredible 555 yards of total offense as the University of Richmond scored a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns to whip the Minutemen 24-7 at Alumni Stadium Saturday.

"We got our asses kicked," said UM coach Bob Stull, who for the fourth time in six games tried to come up with reasons for a loss.

"They (Richmond) have a lot of solid skill players," said Stull. "But we're reverting back to our old mistakes. I thought the URI game (a 20-19 loss) may have been a turning point for us. But maybe not.

Spider tailback Greg Grooms and quarterback Bob Bleier did the bulk of the damage to UM. Grooms pounded out 195 yards on 27 carries and Bleier threw for 268 of Richmond's 299 yards through the air with a 25 of 32 outing.

UMass managed only 15 first downs and 272 yards of offense but did mange their first touchdown pass of the season for the lone score, a Bob to Jim Simeone 21 yard toss that tied the game at seven with 7:47 to go in the first half.

"We were right in this thing at halftime," said Stull. "But in the third quarter and especially in the fourth quarter their line really took it to us physically. Some of their drives seemed so long it was like a nightmare."

Richmond's first drive took hardly any time, 2:05 to be exact as the Spiders took four plays to travel 71 yards.

Grooms, after a Richmond penalty pinned them back at their own 21, scampered directly through the middle of the UM line for a 38 yard gain.

Two more rushes gained six yards before Grooms snuck behind UM linebacker Vito Perrone and gathered in a Bleier pass for a 35 yard touchdown.

The linebackers have been solid against the run all season," said Stull. "And the secondary has taken a lot of heat for the passing yardage we've given up. But they (the linebackers) are responsible for the running backs coming out and there was a clear example."

Richmond continued to move down the field at will, but the UM defense did manage several big plays. On a fourth and 1 from the UM six Grooms was stuffed by UM linebacker Dave Cavanaugh for no gain.

The Minutemen did do something offensively as Simeone engineered a 92 yard drive that was UMass' best drive of the season.

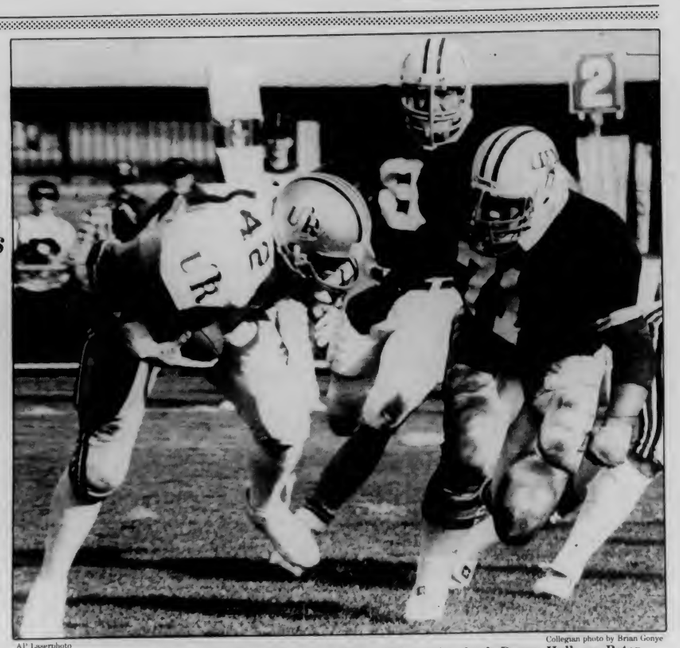
Throwing three times to Bob, and getting some production from the seldom-used Duckworth Grange (a 20 yard jaunt and ten yard run), Simeone got UM down to the Richmond 21.

For the first time this year, the much-maligned junior connected for a TD pass, lofting the ball to Bob who hauled it in at the left corner. George Papoutsidis' PAT made it 7-7. It remained that way until halftime.

The second half saw Bleier go to the passing game as big (6-5, 235) tight end John Henry caught eight passes for 80 yards. The scoring came with a Brendan Toiban field goal, a Danny Holly one yard run and a Bleier to Craig Kay nine yard touchdown pass.

UMass got no closer than the Richmond 28 when Papoutsidis missed a field goal. Barnwell completed UM's longest pass of the year, a halfback option to John Crowley.

"I wouldn't say we dominted then," said Richmond coach Dale Shealy. "But we did have a real good day offensively. They kept us from scoring as much as we should have, especially number 71 (Mike Dwyer). But Bobby (Bleier) had his best day as did Grooms. It's nice to do what we wanted to do."



AP Laserphoto — Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

UMass tackle Mike Dwyer (71) bears down on Richmond running back Danny Holly as Peter Tracy closes in. Richmond beat UM, 24-7 on Saturday.

UMass vs. Richmond

Scoring:

R: Grooms, 36 pass from Bleier. Toiban PAT
UM: B. Simeone, 21 pass from J. Simeone. Papoiutsidis PAT
R: Toiban, 38 FG
R: Holly, 1 run, Toiban PAT
R: Kay, 9 pass from Bleier. Ahnell PAT

Richmond	7	0	3	14	-	24
UMass	0	7	0	0	-	7

Statistics:

First Dowas: UM: 15; R: 24
Possession: UM: 27:27; R: 32:33
Third Downs: UM: 6-16, R: 7-14
Yards Passing: UM: 142, R: 299
Yards Rushing: UM: 130, R: 256
Total Yards: UM: 272, R: 555
Punts: UM: 7-35.4, R 3-38.6
Return Yards: UM: 0, R: 31

TIGERS WIN - Kirk Gibson pours champagne over Lance parish, right, after the Tigers beat the Padres 8-4 to win the World Series. See story page 11.

Women's soccer limps on as Minutemen beat Cortland

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Less skilled teams often resort to other tactics when they play the top-ranked teams in the country. They often just try to beat up the more-skilled squad.

The second ranked University of Massachusetts women's soccer team was pounded physically by fifth ranked Cortland State but came from behind to win 2-1 Sunday afternoon in Cortland, N.Y.

"We showed maturity in being able to comeback," coach Kalekeni Banda said. "It shows that we can do it. We are a better team.

The Minutemen raised their record to 9-1-2 but lost the services of their leading scorer freshman Jolie DePauw for at least one game. DePauw and the Dragon goalie collided in the last minute of the game.

"The goalie went for Jolie, not the ball," Banda said. "The team couldn't match us with skills so they had to revert to something else. They were hackers."

Kristen Bowsher twisted her ankle in the game but is hoped to be ready for Tuesday's match against Dartmouth. And Jamie Watson sat out this game because she was hurt in last Thursdays's Springfield game.

Cortland State took a 1-0 on a fluke goal with 13:33 gone in the first half. Defender Debbie Belkin kicked the ball back to goalie Jeanne Paul. But Belkin hit it too hard and it went past Paul and into the goal.

Bowsher converted on her third penalty kick of the year at 39:37 to knot the score. Ellen Taggart took a cross from sister Chris, playing at midfield in Watson's spot, and headed the ball into the net. A Cortland defender knocked the sure goal out of the net and a penalty shot was awarded.

In the second half, UMass began to assert themselves. Freshman Carolyn Micheel fired a 35 yarder into the net to give UMass the 2-1 lead at the 38:26 mark. "It was a beautiful shot," Banda said.

The Minutemen, who face Dartmouth at Boyden tomorrow at 3 p.m., outshot Cortland 20-4 and Jeanne Paul made four saves.

"It's going to be a tight race down the finish," Banda said.

Sports at a glance

UMass schedule:

There are no sports scheduled for today.

NUMMO NEWS

Monday, October 15, 1984 — Volume 13 Issue 5 — connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution

UMass South African Investments

By John Ruddock

An article appeared in the Sept. 7 issue of the Collegian conerning the status of UMass-corporate investment is South Africa. While the exact purpose of this letter may be said to be unclear, it may be deduced the the desired effect was to enlighten students as to the current stock that the University held in companies operating in te aparthied regime, as well as to demonstrate the willingness of the Board of Trustees to reaffirm their commitment to "divest from companies involved in South Africa". As both these objectives are indeed meritious and worthwhile, it is unfortunate to note that the article did not achieve either, to any degree of distinction. However, it is hoped that this article will lay to rest any questions or concerns that the reader might have on UMass' involvement in South Africa, thus accomplishing the objectives of the previous article.

In 1977, after much disscussion, deliberation, and student protest, the Board of Trustees voted to divest from all stocks in the companies operating in South Africa. This measure was taken only after the process of review, in which South African-related stocks were evaluated using the Sullivan Codes of Conduct. The Sullivan Principles were devised by Rev. Leon Sullivan, former Civil Rights activist, as a set of standards by which US companies in South Africa could promote racial and social equality in the workplace. These principles are seen by many South African and US activist groups as a "band-aid" remedy for racial oppression, which not only seems ineffective in combatting racism in South Africa, but actually impedes the struggle for freedom being waged by the 22 million Black South Africans who currently are oppressed by the apartied regime.

At this time te University Trustees discussed the idea that the (1977) South African related stocks be divested "within a reasonable period of time" so as to make good on thier Trustee vote. The responsibility for the investment portfolio (which the South African-related stocks were a component) was then delegated to Treasurer Robert Brand, and the entire issue of UMass' involvement in South Africa was put aside, presumably to make room for more "important" issues.

Seven years later, several students, upon making inquiries as to the current status of UMass in relation to South Africa, discovered that the University was still retaining stock investments in South Africa, several of which were among those listed in the original investment report of 1977 (see table).

	Shares	Market Value
-American Hospital Supply Corporation	1500	§48,000
-Proctor and Gamble	1600	§80,000
-Textrionix	700	§39,200
-Foxboro	1575	§50,400
-Thomas & Bett	1000	§65,000
-General Signal	2466	101,106

photo by David Walker

Juventud 77 provided the participant of BCP/AHORA Gala Celebration with the rythmic souns of Latin America. (See story on page two.)

Alarmed at the flagrant inaction of the Trustees and/or Treasurer Brand to uphold the mandate of the 1977 Trustee motion, these students formed a coalition to further research the possible ramifications of such action. The South African Divestment Coalition (SADC) began to document and verify UMass involvement in South Africa, paying particurlar attention to the economic, social, and legal implications of such involvement. After a great deal of investment research, and cross-check referencing, the SADC discovered, using eight reputed financial reference manuals, that the six stocks that UMass held were indeed investment in corporations operating in South Africa. As these documents clearly verified UMass' indirect involvement in South Africa, this laid clear the path for any strategy for divestment of the stock in question.

Upon further research and consultation with the Legal Services Office at UMass, it was determined that, due to the Trustee regulations concerning South African stock investment, which prohibits UMass corporate investment in South Africa, the actions of the Treasurer and Board of Trustees to maintain stock investment in that country was in fact an illegal action, since the Treasurer and, indirectly the Trustees themselves, violated their own statute. It must be emphasized at this point that whether this situation arised either through negligence or lack of an effective monitoring system, the Treasurer is, by the fact that he is delegated the responsibility of executing and monitoring the University investment portfolio, directly responsible, while the Board of Trustees are ultimately responsible for this action, for they are the Executive body of the University, and moreover, they were the ones who wrote the statute in the first place.

With this information in hand, the SADC began to press the University for immediate and full divestment. A letter outlining all pertinent stock information was sent by the SADC to Treasurer Brand on August 20. Five days later Brand responded to the letter by both questioning the resources that were used for the SADC investment research and to rationalize his monitoring of UMass stock investments by acknowledging that "just identifying the parent companies (of South African corporations) is a difficult job for professionals." If this ratonal is to be used, then the obvious questions arise: Why didn't the SADC, which used reference tools available to the public, encounter these "difficulties" expressed by the University Treasurer? Treasurer Brand's reluctance to divest all holdings in South Africa was based on several assertions made by him. As these assertions were made to possibly justify a lenghier divestment period, the SADC began to provide defences to these assertions, as follows:

A) The University's data does not support our findings

Since 1977 the University has used only 2 souces of information to verify South African stock investments: the South African Review Services (published by the Inventory Responsibility Research Center (IRRC)) and the investment Counsel of Standish, Ayer & Wood Inc. Yet, while the Treasurer reputed the SADC cources as not beng up-to-date, it must be noted that the SADC used the same issue of the IRRC document (1982) to verify the American Hospital Supply Investment that the Treasurer purported to use to maintain the investment porfolio. Question: Why did it take the SADC letter to alert Treasurer Brand to stock information included in his

Continued on page 3

BCP family portriat of the Western Mass Latino community, BCP staff and alumni gather to celebrate 10 years of success. photo by David Walker

Celebrating Success

by Marilyn G. Bou
Nummo Staff

The Bilingual Collegiate Program(BCP) and Ahora, the Latin student organization wrapped up thier anniversary celebration on Saturday, October 6th, with a Gala celebration. The week long activities began with a reception on the tenth floor of the Campus Center, followed in the auditorium with a dance.

AHORA was born twelve years ago out of a desire by students who sought to uplift the Latino race. The manner in which to accomplish this most succesfully, they saw, was through education. Thus the creation of the Bilingual Collegiate Program in 1974. The BCP is an academic support program which assists students in facets of their education. However, while realizing academic needs they also provide personal counseling, financial counseling and tutorial services.

There have been many people responsible for the success of BCP and AHORA. On Thursday Oct. 4, an awards night was held in honor of these contributing individuals. Thirty-seven awards were distributed.

Because of these two organizations many students have discovered different avenues, they (BCP/Ahora) support you and assist when you need guidance, said Carlos Gonzalez a BCP alumni. He continued to say, "The organizations allow you to retain your culture while helping you to adjust to a new one."

The Student Union Gallery held an exibit which was flown in for Bilingual Week. The exhibition presented different art work of contemporary Puerto Rican artists. In addition to this exhibit there was one which proudly displayed the work of many Hispanic UMass students.

BCP/Ahora's success has been so grand that they have successfully graduated over 400 students. In lui of this, a BCP Alumni Association has been formed.

Over the past twelve years Ahora has been directly responsible for enriching cultural awareness at the University and surrounding communities. I dare to say, however, that the concert of Ruben Blades and Seis del Solar on Oct. 5th in the Fine Arts Center was the one event which united the diverse Latin communities in the area.

The week was one that provided many memories for all involved. " The celebration does not only bring back the struggle waged then but also reminds us about the road yet before us", said Yadira Betances, a senior Journalism major.

Editorial

Rod Clare

Africa is the second largest continent in the world comprised of more than 50 countries. With such divergency, no one is expected to know all the different societies and cultures that exist in Africa. One country that no Black person should be ignorant of, however, is South Africa. Despite the publicity given to Communist repression, it is South Africa whose infamy is based upon fascist policies. Without a doubt, South Africa is the most malicious of all countries in the world.

Although Blacks comprise 70 per cent of the coutry's population, they do not play any significant role, nor do they have any power in the government, or power do anything that would threaten "national security".

The white minority's government sanctions apartheid, the separation of races. The majority of Blacks are being forced onto "bantustans" which are arid desert land with very little water or food and no industrialization, with the exception of very meager shacks for inhabitation. The South African government explains their policy as not being racist but one that provides Blacks with their own nations.

As a result, Blacks perform menial labor and receive the lowest possible pay, usually 1/10th of what a white worker receives. Blacks can be jailed for an indefinite period of time without a trial or any other technical legalities. Half of the Black children born in South Africa never live to age five. The South African government is so brutal and repressive that it has been said that the only fair comparison to its system is Nazi Germany.

One reason South Africa has been downplayed in the American media is because its major economic backer is the United States. U.S. companies invest billions of dollars worth of business and capitol with South Africa and billions more go to military aid and equipment for the South African government. The United States considers South Africa as a reputable friend and pledges continued support.

South Africa is known throughout the world for its two major policies; its present anti-communism and its policy of aparteid. While anti-communism is not too readily emphasized, the same certainly cannot be said for its apartheid policies. South Africa was saved from expulsion out of the United Nations by only one veto vote by the United States. People should read more about South Africa so that a firm position can be taken against white rule. This should be one issue which Blacks the world over can unify upon.

Reprinted from the September issue of "Gramma" weekly review.

JOHANNESBURG-More than 40 people have been killed in the wave of repression unleashed by the racist regime against South African blacks, reported Latin-Reuters.

While blacks were burying thier dead more clashes erupted in Katlehong, east of the city.

Racist police officials acknowledged having killed another person and said one of thier agents was critically wounded after having been attacked by demonstrators.

In the Daveytown area, some 300 demonstrators ignored a court ban on demonstrations and marched in the funeral of four students murdered by police.

Police sources reported that the hospitals were filled with wounded and that the situation remained tense in black neighborhoods around Johannesburg.

The recent demonstrations in South Africa came to protest the new Constitution, which legalizes apartheid and denies all rights to the black majority of 24 million.

Demonstrators, who met with strong army and police repression, also opposed recent economic and social measures such as rent hikes and the poor education in black schools.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Segun C. Eubanks — Editor In Chief
Marilyn G. Bou — Managing Editor
Robert Lynch — Layout Editor
Marc Elliot Giles — Photo Editor
Julian Tynes — Researcher
Lisa Viega — Business Manager
Nina Cordova — Administrative Assistant
Emmett Grady — Reporter/Photographer
Judy Russ — Typesetter
David L. Walker — Photographer

• • • Contributors • • •

Ed Cohen — Photographer
Darlene Jackson — Correspondent
Yadira Betances — Correspondent

Address all letters to the Editor to: Nummo News, New Africa House Room 103

Ras Lance Douglas, a Ras Tafarian leader and spokesman for the Theocratic Government of Ras Tafari will speak at the University of Massachusetts on Thursday October 18, 1984 at 7:30 p.m. at the New Africa House. Sponsored be Afrik-Am, a black student organization and The Five College Black Studies Executive Committee, Ras Douglas will speak on the effects of partisan political violence and economic victimization on the Jamaican poor.

"In recent years" Micheal Thelwell, a Jamaican-born professeor in the W.E.B. Dubois Department of Afro-American Studies, explained, "Jamaican society has witnessed an excalation of social and political violence of the most destructive and painful kind. The people who have borne the weight of the suffering are the poor and especially, young black people from the Ghetto. Some of the violence can be traced to the international drug trade, but most of it can be directly laid on the door of the two major political parties --one conservative and the other socialist -- which are struggling to control the country's development."

Ras Douglas represents an influential and activist group of young Ras Tafarians who operate in the ghettoes of Kingston. They have the respect and confidence of the youth because they preach against the killing and are associated with neither political party. For this reason they seem to be the only people who can move freely through the armed camps of the ghetto, from conservative areas to socialist areas. They can and do speak at first hand of the effects of this polarization on the lives of the Jamaican poor.

This Week in Black History

On October 14 ,1964 the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. He was the second Black American to receive this prestigious award. (The first was Ralph Bunche)

Love To All, Lorraine

by Segun Eubanks
Nummo Staff

The New World Theater Series began its Fall 1984 season on Saturday with a moving one woman performance by Elizabeth Van Dyke entitled "Love To All Lorraine". The play was a portrait of the late playwright and activist Lorraine Hansberry. Yet Ms. Van Dyke's imaginative and eloquent performance provided not only a look into the life of a creative, strong black woman, but the legacy, history and feelings of the Black Freedom Movement in America.

Through the portrayal of Lorraine Hansberry, Ms. Van Dyke paid tribute to such great Black leaders as Paul Robeson, W.E.B. DuBois, Langston Hughes and others. She brought forth the feelings, frustrations and contradictions of Black America as it was in the 1950's and 60's. Racism, segregation, poverty and struggle were just some of the aspects of Black American life that Van Dyke featured in her perfomance.

But of course the play was based on the life of Lorraine Hansberry and Ms. Van Dyke, who wrote, directed and performed the production, did a more than adequate job in giving the audience a close personal view of a woman who affected the history of this country more than most people realize.

The performance was set in her Study in 1964 during the last six months of Hansberry's life. Through bouts of pain she was suffering from terminal cancer, Lorraine Hansberry talked to the audience about her life, her family, her writings, and her feelings. She tells of her father, a "true American" who was "beaten down" by the very system that he believed in. And of her mother, a very feminine, yet strong woman. And of many people, such as her husband, freinds and collegues who influenced her life.

Black people had been "waiting so long to see truth on stage", she said speaking of her play 'A Raisin in the Sun'. The play opened on Broadway in 1959 and Lorraine told the audience of the struggles, interviews, successes and challenges that arose from the production which was the very first Broadway show written by a Black author.

Hansberry also told about her role in the Freedom Struggles, about her early career as a journalist for Paul Robeson's 'Freedoms Journal' and how her writings and plays such as 'Toussant', 'Les Blancs', and 'Raisin', expressed the strengh and spirit of a people struggling against oppression.

Every manner possible "from the petition to the vote" has been attempted by Blacks to gain equality, yet we are still "accused of being impatient" said Hansberry. Her challenge to white liberals who try so hard to understand the plight of Blacks but can't -"Stop being white liberals and start being white radicals."

As the play climaxed Lorraine brought out a munber of questions that many Black freedom fighters have had to struggle with over the years. "Can liberation be achieved without violence?" Hansberry asked. And if not, "Am I prepared to be a revolutionary?". She spoke of the comforts in her life and how it "has become a corruption in itself". Yet through all the conflicts, contradictions and questions Lorraine Hansberry knew, "I must continue to work. Work, work, work, work..."

After the performance a very tired Ms. Van Dyke was kind enough to take the time to answer questions and talk to the audience about the production. Why would a successful actress put all of her time and energy into a production such as this? In the words of Ms. Van Dyke; "Because I love my people".

Sports Talk

by Julian Tynes
Nummo Staff

Marques Johnson traded! In a daring move that will affect the Milwaukee Bucks, the N.B.A.'s Central Division and the Eastern Conference playoffs, the Bucks traded forwark Marques Johnson, F.G. Junior Bridgeman and center Harvey Catchings to the Los Angeles Clippers for Power Forward Terry Cummings and Guards Craig Hodges and Ricky Pierce.

This was a surprise move because both Johnson and Cummings are considered to be among the N.B.A.'s elite players. Last season Johnson averaged 20.7 points, 6.5 rebounds and 4.3 assists per game for the Bucks. In his career his averagees are 21 points, 7.5 rebounds and 3.7 assists. Cummings, going into his third year in the N.B.A., averaged 23.7 points and 10.9 rebounds his first year and 22.9 points and 9.6 rebounds his second.

With Bob Laniers' retirement and Alton Listers' anticipated move from power forward to center, Milwaukees' front line will be younger and quicker, featuring Lister, Cummings and Kenny Fields(?). The Clippers have gaind a premier small forward in Marques Johnson and a superb sixth man in Junior Bridgeman. This trade creates many questions. Will Kenny Fields (or whoever plays small forward) be able to handle the talented opposing small forwards in the Eastern Division (Julius Erving, Bernard King, Larry Bird, Dominique Wilkins, Clark Kellogg)? Who is going to play power forward for the Clippers? Are the Clippers going to get any bench strength up front? Who will be Milwaukees new sixth man (the old one was Bridgeman) and why did Milwaukee trade Marques Johnson?

Here's two tips for those making predictions on the N.B.A. Watch the Philadephia 76ers (naturally) and watch the Washington Bullets (surprise). Both teams are loaded! The Sixers picked up both Leon Wood (merely the best pure guard in the country last year) and 6'6", 280 pound Charles Barkley in the Draft. Barkley should start at power forward, with Wood coming in as the third guard. This means the sixers should no longer have any weak spots.

The Washington Bullets acquired both Clifford Robinson and Gus Williams for Ricky Sobers and a first round pick. With Rick Mahorn, Jeff Ruland, Clifford Robinson and Greg Ballard up front and Gus Williams, Frank Johnson, Jeff Malone and Rookie surprise Ricky Ross (watch him) in the back court, the Bullets are deep and dangerous!

This also means that the Atlantic Division will be very competitive with all five teams pushing for "elite" status in the N.B.A. Only the New York Knicks have failed to appreciably improve themselves on a talent level (unless you really think Pat Cummings is the answer).

The Atlantic Division and the rest of the N.B.A. will be showcased with pre-season predictions in later issues of NUMMO NEWS. Be sure to be on the lookout!

Bryant Lewis, Director of the Amherst Upward Bound Program at UMass is spyed enjoying a quiet afternoon of fishing. photo by Ed Cohen own reference material? Has the University not used its own information to verify its holdings?

Continued from page 1

B) The Directory of American Firus Operating in Foreign Countries is not a sufficiently definitive source upon which to rely. The Treasurer claims that the Directory cannot be relied upon because, "...the listings are not considered definite as the legal status of the relationship between the American firms and their business affiliates." However, the question arises: How 'definite' does a relationship have to be, when the subsidiary in South Africa carries the name, address and telephone number of the parent company? Futhermore, the University, in a gesture of good faith, divested from 20 stocks in 1977 in corporations whose subsidiaries operated in South Africa If the criteria was sufficient then, what change in the Trustee regulations justifies any further delay towards immediate and total divestment?

It is clear that Treasurer Brand's arguments are not valid. The mere fact that these arguments were presented by the Treasurer almost gives reasons to question the motives of the Treasurer himself. The legal, social and economic aspects of UMass' involvement in South Africa has been brought to light and the seven year "reasonable period of time" given for the original divestment action has gone long past. The SADC on behalf of the the student body at UMass, demands that the Treasurer IMMEDIATELY divest from all stocks held in companies and/or subsidiaries operating in South Africa. Furthermore, the SADC demands the establishments of an effective monitoring system of UMass stock investments, so to ensure the impossibility of any recurrance of such a blatant case of negligence. It has been stated that the University wishes to "reaffirm their commitment not to invest in companies who do business in South Africa". Well Trustees, the SADC wants you to now "put your money where your mouth is".

John Ruddock
Co-External Coordinator - Third World Caucus on behalf of the South Africa Divestment Committee.

Editor's Note: On October 10, the Undergraduate Student Senate passed a motion, which was introduced by the SADC and SCERA, demanding that the University Treasurer sell all stocks in companies doing business with South Africa. As of this printing the University has taken no official action to do so. NUMMO NEWS supports the SADC and SCERA in all efforts for divestiture in South African- related stocks.

Financial Aid Deadline is TODAY!

Announcements★Announcements

CULTURAL EVENTS IN THE VALLEY

On Friday, October 19, 1984 the Association of Pan-African Unity at Mount Holyoke will be sponsoring an evening of Afro-American Cultural entertainment entitled "Ufahamu". The program will commence at 8:00 p.m. in Chapin Auditorium on the campus of Mount Holyoke College. Following Ufahamu a reception will be held at the Betty Shabazz Cultural Center. We cordially invite all members of the 5-college community to attend.

Afrik-Am, the Five College Executive Black Studies Committee, and the W.E.B. Dubois Department presents "The Destruction of a Generation, a Ras Tafarian view of political violence in Jamaica today". By Ras Douglas, spokesman of the Selasseii Theocratic Government of Ras Tafarii. The event will take place on Thursday, October 18th at 7:30 p.m. in the Shirley G. DuBois Library, New Africa House, UMass. All are welcome.

The Women's Leadership Project along with the Student Government Association will sponsor the film "My Love Has Been Burning", a film by Japenese director Kenji Mizpguchi. It is the story of the struggles of a 19th century feminist. Also featured will be "No Regrets For Our Youth". This film is directed by Kurosawa. It is the first postwar attempt to portray the modern Japenese woman. The heroine expresses the need for Japan to "renew itself through respect for the individual".

Both films will be shown on October 16th in room 163 of the Campus Center. For more information please call 545-0254.

IOTA SMOKER

The Iota Phi Theta Fraternity Inc. will be holding an interest meeting on Thursday, October 18 from 7 - 9 p.m. at the Malcolm X Center in the Southwest residential area.

DATE CHANGE FOR GILLESPIE CONCERT

Jazz legend Dizzy Gillespie will appear at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall on Wednesday, October 17, 1984 at 8 p.m. rather than a week later, as previously planned.

In the early 40's along with Charlie Parker, Bud Powell, Charles Mingus and others, Gillespie originated the music which was to be called "bop". He was the first jazz musician to tour for the U.S. State Department as a good will ambassador, and now, after more than 45 years in the business, has performed in nearly every country in the world.

Instantly recognized by his bulging cheeks and his curved-bell trumpet, Dizzy Gillespie continues to delight his audiences. Accompanying him to Amherst on October 17 will be Sayyd Al-Khabyyr on saxaphone, Walter Davis on piano, John Lee on bass, and Nasyi Al-Khabyyr on drums.

Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office (545-2511), local DATATIX outlets, and at the Springfield Civic Center. For phone charge reservations, call 1-800-243-4842. Mastercard and Visa accepted.

SUPPORT GROUPS OFFERED THROUGH THE WORKING WOMEN'S PROGRAM

An Unemployed Women's Support Group will begin on October 23, 1984 and will meet on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. at the Everywoman's Center. The group will be facilitated by Betty Swain and will focus on issues such as self-esteem, overcoming stress, career goals, etc. This group will run for eight weeks.

An Assertiveness and Leadership Skills group begins on October 23, 1984 and will run for eight weeks. The group will meet on Tuesday evenings from 7 - 9 p.m. at EWC and will be facilitated by Joyce Clark.

A career Development Skills Group will begin on November 7, 1984, and will be meeting on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 -9:30 p.m. at EWC. The group will be facilitated by Jane Carey.

There will be no cost for these services, and confidentiality is assured. For more information and to pre-register, please csll Everywoman's Center at 545-0883.

All Minority/Third World students interested in Law School please leave your name, address and phone number with Carol Young in CCEBMS New Africa House. There will be a sign-up sheet posted outside her door.

PEACE AND PEACEFUL RELATIONS WITH THE U.S.S.R.

Mr. Alan Thompson, a Presbytarian Minister and the Executive Director for the National Council of American-Soviet friendship will speak about "Peace and the U.S.S.R." and will be available for a following question and answer period.

The event will take place at the Unitarian Church, 220 Main Street in Northampton at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, October 19th, 1984.

The Everywoman's Center Graduate WAGES program will be sponsoring a series of Brown-bag lunches, which will run until December 12, 1984. The informal lunches will be held every Wednesday from noon until 2 p.m. in Campus Center room 805-809. On October 17, Veda Andress will speak on "Women's Life Cycle and Nutritional Needs".

For more information about any Graduate WAGES program, contact Diane Goodman at EWC by calling 545-0883.

Conference

A week long conference entitled: "Clouds of War, Winds of Change - The United States and Revolution in Central America" will be held at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst campus during the week of October 22-26, 1984. The Keynote speaker will be Howard Zinn, author of "A People's History of the United States" and professor at Boston University who will speak on 'The History of US Intervention in Central America'. It will be held on Wednesday, October 24, 1984 at 7:30 p.m. at the Campus Center room 163.

The schedule for the weeks events is as follows:

Monday, October 22, 7:30, Red Room, Amherst College, Discussion: "Elections, Democracy and Popular Participation"-Speakers: Mel King- Rainbow Coalition; Carolee Bengelsdorf- Hampshire Co. and Jon Childs- Amherst Co.

Tuesday, October 23, 7:30, at a local church in Amherst to be announced. Discussion: "The Role of the Church in Central America" / "The Sanctuary Movement". Speaker: Jim Stormes- Jesuit Preist, UMass.

Thursday, Oct. 25, 7:30 pm CC163 Workshop: "The Militarization of Central America--Anniversary of the Grenadian Invasion". Speakers: Karen Wanza Esq.-Grenada Foundation, NY and Arthur Barisano Esq.- Lawyer's Committee against Intervention in Central America.

Friday, Oct. 26, 7:30pm CC101 Discussion: "Elections, Media and Misinformation" Speaker: Frank Brodhead, Co-editor of Radical America, and author of 'Demonstrations Elections'.

These public forums are sponsored by a Central America Coalition of various 5-college and comunity groups and are designed to provide for education, discussion and protest concerning the current administrations repressive and undemocratic policies in the region.

Films, video and slide shows about the region will be shown on the Campus Center Concourse on Oct. 19, 22 & 25th from 10-4pm.

For more information call: days 545-2145; and for press interviews with speakers call nights 586-1449 or Mauricio at 785-1251, ext. 246.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXIV, Issue 29 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Tuesday, October 16, 1984

Ferraro coming to UMass

Candidate will address rally at Campus Pond Saturday morning

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Vice-Presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro will visit the University of Massachusetts this Saturday to rally student support for her White House bid, campaign aides announced yesterday.

Ferraro, the nation's first woman candidate on a major ticket trying for Washington, will head a rally near the Campus Pond at 10:30 a.m.

This will be Ferraro's second visit to Massachusetts since former Vice-President Walter Mondale chose her to be his running mate in July. She visited Boston September 26.

UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey said Ferraro's visit shows the campaign recognizes that "Massachusetts is more than just Boston."

"They (the Ferraro campaign) have obviously recognized the importance of this university. This campus has been the sight of visits by national and international leaders over the years. I think they took that into account," Duffey said.

Ferraro is scheduled to arrive Saturday morning at Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee. She will come directly from Westover to UMass in a motorcade of the same magnitude of a Presidential motorcade, according to Ferraro aide William Maclaren.

A stage will be set up on the east side of the pond facing North Pleasant Street. Sources say all of North Pleasant Street may be closed to allow the crowd to overflow in the streets.

Some Ferraro aides estimate the crowd could be well over 10,000.

Two years ago a nuclear freeze rally drew a little over eight thousand to UMass. That rally featured Lauren Bacall, James Taylor, Governor Michael Dukakis, Jane Fonda, and Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy.

According to the Boston offices of Dukakis and John Kerry, Massachusetts democratic candidate for the United States Senate, both will be at Saturday's rally.

Because of scheduling conflicts, neither Kennedy nor Massachusetts' other senator, Paul Tsongas, will be able to attend.

The Student Government Association, the State Student Association, the Women's Leadership Project, Third World Caucus, Public Policy Committee, and University Democrats, all UMass Recognized Student Organizations, are sponsoring the Ferraro visit.

Dennis Madson, vice-chancellor for student affairs, said students were very much a part of the decision of Ferraro to come to UMass.

"There is a lot of excitement building. In fact, this campus, for the past 10 years or more, has brought major candidates here. It's a nice recognition of students. By her coming...it shows a lot of interest, a lot of support," Madson said.

AP Laserphoto

Democratic vice-presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro makes a point at a rally in Raleigh, N.C. yesterday.

UMass location, ties make political sense

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Bringing a major political candidate to the University of Massachusetts is hard enough, but when that person is potentially the next vice-president of the United States the advanced planning is oh, so crucial.

It all started about a week ago. Ferraro's schedule for this Saturday has, for a long time, included Burlington, Vermont and Bangor, Maine. Amherst is not far out of the way, and the fact that Anne Wexler, a top Ferraro advisor is also the wife of UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey didn't hurt this campus' chance of getting the Congresswoman from Queens, New York, who made political history a warm summer night last July.

When the decision was made to include Amherst in the list of possible locations for a Western Massachusetts visit, an "advance" scouting team of four was sent to the campus.

"It made good political sense for her to visit Western Massachusetts. UMass is a central location, and then when you consider Wexler, it wasn't hard to pick UMass," said William Maclaren, a member of the team.

Friday, final preparations were being made to make the announcement, but it still wasn't official from Ferraro herself. And despite campus-wide rumors circulating all weekend, it wasn't actually confirmed until 11:42 a.m. Monday when Arnot Walker, another Ferraro Advance person got off the telephone in Whitmore administration conference room.

"It's official, 10:30, Saturday, she's coming, she is coming."

The easy part has already been done. The hard part now is trying to manage potentially the largest crowd in UMass history and making sure it doesn't rain.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

BELTING IT OUT — Lead vocalist Michael Stipe of R.E.M. sings to a capacity crowd in the Fine Arts Center auditorium last night.

Woman injured by thrown beer mug

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student was struck in the face Friday when an unidentified person threw a glass mug at her on a PVTA bus, UMass poice said.

Police said the bus was approaching the bus stop near the Newman Center when the mug was thrown. It smashed through the bus window after it hit the women's face. The woman was sent to the infirmary. Police are seeking three suspects.

Police reported a car accident at 7:38 a.m. Friday at the southeast side of Alumni Stadium. A 1973 Chevrolet was found in a ditch and a blue heron, a bird that is federally protected as an endangered species, was crushed by the car, police said. The car's grill was damaged and the accident is still under investigation, police said.

Police arrested a 45-year-old Belchertown man at 12:45 a.m. Sunday and charged him with being a disorderly person and possession of marijuana. The man was arrested on the 10th floor of the Campus Center dancing in his shirt and underwear, police said.

continued on page 4

Southwest water cold

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

A mechanical failure yesterday caused the shutting down of the boiler which heats the Southwest Residential Area's water, according to a University of Massachusetts Physical Plant employee.

Operations Manager Harry Gaines said the boiler, which is located in the main power plant behind the Campus Center, was shut down about 11:30 a.m. Monday after he discovered a malfunction. Gaines said last night that a second boiler had been started immediately to bring up the necessary amount of steam to heat Southwest water.

The second boiler, Gaines said, needed six to eight hours to raise the steam level.

Southwest students were unable to take showers, and had to use paper plates and utensils at dinner in the area's three dining commons.

Inside:

Mass. closer to happy hour ban.....p.2

Gray Panther attacks Reagan program.....p.3

Tuition breaks for Trustees' children?.....p.7

"Why climb the ladder of success if you can take the elevator?"
— Career-oriented student

World and National News

Detroit Tigers fan rejoices in front of Detroit police car that was set afire Sunday night after the Tigers won the World Series.

Commission recommends Mass. ban on happy hours

BOSTON (AP) — The state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission, saying it wanted to encourage "responsible drinking," released proposed regulations yesterday that would ban "happy hours" and similar promotions in Massachusetts bars.

The long awaited action, which was supported by many bar owners, came after a series of hearings acrossthe state in which witnesses urged the ABCC to do everything it could to prevent drunken driving.

A final hearing must be held on the Proposal Oct. 25 and the plan must be approved by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis before taking effect. Dukakis has publicly said he supports the move.

"This is the gospen truth. We held hearings across the Commonwealth and there was so little opposition it was amazing," said ABCC chairman George McCarthy.

"The bars are always saying to us they're not babysitters and how do we knkow when a person is intoxicated. Common sense says that when a person has 'X' number of drinks in a single hour, they will become drunk and we're trying to prevent that. We want to encourage responsible drinking,"McCarthy said.

Under the proposal, bars would be prohibited from giving free drinks, selling more than two drinks at one time to an individual or giving reduced drinks at special times, known as "happy hours."

"All you can drink" promotions, special prices for certain groups, two-for-one specials and bar-sponsored drinking games like "chug-a-lug" also would be prohibited.

A little-noticed part of the regulations would prevent bars from serving beer or mixed drinks in a pitcher or in any container over 16 ounces.

With patrons having to pay full prices for drinks and not getting a discount on a pitcher of beer, bars probably will make more money, contributing to industry support for the move.

Jailed Bruin condemns DWI

SALEM, Mass. (AP) — "I don't condemn drinking," said Boston Bruins left wing Craig MacTavish. "That's your decision. Everyone likes a good time. And I certainly don't condemn driving."

"But when drinking is combined with driving, the results can be fatal."

MacTavish spoke to nearly 40 teen-agers in the basement of St. James Roman Catholic Church, gathered Sunday night to hear the major league hockey player who is serving a year in jail for a highway death.

"You have you whole lives in front of you," the 6-foot, 185-pound left winger told them. "I know what it's like to make a mistake."

MacTavish pleaded guilty to a charge of motor vehicle homocide in the death Jan. 25 of Kim Radley, 26, of Newfield, Maine, when his car hit her from behind on U.S.1.

The 26-year-old hockey player began serving his term in May. In the jail built in 1813, he sleeps on an army cot in a cell without a sink or running water.

MacTavish said he was nervous in his public appearance, which began a week of talks he plans to give high schoolers in Essex County about drunken driving.

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
Oct. 16
Tuesday
"KILLER COMEDY"
9:30 pm
featuring:
Brian Powers
Dana Gould
Ken Rogerson
20+

Duarte, Salvadoran rebels meet 'with hopes of peace'

LA PALMA, El Salvador — Government and rebel leaders sat down together in a country church Monday to talk about ending El Salvador's war, a historic first meeting after five years of bloodshed and bitterness. They agreed to meet again in November.

The initial, 6½-hour session in this isolated mountain town near the Honduran border produced no major breakthroughs. President Jose Napoleon Duarte called on the leftist guerrillas to take part in Salvadoran elections. The rebels called for social reforms and war-crime trials.

Afterward, Duarte told an estimated 20,000 Salvadorans waiting outside, "It was not possible to have a solution in just one meeting. But we came out of the church with a communique with hopes of peace."

Rebel negotiator Guillermo Ungo called it "the first stage of a process of talks, but there are many steps to go."

In the joint communique read by Monsignor Arturo Rivera y Damas, the Roman Catholic archbishop of San Salvador, the negotiators agreed to form a joint commission, made up of four members from each side, to study the issues raised Monday, and to met again in late November.

The crowd thronging the church plaza and surrounding streets knew it was an important moment in their country's violent history. During the closed-door talks, they cheered announcements by the two sides and waived white flags and banners declaring, "Paz y Democracia" — Peace and Democracy.

In the United States, President Reagan called the La Palma talks a "momentous event for peace in Central America."

Although both sides had expressed concern about security surrounding the talks, the meeting took place without incident.

Duarte made his surprise offer for peace talks in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly in New York on October 8. The leaders of the rebel groups — the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) guerrillas and their political arm, the Democratic Revolutionary Front (FDR) — quickly accepted, saying Duarte's invitation was a response to suggestions they made through Roman Catholic Church intermediaries.

An estimated 59,000 people have been killed in El Salvador in the past five years as the leftist guerrillas struggled againstU.S.-supported governments moving slowly from rightist military domination to democratic civilian control. Most of the dead were civilians killed by right-wing death squads.

An hour after the closed-door talks began in this town 50 miles north of San Salvador, the capital, Duarte's seven pages of opening proposals were outlined by government spokesmen on national television, and by loudspeaker to the La Palma crowd.

Digest

By The Associated Press

Immunologists win Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Three researchers won the 1984 Nobel Prize in medicine on Monday for pioneering studies in immunology that have led to promising new treatment for diseases ranging from allergies to cancer.

The awarding medical faculty at Stockholm's Karolinska Institute said the work of the three scientists already is being applied in the fight against cancer and in organ transplantation.

Niels Kaj Jerne, 73, a Dane born in London, was cited along with his West German colleague at a Swiss research institute, 38 year old Georges Koehler, and Cambridge University researcher Cesar Milstein, 57, an Argentine. The three reacted with delighted surprise to the announcement.

A Karolinska spokesman said the laureates' work is "one of the great research achievements in the 1970s, next to developments in the genetics field," for which researchers have previously received Nobel prizes.

The Karolinska professors cited the three for their work in deciphering how the body's defenses against disease work and how to manipulate them to fight disease.

Their discoveries are being used in research on mild illnesses as well as serious diseases such as cancer, severe combined immune deficiency syndrome, and the mysterious acquired immune deficiency syndrome, known as AIDS.

AP Laserphoto

CBS-TV reporter Mike Wallace, right, and producer George Crile, left, leaving U.S. District Court in Manhattan yesterday. CBS is being sued for libel by former Gen. William Westmoreland, who was the subject of a "60 Minutes" documentary alleging he falsified reports of Vietcong strength in the Vietnam war.

Family wins $360,000 for accident

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla — The manufacturer and the owner of a catamaran that flipped over in a sudden thunderstorm must pay $360,000 to the family of a girl who was killed by a shark after the capsizing, a jury has ruled.

The girl, Christine Wapniarski; the manufacturer, North American Catamaran Racing Assoication of Carpinteria, Calif. and the sailboat's owner, Daniel Perrin, shared responsibility for the accident, the jury ruled Saturday.

Three friends aboard the boat with MissWapniarski, 19, survived the 1981 accident.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Ian Polumbaum
Copy Editor Bob Burgess
Layout Technician Bruce Andrew
Photo Technician Pam Madnick
Production Supervisor Conor Plunkett
Production: Peter Forget, Maria Cahillane, BethAnne Moskov, Kate Davenport, Nancy Rivers Judy Hayden

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

LEAKBUSTER — Al Sylvester of Harlow & Barretta Roofers repairs the roof of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity yesterday. In the foreground is a conveyor belt for hoisting materials.

Gray Panther fears Reagan budget cuts against elderly

Says president 'has terrorized old people'

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

Maggie Kuhn, founder of the National Gray Panthers and internationally recognized senior citizen advocate, said last night that "the things Reagan has done and will do if re-elected strike me with terror."

Kuhn, 79, spoke to a capacity audience of people, many senior citizens of Amherst, in Thompson Hall in a leeture on "Politics, Advocacy and Aging in 1984" sponsored by the Pioneer Valley Gray Panthers and the Massachusetts Center of Aging.

She said "with further cuts in Medicare we can be sure that old people are going to be discharged earlier in a more infirm and sicker state.

"There won't even be places for them to go," she said, "because the hospitals and the nursing homes are being run profitably by very large multi-national chains that are operating those institutions not for people but for profit."

She said that "these chains are Ronnie's friends and will have a very clear say in his second term" and that if Reagan is re-elected American senior citizens "will have nothing good to look forward to."

She added "I am very worried about another attack on Social Security. Although there is meant to be a contract between the government and the people this means nothing to the President."

She also spoke of Reagan's accusations of Mondale after their recent television debate. Mondale predicted dire consequences of Reagan's policies for old people and the President accused him of trying to scare the elderly. Kuhn said, "I submit to you that Reagan has indeed terrorized old people."

"From the first time he took office he started to use scare tactics with older people," she said.

She said the only way that the elderly can survive and escape from such a situation is to "elect a president who put people first and not fascism."

When she said the "Reagan does not consider himself old because he is rich" and that he lost the debate "not because he was senile but because he didn't have his cue-cards with him," the audience applauded loudly.

Kuhn also criticized Reagan's arms policy and said that she was very concerned about the "star wars in Reagan's defense budget.

She said, "Instead of blowing ourselves to bits we could use our resources in a more positive way for the mind, the body and the spirit."

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Gray Panther Maggie Kuhn.

Maggie Kuhn began the Gray Panthers in Philadelphia in 1972 when she was forced to retire and considered herself still in her prime.

The Gray Panthers, committed to working against ageism, now has over 150 chapters, including one in the Pioneer Valley, and over 100,000 members.

The present purpose of the organization, says Kuhn, is to "look toward a national strategy of united elders and plan to have a major effect on the November elections."

Amherst police videotape DWI suspects after arrest

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Correspondent

In an effort to reduce the number of drunk driving cases that reach the courtroom, Amherst police are videotaping suspects as they are arrested.

Northwestern District Attorney W. Michael Ryan said at a press conference introducing the program that defendants might choose to plead guilty to drunk driving charges without a trial after seeing the videotapes.

Police Lieutenant David Jankowski said Friday that the system has been used "at least a half-dozen times, with no problems," since it was installed two weeks ago. He added that two University of Massachusetts students have been arrested for drunk driving since then.

When arrested, defendants are booked in a room equipped with video cameras to film the entire process, including the reading of rights, fingerprinting, search, and photographing. In addition to signs stating that they are being filmed, defendants are notified verbally.

Jankowski said that while the reaction to the program has been positive, "we'll have to see how the jury views it." Courts have ruled that videotapes are admissable as evidence, but they have not been used in western Massachusetts to any great extent.

The pilot program is a "mutual project" of the Northwestern District Attorney's office and the Amherst Police Department. Ryan chose Amherst to test the program because of "our commitment to fighting drunk driving," Jankowski said.

Ryan and Chief Donald Maia have both said that they do not feel a defendant's civil rights are violated in any way by the process.

After the tapes are used in court, they are destroyed. Prior to the trial, only the judge, prosecutor, and the defendant and his lawyer are allowed to view the tapes.

The project was funded by the District Attorney's office with money seized during drug investigations. The equipment, videotapes, and construction for the project cost $7,500. Chief Maia said that the videotape system will be used "not only for drunk drivers, but all arrests."

Maia said he hopes the program will cut down on the Amherst Police Department's court budget and allow them time to concentrate on other areas of law enforcement.

Registry offers liquor IDs today

By ILENE MORRIS
Collegian Correspondent

Northampton Registry of Motor Vehicles employees will distribute identification cards today from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Blue Wall to students who are old enough to buy liquor, but do not have Massachusetts licenses.

Three or more forms of identification are required, and a University of Massachusetts I.D. is a necessity.

Acceptable identification includes a passport with picture, birth certificate, and cancelled checks with a signature and photograph.

The Registry officers will also be in the Blue Wall on Oct. 24. A similar registration and distribution of liquor purchase cards was held last fall and according to Inspector Joan Grueling, 120 cards were given out per day.

Grueling said yesterday that the registry sponsors the two day event "for the convenience of UMass students because alot of student can't get to the registry."

Grueling also said the process should take 15 to 20 minutes if all runs smoothly.

A registry officer will be assisting students in this process along with officers from the Amherst and UMass police departments.

Draft, charge and Social Security cards will not be accepted. Nor will health insurance papers or vehicle registration.

Reproductive Awareness focus of presentation tonight

By PETER MENTOR
Collegian Correspondent

The president of Catholics for Free Choice and a Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives will speak tonight at Reproductive Awareness Night in the Student Union Ballroom.

Catholics for Free Choice President Janet Gallagher will speak on Catholic positions on abortion and free-choice.

"I want to talk about the history of different positions," Gallagher said. "I will point out the separation between church and state, and how Catholics work within the church to change the hierarchy."

Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives Mary Wentworth will speak on the importance of her campaign on the issue of reproductive rights, Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom spokesperson Kim Nissan said.

Wentworth is concerned with the "law of access" that would include money for the poor from Medicaid funding, and post-natal programs, such as school lunch and daycare, Nissan said.

Wentworth is campaigning against the anti-abortion voting record of incumbent Silvio Conte, she said.

The night will also include two films, "Matters So Fundamental" and "It Happens to Us."

" 'Matters' " is a slide show that shows both sides of the abortion issue," Nissan said. "It gives both the pro-choice and anti-choice objective."

Nissan said "It Happens to Us" is "more humanistic." "It is a documentary that deals with illegal v. legal, medically-safe abortions," she said.

Guest speaker Gallagher will open the event at 7:30 followed by the two films and Mary Wentworth who will speak at 9:00.

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

SCOPING THE SCENE — Interior design major John Kells looks through surveying scope outside Machmer Hall yesterday. Looking on are civil engineering students (left to right) Dan Adam, David Sengalang and Adam Wishnow.

You can't afford to overlook this!

★ Special Student Membership ★

★ REDUCED RATES ★
★ COMPLIMENTARY VISIT ★

Leaving the area in January? That's no problem at the Hampshire Fitness Center.....

Join now and take advantage of our 7-month Student Special. Your membership will run from October-December and from February-May in conjunction with your academic year.

Not leaving in January? Take advantage of our other membership options.

What better time to take advantage of this healthy offer and start looking good and feeling great! Call or stop by today!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER featuring

- Indoor Olympic-size Pool
- Tennis
- Nautilus, Olympic, Universal & Free Weights
- Jacuzzi, Whirlpool
- Saunas
- Snack Bar
- Individualized Fitness Programs
- Special Medical Programs
- Computerized Fitness Evaluations
- Nutritional Counseling
- Swim & Tennis Lessons & Clinics
- Massage Therapy

CONVENIENT HOURS: 7 days/week Mon-Fri 6am-10pm Weekends 8am-9pm

Limited to the first 100 students!

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CENTER
GATE HOUSE ROAD HAMPSHIRE MA
256-6446

More transportation sought as needs of disabled grow

The Handicap Transportation Demonstration Project, which provides transportation for disabled citizens, is seeking money from the Pioneer Valley Transportation Authority (PVTA) and the town of Amherst to buy another van and continue the service.

The project had to refuse more than 150 rides when the need for service increased. "Transportation is a major struggle with disabled people," said Sal Colbert, coordinator for the Handicap Transportation Demonstration Project.

In January 1984 the PVTA began financing a transportation service for disabled people under 60. The service will be funded for one year, until permanent arrangements can be made, said Colbert.

The number of disabled people using the service to go to and from work has increased from 136 in August to 239 in October. Also, many students at the University of Massachusetts have been able to take advantage of this service.

"It not only has provided disabled people with transportation to and from jobs, it has encouraged them to seek employment," said Colbert.

In September, the Handicap bus in Amherst started at 75 percent capacity. The bus then expanded service to residents of Hadley and the greater Northampton area, and ridership increased 15 percent. Rides had to be denied because of this increase, and included handicapped people needing transportation to and from places of employment. "Some people looked for jobs, and then requested rides that we couldn't give them," said Colbert.

★police

continued from page 1

A stolen 1977 Ford was recovered by police in lot 63 at 9:56 a.m. Friday. Police said the car was stolen from Amherst some time last week and the owner was notified of the recovery.

Police reported four car stereo thefts from vehicles parked in UMass parking lots:

— A 1977 Saab was broken into Friday afternoon, causing $1300 damage and the loss of a stereo valued at $500. Theives gained access by breaking the side window and there was extensive damage to the dashboard and steering wheel, police said.

— Four speakers, a cassette deck and an equalizer, total value $375, were stolen from a 1965 Ford parked in the lot at the Fraternity-SororityPark Saturday. Police said there are no suspects.

— An AM/FM stereo cassette deck valued at $325 was stolen from a 1982 Volkswagen, also parked next to the stadium. Police said the theft took place sometime between Tuesday and Friday and was reported Frida.

A hit-and-run accident at the southeast corner of Stadium Drive caused an undetermined amount of damage to a 1983 conversion van.

Police received the report at 3:06 p.m. Saturday and there is a description of the motor vehicle that left the scene, police said.

A hit-and-run accident in lot 25 cause $200 damage to a 1980 Renault, police said.

Study Abroad Fair

Discover opportunities to study overseas for a year, a semester or a summer

Wednesday, October 17, 1984
Campus Center
Concourse, 10 am - 3 pm

IPO

For further information contact International Programs Office 249 Whitmore Administration Building • Tel. 545-2710

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
• Includes Mounting • plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wahlidas's Store
549-4704

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

PEACE CORPS
PEACE CORPS
INFORMATION SESSION
TODAY, October 16th
Rm 122 Draper Hall
7:00 PM. . .General Info. . .
Slides. . .Former Volunteers. .
Refreshments. . .

COUPON-COUPON-COUPON
FREE 16 OZ. SODA
with purchase of whole sub.
the sub
11 A.M. TO 2 A.M. / 7 DAYS
33 E. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST / 549-5180
The Kick Off
expires 10/12/84

UTOPIA SPAS
Student Special
2 FOR 1
or ½ PRICE
on
1 hour HOT TUB
every Monday and Tuesday
call for Reserations 253-7727
175 University Drive, Amherst, Mass
(next to Stadium Liquors in the Price Chopper Mall)
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues 11 am - 1 am

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
JOIN US!
TUES. COMEDY NIGHT 9:30 PM 20+
WED. Movie Nite 8 PM 18+ Lip Sync Contest
THURS. Dancing 8:30 - 12:30 20+ 8 pm mug nite

Challenger radar experiment involves UMass professor

By ROB HOCHSCHILD
Collegian Correspondent

Kathryn Sullivan's spacewalk, a giant step for womankind, was the media highlight of the space shuttle Challenger's recent nine-day mission, but there is one University of Massachusetts professor who has a hand in seeing that the journey will have great scientific importance as well.

Dr. Keith Carver, head of the electrical and computer engineering department at UMass and administrative leader of the shuttle's radar project, predicted that his group's research would be "quite a success."

As chairperson of the NASA Science Working Group for the Imaging Radar project, Carver led a steering committee that selected 44 teams of researchers to make initial interpretations of the data collected by the shuttle's radar.

Composed of a transmitter, receiver and antennae, the imaging radar device (SIR-B) bounced microwaves — a form of radiation with wavelengths longer than those of visual light waves — off the earth's surface to gain information about structural details of the planet.

"We have a better appreciation for the dynamics and scientific processes of nearby planets other than our own," Carver said, "but with the wide, broad view (provided by SIR-B), we can begin to get a more global perspective of earth."

A computer will process the radar data into photographs by integrating the deflection and strength of microwaves returning from earth to the shuttle-mounted SIR-B.

Carver said the main objective of studying the images was to increase knowledge of the earth's surface in five different areas of scientific interest: archeology, geoscience, hydrology, oceanography, and vegetation.

While this information will help scientists reach new conclusions about earth's nature, it will also act as a springboard for other radar projects.

"Our long-term objective is to use the data to fine-tune these radar sensors and improve methods and equipment to be used in future research of this type," Carver said.

"We have a better appreciation for the dynamics and scientific processes of nearby planets other than our own."
— Keith Carver, UMass/NASA

Though SIR-B's data collecting devices were working well, occasional technical problems with its machinery resulted in scientists receiving one-fourth the amount of information Carver originally hoped for.

But Carver said two years of computer processing will be required to produce images from all of the data that was produced.

Carver came to UMass after fifteen years on the faculty of New Mexico State. He began work on the SIR-B project in 1981, when he was program manager of radar remote sensing systems at National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Carver said he prefers the view of earth from space as opposed to low altitude aerial observation because it "enables us to study the earth as a system."

"The feel-good movie of 1983." Richard Corliss, TIME MAGAZINE
How much love, sex, fun and friendship can a person take?
THE BIG CHILL
In a cold world you need your friends to keep you warm.
R
October 17th
Campus Center Auditorium
5, 7, 9 and 11
$1.50 for 5 and 7 $2.00 for 9 and 11

TONIGHT
KICK OFF LOUNGE
"Everyone Else's Beer Mug Night"
Bring along any other establishments Beer Mug for a
35¢ DRAFT
12 oz limit
BRUINS vs EDMONTON
9:30 P.M.
No Cover
Lower Level of Justin Ryans
Corner of Rt 9 and University Drive

Bruno's
- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

THE FUTURE OF ADVERTISING
- SPEAKER: Leo Bogart, General Manager, Newspaper Advertising Bureau
- DATE: Tuesday, October 16, 1984
- PLACE: Campus Center Room 162-175
- TIME: 7:45 P.M.
- SPONSOR: Marketing Department

Letters to the Editor

The perils of misinformation

Once again the columnist Peter Dow has displayed his ignorance of the Central American conflict, defending Reagan's pliey toward Nicaragua, a policy which defies all respect for international law and moves aggressively toward war and greater global insecurity.

Dow may refuse to enlighten himself but I cannot bear his ignorance to be perpetuated on campus through lies and non-sensical statements as in Thursday's column. Misinformation is a dangerous practice of this administration and Dow eats it up. Many international sources claim the U.S. is preparing for a full-scale invasion of Nicaragua and Dow calls for arms. Should we wait until the bombs are dropped, leaders assassinated and tens of thousands dead before we question the motives and the propaganda proposing such a course of action?

The U.S. never supported the Sandinista's revolution. We empowered the Somoza dictatorship in the 1920s, who kept its power by repressing opposition with murder, torture and rape. We supported this all the way. Since the revolution, the administration has exerted all possible economic and military power short of all-out war to crush the reconstruction, discredit the Sandinistas and subvert the government. $1.5 billion has been spent in the last two years without even declaring war. That will come with re-election. This reactionary police shows how threatened the administration is by a successful revolution for the Sandinista's is a symbol of hope for people in other nations struggling for liberation and North Americans desiring a more just and peaceful world order.

Will this approach resolve the conflict even if successful? Is war a sensible way to lasting peace? Economic injustice and social inequality is the root of the conflict, which began before Fidel Castro and the USSR existed. Reagan's and the Pentagon's plans must be thwarted and their lies dismantled. Work for peace.

Michael Guarino
Southwest

Puffing away is no smoking matter

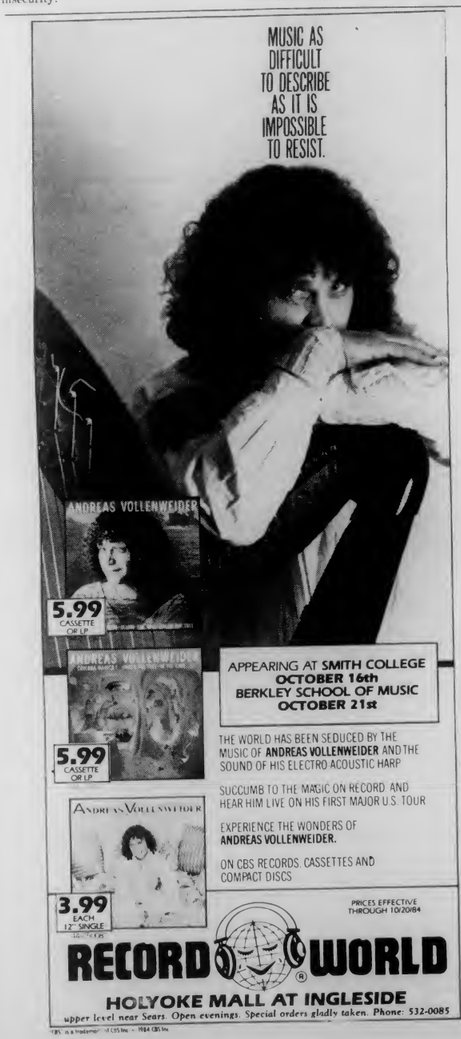
This letter is addressed to the smoker in the Hampden Dining Commons whom I encountered last week, and others like him.

These people apparently feel that it is their right to smoke in the non-smoking section of the dining commons.

Many people, smokers and non-smokers alike, are irritated by the smell of smoke when they are eating. It is for this reason that non-smoking sections were put in the dining commons in the first place. People who wish to smoke after they eat have the rest of the dining commons to smoke in. When I asked you to put out your cigarette or move to another section of the dining commons, I was not trying to be obnoxious; I was asking you to have courtesy for other people.

I hope you and others like you realize how foolish you look when you blatantly refuse to put out a cigarette in the non-smoking section of the dining commons or any other restaurant, for that matter. Furthermore, I hope you realize how much of a lack of character it shows not to be courteous for other people. Lastly, I hope that someday you respond in the same vicious manner to the wrong person; then maybe you will be taught a lesson you should have learned a while ago.

Jessica LaMontagne
Amherst



MUSIC AS DIFFICULT TO DESCRIBE AS IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO RESIST.
ANDREAS VOLLENWEIDER
5.99 CASSETTE OR LP
ANDREAS VOLLENWEIDER
5.99 CASSETTE OR LP
ANDREAS VOLLENWEIDER
3.99 EACH 12" SINGLE
APPEARING AT SMITH COLLEGE
OCTOBER 16th
BERKLEY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
OCTOBER 21st
THE WORLD HAS BEEN SEDUCED BY THE MUSIC OF ANDREAS VOLLENWEIDER AND THE SOUND OF HIS ELECTRO ACOUSTIC HARP
SUCCUMB TO THE MAGIC ON RECORD AND HEAR HIM LIVE ON HIS FIRST MAJOR U.S. TOUR EXPERIENCE THE WONDERS OF ANDREAS VOLLENWEIDER.
ON CBS RECORDS CASSETTES AND COMPACT DISCS
PRICES EFFECTIVE THROUGH 10/20/84
RECORD WORLD
HOLYOKE MALL AT INGLESIDE
upper level near Sears. Open evenings. Special orders gladly taken. Phone: 532-0085

JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place

JIM PLUNKETT
has a new home in Amherst
See him
Wednesday Night

How to civilize 7a.m.

The schedule may be less than civilized, but you don't have to be. Try a warm cup of Café Francais. Smooth and creamy-light, it's a nicer way to meet the morning. And just one of seven deliciously different flavors from General Foods® International Coffees.

GENERAL FOODS® INTERNATIONAL COFFEES
AS MUCH A FEELING AS A FLAVOR

Available at: University Store ©General Foods Corporation 1984

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor	John O'Connell	Black Affairs Editor	Yadira Betances
Business Manager	Andrew May	Women's Issues Editor	Rebecca Thatcher
Business Manager	Elizabeth Young	Arts Editor	Christine D. Marini
Production Manager	Mark Roden	Sports Editor	Peter Abraham
Executive Editor	Rita Murphy	Photo Editor	Andrew J. Heller
News Editor	Greg Brown

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted

Too good for us?

The University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees will reconsider a two-week-old decision to give the four top UMass executives money for their children in private colleges and secondary schools.

On October 3, in Amherst, the Trustees voted an $11,500 raise to UMass President David C. Knapp. They also agreed to provide Knapp and the chancellors of the Amherst, Boston and Worcester campuses an amount equal to tuition and room and board at UMass/Amherst for a maximum of four years for each child under 25 attending a private college or secondary school.

This motion is an embarrassment to this university, particularly considering the increase in tuition the Trustees voted last spring for students on all three UMass campuses.

The interest on UMass trust funds should not be used to pay for the University employees' children to attend private institutions.

If those four people who would benefit from this plan believe the quality of education at UMass is below their standards, then either they should help to increase the quality of education or get off the UMass payroll altogether.

We need University leaders who are wholeheartedly committed to public education, not leaders who will take University money to send their children to private colleges.

The Trustees should publicly apologize to every student and parent who has signed a check for tuition and fees for a public education for this outrageous decision and then they should immediately repeal that decision.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

BUMNORTH LEADS A DIFFICULT LIFE.
HERE IN THE REAL WORLD HE GETS NO RESPECT WHATEVER. NOBODY WANTS TO KNOW HIM. HIS NEIGHBORS SHUN HIM. HIS CAR POOL LEAVES WITHOUT HIM.
BUMNORTH CAN'T REMEMBER WHEN HIS WIFE WASN'T YELLING AT HIM.
THE FAMILY DOGS CANNOT STAND HIM.
NEITHER CAN HIS OWN AWFUL CHILDREN.
HIS ONLY COMFORT IS HIS WORK.
THIS IS HIS REFUGE. HERE HE IS NO LONGER INVISIBLE.
HERE HE IS A MAN AGAIN!!
BUMNORTH HERE'S FRYING ME THE PERCOLATOR AND BUSH FILES!
IRS AGENT BUMNORTH BEGINS THE DAY...

Is America really better off?

Andrew M. Paven

The line in 1980 was, "Are you better off now than you were four years ago?" In round one of this year's presidential debates, President Reagan modified that line to: "Is America better off now than She was four years ago?"

The answer Mr. President, is no.

According to statistics released by the non-partisan U.S. Census Bureau, family incomes in 1983 were lower in all income groups, than they were in 1980, the last year of Jimmy Carter's presidency.

These statistics, released last month, were compiled by interviewing 48,000 households that were selected and weighted to insure geographic, racial and population balance. If political polls can be accurate by interviewing as few as 500 persons, there can be little doubt as to the veracity of these statistics. (To account for inflation, all figures cited below were adjusted to 1983 constant dollars.)

The losses have not been evenly distributed among the population. The rich have fared better than have black families.

While the median income of all families dropped 3.3 percent (from 25,418 in 1980, to 24,580 in 1983), predictably the richest half of America's population suffered less than did the poorest half.

In fact, while the median income of the richest half of America's population dropped 1.1 percent, the median income for the poorest half of America's population dropped 7.1 percent between 1980 and the start of 1984.

Is America really better off, Mr. President?

Also, while the median income for both black families and white families fell during Reagan's presidency, black families' income dropped twice as much as did white families.

In 1980, the median income for white families was $26,484, in 1983 it was $25,757, a loss of 2.7 percent. But black families' median income dropped from a 1980 level of $15,324, to a 1983 level of $14,506--a drop of 5.3 percent.

Is this progress Mr. President?

Since 1980, according to the Census Bureau, 1.4 million people fell below the official poverty line, an increase in 23 percent.

What's more, between Jan. '82 and Jan. '83 alone, 900,000 people fell into poverty, bringing the total number of people in our advanced society who live in poverty to a staggering 35.3 million or 15.2 percent of the population.

Of those 900,000 who fell into poverty in 1982, 325,000 of them were children under the age of six.

The re-election commercials tell us that 'It's springtime again in America." But what of those who froze during the winter, Mr. President?

Another figure from the Census Bureau, for those who would dismantle the Great society for out Nation's good: In 1983, the poorest families, i.e. those in the lowest fifthe of the population, received the smallest share of total income since the year 1961.

President Reagan complains that this kind of statistical analysis is unfair because the figures above do not take into account such non-cash Federal benefits as food stamps and Medicaid, they do however take into account cash benefits such as Social Security and pensions.

And though the President claims that during his administration the outlay for basic poverty programs has risen, not fallen, and thus the poor have not suffered under his policies, a Boston Globe article yesterday points out that spending increases during the Reagan administration are "attributable either to normal growth in broad-based benefits programs such as social security or to the huge increase in the number of people needing aid because of the (1982) recession."

The Globe article also points out that had he not been blocked by Congress, the budget cuts would have been much deeper than they were. For instance, the food stamp program expenditure has risen from $11.2 billion three years ago to roughly $12.5 billion in 1984. But, had Reagan had his way, federal assistance to the program would have been nearly $1 billion lower.

Mr. President, the Reagan-Bush campaign commercials tout "Leadership that's working." I think we are entitled to ask, For whom?

Andrew M. Paven is a Collegian Columnist.

Educate yourself, America

John Bean

You call yourself educated?

Then you must have made some effort to learn about what your government is doing in Central America, right? You haven't? Then you're like most students at this "liberal" institution.

Now I know, I know — you have a lot of things to worry about like studying, tests, what to wear, what kind of beer to drink tonight. Believe it or not there are more important things in life. As the younger generation in this country, you have an obligation to yourselves and to the rest of the world. You have to be aware of what your elected leaders are doing with your money.

At the turn of the century, growing U.S. businesses needed new markets. They went to Central America and found abundant resources, low taxes, and most of all, cheap labor. To insure the safety of these new U.S. interests, your government established dictatorships backed by ruthless militaries. Along with the elite of each nation, U.S. businesses controlled the vast majority of the land and wealth. The rest of the population, over 90 percent, was impoverished.

Well, over the years the people have said to hell with it. Revolutions, much like ours of 200 years ago, succeeded in establishing governments which were sympathetic to the people, not Gulf Oil or Bank of America. The most successful of these, in Nicaragua, has educated the people, fed them, clothed them, and given them decent medical care.

Of course the U.S., leader of the free world, supports this, right? Wrongo! You see, Big Business runs this country, and a government of the people would never allow them to be exploited. Ronald Reagan wants to please Big Business; damn the people of the Third World.

Members of the military which was defeated have formed a guerrilla army, the contras. Billions of your dollars go to supply them with food and weapons. Do you know what they do? They go through peasant villages in the mountains. They destroy crops. They destroy schools. They destroy hospitals. They murder and mutiliate entire populations in the name of democracy.

I don't expect you to change your views because of what I say. I only ask that you get off your ass and find out for yourself. There are movies and lectures representing both views, shown on campus all the time. Instead of watching T.V. Thursday night, go to the Progressive Film Series in the Campus Center. Ed Asner, "Lou Grant," lost his job because he did things like narrate a movie on Central America; the least you can do is go see it. Also, I invite anyone who goes to the series to write an editorial, whether you agree with the film or not.

Please don't go through life ignorant of such an important issue. If you can't take an hour or two to form an educated opinion about issues like this, don't vote. You're only cheapening our democratic system, and embarrassing yourself.

John Bean is a Collegian correspondent.

Letters to the Editor

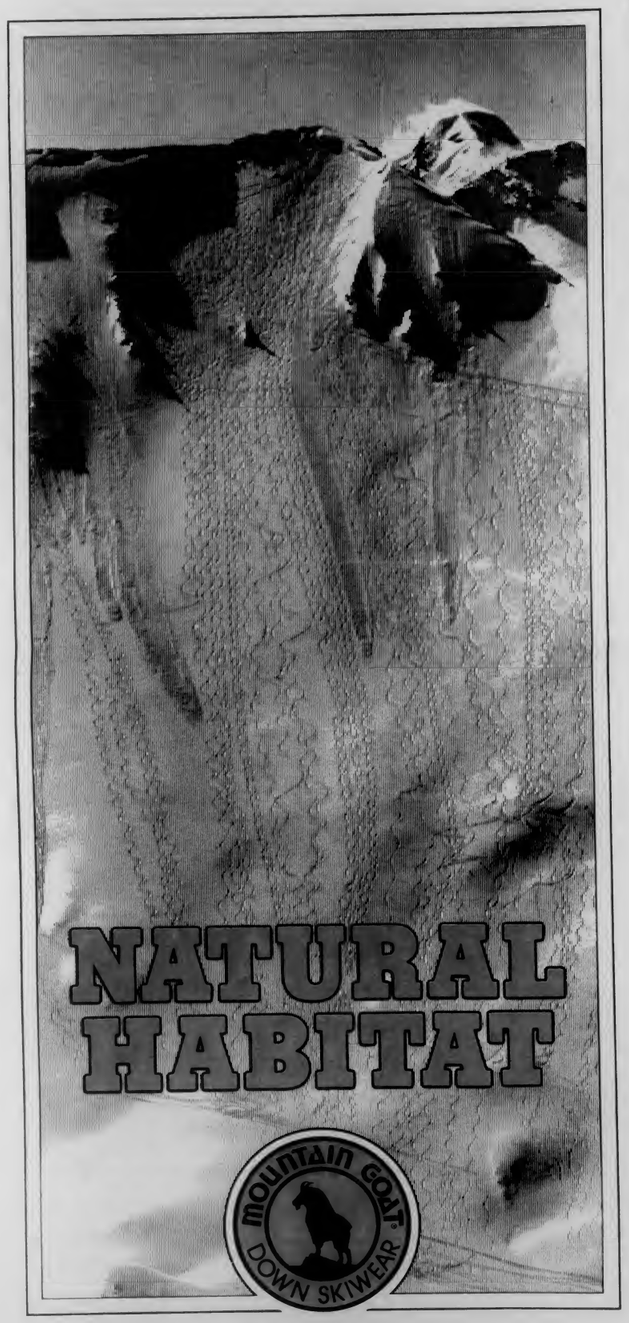
Graduated, but still fighting red tape.

It's been five months now since I "graduated" from the University of Massachusetts, and I have yet to receive a University diploma. Since I was travelling all summer, I was not concerned; I assumed my diploma would be waiting for me when I returned home. It was not. When I called the University in early September to find out the status of the situation, I was informed that "the girl who does diplomas is sick, but they should be out by the beginning of the week." I have waited a month. When I finally called the University this morning (at great expense due to my distance from Massachusetts), I was told that diplomas "take three to eight months to complete." Eight months? Funny, it didn't say anything about an eight-month wait in the brochure I received before transferring to UMass.

It's bad enough that we don't get our diplomas at graduation like every other proper university in the country. I know for a fact that institutions as large as or larger than my illustrious alma mater manage to get the students their diplomas on graduation day. They even call out the students' names at graduation — imagine that! The University of Massachusetts cannot be bothered to do these things; as a result I did not attend my graduation. My parents could not see the point in driving for six hours from New Jersey to sit in a stadium for two hours and not see me graduate, and I was in complete agreement. I was left feeling that I had not graduated or completed any course of study at all, but I figured that once I received my diploma I would have that sense of completion.

If I ever do receive this document, it will certainly have lost a great deal of its meaning as I have already been working at my first job (as a newspaper reporter) for a month now. The longer the delay, the more anticlimactic and meaningless the whole thing becomes. UMass is a good university, but it loses quite a bit of its credibility when it can't even get diplomas to its graduates within a reasonable length of time. I worked hard during my years at UMass (not to mention the thousands of dollars I paid in out-of-state tuition), and I know my fellow graduates worked hard as well. We all deserve better.

isa Borders
Millville, NJ



Hypercurricula

WMUA PROMOTION STAFF MEETING — Meeting for all staff members and whoever is interested in promotion (advertising and publicity) and fundraising. Non-members welcome. 7 p.m. CC 178.

VIETNAM: A REAPPRAISAL — Professor Guenther Lewy will discuss the topic of his book, The American Experience in Vietnam. Open to everyone. 7 p.m. CC 101.

GENERAL MEETING — ALPHA ZETA — The meting will be held in Rm. 911 Campus Center. All members urged to attend. 6:30 p.m.

REPRODUCTIVE RIGHTS AWARENESS NIGHT — Mary Wentworth and Ranet Gallagher will speak on the issue of abortion. Also two films, "Matters So Fundamental" and "It Happens To Us" will be shown. 7:30 p.m., Student Union Ballroom.

INVESTMENT CLUB MEETING — Several companies will be proposed and voted on. Also, money for the New York trip will be collected. New members welcome! 7 p.m. S.B.A. 111.

BEYOND WAR — A new way of thinking. An informational meeting concerning the growing humanistic approach to world peace. Help build a world beyond war. All are welcome! 7-9 p.m. Jones Library (upstairs), Amherst Center.

LESBIANS, BISEXUALS, GAY MEN, AND HETEROSEXUALS ALLIES SPEAK OUT — on the heterosexist discrimination we have witnessed and experienced. Come share your stories and support. 9:30 p.m., Commuter Collective Lounge (across from the Hatch).

PEACE CORPS INFORMATION SESSION — An information meeting to discuss the Peace Corps, application process, suitable candidates. Slides, returned volunteers, discussion period, refreshments. Please join s. 7 p.m., 122 Draper Hall, UMass.

THE FUTURE OF ADVERTISING — Leo Bogart, Executive Vice President and General Manager, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, will discuss the ways in which advertising is expected to change in the next several decades. 7:45 p.m., 162-175 CC.

ACADEMICAFFAIRS MEETING — Discussion of th General Education Proposal and the status of a University Academic Grievance procedure. 4 p.m., check blackboard in 420 SUB.

LUNCH WITH THE RABBI — Special guest : Jay Berkovitz, Judaic Studie faculty, speaking "On Being and Orthodox Jew in a Secular University." Bagels and cream cheese provided. 12:30 p.m. Suffolk Room (SUB 301).

UPC GENERAL MEETING — Now REM is over, we have Zappa work to do! Come and get involved. New members welcome. 6:30 p.m., Thompson 102.

JAZZ CONCERT — The UMass Jazz Ensemble I and The Chapel Jazz Ensemble appear together for the first time in a free concert of big band music. 8 p.m. Bowker Auditorium.

Come and Enjoy

a dramatic reading of Aristophanes
The Clouds
at Lounge
Amherst College

The reading will be performed by both faculty & students

on Oct. 18, 8 PM

TUESDAY

RACK-A-VIDEO ENTERTAINMENT
presents
Giant Ten Foot Screen -

Video Music
D·A·N·C·E
Party

Experience our new menu. • Latest Video Releases • • 9 til 1 •

THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST. /AMHERST /MA
413-549-1200

Arts

U2-The Unforgettable Fire
Island Records--1984

By ADAM BRIGHTMAN
Collegian Correspondent

I know why cynics have and will continue to jump all over this record, panning its relative obscurity and inaccessibility. They see the slowing down and broadening of U2 on "Unforgettable Fire" as a softening effect.

In my eyes, U2 has evolved in genuine avant-garde form. Producers Brian Eno and Daniel Lanois transform what was aggressive, crisp, choppy and clean into a more droning sound with depth, richness and beauty.

U2's last album, "War," worked on the premise of its choppy aggressiveness and clash in textures, while "Fire" works on the smoother premise of its drone. It reaches highs and lows, but it is more rational, making it more of a seamless whole.

Earlier albums were dominated by the electricity of the fast songs and dragged a bit in slower territory. Beginning with "War" and coming to the fore in "Fire," the slow songs sport more thoughtful songwriting and a richer, more mature sound.

"Fire" also seems more a group effort than past albums would indicate. Now, the Edge's guitar is a more rhythmic and melodic tool than a spotlight instrument. Despite this, he still brings forth bursts of energy and chilling growls within the new sound.

Larry Wallis, Jr.'s blasting, African-flavored drumming now comes forward, while not being necessarily louder in the mix. Adam Clayton's bass now rumbles more deeply and forcefully in the background.

Lead singer, Bono, really comes into his own on "Fire." He whispers, flies, bucks, calls, and responds while carrying most of the melody. Bono's wild, challenging style recalls the chills I used to get from Robert Plant, especially during "Wire," one of the few fast ones on the record.

The lyrics, all by Bono this time, exhibit intelligence but are not intellectual. His words seem momentarily confusing, but consider that Bono is a practicing Christian. When he speaks of love, he is referring to his love of God. This quality realized, the music seems to take on a compelling vitality. I can hear him drawing strength and unity from his love.

In "Bad," Bono says to let go of desolation, desperation, condemnation, separation, isolation, and fade away. Another title, "Elvis Presley and America," while lacking a lyric sheet for clarification, is melodically and musically intriguing.

The album achieves something like Roxy Music did, utilizing forward thrust of the rhythm coupled with guitar and synthesizer drone. "The Unforgettable Fire," while not carrying the flag of peace so triumphantly and aggressively as on previous efforts, is still a success on the level of its musical exploration, its textural beauty, and its pride in the name of love. And they mean it.

University Jazz Ensemble I (above) will share a free concert with Chapel Jazz Ensemble on Tuesday, October 16 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Streisand Sings It Electric

By JULIE BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

It is always thrilling to see new directions travelled by seasoned artists, and Barbra Streisand is no exception. Her new LP Emotion is a smooth integration of the classic, pure Streisand ("Clear Sailing," "Best I could," "Heart Don't Change My Mind") and the pop/rock atypical Streisand sound of "Time Machine," "Emotion," and "When I Dream."

In describing these ten new songs to myself, it was the beat,the beat to which I kept coming back. Never before has Barbra cut an album with such extensive use of percussion, electric guitars, and electrical instrument arrangements. Being accustomed to the classic Barbra, I have to admit it was a surprise, but this is really what I was ready for--more songs along the lines of "Enough is Enough" and "The Main Event."

From a duet with Kim Carnes, "Make No Mistake, He's Mine,"--a women's version of the male rendition of "The Girl is Mine" by Jackson and McCartney, to you're a Step in the Right Direction," a very upbeat song written by John "Cougar" Mellancamp and Streisand, Barbra is giving each song her particular flair for balance, meaningful lyrics, and most of all--vocal strength and emotion. Thus, the record is appropriately named for its song, thematic content and vocal intonations.

Without a doubt, the crowning achievement for the album is "Left in the Dark," which embodies all Streisand's strongest qualities. The song is brimming with the emotional and sexual expression of a woman who has been left by her lover. In the beginning, the song is backed by strong reverberating echoes which is followed by beautifully creative piano/pop/rock orchestration.

Emotion is a refreshing achievement for Barbra as it does not cling to an old style nor does it leap headfirst into an inappropriate genre. It is a very carefully sewn patchwork of past and present style, lyrics and music, acting performance and emotional experience. All of this and the pure joy there is in hearing Barbra sing well makes Emotion a truly total fulfillment of the expectations we have come to have of her.

Read the Arts page!
You won't regret it.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE'S
HAMLET
Directed by Richard Edelman ♦ Performances Oct. 19, 20, 21 and 25, 26, 27, 1984 at 8 PM ♦ Kirby Theater ♦ Tickets Available Starting Oct. 8th ♦ Box Office phone 542-2277 ♦ Open 1-5 Monday Through Friday ♦ General Admission 4 Dollars ♦ Students and Senior Citizens 2 Dollars Thursday and Sunday Dollar nights
Presented by Amherst College Department of Theater and Dance

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

PUT US TO THE TEST!

LSAT · GMAT · GRE
MCAT · DAT
GRE PSYCH · GRE BIO
MAT · PCAT · OCAT
VAT · TOEFL · SSAT
PSAT · SAT
ACHIEVEMENTS · ACT

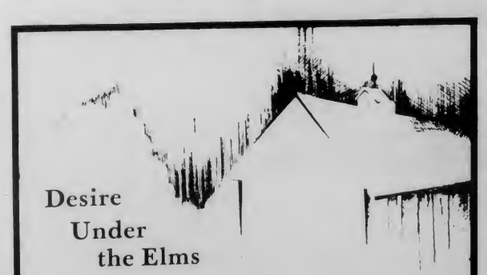
- Permanent Centers open days, evenings, weekends.
- Complete TEST-N-TAPE® facilities.
- Skilled instructors and dedicated, full-time staff.
- Homestudy materials constantly updated by Research Experts.
- Low Hourly Cost.
- Transfer privileges to over 120 locations.

NATIONAL MED BOARDS
MSKP · FMGEMS
FLEX · NDB · NPB
NCB · NCLEX-RN
CGFNS · CPA
SPEED READING
ESL INTENSIVE REVIEW
INTRODUCTION TO LAW SCHOOL

CLASSES FORMING NOW!
LSAT
GRE
GMAT

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
In New York State: Stanley H. Kaplan Educational Center Ltd.

CALL DAYS, EVENINGS & WEEKENDS:
358 N. Pleasant
549-5780



Desire
Under the Elms
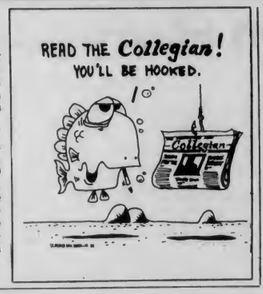
by EUGENE O'NEILL
October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

ERIC'S
GIANT SUBS
Freshly Sliced Meats
Eat In or Take Out
BREAKFAST
Beef Stew, Soups, Chicken and Seafood
Try Us and See. . .
IF THEY AREN'T THE LARGEST TASTIEST SUBS IN THE AREA!!!
Rt 9 253-9521 314 College St.
Monday-Friday 6:00 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday 6:30 am - 3:00 pm

ARTSLINES

On Tuesday, October 16, CBS recording artist Andreas Vollenweider will perform with his quartet at John M. Greene Hall at Smith College. The performance which starts at 8 p.m. will include Vollenweider's specially altered electronic harp compositions including his latest, "Pace Verde."

Two Japanese films, My Love Has Been Burning and No Regrets for Our Youth will be shown on Tuesday, October 16 at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 917 at the University of Massachusetts. These films are presented as a part of the Women's Film Festival sponsored by the Woman's Leadership Project and the Student Government Association. Films are free and open to all. For more information call 545-0254.



MOLLY'S

ANTIQUE & VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
MON-SAT 10-5
413-549-6446

READING PILING UP ON YOU?

Don't get left behind because there is "too much to read."

We'll show you how to:
- Raise your grade point average, and have more free time for yourself.
- Read 3 to 5 times faster and with better comprehension.
- End all-night cramming sessions.
- Do all your studying in 1/2 the time it's now taking you.

Attend a Free Introductory Lesson
- Increase your reading speed dramatically on the spot.
- Learn about advanced study techniques.

Today And Tomorrow

COME SEE US TODAY!

Would you like to get out from under all those books?

SCHEDULE OF FREE LESSONS

LOCATION: MURRAY D. LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER

TUESDAY 10/16 12:00PM, 2:00PM AND 4:00PM - ROOM 174-176
WEDNESDAY 10/17 2:00PM, 4:00PM AND 6:00PM - ROOM 917

EVELYN WOOD READING DYNAMICS

Black Affairs

Black economics book reviewed by professors

Professors from the University of Massachusetts and Hampshire College gathered last night at Hampshire College for a critical review of Lloyd Hogan's new book, Principles of Black Political Economy.

Discussants were Samuel Bowles, Economic Department and John Bracey of the Afro-American Studies Department both from UMass and Stanley Warner of Hampshire College's Social Science Department.

The book deals with the current particular of the economical diversities of Black people in the United States. The book also tries to look at the story of the Black social reproduction in their important contributions allowing them to conclude that there can be no other way for Blacks but to go up in the economic world.

Bowles said he liked how the author addressed the subject of people as the means no the end. He said he could identify with the factor of the "Us" and "Them" in the book. "As a white person I found no problems reading the book and applying it to me and situation that exists in the world today."

Bracey said Hogan's reason for having "Black economy" in the title rather Ithan general economy was to acknowledge the fact that Black economy has been and is still egnored by white economic scholars.

Bracey said the book was the first of its kind to give a sound political point of view of the black economy. The one criticism Bracey had was that Hogan failed to recognize important Black scholars that have made great contribution to the field such as W.E.B. DuBois.

"I could not speak from the Historian point of view, but, I want to let the Historian fill in the blanks, Hogan said.

"I have written my book in such a way it can be applied to any profession in life. In my book I tried to look at the system in the sense that the vision system gvie way to a new system."

HARD AT WORK — A glimpse at campesino students taking advantage of Nicaragua's literacy campaign.

Anti-Racism Team to meet

By KIMBERLY BURGE
Collegian Staff

Due to the urgency of race related incidents at the University of Massachusetts during 1980, the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) formed an anti-racism team to educate the public on the issue of racism.

The team will have an introductory meeting for prospective members tonight in Room 902 of the Campus Center.

"The purpose of the team is to raise people's consciousness at two levels: the education and the political," said Dave Martin, a team member. On the educational level, the team is trying to teach people about racism and its effects on society, he said.

The team also does political advocacy work on racism cases, Martin said.

In the past, the University has been inaccessible to minorities mainly because of the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT). Studies have shown that the tests are unfair to minority students because they gear their questions toward the upper middle-class white students. The University, which judges future applicants on the basis of their success or failure on the tests, is reinforcing institutional racism.

An article and an editorial in SCERA's newsletter The Advocate, addresses the issue and gives some examples of racism at UMass.

One of the example cited was about "a black resident assistant who was arrested for setting one of the fires at Crampton after F.B.I. specialists concluded that a note allegedly left by the arsonist was written by a person of color."

SCERA's anti-racism team have planned some events to further their cause. "We are updating the filmstrips that we use in dorm workshops to help students become more aware of racism. There is also a possibility that we will be doing a film series and networking with other groups to promote anti-racism," said Cris Chamberlain, a team member.

Diane Deer, also a team member said there might be an open house at the end of the month to bring together students and organizations concerned with the issue of racism.

Martin said their goal will be accomplished "If we can reach one person and help them learn about themselves and society and inspire them to better society for everyone."

Leaders to discuss problems

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Third World students throughout the New England area will convene at a conference at the University of Massachusetts on October 27 to discuss similarities and differences as student leaders in the experiences faced at predominantly white institutions.

The conference will also allow students to exchange information on the state of affairs fo the Third World community in 1984 and to explore political choices for the November presidential election.

The theme of the Third World Student Leadership Conference is Focus on Leadership: Coalition Building and Unity.

The keynote address will be delivered by Playthell Benjamin, political advisor for the National Fight Back Labor Organization in New York City.

Ambassador Oumaru Youssofou, the Organization of African Unity's representative to the United Nations, will be the principal speaker.

Dr. Marvin B. Scott, vice president of the Black Media Coalition will lead a workshop on mass media problems and Frankie "Jay" Sims, a program manager at WNAS in Anderson, South Carolina, will preside over a broadcast production and techniques workshop.

Additional workshops include Africans and Afro-Americans in international politics, housing discrimination in college towns and mentacide: inferioration of Afro-Americans and minority students, among others.

Sherwood Thompson, director of the Office of Third World Affairs said, "the conference will present students the alternatives and systems of education they can use to grow and develop leadership skills."

Students, faculty and staff of the Five College community are "excited," about the conference, Thompson said. Responses from students from Rhode Island to Vermont have been "tremendously overwhelming," he said recommending interested people to register by October 21.

The conference will show students in a "big picture" how extra-curriculum activities can translate to community involvement in their career goals, he said.

Thompson said student leaders on campus are "highly trained and experienced." Activism can be increased if one shows students how their career objective can be focused in an organization, he said.

The conference will attempt to show students from all majors how they can become pro-active, Thompson said.

"It will show students no matter what their interest or what their career in life is, they should remember to contribute to the community which they come from," he said.

The conference is sponsored by the Office of Third World Affairs, the Third World Legislative Caucus of the Student Government Association and the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and other minorities.

For further information about the conference, please call OTWA at 545-2517 or 545-2544.

The Black Affairs page of the Collegian has changed its Wednesday section to Tuesdays so that we can bring the UMass Third World community a more timely coverage of the news pertaining to the community. The Friday section will remain the same.

The Woman's Leadership Project cordially invites all members of the Third World Legislative Caucus to a reception in the WLP office, 416 of the Student Union Building at 5:30 today.

Minority women must keep community and job abreast

By KIMBERLY BURGE and YAIDRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Third World working women should affirm the neccessity of a community life and redefine professionalism for a greater mobility in the career world, according to the keynote speaker at a minority women's conference at Springfield Technical Community College on Saturday.

"Remember to take the community with you," said Reverend Robin Harden, Protestant Chaplain of the United Christian Foundation at the University of Massachusetts, to 70 women.

There is a need for a social self as well as a private self, the Reverend said. She added one needs a mask when dealing within a job context, "but what you have on don't change what's inside you."

Reverend Harden said the corporate structure is not pro-community, women nor minority, therefore minority women are in the corporate world but "not of the corporate world."

The day-long conference attempted to identify and develop minority women's personal strengths as they face new challenges through various workshops.

The Political Realities of the 1980s and the Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action workshop taught its participants to know the process and not be reluctant to use it. They were also to become more politically active.

"What the Future Holds For Women" presented by Cheryl Stanley, an academic advisor at the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and other Minorities (CCEBMS) at the University of Massachusetts, centered on career changes and where most of the jobs for the future are.

"The majority of jobs are in the southwestern part of the United States," Stanley said. The city of Houston is aperfect example of economic growth. There are many jobs available in Houston, but housing is scarce and the cost of living is very high.

There aren't many jobs available in New England because companies are moving to where the people are and the tax structure in Massachusetts is too high for most businesses.

However, there is some good news for New Englanders, she said. Our region has the best colleges and universities in the country. Therefore, it is easier for New Englanders to move around from job to job and its also easier for us to establish contacts in the business world.

Stanley stressed that self-assessment is "the most important thing before you can find a job."

"There are two levels of networking: informal and formal. At a formal network, people meet and list resources. At an informal network, people use resources and actually make contacts," Nancy Medina a social worker at the Department of Social Services explained.

Networking lets you in on the secrets in the business world and can make your organization successful, she said.

"You are already superwomen. You're doing something very super," said Dr. Wilesse Comissioning, a writer's agent at Callie Pearl International Syndicated Features in Sunderland.

Commissioning was impressed with women managing both a career and a home at early stages of their lives.

"Don't let the media be your guideline to assess what you're doing," she told women at her workshop. "You must continuously validate yourself and say 'you're super and you're doing something now'."

With the territory of motherhood comes guilt," she said adding although a child did not ask to be born, mothers deserve a life also.

She said mothers should take toll on mental, physical and emotional health for you to become a better person.

"Find out what gets you sane and go after it relentlessly and guiltlessly."

Many participants felt the conference was a success.

"I thought everything went extremely well. The planning committee was really satified,"said Connie Askew, Chairperson of the Planning Committee.

"The conference as a whole was terrific. However, I felt that the networking workshop could've been much better," said Estelle Early one of the women who attended the conference.

"Overall, the conference was very good. The workshops were very informative and many resources were available. There was a lot of networking done," said Hermenia Grayson of Horizons XXV, Inc.

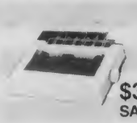
PRINTER SALE

EPSON LQ 1500
- 200 CPS Dot Matrix
- 67 CPS Letter Quality Mode
- 15" Carriage & Tractor Feed
- One Year Warranty

$1395
SAVE $255

COMREX CRIII
- 23 CPS Daisywheel
- 15" Carriage & Tractor Feed
- Cut Sheet Feeder

$795
SAVE $200



PANASONIC KX1091
- 120 CPS Dot Matrix
- Friction & Tractor
- Switch Selectable Letter Quality
- EPSON Protocol

$369
SAVE $180

OLYMPIA RO
- 13 CPS Daisywheel
- Friction & Tractor
- Parallel & Serial Interfaces
- Sound Absorbing Case

$399
SAVE $300

DYNAX DX15
- 13 CPS Daisywheel
- Parallel Interface
- Interchangeable Printwheels

$439
SAVE $160

all prices include ½ box reg. paper, extra ribbon

- SALE ENDS NOV 3, 1984 -

Computer Works

228 TRIANGLE STREET, AMHERST 549-7133
OPEN MON.-SA 10-6

SPORT Style

HOODED SWEAT SHIRT 21.95

2 pockets
polyester/cotton

white w/grey
or white w/blue

S-M-L-XL

photo by Dwayne Autery

MATCHING SWEAT PANTS 16.95

2 pockets

available in grey or blue

Josie

Mon-Fri 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in
The Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!
Tickets on Sale Wednesday

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:
an evening with

The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Now

Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.

UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Doonesbury

By Garry Trudeau

HOW DID IT GO? WELL, LET ME TELL YOU. FIRST, I MISSED MY TRAIN AND I WAS AN HOUR LATE. THEN MY OFFICE WASN'T READY. THEN THE RECEPTIONIST MADE A MAJOR PASS AT ME.
THEN, TO TOP IT OFF, I WAS INFORMED THAT MY FIRST ASSIGNMENT IS TO PREPARE A REAGAN CAMPAIGN SPOT AIMED AT BLACK VOTERS. CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?
NEVER MIND THAT THE WHOLE IDEA IS PREPOSTEROUS. WHAT REALLY WORRIES ME IS THAT I ACCEPTED. THAT I'M ALREADY BEGINNING TO LOSE THE COURAGE OF MY CONVICTIONS.
DOES IT WORRY YOU, TOO, J.J.?
NOT NEARLY AS MUCH AS THE RECEPTIONIST.
GBTrudeau

Today's Weather

TODAY: Mostly sunny, highs between 60 and 70.
TONIGHT: Clear, with patchy fog and lows around 40.
TOMORROW: Look for rain—you won't find it; it'll be sunny and mild again.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

HELLO?! POLICE?! I'M STUCK UP HERE WITH THE STUPIDEST PROTESTERS! DO SOMETHING! QUICK! THEY'VE BEEN INGESTING HUGE QUANTITIES OF CONTROLLED SUBSTANCES!
ARGH!
Revolution
THERE'S...THERE'S LITTLE FAT JANE FONDAS CLIMBING ALL OVER MY FACE!! CLAWING AT MY EYES... YANKING ON MY NOSE!!
WATCH IT! THE FLOOR!...IT'S...IT'S ALIVE! A WRETCHED MASS OF WRIGGLING, WRITHING NUCLEAR FREEZE-NIKS!
I'M A FROG! I'M A FROG!
HURRY! THEY'RE FREAKING OUT ON STALE HEINEKEN!!

UMass Zone

By Mark Rollins

UR.F... UGH...
IF I CAN JUGH'S JUST CLOSE THE DOOR..
KLIK!
WHEW!
harman/kardon CD391
PRESS PLAY...
MURDER, MURDER, MURDER, MURDER, THEY, THEY, THREE THERE HAS TO BE AN EASIER WAY TO DO THIS.

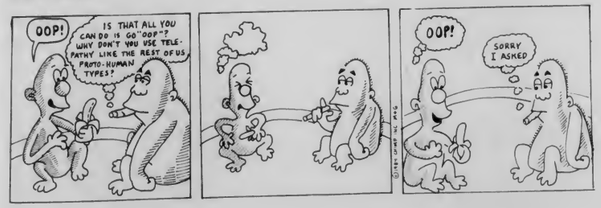
Gorde

by Gorde

AT THE DINING COMMONS...
GWWN, WHAT BE THIS FOUL MEAT?
"CHICKEN, PUCKS," MY LIEGE
AMAZING. EVEN WHEN HE'S SOMEONE ELSE, GORDE'S STILL COMPLAINING ABOUT THE FOOD.
BUT HE'S NOT GORDE. THIS CAN'T GO ON MUCH LONGER, MAN/GO
GORDE, MAN, YOU GOT TO SNAP OUT OF IT. YOU'D LOOK BAD IN A STRAIGHT JACKET.
HA HA HA HA HAH
JELL-O, MY LIEGE?
JELL-O?

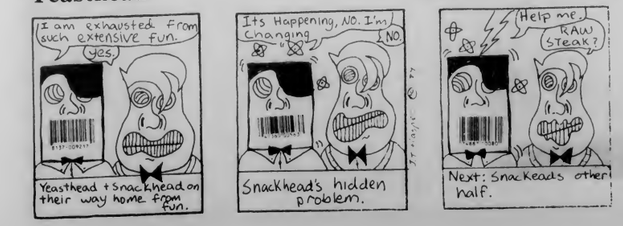
The Lab

by Law



Yeasthead

By Jason Talerman



FUTURE CALVIN KLEINS!!!

The Collegian Fall Fashion Special needs your illustrations! Get published and be a part of New England's largest college daily! For more information, call Michelle Hyde, 545-3500, or stop by the Collegian office.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

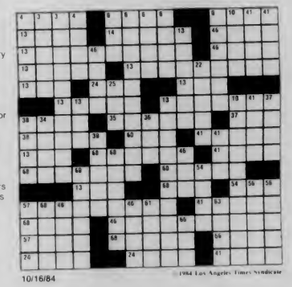
ACROSS
1 After all others
5 Uppity one
9 "Garfield" and kin
13 Feverish symptom
14 Nether region
16 Major or Minor
17 The front office
19 Tree for a partridge
20 Point of view
21 Wall-floor connector
23 Gal of song
24 Actress Irving
26 Universe
27 Sopping wet
29 Gets a notion
33 Docket entry
35 Kaye and Thomas
37 Royal title: Abbr
38 Beginning
40 Witty remark
41 Small furrow
43 Way to take: Abbr
44 Easy gaits
47 Pig or poke follower
48 Means of entry
50 Networks
52 Threefold Comb. form
53 Established value
54 Insecticide, for short
57 Fonda film
62 Glowing coal
64 Silvers
65 Relax
67 Man, for one
68 Editors' orders
69 Sacred chests
70 Kind of feet or shoulder
71 Existence
72 Trial run

DOWN
1 Tibetan holy men
2 Guam's capital
3 Beach necessity
4 Shade of blue
5 Haggard title
6 Insipid
7 Concert halls
8 Gazzara and others
9 Roof feature
10 Neighborhood
11 St. Petersburg resident
12 Orange-red stone
15 Stabilize
18 Mod's wardrobe
22 Beatify
25 Prefix with night or day
28 Balmoral's river
29 Translates
30 Like an old rug
31 Lake Indian
32 Herring relative
33 Enterprise: Abbr
34 Pillar part
36 Cambodian Lon
39 Recipient
42 Double: Prefix
45 Deserves
46 Red, Black or White
49 Fashioned
51 Shipping allowance
55 Office stations
56 Assignation
57 Heroic tale
58 Oh, yes
59 Threshold
60 See 56 Down
61 Augments (with "out")
63 Protein source
66 Follower: Suffix

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

M	A	J	A	M		A	R	E	A		C	O	A	T	I
A	T	L	I		S	E	E	R		H	E	R	O	D
S	T	A	S		C	A	L	I	F	O	R	N	I	A
H	A	S	S	L	E		S	O	U	R		E	L	S
		I	O	N	S		T	M	A	N
C	R	O	S	S	T	I	E		E	L	O	P	E	R
A	I	R	S		S	T	A	O	S		R	A	M	I
B	A	L	I		A	S	E		T	R	E	N
A	T	O	P		O	R	E	A	D		H	E	E	O
L	A	P	P	E	R		S	T	R	I	D	E	R	S
		I	L	I	A		S	A	N	I	A
S	M	A	C	K		O	N	E		I	N	K	E	R	S
W	A	S	H	I	N	G	T	O	N		O	R	A	L
A	L	I	E	N		L	O	G	E		T	A	R	O
T	A	S	S	E		E	N	T	I	D		A	T	E	E

10/16/84



10/16/84 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Grilled Cheese with Bacon Sandwich
Stuffed Pepper with Tomato Sauce

DINNER
STEAK AND SPUD NIGHT
Sirloin Strip Steak/ Mushroom Sauce, French Fried Onion Rings
Fresh Baked Scrod with Mornay Sauce
"Top Your Own Baked Potato"

BASICS LUNCH
Egg Salad on Bun
Fresh Zucchini Pie

BASICS DINNER
Stuffed Baked Eggplant
Fresh Baked Scrod with Mornay Sauce
"Top Your Own Baked Potato"

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Jean B. Elshtain
"On Patriotism"

Thursday, October 18, 1984 at 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX
MUST BEGIN TO RETURN UNSOLD
FALL COURSE BOOKS TO THE PUBLISHERS
RETURNS START
OCTOBER 25
DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK -
YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

the UNIVERSITY STORE's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

If you need to rent or to buy a phone

come to

AT&T Phone Ctr.

in

Hampshire Mall

Mon - Sat 10:00 - 9:30

★men's volleyball

continued from page 16

"I think the attitude of students is picking up. The exposure of the Olympics did help," said Simeone. "There are a lot of interested and talented volleyball players on this campus. If they can keep a positive attitude, interest will only keep generating. Still, for the most part, people are still in the dark."

The NECVL has placed the Minutemen into the Western Division of its four division league along with Springfield College, Dartmouth, Williams, Bryant and Brown. Each team will play each other twice during the regular season with the top four finishers advancing to the single elimination league playoffs.

But without an immediate schedule as to space openings in Boyden, it has been tough to let students know the big picture.

Tryouts have not yet been scheduled but open practices are being tentatively held for Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6 p.m. in Boyden.

UMass vs. Dartmouth

Dartmouth at UMass
When: Today, 3 p.m.
Where: Boyden Field
Records: UMass, 9-1-2, Dartmouth, 7-2
Rankings: UMass, second in the nation and second in New England; Dartmouth unranked.
UMass Injuries: Leading scorer Jolie DePauw (bruised hip) and Jamie Watson (ankle) will miss the game. Kristen Bowsher (ankle) and Monica Seta (shin splints) are probable.
Outlook: "Our bench will have to come through for us playing some good soccer so we can give our starters a chance to rest," coach Kalekeni Banda said. The Minutemen were banged up in Sunday's 2-1 win over Cortland State. Dartmouth is led by senior Sharon Matthews. She has set a school single season scoring record with 17 goals and one assist for 35 points so far this year.

Cross country runs fourth

Men dissapoint, women 4th out of 15...

By CHRIS TREMBLAY
Collegian Correspondent

The men's cross country team traveled into Boston's Franklin Park to compete against Northeastern, Keene State and Lowell this past weekend, and took a disappointing fourth place.

Northeastern won the meet with 37 points, while Keen State (59) took second, Lowell (60) third and UMass was last with 63.

"I had anticipated all four teams to be close together, with Northeastern holding the edge," said Coach Ken O'Brien, "But I didn't think they'd come away with a 22 point victory."

Despite Northeastern running away with the meet, the other three participants stayed very close to one another.

Paul Stanislawzik came across the finish line for the Minutemen, but O'Brien believes his second and third place runners must move up in the rankings for UM to become a more competitive team.

"Our fourth and fifth runners are very competitive with every one else, but we need our second and third runners to move up," said O'Brien. "We had six runners in before Keene or Lowell had their fourth man come across the line, now we just have to move them up."

Like the men, the women's cross country team also came in fourth place over the weekend. The women were competng with 15 other teams in the Holy Cross Invitationl.

Holy Cross took the top honors with Army right behind them, while Springfield took third place with 90 points and UMass followed only 15 points behind at 105.

Sarah Kitchell was the first UMass runner acoss the finish line, while Doreen Erickson came across second and Deidre Doyle third. The Minutemen's fourth and fifth runners weren't too far behind either. The fifth runner, the 27th overall, to cross gave UMass five runners in the top 30.

Coach Caroline Gardiner was happy with her teams overall performance on the hilly Worcester course.

"I was pleased with everyone as it was a real hard and hilly course," said Gardiner. "I was very pleased with the teams competitiveness, especially without our number one runner (Chris Pratt) in the e."

★field hockey

victory when Temple tied the score on a free hit from outside the circle sending the contest into overtime.

The first overtime was primarily a midfield battle, according to Hixon. In the second period, midfielder Pam Moryl scored the winning goal for the Minutemen, unassisted. However, while UMass won the game the team lost the services of Kennedy, the team's leading scorer, with an ankle injury.

"It was a midfield game, not a lot of flow," said Hixon. "There were a lot of (official's) whistles so the action was stop-and-go. Neither team was able to get on track or get any kind of rhythm."

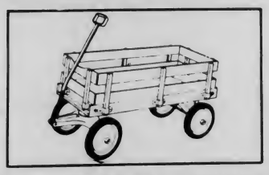
Sunday's game started off smooth enough, according to Hixon, with UMass taking the ball into O.D.U. territory and getting off several shots. But after the opening attack the game was played around the UMass goal, said Hixon. O.D.U. scored two goals in the first half as UMass played even with the defending national champions.

UMass continued to hold its own throughout the second half and Moryl brought the Minutemen as close as they would come on the scoreboard when she scored with 15 minutes remaining in the game.

Old Dominion exploded for five goals in the remaining 15 minutes. It was a display that strongly impressed even Hixon.

"They just turned on the juice. For the last 15 minutes they played the best field hockey I've seen any team play ever. They scored from everywhere. They're a cut above the rest," said Hixon.

GREAT GIVEAWAY #2



WIN AN ALL TERRAIN VEHICLE (wagon)
Two vehicles to be given away
vehicle is on display in our Sporting Goods Dept.

OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES
1. To enter, complete the official entry form and bring it to the store. Enter as often as you wish by using only original entry forms. Enter Nov. 1, 1984
2. The winner will be selected in a random drawing on Nov. 2.
3. Employees of the University Store and their families are not eligible. Taxes on the prize are the sole responsibility of the winner.

Vehicle BONUS
Register to win an all terrain vehicle. Fill out the coupon & return. No purchase required.
Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

TONIGHT 9:00
FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
TOM GEHRKE LIVE
99¢ SCHNAPPS SHOTS ALL NIGHT
Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

SUPERIOR PIZZA
UMass Students Favorite Pizza!
FAST, FREE DELIVERY

also grinders,
salads, dinners
17 Montague Road
North Amherst
549-0626

$1.00 OFF
with 2 or more items
on a large pizza
50¢ OFF
with 2 or more items
on a small pizza
(one per pizza)
11/05/84

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount
• 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9486

AUTO FOR SALE

1970 VW Beetle rebuilt engine new brake system new clutch good tires includes parts car and trailer hitch $1000 call Brenda 548-6999

1973 Dodge Charger deluxe. Mechanically sound, AC, cloth interior, AM FM cassette quadrophonic stereo, 82,000 orig. miles. Very clean and dependable car. Best offer 256-8335

72 Volks fastback, runs great fuel injected $800 549-1358 David

1978 Chevy Malibu station wagon engine and body in great shape good mpg new cooling system snow tires and more call 546-9665

1980 Chevette 4-door 57000 miles good condition. Call 256-8151 after 5:30

VW "Thing" collector's item best offer Gene 323-7582

1973 Plymouth Satellite good condition must sell 900 call Wendy 253-3390

1974 Datsun 280Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500 serious call only 549-7854

AWESOME CONCERT TICKETS!

HALL & OATS, Elton John, Culture Club. Great seats on sale now. Barry 546-6446 call tonight!

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rack-A-Video entertainment gets 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks. "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rock-A-Disc Rock-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7689

FOR RENT

2 cubic ft refrigerator R & P Package Store free delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Technics 25 watt digital receiver 7 presets, quartz lock tuning excellent condition $125.00 546-7458

Corduroy Couch for sale good condition call Elizabeth 549-1773

Twin Mattress and Boxspring 25.00 you must take away call 549-6041

FOUND

Found a red Canyon backpack on October 11 in the main lobby of the first floor in Herter Hall. It contained a pair of glasses in a case with the initials CH on the lens. There was also a set of three keys on a purple key chain along with two pens. Please contact 247-5235 if this a your backpack to pick it up

HELP WANTED

Overseas jobs Summer, yr. round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900 - $2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52 MA1 Corona Del Mer, CA 92625

The People's Gay Alliance is looking for an Office Manager. This is a work study position; and duties will be janitorial and clerical. Drop off your name, number, and an informel resume in the PGA Office, 413B SUB. Replies must be in by Oct 18th

Need Meals? Sorority needs kitchen help for lunch & dinner, Monday - Friday, flexible 545-2152 Kathy

Responsible mature person, 4-5 afternoons per week. Childcare for two boys ages 7 and 10, light housekeeping, meal preparation. Own car desirable. $50 + per week. Needed Mon, Tues, Thurs 3-6 and Wed 1-6 pm call Susan 256-1886

ATTENTION STUDENTS! Want part time work you can fit between classes? Place and fill posters on campus, earn base and bonuses. Year round possible 1-800-243-6679

Part-time laborer needed in Hatfield, some mornings, some afternoons tel 247-5801

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas 2 for 1 hot tub every Monday and Tuesday night call for reservations 253-7727

Utopia Spas private hot tub rentals call now for reservations 253-7727

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2098

Math Tutor, many 100 levels, call Joe, 665-2304, after 5 PM

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4086 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Lost brown plastic frame glasses in a red leather case if found contact 6-5641

PERSONALS

Haircuts by Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-8368

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues., Oct 9 to Fri., Oct. 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3. and the 1983 INDEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

Sheila - Happy Birthday! Remember the fourth? And the Empire State Building! Hugs and kisses, you mush your fellow NSPers

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATE WANTED

Non-smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities. Mary 253-7344 /253-3766

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal. Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer standing room only. We have good seats. Contact Kim 546-5126

Sports

There's a new team in town

Men's volleyball back at UM after a two year layoff...

Nancy 16:01 14.05
By JOHN A. NOLAN
Collegian Staff

Four years ago, fans stood four and five deep surrounding NOPE gym's volleyball court. Everyone came to applaud a winner.

Rarely did anyone leave disappointed. Winning had become an everyday occurence for the UMass Men's Volleyball team.

However, when incoming Freshmen Dave Simeone and Juan Maldonado walked into the volleyball office the following semester, they were disappointed to find out that the program had been discontinued. Students no longer had time to devote to a sport of "secondary" importance, constantly in the shadow of big time collegiate athletics. So after the team graduated, the program fell apart. Yes, students felt cheated, enthusiasts betrayed.

Unfortunately, it had to be.

According to Simeone, the team left a lot of people in a precarious position. The team was in financial disarray with debts unpaid to the league, the referees and even the University. Subsequently, the team was placed on league probation.

The outlook for future Men's Volleyball at UMass looked bleak. Those hopefuls who had said goodbye to their high school careers, soon came to realize that competitive college volleyball was beyond their reach.

Last month however Simeone attended this fall's meeting of the New England Collegiate Volleyball League (NECVL) in the culmination of a difficult year and a half in hope of overturning the team's probation. As we anticipated, the meeting was a success, with UMass granted full NECVL status.

So after three years and much heartache, Simeone and Maldonado have resurrected the missing ballclub with hopes of a stronger foundation and a permanent flow of support.

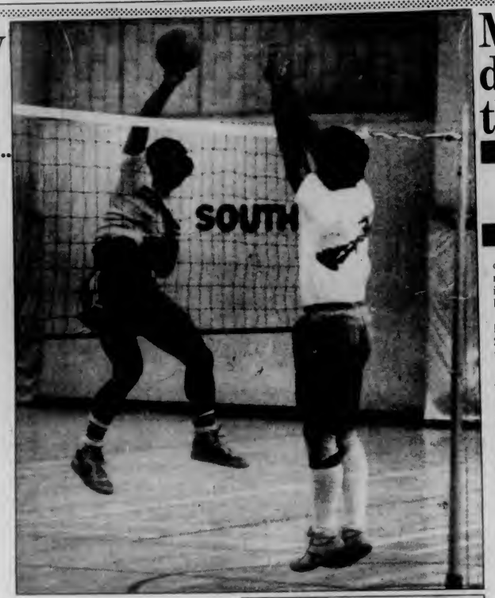
"We're setting up something that we hope will last for a long time," said Simeone. "It's just a matter of us getting things done." The paperwork has been tough, but I've been lucky that Juan's been handling it."

Over the last year, the two admit that there have been problems, but that at this point most have been eliminated. "The only problem is that we're lacking facilities and funds," said Simeone. "We're going to have some problems in scheduling, especially since this year there's once less facility (Curry Hicks Cage) to use."

Obviously, funds are necessary. Unfortunately, they are also lacking at present. "Without uniforms we might get by with $700-800," he said. "But let's face it, we're going to need a lot more."

Funds and facilities aside, Simeone maintains that student support is still and always will be the necessary ingredient for the team's success.

continued on page 15



Collegian photos by Paul Desmarais

The UMass men's volleyball team has resurfaced at UMass after a two-year layoff. The team, which will be a club sport, has been practicing in Boyden Gym. One of the team's leaders, Dave Simeone, pictured to the right, believes that men's volleyball can become a popular sport on campus and has high hopes for its success. Above, the team works on spiking during a workout last week.

Minutemen don't know the score

Gerry deSimas

There are two things that the University of Massachusetts football team vitally needs. One is a new scoreboard. The other is a consistent offense to put points on the board.

In only two of the six games this season has the UMass offense gotten on track, the 26-10 win over Ball State and the 20-19 loss to URI.

"The offense just has to score. That's their job," head coach Bob Stull said after Saturday's 24-7 loss to the University of Richmond. "We had a few critical third down plays and the receivers just dropped the ball."

The Minutemen have had their problems adjusting to their new split back formation after running the I-formation in previous seasons. Three points against Northeastern and seven against Richmond and Holy Cross testify to this.

"When you have a whole new system, timing is the key," junior quarterback Jim Simeone said. "We've had it since the spring, through pre-season and through six games now. I think it's starting to come along."

George Barnwell, who ran for 172 yards against Rhode Island, only gained 67 yards against the Spiders. Duckworth Grange came in and showed some good moves that carried the UMass offense on their 92 yard scoring drive.

Simeone, 7 of 10 for 48 yards in the first half, tossed his first TD pass of the year to his brother Bob Simeone, the team's leading receiver. But in the second half, UMass, for the second week in a row, didn't get their hands on the ball much.

Richmond had the ball for 10:13 in the third quarter and in the 4:47 UMass had the ball, they couldn't put much together.

And when UMass was out there, the receivers dropped the balls and the running game was stuffed. "We had guys open and they dropped the ball, I don't know what else to say," Stull said.

Bob Simeone dropped some passes as did Paul Walsh, who has dropped two TD passes this year.

"I'm not worried about getting the offense going," Simeone said. "We've shown that we can do that in the past three games. I'm more concerned about putting points up

Unfortunately, when teams put points on the board at Alumni Stadium no one knows about it because you can't see the scoreboard at all. The UMass scoreboards are one of the worst in New England.

The scoreboard clock is a farce. The writers in the press box take guesses on the official time. How can the fans see or understand what is going on?

If the University wants a top-flight football program, which they do, the least they can do is help the fans enjoy the game by letting them know what is going on.

Field hockey splits two:

Beat Temple in 2OT, lose to ODU

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team returned from its weekend series at Old Dominion University with the split coach Pam Hixon had hoped for as the Minutemen defeated Temple University of Pennsylvania 2-1 but fell to their host 7-1.

"The Temple game is the one we wanted,"Hixon said of Saturday's game. "We had to take it no matter what. It was a hard fought game. Going into the game they were ranked third in the country and we were ranked eighth. The game meant a lot to both sides."

The first game was the one Hixon counted on winning since her team faced the nation's number one ranked team in Old Dominion on Sunday. While Hixon accomplished her goal, it took UMass a little bit longer than expected as the game lasted into two overtimes.

There was no scoring in the game until UMass forward Tonia Kennedy put one in with three minutes remaining in the game. UMass was fourty-five seconds away from

continued on page 15

UMass hoop opens with big questions for '84-85

Peter Abraham

For the past four seasons, the University of Massachusetts basketball team has not had a real center to speak of.

The graduated Edwin Green, to be sure, did a commendable job of filling the pivot, but when a true (6-10 plus) big guy faced the Minutemen, Edwin became an afterthought.

So, coach Ron Gerlufsen has come up with a reasonable solution to the center problem, he won't use one.

The Minutemen will go to a three forward, two guard offense this season and just what players will fill those roles is being decided this week as UM began practice yesterday in Boyden.

"The frontcourt will consist of two power forwards and a small shooting forward. The backcourt will consist of the usual playmaking guard and a shooting guard," said Gerlufsen.

Three of the five positions are already decided, forward Horace Neysmith, a co-captain, will start on the front line, he, so far, is the only definite up there.

The smooth combination of point guard Carl Smith (who started all 29 games and dished out a school and league record 212 assists) and senior co-captain Donald Russell will run the backcourt.

"After that it's a big question mark," said Gerlufsen. "It's a definite fight for the other two forward spots and those two guys are going to have to do some hard work if we are going to be competitive."

Sixth-man Bobby Braun(6-9) and Darryl Carterr (6-5) are in the hunt for the two spots.

Braun impressed last season with some solid play off the pines, he rebounds well and takes it to the hoop with authority. He is not practicing this week due to a strained knee.

Emerson has been a disappointment in his first three seasons. He has seen little time over two seasons. As for Carter, the crowd-pleasing senior can shoot the ball, but may lack the height UM needs up front.

Freshman Matt Ryan (6-4) and Lorenzo Sutton (6-2) both have great size and shooting ability and may be able to take up the outside shooting slack created when John Hempel transfered to St. John's University last spring.

sports at a glance

UMass Schedule:

Women's Soccer: Dartmouth, Boyden, 3 p.m.
Men's Tennis: Westfield State

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 29 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, October 17, 1984

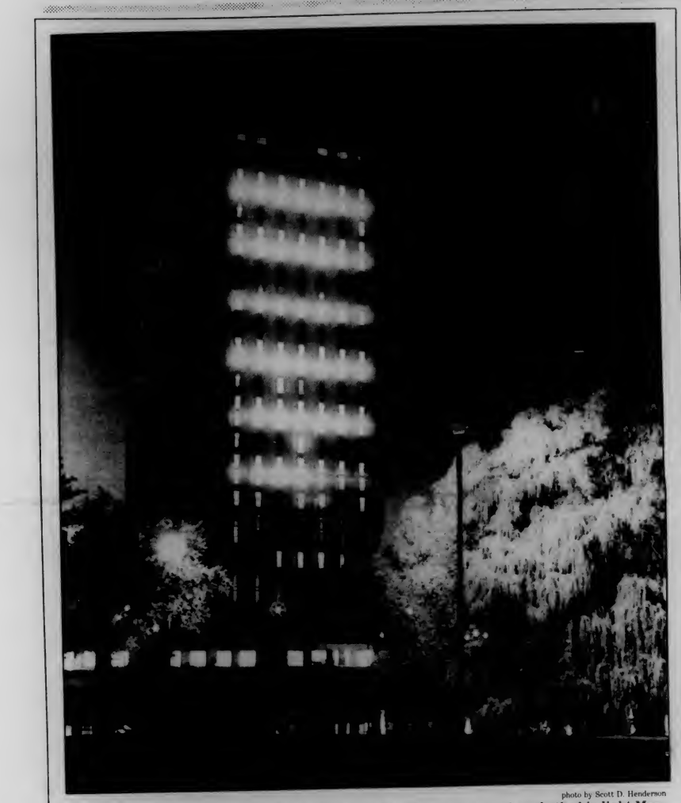


photo by Scott D. Henderson

NIGHT LIGHT — The tower library and the tree near the campus pond are bathed in light Monday.

Security tight for Ferraro visit

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Secret Service agents began arriving at the University of Massachusetts yesterday in preperation for Saturday's visit of Vice Presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro.

Heavy security is expected for Ferraro, who will speak near the Campus Center Pond at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Although the number of Secret Service agents actually on hand for the rally is not known, a source said "a significant number for a large crowd will be near to insure her safety."

The Secret Service will not be the only agency seeing to the safety of the democratic Vice-Presidential candidate. According to Gerald T. O'Neil, UMass director of Public Safety, state, local, and campus police will be out in "strong force."

"Our concern is the accomodation, safely, of a large number of people. When (Rev.) Jesse Jackson (former Presidential contender) came last Spring we handled that very well. We'll have to do the same this time," O'Neil said.

Early estimates put the potential crowd size at 10,000, at least, but O'Neil said this campus could safely accomodate 45,000.

While 45,000 may be a high figure, Student Government Association co-President Rick Patrick said he would be happy to see a student turnout of eight to 10,000.

To help with the crowd at least 50 student security personnel will be stationed throughout the crowd.

Patrick said this campus, students in particular, should feel proud of Ferraro's visit.

"It's great that she would choose to make the western Massachusettts stop here. I think her visit is going to draw attention in people's eyes that UMass is one of the best state institutions in this country," he said.

continued on pg. 4

Senate to vote on awareness educator

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

A month-long debate is expected to end tonight when the Undergraduate Student Senate votes on whether to fund a Gay/Lesbian Awareness Educator position.

According to Joseph Sparks, Student Government Association (SGA) chairman, funding for the proposed position is a problem.

The proposed position, which is sponsored by the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA), would receive money from the SGA's emergency stabilization account. The educator would conduct awareness workshops and advocate the concerns of gay, lesbian, and bi-sexual students, according to SCERA student advocate Gerry Scoppettuolo.

Sparks said that because the emergency stabilization account had been increasingly used to help recognized student organizations (RSO) the $4,000 needed to fund the position would bring that account to "near zero."

"Just funding the heterosexism officer would not drain the stablization account. But because WMUA may need some additional money, and the account has been used to aid other RSOs so far this year, paying for (the new position)" would almost eliminate the stabilization account money, Sparks said.

WMUA, the campus radio station has asked for help in paying for their telephone service, according to WMUA chief engineer Bill Stepchew.

Scoppettuolo said, "We desperately need someone for this (heterosexism) position. Acts of harassment occur every day on this campus (against lesbians and gays) and a counselor is needed for them."

continued on pg. 6

Inside:
Many Catholics advocate free choice. p.3
Author defends US in Vietnam. p.5
Positive attitudes win in '84. . . . . p.8
Soccer action: Men face UConn at Boyden, Women crush Dartmouth 4-0. . . . . p.16

"Diplomacy: The art of saying 'nice doggie' till you can find a rock."
—Wynn Catlin

Town may enforce divestment policy

By SUSAN HENNING
Collegian Correspondent

A special Amherst Town Meeting has been called for Monday Oct. 22 to vote on an article which, if passed would force the town to divest from companies doing business in South Africa or engaging in nuclear weapons production.

The Amherst Board of Selectmen voted 3-2 in favor of the divestment policy Monday night.

Frances Fortino, a member of Town Meeting, said he wants the article to have "the broadest possible interpretation." This would mean including companies whose affiliates are involved in South Africa.

Town Manager Barry DelCastilho said,"No Amherst money is currently going to South Africa." But he said the passing of the article would ensure that divestment becomes policy.

Fortino said the article has a good chance of being passed because the nuclear-free by-law was passed in Town Meeting May 17. The by law included an investment policy which would have required the town to divest from all companies which produce nuclear weapons or their components.

Massachusetts Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti rejected the Nuclear Free Amherst Act on Sept. 6 because he said the town was acting beyond its jurisdiction.

The attorney general's decision to reject the nuclear free by laws "was wrong and a political one (decision) at that." Fortino said.

"There is an awareness now that town funds are, by default, probably going to companies involved in nuclear production and in South Africa," he said.

continued on pg. 4

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

SNOWBOUND — Two Denver youths help free a motorist stranded in downtown Denver Tuesday after a blizzard dumped up to three feet of snow.

Leaders support arms talks

BONN, West Germany AP - The leaders of Romania and West Germany - members of hostile military blocs - said Tuesday there can be no alternative to resumption of U.S.-Soviet talks on reducing nuclear weapons.

But President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania and Chancellor Helmut Kohl disagreed on involving other nations in nuclear arms negotiations between the superpowers.

Kohl, speaking at a luncheon for Ceausescu, said, "We both agreed there is no alternative to a dialogue and negotioations on arms control and disarmament."

And he said the Bonn government had taken note of Ceausescu's proposal to "broaden the circle of participants" at such talks, including those on medium-range missiles in Europe.

"To this I must say: This concerns weapons systems of the superpowers. The will of the nuclear powers to reach an agreement and their readiness to compromise is required," Kohl declared.

Bush called 'hit-and-run'

Walter F. Mondale charged Tuesday that George Bush was a "Political hit-and-run driver and he's hit us with a false charge" on Lebanon, while President Reagan attacked his Democratic opponent for what he said about the Iranian hostage crisis and didn't say about the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

The emphasis Tuesday was on foreign policy as the two presidential candidates looked to their second and final debate Sunday.

However, the age issue surfaced again, when Geraldine Ferraro said voters should consider Reagan's age (73) when they go to the polls in November. Reagan dodged the issue with humor, declaring

"I'm not really this old. They mixed up the babies in the hospital."

Mondale and Ferraro lambasted Bush for his continued insistence that they had suggested that U.S. serviceemen died in shame in Lebanon.

Citing several news stories and using two dictionaries Bush told reporters in Los Angeles, "Mr. Mondale and Mrs. Ferraro can argue all they want, they can demand apologies everyday. But the fact of the matter is, accusing young men of dying without a purpose and for no reason is, in the lexicon of the American people, a shame."

In a brief San Francisco news conference, Mondale said Bush was "trying to avoid his responsibility.

Shamie changes '79 position

BOSTON AP - Republican Senate candidate Ray Shamie led a national campaign in 1979 against federal regulations on the hiring of women and minorities, calling affirmative action plans "legalized discrimination."

But Shamie says he now supports affirmative action and has such a hiring plan at the industrial plant he owns.

Shamie sent a letter on Sept. 10, 1979 to corporate executives around the country, seeking contributions for the Citizens Committee Opposing Legalized Discrimination, The Boston Globe reported Tuesday.

The five-page letter was written on stationery of manufacturing firm in Sharon, and identified Shamie as chairman of the board of trustees of the committee.

The letter accused federal regulators of "numerous blatant affronts" on business and said affirmative action was "the most flagrant abuse."

Today's Staff

Night Editor Gerry deSimas
Copy Editor Taara Eden Hoffman
Layout Technician Peter Soderberg
Photo Technician Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor Peter Soderberg
Production: Dode Levenson, Chris Meagher, Fran Weinberg, Kim Foster, Pete Soderberg, Lynn Nigro, Karen Darr, Dan Sullivan, Steve Higgins, Mike Christ. Shelley Witkiawicz, Beth Bazinet, Marsha Wilson, Mat Atkins, Norm Achin, Faye.

Due to a typographical error, the names of Michael Guarino and Jessica LaMontagne were transposed on the Opinion page yesterday.

Halloween '84

paints, sprays, streaks, gels, tinsels, wigs, masks, feathers, mirrors, capes, hats, etc!

Visit the Halloween Shop at FACES downtown Amherst Mon-Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5

MONDALE/FERRARO
FOR OUR FUTURE
BE A PART OF THE FERRARO RALLY
THIS SATURDAY!

Meeting: Thursday, October 18
8:00 PM in Webster Lounge
University Democrats

DON'T MISS THE
LIP—SYNC CONTEST
Tonite At Changes
7 Weeks Remaining until The Grand Finals
Group Contestants also Welcome - $50 First Prize Tonite
- Along With - "CLASSICS NIGHT"
The Most Popular Dance Music from the last 5 years!
99¢ BAR DRINKS ALL NIGHT
No Cover Changes, Rt. 9, Amherst 256-8284

College Party Weekend
in $68. MONTREAL
includes
* Round Trip Transportation
* 3 days, 2 nights
Hotel Sherbourg, Downtown Montreal
November 2, 3, 4
Night Clubs open 'til 4 AM
Drinking Age 18
No Roadblocks
Last Week for Sign-Up
Call ERIC 549-5017

Students talk out about homophobia

By JOHN MILBLER
Collegian Staff

Heterosexism and homophobia are common in American society according to a group of students who met last night at the commuter collective lounge for a "speak out".

"Speak-outs were started by feminists in the 70s. Feminists would talk about rape, sexism, and abortion," said Dave Carney, a member of the peer counseling group.

"Most heterosexual people don't know gay people," said Tim Harris, a junior journalism major.

He said the stereotypes really sink in because people see the person in terms of sexuality instead of seeing the person.

"Homophobia keeps sexism in place. If a woman becomes too powerful, she's called a 'dike', if a man shows emotion, he's called a 'sissie'," said discussion leader Felice Yeskel.

Carney said the speak-out wasn't just for gay men, bisexuals and lesbians but for everyone. "The speak out is to help educate the community about heterosexist discrimination," he said.

Tammy Boots of the People's Gay Aliance said, "It must of been harder for guys. Little boys were called 'fags' and 'sissies' because they wouldn't chicken-fight on the monkee bars.

"In my town, the high school guys would go out on Friday nights and beat up gay men. This continued until a man was killed and the leader of the group was thrown in jail," said Pia Giammasi, student assistant attorney general.

Carney added that this was the first lesbian, bisexual, and gay men speak out ever to take place on campus.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

LIGHT PICKING — Physical plant worker Bob Rochelle works in a cherry picker replacing a light near Hampshire House, yesterday.

Bishops are 'new arrivals' in movements

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

Articulating and publicizing the pro-choice position on abortion held by the majority of Catholics is the object of Catholics for Free Choice, Janet Gallagher said last night in he Student Union ballroom.

"This whole issue is whether a woman's life is a human life. Those of us who are willing to challenge the church come together to do that" the Hampshire College professor, who is president of Catholics for Free Choice said.

Gallagher said the Bishops are new arrivals" in the peace movement and the anti-nuclear movement.

"For the bishops to wrap the moral authority of the anti-nuclear movement and the peace movement around their position on abortion is a cause of rage to many of us who have been involved for a long time," she said.

It is important to acknowledge that an abortion represents some kind of tragedy of life, she said

"We don't need to minimize the emotional reality of abortion in order to support a women's right to have one," she said.

Gallagher said the Bishops have tried to suppress discussion on diverse opinions on abortion within the Catholic church.

She said Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro and Governor Mario Cuomo have excepted the teachings of the church and taken a very traditional, very orthodox stance.

"Their position is a more conservative position than many Roman Catholic priests and theologians," she said.

The bishops drive for a constitutional amendment is going to backfire she said. "Catholics are talking about the issue. Truth emerges from conflict," she said

The men in hierarchy of the Catholic are against women's rights because they have been insulated from the changes wrought in our society by the women's movement, she said.

Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives Mary Wentworth said child care is a reproductive right just as is abortion and birth control.

She said child care is necessary in order to start combating economic discrimination at work.

"The Reagan administration has sought to bring back the good old days when women stayed in the home and the system got two workers for the price of one," she said.

The two women spoke at the Reproductive Rights Awareness Night sponsored by the Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom.

New legal advocate

EWC identifies needs of Third World women

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Identifying the needs and concerns of Third World women in the community and on campus is a goal of Chong Ami Yu and Loti Reyes Ocasio, the new coordinators of the Third World Women's Program at the Everywoman's Center.

Chong Ami Yu

"Our major goals this semester will be outreach, networking with other third world organizations, and laying the groundwork for future programs," Ocasio said.

In addition to the position of program coordinator, a Third World Women's Advisor/Legal Advocate position was created to provide women with information regarding their legal rights and assist them in advocating for these rights when necessary, according to the new Third World Women's Program brochure.

"I'm very excited about this job because it's a new position. We are not bound by anything," Ocasio said.

Although the topics she will address have not been defined yet, Ocasio said she is tentatively planning workshops on the mystique of the legal system, getting a divorce without a lawyer, and the welfare system.

"We don't want to start implementing programs based on our individual perceptions. The Third World community is very diverse and includes people from many cultures and experiences. We want to find out the legal needs, programming needs, and what workshops people need the most," Yu said.

As program coordinator Yu's job is "to provide alternative educational and cultural programs such as lectures, panels, and films which address the experiences of Third World Women," Yu said.

Yu grew up in South Korea and came to this country to study at the University of Connecticut where her concentration was the psychology of women. She said her greatest problem as an Asian student was "a sense of isolation on a predominantly white campus. None of the services suited my particular needs.

"Asian women are stereotyped as being quiet and passive. My white friends were hurt and surprised at my anger about the racism I experienced," Yu said.

Yu helped initiate a battered women's shelter in Chinatown, New York, and she was director of a battered women's shelter in Connecticut. While a student at UConn she started a rape education program.

Ocasio was born in Puerto Rico and raised in Brooklyn, New York. She worked for two years at the Casa Latina in Northampton and for the last year and a half she has been a paralegal at Western Mass. Legal Services.

Eventually, she hopes to go to law school for criminal law and represent political activists and prisoners.

Although this semester is "still in the planning stages", Ocasio and Yu will work on ongoing projects such as a resource/referral book, a Third World Women's open house, a multi-cultural reading list, and the Seta Rampersad scholarship.

Native American talks on ethnic experience

Native American poet, author, and playwright, Linda Hogan, will speak in the series on American and the Ethnic Experience tonight at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center room 162.

Hogan will be the fifth speaker in the series sponsored by the Institute fot the Advanced Study of the Humanities. Her speech is titled, "The Indian Writer as Bloodum: examining the bind or how to write when you are invisible, underwater and clothed in a strait jacket."

Hogan is the author of Daughters I Love You, Calling Myself Home, and Eclipse, which was given honorable mention in the Western States book awards.

NEWSLINES.....

Exchange fair in concourse

The Office of International Affairs is holding a Study Abroad Fair on the Campus Center Concourse today.

Any questions pertaining to applying for exchange, deadlines relating to the exchange, and a run-down of the countries available for exchange will be answered.

"It is one of the best opportunities for students at this time because of the American dollar being so strong," said Kirstin Jahn, an advisor in the International Affairs Office.

The fair is the third annual event and its main goal is to increase the awareness of the opportunities abroad available to students at this time.

Scholarships

Promising sophomores (more than 30 but less than 60 credits) can apply for the Harry S. Truman scholarships. The awards may be up to four years and up to $5,000 a year. Preliminary applications are on the door of Thompson 332 and should be completed by November 1.

UM student charged with theft of sign

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

A UMass student was arrested at 1:04 a.m. Tuesday and charged with stealing a pedestrian crossing sign, UMass police said.

Police said the man was carrying the sign and its post down Fearing Street towards Southwest. The man was also charged with possession of an altered driver's license.

A 24-year-old Connecticut man was arrested on motor vehicle violations at 4:59 p.m. Monday. Police said there were four motor vehicle warrants on the man and on when checked at the station he was found to be in possession of marijuana and subsequently charged.

Police reported that a Domino's Pizza delivery man broke a window valued at $100 in Webster Dormitory at 2:12 a.m. Tuesday. Police said the man is willing to pay for the damage but he will have to appear in court.

A hit-and-run accident in lot 44 caused $300 damage to a 1977 Chevrolet pickup truck. Police said the accident occurredbetween Friday and Saturday of this past weekend and was reported at 10:08 a.m. Monday.

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE

The Best Chinese Food
Try Our New

Luncheon Specials — From $2.25 served 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

and

New Buffet & Sunday Brunch — ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Buffet Served 5-8 Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served Sunday 11:30-3
Children under 10 $3.00

1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot & Sour Soup

Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.

10 Belchertown Road
at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

ANTENNA & RF ENGINEERING GRADS

TALK TO THE FOREMOST RF COMMUNICATIONS RESEARCH LAB IN THE NATION

WHEELER LABORATORY
We'll be on campus: Wednesday, October 24

The Wheeler Laboratory at Hazeltine Corporation is world renowned for the role it has played in advancing RF communications for more than four decades. Founded by antenna pioneer, Dr. Harold Wheeler, the Laboratory's research and development efforts on behalf of industry and government have resulted in significant advancements in the design and development of phased arrays, millimeter-wave systems, wide-band small antennas and reflected antennas. Hazeltine's recent award of the Microwave Landing System contract by the FAA is a direct result of advanced developments in antenna technology by Wheeler Laboratory.

As we continue to grow, we seek highly qualified, innovative grads with a Bachelors or Masters degree or Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering with an emphasis in Microwave Engineering.

At Hazeltine, you will also have the opportunity to participate in an accelerated Master's Degree Program in RF Engineering at N.Y. Polytechnical Institute. You can receive your advanced degree in less than two years while working at Wheeler Lab four days per week at full salary. And, you'll be working with the recognized leader in RF communications. You won't find a better opportunity for growth and advancement.

Come talk with our college recruiting representatives.

If you are unable to meet with us at this time, send your resume to: Ms. Doreen Cassidy, College Relations Director, telling her of your specific area of interest. Details on the diverse career opportunities at Hazeltine are available in your school placement office.

Hazeltine Corporation

Greenlawn, L.I., NY 11740

An Equal Opportunity Employer Committed to Affirmative Action
A Hazeltine Corporate Policy
U.S. Citizenship required

Jesse Jackson hosts Saturday Night Live

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, one-time presidential candidate and this week's guest host on "Saturday Night Live," says he might step out of character and play some roles in the show's satirical sketches.

"I've been thinking of doing Eddie Murphy," he said. "I thought about doing Fritz Holings, but changed my mind about that. I thought about doing Bush, but I didn't have the energy to cheerlead. I thought about doing Reagan falling asleep, but the show might bomb."

Live from New York, it was Jesse Jackson at a press conference Tuesday at the Rainbow Room to discuss his appearance this Saturday on NBC's comedy show.

Whether it's the pulpit, the podium or parody, Jackson, a former Democratic presidential candidate, said he's doing this show for the same reason he makes speeches: a message is a message.

"The bottom line is communication," he said. "You use whatever platform to get it over."

Through satire, Jackson said he hoped to reach the late-night audience with his concerns about the poor, justice in America and the whole spectrum of issue he raised in his "Rainbow Coalition" campaign for the presidency.

"Poor people laugh more than the rich," he said.

"Laughter is a form of therapy."

★ Secret Service — continued from pg. 1

Kevin Sweeney, President of University Democrats, one of the sponsors of the Ferraro visit, said "the key" for his and other student groups will be cooperation.

There are still a number of logistical problems that have to be worked by Saturday. There are questions on who will speak before Ferraro and after Ferraro, and who will introduce her.

The listof dignitaries and celebrities on hand for the rally is expected to rise as the word gets out that Ferraro is coming to UMass.

There is a possibility that Massachusetts senators Edward M. Kennedy and Paul Tsongas will be here. Kennedy is in California but because of his strong ties to UMass he may fly out at the last minute. Tsongas flew home to Boston from El Salvador yesterday, and he may be on hand to welcome Ferraro, although nothing is confirmed.

★ South Africa — continued from pg. 1

Fortino said the article is not a by-law and that towns do have some power over financial dealings. He said the attorney general "won't be able to ruin this."

James Lindstrom, Amherst's financial director, said there is "clearly a long overdue desire to divest from South Africa" among the people of Amherst. He said the article contains a list of companies located in South Africa that would be boycotted.

Town meeting members hope to broaden the policy in the near future to make it uniform. This would include boycotting all companies involved in South Africa and in the production of nuclear weapons, both in investments and purchasing, Fortino said.

AmHErst CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50

Wednesday thru Saturday
October 17th thru 29th

Say Amen Somebody 7:00
Sugarcane Alley 9:05

DOWNTOWN AMHERST

The Women's Leadership Project
invites all University Women to our informal discussion series
Women's Images - Women's Lives
Thursday at 4 PM
in Campus Center - check CC schedule
topic - Beauty Contests

Women's Leadership Project

Sport Style

CHAMPION JACKET
imprinted
44.95
2 pockets

Extra heavy weight athletic wear reverse weave machine washable
S-M-L-XL

available in:
Light grey w/blue
Light grey w/red

Sarah

Photo by Dwayne Autery

store hours
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

UMass professor 'defends' U.S. involement in Vietnam

By DANIEL WHITE
Collegian Correspondent

"Our (the United States) attempt to create an independent, non-communist South Vietnam is morally defensible," said author Guenther Lewy at a lecture sponsored by the UMass Republican Club in front of 28 people last night in the Campus Center.

Lewy, a UMass political science professor, is the author of the book, America in Vietnam.

Lewy said that "our sense of guilt over Vietnam is not justified," and it, "undermined the leadership of the presidency in foriegn affairs."

He went on to say that there were many "myths, misconceptions and outright fabrications," concerning our involvement in the war and especially of the attrocities commited by American troops.

One such misconception involved American pilots who had been shot down. They were discovered carrying bombing maps which clearly marked hospitals on them, Lewy said.

"Pilots had to have good maps," Lewy stated, "and hospitals had to be marked to avoid hitting them.

"Another incident involved Viet Cong who would toss a body out of a helicopter, take a picture of it and then send it to the media as evidence of brutal tactics used by the American military to extract information, Lewy said.

"Yet this same media was conspicuously absent when the Viet Cong bombed hospitals, overturned buses and attacked refugee camps with flame throwers," Lewy said.

Lewy also said that the popular support for the Viet Cong was greatly overstated.

"The Viet Cong had to resort to terror and force in order to get recruits." Later, after the communist take over, "tens of thousands of people fled Vietnam from their liberators."Lewy said.

Dexter
Shoemakers to America

Megan

- Grey Suede
- Taupe Suede
- Black Suede

$39.

Mathews SHOES
THE VILLAGE COMMON AMHERST

HOUSING EXEMPTION APPLICATIONS

Frosh, sophomores and Stockbridge students who wish to live off-campus for the Spring 1985 semester should apply for an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation. Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment Office, Room 235 Whitmore. Applications are due no later than Tuesday, October 30, 1984. Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore. Thank You.

Important Notes: Please read carefully

 Signing a lease is not valid grounds for receiving an exemption from the on-campus housing requirement. DO NOT SIGN A LEASE UNLESS YOU HAVE RECEIVED AN EXEMPTION. Any student who signs a lease without prior approval from the Housing Assignment Office is responsible for all on-campus fees and will be required to reside on-campus.

 Students who are granted an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation will lose their housing assignment for the Spring 1985 semester on the last day of this semester unless prior arrangements are made with the Housing Assignment Office.

Jackson Productions INC.

Presents
The
N.E. Puttin on the Hits
Lip Sync Contest

Every Wed. Nite at The Blue Wall

Nightly Cash Prizes
Doors Open at 8 pm
Adm. $2.00

Come and impersonate one of your favorite singers or bands in costume
You could become a contestant on the nation-wide T.V. show
"Putting on the Hits"
for a Grand Prize of $25,000.00.

Opportunity only knocks once. For that chance of a lifetime, get your act together and come to the Blue Wall.
BRING YOUR OWN ALBUM.

For more info. write or call:

The Blue Wall to register at anytime 545-1919
ages 18 and over

WORK FOR THE FASTEST GROWING AIRLINE IN THE INDUSTRY.

PEOPLExpress is coming to campus in search of CO-OP EDUCATION STUDENTS

SOPHOMORES...JUNIORS... SENIORS...GRAD STUDENTS

START NOW AS A RESERVATIONS SALES ASSOCIATE. You'll be the first point of contact between PEOPLExpress and our customers, providing accurate scheduling and price information—and selling seats for PEOPLExpress flights. You'll be based at NEWARK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT.

THE JOB OFFERS ALL THIS:

- $5.00 an hour to start—with regularly scheduled raises
- UNLIMITED TRAVEL PRIVILEGES ON PEOPLExpress (Not only for you but spouses, too, after 30 days of employment)
- FREE PARKING AT THE AIRPORT

THE MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM HOURS YOU MAY WORK ARE:

- Minimum of 4 hours per day
- Minimum of 20 hours per week
- Maximum of 40 hours per week

TO QUALIFY, you must have a GPA of 2.5 or better, be currently enrolled, be articulate—and have a mature attitude and business-like appearance. Previous work experience is a must.

PRESENTATIONS WILL BE HELD ON WEDNESDAY, NOV. 7th AT 1:00 PM. INTERVIEWS WILL FOLLOW. CONTACT YOUR CO-OP OFFICE, 110 THOMPSON HALL, TO SIGN UP. PLEASE BRING A CURRENT TRANSCRIPT TO THE INTERVIEW.

Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

PEOPLExpress
FLY SMART

★ Senate

continued from pg. 1.

The gay-lesbian educator would be responsible for campus-wide counseling currently works on the east side of the University of Massachusetts campus.

Although SCERA has sponsored this job position since the beginning of the semester, and discussed the funding at a senate meeting two weeks ago, the senate postponed a vote. At that time a problem of how to pay the educator was raised.

WMUA engineer Bill Stepchew and Student Activities Office Business Manager Bob Jenal wrote the SGA that the station is about "$6,000 short of expected expenses."

Sparks said "It is possible to fund both the heterosexims officer and to help WMUA, but we must hope no emergencies come up."

Scoppettuolo said he expects the senate to vote in favor of the Gay/Lesbian Awareness position.

Read the editorial page

On Friday, October 19 from 3 to 4:30 PM We will celebrate the publication by Oxford University Press of William Pritchard's new book — Frost a Literary Life Reconsidered

There have been biographies of Robert Frost, and there have been critical studies of his work and now here is concentrated on the complex interaction between the poet's life and work. In this engaging study, William H. Pritchard strives to see Frost whole. He shows that Frost's life was indeed a literary one, that the essential fact about it was the poetry that came with it.

William H. Prichard is Henry Clay Folger Professor of English at Amherst College. His other books include Lives of the Modern Poets, Seeing Through Everything, English Women, 1492-1940, and Wyndham Lewis. He is an advisory editor of The Hudson Review and a frequent contributor to The New York Times Book Review and other publications.

Please join us and Professor Pritchard.

Jeffery Amherst Bookshop

55 South Pleasant Street Amherst
Massachusetts 01002 253-3381

the Hungry U Restaurant

check out our happy hour munchie menu daily!

WEDNESDAY IS PASTA NIGHT for only $4.25

includes spaghetti with a choice of homemade meatball, sausage, fresh eggplant, sauteed mushrooms, or broccoli served with salad or soup, bread and butter, and a glass of wine or beer

Happy Hour 3-6, 9-close 7 days per week
2 in 1 drinks

55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

PHI MU

the Newest Sorority on campus invites all University Women to

OPEN RUSH, TACO DINNER

Wed. Oct. 17 at 6:00 P.M.

389 N. Pleasant St.
For more info call 545-0939

The PUB MUGS Are In!

Wednesday Nights 9-1

Music By RACK-A-DISC
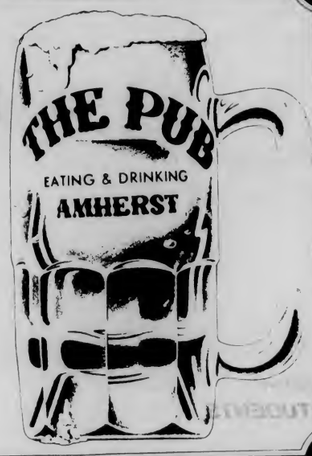
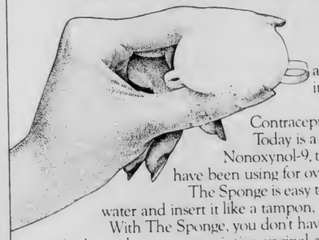
-Requests-

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St
AMHERST



IN 1960, THE PILL GAVE WOMEN A NEW FREEDOM. IN 1984, THE SPONGE GIVES WOMEN A NEW CHOICE.



It's been a long time. Twenty-four years, and there hasn't been a sensible new option in birth control.

Until Today.™ Today, the 24-hour Contraceptive Sponge.

Today is a soft, comfortable sponge that contains Nonoxynol-9, the same effective spermicide women have been using for over 20 years.

The Sponge is easy to use. You just moisten it thoroughly with water and insert it like a tampon, and it works for a full 24 hours.

With The Sponge, you don't have to worry about hormonal side effects. And no other non-prescription vaginal contraceptive has been proven more effective.* It's been through seven years of extensive testing, and over 17 million Sponges have been sold.

Of course, you don't need a prescription for The Sponge. It can be found at your local drug store and at selected supermarkets. In the 3-pack or convenient 12-pack.

And the Today Sponge is the only contraceptive that comes with someone to talk to: our 24-hour Today TalkLine. If you have any questions, or you're just wondering if The Sponge is right for you, visit your student health center or give us a call at 800-223-2329. (In California, 800-222-2329.)

Finally, you have the spontaneity you want and the protection you need. But, best of all, you have another choice you never had before.

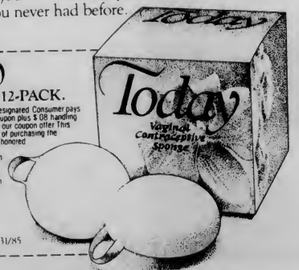
Until Today.

SAVE $1.00
ON TWO 3-PACKS OR ONE 12-PACK.

To Consumer: Limit one coupon per purchase. Good only on products designated. Consumer pays sales tax. To Retailer: We will reimburse you the face value of this coupon plus $.08 handling provided that you and the consumer have complied with the terms of our coupon offer. This coupon is good only when redeemed by you from a consumer at time of purchasing the specified product. Any other use constitutes fraud. Redemptions not honored through brokers or other outside agencies. Invoices showing your purchase of sufficient stock to cover all coupons must be shown upon request. Void if prohibited, taxed or restricted. This coupon in non-transferable, non-assignable, non reproducible. Cash value 1/20th of $.01. Offer good only in U.S.A. Redeem by mailing to: VLI Corporation P.O. Box 4400 Clinton, Iowa 52734

51366 100140

Offer Expires 3/31/85



*Clinical tests have concluded that women can expect an annual effectiveness rate of 89-91% if they use the Today Sponge consistently and according to label instructions. © 1984 VLI Corp. Today and The Sponge are trademarks of VLI Corp.

Auto thefts down 16.6 percent in MA

BOSTON AP - Massachusetts, long dubbed the nation's auto theft capital, is getting rid of that moniker due in part to efforts of a special federal-state strike force, a state police officer testified Tuesday.

Saying he would have been "uncomfortable" testifying about the Bay Sate's car thefts in the past, Lt. Col. Peter Agnes told a hearing on state auto insurance rates that auto theft has decreased 16.6 percent for the first half of 1984 compared with the same period last year.

The Office of Public Safety reports 21,031 cars were stolen during the first six months of 1984, compared with 25,223 in that period in 1983.

Total auto thefts for 1983, recorded as 45,881 by the safety office, declined 12.2 percent - nearly twice the national rate - from the 52,280 figure for 1982, said Agnes, who heads the governor's year-old auto theft strike force.

"Those statistics translate into 10,000 fewer cars stolen," Agnes said.

"It means the insurance industry saved millions of dollars on fewer claims for popped ignitions, stripped accessories and total losses."

Scott Lewis, an industry attorney at the hearing, offered a different set of figures. He noted that by excluding Boston, the auto theft rate for 1983 decreased only 1.5 percent from 1982, according to Registry figures.

Blizzard paralyzes Colorado, Nevada

A blizzard paralyzed much of Colorado with up to 3 feet of snow Tuesday, forcing the Air Force Academy to cancel classes and bringing business and travel to a crawl.

Snow and heavy rain also fell over a wide area of the Plains, while tornadoes and hail besieged Arkansas.

"It's bad, definitely bad," said Mayme Thayer, a cook at the Rip Griffin Truck Stop west of Limon Colo., where about 150 people were gathered.

"It's blowing pretty hard, trucks are getting blown in the parking lot."

The storm, which was blamed for one traffic death in Colorado and one in Nevada, lashed snow into 4-foot drifts at Limon, 100 miles east of Denver. Ten inches was reported on the ground in Denver, a foot in Colorado Springs and greater depths in the mountain foothills - 36 inches in Woodland Park and 25 inches in Cripple Creek.

Heavy snow fell in parts of northern Nevada and on the Sierra, and a winter storm warning covered all of the western mountain area, including the Lake Tahoe Basin.

Strong, gusty winds were causing hazardous driving conditions and drifting in the mountains, and chains or snow tires were required on most Sierra passes.

Interstate 80 over Donner Summit was intermittently closed by traffic accidents, state troopers said.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
•Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watrous's Store
549-4704

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Just Fun Arcade
Welcomes you to
Wednesday Nite
FREE PLAY PARTY!
Any and all games just $2.00
every Wednesday 8:30 - 10:30
Mt Farms Mall, Rt 9

FUTURE CALVIN KLEINS!!!

The Collegian Fall Fashion Special needs your illustrations! Get published and be a part of New England's largest college daily! For more information, call Michelle Hyde, 545-3500, or stop by the Collegian office.

Letters to the Editor

Cyanide solution; the "easy way out"

By now everyone has probably heard about the students at Brown University who voted in favor of a referendum that calls for the school to supply cyanide pills to students in the event of a nuclear war. A lot of people think that this was a great idea.

The editors of the Collegian called it a "clear moral and political message" that they care about the future. I've also heard about a motion before the student senate to commend the students at Brown for their action. Maybe I'm slow, but I can't understand why.

I have two problems with the idea. First of all, I think it was a waste of time and effort. I agree that the possibility of nuclear war is about the biggest problem facing people today, but the time and money put into getting that cyanide could have been put to much better use by trying to educate the public about nuclear war or supporting political candidates who are in favor of arms reduction.

My second problem is that these students are giving up on saving humanity after a nuclear disaster. Although I'm not planning to climb into a cement cell for the rest of my life, I would try to maintain some kind of existence before I committed suicide. Hopefully I might even manage to help uphold some piece of civilization that others could build a future from.

So while the editors of the Collegian hear the students at Brown saying "we care about the future," I hear them saying, "since we can't prevent a nuclear war, we want the easiest way out." I feel it is not for the student senate here at UMass to praise the students of Brown, but to condemn them for giving up. We should dedicate ourselves to ending the arms race, and not to finding are own escape while the rest of the world sinks.

Bruce Lothrop
Northeast

Changing one's mind on the abortion issue

Because of the upcoming presidential election, the issue of abortion has been widely publicized in all the news media. Many of us have become callous to the subject due to an almost daily exposure. I was that way until recently. I never thought something as distant as abortion could effect me in such a private and personal way.

If you asked me how I felt about abortion a year or so ago, I would have told you that I was against it. I just couldn't seem to justify it. I felt that human life began at conception and to stop a pregnancy in mid-term meant choosing not to get pregnant before you got pregnant.

It is clear that I was a misguided human being with twisted and distorted views of life. My feelings have changed now, and these changes are due to two very important factors;

First, since I began my studies at this university, I have had the good fortune to be introduced to the ideals of a world-renowned group of intellectuals known as the feminists. This organization composed of God-fearing super-professionals taught me that my wholesome fundamentalist ideals were completely incorrect. The feminists maintain that until the second a baby is born, it is nothing more than a collection of human tissue. Therefore, by their standards, having this globulus cluster of human tissue removed from the womb was no more a crime against humanity than having decayed material removed from a tooth. Personally I believe this to be true because the feminists are never wrong and everyone knows that.

Secondly, the noted scientists and physicians to whom God has entrusted the power to heal have unanimously decided that life doesn't really begin until after birth. Keep in mind that these are the same people who once said the world is flat. They state that their reasons for performing abortions are only in the best interest of the mothers-to-be, and to collect their $300.00 dollar fee (not including tax). "Let's face it," they say, "you're not killing a genuine human being, you're just killing tissue that would have been a genuine human being and there is a great distinction between the two."

I feel that these are really solid pro-abortion arguments and I am convinced that the pro-choice people are correct. But the pro-choice movement is going to face a lot of opposition in the years to come, because there are many perverted people out there who still have morals and such.

DAVE TUMEY PRESIDENT: PROLIFE COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEMS.

Positive attitudes will win the '84 election

The debate last week made me want Walter Mondale to win even more than before, and I also came to an abrupt realization about my negative attitude. The more we believe in something, the more likely it is to occur. By convincing myself that defeating Reagan is a lost cause I put energy into making my belief manifest. The power of mind is awesome and attitudes do affect reality. I now have hope that maybe Mondale will win (remember Dewey vs. Truman) and with this positive attitude I already feel it has made a small contribution toward tipping the scale in our favor. The world has hope yet.

Rick Brenner
Northampton

Read the opinion page over and over and...

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!
Tix on Sale TODAY!!

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:
an evening with
The Them or Us Tour '84"
FRANK ZAPPA
SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50
Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50
Tickets on Sale Now

Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.

UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870
Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor	John O'Connell	Black Affairs Editor	Yadira Betances
Business Manager	Andrew May	Women's Issues Editor	Rebecca Thatcher
Business Manager	Elizabeth Young	Arts Editor	Christine D. Marini
Production Manager	Mark Roden	Sports Editor	Peter Abraham
Executive Editor	Rita Murphy	Photo Editor	Andrew J. Heller
News Editor	Greg Brown

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted

OLD MAN REAGAN'S FLY BALL

Thoreau's ideals forgotten

Diane Lane

From inside his cozy woodland retreat in Lincoln, Mass., Henry David Thoreau once wrote that "man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can afford to let alone." If this 19th century principle still holds true today, then we, as a country, are in serious trouble.

I refer, of course, to the new Reagan generation, a well-scrubbed group of college students who have surfaced ominously in public opinion polls of late, chanting "Four more years!" with hypnotic regularity. In the Valley Advocate last week, a survey noted that a bloated 70 percent of this age group feel that being "very well off" financially is essential or very important while only 44.1 percent say that "developing a meaningful philosophy of life" is essential or very important.

So much for Thoreau. I guess I just don't understand this preoccupation with money insure it or dust it or lock it up. On the contrary, a sound lifelong philosophy asks nothing from us other than a commitment to our inner selves. It grows finer with age and bends like a living branch in times of adversity. You can change your philosophy

If I may be so bold as to put words in Mr. Thoreau's mouth, I think today we are free only in proportion to the number of people we have stepped on to get where we are going. Selfishness has never been pretty, but it takes on a particularly harsh appearance as thousands of college students scramble thoughtlessly over the hard fought battlegrounds of social reform, ecology, and civil rights on their way to worship the god of bigger and better. I feel like an echo, rebounding noiselessly in my concern over the finite nature of our natural resources.

Selfishness has never been pretty, but it takes on a particularly harsh appearance as thousands of college students scramble thoughtlessly over the hard fought battlegrounds of social reform, ecology, and civil rights on their way to worship the god of bigger and better. I feel like an echo, rebounding noiselessly in my concern over the finite nature of our natural resources. Is it truly naive and unthinkable that we should share in the products of the good earth?

and material goods to the total exclusion of a sound moral base or feeling of shared community. I grew up in an era that knew both long gas lines and the pain of job layoffs. Yet I also felt the shame of a world focused on Richard Nixon, crouching in the shadows like a cornered cockroach. Given a choice, I would have done proudly without the family car if it had meant a country leader who upheld the values we have all been taught to believe.

It is gross immaturity or sheer stupidity that enables anyone to say a meaningful philosophy of life is not important. When the BMW has long since rusted away, and when the house is sagging with age, it is the philosophy that carries us gracefully and the life conscientiously lived which allows peaceful reflection on the past. Material objects cannot fill any need beyond that of the moment — to attribute a physical object with properties of happiness is only the long way around to a sure dead-end. Indeed, beware! Things have a tendency to pile up, and creep in, and soon it is they who own you. You've either got to or make alterations in its character if the desire arises. Things, on the other hand, are as deadwood — rigid and unbending, and in the final inspection tossed as carcasses upon a junk heap.

Is it truly naive and unthinkable that we all should share in the products of the good earth?

The Advocate said, these students "believe the ship is going down, and as long as it's sinking they're going to ride first class" all the way. The irony of this band of pessimists being the staunchest supporters of a President who has successfully marketed optimism above all else is delightful. Frightened, and without the courage to face tomorrow minus Calvin Klein, this generation has panicked and would like nothing better than to run through the streets grasping, like New Yorkers in a blackout, any security blanket in sight.

Yet, instead of always clamoring for more and more and more, or whining petulantly over who gets to ride in the front seat, why not take a look at yourselves in the mirror. Are you afraid of what you'll see? If money is your only goal, I think you'll see a vast nothingness reflected back for an eternity — an empty soul in a Mercedes Benz. Only think about Ebenezer Scrooge, and his encounter with the Ghost of Christmas Future — you remember what happened to him, don't you?

Diane Lane is a Collegian columnist.

Reagan's America troubled

John Gilman

The 1984 presidential race is more than a contest between two men for the highest office in the land. As Ronald Reagan has said on numerous occasions, this election is a contest between two different visions of America. So it is. However, it is not, as Ronald Reagan maintains, a choice between the gloom, doom, and hand-wringing of the Democrats, and the optimism, patriotism, and apple pie of the Republicans. Such simplistic generalizations should be seen for the campaign rhetoric that they are. The actual issues of this debate are fundamental questions concerning the future direction of the United States. Those of us who will vote would do well to consider the ramifications of "four more years."

If Ronald Reagan is re-elected, we can expect a continuation of the policies of the past four years. What will America look like? The increase in the number of people living under the poverty line during the reign of this administration tells us that there will be more poor people in Reagan's America. There will also be fewer government programs to help these people obtain the bare necessities that we once felt every American was entitled to. The Reagan explanation is that some people prefer a government hand-out to supporting themselves. Some people cheat. Well, some people cheat in college, too, is that justification for claiming that the schools are being abused and not serving the purposes that they were originally designed for? The answer is self-evident.

What about civil rights? The Reagan administration does not feel that the federal government is the proper agency for ensuring that federally-guaranteed rights are protected. It is unclear if the rights of non-whites are of any concern in Reagan's America. The Reagan vision of equal rights for women is equally absymal. In Reagan's America, the opportunities are infinite if one is male, white, from a family with an anuual income of over $35,000, and willing to ignore the injustice that seeks to divide this country into haves and have-nots from now until eternity. It is not a very pretty picture.

Reagan's America is opposed to the vast majority of nations in the world. We sent messages to the Russians in the form of missiles. We talk of winning limited nuclear exchanges (which thrills our allies who can guess where the limited war will be fought). We send our troops to far-off places that are of little strategic concern to demonstrate that the U.S. is back on its feet again after the soul-searching saga of Vietnam. Reagan's America downplays the importance of human rights in "friendly" countries, as if the people in those countries are any less human than us, or that their rights are any less sacred because the accident of existence set them down in Central America or South Africa, rather than Beverly Hills. Is this the vision of the future, or a recipe for Armageddon?

What has happened to us Americans that has made us so callous, so cold, so unfriendly to other human beings? Where did the America of high school history books go? The America that was more than a crass power, solely concerned with self-interest and personal gain. Have we turned our backs on the ideals and principles that the founding fathers sought to see flourish in this country? The question of this election should not be "are you better off than you were four years ago," but "do you still believe that all men (and women) are created equal, and have certain inalienable rights." There remains a difference.

John Gilman is a Collegian columnist.

Some winners and losers..

Well, it's that time again. Midterm time. Time to get a little feedback on how you've been doing so far this semester, enabling you to handle rest of the semester accordingly.

In the spirit of midterms and improved performance, a few groups on and around campus have been rated on how well they've done since early September. Without further ado, I'm happy and yes, honored, to announce the winners of the First Annual Chuck Barris Gong Show Awards.

May I have the envelope please? Thank you. And the winners are...

The Wicked Witch of the West Award for Human Compassion to the people who are tripling the rent of Louis' Foods, forcing the supermarket to move. This will leave many area senior citizens dependent on others to buy food. The winners will receive round-trip tickets to Oz, so they can ask the Wizard for a heart.

Most Stylishly Late Award goes to the Bursar's Office, for hitting up out-of-staters for $44 extra bucks months after the bill was due. The office will receive a mural-sized calendar and a red Magic Marker, so they can write down all their deadlines. Honorable Mention goes to the Board of Regents, without whom this would not have been possible.

The Best Little Meatmarket in Amherst Award for Objectifying Women was won by Alpha Phi Omega, hands-down, for running the Royalty Contest. Members of the fraternity will be given a lifetime membership to Men Against Violence Against Women (MAVAW), so they can learn why it's not nice to use money to approve of people's looks.

The Cyndi Lauper "Girls Just Want to Have Fun" Award goes to the women who competed in the Royalty Contest, for perpetuating their own oppression, and wallowing in it. Winners will receive a subscription to Ms. Magazine, a tuition-free minor in Women's Studies, and a dictionary in which they can look up the word, "collusion."

The Scrooge Award goes to the wimps in Whitmore who banned kegs at tailgate parties. The Fuller Brush Company has agreed to supply push-brooms to the winners, so they can sweep up the broken bottles in P-lot.

The Little Richard Sour Grapes Award goes to a little-known, but nevertheless deserving group of students on Orchard Hill who are trying to contest the landslide victory of OHAG vice-presidential candidates Mary Gannon and Carmine Caporelli. Gannon and Caporelli's campaign included spelling their names in the "bowl", in flour, which these other folks say will encourage vandalism. Oh, be serious, people. Grow up. You'll be getting sugar, eggs, and a Betty Crocker Cookbook so you can deal with the flour productively.

I'd like to thank all for tuning in. Congratulations to the winners. And to those of you who lost, keep trying. there's always next year...

Elizabeth Luciano is a Collegian columnist.

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

The Student Activities Trust Fund is a mandatory $48/semester, fee paid by undergraduates. The Student Senate allocates this money for various student activities every year. The SGA Budgets Committee is the group of students that the Senate relies on to determine which groups will receive funding as well as how much funding. The SGA Finance Committee is another group that allocates money for student activities. The figures below are for fiscal year 1985 (7/1/84 - 6/30/85).

If you have any questions, comments, or hate mail to send please contact: Joseph W. Sparks, Chairperson, SGA Budgets Committee, 420 SUB, 545-0341. If you don't like the way your money is being spent, maybe YOU should join the Budgets Committee.

SGA Budgets Committee
Joseph W. Sparks, Chair
Jennifer Darling
Alfred Loomer
Michael Oduro

TO: All RSOs

FROM: SGA Budgets Committee

RE: Funding

On behalf of the SGA Budgets Committee, I invite all eligible RSOs to submit a budget proposal for Fiscal Year 1986 (7/1/85-6/30/86). Instructions for submitting a proposal are contained in the SGA Budgets Committee Financial Policies and Funding Guide. Copies are available in Room 420 SUB, 9-10 a.m., M-F. It is important that you get your Funding Guide as soon as possible. Groups that are not eligible for funding from the Budgets Committee include:

1. Religious groups
2. Academic groups
3. Residential Area groups
4. Un-registered RSOs
5. Non-RSOs

If you have any questions, stop by 420 SUB or call 545-0341.

Sincerely,

Joseph W. Sparks, Chairman
SGA Budgets Committee

JWS:ek

POSITION AVAILABLE

Asst. to Budgets Committee Chairperson

The Assistant Aids the SGA Budgets Committee in allocating $2 million of student funds

For more information call JR 545-0341

Women and people of color are encouraged to apply. The Student Senate is an AA/EEO employer. Applications are available in Room 420 SUB. Deadline for applications is 10-23-84.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION-STUDENT SENATE
Budget Act Comparison
Fiscal Year 1983-84 v. 1984-85

REVENUE	FY '85
18,600 Students @ $96.00 =	$ 1,785,600.00
Returning SATF	103,750.00
Stockbridge Contribution	3,000.00	$ 1,892,350.00
Less: Fee Based Expenditures
UPC @ $3.00/student	55,800.00
DVP @ $1.50/student	27,900.00
PVTA @ $22.00/student	409,200.00
Area Governments @ $9.60/student	178,560.00	671,460.00
		$ 1,220,890.00
Less: Reserves
Captial Equipment @ 3%	36,626.70
Stabilization @ 2%	24,417.80	61,044.50
		$ 1,159,845.50
Less: SAO	373,933.00	785,912.50
Less: Five College Buses	39,065.00	746,847.50
Total Allocated		$ 746,838.28
BALANCE		$ 9.22

Account Number	Account Name	FY '85	FY '84	Difference
3-26237	Academic Affairs	$ 22,117.54	$ 31.741.54	$(9,624.00)
3-26532	African Student Association	1,014.70	-0-	1,014.70
3-26688	Afrik-Am	19,280.67	20.072.20	(791.53)
3-26679	Ahora	9,448.30	10,066.55	(618.25)
3-26808	American Indian Student Association	1,589.20	-0-	1,589.20
3-26683	Asian American Student Association	4,019.40	4,186.00	(166.60)
3-26244	Attorney General	6,564.00	5,309.20	1,254.80
3-26450	Black Mass Communication Project	6,340.05	10,878.62	(4,538.57)
3-26817	Boltwood Project	2,442.00	2,467.75	(25.75)
3-26228	Campaign Fund	1,500.00	1,500.00	-0-
3-26786	Cape Verdean Student Alliance	789.20	-0-	789.20
3-26907	Coalition for Environmental Quality	519.34	-0-	519.34
3-26232	Committee Public Policy	7,792.55	7,792.55	-0-
3-26449	Concepto Latino	646.00	-0-	646.00
3-26507	Discover New England Club	228.80	-0-	228.80
3-26454	Drum	16,513.50	17,875.50	(1,362.00)
3-26489	Dyslexic Student Organization	374.82	470.00	(95.18)
3-26321	Economic Development Office	32,529.00	29,115.57	3,413.43
3-26285	Finance/Budgets	10,000.00	9,886.65	113.35
3-26214	Finance/Conference	37,000.00	37,000.00	-0-
3-26828	Fire & First Aid	461.00	-0-	461.00
3-26222	Governmental Affairs	4,230.90	3,639.90	591.00
3-26456	Index	16,000.00	31,541.66	(15,541.66)
3-26702	Korean Student Association	602.40	602.40	-0-
3-26253	Legal Services Office	123,874.31	113,401.28	10,473.03
3-26730	Lesbian Union	472.20	461.00	11.20
3-26459	Nummo News	16,746.50	17,948.88	(1,202.38)
3-26297	Off-Campus Housing Office	15,000.00	13,009.02	1,990.98
3-26266	Office of Third World Affairs	41,932.10	36,776.82	5,155.28
3-26751	People's Gay Alliance	2,316.16	3,063.00	(746.84)
3-26225	President's Office	20,039.20	19,781.00	258.20
3-26756	Radical Student Union	1,605.00	1,605.00	-0-
3-26367	Recycling Project	500.00	700.00	(200.00)
3-26684	Republican Club	1,280.00	-0-	1,280.00
3-26220	Senate Governing Board	1,286.40	-0-	1,286.40
3-26201	Senate Operations	65,484.24	60,116.13	5,368.11
3-26234	Senate Rents & Fees	2,435.85	3,008.50	(572.65)
3-26461	Spectrum	13,265.25	13,822.00	(556.75)
3-26742	State Student Assoc. of Mass.	2,111.80	2,665.00	(553.20)
3-26249	SCERA	88,248.50	92,822.75	(4,574.25)
3-26230	SGA Affirmative Action Office	6,696.00	7,585.00	(889.00)
3-26207	SGA Communications Office	17,786.60	19,245.25	(1,458.65)
3-26271	SGA Payoffs	13,200.00	13,200.00	-0-
3-26810	SAFA	912.80	584.00	328.80
3-26720	Third World Theatre Series	6,500.00	4,000.00	2,500.00
3-26529	Twenty-five Plus Club	1,607.50	1,631.40	(23.90)
3-26572	UMass Amateur Radio Association	330.00	290.00	40.00
3-26317	UMass Credit Union	10,388.75	11,544.70	(1,155.95)
N/A	University Child Care	$ 6,093.70	$ 6,621.50	$(527.80)
3-26242	University Judiciary	1,722.75	1,722.75	-0-
3-26310	Union Video Center	23,999.70	20,827.82	3,171.88
3-26513	Veteran's Service Organization	871.30	871.50	(.20)
3-26696	WMLASC	1,089.63	1,245.65	(156.02)
3-26465	WMUA	52,691.17	54,222.20	(1,531.03)
3-26471	Women's Leadership Project	4,347.50	4,381.50	(34.00)
	TOTAL	$ 746,838.28	$ 763,513.14	$(16,674.86)

Ellington's music lives on

By NANCY A. BUKAR
Collegian Staff

How does one do justice to the great music of Duke Ellington? It is not a task easily accomplished but the cast of Sophisticated Ladies have done a fine job.

The musical revue-show of Ellington's music played to a matinee and evening crowd Sunday at the Fine Arts Center. The matinee performance was almost sold out, except for the nose-bleed sections. With the exception of a few minor mistakes during the performance, the show ran fairly smoothly.

It took some time for the show to gain momentum. The second act seemed more powerful and exciting than the first although both had their finer moments.

Sophisticated Ladies premise placed the audience in the Cotton Club during a performance. The Cotton Club was a nightclub in Harlem during the 1930s and 40s, serving as a showcase for new jazz talent. Each song had a story line, performed by the actors. A total of thirty-three songs were performed during the evening, some better executed than others.

"Caravan", a song written by Ellington in 1937 with a flight theme, had the nine actors forming an airplane wing with the lead singer, Roger Spivy, as a propeller. The visual effect was amusing and very enjoyable.

The highlight of the show was Freda Payne, a regular and well-known performer on the New York nightclub circuit. Payne has an amazing voice; this woman knows how to put emotion into a song. Her stage presence is an intense one and she managed to command attention without upstaging any of the other performers.

A duet by Payne and Alison Mann on "Mood Indigo" and "I Got It Bad and That Ain't Good" was simply executed and close to perfect. The harmony of Mann's and Payne's voice was stellar. The lighting and staging of this song were simple to emphasize the power of these women's voices. It worked very well.

The most amusing number in the show came in the second act. "I'm Just A Lucky So-And-So", a comical song with lyrics by Mack David, had four of the actors as part of a taxi-cab costume, singing background, and the lead singer, Dan Strayhorn, as the taxi-cab driver. Again, a witty, visual delight for the audience and a good interpretation of Ellington's music.

The finale of the show presented the performers in all-white satin outfits, singing the classic "It Don't Mean a Thing", giving the audience a light, happy feeling to leave the theater with. The company did a good job paying tribute to one of the greatest songwriters of our time.

An evening with Singer

By JULIE BENNETT
Collegian Correspondent

Has anyone ever dreamed of having tea and cookies with a Nobel prize winner ? I hadn't, but I did get the opportunity--not only to dream so for a few moments, but also to meet such a person, Isaac Bashevis Singer, under these circumstances. Singer was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1978 for his work in short stories and novels about Jewish life in eastern Europe. Amherst and Smith Colleges' Hillel groups arranged an evening free of charge for Singer to speak, read a recent story of his and attend an informal reception.

Indeed there was a sincere warmth about this man as he shuffled along slowly and deliberately, and came to stand hunched over at the podium in front of his readers. Beyond his narrow pink face, sparse white hair and bright bluish eyes stood his singular success at the art, his art of storytelling. In his speech, he related many anecdotes by personifying the Yiddish language, Thereby getting at the heart of his culture, and then discussed at length the validity of Yiddish as a language and not just a dialect.

After more than an hour, Mr. Singer retired to his chair where he signed many of his books-- "Love I.B. Singer." He said when I presented him my copy of The Collected Stories "I really do mean love. I love all my readers."

He says, "I write everyday" although not everything written, in his estimation, is good. He has a friend under his desk to whom he gives his unworthy pieces,--his wastebasket. Sometimes he is so inspired, he will write an idea into a story the same day, and other times there will be an intermediary period between conceiving and writing, but again, he says it does not correlate with quality.

One woman asked if he always writes in Yiddish, to which he answered: "Everything is done so initially, and then translated. With this in mind, I asked if it was not for the flavor and style the language imparts when translated, since I knew from the prefaces and afterwords he has written from English that he can write perfectly well in his second language. Singer gave us a look and a smile of verification just before getting up to leave, and said he must write about what he knows, in the way he knows best. Otherwise, the style is false and readers will know that. He shook hands, nodded in appreciation as we did to him, and wished us "Happy New Year."

Documentary director Yates promotes new films

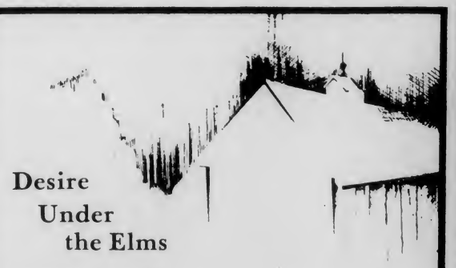
By ELAINE SENAY
Collegian Staff

Pamela Yates, co-director and cinematographer of two documentaries on the Central America conflict, was in the Amherst area last week to promote the two films. She also discussed the new approach of one of the films, When the Mountains Tremble. It has been termed a "docudrama" because it has both documentary-style footage as well as recreations of historical events.

These two elements, archive footage and dramatic recreation, are integrated to make the documentary "more exciting", said Yates. The events and people dramatized are real, she continued, "we based the recreations on documents recently declassified under the Freedom of Information Act."

continued on pg. 14

Fantasia
Uncommon Plants
For Home, Gifts,
and Greenhouse
266 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
253-7070



Desire
Under the Elms
by EUGENE O'NEILL
October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

"The feel-good movie of 1983."
Richard Corliss, TIME MAGAZINE
How much love, sex, fun and friendship can a person take?
THE BIG CHILL
In a cold world you need your friends to keep you warm.
R

October 17th
Campus Center Auditorium
5, 7, 9 and 11
$1.50 for 5 and 7
$2.00 for 9 and 11

Presents
ALL AGES
SON SEALS BLUES BAND

BLUEWALL OCT. 19 10 PM
TIX ON SALE AT THE DOOR
UMASS $4.00
PUBLIC $5.00

Arts

REM and the db's rock the Fine Arts Center

R.E.M. guitarist Peter Buck sings during Monday's Fine Arts Center Performance.

By JON STRYMISH
Collegian Staff
REM, the db's
Monday, October 15
Fine Arts Center

An era of southern rock died in an airplane crash with Lynyrd Skynyrd and in a motorcycle crash with Duane Allman. Everyone smiled at these bands with their walls of guitars and stadium shows because they created an atmosphere of fun. New party bands played at the Fine Arts Center on Monday.

During the db's set, REM guitarist Peter Buck joined the openers on stage for a mock Southern Jam featuring three guitarists bending backwards. REM walk a fine line between being the most exciting band in America and being just an infectious little pop band. The first hour and a half of their show caught them on the disappointing side which they crossed over for an hour on the strength of the songs from their Chronic Town ep and novelty songs such as "Moon River", "2525", "Wild Thing", and the classic southern rock anthem "Ghost Riders in the Sky."

The db's are a slightly bland Beatlesque band whose sound is geared towards singles. Their set was competent and they had a sense of humor. Unfortunately they were drowned out by the crowd's excitement over REM. Their songs are pleasant and they have the down-to-earth air of high school students. The crowd failed to acknowledge them until REM's Mike Mills stepped on stage and told the audience to clap. This demonstrates the only band-in-town attitude that develops around popular cult groups such as REM, whose fans don't allow room for other bands' achievements. The db's are older and more experienced and though their songs are not as memorable as REM's, they are hotter.

Guitarist Peter Buck can build a wall of guitar all by himself. Mills who started out as a simple player, has become a virtuoso, but singer Michael Stipe's trademark is beginning to sound worse. When he spoke loudly and clearly between songs I began to wonder if what has seemed like a good idea had just become another mindless marketing ploy. Stipe, whose stage personality reminds me of the junior high hippy character M&M from the book That Was Then This Is Now, has become cold and aloof as if he was tired of his character.

Drummer Bill Berry, the group's anchor, sticks to simple rhythms to fuel the driving beat the group needs for the success of their "blues rearranged" sound. He was on time but tuned out, as if life on the road has left him tired and bored. He symbolized REM's problem, which is that they were good, maybe even too good for what they are playing, but since they are purveyers of simple music, they must be special to live up to their name.

They lived up to their image of being young and fast and sloppy almost too graphically, but lacked the soul or spirit that they have become famous for. REM played all the songs from their albums with the notable exception of "Catapult", the audience's most requested song. Cover songs, normally a strong point for REM who spend a lot of time talking about their roots, were fun selections though not as germane as their usual covers. In the past, bands such as the Byrds and Velvet Underground who have influenced their music dominated their playlist.

Maybe it was the crowd's happy nature or the bands stupor, but the audience had a good time, and almost everyone was smiling.

Another Country shows sensative schoolboys

By DON NAREY
Collegian Staff

Somewhere in Guy Burgess's journey from aristocracy to exile lies an extraordinary story of privilege and disloyalty, a story of a man who, after gaining great respect in the British government, commits high treason and defects to the Soviet Union. Julian Mitchell's Another Country makes no attempt to tell that story, it offers no new insight into the young Burgess's school years as the backdrop for a fictitious journey through the citadels of the English upper class that produced men like him.

Lofty British actor Rupert Everett creates a quietly eccentric Guy Bennett (the thinly disguised Burgess), who is not only openly gay, but uses it to blackmail former schoolmate encounters. Bennett is so irresistibly sly that those rare instances of emotion are extremely intense. Everett is well complimented by Colin Firth who plays his cold, but loyal friend Tommy Judd. Judd is a hardened communist who takes his social righteousness to the point of hilarity.

Debuting director Marek Kaniewka creates a backdrop of great pomp and circumstance in which Bennett, with Tommy Judd at his side, sidesteps one crisis after another until a commitment to his new love prevents him from using his usual weapon, blackmail.

Aside from questioning the nighttime integrity of proper British schoolboys, this film makes very few social and no political implications. It is however a compelling story of the emotional aspects and angst of early manhood.

A THIN LINE
SEPARATES LOVE
FROM HATE, SUCCESS
FROM FAILURE, LIFE FROM DEATH.
A LINE AS DIFFICULT TO WALK
AS A RAZOR'S EDGE.

THE RAZOR'S EDGE
THE STORY OF ONE MAN'S SEARCH FOR HIMSELF.
COLUMBIA PICTURES PRESENTS
A MARCUCCI-COHEN-BENN PRODUCTION A JOHN BYRUM FILM
BILL MURRAY
"THE RAZOR'S EDGE" BASED ON THE CLASSIC NOVEL BY W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM
THERESA RUSSELL CATHERINE HICKS DENHOLM ELLIOTT AS UNCLE ELLIOT AND JAMES KEACH
WRITTEN BY JACK NITZSCHE STORY BY JOHN BYRUM & BILL MURRAY DIRECTED BY ROB COHEN
PRODUCED BY ROBERT P. MARCUCCI AND HARRY BENN DIRECTED BY JOHN BYRUM
READ THE PENGUIN BOOK
PG-13
OPENS OCTOBER 19

Before You Buy
Check Our LOW Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From
Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs. nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

★ Yates

continued from pg. 12

Another aspect of the filmmaking process was the danger and risk of filming in a war zone. "The dangers are inherent," said Yates, "the most obvious is you're filming a war where people are shooting each other."

When the Mountains Tremble discusses the current situation in Guatemala and filming took six months. "In Guatemala, the government made journalists a target," explained Yates, "many foreign journalists were turned away at the airport at the start of the conflict."

"Traveling and meeting with people might involve night trips with the guerillas or night patrols with the army. The beauty of the journalist is to be able to talk to all sides," said Yates. "But we couldn't tell each side who we were talking to," added Yates. She and Thomas Sigel, co-director and cinematographer, spoke to all sides in the conflict: military, guerillas, community and church organizations. Yates explained that none of them would have appreciated or understood why the filmmakers were talking to everyone.

Yates said she believed that the two documentaries provide "additional information to the foreign U.S. policy debate on Central America." By the end of 1984, the documentaries will be shown in ten more cities and on public television.

Yates stated that When the Mountains Tremble and Nicaragua: Report from the Front have already been shown in thirty cities including Northampton. Yates said, that she has been "overwhelmed by the response of the film."

SAVE 15%

SPORT SPOT

the SPOT For Your HOCKEY Needs

15% Off All Hockey Equipment and Skates

Special Orders Available

CCM, Jofa, Titan, Koho, Riedell

IN THE CAMPUS PLAZA

Next to Super Stop & Shop, Rte 9 Hadley/Amherst Line

personal checks accepted

offer good with this coupon thru 10/25/84

In one hour, you can try to break "Tiny" Terwilliger's record* of eating six extra large pizzas with anchovies or learn how to slice your study time in half.

And that's no fish story. As you'll discover by coming to one of our free One Hour Seminars. Where you'll also discover how to enjoy more free time in college. For whatever you want to do. Eating pizzas. Attending rock concerts. Partying. Or engaged in trivial pursuit.

At our free seminar, we'll also show you how you can triple your reading effectiveness, raise your grade point average, and end your cramming forever.

Bring a friend and join us at our seminar. It's only an hour. It's free. And it's a smart move on your part. No matter how you slice it.

Free Seminar Schedule

LOCATION: MURRAY D. LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER

WEDNESDAY 10/17 2PM, 4PM AND 6PM - ROOM 917

THURSDAY 10/18 11AM, 1PM AND 3PM - ROOM 174-176

Choose the day and time most convenient for you. Reservations not necessary. For more information call 1 (800) 447-READ.

EvelynWood College Programs

JUSTIN RYAN'S The Meeting Place

Come Sing Along With

JIM PLUNKETT

LADIES NIGHT

25¢ Drinks from 8-10

Free Buffet

DYNASTY NIGHT

See all the Action 9 PM

"How'd you like a hat like mine?
Only a buck."
Comedian Buck Henry, TV Spokesman for Cadbury's new WISPA
Cadbury's Wispa
Cadbury's Wispa

"Even if you're not an angel, you can have your own Halo Hat just like mine. All you do is send $1.00 and six wrappers from Cadbury's new WISPA, the textured milk chocolate bar—tastes like nothing on earth. And the Halo Hat, of course, will go right to your head."

Bite it and believe! Peter Paul Cadbury

OK, I want to join the WISPA Angels. Send me my very own, official Buck Henry Halo Hat (suggested retail value $11.00). I've enclosed $1.00 and six complete WISPA wrappers for each hat ordered (size adjustable).

Send: $1.00 plus the complete (outer) wrappers from any six WISPA bars

Mail to: WISPA "Halo Hat" Offer P.O. Box 568 Wethersfield, CT 06109

(Please Print)

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

Number of hats _____

Allow 6 to 8 weeks for delivery. Offer expires March 31, 1985. Peter Paul Cadbury Inc. 1984

Hypercurricula

COMSTU CLUB ELECTIONS — come to our meeting today at 4:00 in Machmer E-32 B. We will be discussing amongst other things, our projects to qualify seeing our annual trip to Late Night With David Letterman. All are encouraged to go!

THE NEW MEDICAL-INDUSTRIAL COMPLEX Arnold Relman, M.D. of the New England Journal of Medicine will talk about the corporatization of the medical delivery system and the ensuing implications. 10-11:30, Campus Center room 808.

EDITORIAL ISSUES: MEDICINE, PUBLIC HEALTH Talks and panel discussions. Journals represented: Medical Care, Canadian Journal of Public Health, New England Journal of Medicine, Milbank Memorial Fund Quarterly, American Journal of Public Health. 1p.m.-5p.m. Campus center room 101.

ISRAELI DANCING There will be no Israeli Dancing on Wednesday, Oct. 17. Next meeting is Oct. 24.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM MEETING Open meeting for all members and others interested in becoming members to discuss programming for this semester. 6:30 p.m., location to be announced.

WOMEN'S CAUCUS University women and all women senators are encouraged to attend this gathering. 4:00 p.m., the location will be posted Monday in the Senate office.

STUDY ABROAD FAIR Informational gathering for all students interested in studying abroad for the year, semester, or summer. Literature, slides, and returned students from studying abroad will be on hand to talk about their experiences. 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Campus Center Concourse.

"AMERICAS IN TRANSITION" A short educational film on U.S. foreign policy in Central America, followed by a discussion with UMass students who have lived in Nicaragua. All welcome! 7:30 p.m., Brett Lounge.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY MEETING Ben Kaghan will speak and present a slideshow on the BCC's Fifth Annual Central American Expedition 1984-1985. 7:00 p.m., Rm. 312 Holdsworth Hall.

CHESS CLUB Upcoming tournaments to be discussed. All levels welcome. Please bring your chess set if possible. 8-11 p.m., Campus Center room 905.

LUTHERAN CAMPUS FELLOWSHIP Supper and program - "Church, State, and Culture in Sweden" presented by the Rev. John K. Stendahl. 5:30-7:30 p.m., Immanuel Lutheran Church, 867 N. Pleasant St., Amherst.

SCERA ANTI-RACISM TEAM INTRO MEETING Join an organization devoted to eradicating personal and institutional injustice thru education and political advocacy activities. A safe place for all who want to learn more about themselves and the world around us. 5:00 p.m., Campus center room 902.

ASTROPHOTOGRAPHY FOR AMATEURS Learn all about photographing the stars, galaxies, planets and heavenly bodies from amateur astronomer Mike Wenz. Everyone welcome to astronomy club meeting. Free refreshments. 7 p.m., Grad Tower room 1053.

WOMEN'S LIFECYCLE AND NUTRITIONAL NEEDS is the title of a talk to be given by Veda Andrus as part of the Brown Bag lunch series. Noon-2 p.m., Campus Center room 805-9.

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
549-5610

FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.-$40.

STYLE CUTS only $7.00

expires 10/30/84
valid with this ad

HALLOWEEN Decorations
Masks & Makeup
at
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

LAGNAF 85

UMASS SKI CLUB

Be Part of the Tradition

SUGARBUSH VALLEY

Ski and Party Week

14th Annual BUSH BASH

Jan. 20 - 25

Package Includes:
5½ Day Lift Ticket
5 Nights' Lodging
Continental Breakfast
(hotel only)
Free Beer & Wine Parties
Famous UMass Parties
All Taxes & Gratuities
Condo Package $194.
Hotel Package $149.

For more info 545-3437
call UMass Ski Club 430A SUB
Info and Sign Up Metings:
Monday - Campus Center Room 162 at 4:00 pm
Wed. - Hampden Commons, Southwest 7:00 pm

New Vintage!

The fall collection from Jeffrey Banks, New York. Updating the classic silhouette with new texture and color. An understated difference. See it now. At Chona Men.

JEFFREY BANKS

CHONA MEN
CONTEMPORARY FASHION FOR MEN
2nd FLOOR THORNES MARKETPLACE NORTHAMPTON 584-7901

FACULTY

The Textbook Annex Needs Your HELP

Be Sure to give us your textbook requirements for the Spring semester !!

We would like to provide the most efficient service possible, but we need your help.

Please Send Us Your Orders By

October 25th

1 Your early orders will enable us to check orders to eliminate some of the problems that might arise. We can order from the publishers sooner and reduce the risk of out of stock situations. This will also help us avoid the problem of having your books held up in the holiday mails

2 We can buy books back from the students at the end of this semester and pay good prices for them if we know what you plan to use for the Spring semester

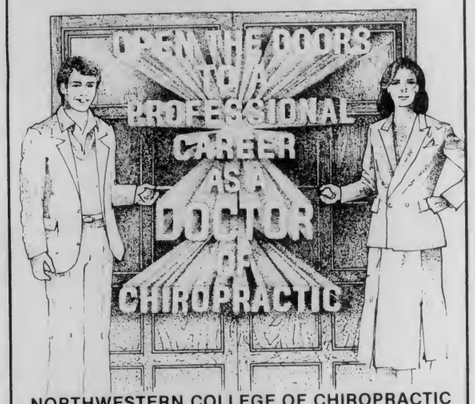
3 Department secretaries have textbook information forms or you may request them from the Textbook Annex

We appreciate your cooperation and if the Annex staff can assist you, please do not hesitate to call (545-3570-1-2)

Justina Kielec
Faculty Liaison

Russell Evans
Textbook Manager

The return of unsold textbooks to publishers will begin October 25th. Please notify your students to purchase the textbooks needed for the remainder of the semester prior to this date.



NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE OF CHIROPRACTIC

As the need for specialized health care continues to grow, Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you enter a satisfying career taking care of people as a Doctor of Chiropractic.

Committed to high standards in education and research for over 40 years, Northwestern offers you comprehensive chiropractic training on a modern campus distinguished for its excellent facilities and dedicated teaching staff.

If you would like to know how Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you achieve your career goals, complete the form below or call the admissions office TOLL FREE at 1-800-328-8322, Extension 290 or collect at (612) 888-4777.

Please send me more information on
Northwestern College of Chiropractic

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Phone ( ) _____ Years of college experience _____

SEND TO: Northwestern College of Chiropractic,
Admissions Office, 2501 West 84th Street,
Bloomington, Minnesota 55431 401
1-800-328-8322, Extension 290; collect at (612) 888-4777

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

MIKE, WHY IS REAGAN EVEN BOTHERING WITH BLACK VOTERS? HE HARDLY NEEDS THEM.
WELL, CASSIE SAYS HIS PEOPLE WANT TO BROADEN HIS MANDATE..
THEY'RE ALSO TRYING TO COUNTER A NEW NONPARTISAN STUDY THAT'S FOUND THAT BLACKS OF ALL CLASSES ARE DRAMATICALLY WORSE OFF AS A RESULT OF REAGAN POLICIES.
I'M SUPPOSED TO COME UP WITH A SLOGAN THAT MAKES THE POINT THAT REAGAN HAS IGNORED ALL THE DISADVANTAGED, NOT BLACKS PER SE.
"REAGAN: HE'S NO RACIST."
THAT'S JUST A ROUGH DRAFT. I WANT TO PLAY AROUND WITH IT SOME MORE.

Today's Weather

Today: Partly sunny and cool with highs in the 60's.
Tonight: Partly cloudy and cold with lows in the 30s.
Tommorrow: Sunny, breezy and cool with highs in the 60s.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

ATTENTION RIOT POLICE! THE STUDENT RADICALS HAVE DROPPED THEIR DEMAND THAT JEANE KIRKPATRICK BE NAMED GRAND POOBAH OF THE WORLD! DON'T ATTACK! THEY'RE COMING OUT! BE COOL!
CRASH!
PHSSSS!
I'LL HANDLE IT! GANGWAY! WATCH IT! I'LL HANDLE IT!!
PHSSS
THE FIRST MARTYR OF THE REVOLUTION WOULD LIKE TO REPORT THAT TEAR GAS EXPLODES UPON FLUSHING

Attention University Women

Collegian Recruitment Meeting for women interested in writing Women's Issues and News.

****

7 p.m. tonight in the Collegian office

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Gorde — by Gorde

A FLOOR PARTY AT BAKER...
UH, MANGO, ISN'T THAT GORDE OVER THERE?
YEP
HE'S LOOSE!! YOU'RE NOT EVEN WATCHING HIM!! ARE YOU CRAZY!
JESSE THAT YOU?
FRITZ IS IT'S
LOOK, LES... YOU'RE LETTING YOUR ROOMMATE WALK AROUND RAMS-ING THAT HE'S KING ARTHUR!!
PARDON ME
LES, COME ON! THIS IS A FLOOR PARTY... PEOPLE WILL JUST THINK HE'S DRUNK
OH!

The Lab — by Law

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC PRESENTS "OUR FRIENDS THE PRIMATES..."
HERE IN THE TROPICAL FOREST WE FIND "PONGO PUGNACEOUS" KNOWN BY EVERYONE AS THE "WILD MAN OF BORNEO"
LESSER KNOWN IS "PANUS BALLONOSUS" SOMETIMES CALLED THE "MOOCH OF MADAGASCAR" BY OUR COOK.

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman

YEAH! sounds that dogs make at times like this Sounds nothing! It's snakhead's other half, Saul.
You're different from me. I'm in a diff. dimension.
Two schools of art/thought
Are you a god?
No. I just ask stupid questions
He'd be easier to understand if he kept still.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

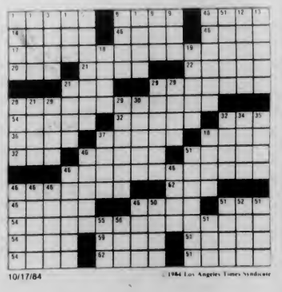
ACROSS
1 Becomes a bookworm
6 Bland expletive
10 Freebies to some
14 Set — (snare)
15 Buffalo Bill's home state
16 Winnie — Pu
17 Versatile person
20 Before tray
21 Cleopatra's river
22 Tatum
23 Application
24 Cry of acclamation
26 Part of some tenancies
31 Brou staffer
32 Skives
33 Pacino namesakes
36 — Israel
37 Arctic pullover
38 Marksman
39 Babi —
40 Aunt in Avignon
41 Artificial manner
42 Johnny jump-up?
44 Nears a due date
47 Anchor projection
48 Bates et al
49 Commando supplies
51 Occur
54 Woodland herb
58 Great Plains native
59 Gravy follower
60 Nightspot
61 Coffee break, e.g.
62 Part of A M
63 Wooden golf club

DOWN
1 Malay chief
2 Greek H's
3 Saucy
4 Fargo, N. —
5 Backer
6 Safe opener often
7 Typecast item
8 Woodworking tool
9 Make animal sounds
10 Rain forest vines
11 Ancient
12 City in SW New York
13 Unit of magnetic flux
18 Feudal estate
19 American Beauties
23 Maui guitars for short
24 Listen
25 Zoological suffix
26 Singer Collins
27 Area east of the Urals
28 Entertainer from El Centro
29 Move quickly (with "along")
30 Saucy regiment
31 Pequod helmsman
34 Identifying symbol
35 River of myth
37 Tempo
38 Pipe part
40 Footbones
41 Para flute (cord)
42 Tour
43 Puts checkers
44 Kind of league
45 Axillary
46 Tijuana snacks
49 At the drop of —
50 Disburse sparingly (with out)
51 Lhasa —
52 Rich in Madrid
53 School near the Thames
55 Hooligans (sl.)
56 Bon —
57 Bank talk

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

L	A	S	T	■	S	N	O	B	■	C	A	T	S
A	G	U	E	■	H	A	D	E	S	■	U	R	S	A
M	A	N	A	G	E	M	E	N	T	■	P	E	A	R
A	N	G	L	E	■	B	A	S	■	B	O	A	R	D
S	A	L	■	A	M	Y	■	A	L	L	■	■	■	■
■	A	D	R	I	P	■	I	D	E	A	T	E	S	■
C	A	S	E	■	D	A	N	N	Y	S	■	H	R	H
O	N	S	E	T	■	M	O	T	S	■	T	R	I	A
R	T	E	■	A	M	B	L	E	S	■	W	E	E	D
P	A	S	S	K	E	Y	■	R	E	I	A	■	■	■
■	■	■	T	E	R	■	P	A	R	■	O	D	I	T
E	A	S	Y	R	I	D	E	R	■	E	M	B	E	R
P	H	I	L	■	T	A	K	E	I	T	E	A	S	Y
I	S	L	E	■	S	T	E	T	S	■	A	R	K	S
C	O	L	D	■	■	E	S	S	E	■	T	E	S	T

10/17/84



10/17/84 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

COMSTU CLUB
Elections are TODAY
at 4:00 in Machmer E-32B.
All should attend. We will also talk about our annual trip to see
Late Night
With David Letterman

Yes, Bradlees!

Great price on Ruggedwear by B.O.G. flannel shirts

Comfortable and warm plaid flannel shirts team up well with your favorite jeans or casual pants. Of cotton-polyester, Sanforized for shrinkage control. Detailed with two button-flap chest pockets. At savings like this, you'll want to buy several in colors to round out your wardrobe. S-M-L-XL.

2 FOR 10.00 REG. 7.99 EA.

SALE NOW THRU SATURDAY

the department store with a difference

Bradlees

One of The Stop & Shop Companies

CHICOPEE • NORTHAMPTON • SPRINGFIELD • W. SPRINGFIELD

10-2-1

★ the UConn game

continued from pg. 20

The Minutemen ranked seventh in New England with a 6-4-2 mark, have improved over last year's 1-8-4 record at this time mostly because of the addition of some scoring punch, so sorely lacking last season.

Freshman Kurt Manal, an import from Canada, who has had his scoring difficulties of late (only one penalty kick goal in his last three games) because of tight marking, still has the potential to open up the game any time. He leads the team in scoring with seven goals and 16 points.

Because of his being double and triple teamed it has opened it up for the other UMass forwards and midfielders, who have to learn to take better advantage of their opportunities. Paul Serafino has done well in this aspect lately, compiling three goals and an assist being spotted at wing along with Ferdie Adoboe, who despite injuries, has four assists and has set up numerous more chances. Nick Marciane has also contributed.

Midfielders Andy Bing and John Shannon, with three goals and two goals and an assist respectively have filled in well when they are called upon and along with freshman Matt Cushing, who has had a disappointing season scoring, has still controlled the ball well, and should make a formidable midfield in the future.

UMass vs. UConn

Where: Boyden Field
When: Today at 3 p.m.
The Records: UConn is 10-5-0, UMass is 6-4-2
The Rankings: UConn is first in New England and expected to be in the top ten nationally (polls come out today), UMass is seventh in New England.
Players to Watch: UMass forward Kurt Manal has been in a slump as of late, but is an offensive powerhouse. Midfielder Matt Cushing has played well along with forward Nick Marciano.

Field hockey looks to win against Harvard

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team will try to rebound from Sunday's 7-1 loss to Old Dominion University today as the Minutemen travel to Cambridge to take on a 2-5 Harvard University team.

Sunday's loss to the defending national champions and current number one ranked team in the country was the first for eighth ranked UMass since they suffered an opening game defeat at the hands of North Carolina on September seventh. During their ten game winning streak UMass notched seven shut-outs including a streak of five straight.

"I hope our attitude will be the same as it has been all season," said UMass coach Pam Hixon. "We should go out there and play hard. We have to fire up and play aggressively like we did before the loss. We have to forget about Old Dominion, get a big win, and get back on track."

"Harvard is a quick team [illegible] they've had an inconsistent season. They have not played well against weak teams yet they have played strong against the better teams they have faced."

"They're unpredictable so we have to be conscious of them and not throw the game into the wind," said Hixon.

"We'll take the first twenty minutes, see what they are doing and take it from there," she added.

The team will be without their leading scorer, freshman forward Tonia Kennedy who sprained her ankle in Saturday's 2-1 victory over Temple University in OT.

"We won't change our playing style without Tonia in there," said Hixon.

"We'll basically play the same way, we'd just have different people in different positions. Our philosophy will be the same, we will take the ball down the right and work on crossing the ball to the inside forwards."

The game is in Cambrige at 3 p.m. this afternoon.

EVERY WEDNESDAY 7-1 FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge

Tennis crushes Westfield

By BRYAN QUENZEL
Collegian Correspondent

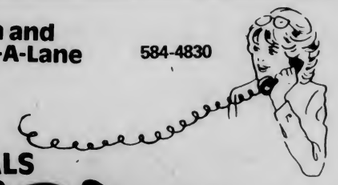
It was no contest on the Boyden courts yesterday as the University of Massachusetts mens tennis team destroyed Westfield 8-1. The Minutemen improved their record to 5-3.

UMass was led by the play of top seeded Wayne Peterson and senior co-captain John Sommerstein. Peterson breezed through his match with scores of 6-0, 6-0. Sommerstein also had little trouble with his opponent as he won 6-1, 6-2.

The Minutemen are on a three game roll going into their final two matches. They face Army Thursday and then the University of Vermont Saturday. Roberts thinks they will be two of the toughest matches this fall. Both matches are away.

The women made a good showing at the MAIAW tennis tournament held in Worcester over the weekend. UMass was the runner-up to Wellsely College in the seven team class A division.

Phone In and Reserve-A-Lane 584-4830



SPECIALS

Monday Wednesday Friday 12noon to 5PM 75¢ per game

9 AM to 12noon Sunday 75¢ per game

9 PM to close Friday Nite Owl Special 75¢ per game

LIMITED OFFER

NORTHAMPTON BOWL
525 Pleasant St.

Shear Delight

Beauty Salon
228 Triangle St.
Amherst

549-1502

COMPLETE HAIRSTYLING FOR MEN and WOMEN

Hours: Tues-Sat
9:00-5:30
Walk Ins Welcome

WASH CUT & BLO-DRI $10

offer good thru 10/20/84 reg. $12

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498.

* ATTENTION *

Jo & Player & Teri & Melissa & Tricia & Gail & Mary & Liz & Chris & Lauren Thank you for a great day! Miss you so much. Moira

AUDIO

Pioneer AM/FM portable stereo cassette AMS/autoreverd/CRO2 $95 or BO 6-7897

AUTO FOR SALE

1978 Chevy Malibu station wagon engine and body in great shape good mpg new cooling system snow tires and more call 546-9665

1980 Chevette 4-door 57000 miles good condition. Call 256-8151 after 5:30

VW "Thing" collector's item best offer Gene 323-7582

1973 Plymouth Satellite good condition must sell 900 call Wendy 253-3386

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500 serious call only 549-7864

68 Chevy Pickup good work truck best offer call Rick 546-6037

74 Comet no rust excellent engine new transmission reliable $800 or BO tel 549-4926

DEBRA PACKARD
Happy Birthday love George

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $5 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rock A Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rock A Disc Rock A Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-8712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7689

RISKY BUSINESS Thursday 18th SUBallroom $1.50 @ 5:00, $2.00 at 7, 9, 11. Sometimes you have to say "What the !@*"

FOR RENT

2 cubic ft. refrigerator R & P Package Store free delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Twin Mattress and Boxspring 25.00 you must take away call 549-6041

Univega Mountain Bike Landrover Sport call 6-6046 Paul

Sanyo Turntable, new waterbed mattress never used each $40 eves 665-4229 Steve

FOUND

Found a red Canyon backpack on October 11 in the main lobby of the first floor in Hertter Hall. It contained a pair of glasses in a case with the initials CH on the lens. There was also a set of three keys on a purple key chain along with two pens. Please contact 247-5235 if this is your backpack to pick it up

Found small parakeet seems to be somebody's pet. To claim please call 546-8943 Ask for Kathy or Celeste

Grey spotted young cat found on Main St Amherst white flea collar contact 256-1210

I found a ring in Boyden Gym area. Please describe and when you lost it and its yours. Call 256-8772

HELP WANTED

Overseas jobs Summer, yr. round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields $900 - $2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

ATTENTION STUDENTS! Want part time work you can fit between classes? Place and fill posters on campus, earn base and bonuses. Year round possible 1-800-243-6679

Reward free trip to Daytona plus commission money. Wanted, organized group or individual to promote the #1 Spring Break trip to Daytona. If you are interested in our reward call (414) 781-0455 or 1-800-453-9074 immediately! Or write: Designers of Travel, N. 48W 13334 W. Hampton Ave., Menomonee Falls, WI 53061

Part time Bartender needs, nights and weekends. Apply in person "Cheers" located N. Hamp Bowl 525 Pleasant St.

Campus Rep to run Spring Break vacation trip to Daytona Beach. Earn free trip and money. Send resume to College Travel Unlimited P.O. Box 8063 Station A, Daytona Beach, Florida 32022, include phone numbers please

Part time counter help nights and weekends also someone for light janitorial work mornings. Apply in person N. Hamp Bowl 525 Pleasant St.

Mount Snow Ski Resort is accepting applications for a wide variety of positions. Come to Interview Day on Sunday, Nov 11 9 am - 3 pm at Mount Snow's Base Lodge, Rte 100, W. Dover, VT or call/write for an application. (802) 464-3333 Attention Personal, Mount Snow Resort, Mount Snow VT 05356 EOE M/F

Now taking applications for full and part time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person, Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

Government Jobs $16,559-$50,553/year. Now hiring. Your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext R 9618

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas private hot tub rentals call now for reservations 253-7727

INSTRUCTION

Know your car. Basic Automobile Workshop. 28 hours including classroom and shop. Limited enrollment. 253-2096.

Math Tutor, many 100 levels, call Joe, 665-2304, after 5 PM

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Lost brown plastic frame glasses in a red leather case if found contact 6-5641

Jean Jacket Fri night, in Gorman Dorm roll of film, license in brest pocket $20 reward call Ann 8-1430

PERSONALS

Haircuts by Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-8359

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues., Oct 9 to Fri., Oct. 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3 and the 1983 IN DEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

Ron R. Sean #18 Sophisticated Ladies 8 PM with green sweater, pleated beige pants not bad — Row T

The Sleazy Beacon Motel is open for business, but where is my man? Love you guys, Christe

To the girls at Alpha Chi Omega: Thank you!!! Your newest pledge, Annette

Who do YOU know? Who do YOU want to meet? If you KNOW any celebs, V.I.P.'s, musicians etc. have any info or input contact G.P.C. Box 148 SUB or call 545-2733 This is YOUR chance to shine on campus!

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Maine Fri. Oct. 19 after 2:30 will share all expenses Jenny 6-8212 or Laura 6-8317

ROOMMATE WANTED

Non smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344/253-3766

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal Only $79 Boston Bruins game optional Don't be fooled by tours that offer standing room only We have good seats Contact: Kim 546-5126

WANTED

Neat, responsible male needs room Call anytime 665-4878

WANTED TO RENT

One bedroom apartment close to campus Will take over lease in January Please call Jim 549-7852

Sports

Number 1 UConn in town today

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team finds themselves in a different type of game situation this afternoon a game where the pressure is on the other team, as they host number one in New England and nationally ranked power, the University of Connecticut on Boyden field at 3:00 p.m.

"They are a real good team. They grind you up and spit you out if they can. They are a very physical team who try to outwork you. They deserve the number one ranking. It should be the toughest game of the year for us," said coach Jeff Gettler.

UConn, 10-5, is led by junior center forward Matthew Addington (who scored the game tying goal against the Minutemen with only 26 seconds remaining two seasons ago in Amherst) who leads the team with 12 goals. Eric Myren is an All-American midfielder, and Kierman Coffey, a tough sweeper back, are two other players to look out for.

Both Addington and Myren figured prominently in last year's 5-0 debacle won by UConn in Storrs, the Huskies gave UMass a clinic. Addington had a goal and two assists while Myren added a tally of his own. UMass was outshot 17-7 in the contest, which was over at halftime by a 4-0 count.

But this year's Minutemen squad is still one to be reckoned with. The defense and goaltending have been pretty solid giving up only 11 goals in the 12 games they played, while the offense has tallied 19 goals in comparison to ten for all of last season.

"Psychologically, it's a great game to play," commented Gettler. "I don't think there's any pressure on us. No one expects us to win. It's a no lose situation. If we beat UConn, we're right back in the middle of everything."

continued on pg. 19

Massachusetts forward Lisa Merlo dribbles past Dartmouth back Laura Woolman (22) yesterday. UM beat the Big Green 4-0 to clumb to 10-1-2.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Women pound Dartmouth

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

It was their sixth win in a row, the Minutemen's 4-0 thrashing of Dartmouth College yesterday afternoon at Boyden Field.

But the second ranked University of Massachusetts women's soccer team knew that they could play better than they did against the Big Green.

"We need to have a mental application of the skills like we did against UConn and UNH," coach Kalekeni Banda said. "We're not clicking."

Against the Huskies (2-0 win) and the Wildcats (8-0 win), UMass moved the ball with precision and at will, where they wanted to.

Yesterday, the Minutemen moved the ball well at times and at other times, UMass looked sluggish.

"We were real tired," co-captain Lori Stukes said due to a long trip (5 hours one way) to Cortland State. "We tried to outplay them so much that we weren't doing the simple things."

Still, Dartmouth posed no problems for UMass except for the first five minutes or so. "UMass is an excellent team," Big Green coach Scott Allison said. "We started out fairly even but that first goal set us back. We had a tendency to sit back and wait for the ball."

The Minutemen, who outshot Dartmouth by a 20-2 margin, broke 32:33 mark with Jolie DePauw's eleventh goal of the year. The freshman forward played despite a sore hip suffered in a collision with a goalie at Cortland State. Carolyn Micheel assisted on the goal, which was a rocket into the top right corner of the net from 25 yards out.

In the meantime, Chris Schmitt and the UM defense was all over Dartmouth's super scorer Sharon Williams and she never had a chance to add to her 17 goal total on the year.

Catherine Spence, the first Minuteman off the bench, weaved through a crowd of Green defenders and scored at the 12:25 mark to give UMass a 2-0 lead.

Less than thirty seconds later, Spence was at it again. She fed Kristen Bowsher a nice pass which the freshman midfielder chipped into the goal for the 3-0 lead.

"We overmatched them, skills wise," Banda said. It's good, we won and we're happy for that."

Lisa Merlo scored her second goal of the year off a Spence pass with 18:47 to go in the game. Merlo and every player on the team saw action.

"It was nice to see them get in and not lose their composure," Banda said. That will help in crucial games upcoming with Boston College and Harvard.

"We are going to have to play better soccer to beat Harvard and Boston College," Banda said.

Maine: Go to the end of the world and take a left

Dan Leberfeld

"Go to the end of the world and take a left."

This is how Tim Ashwell, the voice of the Minutemen football, describes the location of the University of Maine-Orono.

You see, Vacationland's state university is in the boondocks. It is a hike from most anywhere. This makes recruiting athletes an uphill struggle. This is especially true in football, a sport in which you have to lure a large number of athletes.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Football's not all fun as evidenced here as these four UMass players feel the effects of Richmond's 24-7 victory Saturday.

Some interesting recruiting tales come from up in the northwoods. Take what took place while Maine coach Ron Rogerson was recruiting tailback Lance Theobold.

It was the winter of 1982 and the Elmont, NY native had just finished up a standout career for Holy Cross High School in New York City. It was time for him to decide on a college.

The 5-9, 200 pounder was very interested in UMaine, as they were in him. Before signing with the Yankee Conference school, he wanted to look at it. On February 21, 1982 Theobold began the expedition up to Orono. It was almost the last thing he ever did.

He caught a Pilgrim Airlines small commuter plane out of New York to Boston, to make the connection for an Orono flight. When the plane reached the vicinity of Boston, the pilot discovered he was on fire.

A crash landing was imminent.

Engine complications caused the cockpit fire which forced the pilots crash on the frozen Seituate resevoir. One passenger died, a score were injured including Theobold who suffered a broken foot, facial lacerations and a concussion.

A week later, the scathed but resilient Theobold made the trip again and signed with the school at the end of the world and to the left.

People, Places and Things: the football world realizes how tough it is to coach at UMaine. Before Jack Bicknell got the Boston College job he was coach up there and compiled records of 3-7, 3-7-1, 2-9 and 4-7 over his last four years. He was then hired at BC.

******

UMass split end Bob Simeone plans on becoming a navy fighter pilot after graduation. His ultimate dream is to be an astronaut like his idol Neil Armstrong.

******

Dallas Cowboy's All-Pro tight end Doug Cosbie began his college career at Holy Cross before transferring to Santa Clara.

******

Popular mascot "The Philly Phanatic" (the baseball Phillies) is the son of Delaware football coach Tubby Raymond.

******

There is a dog at Raynham Dog Track named Dug Flute.

******

One addition to the College Football All-names team. Alabama State defensive end Lavoris Winfrey. He has no right to have bad breath.

sports at a glance

UMass schedule:
Field Hockey: at Harvard, 3 p.m.
Soccer: UConn, Boyden, 3 p.m.
Women's Tennis: Holy Cross, NOPE, 3 p.m.

Fans help UMass soccer topple UConn, p. 16

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 31 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, October 18, 1984

Collegian photo by Jeff Turk

TWILIGHT ZONE — Students (L-R) Anna Dolan, Michele Brassard, Stephen Taylor, David Harris, Susan Stotierski, and Scott Henderson model masks outside Student Union Building. Masks were made at a workshop.

UMass conducting study on homeless

by CAROLYN ROSENBAUM
Collegian Correspondent

"To solve homelessness, we would have to solve poverty, crime, wife abuse (and) chronic mental illness..."

A University of Massachusetts sociology professor and the Social and Demographic Research Institute (SADRI) at UMass have begun a new study of the physical health problems of the estimated 350,000 homeless Americans.

James Wright says the study deals only with the symptoms of the problem and not its nature.

"To solve homelessness, we would have to solve poverty, crime, wife abuse, chronic mental illness and clearly no one is going to conjure up a solution to that whole range of things," he said.

The homeless population in this country is growing, according to Wright. The Reagan administration estimates that there are 350,000 homeless persons in the United States and other sources have estimated that figure to be as high as three to four million.

"UMass was chosen to conduct the study because of the national reputation of the Social and Demographic Research Institute," Wright said. SADRI is located in Machmer West.

Mental health problems of the homeless have been studied over the past four or five years, but the physical health problems have been neglected, Wright said.

"As bad a disease as schizophrenia is, nobody ever died from it directly," Wright said. "But they do die from tuberculosis, untreated venereal disease and malnutrition."

Homelessness is not confined to the cities. "There is a definite problem in western Massachusetts and a number of social service offices are working on the problem in Springfield, Holyoke and other areas," Wright said.

The new homeless are not just aging alcoholics on Skid Row, but a population whose average age is between 30 and 35, Wright said. New members of the homeless population include a large number of de-institutionalized chronic mental patients, jobless families unable to find low-cost housing, women who have suffered "marital catastrophes," and ex-convicts, Wright said.

Magazine scam, chair theft reported

by JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

A magazine subscription scam, which involves anonymous callers offering cash bonuses to people for soliciting magazines, has been attempted at the University of Massachusetts, UMass police said.

Police said that a UMass student received a call asking him to solicit magazine subscriptions. The potential solicitor has to put up the initial cash and then never receives the magazines, police said.

The scam has been reported in many communities throughout the Northeast, police said.

A backpack and its contents, valued at $105, were reported stolen at 8:27 a.m. Tuesday from the first floor in Munson Annex, police said.

continued on pg. 7

Inside:

Gerry arrives in style.....p.2
Center ready for post-grad exams.p.3
Doctors rip off eyesores.....p.5
Nationalism same as patriotism?..p.7

"It is not fair to ask of others what you are not willing to do yourself."
— Eleanor Roosevelt

Funds denied for counselor

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

In an emotional debate the Undergraduate Student Senate last night voted down a motion to fund a campus-wide Gay Lesbian Awareness Educator.

The 48-34 vote came after the senators argued for 2¼ hours about where the money to fund the position would come from, whether the Student Government Association (SGA) actually had the money to fund it, and if the senate was being "fiscally or socially responsible" to University of Massachusetts students by giving $3824 in student fees to pay for the educator.

The proposed position would have provided education and political representation for gay, lesbian, and bisexual students across campus. The Student Center for Education and Research Advocacy (SCERA) sponsored the educator, who would have made $7.65 an hour for 20 hours per week.

Most senators voiced concerns of how the position would be funded. SGA Budget Committee chairman Joseph Sparks presented the senate with an overview of the amount of money the senate had for this position, saying the SGA emergency stabilization account, which the money was to come from, would not be enough.

"There is $18,000 now in the stabilization account. We already owe $12,000 for full costing (a surcharge on paper work and accounting which comes from operating the Student Activities Trust Fund), and if we end up giving WMUA $10,000 and the Gay-Lesbian Awareness Educator close to $1,000, we'll have a deficit of $2,000," Sparks said.

Senate Speaker Chris Sullivan at one point gave his duties over to senator Marilyn Bou so that he could speak out on the senate debate. "I'm tired of hiding behind figures. If you don't want to fund this position, stand up and say why you don't. But don't hide behind figures and numbers."

Sullivan went on to say that he did not understand why the senate had waited until now to talk about the money. At the September 26 meeting, we allocated $26,000. And we spent $12,000 of the stabilization account last year to pay for the Cheap Trick concert in Southwest."

Lesbian, Bi-sexual, and Gay Men's Counselling Collective member Paul Throne urged the senate to vote for the position. "I have memories of being an RA and not being able to tell people on my floor to quiet down because behind their doors they talked of killing all 'queer and black RAs'."

Throne said that he had heard that "we shouldn't have this position because funding would come from the emergency stabilization account. The senate doesn't consider it an emergency that something must be done for fellow students...to make UMass a better place for all of us to live?"

JOY OF VICTORY — UMass soccer players have their day in the sun after knocking off top-ranked Connecticut yesterday at Boyden soccer field. UConn player walks away in disgust to left. Story on page 16.

Census Bureau statistics indicate more women in higher education

American women are pursuing higher education in ever greater numbers, accounting for much of the increase in college enrollment over the last decade and now outnumbering men at the nation's universities, the Census Bureau said Wednesday.

Women accounted for about 52 percent of all college students as of October, 1982, the new study said, with the biggest jump among women aged 25 to 34 and those attending two-year colleges.

And in a related report, the National Science Foundation disclosed that its survey of graduate schools in 1983 showed that women collected one-fourth of the doctorate degrees in science and engineering nearly double their rate of a decade earlier.

At the University of Massachusetts, the 9,415 women undergraduates account for 48.1 percent of the 19,478 students this fall. There are 10,063 men, or 51.9 percent.

According to this past spring's graduate school figures, 2,627 female grad students account for 46.2 percent of the total figure of 5,684. There are 3,057 male grad students, or 53.8 percent.

"One of the most significant developments in higher education and research in the last 20 years has been the increasing participation of women. They have increased in terms of both absolute numbers and in comparison to the participation of men," the science foundation said.

The Census study counted 10.9 million students aged 14 to 34 in colleges and universities in 1982, up nearly 3 million over 10 years.

"About four-fifths of the total increase in enrollment was accounted for by the increase in the number of women enrolled," said the Census report on School Enrollment Social and Economic Characteristics of Students.

John Birch Society charges Kerry with "near-treasonous" activities

The John Birch Society denounced Democratic Senate candidate John Kerry, a highly decorated Vietnam War hero, on Wednesday for his "near-treasonous" activities as an anti-war leader and said his ties to Communists in the peace movement will hurt his political campaign.

The harsh words came amidst a major shift in the Senate campaign between Kerry and Republican Ray Shamie, which has changed from a referendum on Reaganomics to a series of attacks on the two men's past political associations.

John McManus national spokesman for the Birch Society, said Kerry's activities as a founder and principal spokesman for the Vietnam Veterans Against the War in the early 1970s undermined the efforts of the U.S. government to wage war in Vietnam and indicated that Kerry was a "communist sympathizer."

Kerry, the state's current lieutenant governor, responded by issuing a statement that said "this is one of the saddest days in the history of Massachusetts politics."

"The Kerry campaign is shocked and offended by these obscene charges," said Kerry, who promised a detailed response later.

Shamie also issued a statement, saying he wanted to "condemn this attack on John Kerry...We have both been attacked unfairly. Enough is enough."

Digest

By The Associated Press

Serious crime declines 13.7% according to current statistics

Serious crimes in Massachusetts declined by 13.7 percent during the first half of 1984 compared to a year earlier, according to figures released Wednesday showing declines in all categories except murder and rape.

Statistics gathered by 223 police agencies statewide and compiled by the Crime Reporting Unit of the Executive Office of Public Safety indicate that violent crime decreased 9.4 percent and property crime decreased 14.3 percent between January - June 1983 and January - June 1984.

The semi-annual Crime Trend Report said a total of 113,793 serious crimes were reported during the first half of this year, compared to 131,826 serious crimes in the same period of 1983. Of the serious offenses reported this year, 12 percent more were violent crimes and 88 percent were crimes against property.

Among violent crimes, murder increased 7.7 percent, rape increased 5.4 percent, aggravated assault declined 7.4 percent, and robbery declined 14.7 percent.

Governor Michael Dukakis said the rise in homicides - from 91 to 98 was due in part to the inclusion, for the first time, of "deaths by arson" in that category. The increase in rapes - from 679 to 716 - might reflect greater willingness by victims to report the crime, Dukakis said.

AP Laserphoto

A Denver woman loses her balance as she crosses a pile of snow and ice. Clean-up of Monday and Tuesday's snowstorm continues.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Richard Martin
Copy Editor Larry Bouchie
Layout Technician Jacqueline Fay
Photo Technician Michelle Segall
Production Supervisor Ed Tausky
Production: Kate Davenport, Becky McGee, Mary Ellen Riley, Susanne Reynolds, Nancy Muller, Lesley Clark and BethAnne Moskov.

Correction: REM bassist Mike Mills was incorrectly identified in Wednesday's Collegian Arts Page Photo was by Brian Gouse.

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AT RAHARS

Relax and enjoy distinctive Mexican Food and drink, carefully prepared and served in a graceful atmosphere evocative of the American Southwest.

Try La Cazuela soon, in downtown Northampton.

Lunch & Dinner, Tuesday through Saturday
Dinner, Sunday — Closed Monday

586-0400
7 OLD SOUTH STREET • NORTHAMPTON

Desire Under the Elms
by EUGENE O'NEILL
October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

RT. 47 SUNDERLAND
You must be 18 to enter
Open 'til 2
665-4937
24 Hour Taped Message

The rusty nail Inn PROUDLY PRESENTS

TONIGHT
Oct. 18
THE RADIATORS
bring your own mug fill ups 25¢
until kegs run out

Friday Night
Oct. 19
THE STOMPERS
show time 10:00

all tickets available at the door only all shows start promptly at 10:00

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

PIED PIPER — Free-lance flute instructor John Root of Amherst plays while his daughter looks on at Amherst Center yesterday.

Ferraro arriving in horse carriage

Vice-Presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro will arrive at the University of Massachusetts in a horse-drawn carri age prior to the start of her political rally Saturday, campaign officials announced yesterday.

Ferraro will be lead by the UMass marching band and a school color guard at 10:00 a.m. rather than the original 10:30 starting time given earlier, said Pam Barry, advance press person for the Ferraro campaign.

Plans are still in the making to close off all of North Pleasant Street to allow the Ferraro carriage to arrive smoothly at the Campus Center Pond where the democratic candidate will give her only Western Massachusetts speech, said Gerald O'Neil, UMass Director of Public Safety.

The final decision won't be made until Friday on whether or not to close the street, O'Neill said.

If it rains Saturday the rally is still expected to go on as planned outside, but if the rain is too heavy, then the rally will be moved indoors to the Fine Arts Center, said Dennis Madson, Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs.

Preparations are going smoothly in anticipation of one of the largest crowds ever assembled at UMass, and today student groups will gather in room 162 of the Campus Center to make posters and banners to distribute throughout the crowd, according to Jim Shaw Coordinator of the State Student Association of Massachusetts, one of the student group organizors of the event.

RITA MURPHY

Career Center helps 2500 students with exams

By MICHELLE HYDE
Collegian Staff

About 15 students a day stop in the Career Development and Counseling Center at the University of Massachusetts to inquire about graduate school admissions or entrance examinations.

Robert Noble, the career librarian there, said these students are part of what he sees as a growing trend of students who are going to graduate school.

He said 20 years ago a bachelor's degree would suffice for finding a job, but now students faced with a more competitive job market are earning higher degrees.

Noble said about 2,500 students a year take advantage of the resources at the center, which include a full library of U.S. colleges and graduate schools, graduate school admissions manuals, and career development counselors.

The center is also responsible for administering the 1,000 graduate school entrance exams that are taken each year, according to Simon Koechakian, the testing supervisor.

GRE, LSAT, GMAT ...

The Graduate Record Examination (GRE), the Law School Admission Test (LSAT), and the Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) are the tests taken most often, he said.

The GREs are administered nationally five times every year. Students take either a general exam which consists of verbal, analytical, and mathematical reasoning, or a subject examination, which measures a student's understanding of his or her undergraduate field of study.

Graduate schools specify which exam a student should take, Koechakian said.

The LSATs are administered four times a year nationally, and consist of multiple choice questions and a 30-minute essay, which is sent to all the schools a student applies to.

Questions measure the ability to understand, analyze, and criticize arguments and relationship structures.

The GMATs are also administered four times a year nationally and measure general verbal and mathematical skills, including the ability to reason quantitatively and to interpret graphic data.

Senior year is best for tests

Students planning to go to graduate school within the next five years should take the entrance examinations during their senior year, Koechakian said.

This is the best time to take the exams because a student is "sharpest intellectually" when they complete their senior year, and because scores are valid up to five years after the examination date, he said.

A student can prepare for these exams, but "they are so broad that it's difficult to talk about preparation in any specific sense," Koechakian said.

Prep courses partly helpful

Preparatory courses can offer familiarity with the exam format and are especially useful for people who have been away from school for a long time. They also help students pace themselves when they take the exam, he said.

Koechakian said people erroneously think they will learn a lot of subject material in preparatory courses. "If a person has a weakness in math, a prep course won't help them with the math portion of the exam," he said.

The Division of Continuing Education offers credit-free courses that focus on verbal and math preparation for the GRE, quantitative preparation for the GMAT and the writing sample for the LSAT.

The GRE and the LSAT course cost $47 and the LSAT course costs $62.

For $400, a student can enroll in a program at Amity Testing Services in Amherst. The program consists of classes, homework material and a library of exams and tapes that explain test answers.

In this program, the student is exposed to "thousands of test questions" in lessons prepared by people who have scored 95 percent or better on their exams, according to administrator Robert Page.

Page said the scores of people who enrolled in the course were "significantly greater" than average. He said the company bases these results on students who submit their scores, which are compared to national averages. He said not all students submit their scores, however.

Cooperative Ed. finds new facility

By GUY BROOKSBANK
Collegian Correspondent

The office of cooperative education is moving from Thompson Hall to a larger facility off East Pleasant Street near Fraternity-Sorority Park to satisfy the needs of more students.

When the office was founded three years ago, it put 13 students into co-op positions. Last year 220 students were placed into temporary learning jobs in the "real world."

In the past, students from the University of Massachusetts have found practical jobs with companies such as The Boston Globe, Digital, I.B.M., and various state and federal agencies.

Darlene Kustanovitz, a senior marketing major, was employed by the state auditors office. "The experience was helpful in defining my career, as well as relating classroom theories to the job world," she said.

Joan Stoia, Cooperative Education program director, said that Thompson was intended as a temporary site until time allowed the program to develop contacts and relationships with employers in New England.

She said the increased space will "allow us to do the job adequately and to expand the program in a professional and high-quality way."

Cooperative education houses a career development program, which integrates work experience with university study. The program allows students to combine semesters of classroom study with aid training in jobs within their intended major.

UMass student dead at 33

Richard M. Leamon of Springfield died Saturday at Mercy Hospital after a brief illness.

Leamon attended the Fundamental Right to Essential Education program at the University of Massachusetts and worked part-time at Earthfoods in the Student Union Building.

A memorial service will be held on Monday, Oct. 27 at 5 p.m. in Memorial Hall (between the Fine Arts Center and Bartlett Hall at UMass.

Woman's shelter nets $3000 over weekend

Necessities-Necessidades, a shelter for battered women in Northampton, raised "about $3,000 in cash and pledges" in a Move-a-thon last Saturday, according to coordinator Robin Shaikun.

Women and children from Northampton and surrounding towns walked and biked five miles to raise money for the women's group and to commemorate the Unity and Domestic Violence Awareness Week.

Laura Prescott, coordinator of the day's events said, "The atmosphere (on Saturday) was tremendous. It was really empowering."

Amherst College student Lynn Iler biked the course, got 68 sponsors, and collected $304.50. "It was a really nice feeling to help (the shelter) out. It's a great cause that people don't know too much about," Iler said.

Iler won two tickets to see singer Chris Williamson at the Iron Horse in Northampton, for collecting the most money.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

LOOK MA, NO HANDS — Michelle Whitehouse practices her twirling routine at Boyden Fields.

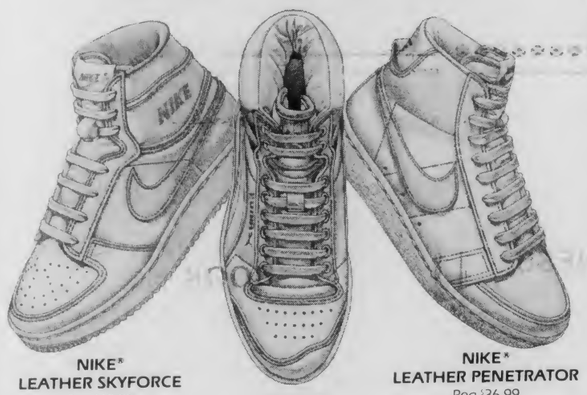
JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place

DON'T MISS ALL THE ACTION
COMEDY TONIGHT
The BOSTON COMEDY COMPANY, Inc.

BEAT THE CLOCK
DRINK SPECIAL

BOSTON CELTICS
KICK OFF LOUNGE
7:30 PM

Three Ways We Get A Jump
On The Competition



NIKE* LEATHER SKYFORCE
Reg. $49.99
Now $38.

PUMA* LEATHER SAMPSON
High cut Reg. $56.99
Now $43.

NIKE* LEATHER PENETRATOR
Reg. $36.99
Now $27.

Come to Olympian today for brandname leather basketball shoes.
Then drive the fast lane with confidence.

Men's sizes.

OLYMPIAN
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

Laundromat
Amherst Sunshine Center
• Washers: Single, Double, Triple
• Dryers with DuraPress Cycle
• Dry Cleaners
8 am - 9 pm daily
326 College St. (Rt.9 East)
253-9030

Car Wash
Amherst Sunshine Car Wash
Automatic Wash/Wax Bay
Self Service Bays
Vacuum Cleaners
381 College St. (Rt. 9 East)
253-9661

"OUR ATTENDANT IS HAPPY TO ASSIST YOU"

THE CHEESE SHOP
79 Main St.,
Amherst, MA 01002
413-253-3442
* Over 150 imported cheeses
* Over 20 selected types of coffee beans
* Bulk teas
* Freshly baked croissants & pastries
* Fresh pasta
* Party trays * SPECIAL *
Fresh Peanut Butter 99¢ lb.
Mexican Altura $4.99 lb.
Mention this ad and receive 10% off on all Oriental Groceries
Coffee tasting Saturday 10 am to 1 pm
Hours: Daily 9:30-6:00; Sunday 9:00-1:00

Before You Buy
Check Our LOW Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From
Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

a Presentation on Alcohol & Other Drug Issues among Hispanics
Panel sobre el uso del Alcohol y otras Drogas entre la población Hispana
Tuesday, Oct. 23, 1984
Martes 23, 1984
7:00 pm • UMass Campus Center
Rooms 162-175 • Salones 162-175
Speakers / Oradores
Dr. Eduardo Bustamante, Psychologist, Division of Mental Health, University Health Services
Mr. José Cruz, Health Educator, Western Massachusetts Prevention Center, Northampton, MA
Dr. L. Philip Guzmán, Executive Director, Gándara Mental Health Center, Springfield, MA
Refreshments and Resource Materials will be Available
Aperitivos e Información estarán Disponibles
Open to Everyone
Todos estan Invitados
Sponsored by:
Western Mass Prevention Center
University Health Services • Bilingual Collegiate Program • Gándara Mental Health Center

LEARN TO FLY
City Aviation Flight Services

• Qualified Flight Instructors
• Private Pilot Rating
• Rentals / Charters
• 7 days a week
• On UMass bus route
• Discounts for UMass on first lesson
• Financing available

Northampton Airport Northampton, MA 584-1860

Doctors less committed

Commercialization to blame

By CHRIS POON
Collegian Correspondent

Doctors have committed themselves to profit rather than patients since the commercialization of health care in the 1960's, according to the editor of The New England Journal of Medicine.

"Profit making hospitals don't take care of the poor and are not committed to the community," Arnold Relman said, in a speech that was part of a symposium on editorial issues in public health, at the Campus Center Wednesday.

"Since the 1960's, investor-owned hospitals have been providing the health care to the people that was formerly provided by non-profit institutions," Relman said.

As a result, these "for-profit" hospitals have been making a lot of money from patients who have no alternative but to go to these hospitals, he said.

"Hospitals are supposed to be important social institutions in the community."

But he said many health firms such as the Hospital Corporation of America are turning health care into a big business.

He cited the area of Beaumont, Texas, where "there are no hospitals who will take an uninsured woman in labor. Instead, women are sent to Galveston, which is 90 miles away," Relman said.

He said that the health care industry accounts for 10.8 percent of the gross national product and must be revamped.

"I can confidently predict that in the next election we will see this issue in the forefront of the major political issues," he said.

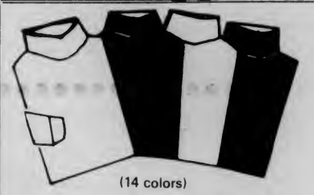
"The voluntary hospital system is gradually eroding. Philanthropy should play a powerful role in the distribution of health care," Relman said.

He said that "for profit" hospitals try to attract relatively healthy patients for costly surgery. At the same time, they charge more than non-profit hospitals.

"It is ethically intolerable for doctors to turn their practices into business ventures," Relman said.

In addition, many of the profit-oriented firms are buying out the non-profit voluntary hospitals, thereby making a bad situation even worse.

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
TONIGHT
7-1 AMATEUR DJ NITE!
Guys and gals come try your hand and spinning the discs at Funnybones.
* No experience necessary *
Try it just for fun, or to possibly become a regular DJ here at Funnybones.
* 2 FREE DRINKS for all contestants *
Come ready to play anytime 7-1!
Rt. 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)



(14 colors)
Saturday Clothes
197 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-9729
SALE
100% cotton Turtlenecks
$8.95 regularly $12.00
or 2 for $17.00
or 3 for $24.00
OPEN 7 DAYS
Thurs and Fri till 8 pm
Bring this ad in Thurs or Fri nite between 6-8 PM & get another 10% off on this sale

Don't be caught out of condition for the ski season
BODY SHOP
ADVANCED FITNESS TRAINING CENTERS
Sign up now at 30% off the regular rate (of $45.00)
$30.00
includes unlimited use of the unique "omnikinetic" system of strength development
Have Your First Workout On Us
BOYDEN
7-9 A 11-1 P
4-6 P
NOPE
7:30-9 A 4-6 P
11-3 P 7-9 P
12-3 Saturday

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
BOOK NOW
FOR WINTER BREAK
AND JUST LOOK
WHERE YOU CAN GO!
New York-Brussels - 399.00
Boston-Amsterdam - 449.00
Boston-London - 368.00
Newark-Los Angeles - 258.00
Boston-Orlando - 198.00
space is limited and some restrictions apply
call us for details
CAMPUS CENTER
UMASS
545-0500

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Jean B. Elshtain
"On Patriotism"

Thursday, October 18, 1984 at 8 p.m.
Memorial Hall Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

NEED A WORKOUT?

call TIPS at 545-1540
ask for TAPES

2453 Gym schedules
2459 Pool schedules
2471 Racqet & Squash Courts schedules
2464 Tennis Courts schedules
2476 Weight Room schedules

Information Data Bank
Taped Information
Phone Service

idb tips

A Service of the Dean of Students Office

SALE!
FRI./SAT./SUNDAY
3 DAYS ONLY... OCT. 19,20,21

100% COTTON
TURTLENECKS
in a dozen dazzling colors

REG. 8.95
3 DAYS ONLY
6.95
3 FOR 19.95

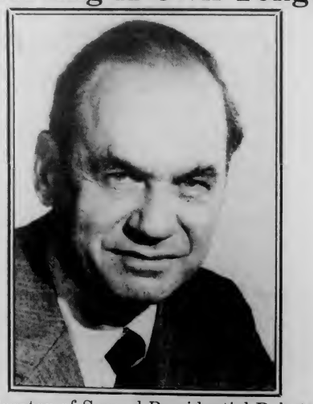
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

Distinguished Visitors Program
Presents
Edwin Newman
Preserving A Civil Tongue



Moderator of Second Presidential Debate
acclaimed Broadcaster - Journalist
author of Strictly Speaking
and a Civil Tongue

Tuesday, October 23rd
8:00 P.M.
Student Union Ballroom

ERIC'S
GIANT SUBS
Freshly Sliced Meats
Eat In or Take Out
BREAKFAST
Beef Stew, Soups, Chicken and Seafood
Try Us and See. . .
IF THEY AREN'T THE LARGEST TASTIEST SUBS IN THE AREA!!!
Rt 9 253-9521 314 College St.
Monday-Friday 6:00 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday 6:30 am - 3:00 pm

"Keep the Summer Alive"
CAPE COD at the PUB
with Cape Cod's #1 "D.J. GARY TITUS"
of Puffabellies and Cape 104

Experience our new menu.
THE PUB

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX
MUST BEGIN TO RETURN UNSOLD
FALL COURSE BOOKS TO THE PUBLISHERS
RETURNS START
OCTOBER 25
DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK -
YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

Elshtain to lecture on patriotism

By STACY WIEDERLIGHT
Collegian Correspondent

A political science professor will lecture on the distinctions between patriotism and nationalism in the first part of the 1984-85 "Chancellor's Lecture Series" tonight, at 8 p.m., in the University of Massachusetts' Memorial Hall Auditorium.

Jean B. Elshtain, professor of political science at the University, will also discuss patriotism and nationalism in her speech, "On Patriotism."

Elshtain believes nationalism may lead to feelings of superiority and aggression towards other nations.

"President Reagan calls his policies patriotic, but they are really a form of nationalism. His policies reflect a vision of military power and the pumping up of fear of external enemies," she said. "This U.S.-first attitude only leads to the hatred of other societies," she said.

The Chancellor's Lecture Series serves as means for recognizing distinguished members of the University faculty. Each participant in the series is awarded the Chancellor's Medal, the highest award bestowed upon individuals who have rendered outstanding service to the University.

★Police

continued from pg. 1

Two chairs were stolen from Brett Dormitory and later found in the back of a car occupied by 3 people, police said. Value of the chairs has not been estimated. Police received the report at 1:23 a.m. Wednesday and checked the area around the dormitory.

When confronted by police, the 3 occupants of the car said they found the chairs on the side of the road. Police will investigate further before any arrests are made, police said.

UMass police are looking for help in their investigation of several thefts of AM/FM stereo cassette decks from vehicles parked in campus parking lots.

Police Chief Robert Joyce said, "people should be wary of attempts of people selling them used automobile cassette decks."

The police would like people to notify the department if they are approached by anyone selling them used AM/FM cassette decks, or if they have any knowledge about the thefts.

"All names will be kept anonymous," Joyce said.

Pleasant St. Theater
SNEAK PREVIEW
MIDNIGHT FRIDAY & SAT
OCT 19 & 20

OPENS HALLOWEEN NIGHT
27 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-0935

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS.
Mug Night
20 & over

Dancing
8:30-12:30
20 & over
$1.00 cover

FRI.
Social Hour
Cliff Myers
3-6 pm
20 and over
★★★★★
UPC Productions presents
Son Seals Blues Band
9-11
$4.00 cover
18 and over

SAT.
- Hamlin -
- Knowlton -
- Crabtree -
CLUSTER PARTY
9-1
18 & over
$2.00 cover

COLLEGE SURVIVAL
THERE'S GOT TO BE A BETTER WAY!

LAST 3 DAYS!!

There is. One free Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics lesson will prove it to you. Today take the free Reading Dynamics lesson and you can dramatically increase your reading speed in that one free lesson.

Why let the responsibilities that college demands deprive you of enjoying the college life? With Reading Dynamics you can handle both—all the reading you're expected to do and know, plus still have time to do what you want to do.

Today you can increase your reading speed, dramatically at the free Reading Dynamics lesson. You've got nothing to lose but a lot of cramming and sleepless nights. Reading Dynamics. Now you know there is a better way. Take the free lesson and kiss your "No-Snooze" goodbye.

LAST 3 DAYS!!

SCHEDULE OF FREE LESSONS

LOCATION: MURRAY D. LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER

THURSDAY 10/18 11:00AM, 1:00PM AND 3:00PM - ROOM 174-176
FRIDAY 10/19 11:00AM, 1:00PM AND 3:00PM - ROOM 917
SATURDAY 10/20 11:00AM AND 1:00PM - ROOM 911-915

EVELYN WOOD READING DYNAMICS

©1978 Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics, Inc.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor	John O'Connell	Black Affairs Editor	Yadira Betances
Business Manager	Andrew May	Women's Issues Editor	Rebecca Thatcher
Business Manager	Elizabeth Young	Arts Editor	Christine D. Marini
Production Manager	Mark Roden	Sports Editor	Peter Abraham
Executive Editor	Rita Murphy	Photo Editor	Andrew J. Heller
News Editor	Greg Brown

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Letters to the Editor

Making spiritual decisions

I appreciated that Dan Miller, in his column October 11, stated that "Religion is a Personal Choice." Religion does require that individuals make intelligent decisions concerning their personal faith and commitment.

Miller told the story of a UMass student named Lynne who was smothered by religious dogma. Unfortunately, neither Miller nor Lynne were able to distinguish between the role of religion and what it means to be a Christian. Lynne was encumbered by a relationship with a person who tried to force many religious rules and regulations on her life. However, a Christian is one who enters into a personal relationship with Jesus Christ, not with a particular church or set of suffocating restrictions.

A relationship with Christ brings freedom, not restriction. Jesus said, "I came that they might have life and have it abundantly." A Christian can know and experience God's unending love and special plan for his or her life. Anyone can begin that relationship by accepting Christ, by faith, as an act of the will.

Religion cannot make anyone a Christian, because Christianity involves a personal decision. However, attending a Christian church, reading the Bible and developing relationships with other Christians are all parts of the abundant life Jesus came to bring. After all, it would be ridiculous to say, "Yes, I've entered into a relationship with Christ, but I could care less what He's got to say to me in the Bible nor do I care for those who do."

From Miller's account, it seems that Lynne temporarily latched onto some religious teachings and people, without ever making the decision to follow Christ. To investigate Christianity, one should go to the source — Jesus Christ.

Chris Willard
Southwest

'Sour Grapes' left sour taste

Selected parts of Elizabeth Luciano's column yesterday, "Some Winners and Losers," were very humorous, but I feel the need to respond to the "Sour Grapes" award. It might have appeared to some people that certain residents of Orchard Hill were petty in their contesting of the election; however, these residents felt the rules of the election were violated and felt it was their duty as representatives of OHAG to bring the violations to the attention of the body. The incident was discussed at an emergency OHAG meeting on Tuesday night and Gannon/Caporelli were cleared of all charges by Governmental Affairs.

It was also stated in the column that Gannon/Caporelli's campaign was responsible for spelling their names in the "bowl" in flour. As their campaign manager, I would like it understood that the blame should not be placed on the candidates for this action.

Cara Milks
Former Co-President
OHAG

Sandinistas help Nicaragua

This letter concerns the selective choice of facts in Peter Dow's Oct. 11th column. He states that "the power rests solely in the hands of F.S.L.N." In fact, there are six parties participating in the elections, including opposition parties.

The Sandinistas have instituted a Literacy Crusade that has reduced illiteracy from 52 percent to 12 percent, and created over 1,200 new schools. Health care is available to Nicaragua's poor for the first time, and well over 40,000 formerly landless rural families have received land to grow food.

It is important to realize that a clear difference of opinion exists between the opposition of the Catholic hierarchy and support of the grassroots popular church for the Sandinistas.

Of all the Americans who have returned from Nicaragua with contradictory views from those of the U.S. government, it is very important for people to avail themselves to those differing views and form educated, researched opinions.

Alison Apotheker
Central

We must understand history

In trying to pierce the rhetoric of Peter Dow and Vice-President Bush, it is important to examine the status of the people in Nicaragua, and to temper our judgement with an understanding of our own history.

The physical, educational and economical welfare of the people is significantly better. These goals have been attained by a country suffering a war against U.S. backed contras.

Dow forgot to mention an important credential of Contra leader Calero; namely, he was the manager of Coca-Cola's enterprise in Nicaragua. He also forgot to mention that elections are scheduled for Nov. 4th.

Native tensions with the Miskitus could have been handled better. Yet, our treatment of Indians and Blacks would fare far worse under similar scrutiny.

I am proud of friends and fellow Americans who have braved the strife created by the contras and provided a clear alternative to the arguments of Dow and Vice President Bush.

Stephen Apotheker
Champaign, Illinois

Corrections

Due to a typographical error, a sentence in Andrew Paven's column Tuesday was changed. It should have read — "The rich have fared better than the poor. And white families have fared better than have Black families."

Due to a typographical error, a paragraph was changed in Diane Lane's column yesterday. It should have read — "You've either got to insure it or dust it or lock it up. On the contrary, a sound lifelong philosophy asks nothing from us other than a commitment to our inner selves. It grows finer with age and bends like a living branch in times of adversity. You can change your philosophy or make alterations in its character if the desire arises. Things, on the other hand, are as deadwood-rigid and unbending, and in the final inspection tossed as carcasses upon a junk heap."

Brown's solution a simplistic one

Raising public awareness on the issue of nuclear war has long been the main concern of many of our country's, indeed of our planet's, most intelligent, conscientious, and responsible citizens. Demonstrations such as the Greenham Common women's movement, media events such as the T.V. program "The Day After," and politics — currently the presidential election campaigns — have all focused upon the presence of nuclear arms in our society, their possible limitations, elimination, and the disasterous consequences following the actual use of such weapons.

Elizabeth Dateo

Brown University students, through democratic vote — a functional element upon which our country's organization, action and future is dependent — have chosen a unique method of raising public awareness on this issue. They have passed a proposal to ask their university health service to stock "suicidal pills," perhaps cyanide, for use in the event of a nuclear war. Based upon fear of destruction, pain and death, the students hope to start a movement which will spread to other campuses and illustrate to the country that nuclear war is akin to suicide.

This proposal, and media coverage of the event, has surely aroused some public awareness. Most people are at least interested in the nuclear arms issue, and the taboo nature of suicide itself is enough to arouse some attention.

This unique combination of the two as a measure towards peace is, however, both confounding and absurd. The public is most probably aware of this and, sad to say, the voice of the student squeaks with immaturity.

The proposal is confounding as the arms race itself; based on fear, in Salzman's opinion, "fear (used) to start a movement," it is doomed from the start. Like the defense spending policy it condemns, also based on fear, stockpiling of "suicide pills" illustrates an attitude not of responsibility or rationality, but of narrow, maniacal paranoia; the Machiavellian destiny of distrust and despair, beneficial to none, selfish, and unnecessary.

This fear is nothing new, although Salzman has perhaps just discovered it in himself. Fear has always been a motive, as politics so glaringly illustrate, and it has never been constructive.

The proposal fails to properly address the issue with the slightest degree of understanding. Utilizing a temper tantrum tactic, the students may as well have threatened to hold their breath until nuclear weapons go away. They offer a simplistic solution to a complex situation, and are defeatist in attitude as well. Clearly the issue is worth more than this.

The exhibitionism and sensationalism apparent in Brown University's Students Against Nuclear Suicide group is something all student groups should recognize and avoid. As students we should at least demonstrate the ability to reason with adequate information, not replicate the ill-fated methods of our leaders.

If the analogy of nuclear war resembles suicide of humankind, we should remember and utilize our individual free will to "give peace a chance," take positive action, or at least hope.

Elizabeth Dateo is a Collegian correspondent.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE'S
HAMLET
Directed by Richard Edelman ♦ Performances: Oct. 19, 20, 21 and 25, 26, 27, 1984 at 8 PM ♦ Kirby Theater ♦ Tickets Available Starting Oct. 8th ♦ Box Office phone 542-2277 ♦ Open 1-5 Monday Through Friday ♦ General Admission 4 Dollars ♦ Students and Senior Citizens 2 Dollars Thursday and Sunday Dollar nights
♦
Presented by Amherst College Department of Theater and Dance

COMPUTER TERMINAL RENTAL by
COMPUTERM
• SAVE TIME AND AGGRAVATION BY RENTING YOUR OWN TERMINAL; OR SPLIT A RENTAL WITH FRIENDS!
NOTE: RENTALS WILL COMMUNICATE WITH CYBER, VAX, AND ANY OTHER MAINFRAME COMPUTER
for RENT . . .
RCA TERMINALS MODEL VP 3501 99.00 PER SEMESTER
• FULLY DETACHABLE KEYBOARD
• BUILT IN DIRECT CONNECT MODEM (300 BAUD)
USE WITH YOUR BLACK & WHITE OR COLOR TV (COLOR GRAPHICS)
for SALE . . .
DIGITAL DEC WRITER LIKE NEW 495.00
• COMPLETE WITH STAND
• APL CHARACTER SET
• ACOUSTIC COUPLER
• NEW RIBBON
* * * * *
CALL COMPUTERM: MON.-FRI. [5 PM-11 PM]
SAT. & SUN. [10 AM-10 PM]
MIKE (413) 549-0393

Arts & Sciences

by DAVE DUGGAL
Collegian Correspondent

An eagerly awaited Physics 116 class gathered outside the Hasbrouck Laboratory on Friday to see their class production of "Cruel Nature".

This new Relativistic Tragicomedy, directed by Prof. "Rogers & Hammerstein" Pinochicle, is already being hailed as the greatest scientific breakthrough ever to hit Broadway.

The play is about four scientists who are studying the effects of relativity on meter sticks and clocks. But, that's not all. The plot thickens as it seems that Prof. A and his friend F, played by Will Tuthill and Jessica Fallen, find their clocks failing to synchronize with B (Alan Ball) who's going by at constant velocity speed. Neither realize that by using the commonly known Time & Length dilations they could easily solve their problems.

The moral of the story, as told by a chorus of relativists, is that, "Such sorry discord need not be if absolutists had more sense: so right in all their measurements so mad in their Philosophy."

Tonite
at
Changes
From 8 PM to 12 AM
• Free Hamburgers, Hot Dogs and Munchies!
• 2 for 1 Mixed Drinks
No Cover
Changes
Dance to your Favorite Songs, while Experiencing the Finest Sound System and Light Show around!!
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!
Tickets on Sale Now

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:
an evening with
The Them or Us Tour '84"
FRANK ZAPPA
SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS
UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50
Five College Students, Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50
Tickets on Sale Now
Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.
UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket
Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Arts

Persistence pays off

Bruce Cockburn
at the Rusty Nail
Sunday, October 14

by JON STRYMISH
Collegian Staff

Persistence brought Bruce Cockburn to the Rusty Nail Sunday. For ten years the records of the last surviving protest-folksinger have filtered quietly from Canada to America where they have been largely ignored. Ten years have been long enough for Cockburn to perfect his songs to a state of such clarity that they could no longer be ignored. His material included politicians, tyrants, defeatist attitudes and a swipe at America in "Yankee Go Home"

Cockburn's show was perfect; two hours long, sounding like a greatest hits record, a deserved one since his songs have not been heard by most people. Bruce Cockburn reminded me of Lou Reed to whom he owes a lot in the departments of poise, attitude and style, if not content. My decision not to review Reed's Hartford show last week was because there was nothing I could add to it that could as easily have been said of this show.

All Cockburn songs have lyrical guitar playing with simple but perfect rhythmic backing by percussionists Mish Pulio and G. Sharp, Hugh Marsh on violin, and Fergus Marsh on stick, a strange instrument that sounds like a bass and contributes to a psychedelic sound.

from the final of his three encores.

Impulse's potential lost

Impulse
Starring Tim Matheson and Meg Tilly
Directed by Graham Baker
at the Hampshire Mall

by HERB RAMY &
MATT MACHERA
Collegian Correspondents

What would happen if people acted on impulse; if they did the first thing that came to their mind regardless of the consequences? This is the idea behind Graham Baker's new movie Impulse, starring Tim Matheson and Meg Tilly. Does the idea of just letting go sound interesting to you? Well it did to us. Unfortunately, Impulse did not live up to our expectations. Upon examining the plot a little more deeply, we find a small rural town turned inside out when a toxic substance works itself into the milk supply.

This movie provides the viewer with intense, and oftentimes violent scenes. One such scene is when the town sheriff shoots and kills a young boy, with an M-16 rifle, for breaking a parking meter. Individually these scenes keep us interested and sometimes horrified. When trying to combine these scenes into a well-formed plot, though, the movie fails, and we were left wanting more.

As we've already mentioned the movie did have some bright spots. One such quality was the acting. In particular, we felt that Tim Matheson, who is known better as Otter from Animal House, adopted well to a serious role. We were both surprised and pleased by this, and we hope to see Matheson in other dramatic roles in the future. The movie's other star, Meg Tilly, also did a fine job as Matheson's girlfriend and the only person in the town unaffected by the madness. Although the acting was credible and certain scenes were entertaining, this was not enough to make up for the movie's lack of plot flow. The film's worst moment comes at the end and the supposed climax which was much less exciting than anticipated.

What ends up happening to this movie is too bad, because it did have the potential for excellence. Impulse shows that good acting and good directing cannot save a shallow screenplay.

A finely-crafted world

LOVE TO ALL, LORRAINE
Saturday, October 13
Bowker Auditorium

By ROBIN ROSIELLO
Collegian Correspondent

Riveting, personal and painfully honest are only a few ways to describe the New World Theater's production on Saturday evening of the one-woman drama, Love to All, Lorraine. Written and directed by Elizabeth Van Dyke and co-directed by Woodie King, Jr., the play is based on the life of the late political activist and playwright Lorraine Hansberry, author of A Raisin in the Sun. In this intensely personal monologue, Ms. Van Dyke reveals Lorraine's most intimate concerns, focusing on her state of mind at different pivotal points in her life including her fatal bout with cancer.

Through Ms. Van Dyke's powerful voice and illustrative gestures, the fairly dim lighting and the simply furnished set of a few chairs, plants, books and a typewriters, we are drawn into Lorraine's world. It is 1965, the year of her death, when she is 34. She has just returned from a frustrating meeting of the Artists' Association for Freedom, a description of which begins the depiction of a series of significant periods of her life. With an ebb-and-flow rhythm which carries the audience on the waves of her emotions, Van Dyke as Lorraine moves from moments of anger and bitterness to those of fear and reflection with ease. She does this by taking on the guise of a wide range of characters from her mother to a high school senior who writes her a fan letter to those of the characters of her plays.

Although publically an activist in the Civil Rights movement, and the winner of a Drama Critics' Circle Award for A Raisin in the Sun, Hansberry's personal life was less successful. She suffered a lack of emotional and physical contact with her ambitious father and mother, a divorce, and the realization in 1963 that she had cancer. Nonetheless, Lorraine continued to "conjure them (characters in her plays) into reality".

Cheryl Lamoreaux and Michael Hale in a scene from PORCUPINES AT THE UNIVERSITY AND OTHER COMIC DIVERSIONS adapted and directed by Vincent Brann from six short stories by Donald Barthelme. This Chamber Theater production is presented by the UMass Department of Theater in the Curtain Theater, Fine Arts Center, October 18-20 at 8:00 p.m. Tickets: Fine Arts Center box office, 545-2511.

Amherst Ballet Theatre Company
Therese Brady Donohue, Director
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
University of Massachusetts
Friday-Saturday
October 19-20
8:00 PM

Tickets:
Jones Library
Children's Desk
Amherst Ballet Center
Phone Reservations
549-1555
and at the Door
Adults: $6
Children: $4
Students: $4
Senior Citizens: $4
Gen. Adm. Balcony: $3
Funded by the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities

Fine Arts Center
Concert Hall
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Peter Nero CONDUCTOR/SOLOIST with the PHILLY POPS
FRIDAY, OCT 19, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

with PETER SERKIN Piano
FRIDAY, OCT 26, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

Romeo and Juliet
THURSDAY, NOV 1, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

ROYAL WINNIPEG BALLET
MONDAY, NOV 5, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9
Five College Students Half-Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

LAWRENCE LIVERMORE NATIONAL LABORATORY

TECHNICAL EXCELLENCE SINCE 1952

WORKING FOR ENERGY INDEPENDENCE, NATIONAL SECURITY, AND A QUALITY ENVIRONMENT

• Electronics Engineers

Our major research programs are:
• National defense (nuclear weapons and defensive systems research) • Magnetic Fusion Energy • Laser Fusion • Energy Research • Biomedical and Environmental Research

ON CAMPUS THURSDAY OCTOBER 25

See your Placement Office for more information, or write to: Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, P.O. Box 5510, Dept. JCR, Livermore, CA 94550.

An equal opportunity employer m/f/h. U.S. citizenship required.

University of California
Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory

Hypercurricula

HONORS STUDENT ASSOCIATION MEETING-The HSA meeting will include information on the UMass foreign exchange program. Refreshments served. All UMass students welcome and encouraged to attend. 7 p.m. CC (Room tba on schedule)

INTRODUCTORY MEETING FOR WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP PROJECT-Join us to discuss and organize events about women's issues. This week's discussion focuses on beauty contests! Refreshments will be served. 4:00 p.m. Check CC Schedule

FACULTY CONCERT:LAURA KLOCK, HORN-A wide ranging program of music of Mozart, Cherubin, and UMass composer Macchia will feature hornist Laura Klock and 8 other faculty artists. Free. 8 p.m. Bezanson Recital Hall

LESBIAN UNION-The Lesbian Union will be holding a very important business meeting to discuss projects and upcoming events. All members are urged to come. 6:30 p.m. SUB406G

ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION-Our next meeting will be needing your participation! Join in & bring suggestions for a new AASA logo. 7:00p.m. CC

UMASS HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING-35,000 will die of hunger today, tomorrow, and the day after that. Help do something about the tragedy of world hunger. 4:30 p.m. 428 Student Union

RESIDENTIAL ASSISTANT COUNCIL MEETING All RAS-SHRS are invited to join the organization that works to address RA-SHR concerns about their position on campus. Having problems on the job? We're the organization that works for you But we need your help! 6:00 p.m. Rm 805 CC

Serve in Appalachia

Appalachia.. a region of stark contrasts. You'll see some of God's most beautiful scenery, surrounding an area of abject poverty. Join other Catholic men and volunteer 'one week' of this holiday season in exchange for memories to enrich the rest of your life. You will live on a rustic farm near Vanceburg, Kentucky, and experience first hand an active mission life, by bringing practical help and hope to the poor people of Appalachia.

December 29, 1984 - January 4, 1985
OR
January 6-12, 1985

This may be the most rewarding week of your life. We'll send you an information packet, if you forward this completed coupon to: Reverend Jerry Dorn, Glenmary Home Missioners, Box 46404, Cincinnati, Ohio 45246

Name _____ Age _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Telephone ( ) _____ 41-10/84

All Stores Celebrate
West Hartford's
One Year Anniversary!!
Buy any Sweater at Regular Price —
Get the 2nd Sweater for $1.00*
(*Choose from a selected group of sweaters - $18.00 value)
Sale ends 10/28

Elco
the Dressmakers
Factory Store
532 Main St.
Holyoke, MA
413-534-3767
10:00-4:00 P.M.
Mon thru Sat

Lovely Wallets FREE with any fall purchase - one to a customer

From the North
Take I-91 south to exit 17.
Travel straight down Dwight St. to Main St.
Take right onto Main.
Cross three traffic lights to 532 Main St. on the left.

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

YOUR CLUTCH IS FIXED, MAN. NEED ANYTHING ELSE DONE ON THE CAR?
NO, THANKS, RUFUS. LISTEN, BEFORE YOU GO, I GOTTA ASK YOU A QUESTION.
WHAT'S THAT?
CAN YOU THINK OF SOMETHING GOOD RONALD REAGAN HAS DONE FOR BLACKS?
HMM...LET ME SEE...THAT'S A TOUGH ONE. IS THIS A RIDDLE OR SOMETHING?
UH... YEAH, SORT OF.
HE GOT MILLIONS OF US TO REGISTER!
BLESS YOU

Today's Weather

TODAY: Mostly sunny and mild, with some variable cloudiness, highs 65-70.
TONIGHT: Clear, lows 35-40.
TOMORROW: Mostly sunny and mild, highs around 70.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

OKAY ALL YOU NEO-FASCIST, RIGHT WING, STUDENT PUNKS, YOU'VE GOT 30 SECONDS TO DE-OCCUPY THE ART BUILDING!
CRAZY WEIRDO KIDS AND THEIR WEIRDO POLITICS. JUST WHAT KIND OF YOUTH IS THIS COUNTRY TURNING OUT THESE DAYS?...
THIS IS REAGAN'S FAULT!

Preparations for Ferraro Rally

Any students wishing to help make signs and banners for Geraldine Ferraro's visit Saturday should come to the preparations gathering today at 1:00 p.m. in room 162 of the Campus Center.

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

I'M IN A BAD MOOD TODAY, AND NOBODY BETTER GET IN MY WAY.
LOOK, THERE'S A SLUG IN THE ROAD! GET HIM... FLOOR IT!!
VROOM!
Smash!
LIKE I SAID, NOBODY BETTER GET IN MY WAY.

Gorde — by Gorde

GORD...ER...KING ARTHUR?
M'LADY? I WAS JUST SITTING, PONDERING
THIS IS A STRANGE WORLD YOU LIVE IN
SO DIFFERENT FROM THY HOME, CAMELOT... AND BELOVED ENGLAND
THOU WOULD'VE LIKED MY WORLD. THE COURT, MY KNIGHTS...MERLIN. THE LAND GLISTENED EVERY MORNING FROM THE DEW, AND THE LIFE...THE MAGIC ONE FELT IN THE AIR...
THAT WAS LADY ENGLAND, AND I WAS HER KING
BUT THAT'S ALL GONE NOW. I'M NOT A KING, NOR A MAN, BUT A CONFUSED STRANGER IN A NEW WORLD. GOD GRANT THY SOON, SEND THEE ... HOME

Bat Brain — By Bill Dearing

HI! I'D LIKE TO CHECK IN FOR THIS SEMESTER.
CHECK IN FOR THIS SEMESTER?! ARE YOU CRAZY?! IT STARTED WEEKS AGO!
HEY JANE, HE WANTS TO CHECK IN!! HA! HA!
CHECK IN?! HA! HA! HA! WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN?
FRESHMAN ADMISSIONS
I HAD CAR TROUBLE...
CAR TROUBLE?! HA! HA! HA! I CAN'T STAND THIS! HA! HA! HA! CAN'T WAIT 'LINE AGAIN! I'M GOING TO LET YOU IN!

Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

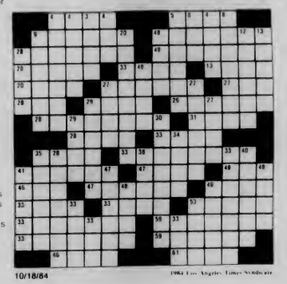
ACROSS
1 Shed a fedora
5 Amor, Cupid and Eros
9 Premier of Vichy France
11 Compounds used to make paint
14 Song lyric, in Spain
15 Pique
16 Fall bloom
17 "Romeo and Juliet setting
19 Fort fit for Midas
20 Cookbook direction
21 Golf ball mark
23 Gaming cube
24 Female lobster
25 Goalie's specialty
26 Undue indulgence
28 Political division
31 Versifier
32 Family member
33 British land measure
35 Send by rail
37 Do it —
41 Type of computer
42 Bus Stop playwright
44 NOW goal
46 2nd-century date Rom.
47 Builder's assets
49 Like good cheese
50 Preceding nights
52 Degree —
53 Come to terms
54 Changed titles
56 Distasteful
58 Snow removers
59 Derby gal
60 Cheerio!
61 Abound

DOWN
1 Tooth component
2 Mink's relative
3 Like Lerner and Loewe's lady
4 Worthless trifle
5 Take a chance
6 Scepter's companion
7 Actor Bogarde
8 Certain opera house regular
9 Artist's medium
10 Christmas scene
11 Feature of a log
12 Person with I trouble
13 There are two
14 Way to pay
18 Foretoken
21 Time of day
22 Unmask
25 Daze
27 Morse, for one
29 Fall short
30 Porcine uttering
34 Carousal
35 Render lip service
36 Wanting one
38 Certain paintings
39 Breathing space
40 Unclog
41 Bitingly ironic
42 Kinds, sorts
45 Punchless punches
48 Gadgets, usually
49 Like a gazelle
51 "I never — Purple Cow"
53 Mount for wheels
55 Shea inhabitant
57 Tidbit for Dobbin

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

R	E	A	D	S		D	R	A	I		L	O	O	T
A	T	R	A	P		I	O	W	A		I	L	L	E
J	A	C	K	O	F	A	L	L	T	R	A	D	E	S
A	S	H		N	I	L	E			O	N	E	A	L
			U	S	E		H	O	S	A	N	N	A
J	A	C	K	O	F	S	P	A	D	E	S
U	S	H	E	R		P	A	R	E	S		A	L	S
O	I	E	S		P	A	R	K	A		S	H	O	T
Y	A	R		T	A	N	T	E		S	T	A	G	Y
			J	A	C	K	I	N	T	H	E	B	O	X
M	A	T	U	R	E	S			A	R	M
A	L	A	N	S		A	M	M	O		A	R	E
J	A	C	K	I	N	T	H	E	P	U	L	P	I	T
O	T	O	E		B	O	A	T		D	I	S	C	O
R	E	S	T		A	N	T	E		S	P	O	O	N

10/18/84



10/18/84

D.C. Menu

LUNCH:
Hamburger on roll
Fried Clam Strips

DINNER:
Chicken Chow Mein
Roast Pork

BASICS LUNCH:
Goldenburgers
Fried Clam Strips

BASICS DINNER:
Chicken Chow Mein
Potato-Mushroom Delight

Everyone's talking about...

A great place to eat with friends...

Breakfast served anytime, have a delicious deli sandwich for lunch — Dinners served all nite.

Open 24 hours on Weekends 'til 3 a.m. Sun.-Thurs.

Sun.-Thurs. 6 a.m.-3 a.m. Fri. & Sat. 24 Hrs.

Next to Super Stop & Shop Campus Travel Center Rte. 9, Hadley/Amherst 256-6889

James H. McManus eating place

Good Food, Great Prices, Attentive Service

To complement our menu we are now offering beer and wine till midnight.

SENIOR CITIZENS DISCOUNTS 2-5 P.M. 20% ALL OTHER TIMES 10% Does not apply to specials.

★soccer

continued from pg. 16

eventual game winner.

The Huskies then began to push forward, setting up even more chances for the Minutemen, who found themselves evenly marked when they had the ball.

UConn was awarded a penalty kick at the 12:06 mark, which sweeper back Kieran Coffey mis hit and was stopped by Donahue. This play took some of the air out of UConn, who became frustrated and began to committ fouls. But All-American midfielder Eric Myren, who played a solid game in the midfield, began to control the ball more and keep it in UMass end.

This resulted in Addington's 13th goal of the year at 32:45 as he put a nice header past Donahue on a long cross of a corner kick by Coffey, who redeemed himself for his earlier error, and cut the lead to 2-1.

"I didn't feel safe until there were about ten seconds left. I knew we could'nt relax. They have the ability to come back anytime. Fitness wise, we were real tired. But they were tired too. We were at least their equal this year. It was nice to do something we wanted to. It was a real team win," concluded Gettler.

UMass 2, UConn l

UMass	(10-6-0)	1-1-2
UConn	(7-4-2)	0-1-1

Scoring: UM: Baldwin (2) from Manal (20:25); UC: Addington (13) from Coffey (32:24); UM: Bing (4) from Manal (5:59)
Shots: UM: 6; UC: 22
Saves: UM: (Donahue) 6; UC: (Pantason) 2

Women's tennis drops match to Crusaders

The women's tennis team dropped a closely fought match to Holy Cross 5-4 on the NOPE courts yesterday.

The loss put the Minutemen's record at 4-5. The women next play this Saturday against the University of Rhode Island at home at 1:30 p.m.

BYRAN QUENZEL

Simchat Torah Celebration

Join us in singing, dancing, and good spirits!

Thursday, Oct. 18, 7:30 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge Student Union

Sponsored by B'nai B'rith Hillel
Everyone Welcome

CCE Presents

SON SEALS BLUES BAND

ALL AGES

BLUEWALL OCT. 19 10 PM

UMASS $4.00

PUBLIC $5.00

TIX ON SALE AT THE DOOR

SPORT Style

Lisa Randall Robin

V-NECK SWEATSHIRT

15.95

EMBROIDERED LOGO

Acrylic/Cotton
Available in:
maroon
white blue green red

S-M-L-XL

photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center

open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

HI MOM?

I miss you, this is my dorm, Happy Birthday, I need money. . .
Say it on a

VIDEO LETTER

Videotaping for any occasion (VHS) call for appt. 253-5769 ask for Thor

AMC Theatres

Coupon for "Midnite" Admission expired 9/15/84. The Collegian misprinted the date in the Sept. 5 issue.

Rent One of Ours

Car
Truck
Passenger Van

North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Two of this Week's Specials
Thurs. Oct. 18 - Sun. Oct. 21

38.99 SALE! $29.-

45.99 SALE! $39.-

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION

RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
• Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax

North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

UMass teams climb in polls

While the women's soccer team remained entrenched in second in the national Division 1 poll, the field hockey team climbed to fifth in the latest rankings released yesterday.

The stickers, by virtue of their 2-1 (2 OT) victory over third ranked Temple last Saturday, jumped from seventh to fifth. Old Dominion, a 7-1 winner over UMass on Sunday, remained in hold of the top spot with a 12-0 record.

The women's soccer team continues to trail powerful North Carolina, 11-0. New England rival Brown, which handed U Mass, 9-1-1, its only loss, is third at 9-0-1.

★Donahue

continued from pg. 16

Still, the top ranked (New England) Huskies gave Donahue trouble. "They control the ball very well with a lot of one-touch passing. It was hard to follow the ball along," he said. The junior from Framingham followed the ball in the air well only allowing one shot to get by late in the game.

"The air balls were a lot of trouble but I handled them well today," Donahue said.

The Minutemen, now 7-4-2, good enough for the seventh ranking in the latest New England poll, came together and played well as a team, Donahue said.

"We started to slide a bit lately," he said. "We had lost the team attitude. But the last two days in practice and today, it was back. You could feel it in the air.

"It was a total team effort. Everybody worked hard and it was great," he said.

"It was my biggest win ever!" he added. As it should be. He and his teammates worked very hard to achieve it.

If you've never celebrated Simchat Torah at CHABAD HOUSE then You've Never Celebrated!!!

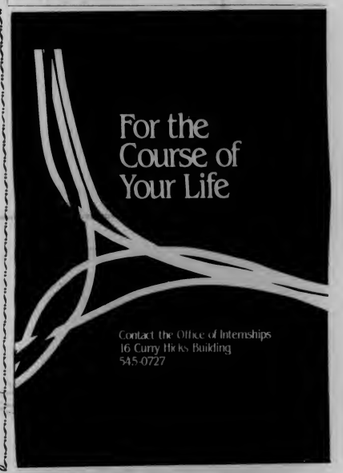
Simchat Torah Celebration

Thurs. Oct. 18 8:00 pm till. . .

* Hakafot
* Singing
* Dancing
* Refreshments without end
* Free, free, free

CHABAD HOUSE 30 N. Hadley Rd.
(opp. Whitmore, up the street from S'west)

Join us for the most joyous day on the Jewish calendar



COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

ADVERTISING

Advertise FREE in the RIVER VALLEY AD. Advertise items you want to sell or buy. Call 532-9498

* ATTENTION *

Jo B Player & Teri & Melissa & Tricia & Gail & Mary & Liz & Chrle & Lauren Thank you for a great day! Miss you so much. Moira

AUDIO

Pioneer AM-FM portable stereo cassette AMS/autoreverd/CRO2 $95 or BO 6-7897

AUTO FOR SALE

VW 'Thing' collector's item best offer Gene 323-7562

1973 Plymouth Satelite good condition must sell 900 call Wendy 253-3396

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500 serious call only 549-7864

69 Chevy Pickup good work truck best offer call Rick 546-6037

1974 Chevy Nova 79,000 mi. runs well, new muffler $950 call 586-9128

1979 Fiesta 4 speed, AM/FM cass. Dark blue 57,000 miles $1500. Call 256-8936

Help, folks say I can't have their car until my car is sold: 74 Volks Bus cheap! BO 546-5703

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $5 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older. Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO VIDEO Rack A Video entertainment giant 10 and 15 foot screens for dorms and Greeks. "MTV" video music call 549-7144

Rack-A-Disc Rack-A-Video entertainment guaranteed events for Disc Jockeys, Bands and Video. Call 549-7144

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7089

RISKY BUSINESS Thursday 18th SUBallroom $1.50 @ 5:00, $2.00 at 7, 9, 11. Sometimes you have to say "What the !?!"

Rack-A-Disc Rack-A-Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area 549-7144

FOR RENT

2 cubic ft refrigerator R & P Package Store free delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Twin Mattress and Boxspring 25.00 you must take away call 549-8041

Univege Mountain Bike Landrover Sport call 6-6045 Paul

Sanyo Turntable, new waterbed mattress never used each $40 eves 665-4229 Steve

RCA 19" color TV $120 call 586-9128

For Sale: 24" Univega $65, 21" Puch $85. Barry, eves, 549-7579

FOUND

Found small parakeet seems to be somebody's pet To claim please call 546-6943. Ask for Kathy or Celeste

Grey spotted young cat found on Main St., Amherst white flea collar contact 256-1210

I found a ring in Boyden Gym area Please describe and when you lost it and its yours. Call 256-8772

Found a set of 6 silver keys at Stockbridge Road bus stop last week. If they are yours, pick them up at the Info Booth in the CC Concourse

Found kitten Brandywine area hungry and abused call and indentify after 10 PM 549-1318

HELP WANTED

Overseas jobs Summer, yr. round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields, $900 - $2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52 MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

ATTENTION STUDENTS! Want part-time work you can fit between classes? Place and fill posters on campus, earn base and bonuses. Year-round possible. 1-800-243-6679

Part time Bartender needed nights and weekends Apply in person. "Cheers" located N. Hamp Bowl 525 Pleasant St

Part time counter help nights and weekends also someone for light janitorial work mornings. Apply in person. N. Hamp Bowl 525 Pleasant St

Now taking applications for full and part-time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

The Campus Center Board of Governors needs you! The BOG needs a Building Operations Coordinator. Duties include overseeing building problems and general policies affecting students within the CC/SUB complex. This is a paid position. For more info: BOG Office 817 Campus Center

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas private hot tub rentals call now for reservations 253-7727

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Lost brown plastic frame glasses in a red leather case if found contact 6-5641

Jean Jacket Fri night in Gorman Dorm roll of film, license in brest pocket $20 reward call Ann 6-1430

PERSONALS

Haircuts by Sue! By appt. only! $5.00! call 546-6359

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues., Oct 9 to Fri., Oct 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3 and the 1983 INDEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

Ron R. Seat #16 Sophisticated Ladies 8 PM with green sweater, pleated beige pants -not bad- - Row T

Who do YOU know? Who do YOU want to meet? If you KNOW any celebs, V.I.P.'s, musicians etc. have any info or input contact G.P.C. Box 146 SUB or call 545-2733 This is YOUR chance to shine on campus!

Anna, Brian, Karen, Susan, Tom and Shag I don't know where I would be without you guys! Thanks for making my 20th so special! Love, Mo PS Now that I'm 20, will I keep spilling Molson?!

HEY BIG GUY!! it's O.K. if I call you Big Guy, isn't it? Have a Happy Birthday Andy!! Sorry I can't be there with ya, but I'll be back soon. The Blue Ridge Mts. just aren't the same without you. Miss ya. Love, Laurie XOXO

DEB AVERY Heres the personal that you always wanted the Gremlin Men!

Mary-na Bay, You have given me happiness and the energy to keep doing what I do. Please don't stop! Little Bill and I will miss you this weekend. Love Sparky Dog Home Wanted loveable white Belgian shepard needs home desprately! Housebroken call JR @ 253-7987 or 545-0341 anytime!

Are you tired of sexual harassment? So are we! If you like pizza, are very nice and you're a foxy female, please call Mac or Matt 6-8209

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATE WANTED

To share master bedroom & private bath with a male in a house with large kitchen, living room and game room. 150/mo + utilities 253-9692

Non-smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344/253-3766

TO ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN

All are invited to Open Rush at Chi Omega! Monday Oct 22 Dinner Party 5-15 Wednesday Oct 24 Dinner Party 5-15 Thursday Oct 25 Halloween Party for rides and information call 546-0182 or 546-2082 ask for Kristin or Lorne

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal. Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer standing room only. We have good seats. Contact: Ken 546-5126

FREEPORT, BAHAMAS 7 days, airfare and hotel included $229 over January Break call Paul 546-8819 or Alan 546-6841

WANT BUSINESS EXPERIENCE

Looking for Business experience. Apply for a position at the UMass Student Federal Credit Union

WANTED

Neat, responsible male needs room. Call anytime 665-4878

Tutor wanted Ling 201 please call 549-1895

WANTED TO RENT

One bedroom apartment close to campus. Will take over lease in January. Please call Jim 549-7852

Sports

The UMass men's basketball team will hold open tryouts at 9:30 p.m. today at Boyden Gym. This will be the only tryout.

Minutemen humble Connecticut, 2-1

No. 12 Huskies fall, Baldwin, Bing score

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

It was the biggest win of the season and the biggest win of his career for coach Jeff Gettler as his Minutemen upset 12th ranked nationally and number one ranked in New England, University of Connecticut 2-1 before the largest soccer crowd of the year on Boyden Field.

"We alternated play between high and low pressure. They never really got in the game that much," Gettler said.

"We had a number of good chances. It's nice to play at home (where UMass is 4-1 this season). The crowd really helps. They are a big factor. I think we have a chance to be back in it (a playoff spot)" Gettler said.

UMass started the game a little slowly, thanks to UConn's aggressive play and tight marking. UConn created better scoring opportunities, but the UMass defense and goalie Don Donahue, who played a fine game, were up to the task as they would be all day long.

The Minutemen got on the board at the 20:25 mark of the first half as junior midfielder Richie Baldwin placed a Kurt Manal feed into the top right corner of the net from about 25 yards out for a 1-0 UMass lead that would hold through halftime. It was Baldwin's second goal of the year.

A scare occurred for UMass when sweeper back and senior co-captain Mike Runeare had a nasty head-on collision with defender Chris Heath of UConn with only 54 seconds left in the half. Both players had to leave the game and Runeare did not return until there were ten minutes left in the game, and again left with three minutes remaining.

"I was dizzy. I wanted to sort things out. They were putting a lot of pressure on us, and I wanted to get in there and get things organized. It was a good win for us," commented Runeare.

The booters, who played almost the entire team in the game, were forced to use a double sweeping tandem of Paul Ricard and Aaron Feigenbaum. They also started freshmen back Lawrence Brough for the first time, because of his height (6'2") and ability to win balls in the air over the man he was marking, UConn's leading scorer, Matthew Addington. Matthew Dowd also played extremely well on defense, said Gettle.

At the start of the second half, the Huskies once again came out storming, and had several close-in chances they didn't capitalize on.

However, the Minutemen jumped all over the chances they got. Manal got into the UConn end of the field, and passed across to Andy Bing, who did the rest himself. He dribbled around several defenders, made a beautiful run to the goal and blasted a left-footed shot past Huskie goalkeeper Andrew Pantason at the 5:59 mark of the half for his fourth goal of the year, a 2-0 UMass lead, and the

continued on pg. 11

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Minuteman goalie Don Donahue winds up a goal kick against UConn yesterday. UMass upset the Huskies 2-1.

Donahue aggressive

goalkeeper solidifies D

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

It was pure strategy. University of Massachusetts men's soccer coach Jeff Gettler had devised a way to stop the University of Connecticut and defense was at the base of his plan.

Using a double sweeper "prevented Connecticut from dictating their own style of play. The whole idea was to play a different rhythm and our rhythm," Gettler said.

The Minutemen defense did just that, holding off UConn in yesterday's 2-1 win at Boyden. The sweepers aside, the biggest force behind UMass' defense was the play of junior keeper Don Donahue.

The 12th ranked Huskies took 22 shots on goal to UM's seven and Donahue was credited with six saves, although he was in action a lot more.

Donahue single-handily kept the Minutemen in the game with just 12:37 gone in the game stopping a Huskie penalty kick by Kieran Coffey. Coffey's shot to the right was grabbed by the diving Donahue.

"They (goalies) work on penalty kicks every day," Gettler said. "Donahue was really aggresive. He played well."

Donahue said he had an idea what way Coffey was going to go. "In a game I try to read the players," he said. "Coach Barry (goalie coach Robert) told me a lot of ways to read a player."

Donahue took a guess on Coffey's shot and covered the right side. And it perserved the 2-0 UMass lead.

"That was the first kick he missed," UConn coach Joe Morrone said. "He's usually our money man."

But thanks to Donahue and the double sweeper defense, the Huskies weren't collecting any money this afternoon.

"The double sweeper defense took a lot of pressure off me," Donahue said. Senior captain Mike Runeare, Paul Ricard and Aaron Feigenbaum were the sweepers.

continued on pg. 15

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

UMass' Kurt Manal (15) heads the ball past two UConn defenders yesterday. Manal had two assists in UM's big win.

Sports Log

Tony Betros

Just a few thoughts...

Remember back in May, when the Tigers were 35-5 and many people were waiting for them to fold up and be put away• Well, five months later, these same Tigers are champions of the baseball world...In game five, Goose Gossage wanted to pitch to Kirk Gibson instead of walking him because he handled him well when he was in the American League. One pitch later, Gibson was rounding the bases with a three-run homer. That's like Afghanistan saying about Russia, "Don't worry, we can handle it."

Don't take anything away from the Padres. They look to have an excellent club for the next few years, with a good combination of youngsters and veterans. They will give the Dodgers headaches...Now, I know Detroit hasn't had a winner in any sport in a few years, but those riots afterwards were a bit too much. Now, Detroit's police cars get 32 miles and 45 matches to the gallon...Other baseball news: New York Met Dwight Gooden, as reported in The New York Post, is asking for $750,000 next year. He made $40,000 this year leading the league in strikeouts.

News from around the world of sports: The Celtics trade of Henderson poses an interesting question--we all know that Philly has an extremely quiek backcourt and with Gerald gone, Boston's guards just don't have the speed to match the 76ers. Red, of course, will work it out in the end...Last Monday night was the ultimate in depression--three feet of snow in Denver. I am glad to see a different type of white powder in the NFL.

Marvin Hagler goes to defend his crown one more time against Mustafa Hamsho tomorrow night. Mr. Hamsho says he's a new fighter with a different manager and trainer. I'm sorry, Mustafa, but the only way you'll win on Friday is if you come to UMass and play the boxing video game at the arcade...Quote of the week goes to UConn soccer coach Joe Morrone, who said after the 2-1 UMass victory "I feel that their program hasn't arrived yet if they have to use double sweepers." I'm sorry to tell you Joe, you bozo, but you got swept.

No more need be said.

sports at a glance

UMass Schedule:

There are no sports scheduled for today.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 31 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, October 19, 1984

University sets stage for Ferraro rally

Line-up of speakers finalized; tight area security expected

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Final preparations will be made today in anticipation of tomorrow's visit of Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro at the University of Massachusetts.

Ferraro, the nation's first woman vice-presidential candidate of a major political party, will lead a political rally beginning at 10 a.m. Ferraro will begin speaking about 10:45 a.m.

Due to security problems, previous plans calling for Ferraro to arrive in a horse-drawn carriage have been scrapped, according to Pam Barry, a Ferraro press aide.

North Pleasant Street will be closed for most of the morning and afternoon to allow the crowd to overflow into the streets, according to a Public Safety spokesperson.

Mary Wentworth, Democratic Congressional candidate from Amherst, will kick-off the line-up of speakers. She will be followed by state Rep. Ray Jordan of Springfield; six student speakers, one from each of the groups sponsoring the rally (the Student Government Association, the State Student Association, the Women's Leadership Project, Third World Caucus, Public Policy Committee, and University Democrats); U.S. Rep. Edward Boland of Springfield; state legislators John Olvor and Jim Collins, both of Amherst; Laura Zaccaro, Ferraro's daughter; UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey; Lt. Gov. and U.S. Senate candidate John Kerry; Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, and then Rep. Ferraro.

Ferraro is expected to speak for about 20 minutes.

Security will be tight with U.S. Secret Service agents, UMass and state police and about 50 student security officers patrolling the crowd.

Ferraro is expected to be well received by the crowd, the majority of which will be UMass and five-college students, but which will probably also include people from across the Commonwealth, according to a Ferraro aide.

Ferraro and Democratic Presidential candidate Walter Mondale have been heckled by conservatives and pro-life protesters at many campaign stops throughout the country. The president of the UMass Republican Club said his group has no plans to disrupt or organize at the event.

"We would certainly not make any attempt to disrupt the event or prevent her from speaking. We all have to work very hard at freedom of speech," said Stephen Erickson, president of the club.

UMass parking regulations will not be enforced in order to accomodate the crowd, expected to be between 8,000 and 10,000, according to Gerald O'Neil, UMass director of Public Safety.

Workers began constructing the stage in front of the Campus Center Pond yesterday, while unidentified men walked back and forth on the roof of Morrill Science Center, which faces the stage.

Ferraro, a three term Congresswoman from Queens, N.Y., is considered a mainstream, liberal Democrat. Before joining the U.S. House of Representatives in 1978 she was an assistant district attorney in Queens.

The Ferraro Visit

Where: the Campus Pond (Fine Arts Center in case of rain).
When: Saturday, Oct. 20
The Schedule:
10 a.m. — Rally begins with Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey and Democratic Senate candidate John F. Kerry, and Gov. Michael S. Dukakis speaking and introducing Rep. Ferraro.
10:45 — Democratic Vice presidential candidate Geraldine A. Ferraro addresses the rally until 11:10, and will stay at the rally until 11:55.
Rally is scheduled to continue with musicians and speakers after Ferraro speaks.

MORE ON FERRARO, P. 3

'Positive media' before debate seen as crucial to Democrats

By RICHARD MARTIN
Collegian Staff

A former campaign adviser for Walter Mondale says Geraldine Ferraro's visit to the campus Saturday will tie together both the national and regional strategies of the Democratic presidential team in the final weeks of the race.

University of Massachusetts journalism professor Ralph Whitehead, who worked for Mondale in the fall of 1982 and is now an adviser to John Kerry's Senate campaign, said the UMass site was chosen for many reasons.

Foremost is the fact that Ferraro will be trying to generate positive media prior to Sunday night's crucial presidential debate on foreign policy. Neither Mondale nor President Reagan will be making public appearances as they prepare for the event.

"Ferraro's speech will probably be heavily covered on an otherwise slow Saturday news day by the media markets surrounding Massachusetts," Whitehead said. "Her appearance will help her to talk to people in the Hartford media market. Although Massachusetts is virtually in the bag (for the Democrats), Connecticut will be a much tougher sell. A good performance will build regional support in Connecticut."

"As a national objective, the Democrats have got to become far more competitive on college campuses. Registration among college-age voters has been high over the past two years as young people become more interested in what the election means about their future."

— Ralph Whitehead, journalism professor

Ferraro's visit is also an indication that the Democrats are trying to make up in an area where they've lost ground — the nation's campuses, Whitehead said.

"As a national objective, the Democrats have got to become far more competitive on college campuses. Registration among college-age voters has been high over the past two years as young people become more interested in what the election means about their future," he said.

"They (Democrats) find themselves having trouble with college voters."

Whitehead said a recent Mondale-Ferraro rally at the University of Wisconsin was a breakthrough for the pair, and gave them favorable national press coverage. Earlier in the campaign Mondale ran into hecklers at the University of Southern California, while Ferraro has encountered trouble on Southern campuses. Political commentators and cartoonists, especially Berke Breathed's Bloom County, have been emphasizing the Democrats' problem in this area.

"What they're trying to do is go to friendly campuses and get the ball rolling," Whitehead said.

Karin McCarthy, communications coordinator for the Mondale-Ferraro campaign in Boston, reinforced Whitehead's opinion.

"There's already a lot of excitement for the ticket out there (UMass). We want to show people that they can get actively involved," McCarthy said.

Recent polls indicate that it might not be too late for the Democrats in this area, given the volatile nature of young voters. The latest Harris survey says Reagan's 17-point lead over Mondale among under-30 voters has slipped to 10 points. Also, his "favorable" rating among that same age group has fallen from a high of 66 percent to 39 percent after the first Reagan-Mondale debate.

However, Ferraro won't be making a strictly "student" speech, according to Whitehead and McCarthy.

"I think the Democratic ticket must shift from special interest appeals to broader, more optimistic appeals. I don't think Ferraro will treat it (UMass speech) as a higher education special interest group speech.

"I think it's time for the Democrats' appeal to gain some altitude," Whitehead said.

Finally, the UMass appearance should bring out the vote among traditionally lethargic Democratic voters as they come out to support the party, said Whitehead.

"Massachusetts at this point is all but secure for Walter Mondale. My guess is that a Ferraro appearance ices Massachusetts for the Democratic ticket," he said.

Professor warns of nationalism danger

By RONDA APPLEBAUM
Collegian Staff

The difference between patriotism and nationalism needs to be defined and understood, UMass political science professor Jean B. Elshtain said last night.

Speaking to a crowd of over 200 in Memorial Hall, Elshtain, recipient of the Chancellor's Lecture Series Award said, "We no longer distinguish between patriotism and nationalism."

In a lecture in which she quoted extensively from noted writers such as Ernest Hemingway and notorious leaders such as Adolf Hitler, Elshtain said, "Eventually the peaceful patriotic homing pigeon has become a nationalistic vulture out to destroy the homelands of others."

Elshtain stressed that the "true patriot acknowledges a pluralistic world," but that the nationalistic concepts of citizenship depend on the existence of foreign enemies.

Elshtain said that a patriot is one who must embrace limits, both territorial and cultural, however, a nationalist challenges limits, especially territorial ones.

In nationalism there is an external focus on others, Elshtain said. She went on to say that nationalism puts nations against one another.

"The nationalist specializes in absolutest principles. The patriot is one who must embrace limits. The patriot must have respect for the construction of identities different from their own," Elshtain said.

"The nationalist insists that no other duty can interfere with the duty to the nation state. The patriot is responsible to and for his political community, she said.

Elshtain quoted Franklin Roosevelt as saying, "Americanism is not and never was a matter of race or nationality. Americanism is a matter of the heart. To the extent that it has failed, we shall call her to task."

Elshtain is a member of the American Political Science Association and has chaired several political theory and affiliated panels.

Collegian photo by Mitch Dranitch

Political science Professor Jean Elshtain addresses a Memorial Hall audience last night.

Inside:

A proud day for UMass.....p.7

Ras Tafarian leader speaks on Jamaica.....p.9

Minutemen to tackle Bears.....p.16

"It is human nature to think wisely and to act in an absurd fashion."

— Anatole France

World and National News

State death penalty nixed

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court ruled yesterday that the state's revised death penalty law is unconstitutional because it unfairly encourages murder defendants to plead guilty rather than face a jury trial.

"The death penalty provisions enacted in 1982...violate Article 12 of the Massachusetts Constitution," Justice Paul Liacos wrote in the majority opinion. "They impermissibly burden both the right against self incrimination and the right to a jury trial guaranteed by that article."

The divided court issued the ruling in response to a request from District Attorney John Conte of Worcester County, who wanted the high court's guidance before proceeding with a criminal trial against three men accused of murdering state trooper George Hanna on Feb. 26, 1983.

In a 4-3 ruling, the court refused to be bound by the wording of an amendment to the Massachusetts Constitution approved by voters in Novemeber, 1982, which said, "No provision of the Constitution...shall be construed as prohibiting the imposition of the punishment of death."

Armed with that amendment, the Legislature approved a law on Dec. 15, 1982, restoring the death penalty for first degree murders committed with premeditation or extreme atrocity. It also spelled out procedures for imposing capital punishment.

Bush plane avoids collision

SEATTLE (AP) - Air Force II, carrying Vice President Bush dove 200 feet yesterday to avoid a collision with a small single-engine plane that was crossing its flight path on approach to Boeing Field in Seattle, an aide to the vice president said.

It was the second time since Sept. 30 that Bush's plane has taken evasive action to avoid a collision.

Joe Hagin, Bush's assistant for legislative affairs and a passenger on Air Force Two, said "the co-pilot spotted the plane coming from the left. He took control of the plane and we dropped approximately 200 feet rapidly."

Hagin said that "this was closer than we'd all like to see it" and that "it was very noticeable that something happened."

Hagin said the incident occurred at about 3,000 feet as Bush's plane was descending toward Boeing Field.

From the cockpit, the plane was coming from the left. Asked how close the plane came to Air Force Two, Hagin said, "I don't know exactly but apparently it was less than 500 feet."

Asked if the small craft was on the same altitude as Bush's plane, Hagin replied, "Apparently — heading right toward."

Once on the ground, Bush emerged from the plane and shook hands with well-wishers and walked over to a fence to shake hands with several dozen supporters. He was smiling and gave no inkling of the near accident.

Bush was alone in his cabin at the time of the incident, Hagin said.

Hagin said he went up to Bush to explain what had happened. "He was pretty much unconcerned about it, he didn't see it ... He glanced up and didn't seem concerned at all," Hagin said.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Anne McCrory
Copy Editor Bob Burgess
Layout Tecnician Ansel Zinter
Photo Technician Mitch Drantch
Production Supervisor Conor Plunkett
Production Laura Zigman, Kathryn Nobrega, Julie Slater, Andrew Held, Jeff Collins, Mike Christ, Debb Rugg.

Desire Under the Elms

by EUGENE O'NEILL

October 11-13 17-20, 8:00 PM
Rand Theater, Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
FRIDAY and SATURDAY
Party with
CRAZY GEORGE TILL 2 AM
(come early doors close when full)
• Sundays Football 1-7 •
RT 9 HADLEY (across from Mt Farms Mall)

the Hungry U Restaurant
CHECK OUT OUR MUNCHIE MENU!
Attitude Adjustment Hour
! TODAY ONLY !
3-6 pm
75¢ WELL DRINKS (1 liquor)
DINNER SPECIAL:
Veal Parmigiana $6.70
SUPER-SALAD with spaghetti and beverage
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

By "Jazz"
Just in Time!
Flat suede boots in Five striking colors.
Perfect for pants and skirts.
Friday 10/19
thru Tuesday 10/23
59.99
SALE!
45.00
SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst

Spirit Haus
DOMESTIC BEER SPECIALS
Budweiser loose cns $10.95 cs + dep
Lite loose cans....$10.95 case + dep.
Michelob loose cns $12.50 cs + dep
IMPORTED BEER SPECIALS
Spaten Oktoberfest .....$3.95 + dep.
Steinhauser $3.95 6 pack + dep.
Holland Brand .....$3.95 6 pack + dep
WINE SPECIALS
Engelsburg German Wine 1.5 L.....$2.99
Chianti 750 ml.....3 for $4.99
Soave, Valpolicella 1.5...$3.99
LIQUOR SPECIALS
Kimnoff Vodka 1.75 L....$8.75
Jim Beam Bourbon 1.75 L.....$11.99
Wine Tasting Saturday 12:00 - 6:00 pm
338 College Street Amherst 253-5384
not responsible for typographical errors

SUPERIOR PIZZA
UMass Students Favorite Pizza!
FAST, FREE DELIVERY
also grinders, salads, dinners
17 Montague Road
North Amherst
549-0626
$1.00 OFF with 2 or more items on a large pizza
50¢ OFF with 2 or more items on a small pizza
(one per pizza)
11/05/84

Collegian photo by Andrew Heller

James Karis of Hampshire College joins in the postermaking effort yesterday for vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro's rally on campus Saturday. More than 10,000 spectators are expected to attend the event coordinated by six student groups.

Vacant Union Records given to AHORA for future office

By JOHN VINCENT
Collegian Staff

The Board of Governors of the Campus Center (BOG) last night granted office space to AHORA, a Latin American student group, despite dissension from board members.

BOG member Heidi Parks said the space proposal should not have been passed last night.

"Every group needs to be looked at. This needs to be examined by the space committee to get a prioritized list of groups," she said, in part of a heated debate over whether AHORA would be granted Student Union Building room 406f, which has been vacated by the Rugby Club and the defunct Union Records Unlimited business office.

Rudolf Jones, another member, said that the decision to locate AHORA there would not be arbitrary because he said the matter had been discussed for months and the group's space need had been established.

A motion was also passed that would penalize members for missing committee meetings, which Weldon said has been a problem this year.

Weldon said it was embarrassing that when Governor Michael S. Dukakis honored AHORA recently for its 10th anniversary, he found they had neither an office nor a telephone. Weldon added, "We can't punish groups for our problems of coordinating." He said this would have been better planned out if the space committee had consistent agendas and quorums of members.

Campus Center Director Bill Harris left the meeting upset after he tried to hurry board members so he could speak. The meeting adjourned before he spoke.

Poll shows Ferraro interest

By NANCY BUKAR
Collegian Staff

Curiosity and historical importance are some of the attractions of Saturday's visit by vice-presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, according to a poll of University of Massachusetts students and faculty.

"People are really curious...there's a certain awe about seeing the first woman that could possibly become vice president," Mandy Janjigian, a junior psychology major from Watertown, said. "At the debate she could only say what she was asked, but here she can gear it more to the students, especially now since Reagan has screwed up financial aid...it's a chance to sway people into her direction."

But Annie McGarret, a 40-year-old journalism student, says enough has been said about Ferraro being the first woman up for the vice-presidential seat.

"In 1984, gender should have nothing to do with it (the election). Why should we keep apologizing for being women?" McGarret said.

"At the vice-presidential debate, the journalists kept referring to Ferraro as 'Mrs. Ferraro, as a woman, how do you feel about...' But they didn't say to Bush, 'Mr. Bush, as a man, how do you feel?' She's not a giddy woman that will make emotional decisions," McGarret said.

Lewis Minzer, the acting chairman of the political science department said Ferraro's visit "will cheer up all us Amherst Democrats." But Minzer does not see any radical changes in student voting patterns occurring because of Ferraro's visit.

"It won't in any way harm her. She's an attractive, intelligent, spunky person capable of putting on a good performance," he said.

Michael Shea, a senior communication studies major from Foxboro is an uncommitted voter. "She's going to have to persuade me. I'm leaning towards the Democrats now." The rally will provide "a chance to hear her ideas and views firsthand, not just read them in the paper," Shea said.

Sam Bargad, a senior communications studies major and an undecided voter said he will attend the rally because he wants to hear how Ferraro "will handle the more outspoken students."

"This will help me decide by seeing how she handles things in person and if she's got a strong platform," Bargad said.

Not all students are undecided. Mark Kroninger, a junior from Mattapoisett, said "I don't like the Mondale-Ferraro platform." However, Kroninger said he believes that Ferraro's appearance at UMass is "good" because "people should be aware that it is easy for her to criticize (Reagan) but she should have some answers too."

Kroninger said, "Her being here will start a spurt of liberalism—she will change people's minds."

Students enter Yale dispute

Complain access to facilities hampered by strike

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

In the fourth week of a clerical and technical workers strike at Yale University, students are concerned with the administration's failure to resolve the conflict.

Many classes have been canceled or moved off campus to avoid crossing picket lines, library hours have been shortened and speakers are no longer coming to campus, according to a member of Students for a Negotiated Settlement.

"The University is not caring about a constituency that has paid to be here ... Access to facilities has been cut tremendously," senior literature major Karen Cope said in a telephone interview yesterday.

The union of about 1,800 clerical and technical workers, which is 82 percent women, went on strike on Sept. 26 when the administration's final offer was rejected by the negotiating committee.

Yale president A. Bartlett Giamatti has persisted in telling the public that it is business as usual, resulting in an increasing gulf between "people who attend Yale and the people who are running Yale as a corporation," Cope said.

"We are galled by the University's unwillingness to admit that our lives are being disrupted," she said. "The administration has done itself in."

Cope said that Yale has no student union and no student government, making it difficult for students to influence the administration's policies.

"We have no place to come together. We are fractioned into 12 residential colleges," she said.

Cope said she feels the strike has raised questions about the administration's commitment to fighting sexism and upholding democracy.

"Very clearly, there is no democracy," she said. "Nobody has any say in how money is spent."

Only 4½ percent of the tenured faculty are women, she said.

"They published a plan to double the percentage of tenured women by 1990, but it is similar to the (rejected) 24 percent pay increase they offered the union," she said.

"It looks like a lot, but considering all the factors it isn't. Doubling the percentage of women faculty sounds good but that means 8 percent — still not a lot."

Yale President Giamatti said in an interview in the New York Times last week: "This is a classic union struggle over wages....There are certain perogatives that private research universities aren't going to give up."

Second-year law student Amy Eppler said law students are strongly backing the union in what they see as a battle against Yale's discriminatory practices.

Students are contributing to the hardship fund, walking the picket lines and organizing communication networks, she said.

But the students' learning process has been effected because the strike has "broken up the community," Eppler said.

The administration has filed a grievance in an attempt to force Local 35, the union of dining commons and maintenance workers, to stop honoring the picket lines and go back to work. It has also refused to go into binding arbitration with the clerical and technical workers union.

Wavy Gravy coming to Amherst

Wavy Gravy will bring his "Nobody for President campaign" to the Amherst Common Saturday at 1 p.m. for a rally.

Nobody is running on the platform that Nobody deserves to be president. "Nobody has solved the problem of inflation," Wavy Gravy said. "Nobody knows what is best for you and Nobody bakes a better apple pie than mom."

Wavy Gravy born as Hugh Romney, grew up in Prineton, NJ. He joined the army after high school and then studied theatre at Boston University. He then moved to Greenwich Village in New York City where he wrote and organized poetry readings.

Later he moved to California where he joined up with Ken Kesey, author of One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest and other books. Romney later organized the Hog Farm, one of the first communes of the 1960s.

He was called on to organize security at the Woodstock Music and Arts Fair in 1969 and was also involved in numerous demonstrations against the Vietnam war.

PETER WISSOKER

Thefts, scuffle reported

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
and PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Police arrested a 19-year-old student early yesterday morning and charged him with stealing a "dead end" road sign owned by the town of Amherst. Police said they observed the man carrying the sign near Butterfield Dormitory and arrested him at 12:29 a.m.

In other police reports, a UMass student, walking near College Pizza on Fearing Street, said she was followed by a car whose occupants were yelling rude remarks.

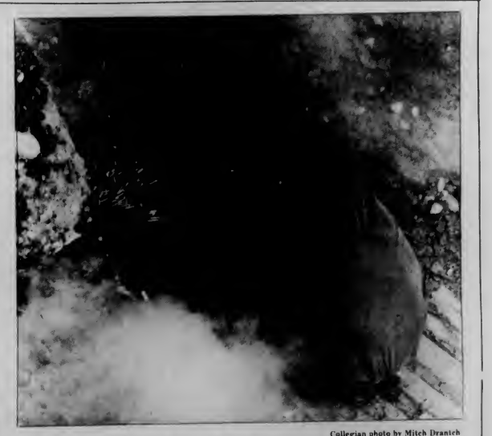
The car followed the woman for a short distance, then left the scene. Police said the woman gave a description of the car.

Police reported a fight yesterday between two female students who are roommates in John Quincy Adams Dormitory. The fight had ended when officers arrived, and the two women were then asked to work out their differences, police said.

A UMass student's backpack and its contents, valued at $75, were stolen yesterday at about 1:12 a.m. in the Campus Center. Police said the student was attending a movie in the Campus Center Auditorium, from where the pack was taken.

Amherst police also reported a larceny from Spirit Haus package store yesterday. Two truck tires, valued at $180, were stolen sometime Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

In other town police reports, a Hallock Street resident reported an attempted burglary at 4:16 a.m. Wednesday. The casing on the back door had been broken off when the resident woke up.



Collegian photo by Mitch Drantch

DOWN IN THE DUMPS — Physical Plant worker John Desrosiers engages in steam pipe repairs outside the Student Union Building.

Fine Arts Center
Concert Hall
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Peter Nero CONDUCTOR/SOLOIST with the PHILLY POPS
FRIDAY, OCT 19, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

Springfield Symphony Orchestra Robert Jung Music Director
with PETER SERKIN Piano
FRIDAY, OCT 26, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

Shakespeare & Company
Romeo and Juliet
THURSDAY, NOV 1, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

CANADA'S ROYAL WINNIPEG BALLET
MONDAY, NOV 5, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

Five College Students Half-Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842
MasterCard VISA

Pearl Street

TONIGHT
Friday, October 19
DANCE FEVER PARTY NIGHT
Proudly Presenting JUNIOR WALKER
and
THE ALL STARS
Motown Premier Sax Man
$8. at the door

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31st
the HALLOWEEN COSTUME PARTY
Prizes of Dom Perignon, and other luxuries to be won

Positive ID's required at the door. Photo Driver's License, ABC Cards
Pearl St. is available for formals or special occasions

10 PEARL STREET NORTHAMPTON, MA. 413 584-7771

She will become their most deadly weapon.

As long as they can make her fall in love.

DIANE KEATON

THE LITTLE DRUMMER GIRL.

A GEORGE ROY HILL FILM
DIANE KEATON
in JOHN LE CARRE'S
"THE LITTLE DRUMMER GIRL"
YORGO VOYAGIS KLAUS KINSKI
Music by DAVE GRUSIN
Executive Producer PATRICK KELLEY
Screenplay by LORING MANDEL
Based on the novel by JOHN LE CARRE
Produced by ROBERT L. CRAWFORD
Directed by GEORGE ROY HILL
© MCMLXXXIV WARNER BROS. A KASHOGGI-HILL ASSOCIATES PRODUCTION
R RESTRICTED
READ THE BANTAM BOOK

Now Playing at a Theatre Near You.

College Party Weekend
in $68. MONTREAL
includes
* Round Trip Transportation
* 3 days, 2 nights
Hotel Sherbourg, Downtown Montreal
November 2, 3, 4

Night Clubs open 'til 4 AM
Drinking Age 18
No Roadblocks
Last Week for Sign-Up
Call ERIC 549-5017

Natural Fiber
NEW ARRIVALS!

Alpaca Sweaters
Wool Sweater Jackets
****
Heavy Cotton
Turtlenecks -Crewnecks
Cotton Pants
****
New Posters and Cards
****
More Blouses-Skirts-Dresses
****
SALE CLOTHING

Mon - Sat 10 - 6
Sunday 12 - 5
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
GREAT GIFTS — GREAT PRICES

PIZZA-RAMA
Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

FREE DELIVERY!
CALL 253-3808
256-0115
356 College Street, Amherst

Any Large Pizza 3 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Med. Pizza 2 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Small Pizza 1 FREE SODA (can) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons

With the
Xaverian Missionaries
you can help build a world richer in love.

FOR MORE INFORMATION WRITE TO:
Vocation Director
101 Summer Street
Holliston, MA 01746

I am interested in the XAVERIAN ( ) Priests ( ) Brothers
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY
STATE ZIP
TELEPHONE AGE

The Xaverian Missionaries can help you give meaning to your life by continuing Christ's work in Japan, Mexico, Bangladesh, Indonesia, Zaire, Burundi, Sierra Leone, Chad, Cameroon, Brazil and Colombia.

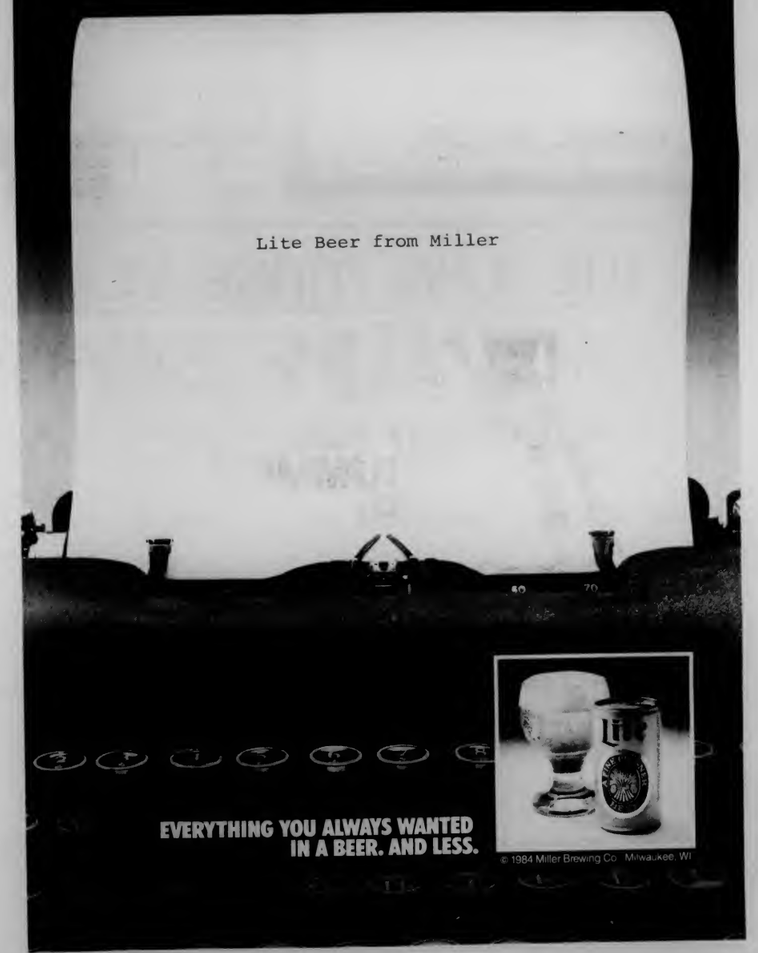
安城中国饭店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 MAIN ST., AMHERST
BEER & WINE LICENSE
Fresh Vegetables from Our Own Farm
CLOSED WEDNESDAY
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLORING
253-7835

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

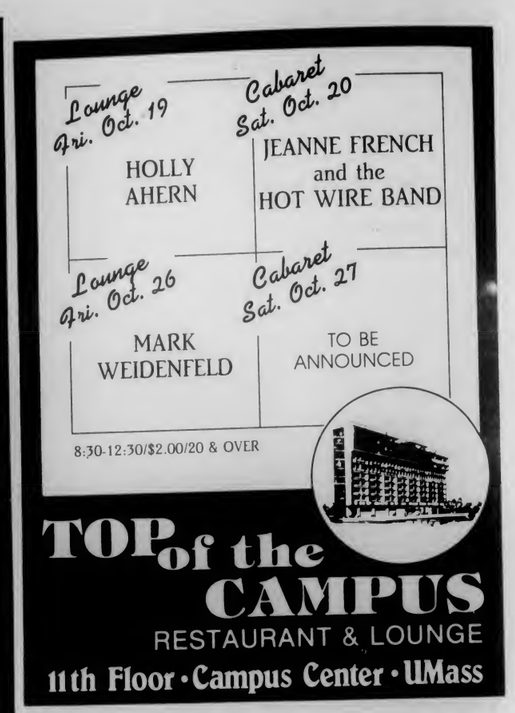
amc THEATRES
$2.25 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW
RT. FARMS 4 584-0155
Purple Rain
Fri at 4:30 @ 12:25/7:15, 9:55
Sat at 11:45 & 4:30 @ 12:25/7:15, 9:55
Sun at 11:00 & 3:45 @ 12:25/6:15, 8:45
STEVE MARTIN LILY TOMLIN
ALL OF ME
Fri at 4:45 @ 12:25/7:30, 9:55
Sat at 12:00 & 4:45 @ 12:25/7:30, 9:55
Sun at 11:15 & 4:00 @ 12:25/6:15, 8:45
Diane Keaton
THE LITTLE DRUMMER GIRL
Fri at 4:15 @ 12:25/7:00, 9:45
Sat at 1:30 & 4:15 @ 12:25/7:00, 9:45
Sun at 12:45 & 3:30 @ 12:25/6:00, 8:30
Bill Murray Catherine Hicks
THE RAZOR'S EDGE
Fri at 4:15 @ 12:25/7:00, 9:45
Sat at 1:30 & 4:15 @ 12:25/7:00, 9:45
Sun at 12:45 & 3:30 @ 12:25/8:00, 8:30
HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550
Thief of Hearts
Fri at 5:00 @ 12:25/7:15, 9:45
Sat at 2:30 & 5:30 @ 12:25/7:15, 9:45
Sun at 11:45 & 4:00 @ 12:25/8:15, 8:30
NINJA III THE DOMINATION
Fri at 5:15 @ 12:25/7:30, 9:55
Sat at 12:30 & 5:15 @ 12:25/7:30, 9:55
Sun at 12:00 & 4:15 @ 12:25/8:15, 8:30
Irreconcilable Differences
Fri at 4:45 @ 12:25/7:30, 9:55
Sat at 12:00 & 4:45 @ 12:25/7:30, 9:45
Sun at 11:30 & 3:45 @ 12:25/6:00, 8:15
NICK NOLTE JOSEPH WILLIAMS
TEACHERS
Fri at 4:45 @ 12:25/7:15, 9:30
Sat at 12:15 & 4:45 @ 12:25/7:15, 9:30
Sun at 11:30 & 3:45 @ 12:25/6:00, 8:15
THE ATTIC LATE SHOWS
FRI & SAT at 12:15 SEATS $3.50
ROCKY HORROR | PINK FLOYD THE WALL
MONTY PYTHON | MEANING OF LIFE | FLESH GORDON

"WHEN I HIT A DRY SPELL, THESE ARE THE ONLY WORDS I CAN THINK OF."
—MICKEY SPILLANE
FAMOUS MYSTERY WRITER

Lite Beer from Miller



EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.
© 1984 Miller Brewing Co. Milwaukee, WI



The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

We should be proud

Tomorrow is a proud day for the University of Massachusetts.

Of all the stops in Western Massachusetts — Springfield, Pittsfield, Great Barrington — Geraldine Ferraro chose UMass for a political rally. While only she can say for sure why she chose UMass, we think it is obvious.

This University is a beacon of liberalism. Our direction mirrors the best and most progressive ideals that people everywhere have worked for.

We have a level of excellence matched by few institutions for higher education, public or private. Our faculty, staff, administration and students equally combine to create an atmosphere of learning by teaching and teaching by learning.

We are a true reflection of what America should be, a melting pot, full of diversity in everything we say and do, and more importantly, open to all who wish to participate. We are a school that recognizes and respects the past, of which ours is rich in tradition. But we are also an institution which recognizes that the reason we have survived and prospered for 121 years is because we have looked to, and prepared for, the future.

The members of this community have come here for a variety of reasons, some to get an education, some to give an education and some to share in our education. In recent years, Rev. Jesse Jackson, Gary Hart, Edward Kennedy, George McGovern, the Dalai Lama, Gloria Steinem, Betty Freidan, Michael Dukakis, Thomas P. O'Neil Sr. and Jr., to name a few, have all come to share and enhance our education.

In the words of noted biographer and historian and UMass history professor Stephen B. Oates, "What we're trying here is to teach students not just how to make a living but how to make a life."

We will not try and overlook the fact that Ferraro is coming here for political reasons, but neither can we overlook the fact that she chose UMass. On Saturday all of UMass, Democrat, Republican, Independent, can stand tall and take pride in our University.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

I DON'T UNDERSTAND WHERE SUPPORT FOR BEARNY
HIS FOREIGN POLICY IS LIKELY TO LEAD US INTO WAR...
AND HIS ECONOMIC PLANS ARE GOING TO LEAD TO ANOTHER RECESSION
THAT'S WHAT AMERICA NEEDS - A LEADER!

Abortion: only women know

Bob Brigham

The place is here and the time is now for men to stop making laws restricting women and their bodies. I hope to never ever see a Pro-Life article authored by a man again. The simplistic, alarmist arguments that seem to typify a man's pro-life opinions are abhorrent to me.

I am only hypothesizing, but I would imagine the most intimate experience a woman could have would be to carry a baby and give birth. Think of the nine months of radical body changes, of fears and hopes, of serenity and trauma she must go through. Think of the permanent change, the lifetime alteration having a baby brings. What an awesome responsibility it is.

The decision to abort a pregnancy is a tragic one. How can anyone even suggest it is a frivolous choice? A woman must go through incredible inner conflict and turmoil in making this decision. What can a man do, but stand by and be supportive of whichever choice she makes? How can a male, not being able to bear children, relate to this issue? There are no analogies. How, then, can a man presume to tell a woman what is correct for her? How can any person tell another what is correct for them? I would challenge that person to first live my life. Be empathetic. Weigh my experiences, my values, my goals. Look through my eyes.

There are too many factors involved in the abortion issue to blithely conclude that abortion is immoral. Some factors include rape, incest and abuse, maternal mortality, economic disadvantage, abandonment, and most importantly, a woman's right to control her own body.

Would you condemn a woman to carrying the child of her rapist? Would you do the same to an incest/abuse victim? Would you order a pregnant woman to carry her child to term if doing so put her life at risk? would you sentence middle class and poor women to back-alley or self-induced abortions while their rich sisters continue to have a relatively safe alternative available? Would you further victimize a woman whose lover leaves her by mandating that she keep that man's child, rear the baby, and assume all financial and familial responsibilities for him or her?

Finally, as a male, do you dare to impose your uncompromising, judgemental views on more than half the human race, when you can't even know the unique feelings and experiences a woman has? This is outrageous. A poignantly appropriate slogan for Pro-Choice states that, "If men could get pregnant, abortion would be a sacrament."

I would suggest we all be supportive of women's choices. Get informed. Speak to a social worker at an abortion clinic. Ask your sister, mother, grandmother, aunt, girlfriend, or daughter what they think. Realize what a personal, painful decision this is. Then support a woman's right to make that decision for herself, for her body, and for her life.

Bob Brigham is a Collegian columnist.

Is there life after school?

Herb Ramy

A friend of mine is dropping out. After all the second chances and skipped classes he felt that it would be better to leave and have a chance at coming back rather than being kicked out without having any chance at all. At first I thought I knew why he was doing this. There may also have been smaller reasons, but the biggest one, I felt, was that he just didn't care any more.

For the past month I'd been trying to convince this person to stay. In my opinion his quitting school was symbolic of him quitting life as a whole. I believed this because one evening after a few drinks we opened up to one another. He told me of how he was sick and tired of beating his head against a wall that refused to be broken down. He had played the role of the radical, trying to open peoples eyes to what was going on around them. He'd been to the demonstrations and the rallies, but it appeared that their time had passed. No one stopped to listen, and in return for his work he was scorned and ridiculed. All of this seemed to make him cynical and apathetic. I tried explaining to him that he couldn't expect sweeping changes in the way people lived their lives to happen overnight, it took time. We would both probably be long dead before any significant changes took place, but it was the little changes we made now that made the big ones possible. Looking back I see that he was saying something else, but I was too busy listening to myself to hear him.

Only now do I realize what he wanted to tell me. Although he was quitting school, he was by no means quitting life. He simply believed that he could no longer be part of the system that was holding him down. Others might call this giving up, but he didn't see it that way. Maybe he'd work for a while or possibly travel across the country, but whatever he did it would be because he wanted to do it. He'd just be rocking the boat from the outside, while I would be trying to do it from within.

For a long time I couldn't decide why I was so strongly against him leaving. Was it because I was jealous that he had more courage than I? At least he was doing what he believed in, or was it because I was disappointed that he didn't have the courage to stay and fight the system from within with me. Then the idea struck me. This wasn't a question of who was more courageous than the other. All it was, was two people trying to accomplish the same general things in different ways. Who is right or wrong? Well, that's really not for me or anyone else to judge.

Herb Ramey is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

It's too easy for men to criticize abortion

Wednesday, Dave Tumey, the president of Prolife Communications Systems, gave an incredibly sarcastic and one-sided view of the issue of abortion. Not only does he satirize feminists, declaring that they consider a fetus a "globulus cluster of human tissue," but he stereotypes scientists who have studied genetics, obstetrics, and physical and mental development for decades, comparing them to the "scientists" who declared the Earth was flat 500 years ago. It's not a very convincing argument.

I appreciate the fact that the Collegian must present both sides of a controversial issue, but can't you find someone who can present a logical argument (if one exists) against abortion?

Mr. Tumey, have you no other reasons than those mentioned in your article, for condemning abortion? Did you ever stop to consider that a fetus in its first trimester has no sense of an existence and is mentally less capable of learning than a dog? Have you ever considered what might happen to a baby born to a 15-year-old girl living in a subsistence level of poverty? They usually have a very limited education and unsanitary living conditions. Or have you considered the young mother herself who is often a victim of circumstances beyond her ability to change? What will the lives of a mother and an unwanted baby be under these conditions? Are we not wasting one or even two lives by allowing an unconscious being to reach human potential? Do I sound cruel?

I think you are cruel, and far worse, ignorant. Let me point out further that the proportion of men to women against abortion is in my experience, nine to one. Have you ever considered that it's very easy for a man to berrate abortion? Can you honestly say you have never risked getting a woman pregnant? Answer all these questions and let me know then, why you are so adamant in your "prolife" position.

Colleen M. McCarthy
Amherst

Democrats are actually a party of peace

As a democrat, I took considerable offense to the attitudes expressed in Sal Assad's column Monday. In it, Assad defends a vote for Mondale by catering to the worst misconceptions of Mondale and democrats in general.

Mondale is characterized as too cautious, with no new ideas. In fact, he has shown considerable boldness and initiative in outlining his detailed proposal to fill the deficit, a major concern of most Americans. In dealing with major issues, such as this and El Salvador, he has shown a frankness that I find refreshing in a political candidate.

Assad also accused the Carter administration of starting a new cold war, (even he pursued disarmament talks with considerable conviction), and then called the grain embargo "frivolous," while it really was an honest attempt to censure the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan, certainly more than Reagan ever did about the 007 crash.

Worst of all, Assad perpetrates perhaps the biggest myth about the democratic party: that it is the party of war. Yes, Wilson and Roosevelt were presidents during the two World Wars, but they got involved only well after the conflicts began. Although Truman held much of the responsibility for the Korean War, it must be remembered that it was officially a United Nations maneuver, and that Truman fired MacArthur rather than let him attack troops outside the border.

Assad should check both his subject matter and his facts before offering any further comment on the political scene.

Thomas Harrington
Sylvan

Halloween '84

paints, sprays, streaks, gels, tinsels, wigs, masks, fearness, mirrors, capes, hats, etc!

Visit the Halloween Shop at FACES

downtown Amherst
Mon-Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS

18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

St. Pauli, Grolsch, Steinhauser	$4.25 6 pk + dep.
Grizzly Canadian Beer	$3.59 6 pk $13.95 case + dep.
Narragansett 16 oz. cans	$2.50 6 pk + $9.50 case + dep.
Busch 12 oz. cans	$9.95 case + dep.
Strohs 12 oz. cans	$10.95 case + dep.
Miller Lite 12 oz. cans	$10.95 case + dep.
Peppermint Schnapps 60°	$5.99 liter + up
Vodka or Gin 80°	$8.49 1.75 liter
Champagnes & Spumante	$2.99 750 ml + up

Gillespie plays with gusto at the Fine Arts Center

By MARANN CASSELL
Collegian Staff

Dizzy Gillespie is indescribable. His performance at the Fine Arts Center Wednesday was a breathtaking performance. He gave his audience the highest form of the bop, jazz, jazz-rock, blues all fused in one.

Gillispie has been a musician since 1930s. He has played with all the greats of jazz such as the legendary Charlie "Bird" Parker, Bud Powell and others. He also helped create the BOP a new kind of jazz based on the original music of New Orleans.

The performers walked on stage about eight thirty. Before the audience knew it, it was time for the ten o'clock intermission. I guess it's true what people say, when you're having fun, there is no limitation.

And fun is what the audience and Gillespie were having. Gillespie has so much life in him he got the audience screaming. He has a great body language that moves according to the beat of the drummer. The performance of gifted musicians showcased jazz in its highest realm.

Gillespie has a vibrating voice that echoed through the FAC. When he sang he put feelins and motions into his performance, mesmerizing the audience into the mood he wanted to create.

He made the audience become a part of the show by making them clap their hands and chant to the rhythm of his songs. Gillespie did not perform for his own satisfactions, but for the audience's enjoyment.

Gillespie's band is made up of four men. Sayyd Al-Khabyyr on saxophone, Walter Davis on piano, John Lee bass, and Nasyr Al-Khabyyr on drums. They performed over half a dozen pieces.

Al-Khabyyr played the clarinet, saxophone and flute, with such perfection that it made the audience applaud vociferously. The others in the band gave a superb show. Gillespie the leader would go to the side for a while and let each person do their thing. Then, when he felt his band had excited the audience enough, he would move in with a sinewy blow of the trumpet.

Gillespie came on stage with the intention on making the audience happy. He sang in that rich, full baritone voice of his, fulfilling his promise.

THE TEXTBOOK ALTERNATIVE

Jeffery Amherst Bookshop

Call us now for information about ordering your spring coursebooks * 253-3381

Black Affairs

Ras Tafarian speaks out on human rights in Jamaica

By MARAAM CASSELL
Collegian Staff

Giving an overview history of Jamaica to conclude with the 1980 elections won by the "bullet" not the "ballot", a Ras Tafarian leader spoke of the political violence and destruction of the Jamaican island last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Ras Lance Douglas, a spokesman for the Theocratic Government of Ras Tafari said "over the hundred years of slavery, we have lost everything and have gained nothing."

Because Michael Manly's regime was not very successful, the country was left to be pushed over by Ciago, the present Jamaica leader. "The present regime did not come to power by the ballot but, came to power by the buliet."

Douglas gave an eye witness incident about what actually went on during the 1980 election. He said over 4000 people were killed as a result of the election. In order for the present regime to be in power, they demanded the people's vote by using the force of the Gun. Thus, creating a division full of hatred violence among the Jamaican Labor Party and the People National Party, he said.

Ras Lance Douglas, a Ras Tafarian leader and spokesman for the Theocratic Government of Ras Tafari speaking at the New Africa House library last night on the Destruction of a Generation: a Ras Tafarian view of Jamaican Society Today.

"The 1980 election will be repeated, and things will be more bloody than before. There is no stopping to the brutally as long as President Ciago is there," he said.

He said the present government is determined to stay in power and will do their utmost to guarantee the election.

Douglas also discussed the mass murders occuring in Jamaican communities. This kind of brutal killing was going on all over Jamaica, he said.

He talked about how the late Bob Marley was asked to help organize a peace meeting to help communities get on their feet, in terms of schools and health facilities and this was carried through with the Bob Marley Peace Concert, he said.

Douglas said Ras Tafarians are not politically inclined but people there to make other Jamaicans aware of the situation existing around them.

Native Americans writing to fight oppression, writer says

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

Contemporary Indian writers use story, poetry, song and prayers to assert their identity as a people and to resist oppressing forces, a Native American poet said Wednesday at the University of Massachusetts.

Linda Hogan spoke to a capacity audience in the Campus Center as part of the "Writers Speak: American and the Ethnic Experience" series.

She said in America "there has been an insistence on [illegible] who refuse to conform. "Hogan added "Indians, more than other cultures in the United States, have resisted assimilation and have persevered in maintaining tradition."

Hogan said literature is one means of preserving the identity of a minority group, "it is through our writing that we express the complexities of tribal experience and our personal feelings. Our writing is a voice of resistance and liberation, it is a way of returning us to what remains strong within."

"We are our people and we are who we came from," and added "we don't want to be in the common stew," Hogan said.

Hogan also spoke of how essential it is for Native Americans to be in control of their own stories and histories to avoid stereotypings and rejections.

Until recently, control over printed material dealing with Indians has been with non-Indian writers and publishers which has resulted in stereotyping, she said.

As an example of such stereotyping, is "Indians are still being written about in the past tense, despite our enormous population increase in the last census."

"We become, at least in the media, a creation of the dominant society's need to homogenize everything" and that "most Euro-American writers have returned nothing back to us except another view of how they see us," she said.

"The goal of writing as minority writers" said Hogan "Is to work towards commonality while remaining strong within ourselves and our communities."

SPEED READING SEMINAR

Like to read 2 to 5 times faster or more?
And remember more of what you read?
A five session seminar will begin
on Wednesday October 24 at 7:00 pm
at the University Hypnosis Center
358 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst
only $75.00 plus Lab fee.
For info or registration call 549-4645 or 536-2794
University Hypnosis Center is non profit and open to the public

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Friday and Saturday
Say Amen Somebody 7:00
Sugarcane Alley 9:05
Sunday thru Tuesday
Blood and Sand 7:00
w/Tyrone Power & Rita Hayworth
Carmen 9:10
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

KICK OFF LOUNGE
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
Coming this weekend. . .
$1.25 Drinks till 9 PM
Friday - Hagler vs Hamsho
Saturday - Happy Hour 4:00 - ?
featuring "Just George"
(from the Boston & Cape Cod circuit)
HAPPY HOUR at JUSTIN RYAN'S The Meeting Place

C & C LIQUORS
61 Main St., Amherst
FOR FREE DELIVERY OF $15 MINIMUM ORDER, (OFF UMASS CAMPUS)
Dial 253-3091
BEER BONANZA!
Bud
Miller
Bud Light
Miller Lite
SUITCASE
$10.95 + dep

GRIZZLY CANADIAN BEER.....6-pack $3.45 + dep.
ROLLING ROCK 12-oz. refills.....case $10.00 + dep.
BUSCH 12-oz.....suitcase $9.95 + dep.
UTICA CLUB 12-oz. refills.....case $6.49 + dep.
FALSTAFF.....6-pack.....$2.25 + dep.
BALLANTINE BEER 12-pack.....$3.35 + dep.
Nordick Wolf, Grolsch
Steinhauser, Beck's
6-packs.....$4.25 + dep.
All specials in-store cash prices.
Hurry! Prices good thru Oct. 20

SALE!
FRI./SAT./SUNDAY
3 DAYS ONLY... OCT. 19,20,21
100% COTTON
TURTLENECKS
in a dozen dazzling colors
REG. 8.95
3 DAYS ONLY
6.95
3 FOR 19.95
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst / Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

Chamois Cloth Shirt
You'll be both comfortable and stylish in the Chamois Cloth Shirt by Woolrich. A quality shirt that offers unlimited versatility. Perfect for the active person who enjoys being outdoors. Visit us soon and see the best there is. Woolrich.
Woolrich
House of Walsh
32 Main St., Amherst 253-3361 Mon.-Sat. 9-5:30

Arts

CINEMASCOOP
by Count Ramin Zahed

What a strange week it was. My dear arts editor left me stranded with the arts page layout while she sniffed glue with Paul McCartney and wife in New York. She also got to see the new McCartney movie Give My Regards to Broad Street, which is said to be a bomb. Oh, the good life.

However, in Amherst, the cultural capital of the continent, a lot is happening this week. The Little Drummer Girl, the excellent adaptation of the Le Carre espionage thriller opens in the area this Friday. Miss Diane Keaton sent shivers down viewers' spines with her portrayal of an actress caught in the world of international politics.

Also opening this Friday is Bill Murray's The Razor's Edge. Seems like Bill did the best he could. For some reason, I can not picture him playing a man in search of spiritual enlightenment in India. Sounds like Gandhi II.

Brian de Palma, the contemporary director who gets his kicks out of violence and slick photography will soon have a new movie out. The film is called Body Double and is another one of those erotic thrillers set in Los Angeles. Where is Disney when we need him?

If you enjoy steamy films and are tired of watching Madonna play with her lucky star, there is a movie called Crimes of Passion coming up for you. Ken Russel, another one of our unstable directors who game us Tommy, Altered States, and Women in Love has created a film about a certain young lady who is "obsessed with erotic power games" and a strange preacher (Anthony Perkins, good old Psycho) who is hooked on saving her. Sounds very compelling.

In the past, we spoke of beautiful Hollywood pairings. The latest addition to this topic has to be Meryl Streep and Robert Redford. The charismatic couple have started shooting in Africa for a movie called Out of Africa. Critics say that Meryl's nose is too big and Robert is beginning to have one too many facial liverspots. I still think they are perfect. I mean who can match them? Boy George and Nastassia Kinski, perhaps. Speaking of the nymphette Nastassia, her latest film, Paris Texas which one the Palm d'Or of the Cannes Film Festival should be released here any day.

Name the actress in this steamy still from Crimes of Passion and win a prize! See Cinemascoop for details.

Weekend Winner: Since Cinemascoop has been slightly steamy this week, allow me to suggest The Postman Always Rings Twice which is playing at Amherst College this weekend at the Merrill Building. Jessica Lange, Jack Nicholson, the kitchen table, phew, who could possibly ask for more?

Local Loser: Yes, just what you've been waiting for. It's Ninja 3 The Domination. It should have been called The Abomination. Martial arts, lots of characters being poked in their bellies, lots of gore, lots of losers. Personally, I would prepare a patch for the Great Pumpkin instead.

Killer Question: Satisfied instructor Kevin Dwyer correctly identified the last Huston and Nicholson collaboration as Chinatown. This week, it is much simpler.

You only have to identify the beautiful blonde in the picture from Crimes of Passion. The prize is generously provided by the Paul McCartney publicity campaign and Ms. Marini, the arts editor. It is a high fashion polyester Broad Street football jersey. You merely have to wear this to be spotted by talent hunters everywhere. One final scoop: Lost in Space is on Sunday morning on Channel 61. Ah, those good old days.

For a 20" x 28" full-color poster of this ad send $6.00 check or money order payable to Anheuser-Busch, Inc. Dept. 12-D, One Busch Place, St. Louis, MO 63118. Allow 4-6 weeks. Offer expires December 31, 1984. Void where prohibited. BUDWEISER • KING OF BEERS • THIS BUD'S FOR YOU • ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
549-5610
FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.-40.
STYLE CUTS $7.00
expires 10/30/84
valid with this ad

VALLEY CHURCH OF CHRIST
SUNDAY 10:00 A.M.
PEOPLES INSTITUTE
GOTHIC STREET,
NORTHAMPTON
586-5044

Amherst Flics presents
The Postman Always Rings Twice
Fri, Sat, Sun
8 and 10 PM
Merril 1, Science Center
$1.50 Amherst College

Pleasant St. Theater
SNEAK PREVIEW
MIDNIGHT FRIDAY & SAT OCT. 19 & 20
"★★★★ AN ENCHANTED COMEDY"
"'REPO MAN' IS THE REAL THING. It is a sneakily rude sixty-sixty farce that treats its lunatic characters with a solemnity that perfectly matches the way in which they see themselves."
REPO MAN
OPENS HALLOWEEN NIGHT
27 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-0935

COME CELEBRATE!

GOSPEL MUSIC EUCHARIST

Under the musical direction of
Horace Clarence Boyer
Rev. Christopher Carlisle, UMASS Episcopal Chaplain
Rev. James Clark, Rector, Grace Church

Lunch following.

Bruno's

- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
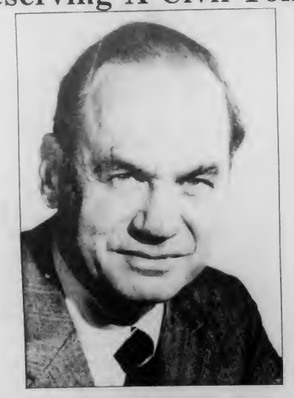
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

Friday Afternoon at Mikes
A HAPPY HOUR YOU CAN LIVE WITH
FOOD - ALL YOU CAN CARRY FOR $1.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Eggplant Parmesan
Sausages
Beef Stroganoff
Cold Cuts
Salads
Swedish Meatballs
Marinated Chicken
Beef Ribs
Chicken Caccitore
Spanish Rice
and more
tax and tip included

Distinguished Visitors Program
Presents
Edwin Newman
Preserving A Civil Tongue



Moderator of Second Presidential Debate
acclaimed Broadcaster - Journalist
author of Strictly Speaking
and a Civil Tongue

Tuesday, October 23rd
8:00 P.M. Free
Student Union Ballroom

KEGS ICE
FOUR SEASONS
WINES/LIQUORS
BEER SPECIALS - BEST PRICES

LITE	12 oz cans		$10.99
BUSCH	12 oz cans		$8.99
PIELS	12 oz. cans		$6.99
CARLING	12 oz. btl		$6.99

6-PACK SPECIALS

DAB	$3.99	RINGNESS	$3.99
MOOSEHEAD	$3.99	GRIZZLY	$3.99

LIQUOR SPECIALS

MOHAWK VODKA & GIN	1.75 liter		$7.99
RON ROBERTO RUM	1.75 liter		$9.99
COLOMA COFFEE LIQUEUR	750 ml	with rebate	$3.
POPOV VODKA	1.75 L		$9.99
GILBEY'S GIN	1.75 L		$11.99
CUTTY SARK	1.75 L		$19.99

WINE SPECIALS

CARLO ROSSI	4 L		$5.99
CHANTEFLEUR	red & white		$2.99

BEAUJOLAIS NOUVEAU
If you want some before Thanksgiving - special order it now! 584-8174
WE DELIVER
584-8174
333 Russell Street (Route 9) Hadley, MA 01035
in front of the malls

Doonesbury

By Garry Trudeau

WELL, HERE GOES NOTHING..
MIKE, IF YOU DON'T MIND MY SAYING SO, I THINK YOU HAVE AN ATTITUDE PROBLEM. I'M SURE THE PRESIDENT'S DONE LOTS FOR MINORITIES.
OH, YEAH? LIKE WHAT?
WELL, LIKE MEETING WITH MICHAEL JACKSON. DID CARTER EVER MEET WITH MICHAEL JACKSON? NO! DID KENNEDY? ROOSEVELT? NO!
LOOK, MIKE, I MAY NOT BE VERY POLITICAL, BUT I DO KNOW THAT A LOT OF PEOPLE, INCLUDING BLACKS, THINK THAT WALTER MONDALE HAS BEEN A GREAT PRESIDENT!
YOU MEAN RONALD REAGAN
UM, OKAY, SO I GET THEM CONFUSED, BUT YOU GET MY POINT.
OKAY, THIS IS JUST ONE POSSIBILITY. I THOUGHT I'D TRY TO PLAY UP HIS MANLY IMAGE WITH A SURREAL, VIDEO APPROACH..
GOOD DIRECTION!
WE OPEN ON A ROCK CONCERT WITH A MULTI-RACIAL BAND PLAYING IN FRONT OF A HUGE AMERICAN FLAG. AS BLINDING FIREWORKS ERUPT, THE FLAG LIFTS TO REVEAL A LONG, WHITE STAIRCASE!!
STANDING AT THE TOP IS REAGAN. HE'S DRESSED IN JEANS AND AN OPEN SHIRT. AS A THOUSAND TEENAGERS SCREAM "PEACE THROUGH STRENGTH!" HE STARTS DOWN THE STAIRS.
SUDDENLY, HIS HAIR CATCHES FIRE.
BUT HE DOESN'T FLINCH! LOVE IT!
YOU KNOW, I ALWAYS THOUGHT HIS HAIR LOOKED FLAMMABLE

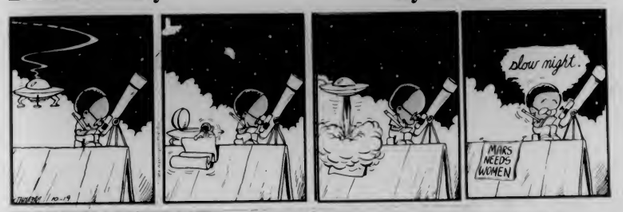
Today's Weather

Sunny today. High in the 60s, except mid-50s along the shore. Tonight, becoming cloudy with a chance of showers late at night. Low near 50. Saturday, cloudy with a chance of showers. High in the 60s

Layout Technician needed
Work Wednesday evening
$10 a night
Good experience!
See John O'Connell
or Call 545-3500

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed



Gorde

by Gorde

A LOOK BACK AT YESTERDAY'S ENSTALLMENT OF GORDE...
SEND THEE HOME
GORDE, WHAT DO YOU CALL THIS STUFF!
UH..... HIGHTENED DRAMA?
IT'S GARBAGE!! BORING, BORING GARBAGE! IT AIN'T FUNNY, SEE"
"WE WANT FUNNY STUFF!! FUNNY, GOT IT! CREAM PIES! MAD DOGS!! REAGAN!!!?!"
WHAAP!
CHOMP
THIS IS FUNNY!
HMM, NOT BAD! DO YOU DO BAR-MITZVAH'S?
MEANWHILE, AT THE COLLEGIAN, THE EDITOR'S DESK....

UMass Zone

By Mark Rollins

Yeasthead

By Jason Talerman

important social commentary through symbolism sounds that James Brown's dog makes ANGER
Saul, Snackheads other half is still asking stupid questions + Yeasthead is getting restless.
Houses aren't ugly; Houses don't ask questions; Houses have T.V.. I like my house.
On the verge of breakdown, Yeasthead finds refuge in his house.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

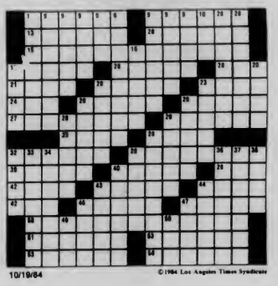
ACROSS
1 Appoint as agent
7 Port on the Strait of Dover
13 Department in SE Italy
14 Graduates
15 Billiards professional of note
17 —— la vista!
18 River in central England
19 Ike's command
21 Division of psyches
22 Peter and Nicholas
23 Journey
24 Rhode Island ——
25 Vouchers
26 "Remember the ——"
27 Capital of South Australia
29 Opera House staple
30 English composer
31 Parts of circles
32 Divine revelation
35 "—— as apple pie"
39 Parts of ears
40 Wind: Comb. form
41 Literary collection
42 Extol
43 Part of the skyline
44 Word with kick or leaf
45 Sponsors' words
46 Finland, to the Finns
47 Sides of coins
48 Card game
51 Fly
52 City on Long Island Sound
53 Reese of baseball
54 Pay, as a bill

DOWN
1 Married
2 incident
3 Kicks
4 Arm bone
5 Ascot
6 Section of Manhattan
7 Provides the party food
8 King et al.
9 Air, in Berlin
10 Doctors' org.
11 Meantime
12 Chapel in the Vatican
16 Declaim
17 Queen of the gods
20 Spread out, as a map
22 "—— is the Kingdom..."
23 Ankle bones
25 Reiner and Sagan
26 Very thick
28 intertwined
29 —— de cacao
31 Native Americans
32 Earthen jar
33 Traveler's aid
34 Corrupt
35 Person's true inner self
36 Chewy sweet
37 Innocuous
38 Dozes
40 Highest point of orbit
43 Series or set
44 Resign
46 Part GBS
47 British actor John
49 French business org.
50 "Norma ——"

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

D	O	F	F			G	O	D	S
P	E	T	A	I	N	G	A	R	I	T	E	S
C	A	N	T	I	G	A	U	M	B	R	A	G	E
A	I	S	T	E	R	T	O	M	O	K	N	O	X
S	T	I	R		D	I	M	P	L	E		O	I	E
H	E	N		S	A	V	E		E	X	C	E	S	S
		L	E	F	T	W	I	N	G		P	O	E	T
		A	U	N	T		R	O	O	D
	S	H	I	P		Y	O	U	R	S	E	L	F
A	N	A	L	O	G		I	N	G	E		E	R	A
C	I	V		R	E	A	L	T	Y		A	G	E	D
E	V	E	S		N	I	S	I		A	G	R	E	E
R	E	N	A	M	E	D		N	O	X	I	O	U	S
B	L	O	W	E	R	S		G	A	L	L	O	P
		T	A	T	A			T	E	E	M

10/19/84



10/19/84 © 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

Friday, Oct. 19

LUNCH
Torpedo Grinder
California Quiche

BASICS LUNCH
California Quiche
Summer Salad
with Syrian Bread

DINNER
Roast Top Round of Beef
Spaghetti with Red Clam Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Hi-Protein Spaghetti with Red Clam Sauce
Potpourri

EIGHT CHAPTERS OF BABYLONIAN HISTORY FOR TOMORROW'S EXAM AND CATHY'S WAITING.

LAST 2 DAYS!! YOU CAN DO IT!

It gets down to what you want to do and what you have to do. Take the free Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics lesson and you can do it—handle all the work college demands and still have time to enjoy college life.

You can dramatically increase your reading speed today and that's just the start. Think of the time, the freedom you'd have to do the things you want to do. For twenty years the ones who get ahead have used Reading Dynamics. It's the way to read for today's active world—fast, smooth, efficient.

Don't get left behind because there was too much to read. Take the free Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics lesson today. You can dramatically increase your reading speed and learn about advanced study techniques in that one free lesson. Make the college life the good life. With Reading Dynamics you can do it.

SCHEDULE OF FREE LESSONS LAST 2 DAYS!!

LOCATION: MURRAY D. LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER

FRIDAY 10/19 11:00AM, 1:00PM AND 3:00PM - ROOM 917

SATURDAY 10/20 11:00AM AND 1:00PM - ROOM 911-915

EVELYN WOOD READING DYNAMICS © 1978 Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics Inc

Collegian's NFL picks

Sports editor Peter Abraham and his faithful minion Scott Hood are deadlocked in a tight battle for first after this, the third week of picking against the spread. They are at 54-29 with Tony Betros, after a horrendous 6-8 week, falling to 52-31. Kevin DeLuca is 47-36 with ladies' man Gerry deSimas going 7-7 to climb to 45-38.

			Peter Abraham (54-29)	Tony Betros (52-31)	Kevin DeLuca (47-36)	Scott Hood (54-29)	Gerry deSimas (45-38)
Miami	4	NE	NE	Miami	Miami	Miami	NE
Cinn	3	Clev	Clev	Clev	Clev	Cinn	Clev
Dallas	5	NO	Dallas	Dallas	Dallas	Dallas	Dallas
Denver	3½	Buffalo	Den	Den	Denver	Buff	Denver
Raiders	2½	SD	Raiders	Raiders	SD	Raiders	Raiders
Minn	1	Det	Detroit	Minn	Minn	Minn	Detroit
Jets	2½	KC	Jets	Jets	KC	KC	Jets
Pitts	4	Indy	Pitt	Pitt	Pitt	Pitt	Pitt
Philly	E	Giants	Giants	Giants	Giants	Giants	Giants
SanFran	10	Hous	SanFran	SanFran	SanFran	SanFran	SanFran
Seattle	2½	G.Bay	Seattle	Seattle	Seattle	G.Bay	G.Bay
T.Bay	1	Chicago	Chi	Chi	Chi	Chi	Chi
Wash	3½	StLou	StLou	StLou	StLou	StLou	Wash
Atlanta	1	Rams	Rams	Rams	Rams	Rams	Rams

★ field hockey

continued from page 16

It was UMass' second straight loss after ten consecutive wins.

UMass, now 10-3, came out flat, according to the coach and just didn't do what had to be done.

"We certainly had the opportunities to win but we just couldn't capitalize. We just couldn't get the ball on target," Hixon said. Umass outshot Harvard 25-5 and had a 17-6 advantage on the corners. However, of the 12 second half shots, just five were on the net.

The Minutemen were hurt by the absence of their leading scorer Tonia Kennedy, out with an ankle injury. Kennedy, a freshman, has 11 goals and four assists for 15 points.

"It (missing Kennedy) took something away from in the circle," Hixon said. "She's very aggressive there." Kennedy is questionable for the Wildcat game.

Massachusetts will have to stop Barb M arois, who has scored many UNH goals on corners. Hixon isn't worried because she feels that she has the players to stop this.

Megan Donnelly and Lil Hultin ahve have standouts in the back. Hixon hasn't decided who will be in goal against the Wildcats.

McNamara joins Sox

BOSTON (AP) - John McNamara, who rejected an offer to continue as manager of the California Angels, was named Thursday as manager of the Boston Red Sox.

The Red Sox made the hiring official at a news conference 10 days after McNamara met with Haywood Sullivan, Boston's co-owner and chief operating officer, and General Manager Lou Gorman.

McNamara reportedly will be paid $150,000 a year, the same salary Ralph Houk received for four seasons before he decided to retire three weeks ago.

McNamara, 52, and the Red Sox executives met after he rejected a California offer to remain as field boss.

Crew competes on Charles

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

This weekend marks the conclusion of this fall's short crew schedule as both the men's and the women's varsity squads travel to Boston to compete in the long awaited Head of the Charles race.

For those unfamiliar with crew, the Head of the Charles marks the celebration of crew in the same manner that the Boston Marathon is a celebration of running.

The race is so competitive that just being there is a great priviledge," said coach Dave Kumlin. "It's the biggest race in the world, so anyone who is anyone will be there."

Participating in this weekend's rowing spectacle will be an estimated 720 Men's and Women's teams entered in a total of 18 races to be held between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Sunday.

"We're looking to beat all the Division II schools as well as finishing among the top ten," said Kumlin. "This weekend should answer a lot of questions as to our current standing and as to what we'll have to train for when our schedule resumes in the spring."

The women's team enters the weekend hoping to rebound from last week's disappointing showing at the Mount Holyoke Women's Regatta.

"I don't see any reason why we can't finish in the top 20," said co-captain Leandra Henderson. "The men have helped us in our preparations, so I think things are looking positive."

★ weekend previews

continued from page 16

The UMass rugby team has a big game on Saturday in the Boyden Lower fields near the sewerage plant when they face Boston University at 12:30 p.m.

The Minutemen are undefeated in league play as are the Terriers. This match should decide the league title. Last week, the team was a 20-15 victory against Boston College.

The UMass water polo team faces a challenge from powerful Brown University in the League Tournament at Brown.

In other action, the women's tennis team is at Dartmouth on Saturday. The men will travel to Vermont to face the Cats, also on Saturday.

[Collegian correspondents Roger Chapman, Chris Tremblay, Bryan Quenzel, Mike Levine, and Alistair Attwood contributed to this story, along with ex-Collegian sports editor Gerald "Abdul" deSimas.]

DELANO'S

OCTOBER SPECIAL
Twofer One
HEINEKEN

plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight

Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St. 253-5141

Check Out Low Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From
Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

PALACE CINEMA 1·2
RT. 5 RIVERDALE RD. W SPRINGFIELD
24 HR. TELEPHONE 781-6890
SAT/S, MAT. W/ED. FRI. SAT. SUN
FIRST SHOW ONLY $2.50
STARTS TODAY
"This year's best film!" Gene Siskel, Syndicated Columnist
"Mozart's greatest hit... Mozart comes raucously alive as a punk rebel, grossing out the Establishment...a grand, sprawling entertainment!" Time
AMADEUS
EVERYTHING YOU'VE HEARD IS TRUE
PG
FOR GROUP SALES CALL PHYLLIS BIEBL 733-5454

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUDIO

Pioneer AM-FM portable stereo cassette AMS/autoreverd/CRO2 $95 or BO 6-7697

AUTO FOR SALE

VW "Thing" collector's item best offer Gene 323-7562

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500 serious call only 549-7854

69 Chevy Pickup good work truck best offer call Rick 546-9237

1974 Chevy Nova 79,000 mi. runs well, new muffler $950 call 586-9128

1978 Fiesta 4 speed, AM/FM cass. Dark blue 57,000 miles $1500. Call 256-6936

Help, folks say I can't have their car until my car is sold: 74 Volks Bus cheap! BO 546-5703

72 Audi $800 running condition Larry 549-6051

Audi Fox 76 runs mint new tires body good, $1500 negotiable 6-5184

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $6 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older. Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

5 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7689

Rack A Disc Rack A Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area. 549-7144

FOR RENT

2 cubic ft refrigerator R & P Package Store free delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Twin Mattress and Boxspring 25.00 you must take away call 548-6041

Univega Mountain Bike Landrover Sport call 6-6345 Paul

Senyo Turntable, new waterbed mattress never used each $40 even 665-4229 Steve

RCA 19" color TV $120 call 586-9128

FOUND

Found a set of 4 silver keys at Stockbridge Road bus stop last week. If they are yours, pick them up at the Info Booth in the CC Concourse

Found kitten Brandywine arse hungry and abused call and indentify after 10 PM 549-1318

HELP WANTED

Overseas Jobs. Summer, yr round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields, $900 - $2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

ATTENTION STUDENTS! Want part-time work you can fit between classes? Place and fill posters on campus, earn base and bonuses Year-round possible. 1-800 243-6679

Part time Bartender needed nights and weekends Apply in person. "Cheers" located N. Hamp Bowl 525 Pleasant St

Part time counter help nights and weekends also someone for light janitorial work mornings Apply in person. N. Hamp Bowl 525 Pleasant St

Now taking applications for full and part-time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

The Campus Center Board of Governors needs you! The BOG needs a Building Operations Coordinator. Duties include overseeing building problems and general policies affecting students within the CC/SUB complex. This is a paid position. For more info: BOG Office 817 Campus Center

Government Jobs $16,559 - $50,553/year. Now hiring. Your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext R-9618

Hampshire County Nursing Service is looking for sn working as eds and homemakers for home and nursing home cases. Flexible hours 586-6272

Housepersons wanted. Work for your meals and get a DC rebate meals procured by a full-time cook call Jim Houston at 546-2190

Managers needed for Sporting Goods Co-op. Gain valuable experience: buying, selling, advertising, scheduling, hiring & payroll. Applications available in 407 SUB. Deadline is October 25, 5:00 AA/EOE

HOT TUBS

Utopia Spas private hot tub rentals call ---- for reservations 253-7727

LOST

$tolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098, no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Lost brown plastic frame glasses in a red leather case if found contact 6-5641

Gold ladies watch at Changes on 10/4 if found please call Pam at 253-7482 high sentimental value

PERSONALS

The 1984 INDEX is here! Yearbooks will be sold outside of the SUB, Tues., Oct 9 to Fri., Oct. 19. The price is $6. Also available are the 1982 INDEX for $3 and the 1983 INDEX for $4. Get your yearbook before supplies run out!

Who do YOU know? Who do YOU want to meet? If you KNOW any celebs, V.I.P.'s musicians etc. have any info or input contact G.P.C. Box 148 SUB or call 545-2733. This is YOUR chance to shine on campus!

Dog Home Wanted loveable white belgian shepard needs home desperately! Housebroken call JR @ 253-7987 or 545-0341 anytime!

Soft, warm puppy, I love you. Happy One Year, time one you're the best

Lambda Chi Alpha Little Sister Rush today from 3 to 6 pm all university women welcome

To whoever borrowed my hat at the Dutchman. Please return it to Chapel, UMMB staff room

Happy Birthday Elizabeth!!! Love Beth, Helaine, Amy, and the rest of Butterfield. Don't party too hard!!!

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATE WANTED

To share master bedroom & private bath with a male in a house with large kitchen, living room and game room. 150/mo + utilities 253-9692

Non-smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344/253-3768

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal. Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer standing room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5126

FREEPORT, BAHAMAS 7 days, airfare and hotel included $229 over January Break call Paul 546-8819 or Alan 546-8841

TO ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN

All are invited to Open Rush at Chi Omega! Monday Oct 22 Dinner Party 5:15 Wednesday Oct 24 Dinner Party 5:15 Thursday Oct 25 Halloween Party for rides and information call 546-0182 or 546-2092 ask for Kristin or Lorne

WANT BUSINESS EXPERIENCE

Looking for Business experience. Apply for a position at the UMass Student Federal Credit Union

WANTED

Neat, responsible male needs room. Call anytime 665-4878

Tutor wanted Ling. 201 please call 549-1895

WANTED TO RENT

One bedroom apartment close to campus. Will take over lease in January. Please call Jim 549-7852

Sports

UMass should pound Maine...

...but injury plague evens game

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

There are a lot of reasons University of Massachusetts football coach Bob Stull should feel good about facing the University of Maine on Saturday.

The Bears, at 1-5, are with little doubt the worst team UMass will face this season. Maine has allowed close to 400 yards a game this season, their quarterback completes just over 35 percent of his passes and they've scored over 13 points just once this season.

"I'm worried about this game," said Stull. "We're going to have to work really hard to beat these guys."

Why is Stull so concerned about a game that, on paper, should be a UMass blowout?

When four of his top defensive players and the one player that has provided him with the bulk of his offense are hampered by injuries, Stull's foliage trip to the north could turn out to be a nightmarish journey.

Defensive tackle Ed Sullivan remains out with a badly sprained ankle, linebacker Dave Cavanaugh has yet to practice this week with bruised ribs and a bad case of the flu. Tackle Mike Dwyer is having continued shoulder problems, linebacker Todd Comeau has a pinched nerve and nose guard Peter Tracy chips in with a pulled hamstring.

That's only five of the top ten tacklers on the team. Add George Barnwell (the leading rusher with 570 yards and two touchdowns) and his leg problem, and UMass may not be in for the cakewalk they may expect against the Bears.

All but Sullivan will start, but Stull said it remains to be seen how long each will play.

"It's a pain in the neck type of stuff," said Stull, with no pun intended. "They'll play, I wish I knew how effectively, but they'll play."

The Minutemen, 2-4, are still in the thick of the Yankee Conference picture with an 0-1 conference record. With a win over the Bears and potential wins against New Hampshire, UConn and BU, and the Minutemen are looking at a title, as improbable as it sounds.

"Realistically, we've got a shot in every game we have left," said Stull. "That's the beauty of our schedule, we play the conference at the end, no matter what we've done so far, we're still very much in this thing."

But first there's Maine. Ron Rogerson's Black Bears have been pounded by Richmond, URI and Delaware, soundly defeated by Boston University and New Hampshire, and somehow emerged victorius over Lafayette.

Maine, behind sophomore quarterback Bob Wilder, has a decent running attack built around fullback Gary Hufnagle and halfbacks Lance Theobald and Paul Phelan. They also have a good kicker in Jack Leone, but little else.

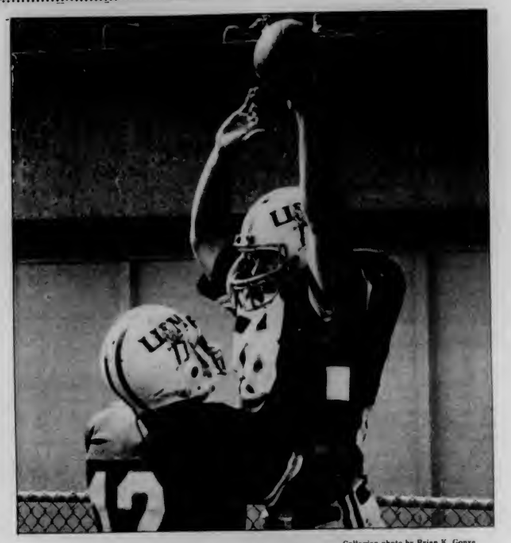
The Minutemen have not been stellar themselves on defense, UMass opponents have gained 2,564 total yards (427.33 a game) while passing for 1,629 yards.

The offense, quarterbacked by junior Jim Simeone (73 for 173, 686 yards and one touchdown) has featured a solid running attack behind Barnwell, but has failed to execute Stull's possession passing game with much success.

UMass' longest completion of the season was achieved on a Barnwell option pass to John Crowley for 35 yards last Saturday when Richmond pounded UMass 24-7.

"We looked terrible last week," admitted Stull. "It could've been 35-0 except the defense held in for a few plays deep in our own end. We had one good drive (93 yards for a TD) but other than that we made a lot of errors and failed to concentrate."

Statiscally, linebacker Vito Perrone leads the team in tackles with 55 unassisted hits. Senior Bob Simeone is the leading receiver with 24 grabs for 292 yards. Kicker George Papoutsidis has booted seven of eight PATs and seven of ten field goals.



Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Senior split-end Bob Simeone celebrates his as well as his brother Jim's first touchdown pass of the season against Richmond. Congratulating Simeone is flanker John Crowley.

UMass at Maine

When: Saturday at 1:30 p.m.
Where: Alumni Field, Orono Maine
The Records: UMass: 2-4, Maine: 1-5
The Series: UMass leads 24-5-1
The Latest Line: UMass by 4
Injuries: UM: E. Sullivan (DT), ankle, will not play; D. Cavanaugh (LB), ribs, is probable; M. Dwyer (DT), shoulder, is probable; P. Tracey (NG), hamstring.

Stickers host UNH

Look for upset win

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Things had begun to get clear again. After an impressive win over third ranked Temple last Saturday and a good performance against top ranked Old Dominion, the University of Massachusetts field hockey team had emerged into the top five again.

Now, things are getting muddier.

The fifth ranked Minutemen have put themselves in a position where they have to prove themselves again after being upset by unranked Harvard 1-0 on Wednesday in Cambridge.

And their next opponent is fourth ranked University of New Hampshire Saturday at 1 p.m. at NOPE.

"Saturday's game is one that we have to have," coach Pam Hixon said. "It's one game that we very dearly want." The Wildcats, 12-0-1, defeated UMass in the regular season 1-0 last year.

The Minutemen got themselves into this situation by being upset Wednesday night.

"For a majority of teams we play, if they can beat us it makes their season," Hixon

continued on page 15

Men's soccer looks to crush Cross

Women try for eighth straight win

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Dead to rights only a week ago after losing to Rhode Island, and falling to seventh in New England and seemingly out of the post-season picture, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team has bounced back, thanks to Wednesday's 2-1 upset of number one UConn.

With seven games remaining and playoff hopes riding on the outcome of every one, the Minutemen play host to Holy Cross Saturday at 11 a.m. on Boyden Field. Although The Cross is among the weaker sisters of NE Division I soccer, UMass coach Jeff Gettler doesn't foresee a lack of mental preparation.

"Holy Cross is not a great team. We've got to be real serious and watch for an emotional letdown. I don't fear a letdown. We've just got to apply ourselves. The team will be very prepared. I'll make sure of that."

Responding to criticism by UConn coach Joe Morrone after his Huskies were toppled Wednesday, Gettler defended his tactics, as well as counterpunching Morrone's remarks.

"Hey, he lost," said Gettler. "I don't think he'd have been criticizing us if he'd won. You have to tactically do what you have to do. I don't think I have to justify what we do."

Tomorrow's game is part of a five game games in six stretch that also includes Southern Connecticut, Springfield, and Maine.

The second ranked University of Massachusetts women's soccer team is looking for more than a win over unranked Adelphi Saturday at 2 p.m. at Boyden Field.

The 10-1-2 Minutemen are led by a bevy of freshmen, including leading scorer Jolie DePauw with 11 goals, three assists good enough for 25 points. Catherine Spence, usually the first off the bench is the second scorer with six goals, five assists and 17 points. Kristen Bowsher has 14 and Monica Seta has 13 points.

"Adelphi is a good team," Banda said. "They'll come up here with a good squad. It won't be an easy game. We'll have to play good defense." UMass, which has outshot opponents 265-43 on the year, will start Jeanne Paul, 0.40 goals against average, in net.

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team, coming off an impressive showing at last weekend's Southern Connecticut Tourney, travel south to battle at the Delaware Invitational Tournament this weekend.

The Minutemen, sporting a 16-10 record and a number five ranking in the Northeast, will be bumping heads with some of the top Division one teams in the East, including Rutgers University, Princeton University and host University of Delaware.

The women's cross country team will host New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont this coming weekend, while the men's team will hit the road and travel to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania to take part in the Atlantic Ten Championship.

The women are hoping to break into the front of the pack this week.

The men, on the other hand, will be trying to move up a notch over last week's fourth place finish on the Belmont Plateau course.

continued on page 15

Weekend sports at a glance

UMass schedule:

Today:
Volleyball: at Delaware Tournament.
Saturday:
Football: at Maine, 1:30 p.m.
Men's Soccer: Holy Cross, Boyden 11 a.m.
Field Hockey: UNH, NOPE, 1 p.m.
Women's Soccer: Adelphi, Boyden 2 p.m.
Water Polo: League Tourney at Brown
Rugby: BU, Boyden Tower, 12:30 p.m.
Volleyball: at Delaware Tourney
Women's Tennis: at Dartmouth
Men's Tennis: at Vermont
Women's Cross Country: Four team meet, 1 p.m.
Men's Cross Country: at Atlantic 10 tourney
Sunday:
Water Polo: League Tourney at Brown.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 83 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Monday, October 22, 1984

'This is a whole new race'

20,000 line pond at rally for Ferraro

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

In one of the largest single gatherings in University of Massachusetts history, an estimated 20,000 people heard Geraldine A. Ferraro say that the time to work for peace and the future is now, at a Democratic party rally by the Campus Pond Saturday.

"People have had enough of the arms race and the new cold war. It's time for arms control and a new commitment to peace," Ferraro, the nations' first woman vice presidential candidate on a major party ticket, told the crowd.

"The time to work for peace is not later, it's now."

The rally was covered by the state-wide newspapers, The Boston Globe and The Boston Herald, and by television stations in Boston, Springfield and Hartford. Democratic campaign officials said the Ferraro appearance was timed to provide favorable coverage before last night's debate between Walter F. Mondale and President Reagan.

"Make no mistake about it, we're in a fight for the heart and soul of this country. Make no mistake, as Democrats, we're gonna win that fight," said the Congresswoman from Queens, N.Y.

"This is a whole new race. It's getting hot and they're feeling the heat. It's getting close and they're getting worried," Ferraro said of the Republicans in the last weeks before the Nov. 6 election.

The crowd, which packed the lawn from the Campus Pond across North Pleasant Street and up to the Morrill Science Center and even onto greenhouse roofs behind Morrill, interrupted Ferraro more than 50 times during her 25 minute speech.

UMass police reported no incidents or arrests during the rally, and traffic after the event was heavy but appeared to be moving. North Pleasant Street was closed to traffic, and police and Secret Service agents were seen patrolling the rooftops and upper stories of Morrill, the Fine Arts Center and the Tower Library to keep security tight for the event.

Ferraro said that last night's final debate between Walter Mondale and Ronald Reagan would be a key for the future of America and she urged the crowd to look carefully at each candidate and their grasp of the issues to see "which man will build a safer world."

The two previous debates, one between herself and Vice President George Bush, the other between President Reagan and Walter Mondale, helped to show the American people who the leaders are, Ferraro said.

Following Reagan and Mondale's first debate, Sen. Paul Laxalt (R-Nev.), the President's campaign manager, blamed Reagan's poor performance on political advisers who "smothered him with facts" in preparation for Mondale.

"Now I ask you, since when is it considered cruel and unusual punishment to expect a president to learn the facts he ought to know?" Ferraro asked.

Of her own debate, she said if she had made some of the same statements Bush had made, she would have been criticized because she is a woman.

continued on pg. 3

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro addresses a rally that drew 20,000 spectators Saturday around the Campus Pond. The crowd was the largest Ferraro has drawn in her campaign and the largest political gathering in Massachusetts in recent years.

Speech emphasizes Reagan/Bush factual errors

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

"Is Fritz Mondale going to win the debate tomorrow night?" Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine A. Ferraro asked that question of the crowd less than two minutes after taking the podium Saturday at the University of Massachusetts. The 20,000 present, with the exception of a few knots of Reagan-Bush supporters, answered with a resounding "yes!"

News Analysis

In her speech, Ferraro clearly aimed to generate momentum for the Democratic presidential campaign on the eve of last nights televised foreign policy debate between Democratic challenger Walter Mondale and President Ronald Reagan.

This month's three debates were considered crucial to the Democrats as prime opportunities to narrow the lead held by Reagan in public opionion polls. This gap did close, according to most surveys, after the Reagan-Mondale domestic issues debate on Oct. 1, in which Mondale appeared the winner. The Oct. 11 debate between Ferraro and Vice President George Bush was widely considered a draw.

Some Mondale/Ferraro campaign aides and many observers predicted that the Congresswoman from Queens would emphasize student issues, such as the Reagan administration's cuts in financial aid programs, in front of Saturday's predominantly collegiate audience.

But she made only a passing reference to education and to other domestic issues toward the end of her speech, the bulk of which was divided between assailing the Reagan administration's foreign policy record and deriding Reagan's and Bush's handling of previous debates.

Ferraro sought to call public attention to Reagan's and Bush's numerous factual errors in the debates, she referred to Bush's attempts "to talk about baseball" rather than about the arms race and to a GOP campaign aide's statement that debates aren't very important, which she said showed the Republicans' "cynical outlook of fooling most of the people most of the time."

REAGAN-MONDALE Debate p.4

In foreign affairs, she gave a preview of some of the Reagan administration policies that Mondale was expected to hammer in at last night:

— The president's reluctance to take responsibility for crises, which Ferraro called "the politics of blame."

continued on pg. 4

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

Students, faculty and many western Massachusetts residents turned out in droves Saturday to express their views and rally with vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro and Democratic state politicians.

Many people travel from N.E. area to see Ferraro

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
and RICHARD MARTIN
Collegian Staff

An estimated 20,000 people turned out for a Democratic rally by the Campus Pond that was the biggest audience Vice Presidential candidate Geraldine A. Ferraro has addressed in her career.

The gathering was also the biggest political crowd in recent Massachusetts history, with estimates of attendance ranging from 14,000 to 21,000.

The entire lawn on the east side of the Campus Pond was filled with spectators, stretching from the Fine Arts Center to the Campus Center, and from the Morrill Science Center to the other side of the pond, behind the podium.

While most of the crowd was students from the five-college area, the crowd was littered with people of varying ages and areas.

Sally MacKinney, 67, of Los Angeles, Calif., said, "I've been a feminist most of my life, and I didn't think I'd see a woman run for vice president."

The Massachusetts International Union of Electricians (IUE) was represented by two busloads of people, who came up from an IUE convention in Springfield. Terry Fitzgerald, 54, of Saugus, and Joseph Puyia of Pittsfield, were among the IUE people who said they were "solidly behind Mondale."

A group of teenagers from Amherst Regional Junior High School held a large sheet that said "Re-elect Mondale-Ferraro in 1988." One of the sign-holders, Karen Beatty, 14, said, "If I could vote for her I would. I think it's exciting that we finally have a woman running."

All the speeches in yesterday's rally were interpreted in sign language to an area near the stage reserved for the handicapped.

Heckling was minimal, but Republican sign carriers stood along the edge of the lawn near North Pleasant Street, and were scatted throughout the crowd. On sign had a hammer-and-sickle that said "We love you Mondale."

Roger Corey, 66, an engineer from Petersham, drove 30 miles to see the rally. "We're really excited about Ferraro and the Mondale-Ferraro ticket. We (Corey and his wife) think Reagan is bad news," he said.

Karl Gustafson, 28, minister of the Pioneer Valley Assembly of God, brought a group of 25 people from the Springfield Chapter of the Massachusetts Citizens for Life to protest Ferraro's position on abortion.

"I'm opposed to her views on abortion," he said. "We are opposed to abortion on demand."

There were many other anti-abortion activists throughout the rally, and many had signs that said, "Live and Let Live" and "Life is Sacred." Some signs depicted aborted fetuses.

During Ferraro's speech, two Air Force fighter jets flew above the rally.

Compiled from reports by Collegian staff members Greg Brown, John O'Connell, Richard Martin and Joel Coffidis

Students voice their political opinions with signs

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

The Democratic rally Saturday pulled together students from New England with a heavy concentration from the five-college area to either support or protest the Mondale-Ferraro ticket for the presidency.

Mondale-Ferraro supporters used an array of signs, some which read, "KKK endorses Reagan, do you?" "Star Wars on the screen -- not in the Pentagon" and "Ronald Reagan is bad for your health."

"One thing I learned is how Reagan deceives the public with his misstatements and misinformation. I'm leaning towards Mondale and the debates were a big part of that (learning)," Jonathan Carey, 20, mechanical engineering major from UMass said.

Peter Hazelton, 18, from Bluffton, Indiana and an Amherst College student said emphatically that he was a registered voter and planned to vote for Ferraro, "But back home, the folks think differently."

"From where I am in Indiana, it's a small town south of Fort Wayne and its kind of conservative. The people are probably more pro-Reagan than pro-Mondale," he said.

Tricia McCoster, 18, from Somers, Conn. and a student at the University of Hartford said, "I'm a registered voter, but I'm unsure of who I want to vote for. Maybe this speech will help me decide."

Lawalley Cole, a 28-year old graduate student from Gambia is not registered to vote, but has strong opinions about Ferraro. "I think she's not only good for this country, but good internationally too, although I have to admit that I like Democrats generally. I try not to look at her as a woman, but as a candidate."

A group of Smith College students held a sign voicing their opinion towards their dislike of Nancy Reagan, a Smith alumna, and Barbara Bush, who attended but did not earn a degree from the school.

The sign read "Smith loves Gerry, we don't care about Nancy (Class of 1943) and Barbara (dropout)." The women said their sign indicated that they could support Democrats.

Pro-Reagan signs bore the inscriptions of "Ronnie Kicks Ass, "We Love America, Reagan 1984" and "Peace Through Strength, Vote Reagan."

A UMass Republican Club member, Paul Kasman, said, "At the end of the rally, when we were standing around, I noticed an irate woman yelling at two men holding a sign that made a negative reference to Ferraro. I suggested that rather than arguing with the person, she display her own sign displaying her views."

"At this suggestion," Kasman said, "she spun around and spat in my face. She encouraged me to hit her because the television cameras may have picked it up."

Kasman added, "The last time a member of my family was spat on, it was by a Nazi."

Arnold Spencer and Jeffrey Hicks, both Amherst College students, were protesting for the Five College Republicans.

"We're here to let her know the presence of Republicans in Massachusetts. We're not here to heckle her," Spencer said.

Stephen Erickson, president of the UMass Republican Club, said, "We instructed our people not to heckle." On the issue of the Democrats heckling Reagan, Erickson said, "I'd like to take some of these people and put them in a rally at a southern university."

"I disagree with what she (Ferraro) said today. I think (George) Bush can beat her in the debate," David Joyce, 19, an accounting major from UMass said. "I don't think she should be making an issue out of Reagan's age," he said.

But some students were not swayed to either side by the rally. "Everything she (Ferraro) said has been heard before, there were no new points" Matthew Grallert, 22, a political Science major from UMass said.

Collegian Staff member Richard Martin also contributed to this story.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Laura Yee
Copy Editor	Nancy A. Bukar, Anne McCrory, Rita Murphy
Layout Tecnician	John O'Connell
Photo Technician	Brian Goyne
Production supervisor	Peter Soderberg
Production	Lisa Arseneault, Maria Cahillane, Brian Solov, Rob Skelton, Wendy Edenfield, Linda Hudon LesleyClark, Andy Taylor, Mark Roden, Dan Sullivan

Dukakis, Kerry, Duffey and students prep crowd

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

A host of Massachusetts Democrats, including Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and U.S. Senate candidate John Kerry, joined in to help warm up the crowd for Vice Presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro at the Democratic rally here Saturday morning.

Those who spoke at the ralley included Massachusetts politicians, student government leaders, and University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

Ferraro was introduced by Gov. Dukakis, who compared Saturday's gathering to Ferraro's first campaign visit to Massachusetts Sept. 26.

"I thought the crown we had at City Hall in Boston was the biggest political rally I had ever been to in Massachusetts, but I'm afraid you beat us out here at Amherst," he said.

The governor roused the crowd when he said "I see some Ray Shamie signs out there. If I had a nominee for the United States Senate whose political action committee contributed this year to Jesse Helms, I'd be ashamed to walk around with those signs," he said. Jesse Helms is a conservative senator from North Carolina.

In his speech, Dukakis said people should pay more attention to the lessons of history.

He referred to the Vietnam War, praising Lt. Gov. Kerry's involvement in questioning the war after serving in it and said, "Here we are, a decade after Vietnam, and we're beginning to do the same thing in Central America."

He added, "After four years of the present administration, it's very clear that they (Reagan administration) don't understand the lessons of history. And I can tell you just as sure as I'm standing here, that if this administration is re-elected, we'll have another Vietnam in Central America."

Kerry, who was hoarse from a sore throat, was greeted with chants of "Kerry, Kerry" from the crowd, to which he quipped, "The wonderful thing about that is that you can't tell the difference between that and 'Gerry.'"

He opened his speech by asking the crowd for "a 20,000-person strong welcome for the next vice president of the United States of America."

Kerry said the administration's repeated posing of the question, "Are you better off today than you were four years ago?" has raised a "shut-the-door-behind-you attitude to a level of national acceptance never before known in this country."

"This president of the United States has made selfishness fashionable," he said.

Kerry cited the escalating U.S. involvement in wars in Nicaragua and Lebanon, and the widespread poverty in the United States, and said, "If you look at (these), you cannot answer that question yes."

Kerry who lauded the Mondale-Ferraro candidacy said, "They understand that we don't just inherit the earth, we borrow it, and we cannot continue to move away from environmental protection."

"And I cannot wait," he added, "to join a ceremony in the Oval Office of the White House, where a Vice President Ferraro joins a President Mondale in signing the Equal Rights Amendment into law."

Chancellor Duffey addressed the crowd when the governor, lieutenant governor, and Ferraro came up to the stage. The master of ceremonies, U.S. Rep. Raymond Jordan D-Springfield, incited the crowd with chants of "We want Gerry" and "Two more weeks" before Duffey took the stage.

Duffey welcomed Ferraro to the campus "On behalf of 31,000 students, faculty, and staff."

"I admire your commitment, and I admire your stamina," Duffey said. Ferraro attended rallies in Burlington, Vt. and Bangor, Maine, after the rally at the University of Massachusetts.

"And I admire your good judgement and taste in political advisors," Duffey said. Anne Wexler, Duffey's wife, is Ferraro's senior political advisor.

"Keep it up, hang in there," Duffey said to Ferraro from the podium.

Students at the rally were represented by the Third World Caucus, the Public Policy Committee, the State Student Association of Massachusetts, the Women's Leadership Project, the University Democrats, and the Student Government Association (SGA). Representatives from each group spoke briefly at the rally.

Kevin Sweeney, president of University Democrats said, "We can send Ronald Reagan to the unemployment lines that he's been sending the people of America to."

"Student power can swing this election!" he shouted.

Rick Patrick, SGA co-President said, "Students have been instrumental in bringing peace and justice to our world." He added that this trend must continue.

Other speakers at the rally included first district Congressional candidate Mary Wentworth, Sen. John Olver and Rep. James Collins, both of Amherst, Rep. Edward Boland of Springfield, and Ferraro's daughter, Laura Zaccaro.

Collegian Photo by Andie Heller

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and Geraldine Ferraro share a laugh at Saturday's Rally

Rally ranks high in UMass history

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

The flashing blue lights of silent police cars preceeded the motorcade of slick black limousines carrying the speaker of the day and her entourage. To the suspenseful volume rendition of Malaguena by the UMass Marching Band, the vehicles pulled alongside the crowd in a swirl of dust. Geraldine A. Ferraro had arrived.

The first woman vice presidential candidate, addressing a 20,000-strong rally of students, faculty and community members Saturday at the University of Massachusetts, was met with pomp and circumstance accorded few UMass visitors.

Her rally was, in fact, on of the "three or four" most prominent political events to occur on campus in the history of the University--or at least in the 34 years Dean of Students William F. Field has been here.

The others, according to Field, are a visit by Eleanor Roosevelt about 25 years ago, when classes were canceled so students could hear her speak; an aborted speech by former Vice President Hubert Humphrey in 1970; and a speech by Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond, in 1969, which was wrought with disruptions from students cloaked in attire like that of the Ku Klux Klan.

Humphrey who spoke at UMass in 1957, was a commencement speaker and honorary degree recipient in 1964 and came again to campus in 1969. But on Feb. 24, 1970, his foreign policy speech to a crowd of 3,500 in the Curry Kicks Cage was disrupted by about 250 hecklers, who accused him of failing to prevent the riots that resulted in the trial of the Chicago Seven. Humphrey left the Cage after 20 minutes without delivering his main address.

In terms of crowd appeal, two rallies stand out in recent history. A nuclear freeze rally, featuring Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, other state Democrats and musicians including James Taylor, and celebrities, including Jane Fonda, drew 10,000 spectators in the fall of 1982. A rally following the May 1970 deaths of four students during a protest at Kent State University in Ohio, where two students from that school addressed a crowd by the Campus Pond, drew 7,500 people.

No problems with rally's tight security

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

A security force including University of Massachusetts police, approximately 15 Amherst police officers, the University's Institutional Protection Staff, State Police, a student security force of about 50 and the U.S. Secret Service made certain that all went well at Saturday's Democratic rally.

UMass Chief of Police Robert Joyce said, "No major incidents were reported." "One person was placed in protective custody the night before because of a threat against Vice Presidential candidate Geraldine A. Ferraro," he said.

The crowd, estimated at 20,000, extended from the pond to the Fine Arts Center, across North Pleasant Street down to the old bus stop south of Hasbrouck Laboratory. There was also a large gathering across the pond.

Secret Service Officers equipped with two-way radios were positioned on the roofs of nearby buildings and throughout the VIP section, especially near the stage where Ferraro spoke.

The various police force also had officers positioned throughout the surrounding area, particularly behind the VIP partition and at the entrance and exit path of the motorcade route.

Gov. Michael Dukakis' motorcade consisted of his car, a UMass police car, an Amherst police car and two state police cars.

Ferraro's 18-car motoreade included her Cadillac limousine, one UMass police car, one Amherst police car, two State Police cars and at least two Secret Service cars. About 10 vehicles were from different media organizations.

One incident was reported at 7:50 a.m., when two UMass students, Paul Kasman and John Robert were in a canoe on the pond. The men said that UMass police ordered them to leave the pond immediately.

"The Secret Service told the police to kick us out. All we had in the boat was a sign that read, 'Peace through Strength - vote Reagan,' and some peanut butter and jelly sandwiches," Kasman said.

The student security force, which was organized by the Union Program Council, consisted of about 50 volunteers. They were responsible for the crowd and for reporting any incidents.

Yesterday afternoon, the lawn remained full of trash and the stage had not yet been disassembled. Physical Plant workers are scheduled to begin clean-up by morning.

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

An Array of the area's police and secret service men patrol the Fine Arts Center on Saturday's rally

★ Ferraro

continued from pg. 1

"While we were talking about the arms race, George Bush wanted to talk about baseball. Now imagine if I had said that," she said.

"I say to the man who tried to lecture me on the difference between Iran and Lebanon, there's a big difference between the World Series and the fate of the world."

Arms control is the single most important issue in the campaign, Ferraro said and the Reagan administration has spent on arms control less than one-fifth on what it spends on military bands.

"Now I'm all for music, guys, but that ratio is out of tune with the American people," she said.

Referring to Reagan's so-called "Star Wars" plan calling for the installation of nuclear weapons in space, Ferraro said that while the president "wants to launch the arms race into the heavens, we want to stop it here on earth."

"If we extend the arms race into space, the Soviets will follow. Let's say enough is enough. The sky is the limit. When will this president learn that an arms race does not lead to superiority, it leads to an arms race and arms control leads to peace.

If elected, Ferraro said she and Mondale will both work for a "mutual and verifiable nuclear freeze." But unlike Reagan, who waited until just before the election to meet with Soviet leaders, they will "call on the Soviets to negotiate on our first day of office.

Ferraro said Reagan's record on human rights is a step backward and has not strengthened America in the eyes of the world.

"I can remember when the American government was known to the rest of the world as the leading force in human values. I can remember when John F. Kennedy launched the Peace Corps, when Hubert Humphrey started 'food for peace' and when Jimmy Carter stood up for human rights. I can remember when we stood for basic American values and when you reach my age, I want you to be able to say you remember the same things."

While Ferraro spoke, a sign language interpreter signed the speech to people who sat in a section reserved for the disabled.

Last presidential fight says Reagan holds lead in debate

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In the final presidential debate last night, Walter F. Mondale called President Reagan and out-of-touch leader whose foreign policy has "humiliated" the United States. Reagan retorted in the climactic campaign debate that Mondale has a "record of weakness...that is second to none" on national defense.

Mondale's goal thoughout the 90 minutes was to ignite a late surge to victory, and in his closing argument, he asked viewers to imagine the United States under nuclear attack.

"Pick a president that you know will know — if that tragic moment ever comes — what he must know. Because there will be no time for staffing, committees or advisers, the president must know right then," Mondale said.

Reagan, bidding to protect a substantial lead in the polls, had the final words and said, "I want more than anything else to try to complete the new beginning that we charted four years ago."

"It may come as a surprise to Mr. Mondale, but I am in charge," Reagan had replied tartly after his Democratic opponent assailed his policies on arms control, Lebanon, Central America elsewhere.

"I will keep us strong," was Mondale's reply after Reagan listed a series of weapons that he said his presidential opponent had once opposed. He said that as a result of the president's policies in Central America, "we have been humiliated and our opponents are stronger."

There was no obvious gaffe by either man during the televised debate coming 16 days before the election, with Reagan holding leads calculated at 10 to 25 percentage points in the public opinion polls. Mondale gained points in those polls on the basis of his performance in the first debate two weeks ago in Louisville, Ky., and he walked onto the stage in Kansas City with the same goal in mind.

The Democratic challenger made no claim of victory at a compaign rally afterwards, but said the evening demonstrated that he, not Reagan, would be a "real commander in chief who would take charge."

"Tonight, despite all the embarrassment of the covert action in Nicaragua, which has strengthened our enemies, I think I heard the president, the commander in chief, blame somebody else," he said.

"Tonight, despite all the tragedy in Lebanon, I think I heard the president, the commander in chief, blame it on somebody else."

Predictably, Vice President George Bush saw it another way. "I think we just wrapped up four more years," he said.

The debate began and ended wit a handshake at center stage, but in between the gestures of courtesy, Reagan and Mondale traded sharply worded charges of weakness..

Reagan said that is Mondale's record. Mondale said Reagan is ignorant of some essentials needed for leadership, and "Strength requires knowledge."

★Analysis

continued from pg. 1

— The administration-financed "covert war" against the Nicaraguan government, and the recent disclosure of a CIA manual instructing rebels to overthrow the Sandinista regime through assassination, blackmail and promotion of mob violence.

— The current unprecedented arms buildup. Reagan's failure to engage the Soviet Union in nuclear weapons negotiations, and his opposition to every past arms control treaty.

As she has done throughout the campaign when addressing younger voters, Ferraro emphasized the weapons buildup as a threat to humanity and the contrast between Reagan's proposals to build space-based weapons and the Democrats' pledge to negotiate a "mutual, verifiable, nuclear freeze."

This, too, she tied to last night's clash between the presidential candidates, saying, "The future may ride on that debate."

Collegian photo by Pam Madsack

EARLY BIRDS - At least two people camped out over night to get the best possible seats for the Ferraro rally.

Poll shows students views unchanged by Ferraro speech

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

A Collegian poll of 89 students who have registered to vote was taken immediately following the rally.

Sixty-five students said they supported Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale and 20 supported President Reagan. Four students said they supported other candidates while 14 of the students said the rally and Ferraro's speech changed their minds one way or another. Seventy-five students said the speech did not change their view.

Twenty-seven students said they would vote for Ferraro because she is a woman. Fifty-eight said that it did not effect their decision while four students were undecided.

Of all the students polled, 76 agreed that the rally would increase interest in politics on campus. Thirteen students said that it would have no such effect.

June Lapidus, a University of Massachusetts doctoral candidate in economics and a registered Democrat, said she opposes Reagan because "a good deal of the (economic) recovery has been fueled by military spending.

We have the highest rate of unemployment for an economic recovery ever. At any other time, an unemployment rate of 7.4 percent would be considered a recession," she said.

Dave Toppen, a UMass student in the College of Arts and Sciences and a Republican said, "I don't think the rally will increase political activity on campus, since there is already a very large interest anyway."

Ken Paulsen, a UMass political science and history major, said that the fact that Ferraro is a woman did not make him want to vote for her but "It strengthens my decision to vote the Democratic ticket."

Collegian staff members Richard Martin, Phil Serfino, Joel Coffidis, and Dan White contributed to this story.

FACULTY

The Textbook Annex Needs Your HELP

Be Sure to give us your textbook requirements for the Spring semester !!

We would like to provide the most efficient service possible, but we need your help.

Please Send Us Your Orders By

October 25th

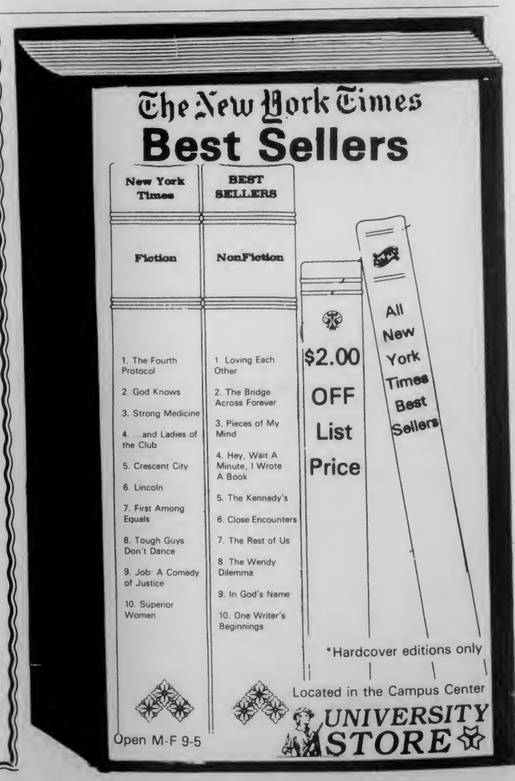
1. Your early orders will enable us to check orders to eliminate some of the problems that might arise. We can order from the publishers sooner and reduce the risk of out of stock situations. This will also help us avoid the problem of having your books held up in the holiday mails.
2. We can buy books back from the students at the end of this semester and pay good prices for them if we know what you plan to use for the Spring semester.
3. Department secretaries have textbook information forms or you may request them from the Textbook Annex.

We appreciate your cooperation and if the Annex staff can assist you, please do not hesitate to call (545-3570-1-2).

Justino Kielec
Faculty Liaison

Russell Evans
Textbook Manager

The return of unsold textbooks to publishers will begin October 25th. Please notify your students to purchase the textbooks needed for the remainder of the semester prior to this date.



Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

An estimated 20,000 crowd indicates Saturday's rally is a success.

Wexler calls campaign 'part of history'

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

Geraldine A. Ferraro's vice presidential candidacy is "part of history" and will have a significant effect on women's lives, according to her senior political adviser, Anne Wexler.

"That's the reason I'm doing it . . . no matter what happens in this election the world will never be the same. There are no longer any barriers (for women)," Wexler, wife of University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, said yesterday.

Wexler said she was pleased with the rally. "It accomplished exactly what we hoped it would. "When you get to this point in the campaign, what's important is energizing the voters," she said.

The rally was held at UMass, she said, because "western Massachusetts is important in terms of creating a majority in the elections."

But she said Ferraro's speech was aimed at a national audience through the Boston, New York and Springfield media.

After congratulating the chancellor for the size of the crowd, Ferraro said "Joseph Duffey has contributed a lot more than his time and his money; he has also given me his wife, who is my senior political adviser and very good friend."

As Ferraro's top adviser, Wexler said she will be travelling with the candidate right up until the Nov. 6 election.

Wexler said Ferraro "is a very nice person, very easy to work with and she also has great political instincts and is a natural politician."

When Wexler, 54, is not jetting around the country on the campaign trail with Ferraro, she works in Washington D. C. as a lobbyist, wielding the power she has accumulated over the past 15 years, and as a political adviser and organizer. She is the chairwoman of the public affairs consulting firm, Reynolds, Harrison and Shule, which she founded in 1980.

During the Carter administration, she served as the president's liaison to the business community, developing a network of connections to and with powerful administrators in Washington.

During the 60s, she worked for anti-war candidates, and in 1970 managed Duffey's race for the U.S. Senate seat from Connecticut.

She married Duffey in 1974 and was head of public relations at Rolling Stone magazine from 1974 to 1976.

Last year an article in Working Women described her as the "most prominent woman in the behind-the-scenes Democratic brain trust."

Anne Wexler Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Ferraro brings recognition to University

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

Administrators at the University of Massachusetts agree that Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate Ferraro's visit Saturday has given the school "greater visibility as a strong political voice."

"A proud day for the university" was the consensus between Chancellor Joseph D. Duffy and four vice chancellors at the rally. All five declared themselves Democrats but did not disclose whom they would vote for Nov. 6.

"I think Ferraro seems very impressed with the campus and the turnout," Duffey said. "It was a good speech which we should be proud of."

"The major feeling is enthusiasm and excitement," Dennis L. Madson, vice chancellor for student affairs, said. "It's a great significance for the first woman candidate for vice president to come to the Pioneer Valley."

"It's nice recognition that the largest part of western Massachusetts has been recognized as a stopping point for campaign," Deirdre Ling, vice chancellor for University relations and development said. "We are an important opinion center with a large vocal student population".

Ling said that Ferraro's campaign swing through the Northeast would inevitably bring her to UMass and that Anne Wexler, Duffey's wife and Ferraro's senior campaign adviser 'definitely played a role."

"I hope people are doing their homework because it's an opportunity to study the issues," Ling said.

John L. DeNyse, vice chancellor for administration and finance, saw Ferraro's visit as a "great opportunity" to allow politicians to take note of "the needs of the campus in the future."

It's bringing a lot of important people here. With the nature of the campus, it is a logical place in Western Massachusetts to stop and campaign," he said.

DeNyse said the gathering of the area's politicians was "very encouraging" in future allocations of funds for the University.

Recently appointed provost and executive vice chancellor Richard O'Brien said of Ferraro's visit and supports, "It's terrific, impressive and well organized."

"This is a tribute to the future," O'Brien said. "It helps the spirit of the community and the spirit of the student population."

Rep. James Collins D-Amherst said, "I think we proved today that this campus is committed to the future.

Laura Zaccaro: working on her mom's campaign trail

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

A year ago, when Laura Zaccaro was a senior at spencer High School in New York,

Laura Zaccaro Collegian photo by Andy Heller

her mother said she couldn't stand in front of an auditorium of 100 people without her knees trembling.

Saturday, before the largest crowd in recent Massachusetts history, Zaccaro stood up and told her fellow students to vote for her mother, Vice Presidential candidate Geraldine A. Ferraro.

"As I look out on this crowd, I see the same thing I have seen everywhere. We as students care about our future," said the 18-year-old Brown University freshman who took her first semester of college off to campaign for her mother.

Zaccaro is the youngest of three children of Ferraro and John Zaccaro. She is the only sibling who is actively campaigning with and for her mother. For the most part, Zaccaro has been visiting senior citizens homes and shopping malls, speaking before small crowds.

At each stop, reporters ask her about her famous mother. During a press conference at the New England Air Museum in Windsor Locks, Conn. Friday night, Zaccaro fielded questions asking her opinion on her mother's stance on abortion and the ERA as well as her thoughts on Barbara Bush, wife of Vice President George Bush, calling her mother something that rhymes with rich.

After each question, Zaccaro repeated over and over, "I love my mom, and I agree with what she believes in."

Following the press conference, Zaccaro talked about being a student and a young person with Ronald Reagan as president.

"As a youth, I'm scared about the policies he has. When I go around the country and talk with people on my level, I find that everything is not fantastic. People want a leader who will face problems," Zaccaro said.

A few weeks ago students at Brown voted overwhelmingly to ask their administration to stock cyanide pills so that in the even of a nuclear war students could commit suicide.

Zaccaro said if she hadn't taken her first semester at Brown off, she probably would have voted for the measure.

"I really don't like the idea of suicide pills, but what they did was make a statement, a very clear statement that they're concerned. It was a smart move. It called a lot of attention to their cause," she said.

"Brown will always be there. But right now campaigning is more important."

One of the reasons she chose Brown is its flexible curriculum, which will allow her time to decide what she wants to major in.

"I'm not math or science oriented. I definitely won't be the doctor in the family. I'm not sure what I want to study, but I've always been interested in drama."

Regional newscasts give rally prime spot

By RICHARD MARTIN
Collegian Staff

Regional television coverage of Geraldine A. Ferraro's appearance on campus Saturday was favorable and widespread, as the rally conveyed the Democrats' message to television viewers through-out New England.

Channels 4 and 5 in Boston, 40 in Springfield, and 3 in Hartford each gave the Ferraro rally at the Univeristy of Massachusetts a big chunk of coverage in their Saturday night newscasts. A Collegian survey shows that the coverage was positive, giving the Democrats exactly what they were looking for.

WCVB-TV channel 5 used the rally as their lead story, saying that 18,000 people turned out to see Ferraro. WCVB reporterShirley McNerney said Ferraro put voter attention on Sunday night's debate between President Reagan and Walter Mondale. The report featured her comments on Central America, arms control, and the CIA handbook released to the contras in Nicaragua.

The newscast also featured an interview with Ferraro held in the Fine Arts Center after the rally. Ferraro again re-emphasized the Democratic ticket's opposition to Reagan's America policies and said the attacks on her by the George Bush campaign were probably made because "They're nervous, and don't know how to deal with me."

WBZ-TV channel 4 also ran the speech as its lead story on the 6 p.m. newscast. The story was introduced with "The reception and the weather were both warm," and the crowd was "one of the largest Ferraro has drawn in this campaign. More than 15,000 packed the area around the campus pond to hear the Vice-presidential candidate rip into President Reagan's Soviet policy."

WBZ reporter Jonathan Levine said anti-abortion hecklers "were virtually absent although there was this one confrontation and shouting match between a pro-life and pro-choice supporter," as the screen showed a bearded man ripping up another man's sign.

Levine said Ferraro's visit to UMass coincides with much speculation that "the political mood on campus has swung to the right. Here at UMass, the issue can spark a debate."

continued on pg. 6

From Queens, N.Y. to the campaign trail

By NANCY A. BUKAR
Collegian Staff

When Geraldine A. Ferraro left the University of Massachusetts Saturday, she campaigned at two more political rallies, continuing one of the most historic bids for office in the history of the United States.

As the first woman to run for executive office on a major party ticket, Ferraro has attracted more than her share of media attention.

But her national prominence is a far cry from her modest beginnings.

Ferraro was born Aug. 26, 1935 to parents of Italian descent. Her father, Dominic Ferraro, a dime store and restaurant owner in Newburgh, N.Y., died of a heart attack in 1944, leaving Antonetta Ferraro a widow with two young children, Geraldine and her older brother Carl.

Ferraro was a scholarship student at the Marymount School in Tarrytown, N.Y., a Catholic boarding school. Her mother worked in New York City's garment district, crocheting beads onto dresses to help with tuition costs. Ferraro then attended Marymount College in New York, and worked her way through school as a salesperson at Bloomingdale's.

After graduation from college, Ferraro taught public school during the day in Queens, N.Y., part of her current Congression district. She attended Fordham Law School in the evening. After passing the bar examination, Ferraro married John Zaccaro, whom she met while in college. Ferraro retained he maiden name as an honor to her mother.

Ferraro worked at her husband's real estate firm after finishing law school. She also helped her cousin Nicholas Ferraro in his bid for a state senate seat. Her cousin lost the election, became the Queens district attorney instead and appointed Ferraro to a prosecutor's position. Her children, at this point, were old enough for Ferraro to return to work full-time.

As a prosecutor in charge of the special victims bureau, Ferraro dealt with cases of rape, child abuse and crimes against the elderly. According to a July 16 article in New Yorker Magazine, these cases inspired her career in politics. The democratic clubs in her district refused to give Ferraro the support she needed to run for the Congressional seat vacated by the retiring James Delaney.

Ferraro and her husband gained enough signatures with petitions to put her on the ballot. In a few weeks, she won the Democratic nomination and in November

continued on pg. 7

★ Media

continued from pg. 5

WBZ then used quick interviews with students to close their three-minute story. They did not get an interview with Ferraro.

WFSB-TV channel 3 used Ferraro as their second story, after first reporting about some new developments in a Hartford bank robbery. The report said, "She arrived to a massive crowd of enthusastic Mondale-Ferraro supporters. Conservative estimates put the size of the crowd at 21,000 people. It was called one of the best appearances of the campaign so far this year."

After showing clips of Ferraro attacking Reagan's foreigh policy, WFSB ran a 60-second interview with the candidate in the Fine Arts Center. She spoke about closing the gap in the polls to between 6 and 8 points, and how the race was getting closer. Ferraro said that the debates are important because Reagan is not able to disassociate himself from his policies in them.

The Ferraro coverage by WFSB was very favorable and positive in Connecticut, an important state for the Democrats.

WGGB channel 40 in Springfield gave the Ferraro appearance favorable coverage. They did not get an interview with Ferraro, and used many quick student interviews to convey the spirit of the rally, which was described as enthusiastic.

Compiled from reports by Collegian staff members Bob Burgess and Ian Polumbaum

Local, regional and national broadcast media film Saturday's rally from atop a media stage. The event received prominent coverage in evening news broadcasts around the area.

PUT US TO THE TEST!

LSAT · GMAT · GRE
MCAT · DAT
GRE PSYCH · GRE BIO
MAT · PCAT · OCAT
VAT · TOEFL · SSAT
PSAT · SAT
ACHIEVEMENTS · ACT

- Permanent Centers open days, evenings, weekends
- Complete TEST-N-TAPE® facilities
- Skilled instructors and dedicated, full-time staff
- Homestudy materials constantly updated by Research Experts.
- Low Hourly Cost
- Transfer priviliges to over 120 locations

NATIONAL MED BOARDS
MSKP · FMGEMS
FLEX · NBME · NPB
NCB · NCLEX-RN
CGFNS · CPA
SPEED READING
ESL INTENSIVE REVIEW
INTRODUCTION TO LAW SCHOOL

CLASSES FORMING NOW!
LSAT
GRE
GMAT

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

CALL DAYS, EVENINGS & WEEKENDS:
358 N. Pleasant
549-5780

EVERY MONDAY 7-1
FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
NICKEL NITE!
Every Other Drink Just 5¢
Dance the night away with Crazy George
RT. 9 HADLEY (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

INTRAMURAL ACTIVITIES

Activity	Entry Date	Starting Date
Volleyball •	10/15	10/25
Racquetball	10/15	10/24
Foul Shooting •	10/16	10/24
One on One	10/16	10/23
Swimming	11/14	11/14
Three on Three •	11/14	11/26
Basketball •	11/26	1/30
Ice Hockey	12/6	1/30

• Co-ed
Officials needed for all Sports
UMass Intramurals
★ WHERE YOU'RE THE STARS ★
Come see us for more details - Boyden 215
?? 545-2693

With the Xaverian Missionaries you can help build a world richer in love.

FOR MORE INFORMATION WRITE TO:
Vocation Director
101 Summer Street
Holliston, MA 01746

The Xaverian Missionaries can help you give meaning to your life by continuing Christ's work in Japan, Mexico, Bangladesh, Indonesia, Zaire, Burundi, Sierra Leone, Chad, Cameroon, Brazil and Colombia.

I am interested in the XAVERIAN ( ) Priests ( ) Brothers
NAME .....
ADDRESS .....
CITY .....
STATE ..... ZIP .....
TELEPHONE ..... AGE .....

R & P Package Store
Beer Wine Soda
THREE MINUTES FROM BRITTANY MANOR & RIVERGLADE
* 75 varieties of French Wines
* 25 varieties of German, Italian, Spanish and Hungarian Wines
Hours: Monday-Saturday 10 am til 11 pm
460 West Street, So. Amherst
253-9742
"COME CHECK US OUT."

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Monday and Tuesday
7:00 Blood and Sand
with Tyrone Power & Rita Hayworth
9:10 Carmen
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

★ Biography

continued from pg. 6

1978, she defeated her Republican opponent, Alred DelliBolvi.

Ferraro has held her Congressional seat for three terms. During that time, she has been recognized as a strong supporter of women's rights, a supporter of the elderly and a voice for the people in her district. She was appointed to the House Budget Committee by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neil. She also serves on the Public Works and Transportation Committee.

Ferraro was chosen as the Democratic vice presidential candidate over a number of qualified contenders among them were Mayor Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco and Mayor Henry Ciscernos of San Antonio. Her experience in the House of Representatives, as a member of the influential Budget Committee, as secretary of the House Democratic Caucus and chairwoman of the Democratic Platform Committee are just some of the factors attributed to the decision to make Ferraro the Democratic vice presidential candidate.

A major obstacle in Ferraro's campaign emerged in financial discrepancies in her and her husband's tax returns. Ferraro hired a new accountant, made restitution to the government and faced the public in a three-hour press conferences where she answered all questions concerning the family's finances.

The Boston Globe, in a profile of Ferraro on July 13, 1984, called her a "political hybrid, a woman raised in near poverty but living now in affluence; a liberal who manages to satisfy what she calls 'my people' in her conservative, working-class district...and a new-found champion for activist women who speaks fondly of her role as a homemaker."

With the tax issue almost forgotten, Ferraro's campaign continues for the next 16 days, while she and Walter Mondale continue to make history.

The US presidency: a job for which Nobody is qualified

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Following Congresswoman Geraldine A. Ferraro's triumphant morning at the University of Massachusetts, a political rally of different sorts was held promoting "Nobody for president" on the Amherst Common, Saturday afternoon.

"Nobody understands the economy. Nobody will lower taxes. Nobody will balance the budget. Nobody will tell us what to do," said Wavy Gravy, self-described campaign manager for Nobody.

Gravy, 47, may best be remembered as the Woodstock clown-emcee, who also took charge of security for that event and helped manage a kitchen there that fed 40,000 people. Since that time, Gravy has worked for many charitable organizations and promoted several different candidates for the presidency, while stressing the need for people to both register and vote.

"We ran a pig for president in '68, a rock and a roll in '72, and we started Nobody in '76, but of course Carter won. "It's going to be Everybody for president in '88," Gravy said, prompting an audience member to note that the White House will be very crowded.

"It's important that we all keep our sense of humor, because without humor, we ain't got nothing. People must realize that freedom is self-controlled, so go out and vote."

Speaking to a crowd of about 250 people, Gravy, otherwise known as Hugh Romney, continued to explain his reasons for supporting Nobody for president in '84.

"The whole presidential campaign (process) is an insult to the American public's intelligence," Gravy said, "But it's still important that people go out and vote. Let's stop 'Ray-gun'."

While not directly endorsing the Mondale-Ferraro presidential ticket, Gravy noted that "Ferraro had a lot of good things to say . . . she seems to be our best available option."

Gravy, speaking between songs performed by the Unreal Band, was warmly received by those attending, many of whom danced while the band played and then cheered Gravy while he promoted "Nobody".

Collegian photo by Brian Gimpe

Wavy Gravy touches up before rally on Amherst Common Saturday.

Dressed as a clown, repleted with large rubber nose, two-foot long shoes, and a blue, star-spangled jumpsuit, Gravy circulated freely through the crowd as the band played.

Noting that Nobody's campaign wasn't eligible for matching political funding, Gravy directed audience members of the "Nobody's Business" stand, where one could purchase campaign t-shirts, buttons, and "Nobody for President in '84" bumper stickers.

Gravy seemed pleased with the quality of the student body at UMass, and said, in contrast, "Students at the University of Wisconsin seemed lobotomized."

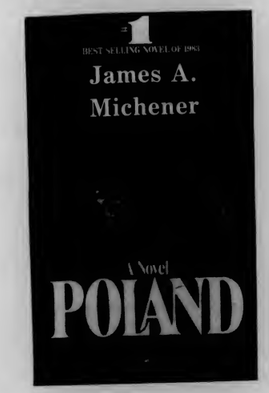
Nearing the end of the rally, Gravy explained, "Nobody can be trusted with nuclear weapons," while a fellow supporter paraded by bearing a "Nobody was president before George Washington" sign.

LEARN TO FLY
City Aviation Flight Services

- Qualified Flight Instructors
- Private Pilot Rating
- Rentals / Charters
- 7 days a week
- On UMass bus route
- Discounts for UMass on first lesson
- Financing available

Northampton Airport Northampton, MA 584-1860

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF

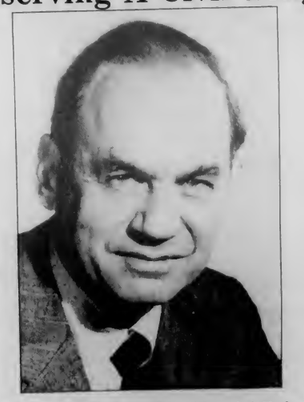


POLAND
James A. Michener

Open:
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center

Distinguished Visitors Program
Presents
Edwin Newman
Preserving A Civil Tongue



Moderator of Second Presidential Debate
acclaimed Broadcaster - Journalist
author of Strictly Speaking
and a Civil Tongue

Tuesday, October 23rd
8:00 P.M. Free
Student Union Ballroom

Despite VP choice equality absent

By TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN and DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

Geraldine Ferraro's nomination as Democratic vice presidential candidate represents some progress for women in America, many Amherst area feminists say. But they do not see her as a complete feminist, and some warn that her success should not mask the fact that equal rights for the average woman have not yet been attained.

"The paths are being broken. (Ferraro) has given heart to women who otherwise would not have entered politics," said Joyce Berkman, a University of Massachusetts women's history professor.

Ferraro is "not a radical feminist," said Nancy Braxton, professor of women's studies at UMass, "but she won't turn a deaf ear to women's issues."

Ferraro spoke briefly about the Equal Rights Amendment and reproductive rights for women, but "with a politically conservative population (in the United States), that's smart politics," Braxton said.

"I think it's good Ferraro is raising feminist concerns. . . but she doesn't have as strong a feminist platform as I'd like to see," said Ann Ferguson, professor of philosophy at UMass.

"There are (many more) things she could talk about from a feminist point of view," Ferguson said. She mentioned equal wages and benefits, federally funded child care programs, and equal opportunities in education as other issues of concern.

Dale Melcher, a staff assistant in the women's studies department, said Ferraro is a role model for young women thinking of entering politics. Her candidacy "forces people to reconsider assumption of what women are capable of," Melcher said.

Ferraro will inspire more women to go into politics, Braxton said, and Judy Brooks, an educator in Pelham, agreed that Ferraro "gives young women something to strive for."

Carol Drew, business agent with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), said after Ferraro's speech that the candidate is more than a "symbol" for women.

"She's going to try to change the status of women in America. I believe that with my whole heart, and it's about time," Drew said.

But Berkman said that wile she is "heartened by the progress Ferraro represents," the candidate is still to some extent a token.

"By being so visible, it induces people to believe that there has been enormous progress for women in politics," Berkman said. But she added, "It still heartens me. I would not come out to see Sandra Day O'Conner."

Collegian photo by Brian Gorge

Sign-carriers abounded at the rally Saturday. These nine people all came up from an International Union of Electricians convention in Springfield.

Braxton praised Ferraro for being affirmative of her own policies while at the same time criticizing Reagan, thereby "bringing about a point of contrast without a preponderence of rhetoric."

The presence of Laura Zaccaro, Ferraro's daughter, at the rally showed that "you don't have to sacrifice family relationships to have a career," UMass political science professor Jean Elshtain said.

Kathleen Grady, member of the Naitonal Organization for Women and coordinator for the Western Massachusetts Coalition for Reproductive Freedom, said that more and more women are supporting Ferraro.

"Their husbands are voting Republican, but they are going to go into that voting booth and pull the lever privately," Grady said.

Doors still closed to women

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

Geraldine A. Ferraro's nomination for Vice-President is being hailed as a "victory for feminism" by such groups as the media, the National Organization of Women and the Democratic Party, to name a few. But a look at some facts shows that the status of most women in the United State leaves little to feel victorious about. Unlike Ferraro, most women workers are not lawyers in the morning, Vice-presidential candidates in the afternoon and mothers in the evening. Instead, 80 percent of women in the work force are crowded into only 20 of the Labor Department's 427 job categories.

News Analysis

Most remain in nursing, secretarial jobs, light industry and waitressing that make up a low-paying pink collar ghetto." And, according to a 1981 report of the National Research Council, "the more an occupation is dominated by women, the less it pays."

In biblical times, a woman of working age was valued at 30 shekels, while men were valued at 50. That ratio is unchanged today. In 1983, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that women working full-time were paid an average of 59 cents for every $1 paid to a man. Whether women are doctors, lawyers, truck drivers or waitresses, they earn less than their male counterparts.

While Ferraro is being heralded, statistics say millions of women are in poverty or on the edge of being poor. Contrary to the popular sterotype of the working woman as the luxury earner, most women work simply to live - not to live it up. According to the Census Bureau in 1982, 20 percent of two-earner families are kept above the poverty line by the woman's wages.

For single parent families, the problems are more acute. As of 1980, the Census Bureau estimates that 83 percent of one-parent families are headed by women. Of these, only 4 percent receive any alimony and only 22 percent have the benefit of child support, even though 90 percent of divorces grant the woman custody of the children. Twenty five percent of divorced or separated women are on welfare, according to the Census Bureau.

Ferraro's achievement is important and historic, but it must not be used as a diversionary tactic to avoid the real issue of women's rights in this country.

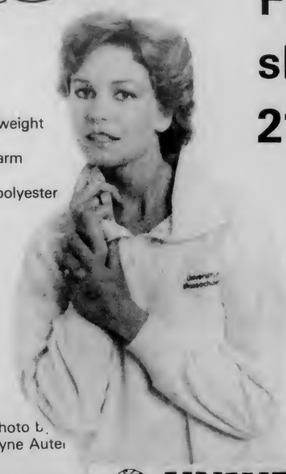
BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

MON. 22nd
Triathalon
(Indoor Games Night)
7-9 pm / 18 +
and
Watch Mon. Night Football
9 pm
Free popcorn with bar purchase

TUES. 23rd
"Killer Comedy Night"
Featuring:
Tim Wynn
Joe Yannet
Don Gavin
9 pm
20 and over

WED. 24th
Movie Night
8 pm
18 +

SPORT Style



Polar Fleece shirt 21.95

light weight
warm
100% polyester

photo by Dwayne Auter

Embroidered Logo
Plain shirt available 19.95
White
Navy
XS-S-M-L-XL
Virgianne

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted

We do care

We did ourselves proud.

20,000 people, the largest political rally in UMass history and one of the largest in this state since the late 1960s came out in force Saturday to welcome the nation's first woman vice-presidential candidate.

Saturday we disproved the now fashionable notion that the campuses across America are being overrun by a wave of conservatism and apathy. As Laura Zacarro pointed out, "I see the same thing I have seen everywhere. We as students do care about our future." And we should be concerned about our future.

Saturday's rally showed that we are willing and eager to address the future. In addressing it we must address each issue affecting us.

One of the most pressing issues facing us today is how we are to continue financing our education. We need leaders who understand the importance of educating it's youth. As Zaccaro put it "Society must understand that an education is essential to individual opportunity, our economy's competitiveness, and our nation's security".

The issue of environmental quality must also be addressed.

It has been ignored for too long. We must elect leaders who will act as the earth's guardian and not it's abuser. As John Kerry said, the government must understand that "you don't simply inherit the earth - you borrow it."

Ultimately though, the issue of most importance to us and to all people is that of our unprecedented military build-up. If this build-up does not end our existence will. We need leaders who will recognize this simple fact.

Saturday's rally may prove to be the catalyst that this campus needed. 20,000 of us turned out to look to our future, we opened our eyes and saw. Let us not turn away and close them now that the lights of the cameras are not upon us.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

A need to 'right that wrong'

Andrew M. Paven

The wraps were off.

What the 20,000 faithful who gathered Saturday morning on the eastern edge of the Campus Pond witnessed was Ferraro Unbound. No longer tied to her rock of a debate podium, Rep. Ferraro was again ready to bring fire from the heavens to the citizens.

She launched an all-out attack on President Reagan and his policies. She quoted J.F.K., cited the President Reagan's "politics of blame," and told the crowd, which interrupted her with applause 62 times, that Reagan spends on arms control "less than one-fifth of what he spends on military bands."

If Ferraro was unbound on Saturday, why then was she so tightly bound at her debate? Why was this rough-edged and refreshing politician so tightly wrapped when she faced off against Vice-President Bush?

Because Rep. Ferraro is a woman.

Much has been written and spoken about Ferraro's debate demeanor. Many have said it was an effort to look "vice-presidential." Modulate was the buzzword. Over and over again on the networks, we were told that Ferraro had "modulated her performance." To some extent this business of looking vice-presidential is true, but only to some extent.

Bush certainly wasn't required to modulate his performance. One has to wonder about the terrier-like enthusiasm that this Connecticut Yankee in California Cowboy's Court showed for his fearless leader. "Just wonder," said Bush.

Many thought Bush sounded tough and exciting. Why, he even started talking tough, jock-like, stuff about "kicking some ass." Just an old Texas football expression, said Bush.

Had Rep. Ferraro said anything in the manner that Bush did, arms flailing, during the debate, she would not have been labeled tough and exciting, but over-emotional and bitchy.

The well had been primed by the Bush campaign's comments in the days before the debate. Barbara Bush, a woman who has been in public life for too long not to know what is on and what is off the record, told reporters that Ferraro was a "four-million dollar, I can't say it, but it rhymes with rich." Bush's press-secretary, Peter Teeley, not even trusting the public's rhyming capabilities, told reporters that Ferraro was "bitchy".

These seeds of discontent planted, Ferraro did her best to remain cool and poised, even with the terrier Bush yelping at her ankles. But she shouldn't have had to.

Until the day comes when women in politics, or any other formerly male-dominated line of work, are not judged by some double standard -- bitchy to tough, over-emotional to excited -- our nation will be worse off for it.

Until women are judged by the same criteria as men, a whole lot of talent--talent that just might be the greatest since F.D.R. or J.F.K.-- will be lost to unfair judgements.

One hopes that Rep. Ferraro's landmark candidacy will go some measure of distance toward that goal of equal and fair comparison.

But when that serpent, the double standard, rears its head as it did before, during and after the Vice-Presidential debate, we must all recognize and acknowledge it as such.

For recognition and acknowledgement of a wrong, be it sexism, racism, or the like, is the first step towards eradicating it, and right that wrong.

Andrew Paven is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Are there any conservatives?

For days now I have intended to write to the Collegian Opinion page and I have finally been possessed to do it solely because of the one-sided nature of the editorials generally presented. I do value the opinions expressed in those editorials because they assure me that idealism is not dead and that some people good-naturedly believe that life should be and can be made fair. Has the Collegian Opinion page become a forum for liberal propaganda? Am I the only conservative on this campus?

Most people believe as does President Reagan's esteemed opponent, that the President is a 'good guy'. Beyond that, one must vote on a very meager knowledge, for true political knowledge is scarce in this age of 'images'. The media and the candidates string forth a long list of statistics, volumes of statistics hand picking numbers which glorify their own cause.

Then on what grounds can one make a rational and moral decision as to who should run this country? One must vote; firstly, for the more palatable political ideology and; secondly, on sheer gut instinct.

Although there is neither a true conservative nor a true liberal in the running, the built a platform around the old motto "Everything for everyone." These antiquated New Deal ideas allow (and necessitate) the spectre of government interference to haunt everyone. The Republican platform is geared toward lower taxes, less government, and economic growth. On the subject of gut instinct: America is no longer the conciliatory, wishy-washy nation of the Expectations of the future are high and optimism has been exhumed and revived by the Reagan administration. Surely I am not the only Reagan supporter on campus, and surely the Collegian editorial page should be more representative of the student body. I don't care how much welfare is paying, when I graduate I would like to get a job. Four more years.

Todd A. Chapman

...and the people came to rally

Collegian photos by:
Andrew Heller
Brian K. Gonye
Pam Madnick
Kathy Jordan

Divestiture, taxes among Town Meeting issues

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

The annual Amherst Town Meeting begins at 7:30 tonight and will consider, among other items, a town investment policy, tax exemptions for the elderly and water quality.

It will continue on Wednesday, Monday, Oct. 29; and Tuesday, Oct. 30 at the Amherst Regional Junior High School. The schedule of meetings is tentative.

Article 21 asks the town to instruct the Board of Selectmen to devise and implement a "socially responsible investment policy" requiring the town to divest from all businesses operating in South Africa or producing nuclear weapons or their components.

At Town Meeting on May 17, a nuclear-free Amherst act was passed. The act included the same investment policy but omitted any restrictions on businesses involved in South Africa. The act was ruled unconstitutional by Massachusetts Attorney General Francis Bellotti on September 6.

Article 20, sponsored by Frank Decker for the Amherst Taxpayers Association, proposes a 50 percent property tax exemption be given to citizens 70 years old or over and a 25 percent exemption be given to citizens 65 to 70 years of age. Citizens must have paid property taxes in the town of Amherst for at least 10 years to qualify for the exemption, according to the proposal.

Article 14, sponsored by Alan Root of the Grey Panthers, a senior citizens advocacy group asks that the town inform all of its departments, boards, committees and other agencies that it is opposed to the "construction of any multi-use building" on Boltwood Walk behind the buildings on Main and North Pleasant streets.

A Boltwood Center was planned for the area by the Board of Selectmen and the Amherst Redevelopment Authority. The authority's chairman, Jurgen Roetter, said the project is needed to pay of a bond issued in 1975. If the area is not developed, there will be a $385,263 deficit, Roetter said.

Article five is a motion to extend the life of the Amherst Rent Control Study. The Commission was created in a special Town Meeting last fall to study the effects of rent control if it were implemented by the town.

Article 13, sponsored by Richard Vincent, manager of Louis' Foods, and others, asks that the town rezone the area on the corner of Amity Street and University Drive to allow Louis' Foods to move to the area and expand.

Article 15 asks that the Board of Selectmen be authorized to acquire certain tracts of land, one of which is the current location of Louis' Foods.

continued on pg. 13

photo by Rolf Hegner

SLEEPING IN 10 EASY STEPS - Andrea Nuciford sleeps after class one recent afternoon on the Campus Center steps.

a Presentation on Alcohol & Other Drug Issues among Hispanics

Panel sobre el uso del Alcohol y otras Drogas entre la poblacion Hispana

Tuesday, Oct. 23, 1984
Martes 23, 1984
7:00 pm · UMass Campus Center
Rooms 162-175 · Salones 162-175

Speakers / Oradores
Dr. Eduardo Bustamante, Psychologist, Division of Mental Health, University Health Services
Mr. Jose Cruz, Health Educator, Western Massachusetts Prevention Center, Northampton, MA
Dr. L. Philip Guzman, Executive Director, Gandara Mental Health Center, Springfield, MA

Refreshments and Resource Materials will be Available Aperitivos e Informacion estaran Disponibles
Open to Everyone
Todos estan Invitados

Sponsored by: Western Mass Prevention Center, University Health Services • Bilingual Collegiate Program • Gandara Mental Health Center

STUDENT EXCHANGE
National Exchange Club Meeting
Topics will include:
Weekend Trips
and how the club can save you money
Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1984
917 Campus Center

IT'S HERE!!!

The most thrilling and demanding outdoor game ever to sweep the country!
You've read about it in Time, Sports Illustrated, Outside Magazine, and Sports Afield. You've seen it on T.V. Dorm vs Dorm, Frat vs Frat, Friends form your own teams now.

THE SURVIVAL GAME TM

The Survival Game is chess in the woods—a team sport played by men and women. . .each carrying a CO2 pistol that shoots paint-filled pellets. The object is to find the enemy's flag hidden in the woods and return with it. You can stop the enemy with a squeeze of a trigger and splatter of paint.
AMERICA'S FASTEST GROWING SPORT-THE ADVENTURE OF YOUR LIFE! FOR MORE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS CALL:
THE SURVIVAL GAME - W. MASS.
Joseph Canvel • Mike Dunn
70 Riddell Street, Greenfield, Mass. 01301
1-413-773-9665

Delta Zeta Sorority Rush
Monday 8:30 pm
Tuesday 6:00 pm
Thursday 7:00 pm
11 Phillips Street
call 253-9916
All University Women Invited

UTOPIA SPAS
Student Special
2 FOR 1
or ½ PRICE
on
1 hour HOT TUB
every Monday and Tuesday
call for Reserations 253-7727
175 University Drive, Amherst, Mass
(next to Stadium Liquors in the Price Chopper Mall)
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues 11 am - 1 am

the Hungry U Restaurant
FANTASTIC HAPPY HOUR MUNCHIE MENU!
MONDAY SPECIAL
80¢ Pitchers
with the purchase of a large pizza only
Happy Hour 3-6, 9-close
7 days per week
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

AT ADIRONDACK MUSIC'S
MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
YOU CAN BUY A $50.00 CARTRIDGE
FOR $9.95 WOW!!!

ADIRONDACK MUSIC'S
MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
FRIDAY NOON THROUGH SAT 6 PM

"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-3100

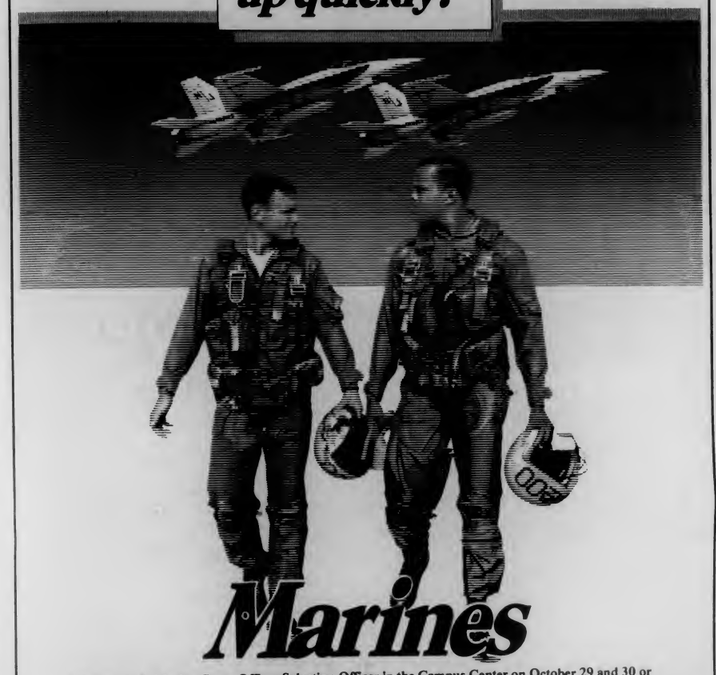
Want to move up quickly?

Then get in on the ground floor in our undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start planning on a career like the men in this ad have. And also have some great advantages like:

■ Earning $100 a month during the school year
■ As a freshman or sophomore, you could complete your basic training during two six-week summer sessions and earn more than $1100 during each session
■ Juniors earn more than $1900 during one ten-week summer session
■ You can take free civilian flying lessons
■ You're commissioned upon graduation

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start off making more than $17,000 a year.

We're looking for a few good men.



Marines

See your U.S. Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer in the Campus Center on October 29 and 30 or call collect (203) 722-2168.

★meeting

continued from pg. 12

Article 22, sponsored by Lori Rocchio for the Amherst Citizens Against Pollution, asks that the town establish a "Water Resources Planning and Review Board" to ensure the quality and quantity of Amherst water and related resources.

Articles nine and 10 pertain to bicycling in Amherst. Article nine, if passed, would request the town manager and chief of police to develop a consistent program for enforcing existing bicycle laws.

Article 10 asks for the town manager, Committee on Bicycling, the Department of Public Works and the town engineer to Develop plans for bicycle and pedestrian safety improvements on North Pleasant Street from Presidential Apartments to the north entrance of Puffton Village.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
• Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wallace's Store
549-4704

IT PAYS TO BE IN SHAPE!

Are you strong? Aerobically conditioned? Well-coordinated? A paragon of stamina?

IF GRACE UNDER PRESSURE IS YOUR TRADEMARK, YOU CAN WIN A $250.00 CASH PRIZE.

Changes nightclub, in conjunction with the Pioneer Weight Club, will host a contest to find the women's aerobic fitness champion of the Pioneer Valley. Competitors will follow a complex, intensive aerobic workout routine led by a professional instructor. A panel of fitness specialists will base their scoring on such criteria as stamina, form, coordination and strength.

If you think you will be ready a month from now, call The Pioneer Weight Club to enter.
584-2175
Ask for one of our instructors.

Changes PIONEER WEIGHT CLUB

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Springfield Symphony Orchestra
Robert Gutter, Music Director

with PETER SERKIN Piano
FRIDAY, OCT 26, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

Shakespeare & Company
Romeo and Juliet
THURSDAY, NOV 1, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

Royal Winnipeg Ballet
MONDAY, NOV 5, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

Five College Students Half-Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

Arts

Jumpin' blues

Son Seals and band bring Chicago blues to UMass

By JACK BRESNAHAN
Collegian Staff

The Son Seals Blues Band played to a large and appreciative audience on Friday night. This Chicago based group is no stranger to this area, although it was their first gig at the Blue Wall. Son said that he would like to return if host UPC would invite him.

This show, which was preceded by a show at Jonathan Swifts, featured two sets. In the first, the band warmed up with a blues instrumental, "Mudcat," by Muddy Waters, then went into Willie Dixon's "I'm Ready." Then came Son with his Guild guitar. I think he was a little slow getting started on his first song. But in his next, "The Sky Is Crying," by Elmore James, the blues came raining down. He's got a new album coming out next month, and did "Going Home," (...where the women have meat on their bones...) from it. I asked if he'd do "Mother-In-Law Blues," from his first record, and was elated to hear it. Son got some great slide-like licks using his fingers, really outdoing his studio version.

Set two began with "Stormy Monday," another warm-up. The band sported new WMUA t-shirts courtesy of MUA's Blue Bill. "Stormy Monday" gave rhythm player Carlos Johnson a chance to show his lead ability. All night folks were commenting on his skill and it seemed to me that he was talented enough to be fronting his own band. As it turned out, he does. His other band is Sons of Blues, and he's on their Where's My Money album. He also plays in the Stormy Monday Blues Band.

Son took over with BB King's "Every Day I Have The Blues," and then went into "Fine Little Thing," trading licks with Carlos, who broke his E string in his fervor. This was followed by "Call My Job," a Monday morning blues song. Son demonstrated why he's the boss up there, with his patented scuffling leads, and finished it in an incredible flourish. This was followed by a jumpy "Cold Blood," giving the keyboards a chance to really cut loose. On the last song, "It Ain't Nothing But The Blues," Son was heard to sing, "...I can count on the blues to see me through."

Before leaving the stage, Son shook hands with a throng of happy boogiers, who were able to persuade him to do one last song. The band seemed like they were pumped up enough to keep on playing. But that darn clock on the wall stopped them. Patrons will know who to see if they visit Chicago, where the band plays until the wee hours.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Son Seals showed them how it was done at the Blue Wall Friday night.

artslines...

Michael Curtis, senior editor of The Atlantic, will give an informal lecture on Monday, October 22, 1984, at 3:00 p.m. in the Third Floor Lounge, Herter Hall, the University of Massachusetts. The lecture is part of the University's Visiting Writers Series, and is sponsored by the M.F.A. Program in English and the School of Journalism. Events in the Series are free and open to the public.

Imperfect, an installation by William Feeney, will be exhibited through October 25 at the Wheeler Gallery, located in Wheeler House, room 104. This exhibition is sponsored by Residential Education East and the East Side Arts Council. For more information contact Mindi Sahner at 545-0422.

The Smith College Theatre Department opens its 1984-85 season with Moliere's comedy, The School For Wives, directed by John Hellweg, in Theatre 14 at 8:00 p.m. on October 25, 26, 27, 31, November 1, 2, and 3. Tickets are on sale at the Theatre Department Box Office, weekdays, 12:30-4:30 p.m. For reservations call 584-3023. Dollar Nights are October 25, 31, and November 1. General admission is $1.00; students and senior citizens, $2.00.

The Student Union Gallery is pleased to present the works of Ann Teela Lundquist, a painter doing graduate work at Rhode Island School of Design. The theme of this show is "The Spirit, the Heart". These are large paintings approximately 5' x 7' in size. The opening for this exhibit will be Thursday October 25, 7-9 p.m. The show will run until Friday November 9. The Student Union Gallery hours are Monday to Friday 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

Pianist Peter Serkin will perform as guest soloist with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra on Friday October 26 at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Under the baton of Robert Gutter, the Orchestra appears as part of the Fine Arts Center's Orchestra Series. The program includes the "Overture to Beatrice and Benedict" by Berlioz and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 2 in C minor. Serkin will perform Mozart's Concerto No. 13 in C Major and Capriccio for Piano and Orchestra by Stavinsky. Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office (545-2511), at local DATATIX outlets, and at the Springfield Civic Center. For phone charge reservations, call 1-800-243-4842.

The UMass Department of Theatre will present Anton Chekhov's The Seagull October 30-31 and November 1-3 at 8 p.m. in the Curtain Theatre of the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center. Tickets are $4.00 for the general public and $3.00 for students and senior citizens. Ticket information can be obtained by calling the Fine Arts Center box office at 545-2511.

SPEED READING SEMINAR

Like to read 2 to 5 times faster or more?
And remember more of what you read?
A five session seminar will begin
on Wednesday October 24 at 7:00 pm
at the University Hypnosis Center
358 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst
only $75.00 plus Lab fee.
For info or registration call 549-4645 or 536-2794
University Hypnosis Center is non profit and open to the public

Askepios, Apollo
and Zeus:
Health, Community and Government

Victor W. Sidel, M.D.

Distinguished University Professor of Social Medicine at Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Bronx, N.Y.
Extensive work in international health and proponent of social change
Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Room 165-169
Tuesday, October 23, 1984 11:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.
Sponsored by the Division of Public Health,
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

PIZZA-RAMA

Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

CALL 253-3808
256-0115
FREE DELIVERY!
356 College Street, Amherst

Any Large Pizza	Any Med. Pizza	Any Small Pizza
3 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons	2 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons	1 FREE SODA (can) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons

Pinnocchio's
Tuesday Thursday
WEEKLY SPECIAL
Every Tuesday and Thursday
Large Cheese Pizza
$5.00 (plus tax)
Extra toppings - $1.00 per item
fast, FREE Delivery
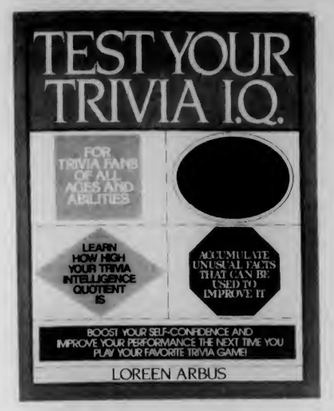
549-3669
TAKE-OUT & DELIVERY ONLY
INVALID WITH COUPONS



TEST YOUR TRIVIA I.Q.
FOR TRIVIA FANS OF ALL AGES AND ABILITIES
LEARN HOW HIGH YOUR TRIVIA INTELLIGENCE QUOTIENT IS ACCUMULATE UNUSUAL FACTS THAT CAN BE USED TO IMPROVE IT BOOST YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE AND IMPROVE YOUR PERFORMANCE THE NEXT TIME YOU PLAY YOUR FAVORITE TRIVIA GAME!
LOREEN ARBUS

A Prince at home

by ROBYN KORENGOLD
Collegian Correspondent

Minneapolis is not all Mary Tyler Moore-land any more. In fact, the "Land of 10,000 Lakes" has gone from "nice, sweet Mary" to "flashy, sexual Prince".

This transition was gradual, as was Prince's emergence into today's pop music scene. But Prince is here, and it is obvious he's going to stay for a while.

'Good evening, this is your pilot, Prince, speaking. Brace yourself, this is International Lover. You are flying aboard the Seduction 747," Prince rasp. "To activate the flow of excitement, extinguish all clothing materials." A big, brass bed materializes. "We are now making our final approach to satisfaction. Please bring your lips, your arms, your hips into the up and locked position for landing." A piercing scream, and Prince and the bed disappear. This is how Prince opened up his recent concert tour.

Being a native of Minneapolis, it is hard for me not to know "all there is to know" about Prince -- how he evolved into the extravagant musician with the Sex Can Save Us message he preaches today.

Prince is an enigmatic prodigy. His life has been shrouded by a cloud of silence, and that's the way he wants it. After his parents' divorce when he was seven, Prince bounced from home to home, and as a result, got very hurt.

Out of that pain came a great deal of what he expresses today: a lot of anti-culture, anti-family, anti-establishment, and anti-institutional feelings.

Probably contributing to some of Prince's anti-people feelings was the episode which occured when Prince was very young, and his father locked him in a room for six weeks with only a bed and a piano. Prince was forced to learn to play it. Another time a cache of pornography was discovered by Prince in his mother's bedroom, arousing and perhaps "warping" his sexuality at an early age.

It is true that Prince is a bit showy. He does drive a purple BMW with crumpled up dollar bills in the glove compartment. He does ride a purple motorcycle, own a purple limo, and yes, actually does live in a purple house.

Despite his flamboyant and decadent image, Prince is a health food devotee, reads the Bible, shuns liquor and drugs, and approaches his work with total devotion. In his own environment, Minneapolis, Prince is much more toned-down.

First Avenue, the funky danceteria that serves as setting for Purple Rain, has been a regular hang-out among Minneapolis natives for years. Since Prince's recent partial ownership of First Avenue however, it has been noted as a Minneapolis tourist attraction. Prince not only frequents the club, but he oversees its operation, and although he really doesn't enjoy talking, he does mingle with the bargoers, and even has been known to put on surprise midnight performances.

Being different is something of which Prince is very conscious and when Prince told William Blinn, one of the screenplay writers for Purple Rain, what kind of film he wanted, the words he used were, "a picture that people would think of as weird, but couldn't look away from", and this is exactly what Prince got. According to Mikal Gilmore, formerly of Rolling Stone magazine, "Prince has just become a very, very tough act to top!"

More trivia

Test Your Trivia I.Q.
by Loreen Arbus
Perigee Books (Putnam)
78p. $4.95

Since the fascination with Rubik's Cube has died down, hack writers have had to find some new trend to capitalize on. Plucky Lorren Arbus has picked up on the current craze over a popular board game (no, not Monopoly) with her book, Test Your Trivia I.Q.

The book, by a self-styled "trivia expert" has more categories than its length should permit. Because of this we encounter questions ranging from the rather simple "Who host radio's America's Top Fourty..." to the inanely obscure "Why was Faulkner rejected from the army?"

Because of the ridiculously wide range of specific questions, it is highly unlikely that the layman can get above around 80 percent (my score). Yet the cover blurb promises to "boost your self-confidence" like other self-help books that will enable acned misanthropes to meet girls.

The book is entertaining enough for those who are fascinated by useless information, but there exists far better collections than this. It is by no means the ultimate, authoritative test it claims to be.

Considering the number of people credited for contributing to this slapdash effort, it is a very trivial book.

Amherst College's production of Hamlet continues October 25, 26, and 27 at 8 pm in the Kirby Theater. For ticket information call the box office at 542-2277.

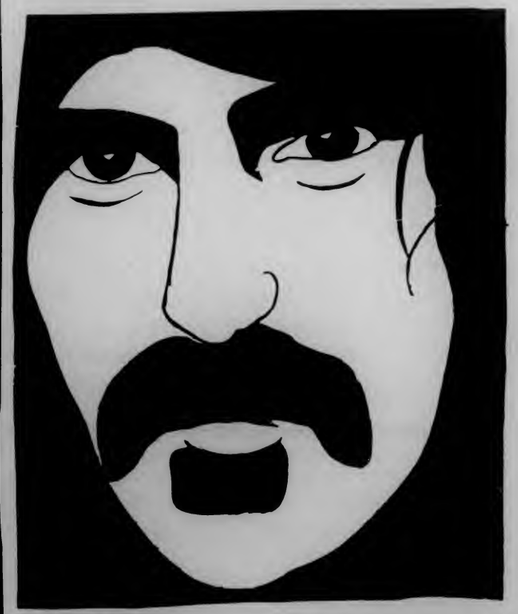
10 PM SHOW ADDED!!
Tickets on Sale Now



UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:
an evening with
The Them or Us Tour '84"
FRANK ZAPPA
SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS
UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50
Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50
Tickets on Sale Now
Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.
UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket
Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

WORK FOR THE FASTEST GROWING AIRLINE IN THE INDUSTRY.

PEOPLExpress is coming to campus in search of CO-OP EDUCATION STUDENTS

SOPHOMORES...JUNIORS...
SENIORS...GRAD STUDENTS

START NOW AS A RESERVATIONS SALES ASSOCIATE. You'll be the first point of contact between PEOPLExpress and our customers, providing accurate scheduling and price information—and selling seats for PEOPLExpress flights. You'll be based at NEWARK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT.

THE JOB OFFERS ALL THIS:

- $5.00 an hour to start—with regularly scheduled raises
- UNLIMITED TRAVEL PRIVILEGES ON PEOPLExpress (Not only for you but spouses, too, after 30 days of employment)
- FREE PARKING AT THE AIRPORT

THE MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM HOURS YOU MAY WORK ARE:

- Minimum of 4 hours per day
- Minimum of 20 hours per week
- Maximum of 40 hours per week

TO QUALIFY, you must have a GPA of 2.5 or better, be currently enrolled, be articulate—and have a mature attitude and business-like appearance. Previous work experience is a must.

PRESENTATIONS WILL BE HELD ON WEDNESDAY, NOV. 7th AT 1:00 PM. INTERVIEWS WILL FOLLOW. CONTACT YOUR CO-OP OFFICE, 110 THOMPSON HALL, TO SIGN UP. PLEASE BRING A CURRENT TRANSCRIPT TO THE INTERVIEW.

An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

PEOPLExpress
FLY SMART

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day before they take place except Monday which will carry Monday's and Tuesday's events. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

PUBLIC POLICY COMMITTEE — Public Policy will be having the weekly meeting Monday. The room will be posted in the Senate office Monday morning. 5:00 p.m.

STUDENT OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM (STOP) — The UAS will be offering the Student Opportunity Program to assist students whose alcohol-related behavior is causing problems. Call 549-2671 ext 181 for more information. 6-7 p.m., Room 302, University Health Services.

MICHAEL CURTIS, SENIOR EDITOR OF THE ATLANTIC — will give informal lecture on Monday, Oct. 22, at 3:00 p.m. in the Third Floor Lounge, Herter Hall. The lecture is part of the University's Visiting Writers Series, and is sponsored by the M.F.A. Program in English and the School of Journalism.

SOUTH AFRICAN DIVESTMENT COMMITTEE MEETING — There will be an open meeting of the SADC for those interested in the immediate withdrawal of UMass support for the racist apartheid government in South Africa. 8:00 p.m., CC 917.

COALITION FOR ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY — CEQ general meeting. Movie: The Selling of the Pentagon. Questions the use of taxpayers dollars to provide financial support for propoganda purposes. We'll discuss ways we can better use our dollars to improve the quality of the environment. 7:00 p.m., CC 170.

SPAIN AND LATIN AMERICA NIGHT — Informational meeting for students interested in study abroad opportunities in Spain and Latin America. 7:30 p.m., Third Floor Lounge, Herter.

STUDY ABROAD THROUGH HIGHER EDUCATION IN EUROPE — A representative from HEE will be on hand to discuss semester opportunities in the United Kingdom. 2 p.m., International Programs Office, 239 Whitmore.

WMUA STATION BODY MEETING — WMUA general station meeting. New members encouraged to attend. 7:00 p.m., 101 CC.

OUTING CLUB MEETING — Upcoming trips announced and a slide show by Tom Foster of OCNE on climbing and Joshua Tree National Monument in California. Everyone is invited. 7:00 p.m., 168-175 CC.

THE WRITING CENTER — The Writing Center offers free, confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignments or writing projects. Drop-in. No appointment necessary. 7-9 p.m., Pierpont Classroom, S.W.

LUNCH WITH THE RABBI — There will not be a lunch meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 23. Next meeting will be Oct. 30.

ANIMAL RIGHTS COALITION — We will be showing a filmstrip for anyone interested in discovering what the movement is about. Newcomers welcome! There is no obligation to join. 7:00 p.m., 804 CC.

BEYOND WAR — Those interested in learning about Beyond War and the new mode of thinking required for survival, please attend. Carl Sagan, Jonas Salk, and Evgeni Chazov support Beyond War. 7:00-9:30 p.m., 163 CC.

PLANNING SESSIONS — The Office of Internships Planning Sessions are held daily for students interested in internships. Over 2,500 placements are available. For further information--16 Curry Hicks, 545-0727.

Everyone's talking about...

A great place to eat with friends...

Breakfast served anytime, have a delicious deli sandwich for lunch — Dinners served all nite.

Open 24 hours on Weekends 'til 3 a.m. Sun.-Thurs.

Sun.-Thurs. 6 a.m.-3 a.m. Fri. & Sat. 24 Hrs.

Next to Super Stop & Shop Campus Travel Center Rte. 9, Hadley/Amherst 256-8889

James H. McManus eating place

Good Food, Great Prices, Attentive Service

To complement our menu we are now offering beer and wine till midnight.

SENIOR CITIZENS DISCOUNTS 2-6 P.M. 20% ALL OTHER TIMES 10% Does not apply to specials.

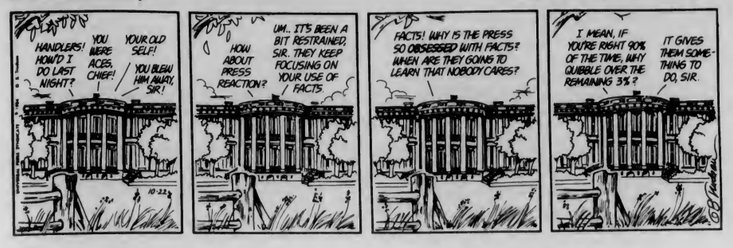
WHERE CAN YOU BUY A $350. PANASONIC 818 DIGITAL IN DASH AUTO REVERSE AM/FM CASSETTE PLAYER FOR $149.95???

adirondack music

MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE FRIDAY NOON THROUGH SAT 6 PM

"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-3100

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau



HANDLERS! HOW'D I DO LAST NIGHT?
YOU WERE ACES, CHIEF!
YOUR OLD SELF!
YOU BLEW HIM AWAY, SIR!
HOW ABOUT PRESS REACTION?
UM... IT'S BEEN A BIT RESTRAINED, SIR. THEY KEEP FOCUSING ON YOUR USE OF FACTS.
FACTS! WHY IS THE PRESS SO OBSESSED WITH FACTS? WHEN ARE THEY GOING TO LEARN THAT NOBODY CARES?
I MEAN, IF YOU'RE RIGHT 90% OF THE TIME, WHY QUIBBLE OVER THE REMAINING 3%?
IT GIVES THEM SOMETHING TO DO, SIR.

Today's Weather

More Indian summer...mostly cloudy skies with a chance of scattered showers. Temperatures in the low to mid 70's. Tonight, more of today with temperatures in the mid 40's.

Layout Technician needed

Work Wednesday evening
$10 a night

Good experience!

See John O'Connell
or Call 545-3500

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

ONLY TWO WEEKS LEFT BEFORE ELECTION DAY!!! APPROXIMATELY!!
...WHICH MEANT, NATURALLY, A STATE OF PANIC AT THE MEADOW PARTY HEADQUARTERS.
SO MUCH TO DO. SO MUCH TO DO!
YES, IT WAS TIME FOR THE PARTY'S EXPERT POLITICAL ADVISERS TO "FINE TUNE" THEIR CANDIDATE IN THE ONE AREA THAT HAS BECOME SO CRUCIAL IN THIS YEAR'S PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN...
I THINK IT MAKES A BOLD STATEMENT. HOW ABOUT "MAUVE"?
NOPE. DON'T LIKE BLUE. IT'S JUST TOO... TENTATIVE
OH, IT'S NEITHER HERE NOR THERE.

Gorde — by Gorde

WE INTERRUPT OUR CONTINUEING SAGA FOR A BRIEF LOOK BACK ON SATURDAY MORNING, THE FERRARO RALLY AND LASTLY, A VOTE FOR ME AND FRITZ IS A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION!
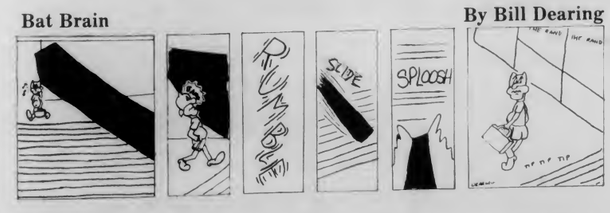
WHOOSH!
MONDALE FERRARO
GERRY GERRY GERRY
SHE'S LEAVING, LES. LET'S TRY AND FIGHT OUR WAY OUT OF THIS CROWD
KEEP KERRY!
WOW, THAT RALLY WAS GREAT! GERALDINE IN PERSON! AND DUKE! AND KERRY! I'M TELLING YOU, MANGO, OUR NEXT VICE-PRESIDENT WILL BE A WOMAN!
GEE, I DON'T KNOW, LESLIE...
AFTER HEARING EVERYTHING LATELY FROM REAGAN, MONDALE, AND FERRARO, I'M "BUSHED!"
WHAT!

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

Bat Brain — By Bill Dearing



Yeasthead — By Jason Talerman

I want to become the ideal adult sitting at home, Yeasthead searches for a purpose.
How? crushed ice machine casual exploitation
Now don't jump into anything too quick Yeastie.
Why? Theory of Appreciation of inanimates and Las Vegas
Yeah! I always wanted to meet Tom Jones too.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Highway feature
5 Guam's capital
10 Remain
14 "...sin to tell —"
15 Negative reply
16 Bullrush
17 Pup, for one
18 Immense dogs
20 Past
21 Dash
22 Wilde's forte
23 Badgers' kin
25 Oxidizes
26 Gauche
28 Elide
30 Carols
31 Armstrong and Aldrin
35 Waterloo general
36 Pilot of a UFO
38 Santa —, Calif.
39 Concurred
42 Place to buy French mustard?
44 Alaskan cape
45 Easy to play Slang
47 Early computers, in a sense
50 Tenant
51 Mod musical
53 Quito's land Abbr.
54 Weir
57 Cynosure
59 Part of N.B.
60 Ecstatic cry
61 Ose feeder
62 Cherub
63 Bits of inside information
64 Loam deposits
65 Volume

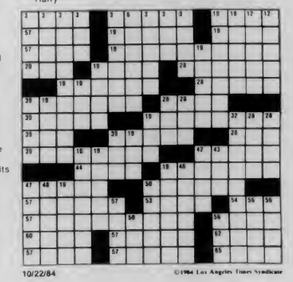
DOWN

1 Pro follower
2 Shake — (hustle)
3 Melancholy tonalities
4 Gosset
5 Walton, e.g.
6 Former White House name
7 Herbs of the rose family
8 Teachers org.
9 Dance and drama
10 Ordinance
11 African capital
12 Wide-awake
13 Sycophant's words
19 Persian gold coin
21 Greek letters
24 Leather tool
26 Pavlova
27 Griefs
28 Cockney's expectation
29 Anthropologist's study
31 A Caesar
32 Head steward
33 Chem. suffix
34 Zola title
36 Weather report abbr.
37 Light Horse Harry
40 Containerizes
41 Din
42 Software fare
43 Halogen ending
45 Praline ingredients
46 Hardens
47 Lace tag
48 Short Comb. form
49 Fabulist
50 Della or Peewee
52 Of an epoch
55 Energy source
56 Stable mate
58 Personal sketch, for short
59 Styron's Turner

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

M	O	A	B		B	L	O	B	S		F	A	I	L
U	R	S	A		S	A	L	L	I	E		A	L	O	E
F	A	H	R	E	N	H	E	I	T		T	E	N	A
F	R	E	D	N		R	O	Z		O	S	C	A	R
S	E	R	M	O	N	S		Z	O	N	E
		E	L	A		A	A	R	E		I	O	A
S	U	N	T	A	N		P	R	E	S	I	D	E	R
E	P	E		S	I	O		C	L	A	M
T	O	R	R	E	N	T	S		S	T	E	E	L	Y
A	N	O		L	E	A	H		A	M	S
		L	I	O	N		E	M	O	T	I	V	E
T	I	D	E	S		D	A	S		N	O	C	I	A	L
E	O	E	N		C	E	N	T	I	G	R	A	D	E
M	E	N	D		O	R	D	E	R		M	M	E	S
P	A	T	S		T	S	A	R	S		S	E	R	S

10/22/84



10/22/84 ©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Turkey Club Sandwich
Duchess Meat Pie/Gravy

BASICS LUNCH
Falafel Pocket Sandwich
Fiesta Rice and Cheese

DINNER
Veal Parmesan
Pineapple Ham Steak
Italian Garden Plate

BASICS DINNER
Baked Cod with Lemon Wedge
Eggplant Parmigiana

Spikers 6th in Delaware

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

Normally, finishing ninth out of a sixteen team field wouldn't sit well with a coach or team members.

But one cannot fault coach Elaine Sortino for being happy about the University of Massachusetts volleyball teams's performance in last weekend's Delaware Invitation Volleyball Tournament when one considers that some of the best teams in the entire east were present, some nationally ranked.

"I feel pretty good about our performance," said Sortino, "It's the best we've done in Delaware."

The Minutemen, ranked fifth in the Northeast with an 18-12 slate, split four matches for a 2-2 record. The wins came against LaSalle University and William and Mary University. The spikers dropped matches to Princeton University and Villanova University.

The spikers started on a wrong note, losing their first pool match to Princeton 13-15, 11-15. In this match, the serving that had been a strong point for the spikers deserted them.

"Serving definitely made the difference," said Sortino, "We knew coming that we were going to have to serve tough because we were going to be served at really tough."

UMass came back in their second pool match, dropping LaSalle 15-11, 11-15, 15-12.

The third game of the match provided some high drama. With UMass trailing 10-1 and facing possible elimination, UM, behind the hitting of Sally Maher and Sarah Ryan, stormed back scoring 14 of the last sixteen points to take the game 15-12.

"We played better defense, blocked alot better, and just plain showed a lot of heart in that game," said Sortino.

The match also witnessed what Sortino said was "one of the hardest balls I've ever seen hit," courtesy of Maher. "She really turned some heads with that one. The gym practically went silent."

The spikers then faced a tough William and Mary squad. UMass had little trouble, disposing of the Colonials 15-11, 15-7.

"We just did everything well in that match," said Sortino. "We needed the momentum going into the elimination bracket."

The momentum didn't last long. The Minutemen lost to a strong Villanova team 12-15, 15-17.

In the second game however, the spikers almost pulled another incredible comeback that would have evened things up. After falling behind 11-3, UMass went on to score 11 of the next twelve to take what seemed to be a secure lead at 14-12. But the Wildcats wouldn't fall and hung on to win 17-15.

★ soccer

continued from pg. 20

"If you're playing a strict man-to-man team like Holy Cross, you've really got to move off the ball," said Gettler. "We created some chances in the first half, but not as many as we could have. We just didn't finish. It was much better in the second half. We were lazy in the first half. If you've got a guy who's following you wherever you go, you've got to drag him out of the space you want to be in and go to a space you don't want to be in.

UMass could have easily scored a lot of goals in the first half, but several booming shots ricocheted off Holy Cross defenders and goalie Mike Webber slapped away numerous others. However, it remained until the second half to UMass to break through. At the 55 minute mark after a scramble in the front of the Crusader goal mouth, Tom Uschok collected a rebound off a Kurt Manal shot and kicked it into the goal. Both clubs barely had time to catch their breath when Matt Cushing and Manal executed a beautiful give-and-go that sent Manal in one-on-one with Webber. Manal easily deposited the ball in the upper left corner.

★ field hockey

continued from pg. 19

The contest was hard fought throughout with UMass dominating the majority of the game and UNH squandering whatever opportunities they had. Forward Tonia Kennedy had a crossing shot kicked in the goal by a UNH defender at 13:30 in the second half for UMass' third and final goal of the day.

"Defensively, we were tough and cut well on loose balls. Everyone filled their roles today, they were disciplined and played very hard. I can't say there was any one standout; we got key performances from everybody when we needed it. I really think we played to our potential," said Hixon.

"The Harvard loss compelled us . It made us angry. When things become too easy you tend to get lazy," said Hixon.

COUPON-COUPON-COUPON

FREE 16 OZ. SODA
with purchase of whole sub.

SALADS SUBMARINES BY PLANE
the sub
11 A.M. TO 2 A.M. / 7 DAYS
33 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST / 549-5180

The Kick Off
expires 10/26/84

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
549-5610
FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.-$40.
STYLE CUTS $7.00
expires 10/30/84
valid with this ad

NIGHT of the LIVING DEAD

Date: Wed. Oct. 24th
Time: 5, 7, 9, 11 PM
Location: S.U.B.
Admission: $1. for 5 PM
$1.50 for 7, 9, 11 PM
Advance tickets can be purchased at the "TIX" office during regular "TIX" hours
Sponsor: HAMLIN DORM

ATKINS FRUIT BOWL
Corner of Rte 116 & Bay Rd. So. Amherst
TELEPHONE 253-9528 Open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
The Fruits of Atkins Orchards
Crisp, Crunchy and Juicy, Just Picked Apples
MACOUN - CORTLAND - SPENCER - MCINTOSH - EMPIRE - GOLDEN DELICIOUS - GREENINGS RED DELICIOUS
Right from the Orchard to you if you have not yet had the opportunity to experience a fresh picked apple, you will be pleasantly surprised at how much more flavorful and juicy they can be! Shop Atkins for the freshest!
BOSC PEARS
BARTLETT PEARS ripened the way you like them
for CANNING & EATING
PERFECT PARTY REFRESHMENTS for THE FALL:
CIDER - CIDER DONUTS
CHEESE
Easy & Delicious! Tangy Cider. Fresh Donuts Plus the added "zing" of cheese!
Stock Up and Save on WINTER KEEPING VEGETABLES — Cauliflower 99¢
Specials 10/19-10/25
5 lbs. RUSSETT POTATOES 79¢
RUTABAGA (Yellow Turnip) 14¢ lb.
RED GRAPES 69¢ lb.
Vermont SHARP CHEDDAR $2.95 Lb.
BAKERY PRODUCTS you know are fresh because THEY ARE MADE AT ATKINS
Made from Scratch
No Preservatives Added
Highest Quality Ingredients
OLD FASHIONED FRUIT PIES
RAISED DONUTS, COOKIES, WHOLE GRAIN & REGULAR BREADS & ROLLS, MUFFINS & A FULL LINE OF PASTRIES Mountains of Pumpkins Gourds & Colored Corn
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Check Our LOW Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From
Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

★ football

continued from page 20

bouncing away and was ruled a fumble by referee Anthony Prisco.

Maine increased their lead to 17-0 on a Jack Leone field goal of 25 yards and a Wilder to Theobald 19 yard scoring pass of 19 yards, both in the second quarter.

UMass wasted two possessions of four plays before Leone booted a 38 yarder that sealed the victory.

Wilder had his best effort of the year (he had completed only 36 percent of his previous passes and had averaged only 101 yards a game) as he destroyed UMass cornerbacks Chris Wood and Rod Turner, passing to the sidelines and running down them. Of Maine's 51 rushing attempts, only 17 went up the middle, the others were aimed right at Wood and Turner with much success.

"I knew that their linebackers were strong and that the defensive line was good against the run," said Wilder. "So we figured we had to go at their secondary, we ran at them and passed at them whenever we could, especially the corners, and it worked."

UMass also was hurt by a pair of missed field goals, one coming after holder Bob Simeone took a high snap by Don Day and had to attempt a rush as George Papoutsidis pulled up, and another on a 47 yard attempt that fell short.

Bob Simeone, with 10 catches for 130 yards, moved into second on the UMass career receptions list. He is third in yardage.

★ Abraham

continued from page 20

And we lost to these guys. I'm kind of disgusted. When the best teams at shcool are the women's soccer and field hockey teams, things are tough. Quick, name a national power in either of those sports. But everybody knows the Nebraskas, Oklahomas and Boston Colleges of the world because of football.

It was 58 scholarships goin g to waste up in Maine Saturday. For the first time since I can remember, I didn't want to admit I went to UMass. Sure, new head coach Bob Stull has installed a new system and it "takes some getting used to" but this was the seventh game of the season. The biggest kidMainehad was a 260 pound nose guard. And he was considered huge by the locals. C'mon UMass.

It's sad but true, but a school makes it's reputation through its football program. And right now, our reputation stinks, and deservedly so.

Maine 20, UMass 7

Scoring:
Maine: Theobald, 27 run (Leone kick)
Maine: Leone, 25 FG
Maine: Theobald, 19 pass from Wilder (Leone kick)
UMass: B. Simeone, 6 pass from J. Simeone (Papousidis kick)
Maine: Leone, 29 FG
Statistics:
First Downs: UMass: 22, ME: 24
Rushing Yards: UMass: 39-139, ME: 51-258
Passing Yards: UMass: 25-38-266, ME: 12-18-219
Total Yards: UMass: 405, ME: 477
Fumbles-Lost: UMass: 2-2, ME: 2-2
Possession: UMass: 27:43, ME; 32:17
Gain per play: UMass: 5.2, ME: 6.9
Individual Statistics:
Passing: UMass: J. Simeone, 38-25-1-1-266, ME: Wilder, 18-12-1-1-219
Rushing: UMass: Grange 13-48, Barnwell 5-20, Shelmire 5-29, Barrett 6-28, Fay 3-9, J. Simeone 6-16. ME: Theobald 8-101, Hufnagle 20-89, Phelan 15-59.
Receiving: UMass: B. Simeone 10-130, Walsh 5-53, Crowley 4-24. ME: Phelan 3-89, Gordon 3-34.
Punting: UMass: Tandler 2-35.5, ME: Labonte 2-39.0
Field Goals: UMass: Papousidis, 0-1 (47 miss), ME: Leone 2-3 (37 miss)

Bryan Gonye

UMass forward Maura Coughlin lets fly with a shot against New Hampshire on Saturday at NOPE. The Minutemen defeated the fourth-ranked wildcats 3-1.

Stickers beat UNH, 3-1

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team was in an unaccustomed position Saturday as they took on the number four ranked team in the nation, the University of New Hampshire Wildcats at NOPE field.

The Minutemen had to win: victory was vital. Rising to the challenge the Minutemen did just that by a score of 3-1.

"We had to win this game," said UMass coach Pam Hixon. "After working so hard and getting into the top five, a loss today would have probably put us out of the top twelve. Plus, to lose three in a row...it can tend to get contageous."

"After the Harvard game (a 1-0 UM loss) we had a meeting and decided where we wanted to go as a team. We decided that we wanted to be in the post-season championships. So when we went out on the field today we were going to win," said Hixon.

UMass took immediate control of the game with forward Judy Morgan scoring the first goal of the game just under two minutes into the contest. UNH's Barbara Marois countered with a goal at 27:00 in the first half. With thirteen minutes remaining in the period UMass forward Chris Kocot took a Maura Coughlin pass on a penalty corner and put the ball through the UNH goalie's legs to put her team up for good.

continued on pg. 18

Collegian photos by Bryan K. Gonye

The ball gets loose in front of the New Hampshire net in action at NOPE on Saturday. UMass' Kim Wright (21) closes on the net in the background.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUDIO

Pioneer AM-FM portable stereo cassette AMS autoreverd CRO2 $95 or 769

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500 serious call only 549-7854

69 Chevy Pickup good work truck best offer call Rick 546-6037

1974 Chevy Nove 79,000 mi runs well new muffler $950 call 586-9128

1979 Fiesta 4 speed AM-FM cass Dark blue 57,000 miles $1500 Call 256-6836

72 Audi 1800 running condition Larry 549-6051

Audi Fox 76 runs mint new tires body good, $1500 negotiable 6-5184

1978 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $695/BO 256-6121

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $6 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older. Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person: Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED Area WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

6 College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7889

Rack-A-Disc Rack-A-Video Entertainment Agency Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area 549-7144

FOR RENT

Single room in apartment for rent reasonable rate close to campus 253-2284

FOR SALE

RCA 19" color TV $120 call 586-9128

For sale Hanson ski boots shell 3 size 8 9 $75 546-4745

HALLOWGRAMS

Send a friend a cookiegram for Halloween $1.00, order Tuesday Thursday CC 10-4. Find out if you've been treated in Collegian October 31

HAYRIDES

Attention Party Goers RA's, Social Chairpersons Party on our Haywagon Bonfire after ride. Info. and Reserv. West Hatfield Stebles 247-9098

HELP WANTED

Overseas jobs. Summer, yr. round Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, PO Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

ATTENTION STUDENTS! Want part-time work you can fit between classes? Place and fill posters on campus, earn base and bonuses. Year-round possible 1(800)243-6679

Now taking applications for full and part-time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person: Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

The Campus Center Board of Governors needs you! The BOG needs a Building Operations Coordinator. Duties include overseeing building problems and general policies effecting students within the CC/SUB complex. This is a paid position. For more info: BOG Office 817 Campus Center

Hampshire County Nursing Service is looking for sn working as aids and homemakers for home and nursing home cases. Flexible hours. 586-8272

Housepersons wanted. Work for your meals and get a DC rebate meals prepared by a full-time cook call Jim Houston at 545-2150

Managers needed for Sporting Goods Co-op. Gen valuable experience buying, selling, advertising, scheduling, hiring & payroll. Applications available in 407 SUB Deadline is October 25, 5:00 AA/EOE

Help Wanted. Day shift. Apply in person after 5 PM Bell's Pizza 65 University Drive

INSTRUCTION

Need a Spanish Tutor? Conversation, correction of texts, etc for advanced and intermediate levels. Native speaker. Call Mario 546-7081 late eves

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4086 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Lost brown plastic frame glasses in a red leather case if found contact 6-5641

Gold ladies watch at Changes on 10/4 if found please call Pam at 253-7482 high sentimental value

PERSONALS

Who do YOU know? Who do YOU want to meet? If you KNOW any celebs, V.I.P.'s, musicians etc. have any info or input contact G.P.C. Box 140 SUB or call 545-2733. This is YOUR chance to shine on campus!

Dog Home Wanted loveable white belgian shepard needs home desperately! Housebroken call JR @ 253-7867 or 545-0341 anytime!

To whoever borrowed my hat at the Dutchman. Please return it to Chapel, UMMB staff room

Happy Birthday Elizabath!!! Love Beth, Helaine, Amy, and the rest of Butterfield. Don't party too hard!!!

Cheryl, I really did thank you the last time but we'll try it again. Thank you for making my birthday so special. Love M

Mark, I love you more than ever please remember that! Love, your Babydoll

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Thases, on campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7524

RIDE WANTED

To all Ang going to Barnes Oct 27 and 28, I need a ride. Will help with gas. Call Rick at 546-5667

ROOMMATE WANTED

To share master bedroom & private bath with a male in a house with large kitchen, living room and game room. 150/mo + utilities 253-9882

TO ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN

All are invited to Open Rush at Chi Omega! Monday Oct 22 Dinner Party 6-15 Wednesday Oct 24 Dinner Party 5-15 Thursday Oct 25 Halloween Party for rides and information call 545-0162 or 545-2092 ask for Kristin or Lorrie

TRAVEL

Weekend in Montreal, Only $79. Boston Bruins game optional. Don't be fooled by tours that offer standing room only. We have good seats. Contact: Kim 546-5126

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 student/budget travel agency. Free catalog. Call (617) 266-1926 or write 729 Boylston St suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

VOLLEYBALL

Players interested in competitive volleyball. The Pioneer Valley Volleyball Club practices Wednesday 7-9 PM at Leeds school. Call 584-7577 for directions

WANTED TO RENT

One bedroom apartment close to campus. Will take over lease in January. Please call Jim 549-7852

Sports

UMass hits bottom, Maine wins 20-7

"This was our worst yet" Stull

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

ORONO, ME. — A loss to Lehigh wasn't all that bad, they were at least in the game, Holy Cross? They're second in the nation in Division 1-AA, URI? They're ranked too and have a great quarterback. Richmond was a former Division 1 team so who could complain?

But the University of Maine?

Yes, the University of Maine. Behind the running of halfback Lance Theobold and the game plan of coach Ron Rogerson, the Black Bears administered a 20-7 whipping to the Minutemen on Saturday in front of 7,200 Homecoming Day fans.

"We were outplayed and outcoached today," said UMass coach Bob Stull, now 2-5 as a head coach. "It was the worst we've played for a game all season. It was awful.'

That it was. The UMass defense allowed 477 yards of total offense to a Bear team that was averaging 266. The Minutemen's offense, despite compiling 405 yards of their own, manged but a meaningless fourth quarter touchdown while committing three turnovers.

The Black Bears, now 2-5, will look back on this one for some time. After a parade and the crowning of the homecoming queen, sophomore quarterback Bob Wilder went to work on the UMass defense in the opening possession driving Maine 64 yards in six plays for a score.

Theobold, who had a previous best day of 35 yards, capped the initial drive with a 27 yard run down the right sideline with 11:49 to go in the quarter to make it 7-0.

UM quarterback Jim Simeone then took over and directed a 13-play UMass drive down to the Maine 27. With tailback George Barnwell out with a pulled hamstring, UMass went to reserve Duckworth Grange and the passing game. With Grange running for 19 yards and Simeone passing for 48 (he was four-for-four at one point), the Minutemen found themselves deep in Bear territory.

Simeone dropped back to pass and, with his arm clearly in motion, was hit by right end Steve Donahue. The ball went

Bob Stull

"How bad you guys kill Maine?" "well...uh..."

Peter Abraham

Just how terrible was UMass' loss to the University of Maine?

To put it in perspective, let me relay this story. On the way home from the game we (myself, the crew from WMUA and another Collegian writer) stopped off at a pizza place in Lewiston, about an hour from Orono.

We walked in, ordered our pizzas (which were terrible, never get a pizza in Maine) and talked to the guy behind the counter.

"So how bad did you guys kill Maine?" asked Greg (the pizza maker).

"Uh, we didn't," I said.

"You don't mean they beat you?" asked Greg with a doubting tone.

"Yea, 20-7," I mumbled, kind of sheepishly.

"Shoot, you guys must be terrible," said Greg, "Because we're really bad, we stink."

"Yea, I suppose we are," I said.

It's hard to admit that to myself. My school's football team isn't good, in fact it's bad. The University of Maine was the worst team in New England, at 1-5 they had defeated only hapless Lafayette. They hadn't scored over 13 points in five of their six games and their quarterback completed only 36 percent of his passes. Their leading rusher was averaging 55 yards a game.

But no more. The quarterback looks like an All-American candidate. The running back has his first 100 yard game since when? "For a long time, I think it was last year, early in the season, I don't do it often," said Maineback Lance Theobald.

Why is UMass 2-5? Losses to Holy Cross and URI are acceptable. Both are nationally ranked, well coached teams that have better players than we do. Richmond was a former 1-A and they have the size and strength advantages.

The loss to Lehigh, (considering they're a small engineering college with an enrollment of 4,400, it is kind of sad,) wasn't that terrible, at least we were in the game.

But losing to the University of Maine, a 1-5 doormat of a team, is inexusable.

We're a school of 19,000 students, so far we've been beaten up by a school of 2,500 (Holy Cross), another of 2,600 (Richmond) and Maine. The Maine football facilities consist of a coach's office with a beat-up coach and a desk, a lockeroom that, when I was in high school, was considered bad, and three tackling sledges. It's basically rinky dink, small time. The crowd of 7,200 at Alumni Field was considered "huge" by the local media.

continued on page 19

UMass midfielder Tom Uschok dribbles past a Holy Cross defender on Saturday at Boyden. UMass beat the Crusaders, 2-0.

Men's soccer boots Cross

by SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

For 55 minutes Saturday on Boyden Field, purple sandbags disguised as Holy Cross soccer players restrained the University of Massachusetts onslaught. The Crusader forces eventually succumbed however, as UMass scored two goals within a three minute span to roll to a not-as-close-as-the-final-score-indicates 2-0 victory.

The Minutemen not only outshot the Crusaders 26-6, but controlled the ball in the Holy Cross end for close to 40 of the 45 minutes in the second half. And were it not for a first half tendency to stand around on offense the Minutemen's domination could have equaled that of the second half. Despite outshooting the Cross 14-2 in the half, the score stood 0-0, and prompted a Coach Jeff Gettler halftime lecture on the proper strategy to conquer a man-to-man defense. It worked.

continued on pg. 18

Women crush Adelphi, look toward playoffs

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

It was another routine victory for the second ranked University of Massachusetts women's soccer team as they dominated Adelphi University on their way to their eighth straight win, a 6-1 triumph at Boyden Field Saturday afternoon.

The Minutemen were in command throughout as they demonstrated better ball control and passing. Their only letup resulted in a goal when they were well in control of the match.

"It was a good game," said coach Kalekeni Banda. "We played excellent heads-up soccer. There was a little breakdown on the back, but that happens when you play a high pressure game. It was a matter of who had better skills and players."

Senior co-captain Chris Taggart opened the scoring nine minutes into the game as she booted a Kristen Bowsher pass into the right corner of the net.

UMass played well at both ends of the field and put on pressure but several good chances were stopped by Adelphi goalie Colleen Carroll.

The pressure finally began to pay off as the UM freshmen began to take over the play. Leah Eicher converted a beautiful header off a Lisa Merlo cross at 30:27 mark for her second goal of the year and a 2-0 UMass lead. Merlo then got her third goal four minutes later on a nice give and go with Catherine Spence.

That same connection hooked up again eight minutes later as Merlo got her second of the game and fourth of the year off a Spence touch for a 4-0 UMass halftime lead.

The booters might have had more goals were it not for the several times their shots rang off the top crossbar. The Adelphi goal occurred 16 minutes into the second half, when goalie Jeanne Paul and back Chris Schmitt got crossed up and the ball rolled by both of them.

After the goal, the Minutemen let up in intensity some as Adelphi kept the ball in their end, but couldn't come up with any more goals.

Taggart got her second of the game 22 minutes in, as she used good ball control to go around some defenders and blast the ball by Carroll for her fourth tally of the season and a commanding 5-1 lead.

A blast by defender Debbie Belkin that hit the crossbar and apparently went over the goal line according to the linesman's call, was not seen or called by the referee. But she finally got one, as she closed out the scoring with her first of the year at the 36 minute mark, with a left footed shot from Jolie DePauw, who had a frustrating afternoon, up to that point, and a 6-1 UMass win.

"I was happy that we didn't have to work too hard. We were able to rest some starters, so that was good. It was the best game for the subs. They've been listening in practice and scored a few goals today," commented Banda.

The Minutemen with an 11-1-2 record will have their hands full this afternoon as they host the number five ranked and New England rival, Harvard on Boyden Field, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

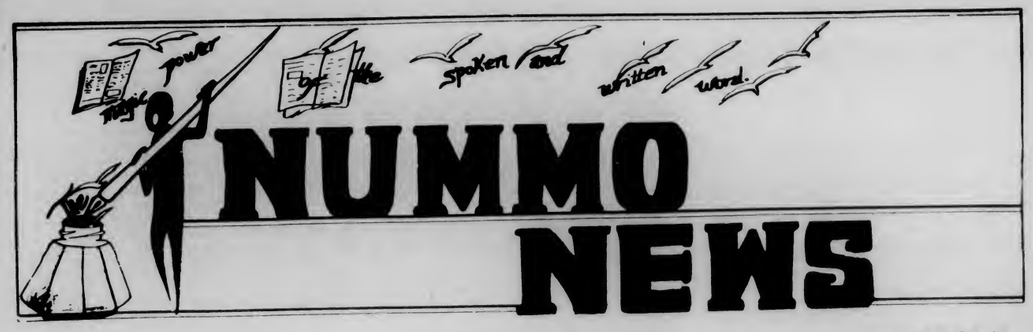
The men's tennis team dropped a pair of matches, on Thursday the Army took a 6-2 decision from the Minutemen and on Saturday the Catamounts of Vermont were 8-1 victors.

The UMass rugby team was outplayed by the Terriers of Boston University on Saturday, losing 15-0 to fall to 4-1 in league play.

"We were outplayed, they beat us fairly," said coach Doc Laurence. BU is now 5-0.

sports at a glance

UMass schedule:
Today: Women's Soccer: Harvard, Boyden, 2:30 p.m.



NUMMO NEWS

Monday, October 22, 1984 Volume 13 Issue 6

connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution

Unity Through Organization

Black Homcoming and Third World Leadership Conference Come to UMass

by Marilyn G. Bou
Nummo Staff

The New England Third World Leadership Conference along with Black Homecoming will be held from Friday October 26 through Sunday October 28, at the University of Massachusetts/Amherst. The two events will compliment each other throughout the weekend. They are two very significant happenings for the Third World Community. Third World Leadership Conferences began in December 1983 at UMass to encourage students, administrators and faculty to gather together for the purpose of networking for Third World interests, while Black Homecoming has been a tradition for the Third World Community since 1975.

True student power comes from effective organization and implementation of ideas." The conference will help to bring together the minds of students of color, for the purpose of networking and exchanging contacts and mutual cooperation", said Sherwood Thompson Director of the Office of Third World Affairs.

The conference will feature panel and workshop sessions which cater to issues such as students of color and administrators in predominalty white universities. The conference will also feature cultural events, karate demonstrations, display booths and an evening dance.

The conference registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. with a welcome and conference overview to follow at 9:15a.m.

The keynote speaker will be Mr. Playthell Benjamin,Political Advisor for Fight Back Labor Organization in New York City. Ambassador Omaru Yousofous of the Organization of African Unity's representative to the United Nations will also be featured as a guest speaker at the luncheon which will be held in the Student Union Ballroom from 12:45 to 1:45.

Concurrent workshops will begin at 11:00 a.m. and last till 12:15 for session one, while the second set of workshops commence at 2:00 p.m. and end at 5:15 p.m. The workshops range from International Health Issues, Student Leadership Development, Cultural Event and Music Presentation to Housing Discrimination in College Towns.

Black Homecoming will kick-off its schedule of events Friday at 8:00 p.m. with a comedian nite, featuring Herb Quinones and Mitch Kyser at Hampden Theatre. On Sunday October 28 there will be a Semi-formal and dinner beginning at 7:00 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium and ending at midnight.

The conference will assist students of color in gaining strength and a better communications base.

Lifestyles of people of color at colleges and universities is a unique experience for all of us, in order to improve these obstacles which are part of a college experience as people of color we must come together to ensure the exchange of ideas, influence and make our voices heard. If we do not address our unique needs and exchange cultural interests, universities will almost immediately cease to exist. The struggle has taken many steps forward but still continues. Third world students, faculty and administrators must begin taking active responsibility in the continuation of the transformation and education in order to produce even more progressive changes on the campuses throughout the New England area.

Conferences such as this provide the opportunity needed to ensure influence and power. They encourage dramatic change in institutions which traditionally tried to obliterate the existence of students of color on campuses along with creating misconceptions of our peoples. Through effective communication among ourselves and people sensitive to our interests the practices of these educational institutions can come to pass.

Black Homecoming provides the community with an opportunity to share cultural and social activities

Continued on page 3

Geraldine Ferraro speaks at Saturday's rally.

Photo by Andy Heller.

Mondale/Ferraro: A Political Analysis.

by Segun Eubanks
Nummo Staff

As most people affiliated with the University of Massachusetts already know, Gelardine Ferraro, the Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, visited the campus and participated in the rally this past Saturday. Anyone who watches television or reads any newspaper in Massachusetts probably already knows just about everything that Ferraro said and did at Saturday's rally so we will not waste space repeating it here.

Instead, what we would like to do is to take a little time and space analysizing what Ferraro and Mondale represent for Black and Third World voters. Even more so what Ronald Reagan represents.

First of all, let's be honest with ourselves. Democrats have never done much for black people unless they have been politically forced to do so (of course this goes double for Republicans). When Jimmy Carter was in the White House he didn't do a hell of a lot for blacks. However, Carter knew very well that it was the black vote that got him into office and it would be the black vote that would keep him there. Therefore, he implemented a few programs and put a few blacks into his administration (very publically I might add).

Perhaps, if Carter would have been a little more receptive to the constituency that made the difference in getting him in elected, we may have gone out and voted and the Democrats would not be in the spot that they now find themselves.

For now, let's put all of that aside and deal with the issue at hand: Mondale/Ferraro. Thanks to the hard work of black political leaders such as Jesse Jackson, Richard Hatcher, Louis Farrakan and many others, Black Americans have the chance to play a more pivital and important role in the upcoming election than perhaps in any other Presidential race in United States history.

In the past, Black Americans have always been stuck in a dilemma over which candidate to vote for. We would get to the polls and say, "Uh, let's see, will it be Dwiddle Dee or Dwiddle Dum?" However, the tide seems to be changing and black voters, for the first time in many years, have the opportunity to cast a vote that will actually make a difference in their lives.

Now I'm still not totally convinced that the leaders of the Democratic Party have gone through any dramatic changes, but I know that the current administration is the most dangerous leadership to black people since James Edgar Hoover and his COINTELPRO programs.

When I listened to Geraldine Ferraro speak on Saturday, I felt better about American politics than I ever have before. Perhaps this is because when I listen to Ronald Reagan (Re-Ron) I feel worse about American politics than I ever have before. I guess I feel kind of hypocritical when I say, "Hey, let's vote for Mondale/Ferraro. At least the Racism, discrimination and oppression of people of color won't get too much worse."

Yet I know that the political pressure is on the Democrats full force and they can't afford to alienate

Continued on page 2

NAACP Fights For Justice

by Julian Tynes
Nummo Staff

When the N.A.A.C.P. was founded in 1909, "Jim Crow" laws had been in affect since 1896 when the Supreme Court ruling established the "seperate but equal" doctrine in its historic Plessy vs. Fergusen decision.

Disenfranchisement had been considered one of the most flagrant forms of discrimination. It was felt by members of the N.A.A.C.P. executive committee that there could be no solution to the race problem in the south until blacks obtained the right to vote. The Fifteenth Amendment had given blacks the right to vote but Constitutional changes in many of the southern states after Reconstruction prevented blacks from going to the polls.

There were several methods used to prevent blacks from practicing their right to vote. Among some of the more common were: 1) Registration months in advance of actual voting. 2) Payment of poll taxes. 3) Required ownership of real estate property. 4) Literacy tests in which people were required to read and interpret the Federal and State Constitutions to the satisfaction of election officials. 5) The infamous "Grandfather Clause" which stated that a person could become a registered voter only if they had served in the United States Army, the Confederate Army, or was the descendant of such a person or had the right to vote before 1867. 6) Force and intimidation.

The N.A.A.C.P. began to investigate the Constitutionality of the Grandfather Clause and appealled to the U.S. Solicitor General to challenge the law. The case was brought before the Supreme Court and in June of 1915 Chief Justice Edward D. White read the decision stating that the Grandfather Clause was unconstitional.

The N.A.A.C.P. also attacked discrimination in education. After Reconstruction blacks recieved only a small amount of public funds for education. Facilities and materials for the education of black children were far inferior to those of white children. Because of this the organization felt that the answer was an intergration of school facilities.

Segregation was fought on all fronts including housing. One of the more famous cases was that of Ossian Sweet. Ossian Sweet was a promenient black surgeon in Detroit, Michigan. In 1925 Dr. Sweet purchased a house in a modest income neighborhood but hesitated to move in for several months because he was receiving threatening letters. Finally, on September 23, 1925 Dr. Sweet asked for police protection and moved his family into the house.

The police guarded his house for that night and the following day. On the second night, as the Sweets and their guests were about to eat dinner, stones were thrown through the windows and a huge mob gathered outside the house. The police arrived but failed to disperse the crowd. Shortly after, more bricks were thrown through the windows followed by gunshots. Those inside feared for their lives and someone in the house grabbed a gun and fired into the crowd. A member of the mob was hit and dropped to the ground dead. The police entered the house and charged all 11 occupants with murder in the first degree.

The N.A.A.C.P. hired a panel of six lawyers, headed by the great Clarence Darrow, to represent the defendants. Because of Darrow's great fame (he had just concluded the Scopes 'Monkey trial') white newspapers gave the Sweet case wide coverage. The first trial began on October 30, 1925 and resulted in a hung jury. Clarence Darrow's arguement was based on the premise that everyone has a right to defend their home.

The second trial involved Sweet's brother Henry as the only defendant. This case recieved a lot of publicity because the prosecuting attorney was a member of the Klu Klux Klan. Hostile witnesses took the stand and testified that there had been no crowds milling outside, no threats, no stone throwing, no shooting and no riotous action. When cross-examined by the defense many of these witnesses seemed to have memory lapses. No one remembered being at a meeting in which plans were made to rid the neighborhood of the black family.

There was, however, one man of basic integrity who admitted that he did not like blacks and told the truth about the events that occured that night. There had been threats and stone throwing. There had been shots fired from the crowd. A white woman from the neighborhood corraborated this testimony. Also a white newspaper reporter, who was at the scene, testified that the crowd had become so riotous that he had become filled with fear and left.

Numerous witnesses testified to the difficulties blacks in Detroit had been facing in obtaining housing and of the moral integrity of Henry Sweet and the Sweet family. Finally Clarence Darrows' summation of the defense was presented to the jury. Darrows' speech was called one of the greatest in the history of American jurisprudence.

The main point of Darrows' arguement was that the Sweet case involved racial prejudice, not murder. He said, "If white men had shot and killed a black while protecting their home and lives against a mob of blacks, no one would have dreamed of having them indicted....They would have been given gold medals instead." He told the jury, "You are twelve white men trying a colored man. I want you to be on your guard. I want you to do all you can to be fair in this case - and I beleive you will."

Near the end of his seven hour address Darrow placed his trust in the jury. He stated: "I do not believe in the law of hate....I would like to see the time when man loves his fellow man and forgets his color or his creed. We will never be civilized until that time comes. I know the Negro race has a long way to go. I believe the life of the Negro race has been a life of tragedy, of injustice, of oppression. The law has made him equal -but man has not. And after all, the last analysis is what man has done. Gentlemen...I ask you in the name of progress and of the human race to return a verdict of not guilty."

Clarence Darrow then sat down. The next day the jury went into deliberations. Late that afternoon the jury informed the court that it had a decision. The verdict: "Not Guilty".

Next week: Brown vs. Topeka.

Continued from page 1

any of their would-be supporters; even if they do get elected to office. And when I hear Ferraro speak of making the Civil Rights Act a permanent part of the Constitution and fighting for Human Rights in South Africa (in front of an over 90 percent white audience no doubt), I can't help but feel good. And when a woman can step up to the podium and command respect and leadership as well as any man has ever done, how can you complain (too much).

Of course the middle/upper class, vast majority white male Republican club, complete with signs such as, "Ditch the Bitch, Ronnie kick ass at UMass", came out to show their true colors. But then the typical white male has always seemed to be paranoid of blacks and women (perhaps with good reason now).

Yes, I believe that we, as people of color, finally have a half-way decent choice. I would just like to say thank you to Jesse Jackson and the many, many other strong leaders, black and white , male and female, for making this choice possible. And especially thanks to Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro for being smart enough, maybe even sincere enough, to realize that Reagan is a threat to all of us and he cannot be defeated without a "Rainbow Coalition".

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Segun C. Eubanks	Editor In Chief
Marilyn G. Bou	Managing Editor
Marc Eliott Giles	Photo Editor
Julian Tynes	Researcher
Lisa Viega	Business Manager
Nina Cordova	Administrative Assistant
Emmett Grady	Reporter/Photographer
David L. Walker	Photographer
Rod Clare	Reporter
• • Contributors • • •
Ed Cohen	Photographer
Darlene Jackson	Correspondent
Yadira Betances	Correspondent
Yvonne Mendez	Layout

Address all letters to the Editor to: Nummo News, New Africa House Room 103

Correction: The photo of the "BCP Family" on page two of last weeks issue was taken by Ed Cohen not David Walker.

Marla Cahillane, Nummo News extends its thanks.

Editor's note: Nummo News would like to inform the organizers of the Freshman recruiting programs that every effort was made to cover the recent field trip made by high school students. Unfortunately, the communication came too late for adequate, fair coverage. We sincerely hope that communications will improve and that we can continue to serve the media needs of such an important project.

South African Bishop Receives Nobel Prize

by Rod Clare
Nummo Staff

Bishop Desmond Tutu, General Secretary of the South African Council of Churches, was named as the 1984 recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize, last Tuesday. A visiting professor in Anglican studies at the General Theological Seminary in New York City, Bishop Tutu is said to be the leading spiritual voice of Blacks in South Africa. His congregation has 18 member churches with more than 12 million followers.

A nonviolent but nonetheless strident foe of aparteid, Bishop Tutu's method of opposing South African rule was applauded by the selection committee, which said that his struggle "is of vital importance for the whole of the continent of Africa and for the cause of peace in the world."

Described as small in stature but large in heart, Bishop Tutu said, "the award made a tremendous political statement and despite all distortions af truth, the world recognizes that we are striving for peace."

The news of his being awarded the Nobel Peace Prize has been given very limited coverage in white South Africa, with dismay being spread as to how such a man could stand for peace.

Bishop Tutu began his involvement in the church at an early age and at 25 trained to become a clergy. He was ordained in 1960 and used the church to espouse his views of nonviolent opposition to apartheid. In 1975 he became the first Black Anglican Dean of Johannesburg. In 1978 he was appointed the first Black General Secretary of the South African Council of Churches and quickly became the most outspoken of the Black clergy in denouncing apartheid.

He made it known that this is the last chance for peaceful change in South Africa, with the chance of bloodshed occuring if nothing is done. Bishop Tutu said, "Blacks don't believe that they are introducing violence into the situation, they believe that the situation is already violent." Although a clergyman, he knows that the voices of Black protest are getting stronger, and that the church will have to take a side if a civil war ensues.

Bishop Tutu is expected to arrive in South Africa to celebrate, although his passport has been withdrawn several times in the past. His plans are to then attend an awards cermony in Olso, Norway and then return to New York to finish his term at the Seminary. After which he will travel back to South Africa to continue his work.

Mr. Tutu is not the first South African to receive the Nobel Peace Prize. In 1960, Albert Luthuli, former president of the African National Congress also received a Nobel Peace Prize for his nonviolent oppostion to apartheid. The only other black person to receive the Peace Prize was Martin Luther King Jr. in 1964. To all these brothers and for the others still to come, men and women alike, we say "Don't give up the fight.

Duke Ellington Series Begins With Dizzy Gillespie

by Keith Johnson

This past Wednesday October 17, the University of Massachusetts was honored with the performance of Dizzy Gillespie, one of the major innovators of jazz music, at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. The concert was the first in the FAC's Duke Ellington Series which features notable jazz musicians. Gillespie was joined by Sayyd Al-Khabyyr on sax, Walter Davis on piano, John Lee on bass and Nasyr Al-Khabyyr on drums.

Although the concert started a half hour late, the impatient crowd of about 1500 people seemed pleased from the first song to the last. Gillespie set the tone from the beginning with his raspy voice, when he belted out, "UMass, take me I'm yours. I offer my life for your love". From that point on the crowd bobbed their heads, tapped their feet and laughed at the antics of the performers.

Gillespie, with his curved-bell trumpet and bulging cheeks, went through not only some of his own famous tunes,such as "Night in Tunisia", but also performed Don Redman's "Gee Baby, Ain't I Good To You", and Lalo Shifrin's "The Blues". Besides Gillespie, Sayyd Al-Khabyyr was a definite stand out on sax,flute and clarinet, recieving loud applause for his solos. Both Nasyr Al-Khabyyr and John Lee, formally of the Mcoy Tyner Group, proved that, although they are young, they can hold their own among such veterans. Walter Davis was one of those veterans with his strong piano playing and stage presence.

Gillespie has been a musician since 1935. He is noted for helping to create the jazz form "bop". It was a new form that was based on the New Orleans Jazz, made famous by Louis Armstrong and "Jelly Roll" Morton. "Bop" turned the New Orleans Jazz into a more harmonically and rhythmically complex form. It was not accepted at first but by the 1950's Gillespie and Charlie "Bird" Parker, Charles Mingus and others had turned it into a very popular form of music.

After 45 years of playing with such Jazz greats as Cab Calloway, Earl "Fatha" Hines, Billy Eckstine and others, Gillespie is still playing, touring and cutting records.

Dizzy Gillespie chats with admirers after his concert Wednesday night.

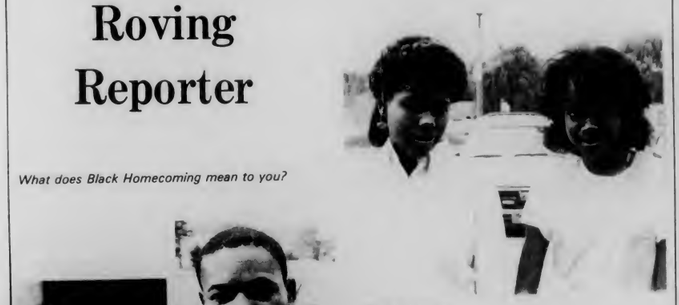
photo by Marc-Elliot Giles

About a year ago Gillespie performed on a hit tune with Stevie Wonder. Gillespie now plans to appear with Wonder on his next LP. He is also taping a segment for the "Bill Cosby Show" that will be aired in November.

The crowd participation and standing ovation at the end of Dizzy's performance proved that he was greatly appreciated. Dizzy Gillespie will go down in history as one of Jazz music's greatest innovators.

Roving Reporter

What does Black Homecoming mean to you?



Keith Johnson

Black Homecoming should be a time of the year when Third World Students and alumni come together to honor Third World experiences at UMass. To remember past struggles and triumphs and to plan for new ones. To reunite old friendships and to bring the community together to have a good time.

Dierde Lawyer

All the Black people can get together with a common understanding of Brotherhood and Sisterhood and unite as one. UNITY!

Terry Armstrong

I feel it is good that Black people can come together to make a strong bond among themselves within the Black community.

Brett Andrews

Knowing that there is a lack of unity in the Black community as a whole in America. I feel Black Homecoming is a stepping stone to bring Black people together. Therefore we can set an example for the youth so they have a higher view of life and can establish themselves in the American society.

photos by Marc-Elliot Giles

It Don't Mean A Thing If It Ain't Got No Soul.

by Segun Eubanks
Nummo Staff

Last Sunday, October 14, the Fine Arts Center presented the production of "Sophisticated Ladies", the famous Broadway musical based on the music of Duke Ellington. Although "Sophisticated Ladies" was a long running, smash hit on Broadway, the production at the FAC lacked the charisma, talent and most importantly the soul that the orignal production must have had.

Under the dierction and choreography of Claudia Asbury and the musical direction of Duke Ellington's son Mercer Ellington, the show consisted of an array of tunes and melodies from Duke's outstanding repertoire with the singers and dancers performing a variety of skits to fit the music. The hour and a half show performed over 30 of Ellington's best going as far back as 1928 and ranging all the way up to 1966.

"Sophisticated Ladies" did have its high points. The band and the music was excellent. Freda Payne, who played the lead female role, proved that although she cannot move like she used to, her voice is just as powerful and beautiful as ever. The performances of Bruce Anthony Davis, who played the lead male role, and Lynn Sterling were also very commendable. Other than those few highlights "Sophisticated Ladies" was rather flat.

Given that the sound system provided and the acoustics of the Fine Arts Center were as bad as they could possibly have been, the performance could not have reached its full potential anyway. However, these were not the decidings factors that made the performance a dissappointment. As previously mentioned, the production at the FAC lacked the soul it most definitely needed.

The Company of dancers and singers performed the choreography with typical "Juliard" precision. That would have been fine for a Classical ballet but it was not appropriate for the music and style of Duke Ellington. The music of Duke Ellington is not just lyrics written on a page. It is tied into a broader picture of history and tradition. The Harlem Renaissance, the "bop" and jazz eras, and African culture all influenced the music of Ellington. And it seemed clear that the original intent of "Sophisticated Ladies" was to bring the rich culture and history of Black America to the stage. So when a white singer says "I'd rather be in Harlem", it just did not sound right.

I am not critizing the performance of the cast as much as the ability of the cast to understand and "feel" the music, its history and its significance. The lack of swing and soul was not due to lack of talent but lack of the experience and understanding of black musical history. Most off the roles were clearly written for black performers and I'm sure there are many talented black dancers and singers who would have been honored to perform in the production.

So as not to end on a negative note let me once again commend the wonderful performance of Freda Payne and the Mercer Ellington Band (which received the most enthusiastic applause of the evening with a excellent piece after the stage performance was over).

I would have enjoyed the perfromance more if the band would have played and Freda Payne just walked out and sung.

Continued from page 1

unique to Black students at the University. The struggles of past students and the hard work of the current organizers of Black Homecoming will come to fruition with what will surely be a beautiful event and rewarding experience for anyone who attends.

Finally, both Black Homecoming and the Third World Leadership Conference will be depending on one very crucial factor for their success. YOU! Please come out and support the hard work of fellow students. Remember these events are designed with you in mind.

A Rastafarian Perspective

by Rod Clare
Nummo Staff

Ras Douglas of the Royal Theocratic Government of the Rastafari spoke of the current levels of political violence occuring in Jamaica, last Thursday at the New Africa House Library. Douglas talked of the history of violence, beginning with the situations at the end of slavery in 1838 and coming up to the present.

The Jamaican landocracy, in 1838, never believed that slavery should have ended and began to transport slaves illegaly to the West Indies. When it was learned that heavy fines would be levied to any new shipments of slaves, masses of black men and women were thrown overboard to drown. The British government compensated the Jamaican Landocracy for their loss of property with $200 million. The attitudes of this elite have not changed much over the ensuing years, said Douglas.

In Ras Douglas' view, there is a sinister plot by the government to keep the people backwards. Jamaicans are the fourth group of immigrants entering the U.S. and if it were possible for more to leave, the island would be practically deserted says Douglas. Jamaica is a "slave plantation" with prisons so brutal they have been described as resembling the Middle Passages of the slave trade, continued Ras Douglas.

The scenario of mass political murders began in 1972 when Michael Manley, leader of the People's National Party (PNP) defeated the Jamaican Labor Party (JLP). Under Manley's "democratic socialist" government Jamaica's economy began to improve and he won a second term in 1976 by defeating Edward Seaga, leader of the JLP.

After the election, however, things "went a bit bad" for Manley, said Ras Douglas, because some of his programs were too ambitious and lacked the necessary funds. Meanwhile, Mr. Seaga, determined to lead his party (the more conservative of the two with close ties to the U.S.) to victory in the 1980 elections, began to mix the ballot with the bullet, said Douglas.

Mr. Seaga began to have community and political leaders murdered. A series of "tit for tat" murders began to take place with the JLP killing on and the PNP killing another for revenge.

The level of terror that the special government forces or "Eradication Squads" spread was increasing said Douglas as he described how he was almost a victim of their brutality. Although the official figure for those who died was 750, Ras Douglas said it was more like 4,000. For an island of nearly 2.5 million people that is a very high figure. Douglas put it in perspective by asking the audience to imagine that during the Reagan-Mondale campaign, 400,000 were killed.

The level of violence has decreased since the election but Seaga, who won the 1980 election, has let it be known that before the JLP gives up power there will be a fight and if they don't win the election they plan to win the war noted Douglas. There was to be an election in 1985 but in December 1983 Seaga called a snap election. The JLP now claims that it has power until 1989 but the PNP fiercely disputed this.

Douglas noted that there has been a call for Rastafarians to become politically involved in Jamaica, something they have not traditionally done. Now some Rastafarians are saying that political steps must be taken. In Douglas' words, "repatriation yes, but liberation before repatriation."

The people of Jamaica now live in a state of perpetual fear, said Douglas. The island that produced some of the fiercest maroons (rebel slaves) such at Cudjoe and more modern leaders like Marcus Garvey and Bob Marley who spoke out against foreign domination, now finds itself brutalized by its own people.

In the opinion of this reporter there seems to be no easy solution to the country's problems if any at all. Perhaps Bob Marley said it best in the song "Natural Mystic":

There's a natural mystic blowing through the air.
If you listen carefully now you will hear.
It could be the first trumpet.
Might as well be the last.
Many more will have to die.
Many more will have to cry.
Don't ask me why.

Ras Douglas gives a presentation on violence in Jamaica at the New Africa House this past Thursday.

photo by David Walker

Announcements★ Announcements

MINORITY ENGINEERING CAREER DAY

A Minority Engineering Career Day will be held October 24 in the Campus Center Auditorium from 10:00a.m. till 3:00p.m. The event is sponsored by the National Society of Black Engineers, University Placement Service, and the Minority Engineering Program. All engineering students are encouraged to attend.

BLACK WOMAN'S SUPPORT GROUP

Everywoman's Center will be sponsoring Black Woman's Support Group beginning on October 24,1984 and running for six weeks. The group, which will meet on Wednesday evenings, will be facilitated by Wanda Ruffin. Discussion will focus on issues pertinent to Black women; specific topics will be decided by the group.

For more information and to register, please contact Everywoman's Center by calling 545-0883.

ASSERTIVENESS AND LEADERSHIP SKILLS

The Working Women's Program at Everywoman's Center will be sponsoring an Assertiveness and Leadership Skills group beginning October 23 and running for eight weeks. The group will meet on Tuesday evenings from 7-9p.m. at the EWC, and will be facilitated by Joyce Clark.

For more information and to preregister please call EWC at 545-0883.

Conference

A week long conference entitled: "Clouds of War, Winds of Change - The United States and Revolution in Central America" will be held at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst campus during the week of October 22-26, 1984. The Keynote speaker will be Howard Zinn, author of "A People's History of the United States" and professor at Boston University who will speak on 'The History of US Intervention in Central America'. It will be held on Wednesday, October 24, 1984 at 7:30 p.m. at the Campus Center room 163.

The schedule for the weeks events is as follows:

Monday, October 22, 7:30, Red Room, Amherst College, Discussion: "Elections, Democracy and Popular Participation"-Speakers: Mel King- Rainbow Coalition; Carolee Bengelsdorf-Hampshire Co. and Jon Childs- Amherst Co.

Tuesday, October 23, 7:30, at a local church in Amherst to be announced. Discussion: "The Role of the Church in Central America" / "The Sanctuary Movement". Speaker: Jim Stormes-Jesuit Preist, UMass.

Thursday, Oct. 25, 7:30 pm CC163 Workshop: "The Militarization of Central America--Anniversary of the Grenadian Invasion". Speakers: Karen Wanza Esq.-Grenada Foundation, NY and Arthur Barisano Esq.- Lawyer's Committee against Intervention in Central America.

Friday, Oct. 26, 7:30pm CC101 Discussion: "Elections, Media and Misinformation" Speaker: Frank Brodhead, Co-editor of Radical America, and author of 'Demonstrations Elections'.

These public forums are sponsored by a Central America Coalition of various 5-college and comunity groups and are designed to provide for education, discussion and protest concerning the current administrations repressive and undemocratic policies in the region.

Films, video and slide shows about the region will be shown on the Campus Center Concourse on Oct. 19, 22 & 25th from 10-4pm.

For more information call: days 545-2145; and for press interviews with speakers call nights 586-1449 or Mauricio at 785-1251, ext. 246.

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXIV, Issue 29 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Tuesday, October 23, 1984

Jerry Brown sees 'schools for future'

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Following his participation in a panel discussion yesterday evening, former California Governor Edmund G. Brown further explained his view of the role of public education in promoting industrial innovation and international competitiveness.

In 1982, Brown's last year in office, he developed and implemented a model program in California that integrated computers into secondary schools, trained secondary school teachers to a high level of technical competence, and retrained unemployed workers for increasingly technical jobs.

Since then, Brown noted, other states have begun their own programs independently to help students deal with these ideas of technological innovation and modernization.

"I'm working on developing a national competition, where we could award three 'Schools of the Future' in each state that the federal government would then finance," Brown said.

Questioned about the cost and funding for maintenance of computer equipment donated by corporations to secondary schools, Brown said that it will be up to each individual school to decide who will be responsible for this.

"I'd like to see a national body that would select the best plans for these schools, so we can overcome the barriers of poor software and inadequate computers," Brown said.

"There is a limitation (to the role of computers in education). I think these 'Schools for the Future' are the answer. We'll need to elicit creative designs for software," Brown said. "That's why we need experimentation right now, so we'll know the limitations."

Noting a shortage of math and science teachers in his home state, and responding to the question of how to make the profession more attractive, Brown said, "you're going to have to give them decent wages and promote excellence in the classroom."

Brown also said that computers may be the best way to make students aware they may have to make sacrifices in the future and accept the idea that they may have several different careers in their lifetime.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Former California Governor and presidential candidate Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown.

Brown is currently the chairman of the board for the National Commission on Industrial Innovation, a tax-exempt corporation that "brings together labor, high-tech, and political leaders to raise the level of awareness of how America can make itself more competitive in the international marketplace."

Brown said this idea was part of presidential candidate Gary Hart's "New Ideas" platform, including the further imposition of import quotas on foreign goods and increased relaxation of federal restrictions on exports and business ties to foreign nations, such as China.

"(Hart) was looking at (economic) expansion in a traditional role," Brown said, "and even though his candidacy wasn't fully successful, his campaign did have it's benefits...but it takes a while for these ideas to be accepted."

Ex-Ca. governor: technology crucial

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The United States need to "assess its priorities" in the face of increased foreign competition, or it "will be run over" as a world leader in technology and trade, according to the chairman of the board of the National Commission on Industrial Innovation.

Edmund G. Brown, Jr., who is also a former California governor and US presidential candidate, yesterday participated in a panel discussion of "International Competitiveness and Industrial Innovation" before about 150 in the University of Massachusetts' Rand Theater.

Brown was joined by three School of Management professors in the first of a series, the Chancellor's Seminar on the New American Economy, moderated by UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

Brown said, "we are first in world economy, and the world economy has been growing through the transfer of US technology. But we're making investments where we're seeing less of a profit."

He said that because the US is being pressured by countries like Japan and Korea in the export of technological goods, mony of which are copies of US products, the country "must rise to the challenge" of international competition.

One way to meet the challenge is through a "saturation" of US technological interests with "other social and political domains," he said.

"We must always be on the cutting edge--always reaching for new markets and products through coherent national policies which encourage the creation of wealth for companies and their employees," Brown said.

Brown said a computer literate society and federal tax credits to companies which have "innovative research and development programs" are areas on which the country should focus its energy.

He also said Korea, Japan, and Taiwan are among the leaders in the world market because of their encouragement of corporations with large research and development programs; thus, "maybe we have to copy the copiers" in this area.

"The country needs political decisions setting up goals which would enhance the quality of life for everyone. The environment, space, transportation, and education are all areas where we must focus," Brown said.

Brown answered questions from the three panelists, Professors Elliot Carlisle, Steven Coelen, and Patricia Meyers, as well as from Duffey and members of the audience.

Rape reported; police investigating

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

A female University of Massachusetts student reported that she was raped early Saturday morning, police said.

Chief of Police Robert G. Joyce said the investigation was turned over to the sensitive crimes unit, but would give no further details until after the investigation.

A male UMass student was injured in a fight early Saturday morning in John Adams Dormitory, police said.

Police responded to a call at 2:51 a.m. Saturday and found the man bleeding in the back of his head. Police said the man was intoxicated and that he had trouble remembering how he got involved in the fight.

Police said they took the man to the infirmary for treatment. The man received stitches but police said he refused to be fully treated.

During a second interview with the man, police reported that the man had difficulty remembering the fight but he identified the men involved and police are attempting to get a warrant for their arrest. The complaintant wants to press charges, police said.

Police said a 20-year-old Shrewsbury man was placed in protective custody at 2:11 a.m. for being drunk and making threatening statements against Geraldine Ferraro. The Secret Service was notified and questioned the man, who was later released.

A portable salad bar with a glass hood, valued at $800, was stolen from Berkshire Dining Commons. Police said the theft occured between 6 p.m. and 7:05 p.m. Friday and it was reported an hour later.

A UMass police cruiser, with its blue emergency lights activated, skidded into a 1976 Pontiac on Curry Hicks Drive, causing $500 damage to the cruiser, police said.

Police said that there was $200 damage to the other car involved and no injuries reported, and blamed slippery road conditions for the accident.

continued on page 3

Inside:
CIA testifies on terrorism manual.....p.3
Anniversary of a tragedy.....p.7

"What! Me worry?"— Alfred E. Neuman

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE MALL— Sculpture in front of the Fine Arts Center sees itself in concrete soaked by yesterday's rain.

Technicality delays Puffer's renovation

By KATHY KELLEY
Collegian Correspondent

Renovations that were planned for Puffer's Pond have been delayed because of a technicality, according to a town official.

The town plans to turn State Street into a one-way street in the hope of reducing traffic problems, to control erosion, and to create a parking area and handicap accessibility.

Peter Westover, director of Amherst Conservation Services, said an urban self-help grant from the state Division of Conservation Services would have provided 90 percent of the costs of renovations, but the grant program is being rewritten.

The grant program gives money to towns with populations of 35,000 or more, Westover said. Amherst has a population of nearly 33,000.

"I am confident that the town will be able to demonstrate that the pond is widely used by people in more than the Amherst area alone," Westover said.

The revisions of the grant plan would include lowering the required population for aid. Westover said there is a provision in the grant that allows towns with smaller populations to apply if they can prove that there is regional use of the proposed area.

Westover said the renovations will cost $95,000 and the state will probably reimburse 90 percent of this when they finish rewriting the grant program. He said he will request the remaining 10 percent at the Town Meeting next spring.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Ian Polumbaum
Copy Editor John Yonce
Layout Technician Bruce Andrew
Photo Technician Pam Madnick
Production Supervisor Ansel Zinter
Production: Peter Forget, Maria Cahillane, BethAnne Moskov, Cris Schuster, Nancy Rivers Judy Hayden

Correction: A picture of security officers on page three of Monday's Collegian incorrectly identified the security officer on the Fine Arts Center roof. The man was a member of the student security force.

HI MOM?
I miss you, this is my dorm,
Happy Birthday, I need money. . .
Say it on a
VIDEO LETTER
Low as 50¢ per minute
Videotaping for any occasion (VHS)
call for appt. 253-5769 ask for Thor

UTOPIA SPAS
Student Special
2 FOR 1
or ½ PRICE
on
HOT TUB
1 hour
every Monday and Tuesday
call for Reserations 253-7727
175 University Drive, Amherst, Mass
(next to Stadium Liquors in the Price Chopper Mall)
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues 11 am - 1 am

EXTRA POINTS

Convert your foreign language skills to an all-pro career at the National Security Agency.

If you're a graduating foreign language major who's looking for an opportunity to apply your proficiency in a highly professional work environment, you owe it to youself to consider the National Security Agency (NSA). As an NSA linguist, you will work on a wide range of assignments involving translation, transcription and analysis/reporting that contribute to the production of vital foreign intelligence information.

You can count on receiving advanced training in your primary language(s) along with many years of continued professional growth. There are opportunities to travel and to enjoy the numerous cultural, recreational and educational advantages of being home-based in one of the most exciting growth regions of the 1980's, the Baltimore/Washington metropolitan area.

If you are proficient in a Slavic, Near Eastern or Asian language, the National Security Agency offers you an all-pro career opportunity.

Salaries at NSA are competitive and are commensurate with qualifications. Moreover, you will have all the additional benefits of federal employment. United States citizenship is required for all NSA career positions.

So don't compromise your talent.

Convert your language skill into something much more by scheduling an interview with the National Security Agency through your college placement office. If that is not possible, you may write the National Agency, Attention: M322, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland 20755.

On Campus Recruiting Dates: Nov. 5, 6, 1984

NSA NATIONAL SECURITY AGENCY
An Equal Opportunity Employer

14th ANNUAL BUSH BASH
UMASS SKI CLUB
SUGARBUSH VALLEY
SKI & PARTY WEEK
JAN. 20 - 25

Trip Includes:
5 1/2 DAY LIFT TICKET (2 Mountains)
5 NIGHTS LODGING
CONDO (on the mountain)
HOTEL(1/2 mile to mountain)
CONTINENTAL BREAKFAST (hotel only)
VALUABLE COUPON BOOK
FAMOUS UMASS PARTIES
ALL TAXES AND GRATUITIES

CONDO PACKAGE only $194
HOTEL PACKAGE only $149

LAGNAF 85

FIRST 100 SKIERS TO SIGN-UP ARE ELIGIBLE FOR A FREE TRIP

ALL SKIERS SIGNED-UP BEFORE NOV. 1 WILL RECEIVE A FREE (SUGARBUSH VALLEY / LAGNAF) T-SHIRT

NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

FOR MORE INFO 545-3437 430 STUDENT UNION

SPEED READING SEMINAR
Like to read 2 to 5 times faster or more?
And remember more of what you read?
A five session seminar will begin
on Wednesday October 24 at 7:00 pm
at the University Hypnosis Center
358 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst
only $75.00 plus Lab fee.
For info or registration call 549-4645 or 536-2794
University Hypnosis Center is non profit and open to the public

With the
Xaverian Missionaries
you can help build a world richer in love.

FOR MORE INFORMATION WRITE TO:
Vocation Director
101 Summer Street
Holliston, MA 01746

I am interested in the XAVERIAN ( ) Priests ( ) Brothers
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY
STATE ZIP
TELEPHONE AGE

The Xaverian Missionaries can help you give meaning to your life by continuing Christ's work in Japan, Mexico, Bangladesh, Indonesia, Zaire, Burundi, Sierra Leone, Chad, Cameroon, Brazil and Colombia.

Collegian photo by Mitch Dranitch

AUTUMN STORM— Department of Parks workers Mike Kelly and Dave Orrell clear fallen foliage from Amherst Common with new leaf blowers.

UM veterans face financial aid difficulties

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

Most college students feel a financial squeeze, but the squeeze is even tighter for students who are veterans according to the director of the University Placement Service.

"The greatest difficulties facing veteran students are financial," Arthur Hilson, who supervises both the Veteran Fund and Veteran Counselling Service located in Hampshire House, said. "They simply do not get enough money."

There are currently 850 veterans attending UMass. Two hundred of these are combat veterans, having seen active service in Vietnam or Korea, and the remaining are post-war veterans who entered service after 1971.

According to Hilson, veterans are entitled to receive the following benefits:

— Combat veterans receive money through the G.I. Bill. The G.I. Bill gives the veteran a monthly stipend, the amount of which is determined by family status. At present, a single veteran may draw $342 a month, but only for 45 of the months within a 10-year period after discharge.

— Combat veterans are entitled to a state tuition waiver at UMass only if they wee born in Massachusetts. Non-residents must pay their own tuition. The waiver has a time limit of 20 years from date of discharge.

— Post-war veterans receive benefits from the Veteran Education Assistance Program (VEAP). This is a contributory program; for every $1 a soldier saves toward returning to school, the Defense Department contributes $2. This applies only to savings made while still in service and may only be drawn upon within ten years after date of discharge.

"I think veterans get screwed," said Terry Kalaghan, a post-war veteran and counselor with the Veteran Counseling Service, "Veterans are ineligible for work/study positions and state financial aid because the government thinks they are earning too much money. "Their benefits work against them, not for them."

For this reason, the Veterans Fund at UMass was created in 1976 to offer short term loans to Veterans in emergencies. It is not state funded, but financed by contributions from veterans. Alec MacLeod, president of the student Veteran Service Organization at UMass, said these loans "can mean the difference between going and not going to school."

The loan fund will soon be expanded to include a full scholarship and cash stipend totaling $6500. This will be funded jointly by the University which has agreed to a tuition waiver, and contributions from veterans and sponsors.

The scholarship will be named after Tony Melchionda, a Vietnam war veteran and senior staff physician at the University Health Service who died in February 1983.

Conference focuses on Central America

By LORI KIRKLAND
Special to the Collegian

In an effort to inform and challenge us to explore the nature and history of United States involvment in Central America, a week-long conference titled "Clouds of War, Winds of Change - The United States and Revolution in Central America" is being held this week at the University of Massachusetts.

In planning since mid-July, the conference was designed by a coalition of University and community groups which has scheduled a number of well known people to speak.

The conference opened last night with an address by former Boston mayoral candidate Mel King at Amherst College.

The first disecussion at UMass will be led by Jesuit priest and UMass graduate student Jim Stormes this evening. His speech on the role of the church in Central America, will include information on liberation theology and the sanctuary movement in the United States.

Tomorrow, keynote speaker Howard Zinn will speak on "The History of US Intervention in Central America" at 7:30 in the Campus Center Room 163. Zinn, a prominent professor at Boston University, is also the author of "A People's History of the United States".

On Thursday, the first anniversary of the American invasion of Grenada will be remembered with a rally at noon in front of the Student Union Building. Karen Wanza of the New York-based Grenada Foundation and Arthur Barisano of the Lawyer's Committee Against Intervention in Central America will hold a workshop at 7:30 that evening titled "The Militarization of Central America--Anniversary of the Grenada Invasion" in Campus Center room 163.

The week's events will conclude Friday at 7:30 p.m. as Frank Brodhead, co-editor of Radical America and author of Demonstrations Elections speaks on "Elections, Media and Misinformation" in Room 101 of the Campus Center. In addition to these events, films, video and slide shows relevant to Central America will be presented on Thursday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

According to Graduate Student Senate Vice President Christos Karastamatis, the conference is sponsored by the Western Massachusetts Latin America Solidarity Committee, the Graduate Student Senate,the Student Government Association, the Radical Student Union, the Commuter Area Government, AHORA, the Five College Speakers Fund adn the Gay and Lesbian Alliance.

Organizers said the program is intended to be educational and in protest to the repressive regimes of the region. It is their goal that the conference will prove instrumental in helping the voting public to know the realities of the area, and the past and present roles of the United States in these countries so that ultimately we can make the wisest, most knowledgeable decision on Election Day, Karastamatis said.

All 'contra' manuals advise killing

Testimony indicates Reagan statements false

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA told the Senate Intelligence Committee on Monday that all copies of a CIA-written psychological warfare manual for Nicaraguan rebels contained language on "neutralization" of government officials, a panel member, said.

After a three-hour briefing, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said that while some deletions were made in the 90-page manual, "the term 'neutralization' was in all the documents."

During the presidential debate Sunday night, President Reagan said CIA officials had deleted a number of pages that dealt with assassination of Nicaraguan government officials, although adding that 12 copies of an original with such references "some way...got out down there."

Nunn and Sen Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., were the only two committee members who attended the CIA briefing, which the Georgia senator said was handled "by people who were new...and not by people who presumably would know the most about this operation."

Wallop and Nunn also said the CIA's internal investigation into the production of the manual was continuing and that many questions remained. Wallop said he saw no indication of "footdraging," adding that tracing the decision-making process on the manual involved "a complicated paper trail." But on the key question of whether the CIA-produced manual encouraged assassinations, Nunn said:

"There were deletions before some printings were made and before some distribution was made, but all of the documents presumably...had some of what would be called questionable to some and to others offensibe language, including language relating to so-called 'neutralization.'"

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's News Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

TUESDAY—The Working Women's Program will hold its first meeting from 7:30-9:30 at the Everywoman's Center. This is the first meeting of an eight week support group for unemployed women. For more information and to pre-register, contact the Working Women's Program at 545-0883.

The Working Women's Program at the Everywoman's Center will sponsor an Assertiveness and Leadership Skills group beginning Tuesday from 7-9 p.m. The group will run for eight weeks, and will be factlitated by Jovce Clark.

Theater Too, a woman's theater group, will hold auditions at 7 p.m. at Jones library, Amherst, for Sarah Dreher's new play titles 8x10 Glossy. Call 256-8397 or Sarah Dreher in Amherst for more information.

A one credit colloq titled, "Pornography: Fact and Fiction" meets Tuesdays 6:45-8:45 p.m. in the Men's Center, Hamlen. All are welcome.

Ann Ferguson will present the first lecture of the Five College Women's Studies Seminar, "Sexual Freedom, Pleasure and Danger," at 8 p.m. at Amherst College Alumni House.

A faculty/staff panel titled "Before Roe v. Wade: Memories of Illegal Abortion" will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall.

WEDNESDAY—Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a six week black woman's support group beginning Wednesday evening. For time and place, contact the Everywoman's Center at 545-0883

The woman's issues team of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy will meet in Campus Center room 802 at 4 p.m. New members are encouraged to attend.

Graduate Woman's Admission and General Educational Support (WAGES) sponsors a Brown-bag luncheon every Wednesday from noon-2 p.m. in Campus Center room 805-809.

THURSDAY—The Woman's Leadership Project will meet at 4 p.m. in 415 Student Union. New members welcome.

FRIDAY—Women's Admission and General Educational Support (WAGES) is holding a Welfare and Financial Aid Workshop from 6:30-9 p.m. at the Everywoman's Center.

SUNDAY—The Women's Media Project airs Sunday evenings from 7-10 p.m. on FM 911. The project includes female vocalists, all-women bands, music of all styles, and news with a feminist perspective.

Debate moderator speaks today

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

The moderator at the final presidential debate Sunday and former host of the late night show Saturday Night Live will present a lecture tonight titled "Preserving the Civil Tongue" at the University of Massachusetts.

Veteran broadcast journalist Edwin Newman, who was an NBC News correspondent for more than 30 years, will focus on his book, A Civil tongue, a national bestseller at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Newman will also give a seminar at 4 p.m. in room 165 of the Campus Center where he will hold a question and answer period on his experience in journalism and communications.

Mark Zuckerman, co-chairman of the Distinguished Visitors Program which sponsors the lecture, said, "we pretty much left it up to him on what he wanted to talk about."

"We hope that Newman will be touching on political aspects as well," Zuckerman said.

Newman is well known in both the print and broadcast media as a grammarian who has sharply criticized misuse of the English language. He is currently a nationally syndicated columnist for King Features and has written for several major magazines and anchored a number of television documentaries.

Newman was also the moderator of the first presidential debate between Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford in 1976.

★police

continued from page 1

A 1979 Mazda in lot 22 was broken into and a pair of speakers valued at $150 were stolen, police said.

Police reported that the locked driver's door was forced open. The thieves broke the rear view mirror and antenna and smashed the windshield.

A 33-year-old man with no known address was arrested for trespassing after prior notice at 2:39 a.m. Monday near James House. Police said the man trespasses in Southwest regularly.

A hit-and-run accident causing $400 damage to a 1979 Oldsmobile Cutlass was reported at 4:40 p.m. Friday, police said. The accident occured in lot 46 and the car's right passenger side door was hit below the molding.

Two 10-speed bicycles valued at $260 were reported stolen at 12:27 p.m. Sunday from the front lawn at the C area in North Village, police said.

AT ADIRONDACK MUSIC
YOU CAN BUY A $250.00
NAD 5120 TURNTABLE FOR $99.95
ONLY AT MIDNIGHT MADNESS
THIS FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

adirondack music
"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-3100

MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
FRIDAY NOON THROUGH SAT 6 PM

Bruno's
- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
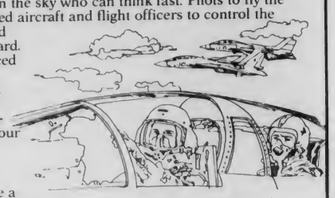
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

The Navy Needs Your Head In The Clouds.



The Navy needs people in the sky who can think fast. Pilots to fly the world's most sophisticated aircraft and flight officers to control the complicated weapons and navigation systems onboard. Both jobs require advanced training. And both jobs reward you with the kind of management responsibility and leadership authority it takes to make your career take off.

To qualify, you must have a BA or BS, be no more than 27, be able to pass aptitude and physical examinations, qualify for security clearance and be a U.S. citizen.

Your base pay is above $30,000 after only four years. On top of that, you'll receive an outstanding benefits package: 30 days' paid vacation earned each year, medical and dental care, low-cost life insurance, and tax-free allowances.

If you've got a good head on your shoulders and high hopes for the future, find out more about becoming a member of the Naval Aviation Team.

LT Ed Donovan, 470 Atlantic Avenue, Boston, MA 02210
(617) 223-5761

Navy Officers Get Responsibility Fast.

SPORT Style
SWEATERS
24.95
S-M-L-XL
Acrylic
Warm
Virgianne
Josie
Lisa

photo by Dwayne Autery
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870
Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted

Oct. 23, 1983

A year ago today the United States and the world were stunned to learn that 241 Marines had been killed in an early morning bomb blast at their barracks in Beirut, Lebanon.

In the days following, the Marines were slowly identified.

One of them, PFC. Michael J. Devlin, was a former UMass student who left Amherst after his first year to enter the military.

Today we honor Michael J. Devlin, not for his death, but for his life. We honor his courage. We honor his bravery. We honor his commitment to this country and to freedom.

There are many political ramifications which have surrounded the Beirut bombing. The question of who is to blame for the bombing still exists. How and why the tragedy occured is still under debate.

Today, we ask that the questions be put aside for tomorrow and that Michael J. Devlin and his 240 fellow servicemen be honored not for their deaths but for their lives.

For some, particularly those who knew Michael Devlin, today is a day to remember the pain and shock of Oct. 23, 1983.

Today, we ask those who did not know Michael Devlin or any of the other 240 Marines killed in Beirut to take a few moments to reflect on the events of a year ago, and honor the men who died much too young.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

And now the end is near...

Andrew M. Paven

This is a column that I have not wanted to write. I might very well have written it last week, or last month, or even last year. Political obituaries are often written prematurely—this time, I think it is time.

Draw the curtains...dim the lights...let the dirges begin...

The candidacy of Walter F. Mondale has been honorable. He has run on the issues in an age of appearances. He has tried to capture the public with messages, in an era when political realities take a second seat to favorable televised images.

In the second presidential debate, Mondale won on points. President Reagan didn't know the specifics of his own "Star-Wars" proposal for space-based defensive capabilities, nor could he defend his administration's dismal record on human rights abroad except to say that Iran and Afghanistan were not "lost" on his watch, nor could he figure out what he wanted to say in his closing statement. (What was all that shit about the letter anyway?)

Mondale tried again to paint Reagan as a well-intentioned but incapable, and thus dangerous president. But as long as Reagan can mouth platitudes about wanting to rid the world of nuclear weapons, he's all right. His argument is basically: "I've been here four years and I haven't pushed the button yet." The point that there is no time to wait for mistakes, that all it takes is for that button to be pushed once, is lost in Reagan's "springtime in America" optimism and good feeling.

Reagan showed up, remembered most of his lines, and did not drool—and that is all he needed to do. I wrote in this space not long ago that age is an issue that cannot be deflected with a slight tilt of the head and a good joke. I underestimated the President's speech writers, and his own talent for delivery: "I want you to know," said Reagan, "that...I am not going to exploit for political purposes my opponent's youth and inexperience."

My point is this: Although most analysts, including Reagan's former director of communications, David Gergen, thought that Mondale had won the debate on points, I don't think that many staunch Reagan supporters found anything particularly unnerving in the President's performance, which would have sent them running for cover to Mondale camp.

If Mondale won on points, then, as Gergen said, he won the debate for Secretary of State. Reagan may not know his shit when it comes to foreign policy, but it's obvious that we don't elect presidents in this country, at least in this age of television, if ever, on the basis of whether they know their shit when it comes to foreign policy.

Foreign policy specifics are what the political analysts call Inside Baseball. Mondale might be able to tell you the combined Earned Run Average of the starting left-handed pitchers for his hometown Minnesota Twins for the past 20 years. Most people want to know if the Tigers beat the Padres.

I don't applaud this outlook, just acknowledge it.

As I said, political obituaries are often written prematurely, and as I said, I certainly was wrong about the age issue. (Though I still wonder if the President tilts his head the way he does because only half of his brain works and he wants to get his blood to circulate to that half.) I hope I am as wrong about this obituary as I was about the age issue, but I don't think so.

In fact, the only way that I think Mondale could win now is if Reagan should fall ill between now and Nov. 6—I'm not talking anything serious, just a mild case of pneumonia, perhaps.

But I'm not going to bet next month's rent on it.

By the way, this obituary is not intended to lay to rest Rep. Geraldine Ferraro. Whatever happens on Nov. 6, she has earned her place among national political figures. Panelist from the second presidential debate, Morton Kondracke of The New Republic, has a column in this week's issue of TBN titled, "Rookie of the Year." "Even if Ferraro can't carry the team, she's ready for the big leagues." I quite agree.

Andrew M. Paven is a Collegian columnist.

In the name of peace...

Rita Murphy

It was a cloudy, dreary Oct. 23, 1983. It had all the makings of a terrible day.

One by one, body by body, they were carried out.

You wonder what it's like to be dead, to die, and to die for what? Peace? Justice? To die for America? Is to die an American any different than to die a Canadian? An Israeli? A Lebanese? A Russian?

Isn't our blood all the same color? And aren't we all succeptable to death?

A truck, a bomb, an explosion, an airport, and then finally, 241 bodies of men, young men, our age, our generation, our people. "Give me liberty or give me death." But what is liberty when you are dead?

Who were they? One of them may have been a doctor. One a lawyer. One of them may have come to UMass in the year 1990 to teach philosophy. One of them may have even been President. Who knows? We never will, because one of them, 241 of them to be exact, never had the chance.

Sleeping, oh so soundly, to be awaken by the sound of death. No time for warning, no time for life.

If there is a God, how could such a thing have happened?

We are people ready to blame anyone and anything but ourselves. So who should take the blame for 241 lives? The driver of the truck? The "Christian" militia? The Pentagon? The President? The American people? All of the above?

"We will find the perpertraitors of this insidious act and we will deal with them accordingly,"—Ronald Reagan, President of the United States.

PFC. Johnny Copeland, Lance CPL, Guillermo San Pedro Jr., PFC. Edward C. Johnston,...what do we say to them? We sent you there for peace. We sent you there because only by your presence could peace be achieved. We sent you there to stabilize a country, a region of the world.

But you died. You died for peace. You died heroes, each and everyone of you. You died for peace, cant' you understand? In the name of peace, in the name of God, what have we come to?

How have we come to twist that word which is more sacred than any other word. How can we utter "peace" in the midst of a war? How?

Peace doesn't mean guns. Peace doesn't mean bombs. There is no blood where peace is. No limbs without bodies, no pain, no tears, no fears, no men under rubble. There are no men whose bodies have been blown to bits and pieces where peace is. How can we be so hypocritical to say 241 members of our peacekeeping force died in the name of justice?

A year has passed. A year? But wasn't it just yesterday when we shook our heads, when we said "no, it just can't be—we're a peaceful nation—peacekeepers don't die."

It didn't happen, the truck ran out of gas. The bomb didn't work. The men were all outside. No one died, no one died in the name of peace or in the name of anything.

It was a warm day, sunny, cheerful, Oct. 23, 1983. It had all the makings of a wonderful day. It was peaceful. Peaceful everywhere...

Rita Murphy is a Collegian Columnist.

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

GOAT TRACKS

MOUNTAIN GOAT DOWN SKIWEAR

Check Our LOW Prices

HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES

500 Masks to Choose From

Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray

open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th

H.L. CHILDS & SON

open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs nite until 9:00pm

25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

Pilot. The Better Ballpoint pen.

you won't have to.

The exciting Pilot ballpoint. It's got everything going for it. Smoother writing. Specially designed finger ribbing for continual writing comfort. Stainless steel point. Tungsten carbide ball. Perfectly balanced. A choice of medium or fine points. And best of all...you'll never throw it out.

Just slip in a 39c refill and you're ready to write again. So next time your old scratchy pen runs out, run out and get the best. The 69c Pilot ballpoint pen.

PILOT
THE BETTER BALLPOINT

TUESDAY

RACK-A-VIDEO ENTERTAINMENT
presents
- Giant Ten Foot Screen -

Video Music
D·A·N·C·E
Party

Experience our new menu. • Latest Video Releases • • 9 til 1 •

THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST MA
413-549-1200

Black Affairs

King raps political involvement

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

If the United States pays attention to their domestic problems, the external ones will take care of themselves, Melvin H. King said last night at Amherst College.

"People in Nicaragua are dying because of the United States policies," King said, kicking off a week-long conference on the U.S. and Revolution in Central America.

Carolee Bengelsdorf, of Hampshire College, said the United States does not understand the meaning of a revolution, even though they experienced one only 200 years ago.

"Nicaragua has almost consistently responded with increasingly democracy," she said. "They (the United States) will not destroy Nicaragua."

"There is a need for democratic participation other than people voting in elections. We need people organizing activities," said King, a one-time mayoral nominee for the city of Boston.

"A woman who is the most important person in the country to me is Rosa Parks. She made a statement we must all make." She put her life on the line to make equality possible, King said.

People must define themselves to get their rights, they must explain what they believe they deserve. What is happening in Nicaragua, is what comes out of people saying 'we are somebody,' said King.

King also said he likes the Declaration of Independence, which creates all men equal and gives the people the right to revolution is something is wrong.On the other hand, he dislikes the constitution, because "Women don't count at all, and at least I'm half a person," he said.

Collegian photo by Pam Maderick

Mel King speaking at Amherst College last night.

If there were colored people and women in that room, the constitution would not have been written as it was, King said.

King said, in reference to Jesse Jackson, former democratic presidential hopeful, "His role has been the most democratic work that has taken place in this country since the civil rights activity."

"People are not going to vote racism, or sexism, or poor people out of existence (if they vote for Ronald Reagan)," said King.

Democrats raise hope for minorities

Citing the issues of employment, social justice, foreign policy, education and community improvements, Third World people polled at the Ferraro rally Saturday at the University of Massachusetts said minorities will be better off if the Democratic ticket wins on November 6.

"Democrats at least are talking about us in their speeches, that's something you didn't see the present administration do. We were ignored and our throats were slashed at the same time," said John Gireas, 34.

Gireas came from Holyoke to see Ferraro and hear what she had to say about minorities. "Seeing how our society thinks of women as sensitive people, she should be more concerned about the problems Third World people face," he said.

Jyotsua Pradhan, a UMass chemistry visiting professor is thinking positively about the elections. "Americans will be worse off in the long run," if Ronald Reagan is re-elected, she said.

Pradhan said America's foreign policy needs to be revised and the recovery issue needs to be more explicit.

She considers Ferraro a good political candidate. "I hope she is going to give what she promises," Pradhan said.

But two Latin American university students think Ferraro is ignoring Latinos. Evelyn Cepeda-Schick, a Labor studies graduate and Luis Melendez, a University Without Walls student said this was eminent in the fact that no Latino representatives were present in the podium.

"She made no attempt to really say that she is willing to make an effort," Cepeda-Schick said.

Cepeda-Schick wanted Ferraro "to make a statement that (Ferraro) is willing to increase and include a part of society left out by the Reagan administration." "We deserve that," she concluded.

Melendez said supporting the Mondale-Ferraro team for the presidency "is the only way for us to contribute to the overthrow of Ronald Reagan; an imperative at this time."

Melendez's main concerns are the foreign policy issue, education and social justice. "I'm afraid of a war in Central America which will inevitably throw my country (Puerto Rico) into a war situation with its sibling country," he said.

Concepto Latino is WMUA is looking for people from Martinique, Guadalupe, Haiti and Curacao to help put together a show with music from the Caribbean to celebrate Caribbean Week in November. Please call Luis Melendez Fridays from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. at 545-3691.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION

RADIAL TIRE SALE

P155/80R13

$29.95

• Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax

North Amherst Tire & Auto Center

Full Service Tire Store

78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store

549-4704

We all hate to mention that we're feeling some TENSION

But come to the student STRESS MANAGEMENT & RELAXATION WORKSHOP and learn to unwind

Tues. Oct. 30th 4-6 pm

pre-registration required by noon 10/26

call 549-2671 ext 181 for further details

STUDENT EXCHANGE

National Exchange Club Meeting

Topics will include: Weekend Trips and how the club can save you money

Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1984 at 7:00 PM

917 Campus Center

Tonight

FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge

LADIES NIGHT

Ladies are cordially invited to enjoy

OPEN BAR 8-9 PM

Gentlemen invited to come early

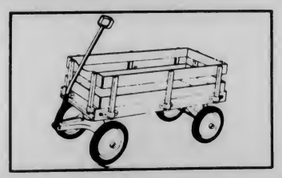
OPEN BAR 7-8 PM for men

All Bar Vodka, Gin, Rum, Tequila and Whiskey Drinks, Draft Beer and Wine will be served

A GREAT TIME NEVER COST LESS

Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt Farms Mall)

GREAT GIVEAWAY #2



WIN AN ALL TERRAIN VEHICLE (wagon)

Two vehicles to be given away

vehicle is on display in our Sporting Goods Dept.

OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES

1. To enter, complete the official entry form and bring it to the store. Enter as often as you wish by using only original entry forms. Enter Nov. 1, 1984
2. The winner will be selected in a random drawing on Nov. 2.
3. Employees of the University Store and their families are not eligible. Taxes on the prize are the sole responsibility of the winner.

Vehicle BONUS

Register to win an all terrain vehicle. Fill out the coupon & return. No purchase required.

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

STAR MARKET SUPERMARKET OPPORTUNITIES

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN PURSUING AN EXCITING CAREER IN THE SUPERMARKET INDUSTRY?

If so, we are interested in talking to you about excellent growth opportunities. Currently we are interviewing for Co-op positions as well as December and June graduates for our Management Training program.

Star Market Co. is based in Cambridge, Mass. and openings are in Metro-Boston area.

Interested candidates contact Mr. Jeffrey Silver at the Department of Cooperative Education, Room 110, Thompson Hall for details.

STAR MARKET

YOU'RE IN THE MARKET FOR THE BEST.

An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

THINGS TO REMEMBER:

*CLEARANCE!

25-80% OFF

selected items located in the front of the store

- SHIRTS
- JACKETS
- SWEATSHIRTS
- SWEATPANTS

ORIGINALLY $11.50-$21.90

NOW $4.40-$7.00

* Additional sale items in Clothing Dept. at great savings!

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Distinguished Visitors Program Presents

Edwin Newman

Preserving A Civil Tongue

Moderator of Second Presidential Debate
acclaimed Broadcaster - Journalist
author of Strictly Speaking
and a Civil Tongue

Tuesday, October 23rd
8:00 P.M. Free
Student Union Ballroom

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!

Tickets on Sale Now

upc PRODUCTIONS presents:

an evening with

The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students, Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Now

Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.

UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Doonesbury

By Garry Trudeau

WAH, HELLO, KENNY! WHAT BRINGS YOU OVER TO THE PRESS ROOM?
GOT A STORY FOR YOU, ROLLIE. STRAIGHT FROM THE OVAL OFFICE.
YOU GUYS MIND IF I SIT IN?
SORRY, MARK. THIS IS ONLY FOR..
YOU'RE THE NEW KID FROM N.P.R., RIGHT?
SURE, WHY NOT?
HERE'S THE DOPE. OUR PEOPLE HAVE BEEN GOING THROUGH THE DEBATE TAPES, SCORING THEM OUT, OKAY? GET THIS. THE PRESIDENT WON. 147 TO 35!
NO!
I OWE. YOU ONE, BABE.
IT'S VERY HUSH-HUSH. YOU CAN'T GO WITH IT UNTIL TONIGHT.
OB Trudeau

Today's Weather

TODAY: Definitely a humid scene. 90 percent chance of rain.
TONIGHT: Like our minds, our windows get fogged up. More showers, low around 50s.
TOMORROW: Still clammy, high about 60.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

LISTEN UP, MEADOWNIKS... TODAY WE'LL BE CONDUCTING WORKSHOPS FOR THE CANDIDATES... CONCENTRATING ON THE FOLLOWING AREAS...
"IMAGE, STYLE, APPEARANCE, SYMBOLISM. CLEVER RETORTS..." ISSUES!
WHO SAID THAT?!
ME! I THINK AN AMERICAN ELECTION SHOULD BE ALL ABOUT ISSUES!
Blasphemer

Layout Technician needed

Work Wednesday evening
$10 a night

Good experience!

See John O'Connell
or Call 545-3500

Gorde

by Gorde

AND NOW, BACK TO OUR CONTINUING SAGA....
AND THEN THERE WAS THE LASS IN WALES. HO, GWAIN, SHE WAS AN EVIL ONE!
BURRRP!
GORDE, WHO STILL THINKS HE'S KING ARTHER, HAS BEEN TELLING ME OF HIS PAST WOMEN. THING IS, HOW COULD THIS JERK SCOOP ANYBODY?
CONQUER ME, ARTY-BABY!!!
SMACK!
AHAHAHAHA HA HA HA! AHH, GWAIN, IT'S GOOD TO BE THE KING!
WONDER IF I'D GET THAT KINDA RESPONSE IF I TOLD GIRLS I WAS CHARLES MANSON?

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

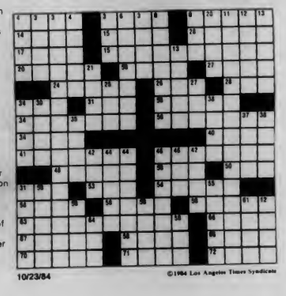
ACROSS
1 Kelly comic character
5 Points of time
9 Pearly —
14 Love symbol
15 Win handily
16 Resident of Tabriz
17 "The Fountainhead" author
18 Summoned enough courage
20 Angler's basket
22 Fashion
23 Russian Sea
24 Communicated, in a way
26 Make do (with "out")
28 Senate response
29 Actress MacGraw
31 — — diem
32 "...is born an angler": Walton
34 Is important
36 Natives of Germany
39 Cold sensation
40 "— — were done when 'tis done": Shak.
41 Irritated
45 Breakable
48 Poet Heinrich
49 Air, in compounds
50 On to
51 Supped
53 Celebration sound
54 Lariat feature
56 "Tamerlane" dramatist
58 Before hopper
60 Below, to Byron
63 Not settled
66 Fencing weapon
67 Mask maker of note
68 Deuce follower
69 Mets, Jets or Nets, e.g.
70 Warmth
71 Actual being
72 Christianla today

DOWN
1 Green spot, in Paris
2 Khayyam
3 Mitchell masterpiece
4 Neatness
5 Work unit
6 Paying guests
7 Means of travel
8 Senior, for one
9 Game for two
10 Space
11 Lord Greystoke
12 Agent on a mission
13 Filter
19 Tea type
21 Effortless pace
25 Three: Prefix
27 Bird from Down Under
29 To —
30 Alencon product
33 Keep —
35 Head, to Henri
37 Blue or White river
38 Riser section
42 Pitcher part
43 One of the Ardens
44 Drain
45 Exchanges words
46 Hudson contemporary
47 Pressing need
51 Dutch island
52 Elbow-bender
55 Tend
57 Within: Comb. form
59 Trireme gear
61 Blue shade
62 Prefix with giobin
64 Sait
65 Bakery product

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

R	A	M	P		A	G	A	I	N	A	S	T	A	Y
A	L	I	E		N	E	V	E	R		T	U	L	E
T	I	E	N	T		G	R	E	A	T	D	A	N	E
A	G	O		E	L	A	N		S	A	T	I	R	E
		R	A	T	E	L	S			R	U	S	T	S
A	W	K	W	A	R	D		D	M	I	T
N	D	E	L	S			S	P	A	C	E	M	E	N
N	E	Y		A	L	I	E	N		A	N	A
A	S	S	E	N	T	E	D		O	I	J	O	N
			N	O	M	E		P	I	A	N	O	L	A
A	B	A	C	U			R	E	N	T	E	R
G	R	E	A	S	E		S	Q	U	A		F	O	A	M
L	E	S	S	E	R		E	A	R		N	O	T	A
E	V	O	E		A	I	S	N	E		A	M	O	R
T	I	P	S		L	O	E	S	S		T	O	M	E

10/23/84



10/23/84 ©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

UMass Zone

By Mark Rollins

HOW'S YOUR ZOOLOGY LAB GOING, VIC? STILL WORKING WITH SLUGS?
UUH?
WELL, AT FIRST WE DID A LOT OF WORK ON SLUGS.. WE DISSECTED THEM, IDENTIFIED THE PARTS.. IT WAS INFORMATIVE. ALTHOUGH NOW,
NO WAY! NOT IN AMERICA
WE'RE WORKING WITH MICE, AND LATER ON WE'LL BE USING CATS
NOW THAT'S WHAT I CALL A VERY HEALTHY TREND!

Bat Brain

By Bill Dearing

GEE, I WONDER IF THE NEW ISSUE OF "BEHER" COMEBACKS AND CHEESE HOOKS" IS IN!
DON'T TOUCH THAT MAGAZINE RACK, YOU SATANISTIC HEATHEN!
I AM A MEMBER OF C-GAGS. GUYS AND GALS AGAINST GROSS STUFF. WE ARE BOYCOTTING THE UNIVERSITY STORE BECAUSE IT SELLS A FILTHY, PORNOGRAPHIC PUBLICATION!
NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC!! ALL THOSE NAKED ANIMALS RUNNING AROUND IN THE WILD! IT'S VARIANT PANOGRAPHY WITH THIN VEIL OF LITERATURE TO COVER IT! NOW GET AWAY FROM THAT MAGAZINE RACK BEFORE I WRAP YOUR HEAD AROUND A TELEPHONE POLE
I ONLY CAME IN TO BUY A SCHOOL SWEATSHIRT.
LOVE LIVE JERRY FALWELL!

Yeasthead

By Jason Talerman

Lounge Chair. Flouride... Faithful wife...
Check. Groovy. Oh Yeah
Careful preparations to becoming the ideal adult.
Oh! to just teem w/ Apathy... insincere sounds
the ideal box
Go ahead Yeastie, Its your life.
...But I have only wide solid colored ties.
Humbled noises
Everybody's common foe Next: Yeasthead chooses another career.

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Shrimp Cantones
Tacos

DINNER
Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce,
Chopped Beefsteak Special

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable Taco
Shrimp Cantonese

BASICS DINNER
Mixed Bean Casserole
Baked Chicken/Supreme Sauce

WE WANT YOU TO START AT THE TOP.

THEN WORK YOUR WAY UP.

You can be part of the greatest alliance in American business history — Electronic Data Systems and General Motors. This alliance combines the information processing strengths of EDS with the resources of the largest company in the nation. And with it comes vast opportunities for you — the kind that business professionals can spend their entire careers seeking. You're already starting at the top with our outstanding resources for growth and success. And the only way to go is up.

We're looking for self-starters — people with the confidence to set high goals and the determination to reach them. We want to put you at the core of EDS' operations as a Systems Engineer. EDS Systems Engineers use both business and technical skills to solve complex problems for our clients.

The SED Program will prepare you for the leadership responsibilities you will have in the EDS and GM alliance. It lasts approximately 18 months and will undoubtedly be one of the most rigorous and rewarding business experiences of your life. You'll receive intensive classroom training, and you'll also have the chance to deal directly with our customers. You'll gain knowledge that will place you far ahead of your peers. And when you graduate, you'll have an exciting position with unlimited growth potential.

To qualify for the SED Program, you must be a college graduate with a technical aptitude and an outstanding record of achievement. You should have a major in Management Information Systems, Computer Information Systems, Computer Science, or Engineering. We will also consider candidates with any academic major and a strong interest in business and information processing. In addition, you must be flexible to relocate and travel. Finally, you must be a U.S. citizen or permanent resident. If you are a successful candidate, EDS will reward you with a competitive compensation package. And you're sure to thrive in our corporate environment where rewards are based on achievement — not seniority.

TAKE THE FIRST STEP TOWARD JOINING THE GREATEST ALLIANCE IN AMERICAN BUSINESS HISTORY.

Contact your college placement office today to schedule an interview with a local EDS recruiter. Or, write to: Electronic Data Systems Corporation, 7171 Forest Lane, Dept. 1MD2964, Dallas, TX 75230. (214) 661-6060. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

EDS

Electronic Data Systems Corporation

Delta Zeta Sorority Rush
Monday 8:30 pm
Tuesday 6:00 pm
Thursday 7:00 pm
11 Phillips Street
call 253-9916
All University Women Invited

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

All University Women Are Invited to Open Rush Parties at:
CHI OMEGA!!!!!
Monday: Oct. 22 Dinner Party 5:15 pm
Wednesday: Oct. 24 Dinner Party 5:15 pm
Thursday: Oct. 25 Halloween Party 7:00 pm
For rides and/or information call 545-0162 or 545-2092
Ask for Kristin or Lorrie!! Come on up for a great time!!

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

Come In And Browse!
Make your autumn weekend a romantic one with fine lingerie from Le Boudoir
We have a wide selection of lingerie in an array of sensuous fabrics. Everything from basic cotton bras & bikinis to luxurious silk teddies and night shirts.
*Calvin Klein Underwear for women is available
Carriage Shops, 233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-6915

PUT US TO THE TEST!
LSAT · GMAT · GRE
MCAT · DAT
GRE PSYCH · GRE BIO
MAT · PCAT · OCAT
VAT · TOEFL · SSAT
PSAT · SAT
ACHIEVEMENTS · ACT
- Permanent Centers open days, evenings, weekends
- Complete TEST-N-TAPE® facilities.
- Skilled instructors and dedicated, full-time staff.
- Homestudy materials constantly updated by Research Experts.
- Low Hourly Cost.
- Transfer privileges to over 120 locations.

NATIONAL MED BOARDS
MSKP · FMGEMS
FLEX · NDB · NPB
NCB · NCLEX-RN
CGFNS · CPA
SPEED READING
ESL INTENSIVE REVIEW
INTRODUCTION TO LAW SCHOOL
CLASSES FORMING NOW!
LSAT
GRE
GMAT
Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
In New York State: Stanley H. Kaplan Educational Center Ltd.
CALL DAYS, EVENINGS & WEEKENDS:
358 N. Pleasant
549-5780

WHERE CAN YOU BUY A PAIR OF TOP RATED EPI T.E. 100 SPEAKERS FOR ½ PRICE - $125.00 A PAIR???
ADIRONDACK MUSIC'S MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
FRIDAY NOON

adirondack music
MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
FRIDAY NOON THROUGH SAT. 6 PM
"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-3100

ERIC'S
GIANT SUBS
Freshly Sliced Meats
Eat In or Take Out
BREAKFAST
Beef Stew, Soups, Chicken and Seafood
Try Us and See. . .
IF THEY AREN'T THE LARGEST TASTIEST SUBS IN THE AREA!!!
Rt 9 — 253-9521 — 314 College St.
Monday-Friday 6:00 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday 6:30 am - 3:00 pm

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUDIO

Pioneer AM-FM portable stereo cassette AMS/autorewind/CRO2 $95 or BO 6-7897

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500. serious call only 549-7854

68 Chevy Pickup good work truck best offer call Rick 546-6037

1974 Chevy Nova 79,000 mi. runs well, new muffler $950 call 586-9128

72 Audi 4800 running condition Larry 549-6051

Audi Fox - 76 runs mint new tires body good, $1500 negotiable 6-5184

1976 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $695/ BO 256-6121

1980 Citation 57,000 mi. 4 spd, very good condition call evenings 546-1050

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $6 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older. Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ELLEN REYNOLDS FEMME FATALE

Ellen set the Chicken Woman! I'm so glad you're here. Stop vamping all those men though! In the biblical sense! Love the Fanatic Count

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

S College Sound the best in party and dance music. Call 586-0245 or 586-7689

Rock A Disc Rock A-Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area. 549-7144

FOR RENT

Single room in apartment for rent reasonable rate close to campus 253-2284

FOR SALE

RCA 19" color TV $120. call 586-9128

For sale Henson ski boots shell 3, size 8 9 $75 546-4745

FOUND

One gold earring in NOPE women's pool locker room if you think it's yours, call 546-1281

HALLOWGRAMS

Send a friend a cookiegram for Halloween $1.00; order Tuesday-Thursday CC 10-4. Find out if you've been treated in Collegian October 31

HAYRIDES

Attention Party Goers, RA's, Social Chairpersons. Party on our Haywagon. Bonfire after ride Info. and Reserv. West Hatfield Stables 247-9098

HELP WANTED

Now taking applications for full and part-time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

The Campus Center Board of Governors needs you! The BOG needs a Building Operations Coordinator. Duties include overseeing building problems and general policies affecting students within the CC/SUB complex. This is a paid position. For more info: BOG Office 817 Campus Center

Houseperson wanted. Work for your meals and get a DC rebate meals prepared by a full-time cook call Jim Houston at 546-2150

Managers needed for Sporting Goods Co-op. Gain valuable experience: buying, selling, advertising, scheduling, hiring & payroll. Applications available in 407 SUB. Deadline is October 25, 5:00 AA/EOE

Help Wanted. Day shift. Apply in person after 5 PM Bell's Pizza 85 University Drive

Part-time position available for college student to represent travel company on campus. Earn commission, free travel and work experience. Contact: Beachcomber Tours, Inc. 1325 Millersport Highway, Williamsville, New York 14221 (716) 632-3723

Part-time laborer in Hatfield. Some mornings, some afternoons. Tel. no. 247-5801

INSTRUCTION

Need a Spanish Tutor? Conversation, correction of tests, etc. for advanced and intermediate levels. Native speaker Call Mario 546-7081 late eves

LEAGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

Legal Assistants Wanted The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. Get hands-on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals, preparation for Federal and State Court litigation, attendance at court hearings, and participation in administrative hearings. Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. To apply, for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO. 922 Campus Center

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return. call 6-4086 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Gold ladies watch at Changes on 10/4 if found please call Pam at 253-7482 high sentimental value

An AIWA radio/tape Walkmen on Friday 12 indentifiable reward 546-1223

PERSONALS

Who do YOU know? Who do YOU want to meet? If you KNOW any celebs, V.I.P.'s, musicians etc. have any info or input contact G.P.C. Box 146 SUB or call 546-2733 This is YOUR chance to shine on campus!

Dog Home Wanted loveable white belgian shepard needs home desperately! Housebroken call JR @ 253-7987 or 546-0341 anytime!

Happy Birthday Elizabeth!!! Love Beth, Helene, Amy, and the rest of Butterfield. Don't party too hard!!!

Happy "20" Birthday Ellen live it up! We love you, Wendy and Denise

Contact Lenses Replaced. Most brands $30-$35. Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8981

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on campus low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

To all Ang going to Barnes Oct 27 and 28, I need a ride. Will help with gas. Call Rick at 546-5867

ROOMMATE WANTED

To share master bedroom & private bath with a male in a house with large kitchen, living room and game room 150/mo + utilities 253-9892

- VOLLEYBALL

Players interested in competitive volleyball. The Pioneer Valley Volleyball Club practices Wednesday 7-9 PM at Leads school. Call 584-7577 for directions

WANTED TO RENT

One bedroom apartment close to campus. Will take over lease in January. Please call Jim 549-7852

Sports

There will be a meeting for all volleyball intramural managers on Tuesday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. in Boyden, room 215. All managers must attend one of these meetings. There will also be a meeting for anyone interested in officiating volleyball on those same days at 7 p.m. in Room 215.

Women outhustled by Harvard, 1-0

Number two national ranking in jeapordy

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The Harvard University women's soccer team is proving to be quite a nemesis to the University of Massachusetts. Last season, the pesky Crimson upset UMass 3-2 in overtime and yesterday Harvard did it again sneaking by the Minutemen, 1-0, on Boyden Field.

Harvard was outshot 14-3 by Massachusetts but they made good opportunities of the few chances they had.

The fifth ranked Crimson had Ann Baker roll a goal past UMass goalie Jeanne Paul with 4:40 to go in the first half, for the lone tally of the afternoon.

Baker's shot went towards the left side of the goal, close to the post, and right off the sophomore's (Paul's) hands, and into the net.

"We made one mistake. That was it," coach Kalekeni Banda said. "It was a mental thing. We have to stay aggressive in the last five minutes of a half."

"We knew Harvard would be tough. They took their chances and won," he said.

The loss drops UMass to 11-2-2 with one game remaining against Boston College on Saturday.

Harvard frustrated UMass with speed and a defense that hustled and clogged up the middle of the field, leaving UMass with not many good shots.

"That's what we were trying to do," said Crimson coach Bob Scalise. 'UMass didn't connect on their long range shots and that's what we wanted to happen."

"They bottled up the middle too much," Carolyn Micheel said. "We were looking for something that wasn't there. We didn't get any good shots off."

"On a given day, I feel that we are capable of beating anybody. And today was our day," Scalise said. "With overall talent, UMass is a superior team."

The Minutemen, ranked second in the nation (behind North Carolina) and second in New England (behind Brown), had their best chance when freshman Lisa Merlo missed after Harvard keeper Tracee Whitley bounced a pass off of Inga Larsen, with 20:00 to go.

Harvard played stellar defense, led by the freshman Whitley. With 37:50 to go, Jolie DePauw and Kristen Bowsher fired three shots in front of the net. Defender Lori Barry made two kick saves with her legs before Whitley gobbled up the ball.

"We expected a high tempo game with a lot of pressure," Whitley said. "I was pleased with the overall team effort. They hustled the entire game."

Micheel, who got off quite a few shots, led the UMass pressure in the last minute of the game. Micheel shot from the corner and Whitley made a great save punching the ball over the cross bar with 40 seconds to go. Micheel sent a rocket over the net with 30 seconds left before the Crimson cleared it out.

"We certainly had our chances," Banda said. "We didn't move the ball quick enough. We were a little hesitant in the first half. We played a little better in the second half, but we were playing catch-up ball. Their goalie was tremendous."

Scalise said, "We were fortunate to score the goal. But we have a good goalie who seems to be able to rise to meet the challenge." The Crimson, who have lost to Brown 1-0 and Boston College, improve to 10-2-1.

Now the Minutemen, who haven't beaten Harvard in two years get ready for Boston College Saturday at 1 p.m. at Boyden. But this loss won't be easy to forget.

"We should have won," Micheel said. "We're a better team."

Women's soccer coach Kalekeni Banda walks dejectedly off Boyden Field...

...while Monica Seta sobs with frustration after a disappointing 1-0 loss to fifth ranked Harvard yesterday

Harvard 1 UMass 0

Harvard (10-2-1) 1 0-1
UMass (11-2-2) 0 0-0
Goals: Ann Baker, (H) 41:10, unassisted.
Saves: Jeanne Paul (M) 2, Tracee Whitley (H) 14
Shots: UMass 14, Harvard 3

Minutemen go for three in a row vs. Southern Field Hockey faces 'inconsistent' Dartmouth

By SCOTT HOOD and ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

Southern Connecticut may not be amoung the most publicized teams in New England collegiate soccer circles, but their record speaks for itself: 10-2, the number one ranked Division II team in New Enagland and a top ten team nationally.

Today, at 3 p.m., So. Connecticut will invade Boyden Field and University of Massachusetts coach Jeff Gettler realizes how dangerous and talented the Owls are.

they travel to Dartmouth College to play, according to UMass coach Pam Hixon, a team plagued by a characteristic common to most Ivy League field hockey teams: inconsistency.

UMass forward Tom Giordano dribbles between three Holy Cross defenders during Saturday afternoon's 2-0 victory. The Minutemen host Division II power, Southern Connecticut on Boyden Field, beginning at 3:00 today.

"They're as good a team as UConn," said Gettler. "They've said for years that they're the best team in Connecticut and I wouldn't disagree. They're a great team with great players. They definitely would be a top-flight Division I team."

Unlike recent UMass opponents, So. Conn. plays a straight zone defense with a short passing, European-like offense. The system has been so successful that the Owls have advanced to the Final Four in the Div. II championships the last five years.

UMass, 8-4-2 and the fourth ranked Div. I team in New England in the latest polls released yesterday, will return to the 4-4-2 lineup they deployed earlier in the season in anticipation of a free-flowing, less physical game.

"The nice thing about this game is that we know we're going to get a good, well coached, well-disciplined team," said Gettler. "It will be a well played game. They try to play soccer, instead of trying to kick your ankles all the time."

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team takes on 11-3 record north as

"With the inconsistent teams you never know what to expect," said Hixon. "They can be great, or they can be awful. It's tough to play a team when you're not sure what they are going to do.

While describing Dartmouth as a hard-hitting team with good speed, Hixon noted that UMass will have its hands full with Dartmouth goalkeeper Torrey Parrot.

"She is very quick and protects the net well. Basically, she keeps Dartmouth in games. They are very inexperienced on defense," said Hixon.

"We are going to have to be on target tomorrow with our shots because of Parrot. We'll have to create a lot of scoring opportunities and not let them get down field. We have to play smart," said Hixon.

Sports at a glance

UMass Schedule:
Men's Soccer: Southern Connecticut, Boyden 3 p.m.
Field Hockey: At Dartmouth, 3 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 29 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, October 24, 1984

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

STAIRWAY TO HEAVEN — The ladder next to the chimney near the power plant clumbs up into the skies.

Newman assails use of language

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

Veteran broadcast journalist Edwin Newman attacked the misusers of English language, the media advertisers and politicians before a crowd of about 700 last night at the Student Union Ballroom.

During the hour lecture, called "Preserving a Civil Tongue," sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program, Newman, an NBC News correspondent for 30 years, commented on various news organizations' redundancy and butchering of the English language.

In the media, foolish language, Newman said "is everywhere."

"Epidemics are no longer epidemics but epidemic situations. Pain is now an alteration in comfort . . . and when someone dies," Newman said, "it is referred to as negative patient outcome."

If plain and easily understood words "can do the job, why not let them?" Newman asked.

"When it comes to language, millions of Americans are being cheated. They are being cheated because they have never been led to understand the pleasure of the satisfaction that comes imaginatively and precisely. Their lives are narrowed and impoverished as a result."

"If the level of English we speak declines, we decline with it," Newman said.

Newman said the media, including CBS News, the New York Times, cable news, and the New York Daily News all tell us about people who are not only strangled, but strangled "to death."

Newman said even NBC has had correspondents that have put redundant words like "hunger fast" into their vocabularies.

Edwin Newman Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Newman said that the English language is abused because people think redundant terms often sound attractive and prestigious.

"We have no hope in dealing with out problems except by chance unless we understand them, and we cannot understand them or one another unless we dig ourselves out of the jargon, the must, the smog, the dull, pompous, boneless, ghastly language under which we Americans have been burying ourselves," he said.

Some of the worst offenders, Newman said are in education. Newman said educators have described robbery and stealing as ". . . the coersive extraction of unwillingly surrendered transfer payments."

Advertisers also misuse the English language, he said.

"Preparation H has a satisfied customer tell us, 'I never buy any product on the market that wouldn't shrink hemorrhoidal tissue," Newman said. Newman, 65, then proceeded to reveal some political grammatical errors.

"Sen. Edward Kennedy, having seen what happened in Vietnam did not want the same thing 'in regards' to Nicaragua. Give my regards to Nicaragua," Newman jeered.

"More recently," Newman said, Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale "spoke of many Europeans who, in search of religious freedom, have 'fleed' to this country."

People don't fly, he said.

Newman said that grammatical rules should not be "slavishly obeyed," but that they "cannot simply be thrown away."

Head of grad research program

Conti appointed as new vice chancellor

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

Samuel F. Conti, recently appointed to the new position of Vice Chancellor of Research, says he is finally doing what he came here for after five years of holding a number of temporary offices.

Conti's appointment is the third vice chancellor position Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey has created within the past two years.

"I'm a good administrator," Conti said, because "I'm experienced."

Conti said the creation of his position, paying a yearly salary of $70,000, is basically a "recognition of excellence by the commonwealth of Massachusetts" for the research conducted at the University.

"My job is to get money to carry out research for the graduate students," Conti said. "I also insure that the faculty are aware of the resources, and I make agencies aware of the faculty."

While holding the position as the dean of the graduate school since 1980, Conti was also acting dean of engineering. He recently left his one year position as acting provost for undergraduate education.

Conti said his new position is "more enjoyable" than his previous job because "this position has fewer constraints."

"The quality of work is different," he said, "because it focuses on different components."

Conti said both dean and acting provost positions have provided him with the "appreciation of graduate and undergraduate education," but cites that his job entails "an enormous amount of frustration."

"The frustrations are the same — insufficient funds. Problems are generic interrelating with the needs of the undergraduate level," Conti said. "Low TA (teaching assistant) stipends have not kept up with inflation...we don't pay them as much as we should."

Despite low TA stipends, deteriorating campus buildings and inadequate equipment, Conti said research at the University of Massachusetts is "tops in New England."

Samuel F. Conti Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

"A few years ago, a national survey was conducted and we did extraordinarily well. There were a number of graduate programs cited for its quality," Conti said.

While research funds have shrunk 20 percent at Harvard and Yale Universities, UMass has increased its research budgets over the years, Conti said.

Conti said that $30 million is spent yearly at the University on research which comes from local, state, federal, and industrial funds.

Another frustration of the job, Conti added is "actually finding the money." He said that the $70,000 allocated from the federal and state levels in the 1970's for research has shrunk to $20,000.

Conti received his Ph.D in microbiology from Cornell University, his Masters of science from the University of Connecticut and his Bachelors of Science from Brooklyn College.

Inside

Polymer science looks to get funds.....p.3
Abortion: Difficult choice.....p.9
Buses to transport hoop fans to Springfield...p.20

"What do you guys do around here for fun anyways?"
—Steve Cooperstein in Orono, Maine

World and National News

500 people pray for end to terrorism

WASHINGTON AP - Children prayed for peace and an end to terrorism Tuesday, a year after the bombing of the U.S. Marine barracks in Lebanon killed 241 American servicemen.

The somber ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery was one of a number of remembrances around the nation the attack last Oct.23 which caused the highest death toll of U.S. servicemen from a single incident since World War II.

About 500 people, including Barbara Bush, wife of Vice President George Bush, attended the ceremony sponsored by No Greater Love, a non-profit organization founded 13 years ago to help the families of American prisoners of war in Vietnam.

The program was highlighted by the dedication of a tree, a 14-foot-high Cedar of Lebanon, which had been planted last May in a section of the cemetery where a number of the Beirut dead are buried. The section sits near the front of the cemetery, surrounded on all sides by thousands of white marble tombstones.

As the ceremony ended, dozens of children dressed in costumes of peoples around the world, passed by the tree with roses symbolizing their hope for unity and an end to terrorism.

AP Laserphoto

STUMBLE — President Reagan grabs the rail as he stumbles boarding Air Force One yesterday in Seattle. He wasn't injured.

CIA orders recall of manual

WASHINGTON AP) — The CIA has ordered a "full recall" of its controversial manual for Nicaraguan rebels and is asking that its contents, including advice on "selective use of violence" to "neutralize" government officials, be ignored, the spy agency has told Congress.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., a Senate Intelligence Committee member, said Tuesday that he was informed of the recall by CIA officials Monday night. A committee source said the CIA also mentioned the recall of all copies during a three-hour briefing of the panel earlier Monday.

Leahy said the CIA, in ordering a "full recall," is telling rebels that the manual "is inoperative and should be ignored." He said the rebels are being instructed to follow another book containing a code of conduct that reflects traditional guidelines of war.

The committee source, who insisted on anonymity, said the agency was trying to recover several thousand printed copies of three versions of the manual. He said only about two dozen of the original uncensored edition remain in existence, with about 12 in Washington and 12 in Central America. A copy of one of those originals was obtained by The Associated Press.

Risk of radiation "relatively trivial"

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), calling the risk "relatively trivial," on Tuesday scrapped standards it proposed last year for governing radiation levels around the nation's atomic weapons plants, uranium mines and university research reactors.

The agency was under a court order to make a decision on standards for low-level atmospheric radiation from the facilities by Tuesday.

Instead, EPA withdrew entirely the proposed standards for Energy Department weapons-manufacturing plants, elemental phosphorous plants and certain non-power facilities licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Also withdrawn were proposed standards on radioactive radon-222 emissions from underground uranium mines, though agency officials said they would develop new standards for mining.

"In our judgment these risks are relatively trivial," Assistant EPA Administrator Joseph Cannon said at a news conference. "We are trying to develop the kind of atmosphere where we can issue our regulations with a sense of credibility."

Kerry, Shamie prepare for three final debates

BOSTON (AP) - The U.S. Senate battle between Democrat John Kerry and Republican Ray Shamie is in the home stretch, with each hoping a good performance in televised debates will cement victory on Nov. 6.

The three remaining debates, which begin Wednesday night, are especially crucial to Shamie who remains within striking distance of Kerry but needs a boost to turn his campaign around.

In a bold move, Shamie suggested that the first 30-minute debate, on the "Chronicle" program on WCVB-TV, Channel 5 in Boston, be held in a minority neighborhood in Boston where the candidates could debate causes of poverty and possible remedies.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Gerry deSimas
Copy Editor Taara Eden Hoffman
Layout Technician Peter Soderberg
Photo Technician Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor Lesley Clark
Production: Dode B. Levenson, Linda M. Hudon, Fran Weinberg, Debb Rugg, Kim Foster, Lynn Nigro, Pete Soderberg
Day Graphics
Larissa Potapchuk, Marsha Wilcon, Shelley Witkiewicz, Beth Bazinet, Mat Atkins, Norm Achin, Larissa Potupchuk, Joy McCarty

Navigation and guidance systems, real-time digital and analog communications, avionics integration, signal processing, inertial sensor assemblies. Work on these complex assignments and others while bringing your career into clear focus...with Kearfott.

See your Placement Office for our company profile and to sign up for a one-on-one interview. U.S. citizenship required. An equal opportunity employer, m/f, who creates opportunities.

Kearfott
a division of The SINGER Company

BS & MSEE, BSCE
CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
WEDNESDAY,
NOV.7

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
549-5610
FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.-$40.
STYLE CUTS $7.00
expires 10/30/84
valid with this ad

Check Our LOW Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From
Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs.nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

Grad Student Senate will not support invasion celebration

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate passed two resolutions last night aimed at disassociating itself with a rally planned to celebrate the one year anniversary of the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

The senate endorsed the Statement of Principles of the Student Leadership Project, which urges that no U.S. troops be sent to Central America, that aid to the military of Central American nations be contingent on improved respect for human rights by their governments.

The senate later passed another motion directly aimed at the Student Liberation Day Coalition, a nationwide group. The second motion said that the senate, "does not support any rally on October 25 by the Student Liberation coalition to celebrate the invasion of Grenada."

The Student Leadership Project, a group composed of students from colleges across the nation, is attempting to focus attention away from the 89 planned rallies. The project says the rallies are intended to "stir enthusiasm on campus for the current administration's interventionist policy in Central America, and persuade the media that students support U.S. military action in Grenada and other Central American countries."

Rick Patrick, UMass Student Government Association president, signed the project statement along with student presidents from Brown, University of California-Santa Barbara, and Southern Illinois University of Carbonda.

The Student Liberation Day Coalition, which is alleged by the Student Project to be funded primarily by the Republican party, is planning the rally to support the invasion.

The rally is scheduled for Thursday and will start at Amherst College and march through Amherst.

These motions were the first tests of a procedure for dealing with "political" issues which the senate passed December 1, 1983. This procedure which requires that the senate officers and then the entire senate first vote whether or not to discuss the issue, was put in motion as a result of several controversies concerning political issues in 1983.

Before the procedure, the senate had lengthy debates on motions concerning Grenada and South Africa. Some senators said they were not authorized to speak for their constituents on such national and international issues.

Also last night, senate President Sanjiv Dugal said he would ask University Treasurer Robert Brand to appear before the senate to answer charges that the University still has three stocks in its portfolio with companies which invest in South Africa. These charges are being raised by the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) and the South African Divestment Committee (SADC).

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

GARY DORN — a senior plant and soil major examines experimental data.

Before abortions were legal: Back-room horrors recalled

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

The horrifying memory of back-room abortions before it's legalization in 1973 was the topic of a panel discussion at Hampshire College last night.

"I was sure I was going to die," said one woman who had an illegal abortion in 1968 while she was a junior in college. "I was taken to a cottage in the middle of the woods where we had to wait three hours for the doctor, who arrived wearing a Halloween mask. The woman who had one before me was hemorhaging so much, they thought she was going to die. I was terrified."

Dr. Kay Reichert, senior staff physician at UMass Health Services spoke about her experiences as a physician when it was illegal to both prescribe contraception and recommend abortion.

"I treated one UMass student who almost died because she didn't want anyone to know she had an illegal abortion. When her friends finally brought her in, she had a fever of 105 and a severe case of pelvic inflammatory disease from untreated complications."

Another UMass student she treated had a perforated uterus from an illegal abortion, Reichert said. "The infection spread and she had to have a complete hysterectomy," she said.

She said before legalization most women were given abortions by "butchers" under unsanitary conditions, while other women tried to perform abortions on themselves with coat hangers, which usually led to infection and hemorhaging.

"Upperclass women have always been able to get sanitary, safe abortions. When abortion is illegal it is poor and young women who suffer the most," said Janet Gallagher, moderator of the panel and director of the Civil Liberties and Public Policy Program at Hampshire.

Gallagher said contraception was illegal in many states for married people until 1965 and illegal for single people in some states until the Supreme Court made it legal after the Roe vs. Wade case in 1972.

"I felt very stupid and ashamed," said another woman who had an abortion when she was 15 years old in 1966. She said the decision to have the abortion was "taken completely out of my hands. Because my family was rich and had connections, obtaining an abortion was not really a problem."

She said when abortion is illegal, murder of the fetus is not so much an issue because it is the woman who is very likely to die. Gallager said "before contraception and abortion were legalized, many women could not plan their lives beyond their next menstrual period."

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

PREP WORK — Chuck Urekev (left) and Peter Kain put up the fence surrounding the cage Monday in preperation for renovations.

POLYMERS

● New research facility to study polymer science

By JIM AVERILL
Collegian Staff

The Polymer Science and Engineering Department at the University of Massachusetts has proposed the addition of a new research facility at an estimated cost of $20 million over the next seven years.

Polymers are long chain-like molecules which are made up of small repeating segments. "Most of the building blocks of life are polymers," according to Professor William J. MacKnight, head of polymer science and engineering at UMass. They include such things as proteins, cellulose, and cotton fibers, he said.

Much of the research in the new center will be "on the frontier of high technology in polymer science," MacKnight said. This would include high performance polymer composites that might replace certain metals, electronic conducting polymers, and develop new theoretical concepts in polymer science, he said.

The goal of the center is to study basic science that industrial firms will use and apply, MacKnight said. He added that the Polymer Science and Engineering Department is one of the "strong points" of the University and it is expected to draw even more scientists to the program in the future.

A $6 million capital outlay has already been earmarked for a new, combined Polymer Science/Computer Science Institute at the University.

The additional $14 million would have to be raised from other sources which "could include private industry, the federal government, and additional state appropriations," MacKnight said.

Two companies that have already expressed an interest in funding the project are Monsanto of Springfield and General Electric of Pittsfield.

The polymer research facilities at the University are among the most comprehensive in the nation, MacKnight said. Because of the amount of research they are doing and the type of research they would like to do, the department needs a new facility, he said.

"We need something more up-to-date and larger to house our effort because we have outgrown both the quality and quantity of our present facilities," MacKnight said.

The Polymer Science and Engineering Department began as a graduate program in 1967 and was expanded to a department in 1974. Although it is not an undergraduate major, there is a polymer option available to chemical engineering majors. The department consists of 16 faculty, 150 students, and numerous visiting scientists. Two members of the faculty are Presidential Young Investigators. (See story below)

● Former UM student conducts polymer research

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

A former University of Massachusetts graduate student has joined the faculty as one of 200 nationwide Presidential Young Investigators chosen by the White House to conduct funded research in their field of study.

Dr. David A. Tirrell, 31, was nominated last year by his department head at Carnegie-Mellon University, where Tirrell was an associate professor of chemistry. Tirrell earned his master's and Ph. D degrees at UMass in polymer science and engineering.

Although polymer research has traditionally concentrated on developing new industrial materials of lighter weight, and greater strength and elasticity, Tirrell is working on manufacturing synthetic polymers that might duplicate the characteristics of natural polymers like proteins, DNA, and RNA.

Tirrell said that he hopes to integrate several different biological characteristics into a single molecule so that it will trigger the proper reaction to a formerly deficient molecule.

For example, Tirrell said, it may be possible to make a polymer molecule for a diabetic that would recognize glucose (sugar) in the body and subsequently release insulin. One problem that diabetics face is that molecules in their blood stream don't recognize glucose and the needed insulin is not normally released.

"The most ambitious use of this research will be for medical purposes. It may be helpful for diagnostic use, as opposed to actual treatment of disease," Tirrell said. When such substances are introduced into the body for treatment, there is an increased problem with possible side effects that wouldn't occur with a diagnostic test, he said.

The program is funded by the National Science Foundation (NSA) and private industry. NSA provides $25,000 initally and matches corporate donations up to $37,500 a year, up to five years, Tirrell said.

Tirrell joins four other Presidential Young Investigators conducting research at the University. The newly initiated program is sponsored by the White House to "foster university-industry collaboration," Tirrel said.

Tirrell's research funds are being provided by 3M, which contributed $30,000, and Alcoa, which provided $7,500. The NSA is matching that $37,500 in addition to the initial $25,000 it provided, resulting in $100,000 a year for up to five years, Tirrell said.

HIGHE NOTES
Ready for Halloween?
masks wigs We have make up capes hats
Singing Telegram & Balloon Delivery Service
233 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002

STAR MARKET
SUPERMARKET OPPORTUNITIES

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN PURSUING AN EXCITING CAREER IN THE SUPERMARKET INDUSTRY?

If so, we are interested in talking to you about excellent growth opportunities. Currently we are interviewing for Co-op positions as well as December and June graduates for our Management Training program.
Star Market Co. is based in Cambridge, Mass. and openings are in Metro-Boston area.
Interested candidates contact Mr. Jeffrey Silver at the Department of Cooperative Education, Room 110, Thompson Hall for details.

STAR MARKET
YOU'RE IN THE MARKET FOR THE BEST.
An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

FACULTY
The Textbook Annex Needs Your HELP

Be Sure to give us your textbook requirements for the Spring semester !!

We would like to provide the most efficient service possible, but we need your help.

Please Send Us Your Orders By
October 25th

1. Your early orders will enable us to check orders to eliminate some of the problems that might arise. We can order from the publishers sooner and reduce the risk of out of stock situations. This will also help us avoid the problem of having your books held up in the holiday mails.
2. We can buy books back from the students at the end of this semester and pay good prices for them if we know what you plan to use for the Spring semester.
3. Department secretaries have textbook information forms or you may request them from the Textbook Annex.

We appreciate your cooperation and if the Annex staff can assist you, please do not hesitate to call. (5-3570-1-2)

Justina Kielec
Faculty Liaison

Russell Evans
Textbook Manager

The return of unsold textbooks to publishers will begin October 25th. Please notify your students to purchase the textbooks needed for the remainder of the semester prior to this date.

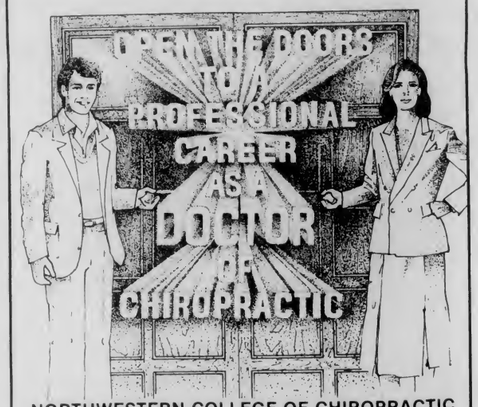
the party never stops
UPSTAIRS ...
JR'S
Nightly Specials:
(No cover!)

☐ Upstairs
"The Valley's hottest danceplayce"

☐ Downstairs in the Kickoff Lounge sports are always in season.
•Wed...Bruins vs. St. Louis. Cheer them on!
•Thurs... CoMEdy NigHt
•Fri...Celtics Season Opener--Be there!
•Sat...Just George 4 pm

Coming Soon...FREE trips for 2 to Florida!
Stand by for details!

AND DOWNSTAIRS!
at JUSTIN RYAN'S
the meeting place
KICK-OFF LOUNGE



NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE OF CHIROPRACTIC

As the need for specialized health care continues to grow, Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you enter a satisfying career taking care of people as a Doctor of Chiropractic.

Committed to high standards in education and research for over 40 years, Northwestern offers you comprehensive chiropractic training on a modern campus distinguished for its excellent facilities and dedicated teaching staff.

If you would like to know how Northwestern College of Chiropractic can help you achieve your career goals, complete the form below or call the admissions office TOLL FREE at 1-800-328-8322, Extension 290 or collect at (612) 888-4777.

Please send me more information on Northwestern College of Chiropractic
Name
Address
City State Zip
Phone ( ) Years of college experience
SEND TO: Northwestern College of Chiropractic, Admissions Office, 2501 West 84th Street, Bloomington, Minnesota 55431 401
1-800-328-8322, Extension 290; collect at (612) 888-4777

PSST!
WANNA BUY A RECEIVER CHEAP??
COME TO ADIRONDACK MUSIC'S
MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
AND GET A 30 WATT RECEIVER
FOR $13.13 ONLY AT MIDNIGHT
adirondack music
MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
FRIDAY NOON THROUGH SAT 6 PM
"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-3100

Cyclists bike to Conn. for life, peace

Members of the University of Massachusetts community can bicycle from UMass to Groton, Connecticut this weekend for a "Harvest of Life" celebration sponsored by the Coalition for Enviornmental Quality and the UMass Bike Coop.

The cyclists will ride for life, peace, human needs, and for the prevention of nuclear war.

"Bicycles bring the message into communities," according to Brad Powell, member of the coalition. The cyclists will reach the communities because people aren't "afraid" of bicycles the way they are of cars, Powell said.

Bicyclists will leave UMass of Friday at 2 p.m. and ride 48 miles to UConn in Storrs, Conn. On Saturday they will ride 40 miles to Ft Griswold State Park in Groton, Conn.

There will be a nonviolent march to the Electric Boat Shipyard where there will be a puppet show presented by the Pumpkin Players and a food drive to collect food for the area soup kitchens.

On Sunday the cyclists can bike 88 miles back to UMass, or car pool for the return trip. For more information go to the Bike Coop in the Student Union Building, or call Sarah at 253-5935, or Tom at 549-0850.

TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN

Absentee ballots must be notarized

Students who wish to vote with absentee ballots in the Nov. 6 national and state elections can have those ballots notarized and made legal next week at Memorial Hall.

Anyone who is not registered to vote in Amherst but is already registered in their hometown can vote Nov. 6 by mailing the absentee ballot to their Town or City Hall by election day.

To be legal, absentee ballots must be notarized in Amherst, according to Rick Patrick, Student Government Association co-president. Patrick said notary publics will be at Memorial Hall Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of next week.

The schedule for notarizing ballots will be: Monday, Oct. 29, 1 to 4:30 p.m., and Tuesday, Oct. 30 and Wednesday, Oct. 31, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

To get absentee ballots, students should write to their town or city clerk and provide their name and home, and campus or off-campus addresses, Patrick said. The absentee forms must be mailed back and notarized before Nov. 6 to make the student eligible to vote in the election, he said.

the Hungry U Restaurant
check out our happy hour munchie menu daily!
WEDNESDAY IS PASTA NIGHT for only $4.25
includes spaghetti with a choice of homemade meatball, sausage, fresh eggplant, sauteed mushrooms, or broccoli served with salad or soup, bread and butter, and a glass of wine or beer
Happy Hour 3-6, 9-close 7 days per week
2 in 1 drinks
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

Halloween '84
Paints, sprays, streaks, gels, tinsels, wigs, masks, feathers, mirrors, capes, hats, etc!
visit the Halloween Shop at FACES
downtown Amherst
Mon-Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5

Sport Style
Sweatshirt
15.95
Acrylic/Cotton Blend
red, grey, blue, maroon
S-M-L-XL
Virgianne Sarah
photo by Dwayne Autery
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AT RAHARS
A DELIGHTFUL ADDITION TO DINING IN THE PIONEER VALLEY
Distinctive food from Mexico and the American Southwest. . .Comfortable dining at reasonable prices. . .A great blend of food, atmosphere, service and value. Try La Cazuela soon.
FULL BAR AVAILABLE
Lunch & Dinner, Tuesday through Saturday
Dinner, Sunday -- Closed Monday
STREET • NORTHAMPTON • 586-0400

EVERY WEDNESDAY 7-1
FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge
PENNY DRAFT NITE!
Party with Crazy George and Get Every Other Draft for just 1¢
Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

GET IN THE GAME

It's fourth and goal and you've got the ball. Make your move to the first team. The National Security Agency offers you an all-pro career opportunity in the following fields:

ELECTRONIC ENGINEERING There are opportunities in a variety of research and development projects ranging from individual equipments to very complex interactive systems involving large numbers of microprocessors, minicomputers and computer graphics. Professional growth is enhanced through interaction with highly experienced NSA professionals and through contacts in the industrial and academic worlds. Facilities for engineering analysis and design automation are among the best available.

COMPUTER SCIENCE At NSA you'll discover one of the largest computer installations in the world with almost every major vendor of computer equipment represented. NSA careers provide mixtures of such disciplines as systems analysis and design, scientific applications programming, data base management systems, operating systems, computer networking/security, and graphics.

MATHEMATICS You'll work on diverse agency problems applying a variety of mathematical disciplines. Specific assignments might include solving communications-related problems, performing long-range mathematical research or evaluating new techniques for communications security.

LINGUISTS NSA offers a wide range of challenging assignments for Slavic, Near Eastern and Asian language majors involving translation, transcription and analysis/reporting. Newly-hired linguists can count on receiving advanced training in their primary language(s) and can plan on many years of continued professional growth.

THE REWARDS AT NSA NSA offers a salary and benefit program that's truly competitive with private industry. There are assignments for those who wish to travel and abundant good living in the Baltimore-Washington area for those who wish to stay close to home. Countless cultural, historical, recreational and educational opportunities are just minutes away from NSA's convenient suburban location.

To find out more about NSA career opportunities, schedule an interview through your college placement office. For additional information on the National Security Agency, write to National Security Agency, Attn: M322, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland 20755.

NATIONAL SECURITY AGENCY
An Equal Opportunity Employer.

On Campus Recruiting Dates:
Nov. 5, 6, 1984

NIGHT of the LIVING DEAD

Date: Wed. Oct. 24th
Time: 5, 7, 9, 11 PM
Location: S.U.B.
Admission: $1. for 5 PM
$1.50 for 7, 9, 11 PM

Advance tickets can be purchased at the "TIX" office during regular "TIX" hours

Sponsor: HAMLIN DORM

Ticket Connection

PROMPT TICKET DELIVERY SERVICE
FOR ALL CONCERTS AND SPORTING EVENTS

Sammy Hagar	Oct. 30, Worcester
Hall & Oates	Nov. 1, Hartford
Elton John	Nov. 2, Hartford
Culture Club	Nov. 13, Worcester
	Nov. 20, Hartford
Kiss	Nov. 23, Worcester

Also Tickets to:
Whalers, Celtics, Bruins & Patriots
Call Jon Anytime
in Springfield 413-788-6938

AMHERST CINEMA

DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50

Wed. thru Sat.

Pirates on Parade	7:15
Monty Python	9:00
Live at the Hollywood Bowl

DOWNTOWN AMHERST

Pearl Street

PEARL STREET IS THE PLACE TO DANCE
TUESDAY (Alternative Lifestyles Night) through Saturday
The Best DJ's and watch for our great live music too!

Friday 26th Oct.
'Squealing Motown Saxaphone'
it's
JUNIOR WALKER and
THE ALLSTARS
Dance your socks off
$8.00 cover at the door

Wednesday 31st Oct.
'THE'HALLOWEEN COSTUME PARTY
Vampire D.J. Count Dread
Great Prizes: Dom Perignon, T-Shirts and all sorts
$3.00 cover at the door

Positive I.D. required at the door — photo drivers license, ABC card

10 PEARL STREET NORTHAMPTON, MA. 413 584-7771

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Springfield Symphony Orchestra
Robert Gutter, Music Director

with PETER SERKIN, Piano
FRIDAY, OCT 26, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

Shakespeare & Company
Romeo and Juliet
THURSDAY, NOV 1, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

Grand Royal Winnipeg Ballet
MONDAY, NOV 5, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

Five College Students Half-Price. Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

SWEET TOOTH

FAST FREE DELIVERY
of individual servings

CAKES & PASTRIES

- ECSTASY BY CHOCOLATE CAKE - Could be a substitute for sex. The cheapest taste of sin you'll ever experience. 2.50
- CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE - Another temptation for the chocoholic. A whole new approach with chocolate cream and raspberries 1.50
- CONTINENTAL - A rich pastry horn filled at both ends with chocolate cream. For the chocolate sophisticate. 1.50
- CHEESECAKE - We've saved you a trip to New York. The best cheesecake north of the Big Apple. Toppings make it even better: strawberry or cherry 1.75 / .35
- CARROT CAKE - We can't promise, but it may help you find what you want in the dark. Geee-nious!!! 1.50
- NAPOLEON - One bite and you'll surrender to the joy of custard and pastry with frosting on top 1.50

ICE CREAM From Bart's - the best in the Valley. Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry, Mud Pie, Coffee Heath Crunch, Oreo Crunch, Ask about our flavor of the week. A double scoop 1.55

MUNCHIES

- OATMEAL FUDGE BAR - A BIG chewy bar laced with thick fudge. Irresistible 1.50
- CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIE - A sizeable cookie loaded with goodies. Yummy .75
- FRUIT BREAD - A change of pace. Could be banana nut, lemon nut, cranberry nut or pumpkin. Ask. .75
- BAKLAVA - A Greek delight. A small, rich triangle of pastry and nuts drenched in honey. You'll love it. 1.05

FUDGE and CHOCOLATE Superb confections to make your taste buds delirious. You never had it so good!

- FUDGE FLAVORS - Chocolate, Chocolate Walnut, Rocky Road, Chocolate Peanut Butter. ½ pound 4.00 / 1 pound 7.50
- BLOCK CHOCOLATE - Milk or Dark. ½ pound 3.75 / 1 pound 7.00

CALL
256-8102
Friday and Saturday 6:00 pm - 2:00 am
Sunday thru Thursday 6:00 pm - 1:00 am
79 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Minimum order $5.00 Prices do not include tax

STUDENT EXCHANGE
National Exchange Club Meeting
Topics will include:
Weekend Trips
and how the club can save you money
Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1984
at 7:00 PM
917 Campus Center

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Collegian photo by Kathy Jordan
HANGING OUT — A wooden Indian head has a solitary view of Main Street in downtown Amherst.

New CAROL HAHN & Skylark

CHEERS Lounge
No Cover
Located next to Ground Round
Pleasant St. Northampton

THUR 25 FRIDAY 26

NOW OPEN
UNTIL 2:00 AM!!!
JB's
ROAST BEEF

50 Main Street
Amherst
253-7018
(right around the corner from the bars)

Letters

Sensitivity missing at Senate meeting

I was extremely disappointed at the senate meeting of October 17. The motion to fund a campus-wide gay-lesbian educator was voted down on the grounds that there weren't sufficient funds. I find it very hard to believe that we can't find funds to fight for the rights of 10 percent of the entire community, yet we seem to be able to come up with over *81,013 worth of funding for concerts, conferences, theater, yearbooks, etc. The fact that a close analysis of the budget act, showing the stabilization account in potential trouble, came out the day of the vote is a bit ironic. The senate picked a rather ironic time to become budget and funding fanatics.

My question is this: How can we even think of funding student events when we know that a large portion of the student body won't be able to attend those events for fear of physical harm. 10 percent of every constituency is known to be gay or lesbian; 10 percent of every constituency cannot enjoy everyday activities because of threats□ 10 percent of every constituency desperately needs the recognition of the entire community.

Not only did the Senate not fund the motion, but many senators did not take the issue seriously. Many of them used the occasion for partisan political attacks on individuals in the senate, totally disrespecting the community of students involved. I, and many others, find this offensive and totally uncalled for. When this happens, the senate ceases to function as a representative of the students and becomes a battleground for political personalities.

Many things hapened the other night that call for careful reflection on the part of all students, especially the senators. By voting down the motion, we told the gay and lesbian community that their situation wasn't urgent and that their fight for equality wasn't worth the definition of "student activity." This shows a total lack of sensitivity to the issue. On top of this, the issue became a vehicle for political gain on the part of certain senators. This is unforgivable. In the future, I would hope that the senators would represent 100 percent of their constituency by putting their personal phobias and differences aside, and having respect for each other. Maybe then, the senate could function as it should.

Margie Boone
Amherst

Ignorance must be fought with education

Wednesday night the Undergraduate Student Senate voted against a motion to fund the position of heterosexism awareness trainer.

As I listened to the lengthy debate, I became aware of the magnitude of oppression. As a lesbian, I am all too aware of the violence and harassment directed at lesbians, gay men and bisexuals. But the rampant homophobia in the Senate was expressed in a much more subtle way. By denying funding for the position, the Senate judged the need for such a person as invalid, against lesbians, bisexuals and gay men that occurs on the UMass campus.

The root of heterosexism is ignorance. I believe that education can eliminate ignorance. To deny the need for education is to deny that such oppression exists — and thereby perpetuate it.

Annie Clattenburg
Amherst

The punchline that never showed up

When I started to read David Tumey's letter concerning (if this man can be concerned about anything but his self-righteous, holier-than-thou image) his perceptions on the pro-choice movement, I thought it must be some kind of joke. I kept waiting for the punchline, but it never came. Who does this man think he is to codemn me, and to blatantly laugh at my views simply because they differ from his?

I have no objections to people expressing their sentiments in print; the issue here is not whose opinion is right or wrong. Rather, what I do object to is the way Tumey proceeds to viciously attack all advocates of pro-choice, even going so far as to infer that we have no morals, no feelings, and that we consider abortion a form of birth control.

I demand, as I'm sure do many other people on this campus, that Tumey apologize for his sarcastic slander of his adversaries. I think Tumey is a very poor representative of the Pro-life Communications Systems. Communication involves an exchange of information, not a malicious, one-sided viewpoint.

M. Beth Jazab
Southwest

Read the editorial page

MOLLY'S

ANTIQUE & VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
MON-SAT 10-5
413-549-6446

THE TEXTBOOK ALTERNATIVE

Jeffery
Amherst
Bookshop

Call us now for information about ordering your spring coursebooks * 253-3381

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!
Tickets on Sale Now

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:
an evening with
The Them or Us Tour '84"
FRANK ZAPPA
SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS

UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50
Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50
Tickets on Sale Now

Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.

UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor	John O'Connell	Black Affairs Editor	Yadira Betances
Business Manager	Andrew May	Women's Issues Editor	Rebecca Thatcher
Business Manager	Elizabeth Young	Arts Editor	Christine D. Marini
Production Manager	Mark Roden	Sports Editor	Peter Abraham
Executive Editor	Rita Murphy	Photo Editor	Andrew J. Heller
News Editor	Greg Brown

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Abortion: a difficult choice

Deborah Kutenplon

The two small, quiet Hispanic kids came to the clinic together. At 16, the boy was a year older than his pregnant girlfriend. He held her hand throughout the abortion, talking to her gently, and touching her face. Somewhere the boy learned a new definition of masculinity. Afterward he asked me to call his school and to lie that he had had a doctor's appointment.

I worked in the abortion clinic for half a year. I'd like to tell you from the perspective of a counselor, what an abortion is like. Amidst all the political fury, it's something we seldom hear about.

First of all, it hurts. Many women said it was the worst physical pain they had ever felt. I was shocked by their physical pain, shocked that in all the talk about abortion this central fact of often intense physical pain is never mentioned.

Why? I believe that the pro-choicers do not want to scare women away, especially considering that birthing pains are usually much worse. They also know that making a woman feel more tense is likely to make the pain worse.

I believe that anti-abortion people may consider the pain irrelevant to their argument that abortion is immoral. Yet it is certainly relevant — and damaging — to their characterizations of the free and easy abortion, the irresponsible woman's painless alternative.

Abortion is neither free nor easy. Many of the women had to borrow the $200 fee. Many came to our clinic, where they had to go through the procedure awake, because they could not afford the extra $500 it would have cost to go to the hospital for general anesthesia.

The "painless alternative" definitely was emotionally painless for a few women. Just as there are a few women, particularly young adolescents, who fall into motherhood with as little thought and emotional investment. However, the great majority of women approached the decision neither lightly nor painlessly.

As for being irresponsible, some of the women might be considered that, if irresponsibility includes not having the social resources to get the kids taken care of and come up with bus fare to get to the clinic every three months for pill refills, and if irresponsibility includes simply not understanding — because she understands nothing of hormones and fertility cycles — why skipping a pill or two at the beginning of the month can possibly make her pregnant from sex three weeks later.

Of course not every unwanted pregnancy results from a lack of understanding of resources. Sometimes women, and their partners, get careless. It's hard to contracept conscientiously every single time, especially in a culture that worships spontaneity. And the same cultural messages do not encourage women to take responsibility for their sexuality — neither for their pleasure nor their fertility. For instance, the whole romantic notion of being swept away precludes planning ahead, or even acknowledging with your brain what the rest of your body is doing. In order to contracept, women then have to go against all the cultural messages defining femininity. Is it any wonder so many unplanned pregnancies occur?

Furthermore, due to the failure rate of contraceptives, even a woman who uses them correctly and consistently can expect, statistically, two unplanned pregnancies in the course of her fertile years. That's something else we seldom hear about.

Deborah Kutenplon is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

An 'arrogant' attitude towards pro-choice

I highly resent David Tumey taking a sarcastically presented, arrogant view and assuming to represent with them a position for all individuals who believe in freedom of choice or feminism. The definition of feminism is: a doctrine advocating the same social, economic, and political rights for women as those granted to men. How did Tumey come to his conclusion that "...feminists maintain that until the second a baby is born, it is nothing more than a collection of tissue"?

I consider myself to be a feminist and I am pro-choice. I wholeheartedly disagree with Tumey's statement. I took an informal survey on my floor: 8 out of 10 women consider themselves feminists; 9 out of 10 are pro-choice; and 10 out of 10 disagree with his statement. If Tumey took the time to ask, I think he would find that the majority of women feel the same way.

Since Mr. Tumey feels abortion effects him "in a private and personal way", how would he deal with these circumstances: a child's pregnancy through an incestuous relationship; a woman's pregnancy by rape; a pregnancy through the failure of birth control. Is everything still so black and white, right and wrong for David Tumey?

Kirsten M. Lacovara
Southwest

Debate is a disappointment

Matthew Berman

I found watching the Reagan-Mondale debate on Sunday night a profoundly disturbing event. Not only were my fears about the two contestants more than confirmed, but I began to worry about the viability of the whole election process. If the American presidency is such an important office, steeped in grandor and vital to all life on earth, why must the only two real candidates be these two men.

If nothing else, the debate gave the public a chance to get a look at the candidates for more than the usual 30-second news spot. I was not happy with what I saw. I watched the debate with a friend of mine from Bangladesh. About President Reagan he said, "He is almost as stupid as my dictator." Though my friend and I often argue about politics, this time I could think of no response.

With regards to Mondale, his appearance was just as unpleasant. Whether through cowardice of lack of anything even resembling wit he let pass everyone of Reagan's blunders. While answering his first question Reagan made on of the great political Freudian slips of the decade, announcing that "We have a gentleman down in Nicaragua who is on contract to the CIA, advising supposedly on military tactics to the Contras..." In one line the President refuted his own administration's claim that the CIA was not involved with the Contras.

A minute later Reagan corrected himself with another enlightening line, saying "I'm afraid I misspoke when I said a CIA head in Nicaragua. There's not someone there directing all of this activity. There are, as you know, CIA men stationed in other countries in the world, and certainly in Central America. And so it was a man down there, in that area..."

Mondale either was not paying attention or just didn't deem this oddity worthy of a response, because in his rebuttal which immediately followed he did not mention it, instead giving us a vague, platitude ridden, general attack on Reagan. In Reagan's rebuttal to Mondale's rebuttal he effectively ended discussion on Central America by saying "I have so many things there to respond to, I'm going to pick out something you said earlier." He then went on to refute an irrelevant charge that Mondale had made against him earlier in the week.

The press further helped the issue disappear by asking Reagan next if he really thought the Soviet Union was an evil empire. (He said he did.) Fritz Mondale gave the whole Central America issue its coup d'grace when instead of putting together any attack on Reagan's policy in the region, or even mentioning that Reagan admitted CIA involvement with the Contras, he responded to Reagan's counter charge to his earlier charge. (Reagan later came back with a counter-counter charge).

This is only one example of Reagan making a questionable statement and Mondale letting it pass unnoticed. What Mondale did choose to respond to was the notion of sharing American Star War's technology with the Soviets. An interesting idea, but hardly worth debating yet since the technology in question doesn't exist and may not exist in our lifetimes. He lets the Central America issue slide and brings up this.

Reagan's answer to the age question was ingenious, when he said that he will not exploit his opponenet's "youth and inexperience." Amusing but not true as Mondale is 55 and very experienced. Again Mondale did not bring this up.

Mondale had his chance. Reagan gave him every opportunity to deliver a fatal blow, but Mondale did not take them. Mondale "won" the debate because he was dull instead of stupid, but it will do him no good. In this business, you can be stupid as you can get away with, but being dull is an unpardonable sin.

Matthew Berman is a Collegian staff member.

Random Notes

Central America: A view from the other side

As one of the medical students in Grenada at this time last year, I am deeply concerned about the so-called "Student Liberation Days" being organized on college campuses by right-wing groups, purportedly to celebrate the United States invasion of Grenada.

Whether my life and those of my fellow medical students were endagered by the coup that overthrew Maurice Bishop is very much open to question. It is clear, however, that our "liberation" by the Reagan Administration came at a terrible cost: dozens of young American, Cuban and Grenadian lives.

That is a fact that the people organizing "Student Liberation Day" may not want you to know. Nor may they want you to know the course they'd like to see our nation follow in other parts of Latin America, namely such places as Nicaragua, El Salvador and Honduras.

If American troops are sent to those countries as some would like, they won't be facing a few hundred glorified policemen and Cuban Construction workers as they did in Grenada. They won't be fighting on a sunny tropical island, as they did in Grenada.

If American troops are sent to Central America, it's more likely they will fight thousands of well-trained soldiers and guerillas willing to give everything to defend their homelands and their ideals.

As in Viet Nam, American soldiers will face the uncertainty of whether the peasants in the village before them are friend or foe. They will battle again in scorching heat, dense and hilly terrain and unfamiliar territory.

Polls show that most students, as well as the majority of Americans, want peace in Central America through political and diplomatic means, not more bloodshed through clumsy and misguided American intervention. If the organizers behind "Student Liberation Day" mean to suggest through their mindless celebration of the invasion of Grenda that students support military adventures on behalf of unpopular and repressive dictators in Central America, I suggest they ask students first.

Instead of celebrating the liberation of students, their actions only encourage the decimation of students. The publicity from their rallies, if not countered immediately, encourages the worst tendencies of our government to believe it will be politically acceptable to send us off to war.

They should recognize, as El Salvadoran president Jose Napoleon Duarte has, that hundreds of years of poverty, exploitation and despair are at the roots of the conflict in Central America, not the struggle between foreign ideologies. They should recognize, as most students do, that it only hurts the prospects for peace when our government supports those who have the most to gain by continued bloodshed: the contras in Nicaragua and the government-tolerated death squads in El Salvador and elsewhere.

There still is time to act before our government sends us on a hopeless mission in Central America. Regardless of the foolishness of these right-wing "Student Liberation Days," let us ensure that our country not repeat the mistakes of the past by getting involved in an endless war on the wrong side of the battle.

Morty Weissleiner is a medical student at St. George's University.

Murray straight

The Razor's Edge
Directed by John Byrum
Starring Bill Murray, Theresa Russell, Catherine Hicks, Mt. Farms Theatres

By Julie Bennett
Collegian Correspondent

Bill Murray has turned to drama in The Razor's Edge; just well enough, he portrays a serious, somewhat sad and confused, but kind and loving man. While Murray may initially be the reason one would go to see this movie, he is not really the main attraction. Through the main characters, the director, and Somerset Maugham, whose novel this film is based upon, comes a feeling so pervasively realistic, in terms of its use in literature, that this is the calling card of the film. The main intent was evidently to show the characters' emotion and thought through action, plot, and facial expressions instead of to tell it, through dialogue.

Larry Darrell, Murray's character, decides to go country- and experience-hopping in a desperate attempt, since his discharge from WWI, to find a truth and logic to life. He finds that the most influential times for him seem not to be in the snow-covered Himalayas or in the fish markets of Paris, but to be when he is with his old friends, his ex-fiancee Isabel, her husband Gray, and their friend Sophie. None of these people are without their own mental and emotional anguish sometime in the movie, either. Each deals with the trouble in different ways, but Larry is the only one who actively searches to alleviate his discontent without resorting to cheap rationalizations.

Theresa Russell and Catherine Hicks, as Isabel and Sophie, are both excellent and whole in the life they give their characters. At one point, both are in love with Larry and the complications which arise really give the actresses a lot of substance from which to work, especially Russell. Murray's performance is suitable to the film. Luckily, its success does not hinge on his total success as a dramatic actor. In his non-comedy career he is off with a step in the right direction but still needs even more refinement and study of his verbal and nonverbal expression.

Throughout the movie, there are creative scene transitions which made the film smooth, and also a few contrasting blunt cuts which serve their purpose in the end by exemplifying the way Larry's life must have seemed to him in retrospect, in terms of its changes. Since Razor shows, rather than tells, the viewer what the characters feel, we know what Larry, Isabel, and Sophie are thinking, much of the time by what they do. As difficult as this is to accomplish, it would have been better if we knew a little more of Larry's thoughts earlier. The film would then be that much more involving from the start. Even so, it is subtle and delicate in its characterizations and unwilling to wait for the obvious; it is a story necessitating as much of the viewer's active participation in bringing it together as the actors themselves must employ in giving their characters life. For this reason alone, despite certain weaknesses, The Razor's Edge is really worth seeing.

Arts

This Volcano doesn't erupt

Under the Volcano
Starring Albert Finney, Jacqueline Bisset
Directed by John Huston at the Academy of Music

By RENEE BACHER
Collegian Correspondent

Under the Volcano, is a tedious, pointless, chore of a film. it takes stabs at being philosophical and misses with each one.

Albert Finney plays the former British councilor to Cuernavaca, Mexico, whose estranged wife, Yvonne, (Jacqueline Bisset) mysteriously returns to him. It appears that Yvonne has been galavanting around New York with an acting company and has now decided to rejoin her ex-husband in Cuernavaca to piece their lives together.

Why she choses to come back to her ex-husband, Jeffrey is entirely beyond comprehension. He is an alcoholic who has obviously done himself permanent mental damage. The film never bothers to let us know why she left him in the first place, not even hinting that it might be a result of his alcoholism.

The film takes place in 1938 during war time. There were definite statements that could have been made by this film.

The political situation in Mexico was not clear. It was skimmed over when it could have been utilized to create an impact on the audience. What we had was the typical situation in an impoverished country where westerners appeared grossly out of place.

There were corrupt officials, murder, horse thievery, and prostitution, yet none of the above made any significant point. Just as quickly as one issue would begin to materialize, it would vanish into thin air.

All things considered, Albert Finney was good in his role as an unruly drunk. His antics were comical at times though when they probably should have been very sad. The fact that Yvonne kept trying to seduce him into taking her back made no sense. He was simply repulsive.

Jacqueline Bisset was disappointing, to say the least. Her beauty just was not enough to carry her through this one. Even her rain-soaked dress in the last scene didn't seem to capture anyone's attention.

The major problem with this film was that it was plotless. Perhaps the film would have been more comprehensible if it took some direction. The personal problems between Yvonne and Jeffrey alone could have made a theme if they were at all developed to reach some sort of conclusion.

Jonathan Reid

20% or More OFF
Our Entire Stock

From SUITS to SOCKS
Oct. 24 thru Oct. 28

Hampshire Mall Rte. 9 Hadley

Tropic Isle
Plants & Gifts
Liven up your home or room with fresh ideas from Tropic Isle
Foliage & Flowering Plants
Dried & Silk Flowers
Fresh Flowers
Suncatchers
Crystals
Chimes
& more
RED ROSE SPECIAL 99¢
Oct. 25-28
*We send flowers anywhere
Hampshire Mall
586-6512

HAMPSHIRE MALL -
We've Got
The PVTA stops here...
It All!!

HARVEST MOON SALE

Oct. 25, 26, 27 & 28 THURSDAY thru SUNDAY
Harvest of Savings . . . inside & out!

WIN... Diamonds in a Haystack plus other valuable prizes

Schedule of Events—
Thursday, Oct. 25:
Cafe Square:
7:30 'Count Dred's Tales for Little Goblins, Ghosts & Witches' FREE PUMPKINS & BALLOONS'

Saturday, Oct. 27:
Cafe Square:
11:00-2:00 Live remote 99wmk. & Cousin Bruce
2:00 Drawing for "Diamonds in a Haystack" (over $6,000 worth of diamonds and other valuable prizes from our Merchants. Register to win at Furnari Jewelers or Kay Jewelers
1:00-3:00 Live Blue Grass by The Shy Americans

Sunday, Oct. 28:
1:00-4:00 Hayrides (next to JCPenney)
Cafe Square
1:30 Count Dred's Tales for Little Goblins, Ghosts & Witches
2:30 & 3:30 Wildlife Animal Program

plus FREE Balloons

THIS COUPON GOOD FOR ONE FREE Hayride for Two! at Hampshire Mall.
(next to JC Penney)
Sunday, Oct. 28 1:00-4:00 C

Hampshire Mall
where you'll find STEIGERS, JCPENNEY, KMART and over 70 other fine shops and restaurants.

SOUTH MAPLE STREET/ROUTE 9 HADLEY • MONDAY THRU SATURDAY 10AM—9:30PM; SUNDAY 12PM-5PM

Zaca Trading Company
Hampshire Mall 586-9410

FANTASTIC SALE 50% OFF
We have purchased the entire stock of a BANKRUPT SWEATER SHOP

You can buy at half price!

Hand Knits, cashmeres, fisherman knits, ski sweaters, and thousands more to choose from.

Sweaters were $20-$150 NOW $10-$75
MENS WOMENS & CHILDRENS
Dozens of styles and blends — You can't afford to miss this unbelievable bargain especially at this time of year.
What an opportunity to do some early Christmas shopping.
Remember — before going to suplus or salvage stores, shop ZACA first.

ZACA! We always sell for less!

HILTON MUSIC STORES
PA Rentals, Guitars
New & Used
BC Rich, Kramer, ARIA, Percussion
Lessons - Guitar, Keyboards, Bass, Drums
HAMPSHIRE MALL. RT. 9

Moondance Comics
is
COMICS PLUS!
THE Comics Authorities
Hampshire Mall, Hadley/Ingleside Mall, Holyoke

THE Pierced Ear
10% Discount
with this coupon
On Any Non-Sale Item
Free ear piercing with purchase of ear piercing earrings
Good thru Nov. 4, 1984
Hampshire Mall, Hadley

OLYMPIAN . . .
WE'VE GOT THE COMPETITION ON THE RUN

SAUCONY FLIGHT Reg. $54.99 Now $42.
SAUCONY JAZZ Reg. $49.99 Now $39.
SAUCONY DIXON Reg. $54.99 Now $42.

If you run a lot, Saucony® joggers are for you. Add control and stability to your every stride with cushioned nylon and suede joggers. The only thing Saucony joggers don't do are run you a lot of money at Olympian.

Men's & women's sizes.

OLYMPIAN™
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

RAILROAD SALVAGE

SHOWER UP LIQUID SOAP 8 OUNCE BOTTLES 2 FOR $1.00

PUREX BLEACH COMPARE AT 89¢ GALLON 2 FOR $1.00

FURNACE FILTERS AVAIL. IN ASS'T SIZES OUR REG. $1.19 88¢ PKG. OF 3

25 LB BAG KITTY WHITE CAT LITTER WITH TIME RELEASE ODOR CONTROL $1.99 25 LB. BAG

AMERICAN TOURISTER

FIRST QUALITY

LUGGAGE BUY-OUTS

- RUBY BOUGHT 10,000 PCS
- DEPARTMENT STORE OVERSTOCK
- BEAUTIFUL ON THE OUTSIDE
- AMERICAN TOURISTER ON THE INSIDE
- HERE'S JUST A FEW EXAMPLES
- SHOULDER TOTE VALUE $51.00 70% OFF NOW $14.99
- 8 TRAILER LOADS

American Tourister INC.

SUITCASES MATCHING PIECES
- 22 INCH VAL. $61 NOW $29.99
- 26 INCH VAL. $81 NOW $39.99
- 29 INCH VAL. $90 NOW $44.99

KOOKY SPOOKS GIANT BLOW-UP COSTUME KIT WITH MAKE-UP

11 Costumes to choose from Ages 3 to Adult

Value $5.99 $1.99

KEROSENE HEATERS

ALL HEATERS ARE ELECTRIC/BATTERY IGNITION AND COME PACKED WITH SYPHON PUMP

CHECK STORES FOR LOCAL REGULATIONS

ALL HEATERS ARE PORTABLE AND REQUIRE NO INSTALLATION OR VENTING TO THE OUTSIDE • SMOKELESS AND ODOR FREE

SORRY—HEATERS NOT AVAILABLE IN WEST HAVEN

8200 BTU KEROSUN
- RADIANT HEAT
- 1.7 GALLON TANK
- CONTINOUS HEATING TIME OF 28-39 HOURS Check stores for local regulations

SUGGESTED RETAIL $139.95 YOU PAY $48.88 TYPICAL ROOM SIZE 12FT x 23FT

8700 BTU KEROSUN

Provides Heat, Light and Cooking Especially useful during power failure or other emergency
- CONVECTIVE AND RADIANT HEAT
- 1.7 GALLON TANK
- CONTINUOUS HEATING TIME OF 24-36 HOURS

TYPICAL ROOM SIZE TO HEAT 12 FT x 24 FT $68.88

18,000 BTU Sunbeam
- CONVECTIVE AND RADIANT HEAT
- TWO GALLON TANK
- CONTINUOUS HEATING TIME OF 17 HRS.

YOU PAY $88.88 TYPICAL ROOM SIZE TO HEAT 18 FT x 34 FT

19,400 BTU Kogy
- CONVECTIVE AND RADIANT HEAT
- 1.9 GALLON TANK
- CONTINUOUS HEATING TIME OF 13 TO 18 HRS.

TYPICAL ROOM SIZE TO HEAT 26 FT x 26 FT YOU PAY $98.88

GLASS FIREPLACE SCREENS CONTROLS DRAFTS AND FLYING SPARKS, REDUCES HEAT LOST UP CHIMNEY TEMPERED GLASS DOORS VALUE $79.95 NOW $28.88

FIREPLACE GRATE AND BLOWER CONVERT YOUR STOVE OR FIREPLACE INTO AN EFFECTIVE ROOM HEATER TWO MODELS TO CHOOSE FROM MODEL SHOWN AND LOW PROFILE FOR UNDER GLASS SCREENS SAVE 50% VALUE $79.95 $28.88

STACK TABLES VAL. $10 EA. NOW $3.88 EA.

HOT DIPPED GALVANIZED STEEL STORAGE SHED BUY OUT

3 FOOT x 10 FOOT $68.88 EACH

7 FOOT x 5 FOOT $98.88 10 FOOT x 6 FOOT $128.88 10 FOOT x 9 FOOT $148.88

NAME BRANDS BOYS WEAR BUY-OUT

FIRST QUALITY Hush Puppies Boyswear

MIGHTY-MAC BOYSWEAR

Health-tex

YOU SAVE 50% TO 70% OFF DEPARTMENT STORE QUALITY BOYS WEAR AT 50% AND MORE OFF THEIR PRICES

HERE'S JUST ONE EXAMPLE:

MIGHTY MAC CORDUROY SLACKS SIX POCKET SOLID COLORS

YOU SAVE 65% VALUE $37.50 NOW $14.99 PAIR

MEN'S SILK TIES VALUE $20.00 NOW $6.99

FIRST QUALITY SWEATER BUYOUT 6600 SWEATERS VALUES TO $40.00

CHILDREN'S $6.99 LADIES $9.99 MENS $14.99

Chatham Since 1877 — GREAT FOR FOOTBALL GAMES

45" x 72" ALL OCCASION BLANKET WITH REUSEABLE TOTE BAG
- 100% POLYESTER
- WHIP STITCHED AROUND
- MACHINE WASH AND DRY

VALUE $11.95 NOW $6.88

15" HATAIN FRINGED THROW PILLOWS VALUE $4.99 YOU PAY $2.99 EACH

ROUTE 5 EAST WINDSOR CONN. SAT & SUN 10-6 MON-FRI 10-9

ROUTE 184 GROTON, CT OPP. GROTON MOTOR INN SAT & SUN 10-6 MON-FRI 10-9

1131 CAMPBELL AVE. WEST HAVEN CONN. SAT & SUN 10-6 MON-FRI 10-9

CANAL STREET TURNERS FALLS MASS. SAT 10-6, SUN 12-6 MON-FRI 10-9

HAMPSHIRE MALL HADLEY MASS. SUNDAY 12-5 MON-SAT 10-9:30

ORIENTAL RUGS RUBY BOT 500 RUGS

APPROX. 6x9' OUR REG. $89.99 NOW $48.88

APPROX. 9x12' OUR REG. $149.99 NOW $88.88

SPECIAL PURCHASE

FOIL BAKING PANS 9" CASSEROLE & MUFFIN TIN PIE PANS • CAKE PANS 3"x5" • 8"x6" AND MORE

RUBY BOT 100,000 PIECES! NOW MIX & MATCH VALUES TO 39¢ EA 10 FOR $1.00

FIRST QUALITY J.P. STEVEN TOWEL CLOSE-OUTS

COORDINATED KITCHEN ENSEMBLE

YOUR CHOICE DISHCLOTH OR POT HOLDER VALUE TO $1.79 79¢

MATCHING TOWEL VALUE $2.79 NOW $1.39 EA.

SOLID COLORS • BLUE • GREEN • BROWN • RED • YELLOW • RUST • VANILLA

VERSATILE PIT GROUP $348.88 SAVE $200.00 ALL 5 PCS.

MATTRESS AND FOUNDATION COMPLETE MATCHED SETS

THESE PRODUCTS ARE MANUFACTURED TO EXACT SPECIFICATIONS PRODUCT FOR PRODUCT • ITEM FOR ITEM • SPECIFICATION FOR SPECIFICATION AS THAT OF MAJOR BRANDS — ALL ARE FIRST QUALITY

TWIN SET $78.88 SET FULL SET $88.88 SET

SAVE 50% AND MORE ON EVERY SET IN STOCK!

2 PIECE HERCULON Living Room SOFA AND CHAIR TWEED FABRICS NOW $168.88

RAILROAD SALVAGE

VISA SALE ENDS OCT. 25TH

BECAUSE WE BUY CLOSEOUTS QUANTITIES ARE SUBSTANTIAL BUT NOT INEXHAUSTIBLE

Tonite at Changes

Enjoy the Increasingly Popular

LIP-SYNC CONTEST

Group Contestants also Welcome
$50 First Prize Tonite
6 Weeks Remaining until the Grand Finals
Starts at 11 PM Sharp!!

99¢ BAR DRINKS ALL NIGHT
25¢ Champagne till 10 with Dynasty

Halloween Costume Contest This Saturday
$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$ Cash Prizes $$$$$$$$$$$$$$$
Changes Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284

Slogan art

By CHARLES FRANCIS CARROLL
Collegian Staff

If anyone asked you if a political slogan in itself could be a work of art, you'd probably have your doubts. But Jenny Holzer's exhibit of "Truisms" and "Imflammatory Essays" at the University Gallery not only proves that polemics have their place in art galleries, but also that when put forth in a sophisticated way, a political slogan can attain the status of art.

The exhibit is comprised of three parts: "Imflammatory Essays," an entire wall papered with nine different extremist position papers, offset in different colors and arranged in vertical strips so that the colors move diagonally; "Truisms," another wall covered with one-line statements arranged alphabetically, expressing extreme points of view; and "Survival" texts, red diode LED signs flashing the truisms across their screens.

Holzer's posters and message boards attest to the manipulative power of media, but she has inverted the techniques of mass media to address her own concerns. To reproduce here selections from her work would be to take one poiont of view out of context of a multiplicity of viewpoints, but in one of the message board blurbs the artist states what I think is the underlying theme of her work: USE WHAT IS DOMINANT IN A CULTURE TO CHANGE IT QUICKLY. The critic Jean-Christophe Ammann proposes that Holzer's works "assert the difficulties with which one forms an opinion in an ambiguous situation and forces the reader to at least try to sort himself out."

The problem with such political suggestions in a conceptual framework is that it may not read simply enough. That is why we have narrative and documentary genres such as film. But the direct approach doesn't necessarily have to be the only way for art to affect change. In fact, many are unaffected by the explicit statement and require a more subtle force.

Holzer confronts our conventional reality by confounding it with a profusion of inflated truths which, in their very presentation ask us, if not force us, to question their validity, and furthermore the validity of a society which up holds slogans as truth. Without clearly spelling out her own beliefs (which could only be didactic in this medium) Holzer succeeds in conveying an anti-totalitarian concern for the world.

By abstracting ideas and presenting them en masse as commonly accepted truths, Holzer challenges the viewer to re-evaluate the usually passive position he has to mass media society. The dominant ideology of subjugation as expressed through language and art is seen as an elaborate hoax. We realize, not unlike Winston Smith before the Ministry of Truth, the doublespeak that true is false. Holzer's art is not neutral, but critical. But the only way for art to liberate is for us to see it. So I challenge my audience to view Jenny Holzer's "Truisms" and "Imflammatory Essays," to read them, to reflect upon them, and to react to them. The exhibit closes October 26.

Then get in on the ground floor in our undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start planning on a career like the men in this ad have. And also have some great advantages like:

- Earning $100 a month during the school year
- As a freshman or sophomore, you could complete your basic training during two six-week summer sessions and earn more than $1100 during each session
- Juniors earn more than $1900 during one ten-week summer session
- You can take free civilian flying lessons
- You're commissioned upon graduation

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start off making more than $17,000 a year.

Want to move up quickly?

We're looking for a few good men.

Marines

See your U.S. Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer in the Campus Center on October 29 and 30 or call collect (203) 722-2168.

MABS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION

RADIAL TIRE SALE

P155/80R13

$29.95 • Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax

North Amherst Tire & Auto Center "Full Service Tire Store" 78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA Across from Watrobe's Store 549-4704

LEARN TO FLY

FOR ½ TO ½ THE USUAL COST WITH DUNBAR AVIATION. CALL ANDREW DUNBAR AT NORTHAMPTON AIRPORT AND PEASE. BOTH LOCATIONS.

UNDERGRADUATES NEEDED NOW! 586-2577 or 253-3435

We all hate to mention that we're feeling some TENSION But come to the student STRESS MANAGEMENT & RELAXATION WORKSHOP and learn to unwind Tues. Oct. 30th 4-6 pm pre-registration required by noon 10/26 call 549-2671 ext 181 for further details

OOPS!

Now's the time to call...

North Amherst Motors Rt. 63 No. Amherst 549-2880

Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

ONE HOUR SERVICE (in most cases)

Eye Catching

STUDENT SAVINGS

New purchases only • Limit one pair per customer • Cannot be used in conjunction with other discounts

Bausch & Lomb Soft Contact Lenses $49
Full credit on the cost of the lenses if not satisfied • Professional and fitting fees not included
Coupon must be presented at time of purchase Expires 11-30-84 UM

$10 OFF any purchase of a complete pair of prescription eyeglasses ($49 value or more)
Coupon must be presented at time of purchase Expires 11-30-84 UM

Bausch & Lomb Extended Wear Contact Lenses $69 Reg. $149
"The lenses you can sleep with" 30 day trial wearing plan • Full credit within 30 days on lenses only if not satisfied • Eye exam, professional and fitting fees not included • SPH lenses only
Coupon must be presented at time of purchase Expires 11-30-84 UM

AMERICAN VISION CENTERS great eye care • great eyewear
Hadley • Hampshire Mall • 584-7958
Open M-Sat. 10-9
We accept major credit cards.

Hypercurricula

WILDLIFE SOCIETY MEETING — Dave Nelson will speak on the reintroduction of the Bald Eagle in Massachusetts at 7:00 p.m. in Rm. 312 Holdsworth Hall.

STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD — General meeting to discuss up and coming events. Anyone interested please feel free to attend at 5:30 p.m. in University Health Services Rm. 302.

25 PLUS CLUB MEETING AND SOCIAL — Come meet other older students at the Faculty Club (behind Morrill). Activities planned and elections held. 4-7 p.m. at the Faculty Club.

MORTAR BOARD MEETING — Mandatory meeting for Mortar Senior Class Honor Society members. Halloween fund raiser and other important topics to be discussed. ALL MEMBERS MUST ATTEND at 6:30 p.m. in CC 163.

CHI OMEGA SORORITY

All University Women Are Invited to Open Rush Parties at:
CHI OMEGA!!!!!
Monday: Oct. 22 Dinner Party 5:15 pm
Wednesday: Oct. 24 Dinner Party 5:15 pm
Thursday: Oct. 25 Halloween Party 7:00 pm
For rides and/or information call 545-0162 or 545-2092
Ask for Kristin or Lorrie!! Come on up for a great time!!

CAFFÈ ITALIANO
3RD FLOOR
HERTER
9-11

Shear Delight

Beauty Salon
228 Triangle St.
Amherst
549-1502
COMPLETE HAIRSTYLING FOR MEN and WOMEN

Hours: Tues-Sat
9:00-5:30
Walk Ins Welcome

WASH CUT & BLO-DRI $10
offer good thru 11/3/84 tny 512

YOU COULD BE LUCKY ENOUGH TO BUY A PAIR OF Ohm WALSH II DEMO'S FOR $299.95 A PAIR (THAT'S $700 OFF) ONLY AT ADIRONDACK MUSIC'S MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE at 1 AM

ADIRONDACK MUSIC'S MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE
FRIDAY NOON THROUGH SAT 6 PM
"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-3100

Hypercurricula

ANTI-RACISM TEAM MTG — A group of people dedicated to learning more about personal and institutional racism is looking for new members - come and learn how we can move this society from Racism to Pluralism. Film and discussion at 4:30 p.m. in CC 177.

THE RISE OF SOLIDARITY 1970-1982 — Roman Laba, doctoral candidate at the University of Wisconsin will present a slide lecture on his first-hand study of the workers' movement in Poland at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium 61.

BEYOND WAR — Those interested in learning about Beyond War and the new mode of thinking required for survival, please attend from 7-9:30 p.m. in CC 171.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING — Every Wednesday night in the Commonwealth Room, S.U., at 7:30 p.m. for beginners, 8:30 p.m. all others. Everyone welcome!

MINORITY ENGINEERING CAREER DAY — There will be an engineering career day on General Dynamics, GTE and about 30 other companies will be represented. All engineering students are encouraged to attend from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

FIRST SPANISH CLUB TERTULIA — The Spanish Club invites everyone to its first tertulia at the 4th floor lobby of Herter Hall. Come and speak Spanish with us! Refreshments served. 2:30-4 p.m., 4th floor lobby, Herter HallRALLY/INFORMATIONAL SESSION ON YALE CLERICAL WORKERS STRIKE — There will be a rally and informational meeting about the Yale clerical workers strike. Members of Local 37 from Yale will be speaking from 12-1 p.m. at CC 101.

PEOPLE'S GAY ALLIANCE RAP GROUP — The Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Men and Women's Counseling Collective sponsored discussion "on topic "Issues of Homosexual Visibility on Campus" at 7:30 p.m. in PGA Office.

BLACK WOMEN'S SUPPORT GROUP — For more information and to register, please contact Everywoman's Center by calling 545-0883.

The best has a taste all its own.

A taste that's not easy to find. It's something you have to strive for. In everything you do. And when you've done it, when you've found the best in yourself, taste it in the beer you drink. Ask for Bud Light.®

Bring out your best.

BUD LIGHT BEER Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

CALL
CAMPUS
AUTO PARTS
549-3945
FOR VERA VERA
ORIGINAL QUALITY IMPORT CAR PARTS
IMPORT CAR PARTS

YOU WON'T BE SORRY WHEN YOU INSTALL THE REAL THING! We carry Vera Imported Car Parts ... the original quality parts from Japan, England and Western Europe ... made precisely to maintain your car's original performance!

AUTHORIZED SUPPLIER
VERA VERA
ORIGINAL QUALITY IMPORT CAR PARTS

Campus Auto Parts
107 Sunderland Road
No. Amherst

The store where you get the real thing!

HEALTH & BEAUTY
SALE

all items available in the mini store

$1.25 4.6 oz. reg. $1.62
Aim FLUORIDE MINT FLAVORED TOOTHPASTE
REGULAR AND MINT FLAVOR

Shampoo and Conditioner 7 oz. $1.63 reg. $2.59

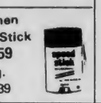
Good News Razor 6 pack $1.19 reg. $2.22

Umsol-4 $2.19 4 oz. reg. $3.27

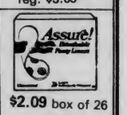
$.79 reg. $1.19

$2.75 6 oz. reg. $3.69

Mennen Speed Stick $1.59 reg. $2.39



Vanishing or Tinted Formula $1.89 6.5 oz. reg. 2.59



$2.09 box of 26 reg. scented or unscented

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 10-3

Introducing DOUBLE MANUFACTURER'S COUPONS on all Health and Beauty Aids Products

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

ATTENTION
All ON-CAMPUS RESIDENTS
EMERGENCY NOTIFICATION!!

A potentially dangerous situation has arisen which, for the safety of all on-campus residents, must be corrected immediately. Recently the Residence Halls have been the target of an unauthorized advertising campaign linked to a local pizza restaurant. They have wrongfully distributed telephone "stick-ons" which indicate incorrect emergency telephone numbers to be used by on-campus residents in the event of Police or Fire emergencies. These stickers, which bear the name of La Mia Pizza, of Amherst, must NOT be used and should be immediately discarded. In the event of a true emergency such misleading information could result in the tragic loss of life or property.

THE CORRECT TELEPHONE NUMBER FOR ALL ON-CAMPUS EMERGENCIES IS 545-3111, the number for the University Department of Public Safety.

The Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, Housing Services, and the Residential Committee urgently request your help in removing and preventing the use of these misleading stickers. We also strongly urge all residents to take the time to re-familiarize themselves with the correct safety procedures as stated in the RESIDENCE HALL MANUAL and other authorized publications.

Thank you for your attention and cooperation in correcting this potentially hazardous situation.

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

HEY, MARK! BIG BREAK, BUDDY. GUESS WHO'S BEEN CHOSEN TO ASK THE HELICOPTER QUESTION TODAY?
HELICOPTER QUESTION? WHAT'S THAT?
IT'S THE QUESTION WE SHOUT AT REAGAN AS HE WALKS OUT TO THE HELICOPTER ON THE SOUTH LAWN.
TRADITIONALLY, SAM DONALDSON HANDLES THE HELICOPTER QUESTION, BUT HE'S OUT SICK TODAY, SO YOU'VE BEEN GIVEN THE NOD.
WAIT A MINUTE! WHAT HAPPENED TO SENIORITY?
ME? I'M SUBBING FOR THE HUMAN BULLHORN?
SAM PICKED YOU PERSONALLY.
©B Trudeau

Today's Weather

Today: rain ending in the morning, mostly cloudy in the afternoon with highs in the 50s Tonight: Clearing skies with lows in the 30s. Tommorrow: Partly sunny and cool with highs in the 50s.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

MR. CANDIDATE... PLEASE EXPLAIN YOUR POSITION ON TAX INDEXING.
ACKPHFT.
THUMP!
THE ANSWER WAS FINE BUT WE CAN'T HAVE THAT SLOUCHING!
EASY... I'LL TALK TO HIM, MILO...

Twenty questions for Frank

Do you have a question for Frank Zappa?

If you do, bring it down to the Collegian office c/o Jack Bresnahan

Twenty of these questions will be selected, so make yours good.

Deadline: Friday, Oct 26

Gorde — by Gorde

AHH! A FINE AUTUMN BREEZE IN THE AIR. EH, MILADY?
MM-HMM.
WHY DO I FEEL AS THOUGH SOMETHINGS ABOUT TO HAPPEN?
SMASH!
EEEK!
ARTHER!
HIT IN THE HEAD BY A FLOWER POT! HOW DEGRATING!!! LES, WHO'S ARTHUR?
G-GORDE! NO!!!
ZAMBOOKA! MY ROOMMATE HATH RETURNED!
MY HAT IS SOILED! LESLIE IS CALLING ME "ARTHUR?" I DO NOT UNDERSTAND!!! SOMEONE PLEASE EXPLAIN!!!
A TACKY ENDING TO A STUPID STORY?

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Clerks' concerns
5 Kind of detector
10 Bridge term
14 Sharp
15 Sets the tempo
16 Informality
17 Inter ——
18 Concerning
19 Title in mideast lands
20 US military leadership (with "The")
22 Foolish
24 Western footballers
25 Hebrew measure
26 Goes around
29 Pleasant, welcome
33 Chorister's concerns
34 —— lux (Let there be light)
35 Finished
36 Mine product
37 Veil material
38 Motorists' abbr.
39 Comparative endings
41 Family mems.
42 Movings
44 Marsh plants
46 Hard as nails?
47 Historic periods
48 Disappear
49 Athlete's problem
52 Separation
56 School, for short
57 Fireplace
59 Super
60 Virginia of tennis
61 In the future
62 Seine sights
63 Type of battery Abbr.
64 Washstand items
65 Minimalist word

DOWN
1 An easy job
2 Ubangi feeder
3 Most important
4 Eminence
5 Puts on an act
6 Mythological king of Crete
7 Augury
8 Understanding
9 Calculate
10 Is angry
11 Himalayan holy man
12 "It's —— to tell..."
13 Simple
21 Courtroom personages, for short
23 Bag for a marketer
25 Collegian's concerns
26 Patient person
27 Eastern peninsula
28 Sluggish
29 Fish features
30 Strong point
31 Up to 32 Not sure of 34 Gas and oil
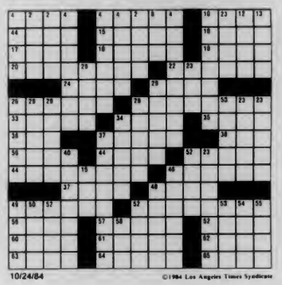
37 Bermuda or love
40 Shellfish
42 Gudrun's husband
43 Cast off
45 Biblical lion
46 Breaks off
48 Bishop's headdress
49 —— up
50 Builder's map
51 Change the decor
52 Calendar notation
53 Hercules' captive
54 Individuals
55 Headland
58 Weather word

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

P	O	G	O		E	R	A	S		G	A	T	E	S
A	M	O	R		R	O	U	T		I	R	A	N	I
R	A	N	D		G	O	T	U	P	I	N	E	R	V
C	R	E	E	L		M	O	D	E		A	Z	O	V
		W	R	O	T	E		E	K	E		A	V	E
A	L	I		P	E	R		N	O	M	A	N
M	A	T	T	E	R	S		T	E	U	T	O	N	S
A	C	H	E							I	F	I	T
N	I	E	T	Y	L	E	O		B	R	I	L	L	E
		H	E	I	N	E		A	E	R		H	E	P
A	I	R		P	O	P		N	O	O	S	E
R	O	W	E		C	L	O	O		N	E	A	T	H
U	P	I	N	T	H	E	A	I	R		E	P	E	E
B	E	N	O	A		T	R	E	Y		T	E	A	M
A	R	D	O	R		E	S	S	E		O	S	L	O

10/24/84



10/24/84 ©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

WOW VIC, THAT'S AMAZING...
CHECK...
I'VE NEVER SEEN A SLUG PLAY CHESS BEFORE.
OH, IT'S NOTHING, REALLY, I MEAN HE'S NOT VERY GOOD...
BIO MARVEL
ALTHOUGH... UM... HE SOMETIMES GETS LUCKY.
LUCKY?! HAH! CHECKMATE AGAIN!

Bat Brain — By Bill Dearing

I'm SORRY MR BRAIN, BUT BECAUSE YOU GOT TO SCHOOL SO LATE, YOU HAVE LOST YOUR HOUSEING, AND WE HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO FIND YOU SWING SPACE.
HOWEVER, I SPOKE WITH THE HEAD OF THE UNIVERSITY, AND ONE OF HIS FRIENDS HAS ALLOWED YOU TO STAY WITH HIM.
WELCOME MR. BRAIN. WE'VE BEEN EXPECTING YOU!
I THINK I'LL SLEEP IN THE CAR.

Yesthead — By Jason Talerman

I don't know what to do with my life.
Yesthead doesn't know what to do with his life.
I have direction ... not at all
He's failed at everything he's done, so...
I guess I'll become a Rock + Roll front-man.
he might as well become a rock+roll legend.

D.C. Menu

Lunch
Country Broil Sandwich
Royal Zucchini Beef Parmesan

Basics Lunch
The Salad Sandwich
Carrot, Broccoli, Cauliflower, Quiche

Dinner
Braised Beef and Onions
Mushroom-pepperoni Pizza
D.C. ICE CREAM PARLOR

Basics Dinner
Sauteed Tofu and Snow Peas
Mushroom Pizza
D.C. ICE CREAM PARLOR

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX MUST BEGIN TO RETURN UNSOLD FALL COURSE BOOKS TO THE PUBLISHERS

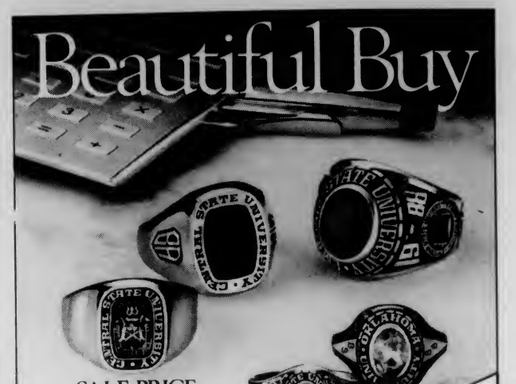
RETURNS START
OCTOBER 25

DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK - YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!

TEXTBOOK ANNEX
HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

the UNIVERSITY STORE's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

Beautiful Buy



SALE PRICE
$99.95
This Week!

SILADIUM® COLLEGE RINGS

Your college ring is now more affordable than ever. Save on an incredible variety of Siladium ring styles with custom features that express your taste and achievements. Each Siladium ring is custom made, with careful attention to detail. And every ArtCarved ring is backed by a Full Lifetime Warranty. Don't miss out. It's the perfect time to get a beautiful buy on a great college ring. See your ArtCarved representative soon.

ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS INC
UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center

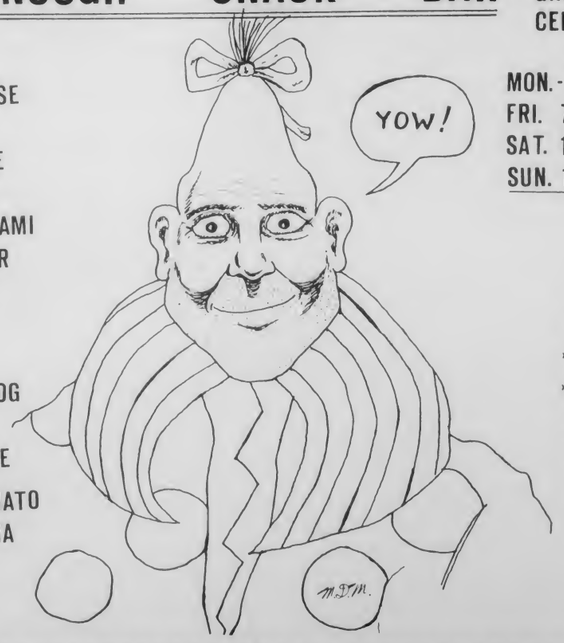
Oct. 24-26 | 9 am - 5 pm | Place
Date | Time
Deposit Required. Master Card or Visa Accepted

© 1984 ArtCarved Class Rings, Inc.

GREENOUGH SNACK BAR

GREENOUGH DORM
CENTRAL AREA : UMASS

STEAK & CHEESE
ROAST BEAST
HAM & CHEESE
TURKEY
LOUIS PASTEURAMI
CHEESEBURGLER
HAMBURGLER
TUNA
VEGIE
HOT DIGGITY DOG
SALADS
GRILLED CHEESE
W/TOMATO
W/TUNA
BAGELS
MUNCHIES



MON.-THURS. 7:00 » 12:00
FRI. 7:00 » 1:00
SAT. 1:00 » 1:00
SUN. 1:00 » 12:00

HOT FUDGE SUNDAES
BROWNIE » » ALA MODE » DELIGHT SHAKE
FLOAT
ICE CREAM

WE'VE GOT A SNACK FOR YOU!

Sutcliffe named NL Cy Young

NEW YORK AP Rick Sutcliffe, who helped turn the Chicago Cubs from losers into winners this season as his own career took a dramatic turn, was unanimously elected the National League's 1984 Cy Young Award winner, it was announced Tuesday.

He was the first unanimous selection since Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies won his second Cy Young award in 1977. Only Sandy Koufax and Bob Gibson had been previous unanimous selections - Koufax in 1963, '65 and '66

UM harriers meet expectations

Water Polo takes third, intramural hockey starts

Weekend leftovers...

The University of Massachusetts cross country teams had the weekend they expected with the women finishing third in a four-way meet and the men taking fourth in the Atlantic 10 championships in Philadelphia.

For the men, West Virginia took top honors with the first five runners being Mountaineers. Penn State placed five of the next six with St. Joseph's coming in third.

The Minutemen had Paul Stanislawsik in 13th, freshman Bill Stewart was 18th and Jack Marinilli was 25th.

Coach Ken O'Brien said he "anticipated"a fourth place finish and felt it was a good effort by the young UMass squad.

For the women, Sally Howes was eighth in a four team meet pitting UNH, URI and Vermont against UMass.

URI took the meet with UNH second. Other UMass finishers included Lauren Heyl (12th) Sarah Kitchell (13) and Diedre Doyle (15th).

The water polo team took third place in the six team league tournament in Brown, winning only two of their five games in a disappointing effort.

"We just rested on our laurels out there," said coach Russ Yarworth. "We weren't mentally ready to play."

The Minutemen defeated Columbia 8-6, lost to Yale in overtime, 11-10, lost to Harvard 9-2, lost to powerful Brown 15-2 and beat MIT 11-7. Paul McNeil and Mike Hoover provided much of the UMass offense with Fred Maruis playing well in goal. Phil Surette did the job defensively according to Yarworth, who was recently named director of UMass aquatics, he will stay on as men's swim coach.

The UMass intercollegiate riding team took third behind good Mount Holyoke and Smith teams in their first meet last week at Smith.

A host to UMass riders placed highly in the five levels of competition with coach Anne Young taking second in the highest level, the open category, in the flat class.

Intramural notes...The ice hockey season is well under way at Amherst's Orr Rink and defending champions, The Nads, began their season with a 6-5 decision over The Stickers.

The Stickers, The Blades and The Balls are expected to fight for the Nads title along with the impressive unit from Phi Sig. Mass Consumption and Yukon Jack are also tough.

Both UMass crew teams concluded their official fall schedules at the head of the Charles Sunday, with the women placing twenty-fifth overall while the men placed thirtieth in their divisions.

Though neither squad appeared to have performed up to expectations, the consensus was that both teams are certain bets for improvement in the spring.

[Collegian reporters Chris Tremblay, Mike Levine and John Nolan contributed to this story.]

14th ANNUAL BUSH BASH

UMASS SKI CLUB
SUGARBUSH VALLEY
SKI & PARTY WEEK
JAN. 20 - 25

Trip Includes:
5 1/2 DAY LIFT TICKET (2 Mountains)
5 NIGHTS LODGING
CONDO (on the mountain)
HOTEL(1/2 mile to mountain)
CONTINENTAL BREAKFAST (hotel only)
VALUABLE COUPON BOOK
FAMOUS UMASS PARTIES
ALL TAXES AND GRATUITIES

CONDO PACKAGE only $194
HOTEL PACKAGE only $149

LAGNAF 85

FIRST 100 SKIERS TO SIGN-UP ARE ELIGIBLE FOR A FREE TRIP

ALL SKIERS SIGNED-UP BEFORE NOV. 1 WILL RECEIVE A FREE (SUGARBUSH VALLEY / LAGNAF) T-SHIRT

NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

FOR MORE INFO 545-3437 430 STUDENT UNION

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden
Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE

The Best Chinese Food
Try Our New
Luncheon Specials From $2.25 served 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

and
New Buffet & Sunday Brunch ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Buffet Served 5-8 Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served Sunday 11:30-3
Children under 10 $3.00

1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot & Sour Soup

Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.

10 Belchertown Road
at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500. serious call only 549-7854

1974 Chevy Nova 79,000 mi. runs well, new muffler $950 call 586-9128

72 Audi 5800 running condition Larry 549-6051

Audi Fox 76 runs mint new tires body good, $1500 negotiable 5-5184

1978 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $695 BO 256-6121

1980 Citation 57,000 mi, 4 spd, very good condition call evenings 546-1050

BAHGAIN!

Toshiba Walkman AM/FM Cassette new earphones and adapter $75 call 665-7557

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $5-7 an hour. Must be 18 or older. Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

Rock A Disc Rock-A-Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area 549-7144

FOUND

One gold eearring in NOPE women's pool locker room if you think it's yours, call 546-1281

24 hour bank card. Call to identify where and when lost and what bank. Jean 549-7676

Found 10 speed bicycle in Townehouse apartment area for information call Gerry at 549-0572

Found at Colonial Village Sunday Oct 21 male gray tiger kitten with stitches!! Please call 253-2251, he wants to go home

Keychain found after Ferraro Rally near Hegus Mall. Has two keys & Mondale button on it. Call Ellen 549-6378

Approximately 4 month old Siamese kitten found on 10/19 Townehouse area be able to identify 546-9731 or 549-5613

GAY

The People's Gay Alliance hosts a social hour each Wed from 3 to 5. Business meetings are at 6:30 each Thurs. Check the Campus center schedule for room numbers. New people are welcome and encouraged to attend!

HALLOWGRAMS

Send a friend a cookiegram for Halloween $1.00, order Tuesday-Thursday 10-4. Find out if you've been treated in Collegian October 31

HAYRIDES

Attention Party Goers, RA's, Sororities, Chaperons. Party on our Haywagon. Bonfire after ride. Info. and Reserv Westfield Stables 247-9098

HELP WANTED

Now taking applications for full and part time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

The Campus Center Board of Governors needs you! The BOG needs a Building Operations Coordinator. Duties include overseeing building problems and general policies effecting students within the CC/SUB complex. This is a paid position. For more info: BOG Office 817 Campus Center

Managers needed for Sporting Goods Co-op. Gain valuable experience: buying, selling, advertising, scheduling, hiring & payroll. Applications available in 407 SUB Deadline is October 25, 5:00 AA/EOE

Help Wanted. Day shift. Apply in person after 5 PM Bell's Pizza 85 University Drive

Part-time position available for college student to represent travel company on campus. Earn commission, free travel and work experience. Contact Beachcomber Tours, Inc. 1325 Millersport Highway, Williamsville, New York 14221 (716) 632-3723

Part time labors in Hatfield. Some mornings some afternoons. Tel. no. 247-5801

Reward free trip to Daytona plus commisson money. Wanted: organized group or individual to promote the #1 spring break trip to Daytona. If you are interested in our reward call (414) 781-3355 or 1-800-453-9074 immediately! Or write Designers of Travel, N 48W 13334 W. Hampton Ave., Menomonee Falls, WI 53051

Residential Assistants and relief workers needed for an apartment program in Belchertown serving people with developmental disabilities. Call Mendian Associates at 323-6872 for more information EOE/AA

Drivers Wanted earn $6-9 an hour. Must have own car. Apply in person. College Pizza 173 Sunset Ave.

Open House Nursing Students/Nurse's Aides free gifts wine and cheese cider and donuts check us out! October 30th 1:30 pm to 4:30 pm Medical Personnel Pool 13 Old South Street Center Northampton 586-7366

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

Legal Assistants Wanted The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. Get hands on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals, preparation for Federal and State Court litigation, attendance at court hearings, and participation in administrative hearings. Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. To apply, for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO 922 Campus Center

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4096 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Gold ladies watch at Changes on 10/4 if found please call Pam at 253-7482 high sentimental value

An AIWA radio/tape/walkman on Friday 12 indentifiable reward 546-1223

Last week Tuesday, brown camera case pocket calculator, eraser, pencils inside. Friday dorm key Key ring "Record Bar". Contact John 6-7145

PERSONALS

Dog Home Wanted loveable white beigle-shepard needs home desperately. Housebroken call JR @ 253-7987 or 545-0341 anytime

Dana, Greg & Paul. Hope you had as much fun as we did on Saturday night! Randee, Hope, & Tara

Michael I'll always love you. Julie

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

To all Ang going to Barnes Oct 27 and 28, I need a ride. Will help with gas. Call Rick at 546-5667

Albany NY or SUNY Friday October 26 will share expenses please call Beth 549-3740

ROOMMATE WANTED

To share master bedroom & private bath with a male in a house with large kitchen, living room and game room. 150/mo + utilities 253-9692

$200 a month includes utilities one minute from bus line call 584-2673 Northampton

Non-smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344 253-3766

VOLLEYBALL

Players interested in competitive volleyball The Pioneer Valley Volleyball Club practices Wednesday 7-9 PM at Leeds school. Call 584-7577 for directions

WANTED TO RENT

One bedroom apartment close to campus. Will take over lease in January. Please call Jim 549-7852

The buses will roll to Springfield

UM fans will pay $3 for trip to see men's hoop

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts assistant athletic director Chet Gladchuck announced yesterday that the school will provide bus service to men's basketball games at the Springfield Civic Center this season.

The team is playing in Springfield due to renovations at the Curry Hick's Cage at UMass. The Minutemen will play eleven of their 27 games in Springfield.

The buses will leave from Boyden Gymnasium beginning an hour and a half before game time for 30 minutes. All students riding the buses will have to have tickets good for a round trip prior to boarding. Tickets will cost $3.00.

"I feel this is the best way to get students to the game in a quick and easy manner," Gladchuck said. "Hopefully the team will do well and we'll see a lot of people at the games."

The Civic Center holds about 8,000 for basketball and Gladchuck said under the contract with Western Mass Bus Lines, everyone wanting to go to the game will be able to go.

"We have unlimited buses available from Western Mass plus up to eight from the UMass transit system people, if there's an overflow. Everyone who buys a ticket will get on a bus," Gladchuck said.

Each bus holds 40 people and on game days they will leave Boyden as they fill up. The last bus will leave one hour prior to the game. UMass night games start at 7:30 p.m. the four Saturday games are at 2 p.m. There are four home games during Intersession.

"Buses will be available for every home game," Gladchuck said. "But the ticket is non-refundable so we can get an accurate count of buses we'll need on game days. The ticket is transferable."

Tickets to the game will be available from the UMass ticket office and at the Civic Center. Any student with an identification card will be given a free ticket to the game. Bus tickets can be purchased at Boyden in the ticket office or in the Student Union at the Tix window near the post office.

"Students must have a ticket to board the bus," said Gladchuck. "Alcohol will not be allowed on the bus at all times and if there are any disruptions, Western Mass will terminate the contract. We're counting on fans to be orderly."

Tickets for both the game and the bus will be available up to seven days prior to the game. At 3 p.m. on game days, they will become available at the Civic Center and students may show an ID there and obtain a ticket.

After the game, buses will leave immediately and then randomly as they fill up until an hour after the game.

The women's team will play three games in the Civic Center and 10 games at Amherst College. Plans have yet to be finalized for those contests regarding transportation.

"The logistics were hard to figure out," Gladchuck said. "But the athletic department feels that this is the best way. The cost is minimal considering tickets to the actual game are free."

Sports

There will be an important meeting for all Stockbridge Basketball candidates on Thursday Oct. 25 at 4:30 in Room 223 Boyden. Practice begins Monday Oct. 29 at 6:15 in NOPE.

Southern Conn drops UMass

Playoff hopes fade...

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

They came as advertised.

Ask any well informed collegiate soccer coach in New England who the best team in the state of Connecticut is and chances are the response won't be UConn or Yale. Rather, the answer will be Southern Connecticut, a Division II school from New Haven who is the top ranked team in its division in New England, as well as a top ten team nationally.

Yesterday on Boyden Field, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team experienced the underpublicized talents of the Owls, losing 1-0. The lone goal came at 36:28 of the first half when SC's Juan Vargas dribbled through four UMass defenders, had a shot blocked by UM goalie Don Donahue, and Elias Zurita collected the rebound and drilled it into the unguarded net.

Utilizing a controlled, short passing game that features fancy footwork on the part of its players, most of whom hail from the New York City vicinity, SC was able to dictate the tempo and keep UMass from generating any real offensive opportunities until the final 20 minutes when the Minutemen went full-throttle in a vain attempt to tie the game and keep its slim playoff hopes alive.

"Our plan of attack is to control the ball and take what the defense gives us," said SC coach A. Robert Dikranian.

"Offensively, they had low pressure, so we were able to build out and do an effective job. If UMass pressures and wins ball at midfield and counters, then it's their type of game.

Were it not for outstanding goaltending by Don Donahue, SC easily could have scored several more goals in the first half. Zurita had two near-misses at the 22 and 19-minute marks, while Vargas kicked the ball over the net in another sequence. At the other end, fullbacks Chris Tolkin and Jack Theluspa made life easy for goalie Joe Messier by knocking back any UMass advance that ventured near the Owl goal.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

UMass midfielder John Shannon is dumped by Southern Connecticut's Chris Greene in soccer action at Boyden yesterday. UMass lost to SC, 1-0.

In the attempt to tie, UMass applied continuous pressure for the final twenty minutes, but came up empty. With 15 minutes left, Tom Giordano was denied from point blank range by Messier, while Andy Bing and Paul Ricard also had opportunities slip by.

"If we had played a little better earlier in the game we would have been a little better off later than getting into a panic situation," said UMass coach Jeff Gettler. "When that happens you're pressing and everything has got to be the last chance. Too bad we didn't find the ingredient to play better a little earlier in the game."

UMass switched to a high-pressure, man-to-man game late in the first half in an attempt to disrupt the free-flowing Owls. The tactic, built upon a gambling, aggressive defense, resulted in improved play for the Minutemen in the second half.

"We didn't have the ball a lot early in the game," said Gettler. "It's like a football team that takes a ten-minute drive. You can't score when your offense doesn't have the ball. When we switched over to high pressure, things improved."

Field hockey holds on to beat Green

Canniff scores winner as UMass takes 2-1 decision

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

With all scoring taking place in the first half, the University of Massachusetts field hockey team shut down Dartmouth College in the second half to preserve a 2-1 victory, raising UMass' record to 12-3 yesterday in Hanover, New Hampshire.

UMass midfielder Pam Moryl

"We played steady; nothing flashy," said UMass coach Pam Hixon. "We played well enough to win but we didn't do anything outstanding. But we kept the lead and that's what we had to do."

Going into the game Hixon was not sure what to expect since Dartmouth has had a very inconsistent year, playing hot and cold throughout their season. Hixon did anticipate that Dartmouth would be quick, hit hard, and challenge UMass forwards with a strong goal keeper in Torrey Parrot.

Otherwise, Hixon would have held to her normal practice of waiting until game time to see what problems her team's opponent presented then finalizing her game plan.

Her expectations held true and so did her approach.

In the first half Dartmouth used its speed and aggressiveness to open up play, thus creating a wide open midfield game.

Also, Parrot provided a strong opposing force.

Despite the scrappiness of the Dartmouth attack, the Minutemen drew first blood with the team's leading scorer, freshman forward Tonia Kennedy scoring unassisted at 18:50. It was Kennedy's thirteenth tally of the season.

Dartmouth responded with a goal at 7:11. Foward Allison Barlow succeeded in putting a shot past UMass goalie Lynn Carlson.

Sophomore forward, Erin Canniff scored the winning goal for the Minutemen with 1:30 on the clock.

"In the second half we tried to control the ball more and we tried not to let them get so deep into our territory. We countered their long ball (long pass) and tried to get them to take the ball down the middle of the field where it's more congested, as opposed to the sidelines," said Hixon.

Hixon's strategy worked as Dartmouth only took two shots in the second half.

Hixon felt her team's troubles in the first half stemmed from the fact that UMass was not accustomed to playing teams that used the long ball as frequently as Dartmouth did.

"But in the second half we adjusted and controlled the ball very well. We play better when we have a chance to react," she said.

UMass outshot Dartmouth 29 to nine. All Dartmouth shots were on target as Carlson saved eight. Parrot had a strong day for Dartmouth, saving fifteen UMass shots (twelve went wide). UMass was awarded ten penalty corners, Dartmouth only three. UMass now has a few days to rest until they play Boston University next Tuesday at NOPE field at 2:30 p.m.

Sports at a glance

UMass Schedule:
Volleyball: Smith, Boyden, 7 p.m.

Check out today's Collegian Fall Fashion Review

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 31 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, October 25, 1984

Louis' Foods gets approval for rezoning

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

The Amherst town meeting voted 129-57 after two hours of debate in favor of a zoning change that will allow Louis' Foods to move their downtown location to the corner of Amity Street and University Drive.

According to store manager Richard Vincent, this space is "the only viable site for the future Louis' Foods."

The lease on the current downtown site expires in July and it is "now no longer economically feasible" for the store to remain, according to Ralph Sullivan, a representative of the Freedom Bank which owns the land.

Alan Root, speaking in opposition to the motion, said that the new location would be economically unsuccessful because it is so close to the Price Chopper and Super Stop and Shop supermarkets. He added that once the land is designated a limited business zone, a liquor store could move in. The move will also create traffic problems because the store will have two parking exits on Amity Street, he said.

Root said that he had a petition against the motion signed by 604 people, not all from the Amherst area.

Robert Weiner said about 200 older and handicapped residents like to walk the half-mile to get their food. "Nothing he's telling us proves that he (Vincent) is losing money," he said. This is a potential disaster, bad town planning, and bad zoning, he said.

Frederick Rice said the bank which owns the land feels they can get triple the current rent. "Dick Vincent believes sincerely that his success depends on moving Louis'," he said. As former chair of the planning board he said, "I'm opposed because it's poor zoning. Downtown is becoming too high priced for small volume businesses like Louis'," he said.

On Monday night, a motion requesting that the Town Manager and the Chief of Police "develop a program for the consistant enforcement" of bicycle laws, was passed.

A motion to extend the life of the Rent Control Study Commission to March 1, 1985, was also passed.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

1313 MOCKINGBIRD LANE?—No, Herman Munster doesn't live here, it's the Stockbridge Fraternity decorated for Halloween and aglow on North Pleasant St.

SGA Senators unanimously demand new safety steps

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate, taking steps to decrease the number of campus rapes, last night unanimously passed a motion demanding that University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey "act immediately" on their recommendations to provide more lighting and police monitoring of "hazardous areas."

The motion also calls for the formation of a task force comprised of representatives from senate, administration, public safety, and Student Center for Education and Research Advocacy (SCERA) women's groups to meet Monday to finalize details on improvements in lighting, police patroling, and emergency phone availability.

Senators spent about 1¼ hours hammering out a suitable reading of the motion.

Grayson senator Robert Griffin, told the senate that he felt these improvements were necessary because he "heard that two rapes" had occurred within the past week near the access road connecting Worcester DC and Orchard Hill residential areas.

UMass police have denied that these rapes happened.

Griffin and Orchard Hill Area Government representative Greg Fink originally asked the senate to vote for their proposal asking Duffey to increase lighting and place more emergency phones along the access road, the fire path connecting Orchard Hill and Sylvan Residential Areas near the observatory.

Student Government Association co-president Rick Patrick said that the money to provide these services should be available, because "the Board of Trustees already has $1 million committed to additional lighting," and that the administration should agree to the senate plan "because it is working for us, the students."

Pizzeria ads misleading dorm students

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Incorrect emergency phone numbers have been given to University of Massachusetts dormitory students by an Amherst pizzeria, says the Housing Services director.

In response, UMass administrators placed a half page ad in yesterday's Collegian, explaining that the emergency numbers on La Mia's Pizza's advertising stickers are invalid for on-campus phones, and said UMass will soon distribute their own stickers.

The stickers list 911 as being the number for "Fire" and "Police". These numbers will not work when dialed from an on-campus phone. The correct phone number for an on-campus emergency is 545-3111. The third number on the stickers is La Mia's business number.

The manager of La Mia's, Fraggiusto Bonzoni, said yesterday that he was unaware the 911 phone numbers provided wouldn't work for on-campus phones and said that "the stickers were mainly for families living in Amherst."

"We mailed these to our regular customers," Bonzoni said, "because they appreciate them," but he said they were also distributed throughout the University campus.

Gerald A. Quarles, director of University Housing Services, said that the stickers first came to the administration's attention last week.

"The stickers had been plastered all over the walls in the residential areas to the point where it became absurd," Quarles said.

Quarles said that the University administration was trying to determine exactly who was responsible for distributing the stickers because "if on-campus students try to get help by dialing 911, (they'll) get zip."

"We're trying to get 7,000 new stickers printed up, with the correct information within the next two weeks," Quarles said, noting his concern that next semester's students may try to use the incorrect information from these stickers.

Inside

Aquino report released.....p.2

No showers for Orchard Hill.....p.3

Napping woman robbed.....p.3

Grenada invader wonders why....p.7

"Some people see things as they are and ask 'Why?', I say, see things as they could be and ask 'Why not?'"
— Robert Francis Kennedy

Rally today protests invasion of Grenada

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

A rally protesting intervention in foreign countries will be held today at noon outside the Student Union Building in recognition of the anniversary of the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

Sponsored by the Radical Student Union (RSU) as part of a nation-wide protest, the rally will feature speakers Michael Thelwell from Afro-American Studies, visiting professor of English Julius Lester and Ingrid Bracey.

The protest is a direct response to a rally at Amherst College today, according to RSU member Mitch Gaslin.

Gaslin said last night that the Amherst rally, which is sponsored and paid for by the

Continued on Page 3

Collegian photo by Brian Genyo

CIDER STAND— Fall's here, so Louise Spinner, Chuck Tanner, Kate Singer, Ben Murphy and Dwight Bristoe dig into doughnuts, apples and hot apple cider outside the Student Union Building.

Investigation over

Phillipine general steps down

MANILA An investigatory board on Wednesday accused armed forces chief Gen. Fabian C. Ver of complicity in the assassination of Benigno Aquino, and Ver temporarily stepped down. Opposition leaders called for President Ferdinand E. Marcos to resign.

Marcos accepted the request of his most trusted and powerful military officer for a leave of absence, but supported Ver's claim of innocence of involvement in the Aug 21, 1983, killing of the opposition leader and Rolando Galman, the man the military said shot Aquino.

The board, in a 457-page report, claimed Aquino and Galman were killed in a military conspiracy involving Ver, two other generals, two colonels, three captains, 17 other soldiers, and one civilian.

It said the military's elaborate plan to protect Aquino as he returned from voluntary exile from the United States was a "gigantic" hoax "in reality designed to camouflage the taking of that life." Aquino was shot in the head while under military escort at Manila's main airport, and Galman was gunned down shortly after by police.

Marcos said he believed Ver's record would survive a trial and told Ver in a letter that "the circumstances under which the board has chosen to implicate you in its findings are fraught with doubt and great contradictions of opinion and testimony."

It was the first time since Marcos assumed authoritarian powers in 1972 that a civilian non-opposition body had so openly challenged the military, Marcos' chief support.

Digest

By The Associated Press

Reagan masks popular

BOSTON –Forget ghouls and goblins. This Halloween, the owner of the country's largest costume shop says Ronald Reagan and Richard Nixon masks are selling like crazy, along with Michael Jackson gloves at $14.95 a shot. Mr. T and his gold chains are very popular, but remarkably few customers want to look like Walter Mondale or Geraldine Ferraro.

"Reagan is a very, very big seller. I say we sell about 12 a day, even more than that," David Bertolino said Wednesday at his store Little Jack Horner.

"And Nixon is hot. Easily as popular as Reagan, Bertolino continued. "I guess people still love to hate him. Sometimes they come in and buy the Nixon mask and then buy handcuffs or a ball-and-chain to go with it."

AP Laserphoto

Sam Bertolino, left, owner of a Boston area costume shop, sports one of his best-selling masks, Richard Nixon, while a customer sports a Mr. T model as they stroll down a Boston street Wednesday.

Vietnam veteran seeking release

NORTHAMPTON - Another bail hearing will be sought for a Vietnam veteran, who was ordered held without bail Wednesday pending his trial on charges of burning a Buddhist temple in the Berkshire Hills, the veteran's attorney said.

Maintaining his client, Richard Papineau, 35, of Hartford, Conn., "wants help," attorney Stuart Steinberg of Northampton said if Papineau is released, he would work to get him into a treatment program.

Papineau was the last of three veterans charged with torching the little shrine last December at Hawley to appear in state court.

The three maintained they set the fire while on a weekend pass from the Veterans Administration Hospital in Northampton to call attention to nine-month delays in getting into the only psychiatric treatment program aimed at Vietnam veterans in New England.

Following his arraignment in January, Papineau and the two other men were released on their recognizance and returned to the VA hospital in Northampton to continue treatment while awaiting trial.

Today's Staff

Night Editor Richard Martin
Copy Editor Larry Bouchie
Layout Technician Peter Sonderberg
Photo Technician Michelle Segall
Production Supervisor Ed Tausky
Production Becky McGee, Cris Schuster, Lisa Traeger, Steve Higgens, Mark Roden, BethAnne Moskov, Nancy Muller, Andrew Held Marsha Wilcon, Martha Connors, Michele Brassard, Shelley Witkiewicz, Norm Achin, Ruth Devine, Larrissa Potapchuk

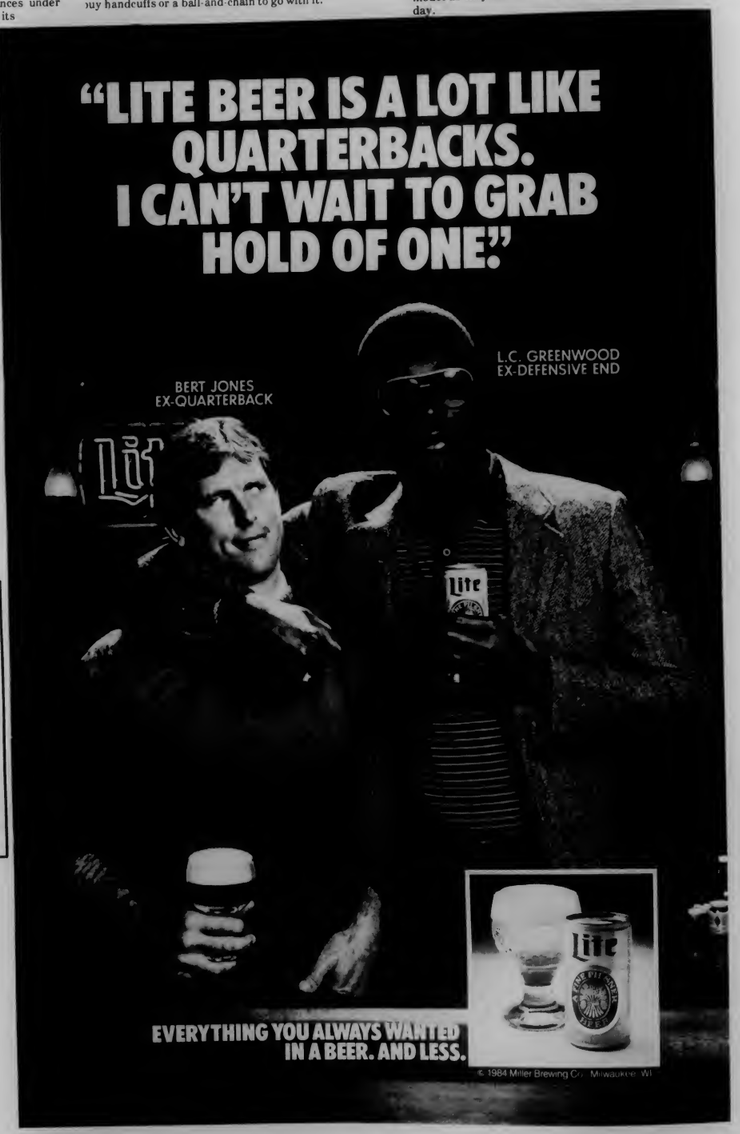
CORRECTION: A story on Page 3 of Monday's Collegian incorrectly identified the Veteran Assistance and Counselling Service and also Terry Kalaghan was misidentified as a counsellor.

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

"LITE BEER IS A LOT LIKE QUARTERBACKS. I CAN'T WAIT TO GRAB HOLD OF ONE."

BERT JONES
EX-QUARTERBACK

L.C. GREENWOOD
EX-DEFENSIVE END



EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.

© 1984 Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, WI

Collegian photo by Kathy Jordan

FALL CHORE— Steve Crowe paints Stockbridge Fraternity house from a ladder Wednesday afternoon.

U.S. offers 'endless excuses'

Historian reviews Central American intervention

By TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

The United States justifies its intervention in foreign countries by claiming to be the lesser of two evils, according to a historian who gave the keynote address on the "History of U.S. Intervention in Central America," last night in room 165 of the Campus Center.

"When people suspect something, (the government's) first defense is to deny it," Howard Zinn, a political science professor at Boston University and civil rights activist, said speaking at the University of Massachusetts.

As investigators acquire some proof of an improper action, the U.S. government pins the blame on a subordinate, and if, finally, there is some concrete evidence, "the government will say 'It's an ugly world (and we) had to do it,'" Zinn said.

"They did it first" and "we acted to prevent a larger evil" are two common excuses heard, he said. People assume that this "liberal democracy is a nice government," Zinn said.

Zinn said that "another good one" is the justification that something was done in the "national interest" and to protect the country from communism. "Communism," he said, is a good word to use when excusing U.S. action.

"Reagan says communists will resort to anything, even immorality, to further their cause. They will lie, steal, cheat, intervene, and even murder. I was thinking of that as I was reading the CIA manual," Zinn said.

"A good starting point for understanding politics and world affairs," Zinn said, is that "governments lie."

Zinn talked about communism as a threat and said he wondered what the U.S. saw as a threat before Russia became a sovereign state in 1917.

"No Soviet Union, no hot spots," Zinn suggested.

Zinn reviewed U.S. foreign policy before the Bolshevik Revolution, mentioning the intervention that led to the "Florida Purchase" and the "Mexican Secession."

Zinn said these terms ("purchase" and "secession") make it sound as if people in these areas "gave us the land out of hospitality. (They were) good neighbors."

"The thing about expansion," Zinn said, "is it's a natural phenomenon, it's almost a biological thing...things expand."

What we all must do is "become amateur historians (and) get underneath the lies and the shallow understanding of what is happening in the world," Zinn said.

"I believe that the American people, as many lies as they hear...as limited as the access is to what goes on...have certain basic instincts of what is right and wrong. If they could only learn a few things," he said.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Howard Zinn

People took it upon themselves to organize, rally, and act during Vietnam, and "it can happen in regard to Central America," Zinn said. "At some point, whoever gets elected will realize that a number of people will resist what is going on in Central America," Zinn said.

Questioned on the "causes for the national addiction to power," Zinn suggested "direct economic interests in Central America," "corporate greed," and the "capitalist system."

"Capitalists create a special interest for expansion, domination, and murder," Zinn said.

Yale strikers at UMass present their argument

By LAUREEN DELANEY
Collegian Correspondent

During the five-week long strike of clerical and technical employees at Yale University, the campus has "been like a concentration camp" according to a group of strikers who spoke yesterday at the University of Massachusetts.

"At a university where free speech should reign, Yale has no freedom of speech on campus right now" said Yale striker Stacey Klinzman. For example, "a student had his computer shut down and couldn't get into his work after making a public statement in favor of the union," Klinzman said.

The union of 2000 clerical and technical employees, Local 34, which is 82 percent women, has been on strike for five weeks. Because of the strike, many of the dining commons have been closed, the library hours reduced, and many classes have been held in professors' homes.

Although it has crippled the routines of the faculty and students, the strike is directed toward tearing down the Ivy League image. "We never thought we could win by shutting down the University. The achilles heel (of Yale) is their reputation." said Stacey Klinzman, local 34 member.

The strikers said the university is being pressured from all directions.

Alumni have refused to send any money until the strike has been settled and students have brought a suit against the university, claiming their educations have been disrupted, Rozen said.

The management school is appalled by the university's handling of the strike and the economics department keeps telling the press that the university can afford to pay the wages the employees are demanding.

Comparable worth is the central issue of the strike. For example, a truck driver, has an average wage of $18,000 after one year of service, but clerical workers, many of whom are college educated, have an average salary of $13,400. Many Yale employees who have been working for the university for 10 to 11 years still earn only $11,000, the strikers said.

Myra Hindus, coordinator of the Working Women's Program at the Everywomans Center at UMass said, "pay equity for women is an important issue. This is setting precedents for women everywhere."

There is a clerical workers union here at UMass, said Barbara McGlynn, who is a secretary in the German department and also a union member. "Because UMass is a state university, the employees get more benefits than at private colleges." she said.

Orchard Hill residents without water

By WILLIAM COLLINS
Collegian Correspondent

Residents on the 5th, 6th, and 7th floors of Orchard Hill dormitories went without showers Wednesday due to an electrical failure at Fisher Laboratory which caused water pumps to malfunction.

All water was restored by late Wednesday afternoon, however. Peter Wozniak, director of operations for the Physical Plant, said that the failure was in some part of the electrical transformer outside of Fisher. He said the Physical Plant still does not know what the problem is. However, workmen were completing temporary repairs he said.

Due to the loss of water pressure, 624 residents in Orchard Hill were unable to use toilets or showers after 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, said Dorothy Burke, the assistant director of the Grayson-Field cluster. The sinks worked slowly, but nothing else worked. "If you want a glass of water, fine, but don't expect to shower," said Barry Sanders, a resident of the cluster.

Residents on the lower floors were able to use the bathrooms, but things were "very slow" Burke said.

Several residents have labeled the loss of water "a real nuisance." Louis Stead, a resident of Grayson dorm, said "If they (the University) can hit me up for a $4 lab fee, they should give me a $4 refund for this."

"Sweets and More," the snack bar in Field, sold ice cream at reduced prices because the Physical Plant was going to shut off power to the area for several hours, which would have caused the ice cream to spoil in the freezer. The power only went off for a short period Wednesday morning, but has stayed on since then. Wozniak said that the plant had been unable to locate the transformer problem, so they had shut off power to make one repair.

$375 stolen from sleeping woman

A female University of Massachusetts student reported to police Monday that her wallet containing $375 in cash and two necklaces were stolen while she was sleeping on a Peter Pan bus. According to UMass police, the woman fell asleep with the articles in a bag on the seat next to her, and when she awoke the articles were gone.

A pair of prescription sunglasses, clothing, a 40-piece socket wrench set and jumper cables, worth a total of $430, were reported stolen from a car in P-lot near Fraternity-Sorority Park. A coat hanger was used to gain access to the passenger side door.

One-hundred dollars in cash was reported stolen from a locked room on the second floor of Arnold House, police said. According to police, the cash was taken from a sweater that was hanging on a coatrack sometime between Monday and Tuesday at 1:01 p.m.

A 1979 Datsun was reported stolen from lot 44 at 2:41 p.m. Tuesday, police said. Police reported that the owner last saw the car at 9 a.m., October 20.

An hour later, a 1975 Dodge Dart was reported stolen from lot 22. Chief of police Robert G. Joyce said that the last time the owner saw the car was on October 15.

New WAGES coordinator aids female grad students

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Women graduate students don't have any help in juggling their personal, professional, and academic lives, according to Diane Goodman, coordinator of the new graduate Women's Admissions and General Support (WAGES) program.

Many women graduate students are caught up in trying to do it all, Goodman said what they will get out of the program is "a sense that they're not in it alone, that their experiences are not unique."

The WAGES program has a "broad focus to provide personal and academic support and information, and to respond to what women cite as their needs," Goodman said.

"An informal survey was done on what services were available to women graduate students, and it was discovered that there were no programs tailored to their needs," she said.

The Graduate Student Senate approved funding for the new program, which officially began last May, Goodman said.

Goodman said that initial reaction to the program has been good. "Many graduate women feel isolated, and they are very excited about having a program where they can get support and information," she said.

Activities this semester include the mailing of a survey to all graduate women, weekly informal brown bag lunches, speakers on nutrition for women, and time management.

The program is also planning to have a speaker on sexual harassment and the academic climate for graduate women, as well as a weekly support group, beginning on Nov. 4.

Goodman said the largest part of her job is being a resource person. She talks to women who want to return to graduate school about the admissions process and programs of study. Goodman provides information and referral on financial aid and child care

★Rally

Continued from Page 1

USA Foundation, has been "coordinated out of Washington" as a "celebration" of the Grenada invasion.

"The USA Foundation," Gaslin said, "works hand-in-hand with the College Republican National Committee, which is an arm of the Republican National Committee." According to Gaslin, the rally is a Republican political ploy in an election year.

We all hate to mention that we're feeling some TENSION
But come to the student STRESS MANAGEMENT & RELAXATION WORKSHOP and learn to unwind
Tues. Oct. 30th 4-6 pm
pre-registration required by noon 10/26
call 549-2671 ext 181 for further details.

79 Main St.,
Amherst, MA 01002
413-253-3442

* Over 150 imported cheeses
* Over 20 selected types of coffee beans
* Bulk teas
* Freshly baked croissants & pastries
* Fresh pasta
* Party trays * SPECIAL *
Fresh Peanut Butter 99¢ lb.
Brazillian Santos $4.99
Choose your gift boxes now for mailing during the Holiday Season
Coffee tasting Saturday 10 am to 1 pm
Hours: Daily 9:30-6:00; Sunday 9:00-1:00

COUPON SPECIALS

Keri Lotion 6 oz. $1.99 with coupon Reg. $4.29 expires 11/3/84

Colgate Pump Toothpaste 99¢ with coupon Reg. $1.79 expires 11/3/84

Flex Shampoo and Conditioner 15 oz. $1.79 with coupon Reg. $2.59 expires 11/3/84

Coke 2 liter bottle $1.04 + deposit with coupon expires 11/3/84

Curity Cottonballs 79¢ with coupon expires 11/3/84

Durabeam Compact Light $3.49 with coupon Reg. $4.99 expires 11/3/84

Softlens Enzyme Tablets 24's Reg. $8.77 with coupon $5.99 expires 11/3/84

Fostex Benzoyl Peroxide Clensing Bar 3¾ oz. $2.99 with coupon reg. $3.96 expires 11/3/84

COLLEGE DRUG
6 MAIN STREET AMHERST Phone 253-2523

Winner of the BEST DINNER UNDER $4
&
BEST MEXICAN RESTAURANT
In the Valley Advocate's Best of the Valley Poll 1984

21 Center St., Northampton 584-0673
Bring your own beer or wine

41 Boltwood Walk, Amherst 256-8217
Beer & Wine Served

TACO VILLA
...Offering Quality Mexican Foods

Check Our LOW Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From
Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

We'd like to introduce you to The Adult Sessions

Use this coupon for Free Roller Skating!
FREE ADMISSION
The Bearer is entitled to (1) Free Adult Skating Session
MONDAY NITE 7:30-10:00 P.M. Regular Admission $2.25
or
THURSDAY NITE 7:30-10:00 P.M. (18 years and older only)
Expires 11-9-84
Hampshire Mall Hadley, MA
Skate Rental Extra

INTERSKATE 91
Hampshire Mall

Interskate 91 has times available for Private Parties
call Jay McCoy at 586-8345

Legal Assistants Wanted

The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. Get hands-on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals, preparation for federal and state court litigation, attendance at court hearings, and participation in administrative hearings. Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. To apply, and for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO, 922 Campus Center.

Sponsored by UMass Ski Patrol Recruiting Meeting
National Ski Patrol
Recruiting Meeting Thurs. Oct. 25
CC Rm. 911-15 10:00 pm
if unable to attend call Jim 6-9314

—NOW IN PAPERBACK!—
Savor the Spellbinding Climax of a Grand Science Fiction Trilogy.
ROBERT SILVERBERG
VALENTINE PONTIFEX
The Majipoor Trilogy
LORD VALENTINE'S CASTLE $3.50
MAJIPOOR CHRONICLES $3.50
VALENTINE PONTIFEX $3.95
BANTAM BOOKS
On Sale at Your College Bookstore or Wherever Books Are Sold

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870
Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

IN THE SECOND PRESIDENTIAL DEBATE, WALTER MONDALE KNEW HIS FACTS...
PRESENTED CLEAR ARGUMENTS AND ADDRESSED HIMSELF TO THE ISSUES
PRESIDENT REAGAN MADE ONLY ONE SERIOUS GAFFE, RAMBLED LESS THAN LAST TIME AND SEEMED TO KNOW WHERE HE WAS THE EXPERTS HAVE PRONOUNCED IT A DRAW
WASSERMAN

People can be so cruel

Tracey J. Boisseau

Last Saturday was a very special day in my life. I was visiting a friend at your University and I was able, for the first time to hear and see the first woman vice presidential candidate speak. My heart and lungs were pounding with the excitement of hope at hearing her inspirational delivery. Those of you around me were probably slightly embarrassed by my over-enthusiastic shouts which rang out at even the most conspicuous moments. My friend understood, he knows how enthusiastic and idealistic I can be.

A horrible certainty arose in my mind—whom had he already raped? How many? My body rose in revolt as did my throat, stomach, and hand. To my extreme dissatisfaction, I struck that man. I say I struck him in self-defense. There are many ways to rape a woman.

But Saturday was a day I will never forget for another reason too. On Saturday, I was raped at your University. Oh, don't be shocked, there won't be any big publicity trial or manhunt conducted. No crime was committed. But I was raped and there were at least 50 of you who saw it.

I was one of those thousands of women who were appalled at the sign held up across that little pond. Don't play innocent—you know which one I mean. I wanted to see just what people, who would call a woman "A Bitch" because they disagreed with her politically, looked like. I always picture those people as men for some reason. I picture them as either large men with fraternity pins and tattoes, or little men with army caps on. I wanted to see my stereotype exploded, but it wasn't. I crossed to the other side of the pond there and entered a different camp. It was like crossing the river into a different culture. I had been walking next to people in wheelchairs, next to parents draped with small children, next to old men and women with canes. When I left that zone I discovered the other side was populated with only one class of people—men. I expect I even felt the air was a bit colder somehow as my pulse slowed and my eagerness and enthusiasm quietly drained away.

Miraculously, the men who wanted to "ditch the bitch" were just as I had envisioned. I was mildly pleased that others from our side had had the same thoughts and had come to gawk at them. I quietly stood next to a calm, bright-looking young man and watched sadly as a woman began rebuking the men under the sign. I nearly jumped out of my skin when the nice young man next to me barked at her.

I turned with incredulity to look at this one who didn't fit my stereotype at all. I felt an overwhelming despisement suddenly as I was faced with the truth that even men who look like unmacho, real human beings could feel that way underneath. I whirled on him to ask him to explain himself. I shouted my indignation and my fury. He laughed at me and told me that I too, since I disagreed with him, was a bitch. In a vain search for the most vile of insults my mouth could only project spittle. I spit on his face. Now many of you know that spit is the lowest form of insult one can impose and you know how belittled someone is by it. When this man was belittled so, he reacted in a deep and nakedly honest way as one only does when faced with such humiliation. He only managed five words until that sincerity ran out and he realized what he was saying.

He threw caution and pretense away and told me bluntly, enunciating each word slowly into my face so I would feel the impact of every word. "You need to be screwed to the wall."

Then I was accused of being lesbian. I was called a dyke. I was told I "would love it" and I "would probably fall in love with the guy afterward." I could not help swallowing the vomit that formed in the back of my throat and I could not help wondering who he had in mind would be the one to do this to me. Whose sick fantasy was this really?

A horrible certainty arose in my mind—whom had he already raped? How many? My body rose in revolt as did my throat, stomach, and hand. To my extreme dissatisfaction, I struck that man. I say I struck him in self-defense. There are many ways to rape a woman.

This isn't just a story to tell your friends. There are connec tons to be made. All you men know you are potentially rapists, all women know they are your potential victims. Misogyny (hatred of women) has lined up on the side of Reagan. No one is saying every group doesn't have its nuts. But this perversity sees Reagan as its ally. Why?

This man was not a nut, as much as I'd like to think it. He merely said out loud what is said over beers and under breaths. He merely recognized my forever fatal flaw—my rapeability—and used it.

Seeing the world as populated only by rapists and rape victims is truly perverted view of life but until we realize that rape is an underlying theme behind many attitudes, policies and politics, we can not hope to combat them at their most base and fundamental level.

Tracey J. Boisseau is a resident of Ayer.

Grenada: One year later

Kenneth B. Albert

On October 25 one year ago, I was with the U.S. Army forces that invaded the island of Grenada. One year later, I'm still often asked what we were doing there.

The most obvious answer, of course, is that we were sent to rescue the American students whose lives had become endagered by the growing Cuban military presence and the deterioration of the Grenadan government. As an eye-witness, there is no doubt in my mind that the students were indeed in a position of such extreme danger that only direct and forceful intervention could have insured their safety. I'm sure that if you ask any of these students, they will tell you that this reason was justification enough for the invasion.

After the students were safely removed, however, we were still fighting, so there must have been other reasons as well.

Certainly no one who saw the military installations being built by the Cubans, no one who saw the stockpiles of arms and munitions, no one who saw the acres of land with empty homes and fields surrounded by barbed-wire barriers could reasonably claim that the Cubans were there to promote peace and stability in the region. I'm sure that if you were to talk to the people of the neighboring countries they would say that the threat imposed to their security by the airstrip being built on Point Salines was reason enough to justify the invasion.

Was it worth it? Well, you can say that I'm prejudiced by my involvement, but my answer is an unqualified yes. Regardless of why we were there, it is what we accomplished there that makes me proud today to have been a part of it. What we accomplished was the liberation of an entire nation from a state of unrestrained terror. The deterioration of the government in Grenada had left its citizens in a state of constant fear. Sudden death and arbitrary violence were fast becoming the social norms.

Now, I'm not one to try to defend the Orwellian paradox of creating peace through war. I could not begin to explain how that contradiction could possibly be true. All I can say is that I saw this happen. I saw and spoke with enough Grenadans to believe that we released them from lives of terror. I saw a police force that had become mortally afraid of putting on their uniforms return to work. I saw stores that had been systematically plundered peacefully reopened. I saw children return to school, and congregations to churches. In effect, I saw life return to a dying society. This happened only because the one nation in the world strong enough to take positive action used its strength to do just that.

Everywhere I went in Grenada, the spontaneous outpouring of love and gratitude from its people was overwhelming. In a country where the word "poor" takes on a meaning uncomprehensible to even the most destitute American, the people still gave freely of whatever they had, whether it was food or lodging or just love. Every soldier that I was with seemed touched by this unaffected display of gratitude. In one short month, the thoughts of most of us changed from the wondering of what we were doing to the wonderment of what we had done.

I am certainly no proponent of war. I can hate it with the kind of hate that only one who has lived through it can understand. But the joy that radiated from the people of Grenada was so moving, so gratifying, that it filled those of us who were there with a real sense of pride. I saw unashamed patriotism reborn in soldiers made cynical by long years of doubt in the ability of America to uphold and defend the ideals to which it claims allegiance.

When an entire nation can be freed from a reign of sanctioned terror and given the chance to determine and control the course of their future, the cost cannot be measured in terms of lives lost or morals compromised to necessity.

If America is to maintain the role that it has assumed in the world as the protector of freedom and human rights, then it must be willing at times to pay that great cost. America showed that willingness in Grenada last October 25th. For the rest of my life I know I will treasure the memory of the pride I feel now in having been a part of it. I was only one of many who answered the call, but I truly feel that I had a hand in helping a nation find its way to freedom. I took that feeling home from the faces of the people of Grenada, and I reaffirmed it in the faces of the people of America. I hope the feeling never fades.

Kenneth B. Albert is a UMass student

Letters to the Editor

A display of hypocrisy

The individuals responsible for the large "DITCH THE BITCH" banner at Saturday's rally deserve public condemnation. Their sign and particularly their behavior following the rally publicly confirmed the anti-intellectualism which supports and promotes the actions of Ronald Reagan and his administration. While other students spoke factually about the current political situation, this slanderous display, reflecting a severe lack of insight and substance, simply provided further justification to the convictions of the Democratic platform.

I would like to say that the UMass Republican Club dissociated itself from the display of this banner. The Republican Club cannot, however, claim that this mentality is foreign to their organization or the administration which they support. Human dignity has not been a priority in Washington during the last four years. Ronald Reagan is supported by the Ku Klux Klan; this is not an arbitrary selection. The Ku Klux Klan represents a mentality abhorrent to any American who values and believes in civil liberties. Any candidate whom they support has no place in the White House.

I welcome a response from the Republican Club specifically addressing their candidate's support from the Ku Klux Klan. I know that Reagan has "shunned" this acknowledgement, as would any politician. I find it strange however that an administration which professes concern and action for human rights finds support in such a heinous organization. I am curious to hear how the Republican Club, which claims to beleive in the American dream, can justify supporting such a nightmare.

Jane Donohue
Amherst

Man deserved to be spit at

"You should be screwed up against a wall, and you'd probably love it!" This letter is aimed at the man who spewed that comment at a woman at the Ferraro rally Saturday. I sincerely hope that someday you are assaulted, held against your will, and made to feel totally powerless like a woman is when she is raped. Only then will you be able to understand why that woman spit in your face. A comment like the one you made only strengthens the belief that some men think they have the right to teach a woman a lesson by raping her. People may feel I'm no better than you because I'm advocating violence, but I feel a hell of a lot better by telling you to get a grip.

Chris Alibrandi
Orchard Hill

New CAROL HAHN & Skylark

CHEERS Lounge

THUR 25 FRIDAY 26

Located next to Ground Round Pleasant St. Northampton

No Cover

OUR ANNUAL HALLOWEEN

SALE

Friday 10/26 - Wednesday 10/31

SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st amherst

Spooky Values

Bargains

Hypercurricula

HUNGER TASK FORCE MEETING—Discussion will center around plans for the OXFAM Fast for a World Harvest on November 15, at 4:30 p.m. in room 428 Student Union.

SPECIAL LECTURE ON ISRAEL—Albert Schlossberg, columnist for the Boston Globe and Jewish Advocate, will speak on "Israel's Relationship with the U.S." at 7 p.m. in Herter 112.

THE WRITING CENTER—The Writing Center offers free, confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignments or writing projects. Drop in; no appointment necessary, from 7 to 9 p.m., Pierpont Classroom in Southwest.

Tonite at Changes

From 8 PM to 12 AM

No Cover

• Free Hamburgers, Hot Dogs and Munchies!

• 2 for 1 Mixed Drinks

Halloween Costume Contest This Saturday

$$ Cash Prizes $$

Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!

Tickets on Sale Now

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents: an evening with

The Them or Us Tour '84"

FRANK ZAPPA

SUN. OCT. 28th

7:00 PM

F.A.C. UMASS

Good Seats Still Available

UMass Students $9.50 and $10.50

Five College Students, Faculty and Staff $11.50 and $12.50

Tickets on Sale Now

Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.

UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket

Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Our Biggest in-store SALE

*NO DEALERS *QUANTITIES LIMITED * FIRST COME FIRST SERVED

SAVE $60

AKAI 22 Watt Solid State AM/FM Stereo Receiver

Soft Touch Controls, Metal Tape Capability, Color Flow Meters, Auto Rewind, Cue Review. 99.99

SAVE $40

Technics Dolby "B" Stereo Cassette Deck

Soft Touch Controls, Metal Tape Capability, Single Touch Recording, Oil Damper Cassette, Flow Meters. 79.99

SAVE $20

74.99

Panasonic Compact AM/FM Stereo Cassette Player

SAVE $70

Technics 35 Watt AM/FM Stereo Receiver

Slim Profile, Auto Loudness Control, 4 Speaker Capable, FM Stereo Indicator. 129.99

SAVE $50

TEAC Soft Touch Dolby Cassette Tape Deck

Dolby B, 2 Heads, Soft Touch Operation, DC Servo Motor Transport, Metal Tape Capable. 99.99

SAVE $30

139.99

Panasonic Break Away 3 Piece AM/FM Stereo Cassette

SAVE $60

Technics 25 Watt Digital AM/FM Stereo Receiver

Quartz Synthesized Digital Tuning, 14 Preset Memories, 4 Speaker Capable, Auto Loudness Compensation. 139.99

SAVE $100

AKAI Auto Reverse Dolby B/C Cassette

Silent Quick Auto Reverse Recording/Playback Mechanism, Operational Fluorescent Display, Electronic Recording Level Control, IPLS, Metal Tape Capability, Dolby B/C 249.99

ALPINE Auto Reverse AM-FM Car Stereo Cassette

SAVE $20 139.99

SAVE $70

AKAI 5 Band Stereo Graphic Equalizer

5 Bands Per Channelx2, Equalizer Defeat Switch, Tape Monitor Switch, Record Switch and Indicator Light, Line In/Out and Tape Play/Record Jacks, Plus/Minus 12 dB Range. 79.99

SAVE $110

AKAI Computer Controlled Dolby B & C Cassette deck

Computer Controlled Operation, Dolby* B/C NR System, Twin Field Super GX Head, Auto Tape Selector, DC Amplifier, Direct Drive, Quiet and Quick Mechanism 229.99

ALPINE Digital Car AM-FM Stereo Cassette Tape

SAVE $20 229.99

SAVE $40

$49.99

AKAI Semi Automatic Belt Drive Turntable

TDK SAC 90 CASSETTE

$1.59 ea.

SAVE $100

249.99

HITACHI AM/FM Stereo Phono Music System with Built-in Cassette Receiver

The Sound Company SINCE 1961

SPRINGFIELD Boston Rd. Marshall's Plaza 782-7082 Open Mon thru Fri Nites Until 9 P.M.

SPRINGFIELD 477 Sumner Ave (at the X) 736-3626 Open Thurs. & Fri. Til 9 P.M.

CHICOPEE Fairfield Mall near Caldors 593-5330 Open Every Evening til 9:30 P.M. Open Sundays 12-5

AMHERST 201 N. Pleasant Street 256-0744 Open Thurs. & Friday Evenings Til 9 P.M.

NO RAIN CHECKS. Quantities Limited. All items not available in all stores. NO DEALERS.

GREENOUGH SNACK BAR

CENTRAL AREA U.MASS

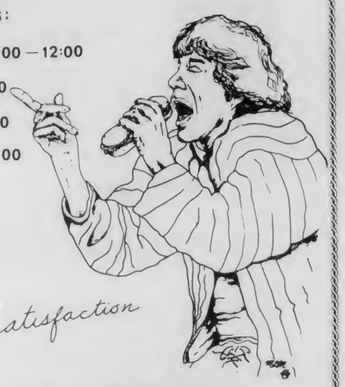
HOURS:

mon.–thurs. 7:00 — 12:00

fri. 7:00 — 1:00

sat. 1:00 — 1:00

sun. 1:00 — 12:00



GREENOUGH SNACK BAR

-free soda with the purchase of a hamburg or cheeseburg sub-

NO LIMIT COUPON GOOD THRU NOV 1 1984

HOUSING EXEMPTION APPLICATIONS

Frosh, sophomores and Stockbridge students who wish to live off-campus for the Spring 1985 semester should apply for an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation. Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment Office, Room 235 Whitmore. Applications are due no later than Tuesday, October 30, 1984. Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore. Thank You.

Important Notes: Please read carefully

 Signing a lease is not valid grounds for receiving an exemption from the on-campus housing requirement. DO NOT SIGN A LEASE UNLESS YOU HAVE RECEIVED AN EXEMPTION. Any student who signs a lease without prior approval from the Housing Assignment Office is responsible for all on-campus fees and will be required to reside on-campus.

 Students who are granted an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation will lose their housing assignment for the Spring 1985 semester on the last day of this semester unless prior arrangements are made with the Housing Assignment Office.

7 ELEVEN

We Save You More Than Time

BUDWEISER
SUITCASE
24 12 oz. cans
$10.99
Plus Deposit

PEPSI, DIET PEPSI
1 Liter Bottle
2 for
$1.19
Plus Deposit

Fresh Sandwich
Try A
Roast Beef "Big Bite"
$1.88
Plus Tax

BURRITO
10 oz.
99¢
Plus Tax

Our Everyday Low Price on MOLSON GOLDEN ALE
6 pack 12 oz. bottles, beer red cap
$3.99 plus deposit
Buy the case $13.07

7-ELEVEN COFFEE 16 oz.
49¢
plus tax
tea, hot chocolate included

FREEDOM 7 ELEVEN

Available only at 116 Amherst Rd. Sunderland
Open 7 days, 24 hours a day

PRICES GOOD THRU AT PARTICIPATING STORES THE SOUTHLAND CORPORATION

Collegian FALL FASHION SPECIAL

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

Big, bold, oversized styles accompanied by short hair cuts and funky accessories, modeled by Julie Cian and Gail Rice, complete the fashion look for this fall.

Clothing shuns gender through 'identity dressing'

By Mary Lou Sullivan
Collegian Correspondent

It's no surprise that Jordan Marsh is selling low, flat, patent-leather shoes or spangled socks after the recent Michael Jackson Victory Tour craze.

It's not unusual to see a woman wearing an Esprit miniskirt standing next to a woman wearing a more staid, long-cut wool maxi skirt by Anne Klein.

In short, women are wearing what they please this fall, yet still conforming to some five or six different styles--everything from punk/new wave casual to somber but stylish tones. These styles vary because a woman's lifestyle varies.

Representatives from main departments stores and a fashion marketing professor talk about what arethe main styles and why.

According to a spokesperson from Jordan Marsh in Boston, people may have many new and different moods and are dressing accordingly. They label this new buying trend of the 80's "identity dressing".

"People are not just dressing in a specific mode. Rather, the traditional customer will also purchase contemporary pieces and vice versa. People do not only want play wear, they want and need suitable, contemporary work clothes as well." she said.

Dr. Jacquelene Robeck, the fashion marketing coordinator, said that although women are still enjoying over-sized, masculine styles, there is also a trend towards more feminine dressing, especially in the office.

In today's liberated society, women are feeling more confident in business. They are not afraid to show-off their femininity. Lacy dresses and floral prints are a nice substitute for conservative suits and sweaters." added Robeck.

About the current "dress for success" trend, Robeck said while clothing and grooming are important at a job interview, motivation, education, and desire are the keys to success.

"I won't deny that dressing is important to many of the majors," said Robeck. "But when you are interested in something you tend to work harder and have more desire to perfect your knowledge. One of the ways they demonstrate this interest is through dressing."

Even Politics influence fashion, Robeck said. U.S. presidents' wives have been known to set the fashion stage with their particular styles.

"Nancy Reagan's message has been to show off your wealth by dressing well," Robeck said. "The American public is not holding onto their money. They are spending it. Much of this disposable income is spent on clothing."

She added that Democrats are concerned with neutralizing wealth. "If Mondale wins, Americans are expected to practice more conservative spending. This will directly affect how people will dress."

Robeck said music has had a big influence on fashion this year. "Prince's movie, "Purple Rain" drew a close liason between heaven and hell," she said. "As a result harsh contrasts such as leather mixed with lace will be worn and accepted, especially this holiday season."

MTV has influenced hair styles most dramatically. Short, spikey, gelled and moussed hair is in. These styles, inspired by punk rock, are worn by people who want to look good and have fun, not worry about whether or not they packed a comb.

Michael Jackson found his place in the world of fashion by originating the androgynous, neither-male-nor-female, look. Calvin Klein enhanced this idea by revolutionizing underwear and putting briefs on women.

"This is the 80's, after all, and the question of 'who wears the pants?' doesn't matter anymore. A confident person does what he or she wants, and this includes how they choose to dress," Robeck said.

UMass wardrobes lack variety, foreign students say

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

American students lack individuality in their wardrobes and tend to dress less formally than students from other countries, according to international students at the University of Massachusetts.

Students living in Prince House, the International Student dormitory, were asked what they thought of the fashion sense of American students.

"They haven't got any, have they? asked Michael Phillips, an art student from England.

"Everybody obeys the rules of jeans and sneakers, there are no extremes here," said Walter Zimmerli, a Swiss. American wear "radical stuff". In Switzerland you see much more variety...punks, skinheads, high fashion."

Tom Hartmann an english major from Germany said American students here are noted for their backpacks and UMass t-shirts.

"There's too much badge marketing and not enough taste," said Jason Hicks, a food engineering student from England.

"Everyone wears t-shirts with little alligators on them.'

Mukul Shahi, a graduate business student from India said people across India dress differently according to what region they come from and at school there is a wider variety of clothing styles.

Twenty-two-year-old Maki Tagaya from Japan said Japanese students dress more formally. Jeans are less popular and women wear skirts more often. The same is true in Poland, according to Bozena Rowadowska, a linguistics student. In Poland jeans are very expensive but "elegant styles are more accessible."

Rowadowska, along with other foriegn students, said she felt American women wear too much makeup.

"Girls here look as if they are going to parties, not classes,"Aud Fjellvang, a Norwegian, said.

Riffat Sardar, a graduate international relations student from Pakistan, said that in her country women make an effort to be fashionable, but they try "to conceal their bodies, not show them off."

Lars Thueson, a political science major from Denmark was more enthusiastic about American college fashion. "It's very relaxed. I like the fact that you can wear jogging suits and shorts to class."

"There is a big athletic fashion movement on campus,"said John Gould, a music student from Australia. He added, "You wear jogging suits and then you put shorts on top. What's the purpose of that? I just don't understand it."

Fall Fashion Special Staff

Editor: Michelle Hyde
Writers: Mary Lou Sullivan, Deborah Ross, Mary Cresse, Yadira A. Betances, Greg Brown, Christine Marini
Photographers and illustrators Brian Gonye, Andy Heller, Isabel Perkins
Graphics: Mark Rodin
Production: Rene Bacher, Dode Levenson, Cris Schuster, BethAnne Moskov, Becky McGee, Lisa Traeger

illustrations by Isabel Perkins

American students have no fashion sense, according to foreigners at UMass. Can you imagine trucking around campus like this?

Fashion marketing means business, not beauty

By MARY LOU SULLIVAN
Collegian Correspondant

Think of a major on this campus, and you can probably think of a corresponding stereotype: engineers are male, Republican, and industrious. English majors are spacy and unrealistic about their career choices. Art history majors will make little money. Well, just as there are many engineering, art history, and English majors ready to refute these images, fashion marketing students here at UMass are refuting the Morgan Fairchild image associated with their major.

Dr. Jacquelene Robeck, the fashion marketing coordinator, said fashion marketing majors are not primarily concerned with reading Vogue and looking beautiful. They are trained to become self assertive professionals in the business and fashion industry, and not models.

"Not one course in the curriculum focuses on looks or beauty"Robeck said. "In fact they do just the opposite."

Majors are required to study a liberal education in the humanities, arts and sciences with specialized emphasis in textiles. In addition to these courses, a major must take chemistry, statistics and computers. The program also offers a senior year retail internship.

Fashion is a consumer oriented business, Robeck said. "Some courses do emphasize current fashion trends only because our students will have to take an analytical approach to predicting the wants and needs of tommorrow's consumer."

"You don't have to be a 'stab anyone in the back for success type' in this business...You must be people oriented."

—Dr. Jacqueline Robeck
Fashion Marketing Coordinator

She said the image of the fashion business created by Morgan Fairchild on t.v.'s Paper Dolls is a false one.

"You don't have to be a "stab anyone in the back for success type' to succeed in this business. It is true that you must be assertive, but most importantly you must be people oriented."

"If you are as intimidating as Fairchild, you can't work with or for people. And that is the objective of the business," she said. The Home Economics major which was labeled as one of the two least popular majors in Lisa Birnbach's College Hand Book, is one of the fastest growing majors at UMass, Robeck said.

"In the division of Fashion Marketing alone we have more than 300 majors," she said. Population growth, expansion of retail operation, and an increase in the number of shopping malls and chain stores mean that more positions are available to fashion marketing graduates.

Robeck also said there is an increasing number of male majors in the program.

"The old thought that fashion is just for women is an attitude of the past. Graduates are making money in this field and job opportunities as well as excitement are attracting all types of students from every imaginable background," she said. Starting salaries for 1984 graduates were between 16 and 20 thousand," she said.

BLAST FROM THE PAST—1969 homecoming court wearing the original miniskirts.

Dressing to impress creates image

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
and GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

The media, career motivation and emotions determine what clothes we buy and are responsible for a current attraction to men's fashion.

Barbara Schrier, who teaches a course called "Man and clothing" said people have conscious and unconscious reasons for buying the clothes they buy and wear. People buy clothses when they are depressed or want to reward themselves, she said.

People are now dressing to impress prospective employers, she said. When you are looking for a particular job one has to dress the part because this enhances the candidate's image in the eyes of the interviewer," she said.

Students interviewed agreed with Schrier's assessment. "Individuality isn't promoted in the workplace," said Jame Donahue, an economics major. "If you represent the image (the employers) want, you'll get the interview."

Evelyn Diaz, a fashion marketing senior said, "impressions and reputation employs." Diaz asserted one has to live up to the expected image of the profession. "In business and retail one has to look good to show what you sell."

"Dressing can do a lot for a person psychologically and physically," James Kendall, senior industrial engineering student. "Fashion is like a costume. It can bring you up or down." he said.

Schrier said "the changes taking place in sex roles"and several new mens magazines have influenced men's fashion. People have to realize life doesn't start and end at flannel shirts and jeans," Kendall said.

While men's casual attire is looking very rock-and-roll, lavender leather pants and leopard skin shirts are still not the most common clothes at UMass. Men are still wearing army fatigues, but parachute pants and dressier jeans are also becoming very common.

Men are also wearing braver colors, like purple and turquoise. Capped sleeves on cotton shirts have replaced ripping the sleeves off T-shirts, and dress shirts are more popular if they have a small collar, for a design that strays from the traditional dress shirt.

Flannel shirts, T-shirts, and Levi corduroys have not disappeared. But mostd men are beginning to supplement their wardrobe with jazz shoes and leather ties, as well as sneakers and bandanas.

Traditional men's clothes, like cotton jeans, leather jackets, and bikini briefs, are becoming flashier and more colorful, thanks to teen idols like Michael Jackson and Prince. Bright red leather jackets and purple parachute pants have adorned the racks of local mens stores, but they are not as highly visible on the local population.

Where have white t-shirts gone?

By MARY CRESSE
Collegian Staff

It used to be that, if you hit the right thrift shop, you could find a half-decent, funky bowling shirt or an already broken-in pair of trousers for about the price of a Newman Center lunch. Not a bad bargain.

If you were lucky, you could eventually spot a fairly sharp tux jacket (white is always a good find) with seams that didn't separate after only one wearing. The price didn't clean you out, either.

Things are different now. Maybe it has nothing to do so much with fashion or "fashion marketing"--maybe it's the general social acceptance of things like bland New Wave or bad synth pop or people like Duran Duran or Wham! that have made funky clothes a "fashion item." "Fashion item." Like hell.

Commentary

Thrift clothes are now 'in'; they're now a business, and the five dollars you paid for that shirt five years ago is now fifteen. It used to be that you'd have to dig them out from polyester-littered aisles in Goodwill. Now you find thrift clothes in places with fancy overhead, like High Society in Boston or certain used clothing stores in the area. What's happening?

Why has the fashion sense, or "fun" seemed to have left this university? Disagree? Look around campus: everyone is wearing Guess or Esprit or Palmetto's; everything is canary yellow linen or stark, black denim... is there no longer a Coleman's $3.79 special price real gray sweatshirt on this campus anymore? Does anyone really cut off sleeves or does a machine do it? (Go to Southwest Sunday breakfast, stand in line, and see what I mean.) Look closer, still. Flat pumps match perfectly with handbags; t-shirts and sweatshirts scream identification: "New York;" "Boston;" "Camp Beverly Hills;" "Physical". Why do we feel or need to 'label' ourselves? Granted, there's nothing wrong with color-coordinated dressing, certainly not with impeccable grooming.

The fashion buyers love us. Buyers from Bloomingdale's or Neiman-Marcus or even more mainstream stores like Jordan Marsh or Filene's are trying to sell us what we see, not apparently, what we are. Look at many of the fashions on the racks. Are they attractive? Everything is bound with fat buckles and straps; a pair of plain beise socks sells for nine dollars in Lord and Taylor. Nine dollars? Jordan Marsh, in fact, has an arrangement with Boston's Metro nightclub: Metro installs a television screen showing the latest videos. Not so coincidentally, the screens are located in the section selling jeans for $45.00.

Look. No one "fashion" is--or should--be better than another. Whether or not fashion frees or constricts us or makes a statement about our inner selves is not so much the question here as the motivation we have for the way we dress, whether or not we wish to put forth our image or someone else's image.

There is one, thing, however, one last thing. There seems to be fewer fashion diversity on this campus; and now it's refreshing, dammit, to see someone come in with purple hair, or even a mohawk. Two years ago, there were more people on this campus who dressed like that. And maybe it's just me, maybe I'm getting jaded, but there's something inside me that says the campus was more--oh, happy or easy-going then.

Does anyone on this campus own a plain white t-shirt? Visit me. We'll commisserate.

Details, color, in for shoes

By CHRISTINE MARINI
Collegian Staff

The most noticeable feature in women's shoes this fall is color-big, bold and bright, according to area shoe retailers.

Women's shoes this fall are for the most part low-heeled and sturdy-looking, reflecting the same menswear touch that has influenced all fashion. Details of texture and styling in shoes help balance the longer, more narrow clothing outline that's popular this fall.

At Strut, located on Main Street in Northampton, Jana Fugate talked about what's selling this fall.

"The big news is in colors," she said. 'Colors are big--bright primary colors. Also a lot of black, and winter white, which is very new and unusual."

As for details, "Straps and strappy looks are popular especially when accessorized with patterned and textured stockings. Heels are low, which makes this fall's shoes easy to walk in," she said. In boots, "Short, low-heeled boots are still popular. We're seeing lots of desert boot styles, with attention paid to details--wrapped leather, straps, laces."

At Chona, located in Thorne's Market, also on Main Street in Northampton, Lise Schellman pointed out that menswear details stand out in shoes this fall. "Shoes this fall are very tailored, with a men's look in mind. Lace-up oxfords and man-styled loafers are everywhere. Alot of snake or lizard skin-looks are being used, as well as texturized leathers, which let the natural grain of the leather show through."Schellman said.

Olives and purples are the popular colors at Chona. In boots, "Almost all are low-heeled short boots. We're also seeing something new--fashion boots that are winterized for foul weather wear," she said.

Campus barber shop goes unisex, trendy under owner

By DEBORAH ROSS
COLLEGIAN STAFF

Last year, if you wanted a trendy hair cut, the University Barber Shop in the Student Union would not have been the place to go.

This year, with the shop under new management, it is adopting a more modern image.

"I'm trying to get the image away from old-fashioned haircuts," said Phill Greco, the new owner since July, "we are going for more modern styles."

Under the previous owner, Nelson Major, who had owned the shop for 50 years, "It was just regular cuts" Greco said, "but now I have employees trained by Jingles of New York and Vidal Sassoon."

Greco "wants to repaint (the shop), redecorate it, and get more modern equipment", Laurie Gibson, a barber at the shop since February and the first woman barber ever at UMass said. She added, "We're working on a new sign for the shop right now that will have the word 'unisex' in the title."

According to Jim Reed, a barber in the shop for two months and a hair stylist for twenty four years, more and more women are taking advantage of the shops convenient location, relaxed atmosphere and competitive prices.

He said, the trend for men's haircuts is 'the short clean-cut look' and that women are seeking a greater variety of hairstyles.

The shop also gets reguests for novelty cuts and outrageous styles. Ried said he "likes the challenge of the Mohawk look",which he said is an occasional request, "but I personally don't care for it".

Reid and Gibson said what makes working in the shop fun and pleasurable is the diversity of the clientele, which includes not only students, but also Amherst residents and faculty members.

The shop is usually very busy although no appointment is necessary. It has recently extended its opening hours from 8am to 5pm Monday through Saturday, and is now open until 8pm Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The prices are fairly low. A regular hair-cut costs $4.50 and a complete hair styling including wash, cut and blow-dry costs $8.75

Collegian photo by Andy Hellier

George Lewis, a senior engineering student will be tres chic with his new short haircut by campus barber.

HARVEST MOON SALE

Oct. 25, 26, 27 & 28 THURSDAY thru SUNDAY

Harvest of Savings . . . inside & out!

WIN... Diamonds in a Haystack plus other valuable prizes

Schedule of Events—

Thursday, Oct. 25:
Cafe Square:
7:30 Count Dred's Tales for Little Goblins, Ghosts & Witches
FREE PUMPKINS & BALLOONS!

Saturday, Oct. 27:
Cafe Square:
11:00-2:00 Live remote 99wz, & Cousin Bruce
2:00 Drawing for "Diamonds in a Haystack" (over $6,000 worth of diamonds and other valuable prizes from our Merchants. Register to win at Fornari Jewelers or Kay Jewelers
1:00-3:00 Live Blue Grass by The Shy Americans

Sunday, Oct. 28:
1:00-4:00 Hayrides (next to JCPenney)
Cafe Square:
1:30 Count Dred's Tales for Little Goblins, Ghosts & Witches
2:30 & 3:30 Wildlife Animal Program

plus FREE Balloons

THIS COUPON GOOD FOR ONE FREE Hayride for Two! at Hampshire Mall.
(next to JC Penney)
Sunday, Oct. 28 1:00-4:00

Hampshire Mall
where you'll find STEIGERS, JCPENNEY, KMART and over 70 other fine shops and restaurants

SOUTH MAPLE STREET-ROUTE 9 HADLEY • MONDAY THRU SATURDAY 10AM—9:30PM SUNDAY 12PM-5PM

"Keep the Summer Alive"

CAPE COD at the PUB
with Cape Cod's #1
"D.J. GARY TITUS"
of Pufferbellies and Cape 104

Experience our new menu.

THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST, MA 413-549-1200

OOPS!

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Delta Zeta Sorority Rush
Monday 8:30 pm
Tuesday 6:00 pm
Thursday 7:00 pm
11 Phillips Street
call 253-9916
All University Women Invited

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
• Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

TONIGHT 9-11
FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
Party with
"THE INVISIBLE MAN"
Dance to all the great tunes, you thought no DJ played
Disco's Dead & Top 40's Out!
THE ALTERNATIVE IS HERE!
and while you dance to a different drum
enjoy 99¢ BAR DRINKS TILL 11 PM
Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt Farms Mall)

SALE!
FRI./SAT./SUNDAY
3 DAYS ONLY... OCT. 26,27,28
20% OFF ALL STOCK
TIGHTS
LEOTARDS
BODYSUITS
BLOUSONS
DANSKIN
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst / Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

Patrick & Co.
586-7477

Isn't it time you got an "A"?
The Student Note & Printing Service Can Help!

We offer Lecture Notes for the following courses...

ASTRON 100
BIOCHEM 420
BOTANY 100
COINS 123
COINS 544/ECE 544
COINS 545
ECON 103D
ECON 103E
ECON 104A
ECON 104B
ECON 104C
FSN 130
HRTA 100
MATH 104A
MATH 121/Brown
MATH 121/Janowitz
MUSIC 100
PHYSICS 141
PHYSICS 142
PHYSICS 161
PHYSICS 162
PYSCH 100E
PYSCH 350

Student Note & Printing Service
403 Student Union (upstairs)
OPEN: Monday - Thursday 9 to 5
Friday 10 to 3
545-2271

adirondack music 15 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST · 253-3100

all items subject to prior sale · quantities limited · no rain checks · not responsible for typographical errors

HALLOWEEN MIDNIGHT MADNESS sale

12 First 5 people to bring us pizza at midnight get a free FM personal stereo worth $49.95!

11 Saturday 12:00am

12:00 am OHM Walsh II demo speakers oak & walnut finish were $1000 NOW $299 pr
ADCOM demo power amp 200 watts $249.95

1:00 am State of the Art Audio NIKKO rack system
·alpha power amp 230w
·beta preamp
·gamma 30 tuner
·EQ 20 band equalizer
·ND 1000 tape deck
1/2 PRICE! $1,000

2:00 am TDC 1500 30w/ch demo receivers $18.13
BOSE 601 II speakers ALL PRICE $225 pr
BOSE 201 $249.95 all 4 over
NAD equipment 1/2 PRICE!

4:00 am PIONEER KEA 880 car stereo was $369.95 NOW $199.95

11:00 to 12:00 am TECHNICS SL V5 linear track turntable was $250 NOW $99.95
BOSE 601 II $475 pr speakers were $950
NAD 7150 receiver 50 w/ch 1/2 PRICE $299

5:00 am RE-RUNS all previous specials BACK ON SALE!

30 hours of fantastic audio and video specials from noon, Fri. Oct. 26 till 6:00 pm, Sat. Oct. 27 closed Saturday 6-10 am for coffee!
start here Friday 6pm →

10 THEATREVISION demo projection tv $3750 value NOW $1499.95 bring some friends and a truck!

6:00 pm TV PARTY! all 19" tvs & monitors in stock $199.99 FREE PRIZES for the first 5 people to bring COFFEE & DONUTS!

9 TEAC 406C Dolby B & C cassette deck was $229.95 NOW $99.95 9:00 to 10:00pm

8 ACOUSTIC RESEARCH speakers in stock 1/2 PRICE! AR 38s $250 $215 AR 28s $165

7:00 to 8:00pm EPICURE 3.0II speakers were $1185 1/3 PRICE $395
DCM QED speakers $250 1/2 PRICE
TECHNICS SA510 60 w/ch receiver $199.95

6:00 to 7:00 pm TECHNICS BELOW COST SALE SA 460 receiver 45 w/ch $299.95 $149.95
SL B 200 turntable $149.95

7 6

audio specials
AKG K2 headphones 1/2 PRICE $74.95 pr
EPI TE 100 speakers 1/2 PRICE $125 pr
AUDIO TECHNICA elliptical cartridge were $149.95 ea. NOW $9.95 ea.
PICKERING DLE elliptical cartridge NOW $9.95 ea.
NIKKO ND 620 Dolby full logic tape deck were $229.95 ea. NOW $99.95 ea.
SCOTT PC88 direct drive fully automatic turntable
DISCWASHER $9.95 SONY LNX90 cassette tapes 99¢
MAXELL LN60 tapes 49¢ MAXELL UL II 90 normal bias 99¢ many items
MAXELL & TDK high performance cassette tapes $1.99
BELOW COST!

car stereo specials
PANASONIC 818 digital, in-dash, auto-reverse, fader line outs, bantam series chassis $350 value NOW $149.95
PANASONIC 717 list price $149.95 ONLY $99.95 with purchase of any pair of speakers
MAXIMA GX9 triax were $79.95 1/2 PRICE $39.95 ea.
EPI LS70 home performance car hifi speakers were $200 pr. 1/2 PRICE $99.95 pr

all day specials
surprise hourly specials
unadvertised specials
prizes for best costume

FREE apples & pizza!

LEARN TO FLY

City Aviation Flight Services

- Qualified Flight Instructors
- Private Pilot Rating
- Rentals / Charters
- 7 days a week
- On UMass bus route
- Discounts for UMass on first lesson
- Financing available

Northampton Airport Northampton, MA 584-1860

University of Massachusetts B.F.A. Dance Concert presented by Department of Music & Dance

October 25-27 at 8:00 p.m. Bowker Auditorium University of Massachusetts

Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office Mon.-Fri. 10:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m., 545-2511 & Datatix Outlets general admission $4.00

students $3.00
children under 12 $1.00
senior citizens $1.00

WORK FOR THE FASTEST GROWING AIRLINE IN THE INDUSTRY.

PEOPLExpress is coming to campus in search of CO-OP EDUCATION STUDENTS

SOPHOMORES...JUNIORS... SENIORS...GRAD STUDENTS

START NOW AS A RESERVATIONS SALES ASSOCIATE. You'll be the first point of contact between PEOPLExpress and our customers, providing accurate scheduling and price information—and selling seats for PEOPLExpress flights. You'll be based at NEWARK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT.

THE JOB OFFERS ALL THIS:

- $5.00 an hour to start—with regularly scheduled raises
- UNLIMITED TRAVEL PRIVILEGES ON PEOPLExpress (Not only for you but spouses, too, after 30 days of employment)
- FREE PARKING AT THE AIRPORT

THE MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM HOURS YOU MAY WORK ARE:

- Minimum of 4 hours per day
- Minimum of 20 hours per week
- Maximum of 40 hours per week

TO QUALIFY, you must have a GPA of 2.5 or better, be currently enrolled, be articulate—and have a mature attitude and business-like appearance. Previous work experience is a must.

PRESENTATIONS WILL BE HELD ON WEDNESDAY, NOV. 7th AT 1:00 PM. INTERVIEWS WILL FOLLOW. CONTACT YOUR CO-OP OFFICE, 110 THOMPSON HALL, TO SIGN UP. PLEASE BRING A CURRENT TRANSCRIPT TO THE INTERVIEW.

Equal Opportunity Employer M F

PEOPLExpress
FLY SMART

CHILDREN of DIVORCE:

Developing Coping Skills for the Holidays

When: Six Sessions
Nov. 5 - Dec. 17
Mondays/3:30-5 pm

Where: 127 Hills North

to register for the group call 545-2337
Mental Health Services

14th ANNUAL BUSH BASH

UMASS SKI CLUB
SUGARBUSH VALLEY
SKI & PARTY WEEK
JAN. 20 - 25

Trip includes:
5 1/2 DAY LIFT TICKET (2 Mountains)
5 NIGHTS LODGING
CONDO (on the mountain)
HOTEL (1/2 mile to mountain)
CONTINENTAL BREAKFAST (hotel only)
VALUABLE COUPON BOOK
FAMOUS UMASS PARTIES
ALL TAXES AND GRATUITIES

CONDO PACKAGE only $194
HOTEL PACKAGE only $149

LAGNAF 85

FIRST 100 SKIERS TO SIGN-UP ARE ELIGIBLE FOR A FREE TRIP

ALL SKIERS SIGNED-UP BEFORE NOV. 1 WILL RECEIVE A FREE (SUGARBUSH VALLEY / LAGNAF) T-SHIRT

NON-MEMBERS WELCOME

FOR MORE INFO 545-3437 430 STUDENT UNION

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS. 25th
Mug Night
8 pm-close
20 & over

and

Dancing
8:30-12:30
20 & over

FRI. 26th
Social with
Paul Wayne
3-6 pm
20 & over
★★★★★
WMUA Oldies Night
8:30-12:30
18 & over

SAT. 27th
BLUE WALL CLOSES AT 7 PM

The Weather is in Transition and so might be your Health.

For Health Care Info
Call TIPS at 545-1540
and ask for TAPES

2600 The basic student health plan
2610 Cold self-care
2640 The student dependent health plan
2645 The supplemental health benefit plan
2650 The Valley health plan
2660 In a medical emergency

INFORMATION DATA BANK 545-1555
TAPED INFORMATION
PHONE SERVICE 545-1540
idb tips
A SERVICE OF THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE

SPORT Style

UMASS JACKET
39.95

Heavy weight
Nylon
Lined
Machine Washable
Black w/grey
Snap Front
2 Pockets

S-M-L-XL

photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center

Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Doonesbury
By Garry Trudeau

OKAY, HERE'S HOW IT WORKS. WHEN THE CHOPPER TOUCHES DOWN, REAGAN IS HUSTLED ACROSS THE LAWN. YOU THEN SHOUT YOUR QUESTION. HE STOPS, CUPS HIS EAR, AND SAYS, "I CAN'T HEAR."
HE THEN WAVES AND SMILES. LATER, THE PICTURES WILL GO ON THE EVENING NEWS, CREATING THE IMPRESSION THAT REAGAN IS ACCESSIBLE, THAT HE WOULD HAVE ANSWERED THE QUESTION IF HE'D HEARD IT.
WE'VE NO CHOICE. NOT AS LONG AS THERE EXISTS A CHANCE HE'LL GIVE US A SUBSTANTIVE REPLY.
YOU MEAN, IT'S... IT'S HAPPENED?
ONCE, THE REPORTER RETIRED THE NEXT DAY. IT'S KIND OF LIKE WINNING THE LOTTERY.

Today's Weather

TODAY: Partly sunny with increasing clouds in the afternoon, highs near 60.
TONIGHT: Partly cloudy with rain developing overnight.

Bloom County
By Berke Breathed

JUST GREAT. A FLIGHTLESS WATERFOWL AND A NEAR COMATOSE CAT. WHAT SORT OF PRESIDENTIAL IMAGES ARE THOSE?!
LOUSY. THAT'S WHAT. WE NEED A NEW, POPULAR IMAGE... HOW 'BOUT AN EX-COWBOY ACTOR?
IT'S BEEN DONE.
THEN WHAT DOES AMERICA WANT? WHAT'S IN THEIR HEADS? WHAT? WHAT? WHAT?
WHAT THIS CAMPAIGN NEEDS IS A PRIVATE SOOTHSAYER...
HEADS UP! POLLSTER-FOR-HIRE COMING THROUGH, GENTLEMEN!

Twenty questions for Frank

Do you have a question for Frank Zappa?
If you do, bring it down to the Collegian office c/o Jack Bresnahan
Twenty of these questions will be selected, so make yours good.
Deadline: Friday, Oct 26

Gorde
by Gorde

LESLIE?
MANGO UH HI?
KNOCK KNOCK
WE'VE GOTTA TALK
LES, I KNOW YOU AND "ARTHUR" WERE "CLOSE," BUT...
...I KNOW, MANGO! IT'S BEST THAT GORDE'S BACK. I JUST GOT TOO CAUGHT UP WITH ARTHUR'S ROYALTY. I'M AIR OF GOING TO MISS THAT
LES, THERE'S ALWAYS GONNA BE A LITTLE "KING ARTHUR" IN GORDE
FRITZ IS IT 98?
THANKS, MANGO! YOU KNOW, YOU'RE NOT THE TOTAL NUT I THOUGHT YOU WERE
I WONDER IF SHE'D GET MAD IF I UNSNAPPED HER BRA?

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Small garden
5 Meeting: Abbr.
9 Receipts
13 Home feature
14 Neaten
15 Heron's relative
16 Secretary
18 Caviar make-up
19 Poetic contraction
20 —— Monceau, Paris
21 Refer (to)
23 Speaks, southern style
25 Stroke of a letter
27 Network
29 Title for a royal Russian
33 Madame's husband
36 Village in NW Greenland
38 Fine material
39 Rice-Webber musical
41 Prefix with gram or center
42 Dancing sister
43 Writer Pierre and family
44 Mansard
46 Sale words
47 "Sunset Boulevard" star
49 "A Town Without ——"
51 Stations, in Soissons
53 Break, in poetry: Var.
57 Open
60 A "Wizard of Oz" star
62 Velvet quality
63 Indonesian islands
64 Secretary
67 Alpine feature
68 Island in Argyllshire
69 Not those
70 Long journey
71 Race track nudges?
72 Shamrock land

DOWN
1 Conundrum
2 Swimsuit material
3 "The voice that breathed —— Eden..."
4 Diamond play
5 Place for fur in summer: Abbr.
6 Ambler and others
7 Dear ——
8 Daubs
9 Secretaries
10 Father, in the East
11 Equal
12 —— quam videri
13 Provide provender
17 A touch of class
22 Creeper
24 Secretary
26 African, to Shakespeare
28 Unending
30 Chemical endings
31 ——'me tangere
32 Ones at St Andrews
33 Ott and Torme
34 Swear to 35 Actress Gam
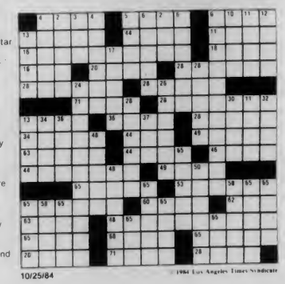
37 GI's address
40 Very, in music
45 Neckwear for ladies
48 Issue an order
50 Like some seed pods
52 Substandard language
54 Ai of Indy
55 Poker ploy
56 Cathedral section
57 USN title
58 Sandarac tree
59 Winning margin, sometimes
61 Anecdotes
65 Flightless bird
66 UK health ins

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	U	M	S		S	M	O	K	E		S	L	A	M
N	E	A	T		T	I	M	E	S		E	A	S	E
A	L	I	A		A	N	E	N	T		E	M	I	R
P	E	N	T	A	G	O	N		I	N	S	A	N	E
			U	T	E	S		O	M	E	R
S	K	I	R	T	S		G	R	A	T	E	F	U	L
T	O	N	E	S		F	L	A	T		D	O	N	E
O	R	E		T	U	L	L	E			R	T	E
I	E	R	S		R	E	L	S		A	S	T	I	R
C	A	T	T	A	I	L	S		S	T	E	E	L	Y
		E	R	A	S		M	E	L	T
S	P	R	A	I	N		D	I	V	I	S	I	O	N
E	L	E	M		G	R	A	T	E		A	O	N	E
W	A	D	E		L	A	T	E	R		I	L	E	S
S	T	O	R		E	W	E	R	S		L	E	I	S

10/25/84



© 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

UMass Zone
By Mark Rollins

I WONDER WHAT I SHOULD WEAR FOR HALLOWEEN? LET'S SEE...
THE KHOMEINI MASK? NAH, HE'S TOO MUCH OF A JOKE.
NIXON AND DARTH VADER ARE TOO OUT-OF-DATE
AND I'M SICK OF GOING AS A SNAIL OR GHOST.
DECISIONS, DECISIONS.
I'VE GOT IT. I'LL GO AS A HORRIBLE CREATURE, ONE THAT PREYS ON INNOCENT WOMEN. I'LL GO AS AN...
AMHERST COLLEGE FRATERNITY MEMBER

Bat Brain
By Bill Dearing

HOW DO YOU DO SIR. I'M WITH THE HI-BACHI FAITH. WE'RE AN ON CAMPUS ORGANISATION THAT BUGS THE HECK OUT OF EVERY SATANISTIC STUDENT ON CAMPUS
I WISH YOU'D TAKE THIS FREE PIECE OF LITERATURE IN CASE YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STUFF IN YOUR POCKET AND GET IN YOUR WAY WHEN YOU'RE SEARCHING FOR YOURE ROOM KEY LATER ON THEY GAVE ME SWING SPACE IN HELL!!
WELCOME TO THE UNIVERSITY

Yeasthead
By Jason Talerman

tedium and 100 miles per hour
Yeasthead turns to rock + roll for direction.
Grilled cheese... with Garnish
Life in the fast lane eh?
I'm ready, sell me
trendy sounds
Something tells me it's not that easy.

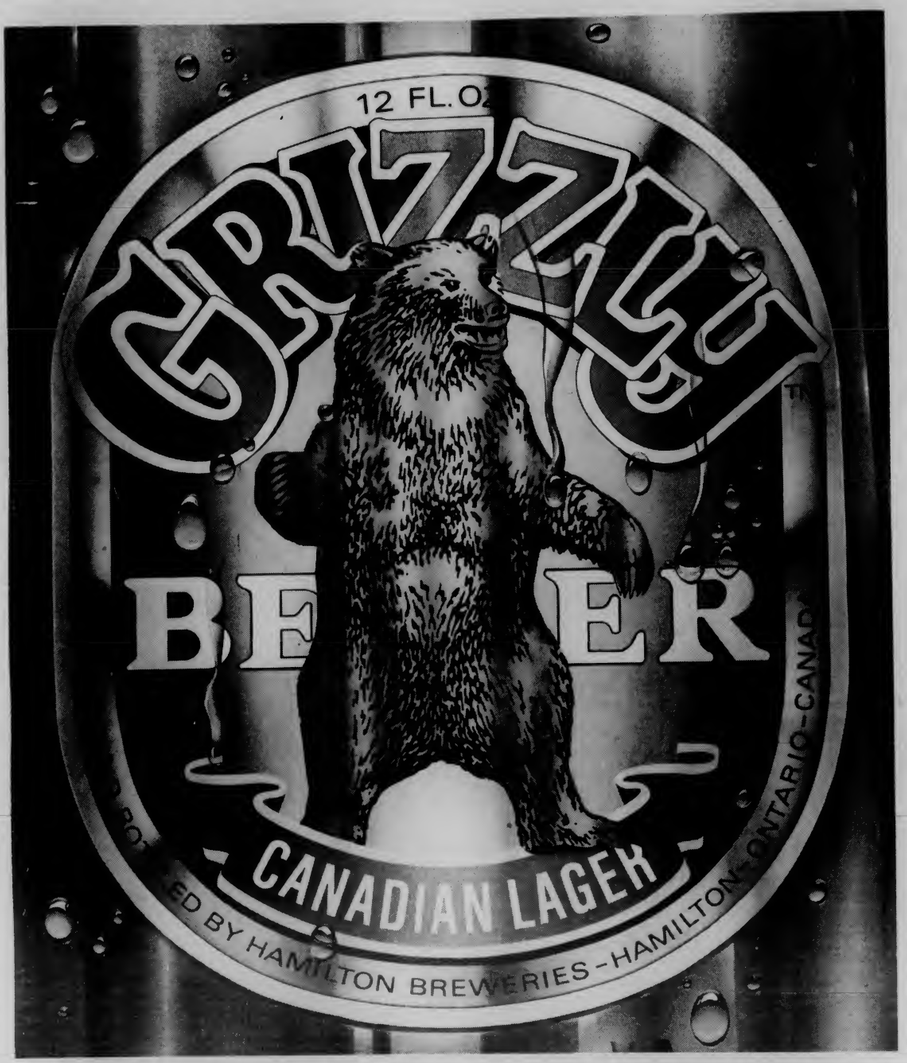
D.C. Menu

LUNCH:
Hamburg on Roll
Fish in Batter/Tartar Sauce

BASICS LUNCH:
Oatburgers
Fish in Batter/Tartar Sauce

DINNER:
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche
Seafood Rice Salad Plate

BASICS DINNER:
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche
Seafood Rice Salad Plate



Canada's Bear of Beers is here!

Down from the North Woods of Canada comes Grizzly Beer. Not just another Canadian beer, but a rare breed of brew.
An authentic Canadian lager—naturally aged, so it's remarkably smooth. With a flavor no other Canadian beer can stand up to. The bear of beers is here!

GRIZZLY™

CANADA'S BEAR OF BEERS
Imported by Van Munching & Co., Inc., New York, N.Y.

ERIC'S
GIANT SUBS

Freshly Sliced Meats

Eat In or Take Out

BREAKFAST
Beef Stew, Soups, Chicken and Seafood

Try Us and See. . .
IF THEY AREN'T THE LARGEST TASTIEST SUBS IN THE AREA!!!

Rt 9 253-9521 314 College St.

Monday-Friday 6:00 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday 6:30 am - 3:00 pm

the party never stops

UPSTAIRS ...

JR's Nightly Specials:
(No cover!)

☐ Upstairs
"The Valley's hottest danceplayce"

☐ Downstairs in the Kickoff Lounge sports are always in season.

- Wed...Bruins vs. St. Louis. Cheer them on!
- Thurs... CoMEdy NiGHt
- Fri...Celtics Season Opener--Be there!
- Sat...Just George 4 pm

Coming Soon...FREE trips for 2 to Florida!
Stand by for details!

AND DOWNSTAIRS!

at JUSTIN RYAN'S
the meeting place KICK-OFF LOUNGE

STAR MARKET SUPERMARKET OPPORTUNITIES

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN PURSUING AN EXCITING CAREER IN THE SUPERMARKET INDUSTRY?

If so, we are interested in talking to you about excellent growth opportunities. Currently we are interviewing for Co-op positions as well as December and June graduates for our Management Training program.
Star Market Co. is based in Cambridge, Mass. and openings are in Metro-Boston area.
Interested candidates contact Mr. Jeffrey Silver at the Department of Cooperative Education, Room 110, Thompson Hall for details.

STAR MARKET
YOU'RE IN THE MARKET FOR THE BEST
An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

Come To Our Party My Pretties.

CARBUR'S
Second Annual Carbur's Halloween Party. Wednesday, October 31 at 9PM
Prizes for Best Costume
Grand Prize: a Weekend for Two in Montreal
Accommodations at the Bonaventure Hotel, Breakfast plus Fifty Dollars in Cash. Other prizes include Ski Tickets to Killington, VT, Free Tickets to Comedy Nite, Free Hot Tub Certificates, Carbur's Gift Certificates, Patrick & Co. Gift Certificates
Prizes awarded at 11PM
No Costume? You, too, may win the "Eat your way thru the 16-page section of unusual sandwiches" FREE! That's over 100 of 'em
Special 99¢ offer for My Pretties. Buy any Carbur's Sandwich and get a heaping plate of Carbur's Nachos for only 99¢!
CARBUR'S
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
at the Hayward, Rt. 9 Hadley, MA (413) 586-1978
99¢

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount
• 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500. serious call only 549-7864

72 Audi 5800 running condition Larry 549-8051

1978 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $695/BO 256-6121

1980 Citation 57,000 mi. 4 spd, very good condition call evenings 546-1050

1977 Datsun, B210 hatchback 5 speed, 35 mpg, excellent running condition, $1500, 967-3456 early AM or eves.

1972 Chevy Impala runs well $600/BO 256-8137

74 Gran Torino Sport 351 4 speed many new parts and extras $650 or BO 665-8316

1975 Volkswagon Dasher sun roof AM/FM stereo $1500 549-8595 also VW Bug $600

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $6 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older. Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

Rock-A-Disc Rock-A-Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area. 549-7144

FOR RENT

Single room in apartment for rent reasonable rate close to campus 253-2284

FOR SALE

For sale Hanson ski boots shell 3, size 8-9 $75 546-4745

Univega Mountain Bike landrover sport 1 month old please call Paul 6-6045

Ski Equipment for sale Rossignol Rossi 175 size Solomon 222 bindings, poles and boots mens size 10 by Nordica call after 6 PM 549-1369

Aquariums for sale 2 10 gallon, 1 20 gallon complete with stand call 549-1369 after 6 PM

FOUND

24 hour bank card. Call to identify where and when lost and what bank Jean 549-7676

Found 10 speed bicycle in Townehouse apartment area for information call Gerry at 549-0572

Keychain found after Ferraro Rally near Heigus Mall. Has two keys & Mandale button on it. Call Ellen 549-6378

Approximately 4 month old Siamese kitten found on 10/18 Townehouse area be able to identify 546-9731 or 549-5613

Found set of keys, blue key ring, in Student Union on Sunday 10/21 call and identify 549-6833

FREE MEALS

Kitchen Help Needed in local sorority five days a week lunch and dinner in exchange for free meals. If interested please call 5-0939 or 253-9971

GAY

The People's Gay Alliance hosts a social hour each Wed from 3 to 5. Business meetings are at 6:30 each Thurs. Check the Campus center schedule for room numbers. New people are welcome and encouraged to attend!

HALLOWGRAMS

Send a friend a cookiegram for Halloween $1.00, order Tuesday Thursday CC 10-4. Find out if you've been treated in Collegian October 31

HAYRIDES

Attention Party Goers, RA's, Social Chairpersons Party on our Haywagon, Bonfire after ride. Info. and Reserv. West Hatfield Stables 247-9098

HELP WANTED

Now taking applications for full and part time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

Managers needed for Sporting Goods Co-op. Gain valuable experience buying, selling, advertising, scheduling, hiring & payroll. Applications available in 407 SUB. Deadline is October 25, 5:00 AA/EOE

Help Wanted. Day shift. Apply in person after 5 PM Bali's Pizza 65 University Drive

Drivers Wanted earn $6-9 an hour. Must have own car. Apply in person College Pizza 173 Sunset Ave.

Open House Nursing Students/Nurse's Aides free gifts, wine and cheese, cider and donuts, check us out! October 30th 1:30 pm to 4:30 pm Medical Personnel Pool 13 Old South Street Center Northampton 586-7365.

Need good meals? Sorority needs kitchen help. Call Kathy 545-2152

WMUA is looking for qualified student to fill position of Business Mgr. Applicants should have some bookkeeping experience, organizational skills, ability to work w/student staff and available for consistent weekly time commitment 8-10 hrs. Qualified undergrads may apply at 416 Stu Union by Nov 2. AA/EEO women and third world encouraged to apply.

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

Legal Assistants Wanted The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. Get hands-on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals, preparation for Federal and State Court litigation, attendance at court hearings, and participation in administrative hearings. Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. To apply, for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO. 922 Campus Center

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

An AIWA radio/tape Walkmen on Friday 12 indentifiable reward 546-1223

Last week Tuesday, brown camera case pocket calculator, eraser, pencils inside. Friday dorm key. Key ring "Record Bar". Contact John 6-7145

Fifty dollar reward! Gold watch lost in Brittany Manor near bus stop call Wendy at 546-8056

PERSONALS

Dog Home Wanted loveable white belgian shepard needs home desperately! Housebroken call JR @ 253-7987 or 545-0341 anytime!

Michael I'll always love you. Julie

Cheryl R happy Birthday "Little Girl" "love", you know who

Happy Birthday Michelle from Darling Bob

Bush Bash LAGNAF Now Sign up at UMass Ski Club 430A SUB or Cc Concourse 545-3437

Look for the Greenough Snack Bar coupon for free soda in today's Collegian

Michelle Mestarmani! Have a great birthday and a wonderful year! We love you! Your two roommates, Amy & Maura

Pebbles, we love you so! Happiest Birthday! - Gator & Hood

To the PJ-Partiers of 5 North. Any objections to an encore? Wendy & Kevin (remember us?) PS When's the weekend?

Happy 19th Becky! The day you have been waiting for is finally here. Have a good time tonight! Love, Kathy and Celeste

UMass Ski Patrol Recruitment Meeting tonite CC Rm 911.15

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses on campus low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

To all Ang going to Barnes Oct 27 and 28. I need a ride. Will help with gas. Call Rick at 546-5667

Albany NY SUNY area October 26th will share expenses! Please call Beth 549-3740

ROOMMATE WANTED

$200 a month includes utilities one minute from bus line call 584-2873 Northampton

Non smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344/253-3766

STELLA DeRUNK

Stella DaRunk Happy 21st give it to me baby - love, Ralph

Sports

Gorillas aren't waiting for Spring

...Garber's crew works now for national recognition

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The fall lacrosse season, in full swing and Garber's Gorillas, already with a couple of games under their belt, will culminate the season with a battle this Sunday against Army.

"Fall lacrosse is not as intense as some other sports. We don't do the conditioning that we do for the season. It's a much more low-key type of things," said Coach Dick Garber.

"That'll be (Army) the culmination. Probably, our best people will be on the field most of the time. Army is in awesome shape," said Garber.

"We'll give Army a game. They're in better shape. Skillwise, I know we can play with them. I wouldn't be surprised if we beat them," said Co-captain and Honorable Mention All-American Karl Hatton.

"The interest of other coaches and high school players both in and out of state has been overwhelming in UMass lacrosse," commented Garber. "Our recruiting has stepped up. We've got plenty of good players," he added.

Some of the returning players from last year include the other Co-captain and midfielder Perry Seale. The attack line of Mike Fiorini, Bubba Sandford and Ken Freeman has been playing well together. Other attackmen, Tom Lukacovic and Ed Boardman are out with a separated shoulder and a knee injury, respectively suffered last year.

Others returning in the midfield include Matt O'reilly, Greg Fisk, Seamus McGovern and Richie Abbott and Neal Cunningham, who have both improved tremendously according to Garber.

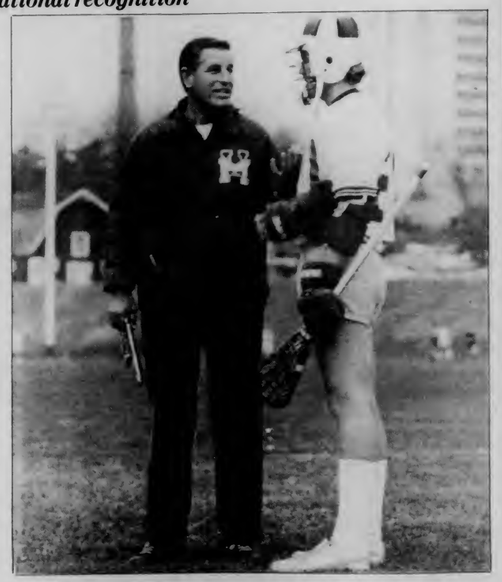
Tommy Aldrich is the only returning starting defender from last year's squad, but Gerry Byrne, who played behind the departed third team All-American Barry Cain, has looked very good and will start. Defensive midfielders Mark Stratton and Ted Spencer may be moved to the backline, to add some experience. Scott Ciampa also returns.

The most open position is goalkeeper. Quint Moore has been getting most of the work, followed by another freshman, Paul McCarty of Dematha High School in Maryland, better known for their basketball program. Still another newcomer is Glen Munchaw from Peterboro, Canada who has been plagued by a hurt ankle.

Two weeks ago, the Gorillas pit two split squads against Holy Cross and the W.M.L.C. and the team that opened up against the Crusaders played well, while the other team was a little shakey.

Last week in the Annual UMass Alumni game, the Varsity squad made good work of their former teammates, defeating them handily, 16-10, while the JV team crushed Lowell, 16-6.

Sophomore Doug Musco, who was with the team last year, but didn't play because of a knee injury, and has the fastest shot on the team, poured in four goals and an assist to lead the team to victory.



Collegian photo by Derek Roberts

UMass lacrosse coach Dick Garber in conference with one of his players during yesterday's fall practice.

Transfer Tom Carmine from Farmingdale, Long Island also looks to be a good player as he showed some good moves in adding four goals of his own along with a couple of assists.

Other new players include Al Rotatori, Kelly and Brad Carr, a twin tandem from high school lacrosse power, West Genesee, Glen Stevens a midfielder, and attackmkcDave Burke and Craig Pietz.

"At this point of the year, this team looks better than last year's (a 10th place finish nationally) team did," concluded Garber.

Spikers destroy Smith

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team's win over Smith College last night was truly a pleasure to watch—if you had a flashlight. The lack of light apparently didn't bother the Minutemen, as the spikers trounced the Unicorns 15-5, 15-4, 15-6 at a dim-lit NOPE gym last night.

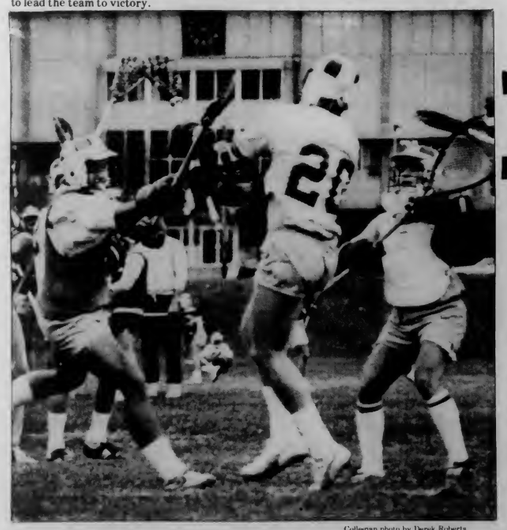
A whole section of the gym was left in the dark as center court was provided with full lighting for the first time this season with light bulbs borrowed from other ceiling lights.

Last night's game also served as Patti Grant's final home game as a spiker. Grant led the team in serving the last four years, amassing 89 service aces in that time. Grant, making her 169th start, led UMass to the ECAC championship last season.

UMass dominated the match from start to finish, capitalizing on numerous Unicorn miscues.

"We were in control," said Coach Elaine Sortino. "It gave us a chance to try some things we haven't been able to do this season."

UMass now prepares for this weekend's Westpoint Volleyball Tournament. This tournament is crucial to UMass' post-season play hopes. Four of the top five teams, including UMass who is ranked #5, will be present. Wins against #2 New Haven or #3 Army would put the spikers in contention for a playoff spot.



Collegian photo by Derek Roberts

Senior attackman Ken Freeman is seen here in action in front of the net. The Gorillas are scrimmaging again this fall in preparation for a tough spring schedule, as they fight for national ranking.

Sports Log

Tony Betros

Just a few thoughts...

We have quite a crop of free agents this year, ranging from the ridiculous to the sublime. Bruce Sutter and Cy Young winner Rick Sutcliffe will probably be the most sought after, while guys like Bill Almon, Champ Summers (what kind of mother names her kid "champ"; never mind, I don't want to know), and Chris Spreier will probably be better off serving Fribbles at your local Friendly's...Sutcliffe can just about name his price, especially after being the unanimous choice for baseball's highest award for a pitcher. Sutter's wallet will also be getting a little fatter come next season. Expect to see both signing for more than one million a year, easy.

Someone who should be making that much is Dan Marino, quarterback of the Dolphins. This great athlete drove the Dolphins to touchdown after touchdown against the Patriots. In fact, he made the Pats secondary look mighty bad on many occasions. I don't think Mr. Marino will be getting something under the tree from Ron Meyer this December...Another football coach has bit the proverbial dust. Sam Rutigliano got his pink slip after that fine 1-7 start with the Cleveland Browns. What really did him in was his lousy call against the Patriots a few weeks ago. I have an eerie feeling that Sam will be guiding the Pats before too long.

One team I don't think anyone should coach is the Houston Oilers. They have gone 3-33 over the past few years with no hope in sight. Yup, they are the Ball State (now 2-6) of the pro ranks...

Hockey season is already a week old and we haven't even hit 40 degrees yet. The Bruins are off to a rough start of it, with Pete Peters giving up more than four goals a game. To bolster their attack, the B's acquired Charlie Simmer from the L.A. Kings. Simmer is a pretty good player from a pretty bad team. The Kings have yet to win a game this year and haven't made the hockey playoffs in years, which is like your sister turning you down for the Senior Prom...The Oilers picked up right where they left off, not yet losing a game and averaging six goals a contest. They're giving up less than three a game as well. They can do it all. Gretzky can probably even lip-sync.

How dare the WBC strip the title from Hagler? He is the best middleweight, period. I'd like to see the guy who told him to his face. That would not be a pretty sight...This weeks quote goes to WMUA guru Steve Cooperstein, who inquired as to what people in Maine do for fun (check yesterday's paper). I don't know, Steve, but I'm really not looking forward to going back up there to find out and neither is Pete.

No more need be said.

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 36 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, October 26, 1984

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

UMass professor of Afro-American Studies Michael Thelwell addresses a noontime "Free Grenada" rally yesterday outside the Student Union. More than 200 students gathered to hear students speak against the one year anniversary of the rescue mission of American medical students, two of whom spoke at Amherst College.

Students react to Grenada anniversary

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts students rallied yesterday against the U.S. invasion of Grenada on its first anniversary, calling the action an "obscenity" and "a low point in American activity."

The protest, which began on the steps of the Student Union Building and later resumed at Amherst College's Converse Hall, was part of a nationwide response to "Student Liberation Day," a celebration of the anniversary of the rescue mission of American medical students studying in Grenada.

Sponsored by the Radical Student Union and the Western Massachusetts Latin America Solidarity Committee (WMLASC), the rally brought together students who opposed the invasion and other U.S. intervention in Central American countries like Nicaragua and El Salvador.

About 250 people gathered at noon, where they first saw a skit put on by UMass' "The Not Ready for Main Street Players." The skit showed U.S. soldiers killing Grenadians and Cubans, while rescuing an unconcerned "student" who was then paid off to give a nationalistic speech praising the action.

RSU member Beatrix Hoffman initiated the speaker list by saying, "We're here today...to show that students do care (about U.S. intervention into Third World Countries), and that we don't want to see young people die in another useless war."

Hoffman then invited the gathering to move on to Amherst College after the rally, where two medical students evacuated by the U.S. were speaking. Their appearance was paid for by the USA Foundation, an organization that says it is non-partisan but whose president, Jack Abramoff, is also head of the College Republican National Committee.

Amid posters reading "Stop U.S. support for Right Wing Thugs" and "CIA 'saved' medical students and bombed a mental hospital," about a dozen speakers addressed the UMass audience.

Afro-American Studies professor Michael Thelwell told the crowd, "You must ask yourselves why you are here. Have you not heard that American is standing tall? If so, then why?"

Following the rally, a group of students went to Amherst College to hear medical students Victoria Saccaro, 25, of Hackensack, N.J., and Chris Anselmi, 23, of Queens, N.Y., describe their Grenadian experience.

Prior to the invasion, the students had been under a four-day curfew following the assasination of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop, when they would have been shot on sight if they left the campus. During this time, the students had to live on food rations, drink impure water that was brought in because they had no utilities, and build latrines.

The audience of about 75 people frequently attempted to change the forum to a discussion on foreign policy and the politics of the Grenada move.

"We're not here to debate foreign policy or to espouse Reagan or Mondale," Anselmi, who said during an earlier news conference that he was a Democrat, stressed. "Some American soldiers died to rescue us, whether you believe we were in danger or not. One reason we are here is to honor them."

Asbestos still plaguing UM buildings

Workers to remove from 'priority' areas

By CHRIS POON
Collegian Staff

Despite spending over a third of a million dollars on asbestos removal last January, the University of Massachusetts is far from finished in removing the substance from campus buildings.

The Physical Plant is beginning an asbestos removal program that will cost $75,000 a year to rid pipe and ceiling insulation of the fire-retardant substance, according to Peter Wozniak, operations director of the Physical Plant.

As part of the effort, the Physical Plant will hire three asbestos removal workers and will post warning signs in buildings where there may be high levels of asbestos in the air.

The highest levels of potentially dangerous asbestos are found in mechanical rooms of University buildings, according to an Asbestos Commission study. The buildings include the Hampden Dining Commons, Goodell Library, the Water Resource Center and Morrill Science Center. These rooms have been placed on a "priority list" by the Physical Plant, Wozniak said.

Last January, the University hired private contractors to work on a large-scale asbestos removal project on the Campus Center concourse. With the hiring of three asbestos workers, the University will no longer have to call expensive contractors into the school, Wozniak said.

"The primary function of the workers would be to remove or encapsulate asbestos on the ceilings and pipes," Wozniak said.

"The Massachusetts Asbestos Commission and the Environmental Health and Safety Division have gone out and looked at where asbestos is installed in the University," Wozniak said. He said the inspection process includes making a list of all the places on campus where there might be potential health and safety hazards if asbestos is in the air.

Asbestos is "normally a stable substance, but if it is powderized, then it becomes a problem," Wozniak said. Asbestos has been found to cause cancer after prolonged exposure.

"We will ensure that they get proper training and equipment," said Alfred Sorenson, safety and occupational health officer at UMass. He said the Environmental Health and Safety Division will also monitor the work sites where the workers will remove or seal asbestos.

Wozniak said there is no single correct method for asbestos removal. "There is no one right way to seal off a room and encapsulate asbestos," Wozniak said. "It's really on a trial and error basis," he said.

The highest acceptable level of asbestos in the air is .02 fibers per cubic centimeter, said Wozniak. He said the standard was set by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Orchard Hill lighting fixed; concern for safety voiced

By REBECCA THATCHER
and LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Rumors that up to four rapes occurred on campus earlier this week led to increased concerns over a darkened path to Orchard Hill, though that lighting has now been restored.

The lights on the path from Worcester Dining Commons to Orchard Hill had been out since Tuesday night, but have now been restored, according to Tony Fusco, assistant director of operations of the Physical Plant.

The lights had been out because of a transformer failure at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. The transformer, which also supplies power to the observatory and Fisher Laboratory, is responsible for adjusting voltage, Fusco said.

In order to restore lighting to the pathway, a temporary line was set up from another power source, Fusco said.

He said he hopes the transformer itself will be repaired by today.

A motion passed by the Undergraduate Student Senate Wednesday called for the formation of a task force to study campus lighting and other safety measures. The panel, to be made up of representatives from the Senate, the administration, the Department of Public Safety, and the women's issues team of the Student Center fro Educational Research and Advocacy, should meet Monday to finalize details on the safety measures.

Women advised on how to avoid rape

By DENISE FULLER
Collegian Correspondent

At least 15 rapes are reported on this campus each year, according to police statistics. Officials estimate that only 10 to 25 percent of rapes which actually occur are reported.

For women the fear of rape can be lessened by using some precautionary measures.

"No matter what we tell people, so much depends on the style of the offender, but we suggest people stay in lighted areas, look alert, and pay attention," said Mary Dumas, an administrator in the sensitive crimes unit of the University of Massachusetts police.

Date rape is one of the most frequent

Continued on page 4

Inside:

Amherst College to study South African investments.....p.3
The Nicaraguan elections.....p.9
Celtics sign Maxwell.....p.18

"I'm unemployed right now. Yesterday I was a Reagan fan. Today I'm a Mondale fan."
—Coach Ron Meyer after being fired by the Patriots yesterday

Kerry, Shamie debate economic issues

BOSTON (AP) - Democrat John Kerry and Republican Ray Shamie clashed repeatedly on econmic issues last night in a U.S. Senate debate, with Shamie surprising his opponent by saying that his "no new taxes" stance applied only to tax hikes to reduce the federal deficit.

The hour-long meeting at Faneuil Hall started off slowly with discussions of Central America and arms control formulas. But the debate came alive when Kerry, the state's lieutenant governor, tried to push Shamie on his position on tax hikes and Shamie tried to paint his Democratic opponent as a big spender.

Midway through the debate, Shamie was asked a tax question and responded by saying he's "been talking about it so long now I'm tired of hearing myself talk about it."

But the Republican startled Kerry by adding that he only opposed tax increases to reduce the federal deficit. He indicated he would support a tax increase for worthwhile social programs, especially if they were matched with a tax reduction in another area.

Kerry, who has tried to force Shamie to back off from the "no new taxes" stand that he used to help win the GOP primary, quickly tried to capitalize on the statement.

"On September 10, with Elliot Richardson sitting right here in this room, he (Shamie) said, 'I will not vote for new taxes, new federal taxes, under any circumstances.' And that was a continuing pledge throughout the campaign," Kerry said. "I'm delighted to have him adopt a more reasonable attitude and realize you have to bend."

Shamie, a millionaire businessman, also accused Kerry of flip-flopping on the tax issue by initially saying a tax hike was inevitable and now saying he would support an increase only as a last resort.

He said Kerry could not pay for the social spending increaes he wanted "unless you go back to your original program to raise taxes."

continued on page 7

DELANO'S

OCTOBER SPECIAL
Twofer One
HEINEKEN

plus our original
twofers and hors d'oevres
7 days 7 nights
4-6 pm 10-midnight

Proper ID a MUST
57 N. Pleasant St. 253-5141

COME CELEBRATE!

GOSPEL MUSIC EUCHARIST

at Grace Episcopal Church
On The Amherst Common
Sundays at 12:15 P.M.

Under the musical direction of
Horace Clarence Boyer
Rev. Christopher Carlisle, UMASS Episcopal Chaplain
Rev. James Clark, Rector, Grace Church

Lunch following.

Deficit in 1984 2nd highest ever

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government ran up a $175.3 billion budget deficit in fiscal year 1984, down from the all-time record set last year but still the second-largest flood of red ink in U.S. history, the Treasury Department announced yesterday.

The deficit total for the fiscal year which ended on Sept. 30 was $1 billion higher than the Reagan administration had predicted in August but was down considerably from what both the administration and private economists had feared at the beginning of the year.

The $175.3 billion deficit was 10 percent below the $195.3 billion record set in 1983, the year that Ronald Reagan had pledged while campaigning in 1980 that he would balance the government's books.

Democratic candidate Walter Mondale has sought to make the government's budget deficit an issue in the presidential campaign, accusing President Reagan of ignoring the problem.

Mondale has offered a plan of budget cuts and tax increases to slash the projected deficit in 1989 by two-thirds and has challenged Reagan to do the same.

The president has declined to offer specifics of his own deficit reduction plan. He has said he would increase taxes only as a "last resort," preferring to rely instead on further budget cuts and growth in the economy to erase the red ink.

The final deficit figure would have been even higher but the government actually ran a rare surplus of $16.8 billion last month, brought about because September government checks such as Social Security were mailed in late August because of the Labor Day holiday.

The final report showed that government revenues totaled $666.4 billion in 1984, up to 10.9 percent from 1983. Government spending totaled $841.8 billion, up 5.8 percent from 1983.

AP Laserphoto

21 arrested in D. C.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Twenty one people, including the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, were arrested yesterday when they blocked the northwest gate of the White House by kneeling in prayer and denouncing President Reagan's policies.

Organizers for the Community for Creative Nonviolence said the arrests brought to 101 the number of demonstrators taken into custody outside the White House during almost daily protests this month. They said 27 people were arrested there Wednesday.

Singing hymns and folk songs, reciting Scripture and the Lord's Prayer, the demonstrators Thursday stood in front of the high iron gates of the White House, then sat on the driveway and finally knelt on the pavement.

A spokesman said many of the protesters were from Boston or New York. The names of those arrested were not available.

The demonstrators held cardboard signs and painted cloth banners, some of which read "No More Grenadas," "Reagan's Harvest of Shame" and "Shelter the Homeless."

Berrigan, a Roman Catholic priest, is a longtime peace and anti-war activist who has been arrested often for taking part in protest demonstrations.

Grenada remembers

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) On Oct. 25, 1983, Grenadians huddled behind closed doors as gunfire from invading troops crackled nearby. Yesterday, one year later, they marked the anniversary with thanksgiving church services and the peaceful pleasures of a midweek holiday.

"Let us not for a moment forget those American servicemen who gave their lives that we might live," Vicar General Cyril LaMontagne told some 500 people gathered at the Roman Catholic cathedral here yesterday morning.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Anne McCrory
Copy Editor	John Yonce
Layout Technician	Ansel Zinter
Photo Technician	Mitch Drantch
Production Supervisor	Conor Plunkett
Production	Laura Zigman, Julie Slater, Kathryn Nobrega, Andrew Held, Debb Rugg, Jeff Collins.

1981 Bordeaux Tasting

November 1, 1984
Lord Jeffery Inn, Amherst
$18.00 per person

reservations & information 253-5384

sponsored by Spirit Haus Rte. 9, Amherst

Collegian photo by Mitch Drantch

ERECTER SET — Construction workers begin their day in mist yesterday at this University Drive site.

Union Records vacant 'til '85

By JOHN VINCENT
Collegian Staff

The Campus Center Board of Governors decided last night to leave the Union Records Unlimited store empty until next semester, despite a request from the Undergraduate Student Senate to allot the space to the Sporting Goods Co-op.

BOG space coordinator Ron Homa said the board wanted to make sure that the group that gets the space deserves it the most. He also said the record store needs till the end of November to sell the rest of its records.

Campus Center Director Bill Harris said the board had to protect Campus Center businesses from direct competition. He said that if the BOG let the Sporting Goods Co-op expand and move into the Union Records Unlimited store, as some BOG members had suggested, it would create unwanted competition with the University Store's sports department.

Harris said if the Sporting Goods Co-op expanded, maybe the University Store should cancel its line of sporting goods.

Homa said the Republican Club is first in line for office space, followed by the Asian Students Group and Circuit Magazine. He said usually about 30 groups ask for office space but that these were the only groups which asked for space this year.

The BOG also agreed to sponsor the re-opening of the Craft Shop, on Nov. 6th. BOG vice-chairperson Karen Karina Gray said the re-opening, for which the BOG donated $150, should show students the crafts they can practice, have students meet the new manager, Anna Dolan, and encourage people to use the shop, which was not very productive last year.

The BOG also donated $250 toward a free concert on Nov. 17 by Debitrasad Chatterjee, a sitar player from India to be held in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Harris also said that with the rise in the drinking age to 21 next year, the Campus Center bars will have to find something other than alcohol on which to make money and entertain large numbers of students.

The BOG is planning to introduce a "fruit juice bar" in the Campus Center bars, said BOG member Sid Flynn. It would serve fruit juices, virgin drinks, non-alcoholic daquiries, malts, soda, and vegetable drinks. There currently is a machine which makes non-alcoholic drinks in one of the bars.

Alumna buys sculpture

In a brief ceremony yesterday, University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey unveiled a newly-installed outdoor sculpture created by a UMass alumnus, and purchased, for the most part, by a UMass alumna and patron of the arts.

Speaking from atop the sculpture, which features a 20-feet-long deck that leads to a large stone partially encased in concrete, Duffey said "This is a very special addition and it's something to play with, enjoy, and celebrate."

The sculpture, titled "Separate Change," is located in an opening in a small grove of trees directly outside the chancellor's house near Orchard Hill

After spotting the piece in ths University Gallery last year, Lois Torf '46, said she questioned what was to become of it, and worked to keep the sculpture on campus, eventually, to locate it outside the chancellor's house.

LARRY BOUCHIE

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

Chancellor Joseph Duffey, alumna Lois Torf and artist Jeffrey Schiff unveil artwork in garden near chancellor's house.

Amherst forms S. Africa board

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

Amherst College President Peter R. Pouncey has formed a committee of students, faculty and alumni which will advise him on possible divestiture of the college's holdings in companies that do business in South Africa

The President's Advisory Committee on Investments in South Africa will recommend to Pouncey "what the (college's) trustees might do about specific companies in which we own stock, and continue to discuss the moral issue and the wisdom of divestment in general," according to the committee's chairman, sociology Professor Jan Dizard.

Sarah Arnholz, one of two students appointed to the committee, said the college has approximately $17 million worth of shares in corporations with business ties in South Africa, "although that figure may be dated." Amherst College Comptroller Sharon Siegel would neither confirm nor deny Arnholz's estimate.

Dizard was a member of a committee, which in a 30-page report last year, condemned apartheid but rejected immediate divestment, concluding, "it is simply not within the power or authority of the Trustees to effect materially the course of history in South Africa."

The report recommended that the trustees "indicate that they are not categorically opposed to divestiture" and that the college increase "educational activities...on the nature of apartheid," South Africa's system of racial segregation and inequality.

Both Dizard and Siegel said the college is most concerned with companies' adherence to the Sullivan Principles, guidelines for corporate behavior in South Africa written in 1977 by Reverend Leon H. Sullivan of Philadelphia.

The Sullivan Principles call on companies operating in South Africa to eliminate segregation and discrimination from their facilities and hiring practices and to recruit blacks, who are allowed no political rights by that country's ruling white minority.

Siegel said the college divested from 12 companies between 1978 and May 1983 because the firms were not following the principles.

Siegel said "blanket divestment" might be counterproductive, and that pressing corporations to adhere to the Sullivan Principles is a more effective step toward improving the lives of South African blacks.

Dizard said he was more concerned with "seeing that American foreign policy toward South Africa changes. I'm not sure divestment will have an effect.

"I'm leery of trying to get corporations to behave well. I'm less leery of trying to get Congress to pass good laws," he said.

He said the financial effect of divestiture would be only a short-term problem, "but trustee reluctance...comes from the possibility of antagonizing alumni. I'm sure many of (the alumni) don't want the institution they attended and love becoming politicized.

"Many of the trustees are leaders of corporations and banks," he added.

Arnholz, a senior, called student involvement in the issue "sporadic. People aren't aware; they don't want to be aware." She said the last "reasonably powerful" Amherst student action was a spring 1982 anti-apartheid rally she helped organize.

Arnholz said she was not aware that a University of Massachusetts group, the South Africa Divestment Coalition, this fall succeeded in getting the UMass Board of Trustees and Treasurer Robert Brand to adhere to a 1977 divestment policy.

"It's too bad we (the colleges in the area) haven't integrated campaigns enough," she said.

Police report stereo, bicycles stolen

University of Massachusetts police reported that a 1974 Buick was broken into in lot 44 and its AM/FM cassette stereo and equalizer, valued at $200, were stolen.

Police said thieves also smashed the car's windshield. The report was received at 6:40 p.m. Wednesday.

A 10-speed bicycle valued at $325 was reported stolen at 7:06 p.m. Wednesday, near Worcester Dining Commons. Police said the bike's owner locked the bike outside of the dining hall and returned 45 minutes later to find it missing.

Police said another 10-speed bicycle valued at $225 was reported stolen at 1:57 p.m. Wednesday from the basement of Cashin dormitory. Police reported that the bike was locked to a metal rack, but the lock was apparently sawed off.

A 20-year-old male UMass student was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated, police said. Police reported that the man was arrested on Massachusetts Avenue at 2:10 a.m. Thursday.

Police said a 25-year-old Sunderland man was arrested on warrants for previous motor vehicle violations issued by the South Yarmouth police department. According to police, the man was stopped for speeding on North Pleasant Street near the Fine Arts Center at 12:13 a.m. Thursday, and subsequently arrested for the outstanding warrants.

— JOEL P. COFFIDIS

Nonviolence workshop to be held

A workshop on nonviolence will be held at 1 p.m. Sunday in Campus Center room 163.

This workshop, which will be led by UMass Peacemakers Randi Saslow and Jonathan Spaulding, will be preparation for the Harvest of Shame Civil Disobedience Action on Nov. 3 in Washington D.C.

For more information contact Jon Spaulding or Randi Saslow at 545-2661

Europe fears Reagan, nukes says Danish party official

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

President Ronald Reagan will win in November and one of Europe's basic fears is that Reagan will not do anything about the arms race, a leader of a swing party in Denmark and a former high ranking official in the European Common Market said yesterday.

Niels Helveg Petersen, leader of Denmark's Social Liberal party, spoke to about 40 UMass students yesterday morning on the Common Market and its relations with the United States.

The Common Market is composed of 10 Western European nations that act as one in economic trade. Great Britain, France, Italy and West Germany are the major countries.

"Everybody knows that Reagan is going to win," Petersen said, "and we have known that for a long time and so have the Russians. It's really an academic question."

Petersen, a former leader of the Danish delegation in the Common Market commission (the body that writes and administers laws), said Europe is concerned about arms control.

"There is a genuine fear in Europe that Reagan will not do anything about arms control. The arms race will just get faster and faster. This administration is not seen in Europe as an administration that has seriously tried to come forth with proposals towards arms control," Petersen said.

"We have more destructive capability packed in Western Europe than any other spot on Earth," he said. "We don't want any more."

Petersen, who is in America by invitation of the government touring high technology cities such as Boston, Dallas, and San Francisco, also said the deficit is unrealistic.

"I believe Reagan has to do something about it. I'm convinced there will be tax increases and deficit cuts. It is a manageable budget if it's taken care of now," he said.

★rape

Continued from page 1

types of rape, according to Kathy Alexander, coordinator of the counselor advocates training program at the Everywoman's Center.

"On campus, the most common kind of rape is aquaintance rape which accounts for at least 67 percent of all rapes," Alexander said.

To avoid being attacked at night, women should travel in groups and interlace keys between their fingers to use as a weapon against a rapist. An escort service (545-2123) is also available to women walking alone at night, according to pamphlets provided by the Everywoman's Center.

Violent crime experts suggest using only first and middle initials on a mailbox or in a phone book instead of Miss, Mrs., or Ms.

Keeping doors and windows locked, leaving lights on when the residence is vacant, and reporting any suspicious behaviors are three measures women can use to decrease the likelihood of being victimized, the pamphlet stated.

"Reporting a rapist is an important aspect of rape prevention. We give offenders the message that rape is not a crime that they can get away with," Dumas said.

If a woman is victimized, the rape hotline (545-0800) provides victims with a counselor advocate who "is there to support and not to tell the woman what to do," said Peg Lazarchick, a counselor educator at the Everywoman's Center.

Lazarchick said a counselor advocate usually accompanies a victim to the health services or a hospital, where she is given an exam. The exam is important, Lazarchick said, in case the attacked person later wants to press charges. The victim should also not shower before the exam.

Victims can also call the University police to receive assistance.

A counselor advocate can also report the rape to the police if the assaulted person does not want to press charges. If the woman decides to press charges, she can drop the case at any time, Lazarchick said.

Students must 'take a stand' on gay rights, other oppression

By TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

People who do not face harassment and discrimination daily cannot fully understand the need for education on those oppressions, according to Paul Throne, member of the People's Gay Alliance (PGA) at the University of Massachusetts.

"It's hard to be committed to people whose experiences you don't share," Throne said.

Last week, the Undergraduate Student Senate voted 48-34 against the allocation of funds for a heterosexism awareness educator. Some senators maintained that the Student Government Association (SGA) did not have enough money in the SGA emergency stabilization account to fund the educator, who would receive $3,824. Others said that the need for an educator is not an emergency.

People using these arguments "don't know that every day people are being harassed," Throne said. "An awareness educator would publicize the fact and bring (oppression) to the people's attention."

Last year the SGA spent $12,000 on a Cheap Trick concert in Southwest, using monies from the emergency account, Throne said.

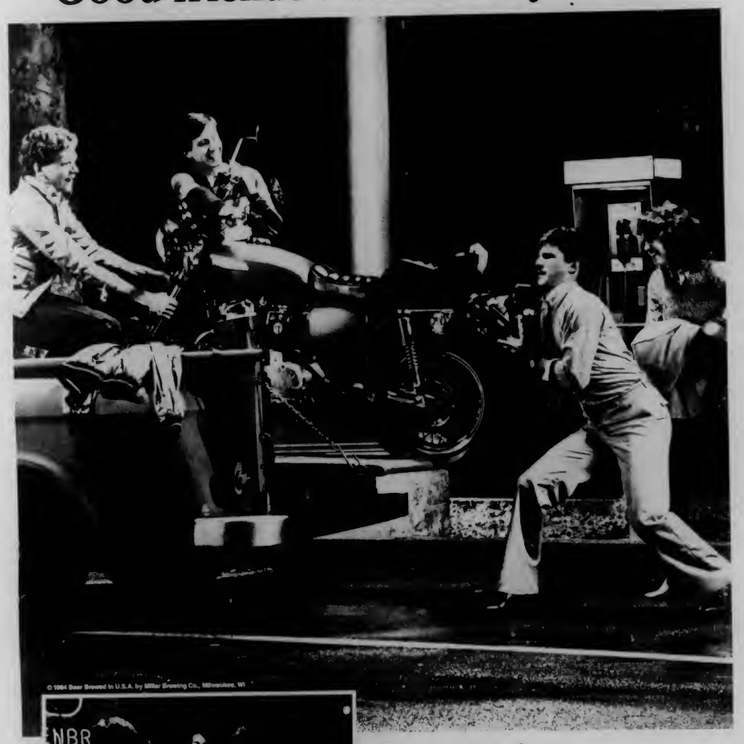
"People in the senate just didn't want to be faced with gay and lesbian issues," he said.

The senate decision was reached through a secret ballot, and had the senate taken a verbal vote, and heard their own views, "they would have had a pang of conscience and voted yes," Throne said. "If people didn't verbally take a stand, you really can't educate them at all," he said.

Throne suggested that in order it reach those people who are apathetic about gay and lesbian oppression and other oppressions such as racism, sexism, and ageism, a referendumshould be created to make people think about these issues.

Make a list of 25 questions "asking people if they support gay rights, if they believe the text book annex should be handicapaccesible, if they believe the record stores in the mall should sell only the black artists that appeal to a white (consumer)," Throne said.

Good friends won't leave you flat.



The moon was up, the stars were out and–pfftt!–your rear tire was down. Good thing there was a phone nearby. And a few good friends who were willing to drive a dozen miles, on a Saturday night, to give you a lift. When you get back, you want to do more than just say "thanks." So tonight, let it be Löwenbräu.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
• Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wairoba's Store
549-4704

OOPS!

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Book on future published

May help educators forecast trends

By ILENE MORRIS
Collegian Correspondent

A handbook that aids administrators, policymakers, and teachers in bringing a more effective future to their schools has bee published by the Phi Delta Kappa Commission on schooling for the 21st century.

The handbook, published by the University of Massachusetts Future Studies Program, "enables ordinary people to gather and formulate information which gives them a detailed picture of future trends," according to Lon Freeman, Future Studies Program coordinator.

Although many statistical methods have been developed for forecasting probable trends in education, the consequences have been studied less, Freeman said.

The handbook, titled "Handbook for Conducting Future Studies in Education," is available for $4 a copy. The report, finished last year, includes several years of research.

The Office of Long Range Planning at Army Headquarters in Washington D.C. has some interest in this report, Freeman said.

"Lieutenant Colonel McCaa has called a national assessment of groups, universities and think tanks that are involved in long range planning to see what facilities are out there for their own purposes," Freeman said. At a Future Studies meeting Wednesday, the question arose on what degree of involvement the Future Studies Program should have with the military.

"It was decided that we will send them this information," said Freeman. "No one knows if this will be valuable to them."

But Freeman added that it is difficult to find adequate funding for the Future Studies Program, and since the Department of Defense is the second or third source of research funding , an arrangement with them would be tempting," he said.

U.S.- Israeli relationship important says columnist

By DEBORAH ROSS
Collegian Staff

Albert Schlossberg, columnist for The Boston Globe, The Christian Science Monitor, and The Jewish Advocate, said last night that Israel is strategically of vital importance to the United States.

Schlossberg spoke to University of Massachusetts studnets in Herter Hall as part of an ongoing lecture series on contemporary issues in the Middle East sponsored by the UMass B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation.

In his lecture "Israel's Relationship with the U.S.," he said that "the one strategic ally of the United States in the Middle East which can be depended upon is the state of Israel, "because," he added, "it is the only democratic nation there."

The reason why it is imperative that the United States has a strong stategic relationship with at least one country in the Middle East is because "of the oil which is controlled, by and large, by the Arab nations," Schlossberg said.

He said that the U.S. was not entirely dependent on oil supplies from the Middle East. But Western European countries, Japan and a number of America's other allies across the world are.

He said that "the U.S. is in agreement with its allies that if the flow of oil from the Persian Gulf is cut off, then the U.S. will share it's own oil."

"This would entirely disrupt the U.S. economy," Schlossberg said. "This is the major reason why planners in the U.S. see the Middle East as so strategically important to them, "and why it is so important to have a Middle Eastern ally.

Schlossberg also spoke of other reasons which contributed to Israel's importance for the U.S.

He said that "If war were to break out in the Middle East which involved the Soviet Union, who could the U.S. depend on?" It is only Israel, said Schlossberg, which has a military force predicated on the American system and "reported to be one of the best in the world."

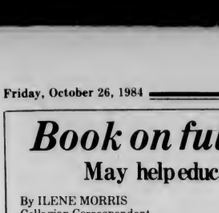
He also spoke on the psychological relationship between Israel and the U.S. Essentially Israel and America have "the same goals, the same hopes and dreams and speak the same sort of language," said Schlossberg.

Israel's strategic importance for the U.S. is made plain, he said, if one considers that the United States gives $2.6 billion in aid to Israel annually, "even though only 2.7 percent of the U.S. population are Jewish," he said.

Read the Collegian you'll like it!

Halloween '84
Paints, sprays, streaks, gels, tinsels, wigs, masks, fearless mirrors, capes, hats, etc!
visit the Halloween Shop at FACES
downtown Amherst Mon-Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5

Apply Now to Compete in the 1985
MISS MASSACHUSETTS - U.S.A. PAGEANT
No Performing Talent Required



Deborah Neary
1984 Miss Massachusetts - USA

WHY NOT GO FOR IT??? Apply to compete for the Title of MISS MASSACHUSETS-USA, our representative to the prestigious MISS U.S.A. PAGEANT, to be nationally televised on CBS in May, 1985. Over $100,000 in prizes await the national winner.

Our 1985 State Pageant will be held in February, 1985. To qualify, you must be single, between 17 and 24 as of May 1, 1985, and at least a six month resident of this State - thus, college dorm students are eligible. So for some fun, excitement and glamour, phone (617) 266-3280 or write to:

Miss Massachusetts-U.S.A. Pageant Headquarters,-Dept. MA
480 Boylston St., 2nd Floor, Boston, MA 02116
Your letter MUST include a recent snapshot, brief biography and PHONE NUMBER
DEADLINE IS NOVEMBER 15, 1984

CHILDREN of DIVORCE:
Developing Coping Skills for the Holidays
When: Six Sessions Nov. 5 - Dec. 17 Mondays/3:30-5 pm
Where: 127 Hills North
to register for the group call 545-2337
Mental Health Services

Check Our LOW Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From
Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

girls! Beware OTIS girls!

IS BACK! and better than ever girls! girls!

COUPON SPECIALS

Large Clown Kit
Reg. $6.95
$3.95 with coupon
expires Nov. 1st.

Clown Makeup Sticks
Reg. $1.95
with coupon
$1.50
expires Nov. 1st.

Clown White
Reg. $3.85
$2.50 with coupon
expires Nov. 1st

Nestle Color Glow
Reg. $2.50
with coupon
$1.89
expires Nov. 1st

False Eyelashes Rubber Noses
Spirit Gum White Face Powder
Face Paints And Much More!!

COLLEGE DRUG
4 MAIN STREET AMHERST Phone 253-2573

SALE!
FRI./SAT./SUNDAY
3 DAYS ONLY... OCT. 26, 27, 28
20% OFF ALL STOCK
TIGHTS
LEOTARDS
BODYSUITS
BLOUSONS
DANSKIN
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst / Daily 10-6, Sun. 12-5

THIS IS IT!!!!
OUR BIGGEST SALE IN 12 YEARS!!!!
AMHERST MUSIC HOUSE
AND GUITAR WORKSHOP
MIDNIGHT MADNESS SALE!
Monday, Oct. 29th,
10 A.M.-12 P.M.
ENTIRE CONTENTS OF STORE
20-50% OFF!!!
Guitars, Amplifiers, Strings, Effects, Microphones, Music, Accessories, EVERYTHING!
233 NO. PLEASANT ST. (CARRIAGE SHOPS)
AMHERST
549-1728

10 PM SHOW ADDED!!
Tickets on Sale Now

UPC PRODUCTIONS presents:
an evening with
The Them or Us Tour '84"
FRANK ZAPPA
SUN. OCT. 28th
7:00 PM
F.A.C. UMASS
Good Seats Still Available
UMass Students
$9.50 and $10.50
Five College Students,
Faculty and Staff
$11.50 and $12.50
Tickets on Sale Now
Frank Zappa's second show is open to students, faculty, and staff of the Five Colleges only.
UMass and 5-College ID required for purchase of ticket
Tickets on sale at Fine Arts Center
No cans, bottles or recording devices.

The Sanders SPECTRUM
Opportunities at Every Wave Length.
Sign Up for Interviews Immediately!
Sanders will be on campus
Tuesday, November 13

We're Sanders Associates, one of the world's leading producers of advanced defense electronics and computer graphics systems and products. Our broad spectrum of involvement offers you the opportunity to apply your knowledge to areas that include countermeasures, signal processing, ocean surveillance, air defense, training and simulation, automatic testing, systems management, and air traffic control.

Throughout our expanding organization, our people are working on important projects applying advanced hardware and software capabilities to the development of state-of-the-art systems and products that meet and anticipate the world's changing needs.

If you are graduating this year with a concentration in Electrical, Electronic or Mechanical Engineering, Computer Science, or Physics, plan to talk to Sanders about how the challenge and diversity of our work can be applied to your career.

Located on the northern sector of Boston's high technology belt, Sanders offers technical graduates the opportunity to live and work in a unique environment. Find your place in our engineering community. Contact your Placement Office or send your resume to: Coordinator of College Relations, Sanders Associates, Inc., CS 2029, Nashua NH 03061-2029

SANDERS
An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer
U.S. citizenship required

★Kerry

continued from page 2

Kerry denied making such a statement.

The emotional high point of the debate came near the end when the candidates discussed the recent increase in child malnutrition in Massachusetts.

Shamie, who defended President Reagan throughout the night, said the federal government should not be blamed for cuts in social programs if the state can come in and do the job.

"As long as there is a state government that will add 6,000 new jobs in two years... for no reason other that patronage when we have children not being fed properly, that is a disgrace," he said, referring to the Dukakis administration in which Kerry serves.

Kerry said Massachusetts taxpayers were forced to spend and extra $2.3 million on the Women, Infants and Children nutrition program to make up for budget cuts pushed by Reagan.

"I refuse to believe we are going to make selfishness so fashionable in this country that we refuse to accept the fact there are that 6.5 million more people in this country" and that malnutrition is a growing problem, Kerry said.

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
549-5610
FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.-$40.
STYLE CUTS $7.00
expires 10/30/84
valid with this ad

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Friday and Saturday 26th and 27th
Privates on Parade 7:15
Monty Python Live at the Hollywood Bowl 9:00
Sunday thru Tuesday 28th - 30th
Frederico Fellini Double Bill
And the Ships Sail On 7:00
The Clowns 9:10
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

"Tired of missing your favorite soaps?" then join ....
"The Night of the Soaps" in the TOC Lounge
The country's first evening presentation of your two favorite daytime soaps
"ALL MY CHILDREN" and "GENERAL HOSPITAL"
Each evening from 7 pm-9 pm in the TOC Lounge
Starting Monday, October 29th
ADVANCED RESERVATIONS ARE HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

Friday and Saturday
FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
99¢ BAR DRINKS 1-7 PM
Watch our satellite TV system till 9
Then Party With
CRAZY GEORGE TILL 2 AM
(come early, doors close when full)
A GREAT TIME NEVER COST LESS!
Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt Farms Mall)

Bruno's
- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

Random Notes

No woman deserves to be raped

This Saturday at the Ferraro rally, we had a horrifying experience. We observed a sign referring to Geraldine Ferraro saying "Ditch the Bitch." We and several women approached the men carrying the sign, and suggested that they hold a sign supporting their candidate instead of one that insults women with sexist slurs. At this point, one man turned to one of the women and said "You should be screwed up against a wall." He continued by stating that she would enjoy being raped. The woman spat in his face, and several of us began yelling at the man; some of us pushed him as he continued to make threats and slurs against us. Members of the Republican Club were standing by during the incident. They denied that the man was a Republican Club member and said that they did not condone the sign that the other men were carrying. They also refused to release a statement condemning the sign or the man's actions. However, a Collegian article Monday quotes "Republican Club member, Paul Kasman." Paul Kasman was the man who told the woman she should be raped. In the article Kasman claims that he felt persecuted for being spat on; he doesn't tell the Collegian what he really said to make the woman spit at him.

Another incident occurred that day along the same lines. A fraternity on North Pleasant St., Beta Kappa Phi (BKO), had many Reagan/Bush posters in their windows. They also displayed a sign reading "Gerry Slept Here."

The feeling that we and other women and men have gotten from the male Republicans on this campus is this: many of them feel that women who get involved in politics and assert their views are bitches who deserve to be raped. It seems that the same men who are threatened by the candidacy of a woman for national office also think of rape as the way to "keep women in their place." Ferraro's candidacy, which has been a source of inspiration and encouragement for women, has brought out the worst instincts of those men whose mission in life seems to be to make the world as dangerous for women as possible.

We wish we could say we were surprised by the actions of Republican males on this campus, but we are not. They support a party and a president that not only condemns the Equal Rights Amendment, but won't even support the principles of equal rights for women.

President Reagan does not believe that women deserve equal protection under the law, he does not beleive that women are capable of making decisions that affect their own lives, and he doesn't believe that women deserve the same quality of life that men do.

Republican men on this campus seem to support their leader's notions about women, and some of them take it even further. They believe that women who speak out against unfair treatment should be punished through rape.

And for those who claim these men are just "joking around:" violence against women is not funny. On Saturday morning, a woman was raped on our campus.

Heidi Holland is a member of the SCERA Women's Issues Team and Beatrix Hoffman is a member of the Women's Leadership Project.

Hey! The Collegian
actually prints
students' Letters to the Editor

LOOKING FOR AN ACADEMIC ALTERNATIVE?

CALL TIPS AT 545-1540

1011 BDIC
1029 FIVE COLLEGE COURSES
1030 OFFICE OF INTERNSHIPS
1038 STUDY ABROAD
1310 NTNL. STUDENT EXCHANGE PROGRAM
1036 STOCKBRIDGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE
1040 UNIVERSITY WITHOUT WALLS

INFORMATION DATA BANK 545-1555
TAPED INFORMATION
PHONE SERVICE 545-1540

idb tips

A SERVICE OF THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE

Letters to the Editor

No better or no worse...

It is with considerable agitation that I read Tracy Boisseau's column yesterday. I resent her assumption that all men know they are potential rapists. I do not know that; I have never felt this way, and I believe I speak for many men on this campus. Boisseau seems to think of the world as black-and-white, where every man is a rapist and every woman a victim. As a rape victim, I am saddened to say that this is not so.

I cannot agree with the actions of the man who became involved with Boisseau, or the people holding the banner. But I believe that in resorting to violence, Boisseau was worse than any of them. She is almost an embodiment of the male stereotype she perpetrates. She is loud, violent, physical, and anti-male. She initiates a verbal attack on a man standing next to her, and when he responds in anger, she spits in his face, in an attempt to humiliate him. At least in my experience, humiliation was a large part of the pain of being raped. Then, when he responds to this (again, verbally), she hits him. Then Boisseau claims that she was mentally raped. I think that in humiliating this man and subjecting him to physical violence, Boisseau came much closer to committing rape than did her opponent.

Ron Lussier
Northeast

Not all men are attackers

Every day I read the Collegian, it seems another feminist is telling me what a travesty of justice it is to be born a male. We're all rapists. We're all wonan-beaters. Our mothers should have had amniocentesis in their first trimester of their pregnancies and aborted us when it was learned that we possessed the dreaded X-Y chromosome pair.

Now Tracee Boisseau is telling me what a potential rapist I am in Thursday's Collegian. It seems Boisseau found herself face-to-face with a rude man, or group of them last Saturday at the Ferraro rally. If he really said those things to you, he deserved the spit and the slap and probably a lot more. But the purpose of this long overdue letter is to say we don't all deserve it.

My father never raised a hand to my mother. She has told me that more than once. I've never hit a woman or raped one and I don't believe I could if I tried to. But you don't believe that. Because you had the misfortune to run into one of the sickos, who are indeed out there, you grabbed your pen and ran to the Collegian to inform the world that all men are potential rapists, that we hate women and wait like animals on a dark street for our prey.

Well, I say you're wrong. I feel it's a combination of the actions of the cretins that infect the real world, and the hatred that lies within you for men in general. I am of the opinion (and yes, I have a right to one) that there are too many women in the feminist movement who hate men, truly hate them, and it's these people who constantly alienate decent men, (and women too).

Almost every day there is a letter to the Collegian addressing rape. I think a lot more thought should go into them, other than a spur-of-the-moment slanderous diatribe directed at men in general. I'll go back now to being my mellow, non-raping self, and you can all run for your pens to tell me what a typical male I am. Be gentle.

Dave Johnson
Amherst

Readers need to know more

I am writing to criticize you for your irresponsible journalism, with regard to your "rape" headline in the Collegian of Tuesday. You devoted one sentence to the headline, stating that a University of Massachusetts woman was raped. You didn't specify where; was it on campus or off campus; what the status of the investigation is; descriptive features of the rapist; whether or not the woman was beaten; whether the assailant was known to the woman; etc...

Rape is not just any crime which can be casually referred to in one stock phrase. Perhaps if the media were to graphically describe its brutal physical and pyschological effects, us non-victimized folk could actually feel the horror of the act's consequences.

Many people rely on your publication for their news. You owe it to them therefore, to pursue information that affects their lives in such a dramatic way. It is apparent that you are willing to accept police reports without probing deeper. If, for instance you would write an editorial about rape, or pursue the issue in a series of articles perhaps the law enforcement and legislative agencies of this country, as well as its individual citizens would realize the ghastly, hideous, foul degree to which this crime is committed against women, and work to erradicate it from the set of socially acceptable human behaviours once and for all.

Rape is an act which affects both women and men. Let's put an end to it.

Philip Werner
Amherst

Tolerance is needed

In response to points brought up in yesterday's opinion page, the UMass Republican Club would like to clarify the role it played at the Ferraro rally.

First of all, all of our signs were in the best of taste. Others were not held by members of our organization. Secondly, the UMass Republican Club made a conscious decision not to heckle.

Political intolerance was rampant at the rally. Republicans had signs ripped from their hands, were called names, and had obscenities shouted at them. As a university, we place a great deal of emphasis on social tolerance. It is clear that attention needs to be placed on political tolerance as well.

With regards to the KKK endorsing Reagan, so what? The Kremlin has endorsed Mondale. Neither association should be made.

The Executive Board
The UMass Republican Club

PIZZA-RAMA

Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

FREE DELIVERY!
356 College Street, Amherst
CALL 253-3808
256-0115

Any Large Pizza 3 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Med. Pizza 2 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Small Pizza 1 FREE SODA (can) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

WELL—I THINK I CAN BE VERY PLEASED WITH MY SHOWING IN THE SECOND DEBATE, GERALDINE. YES, VERY PLEASED.
I'M BEGINNING TO FEEL MAYBE YOU'RE NOT SUCH A LIABILITY AFTER ALL, WALLY.
MAGNIFICENT, SIR! JUST LIKE ME IN THAT DEBATE — YOU GOT OUT THERE AND KICKED ASS!!
I KICK, GEORGE — YOU KISS

Giving El Salvador a hand

Peter Dow

For many years now there has been much debate over the small country of El Salvador, and whether the United States should continue to support it. President Reagan wishes to turn El Salvador into another successful Central American democracy, in the footsteps of Costa Rica and Grenada, while the American leftists and UMass radicals vehemently oppose "U.S. intervention" in the area.

While many people are still subject to the "Vietnam Syndrome," the rest of us must look at the issues, policies, and realities in El Salvador as objectively as possible. The argument continues to surface that the United States has illegally intervened in Central America, and in the process America has broken a multitude of international laws. Yet if we research some details of various international treaties, we can uncover many legal justifications for U.S. assistance to El Salvador.

For example, it is an undisputed truth that El Salvador has been subjected to an armed attack organized, directed, armed, supplied, financed, trained and politically supported by Nicaragua and Cuba. Under such conditions, as outlined by Article 51 of the United Nations Charter and Article 3 of the Rio Defense Treaty, El Salvador was entitled to receive adequate assistance to defeat this insurgency.

The United States has been obligated by these treaties to assist El Salvador in restoring peace to its country, just as we would if any NATO allies were subject to attack (under Article 5 of the NATO Treaty).

Not only are we legally obligated in this manner, but we are also politically obligated. The United States is the world's leading democracy and if we don't believe in democracy for El Salvador, how can we believe in it at all? The Reagan Administration has made this perfectly clear in its foreign policy, by adhering to the fact that a democratically elected government is a legitimate government.

A definite indication that the Salvadorans yearn for the long absent free elections was evident both in 1982 and earlier this year. On March 28, 1982, these people voted for their representatives to the National Assembly, despite many threats from guerillas. Indeed, the Salvadorans flocked to the voting booths not only despite guerilla threats but also despite guerilla violence; towns and villages were attacked, voting booths were destroyed, highways blocked, and citizens kidnapped. In defiance, 81 percent of the Salvadorans risked their lives to vote for democracy. The results of this election and the 1984 presidential election in El Salvador shattered the image which had been built by the American left that the Salvadoran guerillas were a popular force in the country. Indeed, the communist guerillas managed to gain only 6 percent of the popular vote.

But there are still those who attempt to discredit these democratic elections by claiming they were somehow rigged or voters were subject to spying and intimidation. Yet it is a fact that over 500 foreign delegates (including liberal democrats from the U.S. Congress, such as Chris Dodd) formed teams of international observers and inspected the voting procedure at most polling places. They concluded that the elections were fair, democratic, and not rigged.

In addition to holding democratic elections, El Salvador is providing a stumbling block to the success of the domino theory in Central America, where an aggressor nation moves into one nation, gains a foothold, solidifies its base, and then moves on to another nation. First it was Cuba, and then Nicaragua, but the Reagan Administation saved Grenada, and now is working to save El Salvador. Therefore it is essential for the United States to provide economic and military aid to Central American democracies to fight communist subversion now, instead of later when it will surely require a far more massive American military effort. And, at the present time, it appears as if this policy has been successful. President Reagan's strong defensive posture in El Salvador has forced the guerillas into negotiations with President Napoleon Duarte, since it is apparent to the guerillas that victory is unattainable.

Certainly El Salvador has far to go in terms of improving human rights and the economy, but the first step to eliminating these problems lies in the establishment of a democracy free from external subversion. The Reagan Administration has done much to turn the dreams of the Salvadorans into reality, yet still there is much that must be done to secure Central America for democratic freedom. This is why Americans should vote for President Reagan and Vice-President Bush in 1984. For the last domino is not El Salvador, or even Mexico, it is the United States.

Peter Dow is a Collegian columnist.

Let the Nicaraguans vote

Ian Polumbaum

The Nicaraguan government has scheduled elections for this Nov. 4. It has done so in the face of Reagan Administration charges that they will be "Soviet-style sham elections," an American-engineered "contra" war, and cries that they will not be fair because the chief opposition candidate, Arturo Jose Cruz, refuses to participate.

Seven of the country's 11 political parties, however, will compete for the presidency and 90 assembly seats. A week from Sunday, Nicaraguans have a chance to cast the first honest ballots in their history, having previously voted only under the surveillance of the United States Marines or the Somoza dynasty.

The U.S. government's posture should be to encourage the Nicaraguan people to vote. Not to do so is hypocritical for an Administration that lauded the elections in El Salvador even though Salvadorans used glass ballot boxes, right-wing death squad terror hung over the proceedings, and the CIA funded now-President Duarte's campaign.

Instead, our government has intensified its attacks on the Sandinistas in both military and ideological terms. Congress recently refused to send the contras an additional $21 million, but the Reagan Administration has circumvented that somewhat by saying it "will not discourage" private corporations or individuals from financing the guerrillas. The president threatens to follow some of his predecessors down a vicious, well-beaten circular path: menacing leftist leaders, which forces them farther to the left, which in turn is used to justify further hostilities.

But thus far the Sandinistas haven't followed the circle. Rather than increasing repression in response to the war and to the CIA's harbor-mining operations last January, they lifted censorship on all but military information and restored the right to strike and to demonstrate.

Rather than scrapping election plans as unworkable thanks to the Yanquis and dismissing Cruz as a CIA dupe, they made concerted efforts to get him to participate, including twice extending the deadline for registering candidates. Cruz then clamored for postponement of the vote until at least Jan. 15, to give his coalition "a chance to conduct a minimal campaign," but the Sandinistas know that the longer the election is delayed, the greater the chance it will be sabotaged.

It is evidently unrealistic to hope that the Reagan Administration will moderate its stance. The revelation that the CIA is advising the contras in terrorist techniques proves our involvement in Nicaragua to be far deeper than we were told. Reagan continues to accuse Nicaragua of supplying arms to Salvadoran rebels without a shred of real evidence, and Vice President George Bush stammers the word "Marxist" as if it were an obscenity.

But the American people and the international community should recognize that with the cards stacked against them, the Sandinistas are proceeding with a welcome attempt to introduce democracy to a country that has never known it.

If Reagan wins a second term, he may well wish to invade Nicaragua. But if the Sandinistas convene elections which appear coercion-free and honor the results, U.S. and world public opinion will present him with an obstacle, and perhaps self-determination can at last be achieved in a Central American nation.

Ian Polumbaum is a Collegian columnist.

An urgent appeal

Deborah Neubauer

In the past week, there have been four "unofficial," unreported rapes on this campus. While this is both alarming and atrocious, we should realize that this is only part of the larger statistic. Violence against women, of which rape is only a part, occurs every second of every day, everywhere. For various reason, most rapes go unreported. While rapes continue to be "unreported," women continue to be unaware, and are continuously in danger.

What everyone should know is that the rape of a woman goes beyond the sexual penetration of her physical body, but is the degradation of her entire being. She is absolutely desecrated by the invasion. Whether it is day or night, with friends or without, in familiar territory or not, the woman must constantly be aware of the danger she is in.

Last night, the student senate debated the issue here on the UMass campus. Should they put more lights in on campus or not? What is there to talk about? Of course more lights should be put in all over campus to insure the safety of all women. The fact that there are only five emergency help telephones scattered on a campus this size is a disgrace. Why is the senate only discussing the issue of the safety of women on campus now, after four rapes have already occurred in one week, no less?

But without stopping to ask why at this moment, this is an urgent appeal, right now, to all women on this campus. Take the following precautions to insure your own safety:

When in a potentially dangerous situation, make a scene. Walk with your head and shoulders up, walk purposefully, and with determination. In any social situation, do not leave yourself dependent on someone you don't know well for transportation. Know that the right not to be raped does not change because you have been drinking alcohol, or taking drugs.

Arrange safe transportation to and from everywhere you need to go. Take the extra few minutes to devise a safe mode of transportation. Make sure a light is on outside and/or inside your home when returning at night. Keep windows and doors locked. If you lose a key, have your locks replaced. Report suspicious activities. Don't walk alone at night.

If you're walking at night, alone, and you hear someone behind you, turn around. See who it is. Stay in well-lit areas. Avoid parks, buildings, trees, and shrubs. Walk near curbs, walk facing traffic. Avoid leading someone directly to your home. If attacked, yell loudly. Carry keys in your hand, sticking out between your fingers. But remember, anything you use as a weapon can potentially be used against you. Avoid parking in dark areas.

If, in spite of taking all precautions, you are the victim of rape, this is not a personal failure.

I urge all women on this campus to be aware of the number of rapes that have occurred on this campus in only the past week, and to take some precautions to insure your safety. It is left to you to protect your own body, so do it! Be aware, be smart, and protect yourself.

Deborah Neubauer is a UMass student.

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

A SUNDAY EXCURSION
Join us at North Leverett Baptist Church. Let someone else do the driving! Church bus leaves Southwest Horseshoe at 10:00 and Worcester at 10:10.
Coffee and donuts at 10:30
Church at 11:00.
ALL WELCOME!
Rev. Carl McConchie
549-6387

安城中国飯店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 MAIN ST., AMHERST
BEER & WINE LICENSE
Fresh Vegetables from Our Own Farm
CLOSED WEDNESDAY
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTICIAL COLORING
253-7835

This Saturday Oct. 27th
HALLOWEEN PARTY!
and
Best Costume Contest
$$$ CASH PRIZES $$$
Come in for a frightfully delightful evening!
Changes, Rt. 9, Amherst 256-8284

$ This Coupon Good For $
75¢ OFF
ALL WELL DRINKS
(8-10 PM)
Oct. 26 and 27 only

$ This Coupon Good For $
50¢ OFF
ALL WELL DRINKS
(10-12 PM)
Oct. 26 and 27 only

CONCENTRATED POWER
The Incredible Geneva™ Portable Computer System from Epson®

Geneva™ by EPSON
A desktop computer system you can carry in a briefcase.
The Geneva Portable Computer comes standard with
- MicroPro® ROM based software including
  - WordStar™
  - Portable Calc™ Spreadsheet
  - Portable Scheduler™
- 64K RAM, 32K ROM
- Built-in 8 line by 80 column LCD screen
- Built-in micro-cassette drive
- CP/M® Operating System

$995.
AVAILABLE FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

Computer Works
"Home of the Free Loaner"
228 Triangle Street, Amherst
549-7133
Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-5

Arts

CINEMASCOOP
by Count Ramin Zahed

Last Sunday, on a melancholic day of autumn, one of the liveliest film directors of all time, Francois Truffaut, died of cancer in a Paris suburb. His career which began with the phenomenal success of the autobiographical 400 Blows was a consistent collage of unconventional sensitivity.

His portrayals of children (400 Blows, Small Change), women (Jules and Jim, The Story of Adele H.), and obsessive relationships (The Woman Next Door, Shoot the Piano Player) will surely remain as some of the truest and most lyrical ones in the history of cinema.

Unlike the other master of the French new wave cinema, Truffaut managed to be avant-garde without becoming dry, crude, or cruel in form. He observed, made his point, polished his actors and then splashed his wonderful sense of humor on the lens. More than anything else, Truffaut will be remembered as a humanist. Rest in peace, Francois.

••••••••

Halloween shall be with us soon and to celebrate this occasion, the Hampshire Mall is showing Terror in the Aisles, which is a montage of all the climatic scenes of all your favorite horror flicks. So grab some cyanide-flavored popcorn and scare your anxieties away.

Just when your thought it was safe to go to Paris, these movie people come up with another romantic comedy set in the city. Jobeth Williams (The Big Chill), who strangely reminds me of the late Natalie Wood, plays a writing contest winner who is charmed by an English playboy played by Tom Conti (Reuben, Reuben). This whimsical comedy called American Dreamer premieres today at the Hampshire Mall. Also opening today at the same place is the risque Body Double from DePalma. The movie is said to make some statement about pornography. It contains your average material -- woman being electrically drilled to the floor, woman assaulted in the shower, etc. Frankly, I hope nobody will see this film. The world has enough problems without Mr. DePalma making his 'profound statements'.

Not every movie that is produced these days deals with the darker side of our society. I recently heard of a film called No Small Affair which is about a sixteen-year-oldphotographer who fancies a beautiful model. Newcomers Demi Moore and Jon Cryer cruise the romantic streets of San Francisco together as Rupert Holmes (The Pina Colada Song) provides the background music. Sounds like a clean break.

Demi Moore and Jon Cryer share a warm moment in Columbia Pictures' No Small Affair.

Weekend Winners: Bravo to the Pleasant Street Theatre once again. Foreign film lovers can see an exceptioanl movie about a Scottish woman who falls for an Italian prisoner of war during the second world war. Another Time, Another Place captures the beauty of Scottish landscapes perfectly. Fassbinder's fifteen-hour-long Berlin Alexanderplatz plays at the small theatre. If you can sit through that, you are a better person than I am. It is worth the hours, though.

Our old friend, Andy Gordon's show, KIDS, Inc. will air this Sunday at 11 a.m. on Channel 61. Andy's piece is called "A New Image." I wouldn't miss it for the world.

Local Loser: I couldn't believe it. Arnold Shwazermuscleger has managed to memorize his lines for another movie, and behold, he is not even a barbarian. His is a terminator, whatever that may be. In this case, nothing ventured, something gained.

Killer Question: Believe it or not someone identified last week's mystery woman as Barbara Stanwyck. Alan Hunter was the first person who got it right. Yes, it was the seductive Kathleen Turner who turned blonde after romancing the stone for too long. Runners up Sandy Zweg and Brett Bowden can come and select their prizes from my limited collection at the Collegian. This week's toughie goes back to the film No Small Affair. In what movie did Jon Cryer star in last year? Hint: Think exotic. I have stills of Crimes of Passion to give away, an ideal Halloween gift. Good luck with the Great Pumpkin. As Francois Truffaut might have said, it is your sincerity that counts.

Songs of the city

By JON STRYMISH
Collegian Staff

Suzanne Vega and the Iron Horse are both originals. Vega played two sets of urban folk music at the Iron Horse Monday night. Quiet intensity is the mood for her songs which are simply written around flowing chords and accompanied on guitar. Her songs, with love and intensity, reveal the inner city, with portraits of prostitutes making love in Central Park.

At 24, with nine years of performing behind her, Vega's youthful sweetness and a more mature sense of knowledge go hand in hand. Coming from New York she conveys her feeling for inner city culture, from old movies to rock and roll. Vega sounds like a cross between Patty Smith and Simon and Garfunkle. She said that when she started singing she wanted to sound like Laura Nyro but didn't succeed.

The Iron Horse is a bar that seems to have been designed for hippies and those suspected of being hippies. But somewhere they went wrong and managed to build one of the only clubs I've every seen that's designed for people. The club holds under a hundred people and features live music every night. Besides special touches such as a magazine rack and waitresses who only serve between songs I was happiest to find that food was not disappointing as expected in night spots but instead left you glad that you had ordered it. The sign on the table

continued on page 13

Andy's Pizza Beer & Wine

IN HOUSE SPECIAL:

Sundays between 5 - 7

all cheese pizza you can eat for $3.50

Sunday thru Thursday 3-7

Pitchers of Miller and Miller Lite $1.99

FREE liter of soda with purchase of a large pizza. 1 coupon per visit. Expires Nov. 15, 1984

50¢ Off Any Small Pizza. 1 coupon per visit. Expires Nov. 15, 1984

FREE DELIVERY

175 University Drive, Amherst Tel. 256-8148, 256-8147

Friday Afternoon at Mikes

A HAPPY HOUR YOU CAN LIVE WITH

FOOD - ALL YOU CAN CARRY FOR $1.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Eggplant Parmesan, Sausages, Beef Stroganoff, Cold Cuts

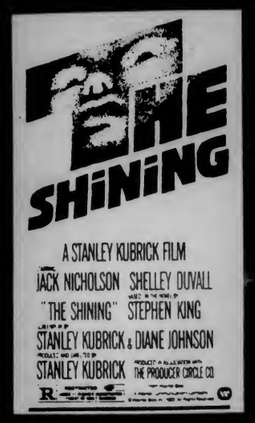
Salads, Swedish Meat[illegible], Marinated Chicke[illegible], Beef Ribs

Chicken Caccitore, Spanish Rice

tax and tip included

"Heart-stopping. A spellbinding horror film."

- Janet Maslin, New York Times



THE SHINING
A STANLEY KUBRICK FILM
JACK NICHOLSON SHELLEY DUVALL
"THE SHINING" STEPHEN KING
STANLEY KUBRICK & DIANE JOHNSON
STANLEY KUBRICK THE PRODUCER CIRCLE CO.

TIME 7:00 9:10 11:20 DATE 10-27-84

PLACE CCA ADMISSION $1.50

SPONSORED BY B'B HILLEL

KEGS FOUR SEASONS ICE

WINES/LIQUORS

BEER SPECIALS - BEST PRICES

LITE.....12 oz cans.....$10.99

BUSCH.....12 oz cans.....$8.99

PIELS.....12 oz. cans.....$6.99

CARLING.....12 oz. btl.....$6.99

6-PACK SPECIALS

DAB.....$3.99 RINGNESS.....$3.99

MOOSEHEAD.....$3.99 GRIZZLY.....$3.99

LIQUOR SPECIALS

MOHAWK VODKA & GIN....1.75 liter....$7.99

RON ROBERTO RUM.....1.75 liter.....$9.99

COLOMA COFFEE LIQUEUR750 mlwith rebate $3.

POPOV VODKA.....1.75 L.....$9.99

GILBEY'S GIN.....1.75 L.....$11.99

CUTTY SARK.....1.75 L.....$19.99

WINE SPECIALS

CARLO ROSSI.....4 L.....$5.99

CHANTEFLEUR.....red & white.....$2.99

BEAUJOLAIS NOUVEAU

If you want some before Thanksgiving - special order it now! 584-8174

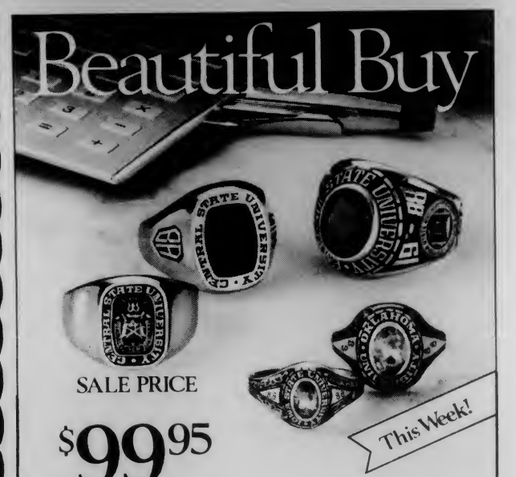
WE DELIVER

584-8174

333 Russell Street (Route 9) Hadley, MA 01035

in front of the malls

Beautiful Buy



SALE PRICE

$99.95

This Week!

SILADIUM® COLLEGE RINGS

Your college ring is now more affordable than ever. Save on an incredible variety of Siladium ring styles with custom features that express your taste and achievements. Each Siladium ring is custom made, with careful attention to detail. And every ArtCarved ring is backed by a Full Lifetime Warranty. Don't miss out. It's the perfect time to get a beautiful buy on a great college ring. See your ArtCarved representative soon.

ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS INC.

UNIVERSITY STORE Located in the Campus Center

Oct. 24-26 Date | 9 am - 5 pm Time | Place

Deposit Required. Master Card or Visa Accepted

© 1984 ArtCarved Class Rings, Inc.

More enjoyable Bowie

Tonight combines material that's energetic and powerful.

By JACK BRESNAHAN
Collegian Staff

TONIGHT
David Bowie
EMI/America Records

For a guy who claims that music isn't really the best medium for him, David Bowie sure does pretty well for himself. With a voice like his, it is no wonder that Bowie's still in the Music business. Tonight constitutes the 23rd of his official LP's released since Space Oddity, and represents more enjoyable Bowie.

There are many reasons you'd want this album. The songs range from energetic to romantic, to psychological, incorporating rock, reggae, and orchestration. One of the most obvious aspects of Tonight is that five of the nine songs here were co-written with Bowie's longtime cohort, Iggy Pop (The Jean Genie). Also, the songs in almost every instance have a brief introduction, getting right into the vocals. No doubt this was done intentionally, given Bowie's calculating ways, most likely made with radio airplay in mind.

And Bowie has been getting a lot of airplay from his new release. It differs from his Let's Dance album in that every song isn't a radio hit. But as on the majority of his previous records, Bowie has an American hit on Tonight. Hopefully, the airwaves won't overplay "Blue Jean" like they have with his other singles.

There are some songs on Tonight that go beyond that commercialism. One of my favorites here is "I Keep Forgetting," a 1962 Lieber and Stoller song. This is one of their lesser known songs that is simple but driving, with Bowie adding his personal touch. It is reminiscent of Bowie doing the Stone's "Let's Spend The Night Together," or his version of Chuck Berry's "Round and Round." Bowie has also chosen an old Beach Boys tune, "God Only Knows," from 1966. It is sooo sentimental. There seems such a sincerity, an almost desperate reaffirmation of love.

There are a couple of Bowie/Pop collaborations that stand out as potential hits. The title song, "Tonight," is a reggae duet with Tina Turner. She draws a distinct contrast to Bowie's earlier days doing "I Got You Babe," with Marianne Faithful. I also think that "Dancing With The Big Boys," has got to be one of the strongest songs on the album. The tempo is fast, the horns are blaring, are you're caught up in its energetic rhythm. The same Borneo horns were used in the Serious Moonlight tour, as were most of his present contributors. Much focus is on Carlos Alomar, who plays lead and rhythm guitar on most of the album. I still think that letting Stevie Ray Vaughan go was one of the worst choices Bowie has made, although one of the best for Stevie. "Tumble and Twirl" is a song that sounds like a vacation in Borneo. In addition to visual lyrics, (..."That dusky mulatto/In nylons and tatoos/Hot juice in coke bottles/We dance in the sand..."), it builds into a series of powerful crescendos. The only thing I wonder about is why Bowie decided on so much collaboration in light of his past efforts.

Bowie's persona has relied so much in the past on posturing and schtick. But we have here a less mysterious Bowie. There's less to guess about. His songs of old are still timely, but he isn't the outlaw that he once was. He is firmly established and even chic nowadays. I guess that's the earned reward once you get to the top of the heap. One thing that he still hasn't lost is his professionalism and good taste, as demonstrated on this record.

NOT JUST ANOTHER PRETTY FACE — Plenty of good seats are still available for UMass and Five College students, faculty, and staff for the 10 p.m. Frank Zappa show this Sunday night. Tix available at the FAC box office.

★ Vega

continued from pag[illegible]

suggested a three c[illegible] if you can, less if you [illegible] minimum on food, but the [illegible] collected and the minimu[illegible] The atmosphere was friendly [illegible] system was amazing (and had to be to catch the high clarity of Vega's voice.)

Suzanne Vega looked about 17. The crowd appeared to be in its thirties. There was a serious absence of college aged customers. I think this is a shame for a performer who has far more power and charisma than almost anyone on records but who does not yet have a record of her own. Vega appears at the Iron Horse regularly, and those who missed this show should try to catch her next one.

Read the Arts page!

You won't regret it.

C & C LIQUORS

61 Main St., Amherst
Next door to Town Hall

FREE DELIVERY
OFF UMASS CAMPUS of $15 Minimum Order
Dial 253-3091

All specials in-store cash prices good thru Oct. 27

SUITCASES
24 Loose Cans
12-oz.
BUD - MILLER
MILLER LITE
$10.95 Plus Deposit

GRIZZLEY CANADIAN BEER 6-pk $3.45 dep.
ROLLING ROCK 12-oz. refills case $10.00 dep.
GROLSCH 6-pk $4.25 - dep.

FOLONARI
Valpolicella
Bardolino
Soave
1.5 Liter
$4.25

VODKA
Liter $4.99

ALMADEN MOUNTAIN WINES
1.5 Liter $4.49

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Springfield Symphony Orchestra
Robert Gutter, Music Director

with PETER SERKIN Piano

FRIDAY, OCT 26, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

Shakespeare & Company
Romeo and Juliet
THURSDAY, NOV 1, 8PM
TICKETS: $12, $10, $8

GRAND ROYAL WINNIPEG BALLET
MONDAY, NOV 5, 8PM
TICKETS: $13, $11, $9

Five College Students Half-Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, Springfield Civic Center, and DATATIX Outlets
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

New CAROL HAHN & Skylark

THUR 25 FRIDAY 26

Located next to Ground Round
Pleasant St. Northampton

No Cover

adirondack music 15 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST · 253-3100

all items subject to prior sale · quantities limited · no rain checks · not responsible for typographical errors

HALLOWEEN MIDNIGHT MADNESS sale

12 Saturday 12:00am — First 5 people to bring us pizza at midnight get a free FM personal stereo worth $49.95!

1:00 am — OHM Walsh II demo speakers oak & walnut finish were $1,000 NOW $299 pr

ADCOM demo power amp 200 watts $249.95

10:00 am — State of the Art Audio: NIKKO rack system · alpha power amp 220w · beta preamp · gamma 30 tuner · EQ 20 band equalizer · ND 1000 tape deck 1/2 PRICE! $1,000

4:00 am — PIONEER KEA 880 car stereo was $369.95 NOW $199.95

11:00 to 2:00 am — TECHNICS SLV5 linear track turntable was $250 NOW $99.95

BOSE 601 II speakers were $950 1/2 PRICE $475 pr

NAD 7150 receiver 50 w/ch 1/2 PRICE $259

BOSE 201 $499.95 all leftover NAD equipment 1/2 PRICE!

TDC 1500 30 w/ch demo receivers $18.13

BOSE 501 III speakers 1/2 PRICE $325 pr

30 hours of fantastic audio and video specials from noon, Fri. Oct. 26 till 6:00 pm, Sat. Oct. 27

closed Saturday 6-10 am for coffee!

start here Friday 6pm →

5:00 am — RE-RUNS all previous specials BACK ON SALE!

6:00 am — TV PARTY! all 19" tvs & monitors in stock $199.95 FREE PRIZES for the first 5 people to bring COFFEE & DONUTS

6:00 to 7:00 pm — TECHNICS BELOW COST SALE SA450 receiver 45 w/ch $299.95 SA810 receiver 80 w/ch $149.95 SLB 200 turntable $149.95

10 — THEATREVISION demo projection tv $3750 value NOW $1499.95 bring some friends and a truck!

GE 7000 to 11:00 am

9 — TEAC 406C Dolby B & C cassette deck was $229.95 NOW $99.95 9:00 to 10:00pm

8 — ACOUSTIC RESEARCH speakers in stock AR 58B $350 1/2 PRICE! $215 AR 38B $265 AR 28B $165

8:00 to 8:00pm

7 — EPICURE 3.0II speakers were $1185 1/3 PRICE $395

DCM QED speakers $250 1/2 PRICE

TECHNICS SA510 60 w/ch receiver $199.95

6 — FREE apples & pizza

audio specials

AKG K2 headphones 1/2 PRICE $24.95 pr

EPI TE 100 speakers 1/2 PRICE $125 pr.

AUDIO TECHNICA elliptical cartridge were $249.95 ea. NOW $99.95 ea.

PICKERING DLE elliptical cartridge NOW $99.95 ea.

NIKKO ND620 Dolby full logic tape deck were $225.95 NOW $99.95 ea.

SCOTT PC88 direct drive full/automatic turntable

DISCWASHER $9.95 SONY LNX90 cassette tapes 99¢

MAXELL LNG0 tapes 49¢ MAXELL UL II 90 normal bias 99¢ many items

MAXELL & TDK high performance cassette tapes $1.99

BELOW COST!

car stereo specials

PANASONIC 818 digital, in-dash, auto-reverse tape/ line outs, bantam series chassis $350 value NOW $149.95

PANASONIC 717 list price $149.95 ONLY $99.95 with purchase of any pair of speakers

MAXIMA 6X9 Triax were $79.95 1/2 PRICE $39.95 ea

EPI L570 home performance car hifi speakers were $200 pr! 1/2 PRICE $99.95 pr

all day specials

surprise hourly specials

unadvertised specials

prizes for best costume

Black Affairs

Conference to help lighten campus life

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Ambassador Oumaru Youssoufou, the Organization of African Unity's representative to the United Nations, will be the principal speaker at the New England Third World Student Leadership Conference tomorrow at the University of Massachusetts.

The day-long conference will attempt to explore issues surrounding Black and minority students and administrators in predominantly white colleges and universities.

Registration begins at 8:30 in the Student Union Ballroom in the Student Union Building. Welcome and conference overview will be from 9:15 to 9:45. The keynote address by Playthell Benjamin, Political Advisor for the National Fight Back Labor Organization in New York City, will be delivered at 9:45.

Ambassador Youssoufou will deliver the luncheon address at 12:30 p.m.

Ambassador Youssoufou is a native a Maradi, Republic of Niger. He completed his primary and secondary schooling in Nigeria and has studied in the Alliance Francaise, Paris, France, the Institut des Hautes Internationales Geneva and the American University in Washington, D.C.

Ambassador Youssoufou has worked as deputy chief of protocol in the President's office/Foreign Ministry and was the first secretary of the Niger Embassy in Washington.

He has also served as ambassador to Nigeria, Cameroon and Uganda with residence in Lagos, Nigeria and ambassador to Ethiopia, Uganda, Kenya, Mozambique and Zambia with residence in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

Benjamin was a community organizer in the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s. He was also an instrumental figure in the development of the Afro-American Studies Department at UMass, and was a faculty member of the same.

Presently, Benjamin is working on a book about student activism on American college campuses, due out in Spring of 1985.

Paul Barrows, director of the Committee for the CollegiateEducation of Blacks and

Other Minorities (CCEBMS) endorses the conference "whole heartedly".

Frankie "Jay" Sims, a program manager at WNAS, Anderson, South Carolina, will lead a broadcast production workshop at the Third World Student Leadership Conference tomorrow.

"Students need to be concerned with events and activities that affect their livelihood," he said.

Barrows added students need to assess their standing in college and university campuses, in the state and should also be concerned with national isssues affecting them, such as financial aid cutbacks and the status of minority programs.

Noting students were the ones responsibl for establishing many of the program existing today, Barrows said, "students ca play a constructive role on how they shoul be run."

"They are responsible for contributin; more," Barrows said.

The conference will conclude with culture events, karate demonstrations, displa booths and an evening dance.

Black Homecoming a time for pride

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

We are once again in the midst of Black Homecoming. The activities will start and continue tomorrow until Sunday.

As a group of people with a rich and diverse culture, this is a time to reaffirm one's roots and fill one's self with pride and joy.

Black Homecoming's main purpose is to look back at the efforts and committment people of color have made at the University of Massachusetts to eradicate a solid base of justice and equality so future students, like ourselves can enjoy.

But as many of us have come to see and experience, the struggle is by no means over. It will not terminate until we have equal and total representation in this microcosm.

Nothing comes easy for people of color in this country and UMass is no exception, the facts speak for themselves.

A group of students put their education and their future on the line to create the Black Affairs department in the Collegian, Nummo News, Black Mass Communications Project, Concepto Latino,Afrik-Am, AHORA, and countless other services and organizations for students.

Thanks to those efforts, we now have the New Africa House where we can learn about our history and exchange cultures in a familiar atmosphere.

Through the concerted efforts of Black faculty and administrators, the W.E.B. Du Bois department of Afro-American Studies was created to teach students that American history does not begin nor ends with George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.

Students can find personal and academic counseing and support in programs such as the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and Other Minorities (CCEBMS) and the Bilingual Collegiate Program (BCP) because former students found it hard to deal with an all-white institution.

For the above reasons and countless others, students as beneficiaries, should be thankful. But our gratitude should be expressed by reciprocating the struggle and becoming involved.

Celebrations such as Black Homecoming should not be short-lived or should not be a feeling emerging annually. Today...Tomorrow...Every day for the rest of one's life remember our heroes and heroines.

While eulogizing past struggles and triumphs, Black Homecoming also makes way to tailor new plans for the future, a future that all of us can create.

Black fraternities stress unity

By KIMBERLY A. BURGE
Collegian Staff

The main idea of unity and togetherness was stressed at a meeting on Black Fraternities and sororities held Wednesday at the New Africa House, at the University of Massachusetts.

The meeting sponsored by Iota Phi Theta, was held to inform interested students about the rich traditions of Black fraternities and sororities.

Several fraternities and sororities were represented, including Delta Sigma Theta, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Phi Theta Delta, Kappa Alpha Si, and Iota Phi Theta.

Each representative gave a brief history of their fraternity or sorority. Many of the fraternities/sororities were established because Blacks couldn't get accepted into predominantly white fraternities/sororities, they said.

There are plans to establish several chapters on campus and in the five college area.

Many Black professionals at the meeting said they were pleased by the prospect of a Balck fraternity/sorority o campus. "The Afro-Am department welcomes Blac fraternities and sororities. They have an illustriou tradition of a scholarship and have always been in servic to the community. The Afro-Am department will d everything they can to help," said Chester Davis of th Afro-Am Studies Department.

"I'm very excited about what's going on. This is an im portant time in history for our people and we need to com together," stated Josie Johnson who's on the nationa board of Delta Sigma Theta.

Bob White, the new head of the UMass Greek Depart ment said Balck fraternities and sororities represent the best of what the Greek system can be. "I look forward to the development of chapters on campus."

Bill Darriy, one of the co-founders of the Committee fo the Collegiate Education of Blacks and Other Minorities (CCEBMS), was against Balck fraternities coming o campus because he didn't want to see the Balck communit split. However, he changed his mind because "the promote unity and that's important for us as Black people.

Chisholm: Ferraro is a catalyst for change

By POLA DUVAL
Collegian Correspondent

Speaking on observations obtained through her extensive travel throughout the Southern part of the United States, Shirley Chisholm, a political veteran and now puritan professor at Mount Holyoke College said "in all of my 25 years in the political arena, never have I experienced one (campign) like the one which I am now experiencing," at a lecture Wednesday in Mount Holyoke College. Chisholm participated in the primary selection process and traveled 17 states in support of the Rev. Jesse Jackson. She has also campaigned through 11 Southern states on behalf of the Mondale/Ferraro ticket.

"For the past three years...there has been a tremendous dolotarious impact of Reagan's policies on the quality of life of people in this country," said Chisholm, a foremost educator and the first woman to be seated in the House of Representatives.

Chisholm said the records speak for themselves, giving no statistics, but noting the negative impact has not only been felt by minorities and the poor, but by all Americans.

One experience which has both scared and bewildere Chisholm is that the South "loves the cowboy" despite th severeness of his domestic polities.

"This is the first election where people, especially peop in the South are not interested in hearing about th isssues," she said citing an example of a woman who: family members lost their jobs and went through wh they called an indignation of being on welfare list, b Chisholm said the woman said she still "likes the cowboy. Chisholm said if the Democratic party wanted to attra the South, which was "tilted towards Ronald Reagan" the had to put a Southern woman on the ticket.

She said if Reagan is re-elected and attempts to finish h agenda, the American people will then see a war in Centr America and the Middle East and a more conservati spectrum of judges in the Supreme Court.

Ferraro is the "catalyst for change in this Orwellian yea of 1984," Chisholm said adding this year's campaign "goe beyond a Geraldine Ferraro."

"This campaign has to do with the direction in which th country is going to be moving in the future."

★★★ Keep in touch, read The Collegian ★★★

★ Black Affairs every Tuesday and Friday ★

Then get in on the ground floor in our undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start planning on a career like the men in this ad have. And also have some great advantages like:

- Earning $100 a month during the school year
- As a freshman or sophomore, you could complete your basic training during two six-week summer sessions and earn more than $1100 during each session
- Juniors earn more than $1900 during one ten-week summer session
- You can take free civilian flying lessons
- You're commissioned upon graduation

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start off making more than $17,000 a year.

Want to move up quickly?

We're looking for a few good men.

Marines

See your U.S. Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer in the Campus Center on October 29 and 30 or call collect (203) 722-2168.

Hypercurricula

PETER SERKIN WITH SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY - Pianist Peter Serkin will be guest soloist with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra in a program of Berlioz, Stravinsky, Mozart, and Tchaikovsky. 8 p.m. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

GRAD GROUP POTLUCK DESSERT - The Hillel Grad Group will meet on Friday, Oct. 26 at 8:00 p.m. at 87 N. Pleasant St. Dr. Ervin Staub (Psych. Dept.) will speak on his personal experiences in Nazi Europe. RSVP Mildy, 253-9689 or Debby, 549-4809.

SHABBAT SERVICES - Services tonight (and every Friday) at 7:oo p.m. in the Dukes Room (310 S.U.B.).

AMHERST AREA NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH - Come join us for worship, teaching and fellowship. 10:15 a.m. Campus Center 174.

FILM HESTER STREET - Don't miss this "charming, wonderfully human film about the agonies, traumas, and embarrassments of becoming an American." 7:30 p.m. in 104 Thompson. Free. Sponsored by Five-College Hillel.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES - This is a reminder from the University Health Services. The Health Services offer comprehensive dental care at reduced rates to all UMass students.

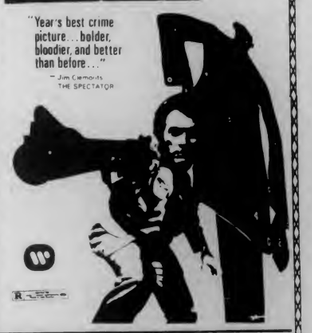
Services include: Exams and consultations, cleanings, routine fillings and other services as necessary. Underlying all aspects of care is a philosophy oriented toward providing information and needed support for sound preventive practices.

Saturday and evening hours are available for your convenience. Why not consider attending to your dental care while it is still early in the semester? Call 545-2400 for more information.

Magnum Force

CLINT EASTWOOD IS DIRTY HARRY

"Year's best crime picture... bolder, bloodier, and better than before..." — Jim Carmody, THE SPECTATOR



MOVIE Place SUB

Date Fri. Oct. 26 Time 4, 6:15, 8:30, 11

Admission 4:00 - $1.00 all others $1.50

Special Grand Re-Opening Sale
Saturday, October 27, 1984

FENTON'S

Athletic Supplies

Specialties in Hockey Equipment and Skates
Basketball Equipment
Tennis Racquets

THE BEST IS AT FENTON ATHLETIC SUPPLIES
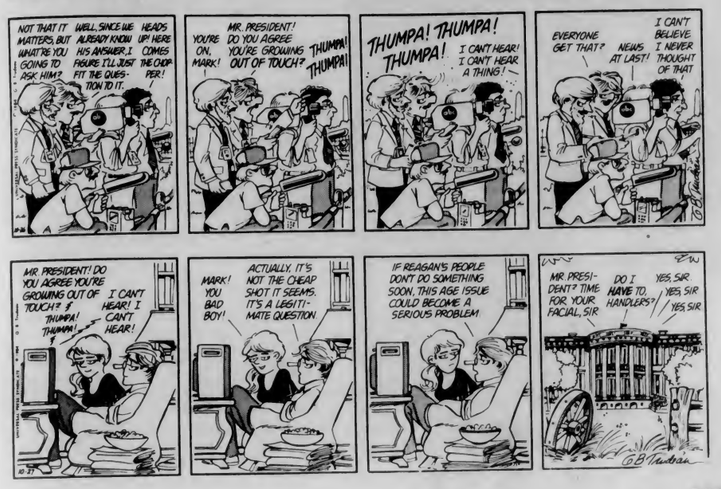
377 Main St., Amherst
253-3973

Doonesbury

By Garry Trudeau



NOT THAT IT MATTERS, BUT WHAT'RE YOU GOING TO ASK HIM?
WELL, SINCE WE ALREADY KNOW HIS ANSWER, I FIGURE I'LL JUST FIT THE QUESTION TO IT.
HEADS UP HERE COMES THE CHOPPER!
MR. PRESIDENT! YOU'RE ON, MARK! DO YOU AGREE YOU'RE GROWING OUT OF TOUCH?
THUMPA! THUMPA!
THUMPA! THUMPA!
I CAN'T HEAR! I CAN'T HEAR A THING!
EVERYONE GET THAT?
NEWS AT LAST!
I CAN'T BELIEVE I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT
MR. PRESIDENT! DO YOU AGREE YOU'RE GROWING OUT OF TOUCH? THUMPA! THUMPA!
I CAN'T HEAR! I CAN'T HEAR!
MARK! YOU BAD BOY!
ACTUALLY, IT'S NOT THE CHEAP SHOT IT SEEMS. IT'S A LEGITIMATE QUESTION
IF REAGAN'S PEOPLE DON'T DO SOMETHING SOON, THIS AGE ISSUE COULD BECOME A SERIOUS PROBLEM!
MR. PRESIDENT? TIME FOR YOUR FACIAL, SIR.
DO I HAVE TO, HANDLERS?
YES, SIR
YES, SIR
YES, SIR

Today's Weather

Occasional rain likely today. High in the 50s. Cloudy with patchy fog and a chance of rain or showers tonight. Low in the 40s. Saturday, mostly cloudy with a chance of showers. High in the 60s.

D.C. Menu

Friday, Oct. 26

LUNCH
Tuna Grinder
Macaroni and Cheese

DINNER
Meatloaf/Gravy
N.E. Style Scrod with Herb Crumb Topping
Egg Salad Plate with Crackers

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

"CHOCOLATE ECLAIR."
YOU WANTED TO KNOW WHAT SORT OF IMAGE TODAY'S VOTERS ARE MOST WANTING TO FIND IN A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE WHAT?
SO?
SO THE COMPUTER SAYS CHOCOLATE ECLAIR".
THAT'S LUDICROUS
NO, JUST SILLY. PEANUT FARMER WAS LUDICROUS

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

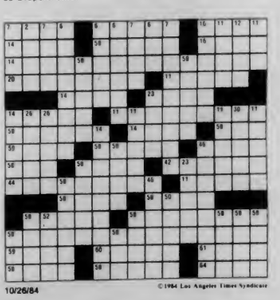
ACROSS
1 Suffragist leader Carrie
5 Nebraska Native American
10 — — and parcel
14 Flat surface
15 Informal notes
16 Together, in music
17 Look after one's own interests
20 Toward the Orient
21 Almost inadequate
22 Otherwise
23 "Giselle" composer Adolphe
24 Star: Prefix
27 Like a diagram
32 Cheerfulness
34 Botanist Gray et al
35 Senator Ribicoff
36 Dog in Dortmund
37 Special jargon
39 Looped handle
40 Math. study
41 — — dieu (prayer bench)
42 Beach attire
44 Dockworker
47 Full assemblies
48 Energy measures
49 Part of A.D
51 Ancient Comb form
53 Bonjour or aloha
57 They flock together
59 Blind feature
60 Premiere
61 Drip area
62 Is afflicted
63 Term in falconry
64 High spot of WW II

DOWN
1 Bistro
2 Flat surface
3 London repasts
4 Frayed
5 Measures in Bible times
6 Blackbirds
7 Island in Taiwan Strait
8 Sweets
9 Grieg opus
10 "— — Hattie," Cole Porter score
11 Gulf of the Arabian Sea
12 Shade of red
13 Fete day in Da Nang
18 Spartan sert
19 Swindles
23 Of course!
24 Important Moslems
25 — — Sainte Marie
26 Slight coloration
28 Laker, for one
29 Karl's aunt
30 Norwegian dramatist Henrik
31 State in NE Brazil
33 Drapers' stock
38 Ebro and Mayo
39 Earmarked
41 Parisian papas
43 Respiratory problem
45 Places for treks
46 Outpouring of gossip
50 — — foot oil
51 Philippines nut tree
52 Lake of Soviet cen. Asia
53 TV's Kaplan
54 "— — a dream, dear"
55 Leningrad's river
56 Joel of Broadway
57 Youth gp.
58 Charge

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

P	L	O	I	T		S	E	I	S	S		G	A	I	T	E
F	O	V	E	R		T	R	I	M		I	B	I	S
E	S	C	R	I	T	O	I	R	E		R	O	D	E	S
E	E	R		P	A	R	C		A	I	L	U	D	E
D	R	A	W	L	S		S	E	R	I	F
			R	E	T	I	E		T	S	A	R	I	N	A
M	A	R	I		E	T	A	H		N	I	N	O	N
E	V	I	T	A		E	P	I		A	D	E	L	E
L	O	T	I	S		R	O	O	F		A	S	I	S
S	W	A	N	S	O	N		P	I	T	Y
		G	A	R	E	S		C	E	S	U	R	A
C	A	N	O	T	O		L	A	H	R		N	A	P
A	R	D	E		A	M	A	N	U	E	N	S	I	S
P	A	S	S		I	O	N	A		T	H	E	S	E
T	R	E	K		N	A	G	S		E	I	R	E

10/26/84



10/26/84 ©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Gorde

by Gorde

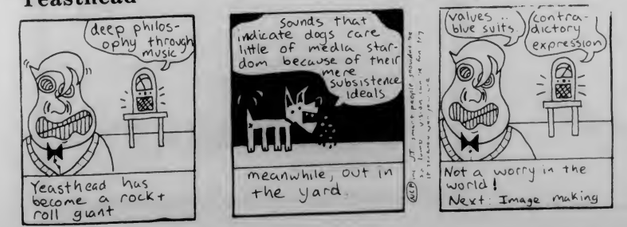
HEY FOLKS! I'M PROUD TO WELCOME BACK U MASS OUR NEXT VICE-PRESIDENT, AND AN AWSOME LADY, GERALDINE FERRARO...
ZAMBUKA!
TODAY "THE POOF HAS TURNED "NINETY! I'M OF LEGAL DRINKING AGE!!! LET'S GO CLUBBIN'!!
POOF!
* POOF- LOVE GOD OF U MASS
YOU'RE TALKING TO THE VICE-PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE OF THE UNITED STATES, HERE TO DISCUSS ISSUES! WIN VOTES! AND ALL YOU WANT TO DO IS GO OUT AND DRINK?
DON'T YOU FEEL THE SLIGHTEST BIT RIDICULOUS????
BARCELLOTI'S, DELANOE'S OR "THE PUB?"
"SOB!"
CAN YOU LEND ME A FAKE I.D?

Bat Brain

By Bill Dearing

Yeasthead

by Jason Talerman



deep philosophy through music
Yeasthead has become a rock+roll giant sounds that indicate dogs care little of media stardom because of their mere subsistence ideals meanwhile, out in the yard.
values in blue suits
contradictory expression
Not a worry in the world! Next Image making

Twenty questions for Frank

Do you have a question for Frank Zappa?

If you do, bring it down to the Collegian office c/o Jack Bresnahan

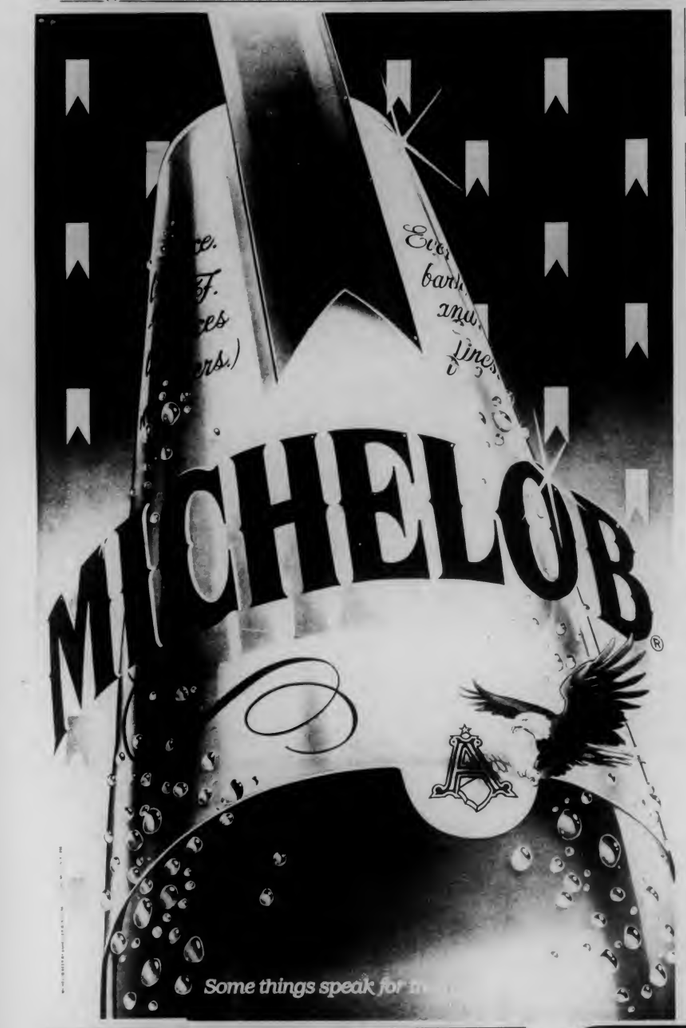
Twenty of these questions will be selected, so make yours good.

Deadline: Friday, Oct 26



Celtics sign Maxwell

Young, Williams released

BOSTON (AP) - The Boston Celtics announced today the signing of veteran forward Cedric Maxwell to a mulit-year contract.

Maxwell, who missed virtually all of the Celtics' preseason training camp, agreed to a deal for an estimated $800,000 a season.

To make room for the veteran forward, the defending NBA champions released number one draft choice Michael Young of Houston and number two selection Ronnie Williams of Florida.

Maxwell was the second of two Boston holdouts to sign prior of the season opener at Detroit tonight against the Pistons, guard Gerald Henderson signed two weeks ago and was immediately dealt to the Seattle Supersonics for their first round draft choice in 1986.

Rookie guard Rick Carlisle from the University of Virginia replaces Henderson in the Backcourt, the Maine transfer hit 57 percent of his shots during the exhibition season.

Gorilla warfare resumes Sun.

The best bet for UMass sports fans this weekend may be the men's lacrosse team.

Despite being a spring sport, the team plays a fall schedule and their toughest opponent this autumn, the Army, will be at UMass on Sunday at 1 p.m. to face Dick Garber's Gorillas on the Boyden Lower Fields. This will be a preview of two of the nation's top teams.

Yesterday in a scrimmage game, Tommy Aldrich's gutsy team came back late in the game to tie Karl Hatton's squad 10-10.

Stop in at the
VILLAGE INN
DRAKE
for a quiet
glass of wine,
foreign and domestic beer
or a mixed drink
Great Homemade Food Also
- Mexican Food
- Super Burger Baskets (biggest in town)
- Specialty Fried Chicken
- Light Meals
- Homemade Drake Fries
all at very reasonable prices
BRAD'S - 85 Amity St., Amherst
253-2548

OUR ANNUAL HALLOWEEN SALE
Friday 10/26 - Wednesday 10/31
SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst
Spooky Values
Bargains

STAR MARKET
SUPERMARKET OPPORTUNITIES
ARE YOU INTERESTED IN PURSUING AN EXCITING CAREER IN THE SUPERMARKET INDUSTRY?
If so, we are interested in talking to you about excellent growth opportunities. Currently we are interviewing for Co-op positions as well as December and June graduates for our Management Training program.
Star Market Co. is based in Cambridge, Mass. and openings are in Metro-Boston area.
Interested candidates contact Mr. Jeffrey Silver at the Department of Cooperative Education, Room 110, Thompson Hall for details.
STAR MARKET
YOU'RE IN THE MARKET FOR THE BEST.
An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

Collegian's NFL Picks

Scott Hood went for the gold and fell far short, picking mostly upsets, the much-maligned Hood had a terrible 6-8 week to fall to third place behind Tony Betros (9-5, 61-36 overall) and the oft-threatened Peter Abraham (9-5, 63-34). Kevin DeLuca posted a 7-7 week as did the Maine-hating Gerry deSimas. Home teams in CAPS this week.

		Peter Abraham (63-34)	Tony Betros (61-36)	Kevin DeLuca (54-43)	Scott Hood (60-37)	Gerry deSimas (52-45)
CHICAGO	6½ Minnesota	Chi	Chi	Minn	Chi	Chi
Cincinnati	4 HOUSTON	Cinn	Cinn	Cinn	Hou	Cinn
CLEVELAND	1½ NewOrl	NO	NO	NO	NO	NO
DALLAS	10 Indy	Indy	Dallas	Indy	Dallas	Dallas
GREEN BAY	2½ Detroit	Detroit	GB	Detroit	GB	GB
KANSAS CITY	6 Tampa Bay	KC	KC	KC	KC	TB
RAIDERS	6½ Denver	Raiders	Raiders	Denver	Raiders	Raiders
MIAMI	18 Buffalo	Buffalo	Buffalo	Miami	Miami	Buffalo
NEW ENGLAND	3 Jets	Pats	Jets	Jets	Pats	Pats
PITTSBURG	3 Atlanta	Pitts	Pitts	Pitts	Pitts	Pitts
St. Louis	3½ PHILLY	StLou	StLou	StLou	StLou	StLou
SanFran	3½ RAMS	SanFran	SanFran	SanFran	Rams	SanFran
Washington	6 GIANTS	Wash	Wash	Giants	Giants	Wash
SAN DIEGO	1½ Seattle	Seattle	Seattle	SD	SD	Seattle

★ Meyer

continued from page 20

fired when Ron Erhardt lost his job as New England's head coach and was replaced by Meyer after the team had a 2-14 record in 1981. Since then, he's been out of football, working for a Vermont resort and a company that sells such items as caps.

Berry said Sullivan called him Wednesday morning.

"He just asked me if I was home. I said I'd be here," said Berry, the Patriots' ninth head coach. "I was aware of the fact that it (replacing Meyer) was a definite possibility.

Berry, was given a contract through the 1985 season for his first head coaching job. He added that he didn't plan any changes for Sunday's game with the New York Jets.

I always win my card! I check the Collegian NFL picks every Friday.

Eagle soccer teams challenge Minutemen

Volleyball must win at Army

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The goal for the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team will to be, quite literally, to score goals in Saturday's match with 11th ranked Boston College in both team's regular season finale at 1 p.m. on Boyden Field.

"We have to go to work early," coach Kalekeni Banda said. "We have to go to work on scoring the early goal. We've been waiting too long. We have to work on moving the ball faster."

Banda is moving freshman Jolie DePauw, the team's top scorer, to the wing and moving senior Chris Taggart to center striker "to open up our scoring chances."

The fourth ranked Minutemen will face a 11-4-1 Eagle team that defeated UConn, 2-1, on Wednesday.

"This is a critical game for us to win," Banda said, "and it could guarantee a home field advantage for the first two rounds of the playoffs."

The seedings for the 14 team NCAA playoffs will be announced Monday and the top two teams will receive byes into the quarter-final round.

It won't be Friday night at the Fights at Boston College's Alumni Stadium tonight, but don't count out a few fireworks erupting as the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team takes on the Boston College Eagles, a team well-known for their roughhouse style of play.

"BC is probably one of our biggest rivals that we don't like because of the way they play soccer," said UMass coach Jeff Gettler.

"They're not going to try to play. They're going to try to kick you. They're like Hartford, only worse. They are a very physical team."

No weekend could be bigger for the University of Massachusetts volleyball team as the spikers prepare to meet their toughest challenge of the season. That challenge awaits in the form of the West Point Volleyball Tournament being held today and tomorrow at the United States Military Academy.

"We control our own destiny," said UM coach Elaine Sortino. "We're going to have to go in and do some damage to some people."

The people Sortino are referring to are the University of New Haven and Army. New Haven is currently ranked number two in the Northeast while Army is ranked number three. This tournament is crucial because the top four ranked teams in the region continue on into post-season play. The Minutemen are ranked fifth behind Bryant College. Bryant will not be at the tournament.

"It's plain and simple, we have to beat New Haven," said Sortino. "We've gotten closer to them each time we've played. We're ready. I think we can do it."

There are some question marks going into the tournament, one of which is how Junior Co-captain Sally Maher will perform. Maher has been hampered by a knee injury the past few days and saw limited action against Smith College on Wednesday

The UMass women's cross country team will go into Boston's Franklin Park with hopes of repeating last year's fourth place finish. Coach Caroline Gardiner believes the race will be between BC and BU for first, with either UNH or URI taking third and UMass in between them for fourth place.

[Collegian reporters Scott Hood, Roger Chapman and Chris Tremblay.]

IS SATURDAY
THE END OF THE WORLD?
not if you're at FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge on Sunday!
1 PM open for PATRIOTS vs JETS
1-7 FOOTBALL ACTION CONTINUES with 99¢ Bar Drinks, Bottled Beer, and Schnapps Shots!
7 PM CRAZY GEORGE
Cranks Up the Hits!
9 PM "?THE GUESSING GAME?"
a trivia contest with drink prizes
* OPEN TILL 1 AM EVERY SUNDAY *
Funnybones Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt Farms Mall)

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
HAPPY HALLOWEEN
St. Pauli, Grolsch, Steinhauser.....$4.25 6 pk + dep.
Grizzly Canadian Beer...$3.59 6 pk $13.95 case + dep.
Narragansett 16 oz. cans..$2.50 6 pk + $9.50 case + dep.
Busch 12 oz. cans.....$9.95 case + dep.
Strohs 12 oz. cans.....$10.95case + dep.
Miller Lite 12 oz. cans.....$10.95 case + dep.
Peppermint Schnapps 60°.....$5.99 liter + up
Vodka or Gin 80°.....$8.49 1.75 liter
Champagnes & Spumante.....$2.99 750 ml + up

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500 serious call only 549-7854

72 Audi 5800 running condition Larry 549-5051

1976 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $895/ BO 256-6121

1980 Citation 57,000 mi, 4 spd, very good condition call evenings 546-1050

1977 Datsun, B210 hatchback 5 speed, 35 mpg, excellent running condition, $1500., 667-3466 early AM or eves

1972 Chevy Impala runs well $600/BO 256-8137

74 Gran Torino Sport 351 4 speed many new parts and extras $650 or BO 665-8316

1975 Volkswagon Dasher sun roof AM/FM stereo $1500 549-6595 also VW Bug $600

BMW 2002 73 excellent inside and out; eng & tran very strong, well maintained, sunroof, Bilsteins, Weber, etc $3800 or BO 546-8170

74 VW Bug ex. body new muffler heat 21,000 mi on engine asking $1595, call Steve at 256-6610

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $6 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

Rock-A-Diec Rock-A-Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area 549-7144

FOR RENT

Single room in apartment for rent reasonable rate close to campus 253-2284

FOR SALE

For sale Hanson ski boots shell 3, size 8 9 $75 546-4745

Univega Mountain Bike landrover sport 1 month old please call Paul 6-6045

One pr. Rossignol FP 200 cm like new eighty five dollars 247-5067

FOUND

Found set of keys, blue key ring, in Student Union on Sunday 10/21 call and identify 549-6833

YOu lost your gloves at the Edwin Newman speech. Call 253-3180 and identify them

FREE MEALS

Kitchen Help Needed in local sorority five days a week lunch and dinner in exchange for free meals. If interested please call 5-0639 or 253-9971

GAY

The People's Gay Alliance hosts a social hour each Wed from 3 to 5 Business meetings are at 6:30 each Thurs Check the Campus center schedule for room numbers New people are welcome and encouraged to attend

HALLOWGRAMS

Send a friend a cookiegram for Halloween $1.00; order Tuesday-Thursday CC 10-4. Find out if you've been treated in Collegian October 31

HAYRIDES

Attention Party Goers, RA's, Social Chairpersons. Party on our Heywagon. Bonfire after ride, Info, and Reserv. West Hartfield Stables 247-9098

HELP WANTED

Now taking applications for full and part-time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

Help Wanted: Day shift. Apply in person after 5 PM Bell's Pizza 65 University Drive

Open House Nursing Students/Nurse's Aides free gifts wine and cheese cider and donuts check us out! October 30th 1:30 pm to 4:30 pm Medical Personnel Pool 13 Old South Street Center Northampton 586-7365

Need good meats? Sorority needs kitchen help. Call Kathy 546-2152

WMUA is looking for qualified student to fill position of Business Mgr. Applicants should have some bookkeeping experience, organizational skills, ability to work w/student staff and eveitasks for consistent weekly time commitment 8-10 hrs Qualified undergrads may apply at 418 Stu Union by Nov 2 AA/EEO women and third world encouraged to apply.

General laborers apply at Rusty Nail 6 to 8 Phil Wed through Sun

Experienced Ski Mechanic part-time apply in person Western Village Ski Sports 32 Main St Northampton

MARKETING INTERN earn money while working on your resume "The Brassworks" on Route 9 minutes from UMass call James Doherty 417) 542-8905

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

Legal Assistants Wanted The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. Get hands-on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals, preparation for Federal and State Court litigation, attendance at court hearings, and participation in administrative hearings. Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. To apply, for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO 922 Campus Center

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4088 no questions asked my name is Kelley McCormick

Freshman! Lost watch at dance in Sept[illegible] reward no questions asked Kris 546-1223

Last week Tuesday, brown corners case pocket calculator, eraser, pencils inside. Friday dorm key. Key ring "Record Bar". Contact John 6-7146

Fifty dollar reward: Gold watch lost in Brittany Manor near bus stop call Wendy at 546-6056

PERSONALS

Dog Home Wanted loveable white belgian shepard needs home desperately! Housebroken call JR @ 253-7987 or 546-0341 anytime!

Colleen - Happy B Day! 1 yr left on Sugar Mt so P.T.T.E. Deb

To Lisa (Candy) in 621 I still have your soap if you still have my towel? A Friend

DAVID: Welcome to the zoo! Beware of the Myra, she'll run you ragged. Are you up to it? I love you! Happy Anniversary!

Attn: Wm. Feaney "Imperfect" (hardly)---congrats!!

Patty Stepack You oughta be in pictures Ha Ha Happy 19th - Sorry it's a day late call her at 6-7209 and wish her a belated Happy Birthday - Love Carol

Congratulations Kennyl Gotta love that smile Leora

Dave - Thank you for a year that will always be special to me. Happy Anniversary! Love always, Cindy

Happy 20th Birthday Christine you finally made it! Love, Jeanne

Amanda M. Happy Birthday you fool! Ian says hi! Love John

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

To all Ang going to Barnes Oct 27 and 28, I need a ride. Will help with gas. Call Rick at 546-5967

ROOMMATE WANTED

$200 a month includes utilities one minute from bus line call 584-2873 Northampton

Non-smoking female, 2 bedroom Brittany Manor apartment $120.00 includes utilities Mary 253-7344/253-3786

Female wanted for single in 2 bedroom in Presidential #175 549-1083

TRAVEL

COUNCIL TRAVEL/CIEE USA's #1 student/budget travel agency Free catalog Call (617) 266-1926 or write, 729 Boylston St. Suite 201, Boston, MA 02116

Killington Ski Trip - condos $195 Jan 20-25 call Sno-SEarch Brian or Kevin 549-1411

WANTED TO RENT

2 women unt to sublet room in home or apartment for winter/season and spring call 546-5523 or 546-5518

Who's looking for a new job now?

Meyer canned after firing Rust, confusion again reigns in Foxboro

FOXBORO, Mass.(AP) - After a tumultuous 24 hours in which his defensive coordinator lost and regained his job, Ron Meyer was fired Thursday as head coach of the New England Patriots and replaced by Raymond Berry.

"We need a stable situation here," said Patrick Sullivan, general manager of the National Football League team. "There are many issues that came up that led us to the conclusion that we had no alternative."

One of those issues was Meyer's unexpected decision, without consulting Sullivan, to fire defensive coordinator Rod Rust. Meyer, 43, did that Wednesday morning, citing philosophical differences over defensive strategy. He then informed Sullivan, who was at the NFL meetings in New Orleans.

"I made the move that I felt would make us a better football team and I would do it today," Meyer, who had 1½ years left on his four-year contract, said at a news conference Thursday.

Sullivan rushed home and met with Meyer. Berry, an assistant coach with the Patriots from 1978 through 1981, was offered the job late Wednesday afternoon and Meyer was informed by Sullivan Thursday morning.

"He said, 'Ron, we've come to a decision.' I said,'You've got to be kidding me,'" Meyer said.

He is the second NFL head coach to be fired this season. Sam Rutigliano, a former New England assistant, lost his job Monday with Cleveland.

Meyer, whose 18-15 record was the best winning percentage of any Patriot head coach, said he didn't ask for a reason and was given none. Sullivan indicated that the decision to fire Rust was a factor.

Rust, who was highly praised by his players before and after his firing, was rehired Thursday.

"One of the first things I wanted to do was get Rod Rust back," said Berry, who was named to the Hall of Fame after a brilliant 13-year career as a receiver with the Baltimore Colts.

Berry, 51, was part of the staff that was

continued on page 19

Sports

Battered Minutemen limp toward BU

Four UM starters out, Stull looks for effort

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

"We're not in the best possible shape and we're facing one of the best teams on our schedule, and that could mean some problems."

University of Massachusetts football coach Bob Stull isn't putting on the happy face most coaches don before discussing their upcoming game. He knows his Minutemen have troubles.

Specifically shoulder troubles, ankle troubles, hamstring troubles.

Four starters, two on offense and two on defense, will not start Saturday as UMass travels to Boston University to face a hungry Terrier team at Nickerson Field at 1:30 p.m.

The Terriers, 5-2, have lost two in a row and need to win this Yankee Conference game to stay a game behind Rhode Island. UMass, 2-5 and 0-2 in the conference, have little other than the spoiler's role to fill.

UM linebacker Mike Favreau, second on the team in tackles, will miss at least this game and possibly the season with a separated shoulder suffered in practice this week. Defensive tackle Dan Sullivan continues to be bothered by a badly sprained ankle, tight end Paul Walsh adds a case of the flu to a mild concussion and fullback Frank Fay is suffering an ankle sprain. None will dress.

What else could happen to the Minutemen? The backup fullback, Bob Shelmire, is questionable with a neck injury so freshman tailback Ted Barrett will move into the starting fullback's position beside tailback George Barnwell, still hurting from a hamstring pull that kept him to five carries in a 20-7 loss to Maine last week.

Cornerbacks Chris Wood and Rod Turner have a case of the flu, nose tackle Peter Tracy has a hamstring problem and linebacker Dave Cavanaugh has a bum shoulder.

Other than that, we're ok, laughed Stull after listing the injuries. "But seriously, we've got a big test in front of us with BU and I wish we had everybody healthy."

The Terriers dropped a 17-1 decision to UMass last season and coach Rick Taylor is 2-5 against the Minutemen, the only conference team that he has a losing record against.

All-American tailback Paul Lewis just broke former UMass tailback Gary Pearson's yardage record with his 3,866th career yard and has scored a New England record 49 TD's. Quaterback Pat Mancini has ankle problems and completion problems with a 41.1 percent ratio.

Defensively, the Terriers are the best team in the league. Led by a corps of strong linebackers and a 6-3, 277 pound tackle in Don Brain, Bu figures to give UMass quarterback Jim Simeone a difficult time.

Simeone completed 25 passes for over 250 yards against Maine, but as Stull said, "We didn't get the complections when we needed to score."

The Minutemen's offense is keyed around Barnwell (590 yards and two TD's) and the receiving of senior split end Bob Simeone (34 catches for 422 yards).

Defensively for UMass, Glen Holden made 17 tackles against Maine while both Wood and Paul Platek have four interceptions.

"BU is not the team to be this banged up for," Stull said. "But we practiced hard, we're going to forget about Maine and go at them with all we have, we're not going to hang our heads."

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

UMass tailback George Barnwell, here against Richmond, will be looking for another big game.

UMass at BU

Where: Nickerson Field, BU
When: Saturday, 1:30 p.m.
The Latest Line: BU by 12
The Series: UMass leads 17-12
The Records: UMass is 2-5, BU is 5-2
Conference Records: UMass is 0-2, BU is 2-1
Injuries: UMass — LB Mike Favreau (separated shoulder) is out, DT Dan Sullivan (ankle) is out, TE Paul Walsh (concussion, flu) is out, FB Bob Shelmire (neck) is questionable, FB Frank Fay (ankle) is questionable, TB George Barnwell (hamstring) is probable, NG Peter Tracy (hamstring) will start, LB Dave Cavanaugh (shoulder) will start. BU: OG Mike Moylan (knee) is out, QB Pat Mancini (ankle) will start, DE Gary Durgin (knee) is out.
Radio: WMUA-FM (91.1) will carry the game.

The National Polls:

UM coaches can't agree on their importance but the rankings play a big role for all sports

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Sometimes they make no sense at all. Sometimes they are right on the money. They are conducted by coaches, writers and radio shows.

The only thing consistent about polls is that they always leave someone mad and upset.

"The only good thing about them is the publicity," UMass women's soccer coach Kalekeni Banda said. "They are good for recruiting, but you can't believe the polls and I do them. some of the stuff isn't consistent."

Women's volleyball coach Elaine Sortino doesn't quite agree.

"I think they are very good," she said. "Whether you agree or disagree, it gives you something to shoot for."

For different teams, polls mean a lot in determining chances for post season play. The Northeastern poll, conducted by the NCAA in volleyball, will be the main criteria in selection for the Division II ECAC tourney. UMass (21-12) is ranked fifth and only the top 4 go. "The polls are very important to us," Sortino said.

The field hockey team (12-3), fourth in the latest NCAA poll, was ranked as low as eighth earlier in the year.

"I think polls become more important as the season goes on," field hockey coach Pam Hixon said. "It becomes more important in the last two weeks, make it or break it time." The NCAA uses the polls to help pick the twelve playoff teams.

"Polls are helpful but not the major priority," Hixon said.

The latest poll doesn't mean much to the women's soccer team, currently rated fourth, two points behind second place Brown and George Mason. UMass (11-2-2) was ranked second last week.

"The NCAA has nothing to do with our poll," Banda said. The International Soccer Association of America conducts the national poll. Banda said the NCAA looks at the strength of the schedule, wins and losses and common opponents (not necessarily in that order).

That's what most teams will be judged on for playoff spots. The men's soccer team, at once ranked 12th nationally and first in New England, has dropped to fourth in New England and no national ranking.

"Anytime you're ranked," UMass football coach Bob Stull said, "everybody shoots for you. Everybody plays their best game for you." The University of Washington, where Stull was an offensive coordinator, is currently ranked first in Division I-AA football.

No UMass team has been ranked first in the nation since the 1982 field hockey team which lost to UConn in the finals, 4-1.

"The only poll that really counts," Banda said, "is the last poll." After the National championships.

Sports at a glance

UMass schedule:

Today:
Men's Soccer: at BC
Volleyball: at West Point Tourney
Saturday:
Football: at BU, 1:30 p.m.
Women's soccer: BC at Boyden, 1 p.m.
Women's Cross Country: New Englands at Boston
Rugby: at WPI
Women's Tennis: at New Englands
Sunday:
Men's Lacrosse: Army, Boyden Lower, 1 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 36 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Monday, October 29, 1984

Elections for SWAG posts next two days

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

Southwest Area Government (SWAG) presidential elections will be held today and tomorrow in the Hampshire, Hampden and Kosher Dining Commons during lunch and dinner hours.

The three co-presidential candidates this year are, Arthur Stephenson and Mike Gilbert, Bill Collins and Laura Goldstrich, Sharon Jackson and Richard Stewart.

Last year, more than 600 of the 5,500 students living in the Southwest Area voted in the area's elections, according to Student Government Association Governmental Affairs Committee Chairman Joel Rabinowitz. "Hopefully, there will be more voting this year because there's been a lot of campaigning in this race," he said.

Last May, the Undergraduate Student Senate invalidated all of the area's elections after co-presidential candidates Sharon Jackson and Paula Williams claimed they were unfairly barred from the ballot.

In September, the Student Supreme Court unanimously dismissed a case Rabinowitz brought against the student senate involving the SWAG elections. Rabinowitz charged that the senate acted illegally when it invalidated the elections by not filing a formal protest and by failing to hear from its elections Coordinating Committee.

On Oct. 3, the senate voted to reverse the invalidation for all Southwest Area offices except the president's. Up to that point SWAG had not been able to spend money because Student Government Association Treasurer John Mooradian had frozen the area's account Sept. 23 because there were no officially recognized representatives to the senate from SWAG.

Results from this week's elections should be available by Tuesday night. "I'm sure they will be counted by then," Rabinowitz said.

Collegian photo by Mitch Drantch

ZAPPED! — Chainsmoking, enigmatic Frank Zappa entertains a sold-out crowd at the Fine Arts Center last night. Watch the Arts page this week for a review.

Is illness an excuse for students?

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

The policy of whether students should be excused from exams or quizzes due to illness is again causing debate among University of Massachusetts faculty.

David P. Kraft, director of Mental Health Services, said at last Thursday's faculty senate meeting, "There's an argument that comes up every other year" about who should be responsible.

"It remains to be a debate among the professors of whether students should be excused or not," he said.

According to University Health Council policy, students are considered "responsible adults" when they miss scheduled exams or quizzes and are responsible for informing their professors when they cannot attend classes due to sickness.

"These students aren't in grade school," Kraft said. "Why can't professors believe them (students) or allow students to take the responsibility?"

Irving Rothberg, professor of Spanish and Portuguese, said University Health Services should be responsible for verifying student absence in response to the council's annual report to the senate.

"These students aren't in grade school. Why can't professors believe them or allow students to take the responsibility?" —David P. Kraft, director Mental Health Services

"Notes excusing students from class when quizzes are scheduled has become a burden of the professor to verify student absence from class," Rothberg said. "What great deal is it to have University Health Services call professors to verify student absence?"

"It seems a petty matter," he said, "but others share this common concern."

But English professor Howard O. Brogan said, "Having students report their illness won't make any difference."

"Students are always waiting in line at health services and all they have to do is wait until the class is over," Brogan said. "My policy is there is no excuse."

Kraft said professors should not demand notes from students unless "students have had a serious accident."

"In that case, the student should have the health center contact the professor."

The council's consideration to make the expansion of health services a higher priority was also met with debate because it did not follow proposal guidelines.

David A. Booth, senate rules committee chairman, said the consideration should have come to the senate before being forwarded to Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

But Robert Levin, council chairman said, "there is a critical need for the expansion of health services."

Oxfam will only get donations

Dining commons fasts violated trust fund laws

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

The Oxfam America Fast For A World Harvest will be held at the University of Massachusetts again this year Nov. 15, though students will not be able to contribute funds through the dining commons as they have in the past.

"They (Food Services) told us that they found a law that prohibited giving trust fund money to charity," said Daniel Stockford, president of the UMass Hunger Task Force. The dining commons operate on a trust fund account through student meal plan fees.

Stockford said the law was discovered last semester when the Southwest Area Government tried to work out a rebate plan with the dining commons during Hunger Awareness Week.

The Board of Trustees would have to vote on the law and make an exception for the Oxfam fast, though it is not scheduled to meet again until Dec 5.

"The trustees have to give us a green light," said Josephine Keeley, acting director of Food Services.

Continued on page 3

ONE, TWO, THREE — Theresa Hawboldt of Patterson dormitory enjoys a Halloween prank at a holiday celebration over the weekend. Strict residence hall security did little to dampen the spirits of these costume-bedecked students haunting the campus the last two days. Photo by Steven Weissbluth

INSIDE
Shame on you, Mr. Reagan p.5
Notes on The Little Drummer Girl p.7
Terriers bite Minutemen p.12

"Did anyone ever have a boring dream?" — Ralph Hodgson

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

Picketers both in favor of and opposed to the transplant of animal organs into humans demonstrate outside Loma Linda University Medical Center, Los Angeles, during yesterday's press conference about the transplant of a baboon heart into an infant. Protesters charged the transplant was "ghoulish tinkering," while medical authorities said the 16-day-old infant would not have lived otherwise.

Israel requests US help in withdrawal of Lebanon troops

JERUSALEM (AP) Israel appealed to the United States yesterday for help in reaching a Lebanon troop withdrawal agreement with Syria and also called for a broader role for the United Nations in securing peace along the Israel-Lebanon border.

A statement issued after a policy review by Prime Minister Shimon Peres' Cabinet said Israel will continue efforts "for reaching an agreement with Syria through the good offices of the United States."

At the same time, the statement called for talks between Israeli and Lebanese military officers, under U.S. auspices, to arrange security for Israel's northern border once Israel's troops pull out of southern Lebanon.

Cabinet sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said a partial withdrawal which Peres has mentioned publicly did not come up Sunday.

Peres suggested this month that if an agreement could not be reached with Syria to pull Syrian troops out of Lebanon or to control its Palestinian and Lebanese militia allies, then Israeli troops who are withdrawn from the border area could be redeployed against Syrian positions in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

Yesterday, Cabinet Secretary Yossi Beilin said, "No redeployment was discussed."

U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz has said Washington was ready to be "as helpful as we can" in building conditions for Israel to withdraw from southern Lebanon, which it invaded in June 1982 to stop cross-border attacks by Palestinian guerrillas.

But informed Western sources said the U.S. administration does not believe the countries involved were ready for a full-scale mediation effort at this point. Syrian officials have refused to discuss a withdrawal of their troops, which entered Lebanon in 1976.

Richard Murphy, the U.S. assistant secretary of state, was due back in the Middle East this week for exploratory talks described by Western diplomatic sources as "poking, prodding and probing."

The Cabinet review produced no apparent change in Israel's approach.

Organized crime bust nets 20 arrests

LOS ANGELES (AP) A bid by organized crime members to take over $1 million-a-week bookmaking operations here was cut short yesterday with the arrests of 20 people, including the reputed crime boss of Southern California, police said.

Among those arrested was Peter John Milano, "considered to be the head of organized crime" in Southern California, police Chief Daryl Gates said.

The investigation dubbed "Operation Lightweight" began in the spring, was put on hold during the Summer Olympics and resumed immediately afterward, Gates told a news conference.

"We feel the name is appropriate because organized crime is such a lightweight in Southern California," said Gates, who referred to Southern California crime families as "the Mickey Mouse Mafia."

Gates said seven bookmaking locations were seized and that it was estimated that approximately $1 million in wagers were being handled at those locations each week. Eight of the arrests took place at bookmaking joints.

Some of the bookmakers approached "were scared," he said.

"The important thing here is that bookmakers in Southern California are not organized...We have managed to keep organized crime from doing that," he said.

Ivy League students favor Mondale

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale holds a 19 percent lead over President Reagan on seven Ivy League college campuses, according to a poll conducted by the schools' student newspapers.

The poll, however, indicated that Reagan had more than doubled the support he received in a similar poll four years ago when Ivy League students supported Independent candidate John B. Anderson for president.

Of 1,626 undergraduates polled between Oct. 9 and Oct. 12, 53 percent said they support Mondale and 34 percent said they were in favor of Reagan. The remaining students said they supported other candidates, didn't plan to vote or declined to answer the questions.

Due to technical difficulties, Nummo News could not be printed in today's issue. Nummo will be back next Monday with an expanded edition.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Anne McCrory
Copy Editor	Nancy A. Bukar
Layout Technician	John O'Connell
Photo Technician	Mitch Dranteh
Production Supervisor	Peter Soderburg

Production: Laura Zigman, Kathryn Nobrega, Rob Skelton, Wendy Edenfield, Dan Sullivan, Peter Soderberg, Brian Soloy, Andy Taylor, Dode Levenson

Come To Our Party My Pretties.

Second Annual Carbur's Halloween Party Wednesday October 31 at 9PM Prizes for Best Costume Grand Prize: a Weekend for Two in Montreal Accommodations at the Bonaventure Hotel. Breakfast plus Fifty Dollars in Cash. Other prizes include Ski Tickets to Killington, VT, Free Tickets to Comedy Nite, Free Hot Tub Certificates, Carbur's Gift Certificates, Patrick & Co Gift Certificates. Prizes awarded at 11PM. No Costume? You, too, may win the "Eat your way thru the 16-page section of unusual sandwiches" FREE! That's over 100 of 'em Special 99¢ offer for My Pretties. Buy any Carbur's Sandwich and get a heaping plate of Carbur's Nachos for only 99¢! 99¢

CARBUR'S
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
at the Elmwood Rt. 9 Hadley, MA (413) 586-1978

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
549-5610
FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.-$40. STYLE CUTS $7.00
expires 10/30/84
valid with this ad

Read the Collegian!

SPRING BREAK
Help us sponsor your Ft. Lauderdale trip and you go for free!
LUV Tours
(800) 368-2006 TOLL FREE

CHILDREN of DIVORCE:
Developing Coping Skills for the Holidays
When: Six Sessions Nov. 5 - Dec. 17 Mondays 3:30-5 pm
Where: 127 Hills North
to register for the group call 545-2337
Mental Health Services

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
EVERY MONDAY 7-1
NICKEL NITE!
Every Other Drink Just 5¢
Dance the night away with Crazy George
RT. 9 HADLEY (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

Administrator stresses interaction with students

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

Interaction with students in the classroom is imperative for academic administrators to retain their "sanity," according to the associate provost for undergraduate education at the University of Massachusetts.

Fern L. Johnson, who has been at UMass for 10 years and is also a professor of communications studies said teaching gives her a sense of "what's going on" on campus.

Collegian Photo by Andy Heller

Fern Johnson

"My philosophy is that people in academic administration should stay with student interaction. If you're not actively involved with students, you're missing out on a lot that's going on," Johnson said. "Teaching students makes real all of the things people say about the University."

Johnson said, "It is crucially important that the office has a sense of the reality of the issues and the type of environment the students and faculty work in."

"Teaching is a refreshing refuge," she said. "Things often get crazy and chaotic in the provost's office — that doesn't leave a lot of time for contemplation. Interaction with the students keeps me thinking."

Johnson said "It is frustrating that the faculty and students are on opposing sides with the administration. This is a large bureaucracy."

"I think we need to work with the faculty, students and the administration to make the relationship more cooperative and to make information more public because there's a lot of mistrust and misconceptions between the two sides," she said.

Johnson, who was acting associate provost for undergraduate education last year, made that position permanent less than six months ago upon recommendation by Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

"When the provost search committee was interviewing for a permanent provost last April, the chancellor decided it was in the best interest to the office to have a sense of continuity and asked me to stay on a continuing basis," Johnson said.

"And I'm still learning the ropes," she added.

Johnson said Duffey wanted someone who knew the operations of the office before the new provost, Richard O'Brien, assumed his post. She said she was required to give O'Brien assistance and advice on various issues.

As associate provost of undergraduate education, Johnson works under O'Brien, who has the highest academic position at the University. Johnson's duties include writing proposals for all provost level courses and programs, supervising evaluations in special academic budget preparation and representing the provost on any committee dealing with the office.

In addition, Johnson's position requires interpreting academic policies and reporting to the Board of Regents on systematic evaluation, which includes the recently proposed general education proposal.

"The work in the general education proposal is just about over...the faculty senate should vote on it in the next few meetings," she said.

Johnson said she has spent the past four months on a review of UMass academics.

"A visit from the New England Association of Schools and colleges, which accredits the whole University, are coming next week to examine the articulation of the statement and mission of UMass, (and to evaluate) faculty and courses, undergraduate budget allocations and the long range plan," she said.

"One of the latest and important things we're working on is that the Board of Regents will ask the Legislature to set up programs (at UMass) to retain minorities after matriculation."

While serving on a number of other academic committees, Johnson is also the chairwoman of the provost's committee on academic computing, which is working on how to develop a micro computing plan for the campus and for instructional computing purposes in classrooms.

"Some of my collegues thought I'd lost my mind when I decided to work in the administration," she said. But, "I've really gotten a chance to see diversity and complexity" through the work, Johnson said. "I kind of feel like a missionary."

Yale Strikers gain support from UM profs

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

As the clerical and technical worker's strike at Yale University goes into its fifth week, some University of Massachusetts professors have voiced their support for the union and its goals.

"The principle of comparable worth is one of the paramount social issues of our time. The Yale staff are pioneers in defining that issue for us," said women's history professor Joyce Berkman.

The union of 2,650 clerical and technical workers, which is 82 percent women, went on strike on Sept. 26 when contract negotiations rejected the administration's final contract offer.

The strikers frequently cite the example of a truck driver whose job requirements are basically a high school diploma and a driver's liscense who earns $5,000 more than an administrative assistant with a two-page job description.

Berkman, who got her doctorate in history at Yale in the early 60s, said she supported the striking union "both philosophically and pragmatically."

Berkman said Yale's failure to support a women's studies program, its treatment of women faculty in general and the way Yale is behaving towards the strikers are all evidence of a "male centered" and "arrogant" institution.

UMass sociology professor Dan Clawson said the strike is important because it is the first strike over comparable worth.

He said support from people in surrounding communities is necessary because it is "the most important strike at a university in years."

He said the strikers "seem to be doing everything right." He listed the union's community support, good publicity, its evidence both that Yale does discriminate and that is can afford pay increases as reasons why the union deserves support.

He said a very high percentage of Yale's primarily male union of maintenance and dining commons workers have been honoring the picket lines and are therefore ineligible for strike support money.

"I don't think any of these things can go on forever," he said, adding, "If the Yale clerical and technical unions win, it would be a substantial victory which would help rejuvenate unionizing."

Over the weekend the Boston Globe reported that 450 people were arrested for disorderly conduct at a civil disobedience, "witness for equality," outside a meeting of the Yale corporation. One of the people arrested, the article stated, was Baynard Rustin, a veteran of the civil rights movement who received an honorary degree from Yale last year.

Students are suing the university for $10,000, charging the university with failure to provide services and unfair labor practices.

IN THE CORNER POCKET — Brian Casey of Southwood Apartments takes a shot one recent afternoon in the Campus Center pool room. Collegian photo by Mitch Dranteh

WOMEN'S FORUM

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's News Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

Monday — Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom will meet in Campus Center. Check C.C. schedule for time and room number.

The Everywoman's Center will hold a workshop on sexual harrassment called 'It's not academic' from 7 to 9 p.m. in Campus Center 901. Open to graduate women students only.

Tuesday — The Working Women's Program at the Everywoman's Center is sponsoring an Assertiveness and Leadership Skills group from 7 to 9 p.m. This is the second in a series of eight meetings, and will be moderated by Joyce Clark.

Not a love story, a film which addresses the issue of pornography and its harmful effect on women, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill 329.

Wednesday — Graduate Woman's Admission and General Educational Support [WAGES] sponsors a brown-bag luncheon every Wednesday from noon to 2 p.m., in Campus Center room 805-809.

The Women's Caucus will meet at 4 p.m. in room 415 of the Student Union Building. All women senators are encouraged to attend.

Thursday There will be an open house to mark the re-opening of the Northeast/Sylvan Women's Center from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Knowlton Women's Center, room 01. The program will include a talk on contraception, films on self-examination, and a health workshop. Munchies will be available.

Women's Images/Women's Lives, an informal discussion series sponsored by the Women's Leadership Project, will meet at 4 p.m. in Campus Center 811. The topic this week is 'Beauty Contests.'

Professor Daniel Maguire, a pro-choice Roman Catholic Moral Theologian, will talk on Church, State and Abortion at 8 p.m. in the Mary Wooley Hall, Mount Holyoke College.

Friday The Third Annual Women's Talent show will be held at 9 p.m. in the Backroom, Amherst College. All forms of performing art are expected to be represented at this event.

The Women's Admissions and General Educational Support [WAGES] Program at the Everywoman's Center is holding a support group for graduate women from 7 to 9 p.m.

Domestic violence, car theft occur last week

A 36-year old Amherst man was arrested Thursday for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon during a fight with his wife at their apartment, University of Massachusetts Police said.

Police said the man struck his wife with a mop and the woman was taken to University Health Services for injuries to her head and shoulder area. Police said the fight was reported at 7:20 p.m. Thursday, and the man was arrested at 9:09 p.m., when he returned to the apartment.

In other police reports, a 1977 Ford was reported stolen from lot 44 at 6:50 p.m. Thursday. Police said the owner last saw the car on Oct. 21.

Chief of Police Robert G. Joyce said, "It would be a good idea if car owners checked their vehicles once a day" because recent reports of auto thefts have indicated that some car owners do not check on their cars more than once a week.

— JOEL P. COFFIDIS

New professor holds lecture at Hampshire

By PATTY NEUF
Collegian Correspondent

A lecture titled "War and Peace in the 1984 Election: A Look at The Issues" to be held tomorrow night at Hampshire College will serve to introduce the newly appointed faculty director of the Five College Peace and International Security Studies Program to the community.

The lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Franklin Patterson Hall at Hampshire College.

Michael T. Klare is currently a fellow at the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington, D.C., and has been co-director of its National Security Program since 1977.

The institution is a left-wing, liberal think tank that holds high expectations for its employees, according to UMass professor of political science Luther Allen.

As faculty director of the five college program, Klare will coordinate project planning and will teach at each of the area colleges, said Marian Duncan, Hampshire College public relations assistant. Klare will reside at Hampshire beginning next semester.

Klare's visit is among the activities sponsored by a three-year, $185,000 grant made to the Five College foundation by the Ford Foundation last March.

Klare received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Columbia University and his doctorate from Union Graduate School. He has written four books, including The American Arms Supermarket: Military Sales to the Third World; Beyond the Vietnam Syndrome; and Supplying Repression and War Without End: American Planning For the next Vietnams.

Klare has also published articles in The Nation, the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists, Harpers, inquiry and Diplomatic World. In April of 1983, he appeared as guest editor of The Nation, a special issue concerning New Arms Technology.

★ Oxfam

Continued from page 1

Students will still be able to contribute to Oxfam, a nationwide group that sends money to Asia, Africa and Latin America, through private donations. This will be the fifth year that the Oxfam fast is collecting money on the UMass campus. Last year, UMass contributed $2560 to the hunger fast.

"I think that the fast is a good way to raise the students' awareness of hunger. Many will order pizza, but some will go hungry," said Stockford.

STUDENT TELEPHONE DIRECTORIES

RESIDENCE HALL STUDENTS

Distribution will be made directly to Residence Halls on OCTOBER 29

OFF-CAMPUS STUDENTS

Distribution will be made to Campus Center concourse on OCTOBER 30

FACULTY – STAFF

Full-time faculty & every staff/administrative office will receive copy via campus mail

INCLUDES:

[•] Spring 1984 Dean's List

[•] Staff, Faculty & Residence Area Directories

[•] Bus Schedules

[•] Campus Resources & more

Information Data Bank(545-1540)
Taped Information Phone Service(545-1555)
A SERVICE OF THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE

idb tips

SPORT Style

FOOTBALL SHIRT
9.95 cotton/rayon
mid length sleeve
S-M-L-XL

LONG SLEEVE T-SHIRT
9.95
cotton/rayon
S-M-L-XL

SWEATS
9.95
S-M-L-XL
cotton/rayon

photo by Dwayne Autery

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

"OK, BURGER COURT, SECOND REAGAN TERM— ALL HOLD FOR THE CAMERA, PLEASE..."

We're lucky to be here at UM

Rob Skelton

"Got an old mule and her name is Sal..." I hummed while paralleling the Erie Canal recently on the way to Syracuse. Prior to the canal's opening in 1819, this settement on the northern end of New York's Onondaga Lake was known as Webster's Landing, as Cossit's Corners, as Milan, Corinth, and as Salt Salina.

I was going to Syracuse, however, to compare their big University (SU) to our beloved UMass/Amherst. Both of these respected institutions have a wild side to them–enrollments exceeding 20,000 see to that.

SU is truly a party school. Like UMass, it has been branded a "zoo," but unlike our recent righteous uproars about the label, SU students relish it, even wallow in it on weekends. But a school is a school is still a school, and everybody parties sometimes. (Unlike Lisa Birnbach [Official Preppy Handbook], who toured many colleges for her "preppy sequel, I'll try not to jump to clichéd conclusions, especially regarding lifestyles that don't need elaboration.)

SU and UMass has striking contrasts which are worth mentioning; indeed, they contribute to the distinct personality of each place. Syracuse University and Syracuse the city are vastly different places; in fact, they are worlds apart. SU is a microcosm of well-off collegiates planted amidst the poverty of a black-dominated urban enclave.

An earlier prosperity which brought the city status as a cultural and religious stronghold is continued today as growth in the suburbs. Somehow the inner city was neglected, and renewal programs, begun by 1970, have yet to revive a once-thriving area.

Amherst, traditional blueblood breeding ground, has not such a stark color boundary about it. True, racial dis harmony is bound to exist, but at SU I was really struck by a strong "them vs. us" mentality.

Around the Pioneer Valley, it's taken for granted that students can study or socialize at any one of five colleges nearby, not to mention make use of many outlying areas partly served by the free bus line.

In Syracuse, you are either "on" campus, or you are in the city, in danger of harassment from long time residents (resentful of the influx of rich kids from Westchester?).

Because most social activities must be on or near campus, the Greek system at SU has tremendous influence. My contact at that school talks, eats and sleeps sororities, and spent two days rationalizing her decision to pledge to be a sister. In a "closed" society like SU it must be very important to find a place.

How lucky we have it! Thankfully, the frats and sororities at UMass don't dominate the social life, and yes, although we do have some Westchester folks here, they are balanced by regular people from Maine and Mansfield.

From the content of the Syracuse Daily Orange we learn that SU, too, has SGA problems, and that, not surprisingly, the concerned and conscious write in wondering why there are not more conscious and concerned.

Recently a reader wrote in bothered by an absence of debate on a SU Union showing of an X-rated movie. He also noted that the campus convenience stores had begun selling Playboy and Hustler, and invited women to air their views on student- and university-subsidized porn.

I think that the women of UMass and area don't need an invitation to protest, especially from a man.

I like to think that UMass beats them hands down, but it ain't so. SU enjoys a towering reputation in academics, sports, and social life. Undoubtably it's all worth the yearly $10,000 in fees.

Our Hadley flatland and the Holyoke Range are hard to beat, as are the bargain prices we pay for public vs. private education. Our waterway is almost as famous as theirs. Such are my reflections as the sun melts behind Mount Carrier Dome, and still..."fifteen miles on the Erie Canal!"

Rob Skelton is a Collegian Staff member.

Don't elephants remember?

Rita Murphy

Shame on you Ronald Reagan, shame on you.

The one year anniversary of the deaths of 241 Marines in Beirut came and went and you swept it under the rug. You said not one word public about any or all of the young men who died after you ordered them into Lebanon.

Not one word.

Did you forget Mr. Reagan? Did you forget those men like you have forgotten a lot of things since you became President of the United States?

Did you forget them like you have forgotten minorities, and women? (Do you remember the term equality, Mr. Reagan?)

Did you forget them like you have forgotten about Salt I, Salt II, Camp David, or the Organization of American States which strictly forbids military intervention in another country? (Do you remember Grenada?)

Did you forget them like you have forgotten the common sense theory that you can't keep spending what you don't have? (Do you remember a $200 billion deficit, Mr. Reagan?)

Did you forget them like you have forgotten each and every economically disadvantaged college student? (Do you remember cutting the Social Security Education benefits for 750,000 students, or cutting $100 million from the Pell grant program, or cutting $100 million from the National Direct Student Loan program, or cutting 800,000 students from the Guaranteed Student Loan program?)

Did you forget them like you have forgotten what Thomas Jefferson stood for? (Do you remember that some what famous document we call the Constitution which says a little something about the separation of church and state?)

Did you forget them like you have forgotten the elderly? (You'll deny it, you'll even lie about it, but you attempted to cut $20 million from Social Security right after you took office. Do you remember that, Mr. Reagan?)

What do you remember? The flag? Apple-Pie? Vacation after vacation after vacation? Come on, is it too much to ask that our President remember things like saying trees cause pollution, the bombing begins in five minutes or hiring people like Anne Burford, James Watt, Edwin Meese, and Raymond Donavon?

Your memory seems to be fading Mr. Reagan, you seem to forget double digit unemployment. What about the time you said the Nuclear Freeze Movement was underminding America and run by Communist sympathizers? Do you remember that?

You'd probably never forget that Adropov is dead if someone didn't remind you every now and then, (after all, you're not exactly on speaking terms with the Russians, so it's easy to see why you'd forget who was in charge.)

Maybe you should be forgiven for being a little absentminded, But the Marines, Mr. Reagan? Can we forgive you for that one?

Do you remember Dewey, Mr. Reagan?

Rita Murphy is a Collegian columnist.

CIA is stifling democracy

Rob Ginocchio

Since 1981 the CIA, in collaboration with the Reagan administration, has been assembling a terrorist apparatus in an attempt to undermine and topple Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

It was in December of that year that President Reagan authorized CIA covert operations on the Nicaraguan-Honduran border. The conflict has greatly strained the socio-economic systems of both countries.

Last April, Washington exploded in response to the mining of Nicaraguan ports–acts of deliberate sabotage which were sponsored by CIA operatives.

Recently, however, it was discovered by the Associated Press that the CIA has fitted yet another component onto its oppressive apparatus; a manual titled "Psychological Operations in Guerrilla War" has been distributed among the rebel factions in Honduras. Among other things, the manual advocates the need to "neutralize" Nicaraguan officials while injecting considerable amounts of anti-government propaganda into the Nicaraguan masses as a way of generating support for the Contras.

Ronald Reagan has repeatedly accused the Sandinistas of sponsoring a "reign of terror" throughout Central America when in fact it is the CIA which is the real perpetrator of violence and oppression in the region. The distribution of the pamplets poses yet another embarrassment to the Reagan administration and once again demonstrates the sheer barbarism of Bill Casey and the Intelligence Agency.

It is logical to assume that the CIA and the current administration are not interested in promoting democracy in the region but rather in stifling it. The economic and military sponsorship of Contra guerrillas, the mining of Nicaraguan ports, and the distribution of a terrorist manual proves beyond a doubt that the CIA is a habitual violator of human rights. The purpose of the Intelligence Agency is to preserve the national security and not to violently harrass nations and engage in political assasinations.

Rob Ginocchio is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

There's more than one team

Peter Abraham's column Oct. 22, was his worst to date.

As a member of the University's Admissions staff, I speak with hundreds of prospective students and their parents each year, and of greater interest than whether or not the football team is having a winning season are the following facts:

1. The women's lacrosse team won the NCAA National title in 1981.

2. Last year's women's soccer and field hockey teams finished post-season play ranked 3rd in the country.

3. The women's soccer and field hockey teams are nationally ranked second and fifth, respectively.

4. The field hockey coach served as the assistant coach of the U.S. Olympic field hockey team.

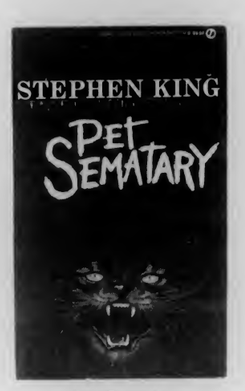
It's unfortunate that the football team is having a disappointing season and I hope the team turns things around in the remainder of this season or next. However, Peter should wake up and realize that the University has not one but 28 varsity teams.

Additionally, Peter (who is kind of digusted when the best teams at school are the women's soccer and field hockey teams...") should begin his next column with an apology to the talented young women and coaches of both these teams for his insults. He would also do well to make an effort to keep in touch with what is occurring nationally in Division I women's athletics. Then perhaps he wouldn't have such a difficult time naming the "national powers," any list of which would include the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Perhaps if the space currently devoted to Peter's column was allocated to provide more extensive coverage of women's athletics, the entire University community, including Peter, would be better served.

D.R. Bousquet
Amherst

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF



Pet Sematary
by Stephen King

UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center

Open:
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

LEARN TO FLY
City Aviation Flight Services

- Qualified Flight Instructors
- Private Pilot Rating
- Rentals / Charters
- 7 days a week
- On UMass bus route
- Discounts for UMass on first lesson
- Financing available

Northampton Airport Northampton, MA 584-1860

PIZZA-RAMA

Our Specialties Are
Delicious Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders
Spaghetti
Shells
Ravioli
Manicotti
Eggplant

CALL 253-3808
256-0115
FREE DELIVERY!
356 College Street, Amherst

Any Large Pizza 3 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Med. Pizza 2 FREE SODAS (cans) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons
Any Small Pizza 1 FREE SODA (can) when you place your order please tell us you have coupons

IBM

Announcing IBM's Technical Career Information and Sign-Up Day

University of Massachusetts
Seniors and Graduate Students with the following majors:
- Electrical Engineering
- Manufacturing Engineering
- Mechanical Engineering
- Industrial Engineering
- Computer Science (COINS)
- Business Administration
- Finance
- Applied Mathematics

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1984
10:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.
CAMPUS CENTER
ROOM 101

Come informally any time during the hours indicated above and learn about technical and marketing career opportunities in IBM from many different locations. Then sign up on interview schedules of your choice for formal interviews to take place on November 1 and 2, 1984.

Bring 3 copies of your resume and transcript for admittance

Citizenship or permanent residence required for interviews

Arts

Of soldiers and spies

THE LITTLE DRUMMER GIRL
Directed by George Roy Hill
Starring Diane Keaton, and Klaus Kinski
Mountain Farms Theater
By Elaine Senay
Collegian Staff

The Little Drummer Girl is one of the best film adaptions of a novel in many years. It sacrifices little of the plot to the cutting room floor or wander from the original nature of the characters. Director George Roy Hill picks up the pace and whirls us across the globe as Charlie (played by Diane Keaton) plunges into a role that takes her into the theater of the real.

Sadly this fine portrayal of political terrorism is undermined by the miscasting of Keaton as the actress Charlie. She is not believable as a political radical. Keaton does communicate the desperation and aimlessness of the character created by the author John Le Carre. What Keaton lacks is Charlie's frenzied vitality which came from her youthful age. Keaton cannot pass for a woman in her middle twenties, as she seems too worldly for this role.

Charlie is persuaded to audition for a part which will help Zionist agents trap a network of Palestinian terrorists. They fabricate another life for her where she becomes a part of this network. Klaus Kinski as Marty, the chief of the Zionists, is methodical as he masterminds the operation. Yet, Kinski retains a tongue-in-cheek attitude that prevents him from seeming cold-blooded. Yorgo Voyagis as Joseph, Charlie's mentor and later lover, is sympathetic as a burned-out fighter who has done and seen too much killing.

The location footage is sharp and memorable taking us from England to Germany to Lebanon. It gives the impression that international espionage is glamorous and this does stray from the mood of Le Carre's novel which is more plodding. The film is filled with too much brightness whereas the novel has a grimness that is more real. The film tries to lighten the danger of the operation with jokes and humor that seem out of place in the film.

The Little Drummer Girl is an entertaining film as long as you have not read the novel. It is a good film in its own right but it could have been an excellent one had another actress been chosen to play Charlie. The film loses credibility where it strains to create a world that is not real or probable. This is a shame because the film has so much going for it and is full of good intentions to tell its story.

Diane Keaton plays an actress involved in espionage in George Roy Hill's adaption of Le Carre's thriller The Little Drummer Girl!

A favorite of western Massachusetts audiences, Canada's Royal Winnipeg Ballet returns to the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center on Monday, November 5, at 8 p.m. Under the artistic direction of Arnold Spohr, the Royal Winnipeg Ballet has gained international respect for its versatility, technical excellence, and captivating style.

The performance will include four major works opening with Allegro Brillante, choreographed by George Ballanchine to music of Tchaikovsky. Lento, A Tempo E Appassionato is danced to piano music by Scriabin. Translucent Tones utilizes Bartok's 3rd Piano Concerto; and finally, The Hands incorporate musical motifs ranging from Mozart to the Beatles.

Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center box office (545-2511), at DATATIX outlets, and at the Springfield Civic Center.

For phone reservations, call 1-800-243-4842.

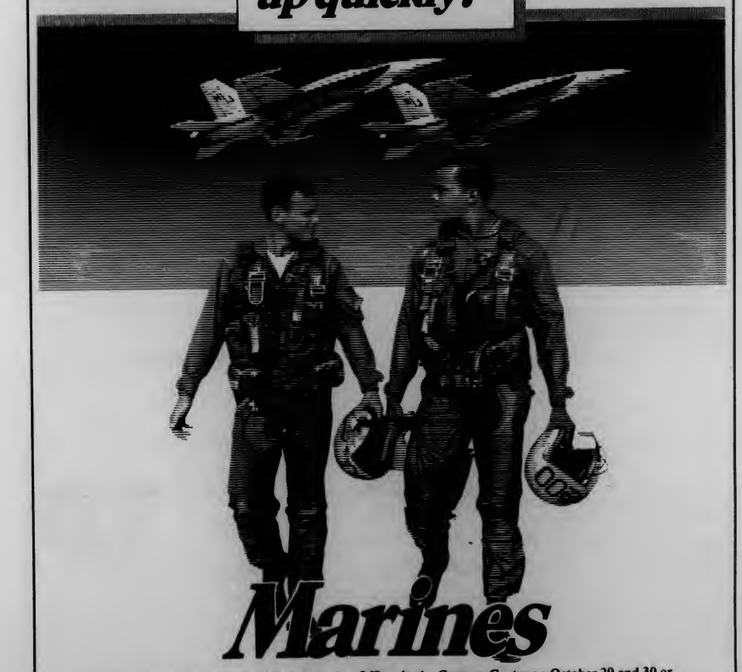
Then get in on the ground floor in our undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start planning on a career like the men in this ad have. And also have some great advantages like:

- Earning $100 a month during the school year
- As a freshman or sophomore, you could complete your basic training during two six-week summer sessions and earn more than $1100 during each session
- Juniors earn more than $1900 during one ten-week summer session
- You can take free civilian flying lessons
- You're commissioned upon graduation

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start off making more than $17,000 a year.

We're looking for a few good men.

Want to move up quickly?



See your U.S. Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer in the Campus Center on October 29 and 30 or call collect (203) 722-2168.

Read the arts page

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

WINTER BREAK
Help us sponsor your school's winter break ski trip and ski free!
LUV Tours
(800) 368-2006 TOLL FREE

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
- Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wardrobe's Store
549-4704

OUR ANNUAL HALLOWEEN SALE

Friday 10/26 - Wednesday 10/31

Spooky Values

Bargains

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst

Hypercurricula

ARMENIAN STUDENTS ORGANIZATION MEETING Meeting to Nov. 9th dance.. 7:30, CC 803.

SPORT MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION MEETING There will be a meeting of the Sport Management Association. It is open to all undergraduate Sport Management majors wishing to become involved in events. 7:00 p.m., Curry Hicks Room 10.

LUNCH WITH THE RABBI Guest: Ted Slovun, speaking on "Gems of Judaism: Sources of Inspiration in My Everyday Life." Tuesday, Oct. 30 at 12:30 in the Suffolk Room (301 S.U.) Bagels and cream cheese provided.

ANOTHER VIETNAM - All welcome to come learn about the issues in Central America. Film: "Americas in Transition" (35 min.) Discussion afterwards with students who've lived in Nicaragua. 7:30 p.m., Knowlton 1st Floor Study.

BEYOND WAR - Will our generation make a positive contribution to the evolution of humanity? Working together for a world Beyond War is one way to accomplish this. 7:00, 164 Campus Center.

OUTING CLUB MEETING Upcoming trips including winter adventures to be announced. Everyone invited. Dress up or just show up for some Halloween fun. 7:00 p.m., 168-175 Campus Center.

EAST SIDE SPRING EVENT PLANNERS MEETING - Representatives from East Side Area Gov't's and East Side cultural centers are encouraged to provide input as to what form the srping event(s) will take. 5:00 p.m., Brett Conference Room.

ANIMAL RIGHTS COALITION - Come in and see what we're about. Tonight's meeting will be informational. newcomers welcome - no obligation to join. 7:00 p.m., CC917.

I always win my card! I check the Collegian NFL picks every Friday.

THE NUCLEAR NAVY. RIDE THE WAVE OF THE FUTURE.

You're deep under the sea. There are 4600 tons of nuclear-powered submarine around you. Your mission– to preserve the peace.

Your job– to coordinate a practice missile launch. Everything about the sub is state-of-the-art, including you.

The exercise– a success. You're part of that success and now you're riding high.

In the nuclear Navy, you learn quickly. Over half of America's nuclear reactors are in the Navy. And that means you get hands-on experience fast.

You get rewarded fast, too. With a great starting salary of $22,000 that can build to as much as $44,000 after five years. And with training and skills you'll use for a lifetime.

Then, whether you're in the Mediterranean, the Pacific or the Atlantic, wherever you move around the world, you'll be moving up in your career and in the Navy.

Find out more about an exciting future that you can start today.

See your Navy Recruiter or CALL 800-327-NAVY.

NAVY OFFICERS GET RESPONSIBILITY FAST.

UTOPIA SPAS
Student Special
2 FOR 1
or ½ PRICE
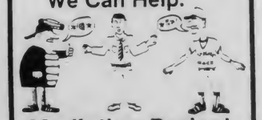
on
1 hour HOT TUB
every Monday and Tuesday
call for Reserations 253-7727
175 University Drive, Amherst, Mass
(next to Stadium Liquors in the Price Chopper Mall)
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues 11 am - 1 am

Having Hassles?
We Can Help.



Mediation Project
an alternative method of solving problems:
- Roomates
- Landlord/Tenant
- Neighbors
- Student/Faculty
- Sexual Harassment
- Family members
- Employee/Employer

The Mediation Project
545-2462
Mon.- Fri. 9-5 127 Hasbrouck UMass

Check Our LOW Prices
HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES
500 Masks to Choose From

Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray
open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th
H.L. CHILDS & SON
open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs nite until 9:00pm
25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

GOOD EVENING. VICE PRESIDENT GEORGE BUSH'S MANHOOD PROBLEM SURFACED AGAIN TODAY, AS CONCERN OVER HIS LACK OF POLITICAL COURAGE CONTINUED TO GROW.
CAMPAIGN OFFICIALS, ALARMED BY REACTION TO BUSH'S NUMEROUS POLICY REVERSALS, HAVE PERSUADED HIM TO TAKE SWIFT, ACTION TO PREVENT FURTHER EROSION OF HIS BELIEFS.
ACCORDINGLY, IN A WHITE HOUSE CEREMONY TODAY, BUSH WILL FORMALLY PLACE HIS EMBATTLED MANHOOD IN A BLIND TRUST.
IT WILL BE RESTORED TO HIM ONLY IN TIMES OF NATIONAL EMERGENCY.
GB Trudeau

Today's Weather

Cloudy and cool with a chance of rain today and tonight. Daytime temperature 55 to 60. Low tonight in the 40s. Mostly cloudy with a chance of rain Tuesday. High in the 50s.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

UP EARLY FOR SOME LAST MINUTE CAMPAIGNING, EH? HA! GO BACK TO BED!
BRUSH BRUSH BRUSH
LISTEN TO ME, YOUR BETTER INSTINCTS. YOU'RE NOT CUT FROM VICE PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER! YOU'RE A GOOF! KNOW YOUR LIMITATIONS! TAKE AN HONEST LOOK AT YOURSELF!
THAT'S RIGHT. LOOK LONG AND DEEP... WHAT DO YOU SEE?
I SEE THAT I'VE BRUSHED MY TEETH WITH "HAIR".
RIGHT. GO BACK TO BED.

Attention Art and Graphic Design Majors

Want experience and money?

Apply at the Collegian for night paste-up work.

See Mark Roden

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins

THE HOSTAGES ARE STILL BEING HELD
"hey" NTSBEE" STAURANT
ONE LONE COMMANDO MIGHT BE ABLE TO FREE THEM TEAR GAS AND SMOKE BOMBS ARE THROWN IN KSSSH!
TO CAUSE CONFUSION AND TO PROVIDE COVER
BUDDAH! BUDDAH!
IN UFL SUBMACHINE GUN
MAKES SHORT WORK OF ANY RESISTANCE
HEY!
AND THE HOSTAGES ARE FREE!
THIS IS ONE PLACE THAT WON'T BE SERVING ESCARGOT FOR A WHILE

Gorde — by Gorde

WELCOME ONCE AGAIN TO "THE ART OF COMIC STRIPPING". TODAY'S LESSON: OBSCENITY! WITH THE HELP OF MANGO JAKE HERE...
...WE'LL DEMONSTRATE WHAT ONE SHOULDN'T DO IN A COMIC STRIP
FOR INSTANCE, NEVER, BUT NEVER PLACE YOUR HANDS OVER THE PELVIC AREA IN A COMIC STRIP
I LOVE IT!!!
NEVER SWEAR OR CUSS IN A COMIC STRIP
FF....
WOMP!
THERE WAS ONE MORE THING, BUT I CAN'T REMEMBER WHAT IT WAS? HMMM
SCRATCH SCRATCH
NEVER PICK YOUR NOSE!!! LIKE, GROSS?

Bat Brain — By Bill Dearing

EXCUSE ME SIR, A GENTLEMAN FROM THE MURA CONSTRUCTION COMPANY IS HERE TO SEE YOU.
SEND HIM IN WALSH
YOU LOOK FINE JIM GOOD TO SEE YOU SIR
WE WERE WONDERING HOW LONG IT WOULD TAKE YOU TO BUILD THE NEW HIGH-RISE TOWER AND DINING COMMONS HERE AT THE UNIVERSITY
WELL, FIGURING TIME DELAYS FOR PAPER WORK, I FIGURE WE COULD FINISH UP IN 20 TO 30 MINUTES.
20 TO 30 MINUTES?!?! THAT'S TERRIFIC! HOW DO YOU DO IT SO FAST?
WELL, YOU KNOW HOW IT IS - YOU CUT A CORNER HERE - CUT A CORNER THERE
HOW WOULD YOU LIKE A JOB BIG ENOUGH FOR EIGHTIES?!

Yesthead — By Jason Talerman

Leisure suit crowd pleasing music
Today, The art of image making evolution of the rhinestone cowboy no morals
It takes all kinds ... human sacrifice is out of the question simple sweaters boring incoherence
Hurry up Yeastie, its contract time!

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

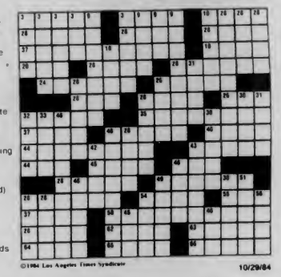
ACROSS
1 Succotash items
6 Stir into action
10 Ending with convert
14 Come up
15 Bed of roses
16 Reunion goer, for short
17 Very pleasing
19 Old World heather
20 Former Spanish queen
21 Converge
22 Tristan's love
24 Captivate
26 Keep —— head
27 Wind up
28 Bloke
29 Ending with act or tract
32 Wont
35 Kind of arsenic
37 West Coast state: Abbr
38 Realty deal
40 Ending with refer or prefer
41 Going across
43 Let up
44 Water, in Nice
45 "How sweet ——!"
46 US soldiers
47 —— down (muted)
49 Was profligate
52 Web weaver
54 Nestorian
55 A Louis
57 Sidewalk eating place
58 Appealing
61 In —— (programmed)
62 Roost or apartment
63 Lawn sign
64 Ferrer and Tillis
65 Kennel sounds
66 Birdfood

DOWN
1 Take on cargo
2 One of the Forsytes
3 La Scala locale
4 "—— was saying ——"
5 Portion
6 Actor Falk
7 Swimmer's resting place
8 The Buckeyes
9 Dainty
10 Arctic abode
11 Dazzling
12 Touch down
13 Headstart
18 Take charge
23 Small bribes
25 Condescend
26 Shouts of discovery
28 High spots
30 Whilom
31 Have to have
32 Garden need
33 Harp, in Roma
34 Pulchritudinous
36 Creature
38 Ability to read and write
39 Author Bagnold
42 Broadway offering
43 Cuts in half
46 Adither
47 "Golden Boy" playwright
49 Contorts
50 Emigre
51 Did a gainer
52 Ripoff
53 Cut back
54 Discontinue
56 Old stagers
59 "—— Skylark": Shelley
60 Shoe part

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

L	I	M	P		N	A	B	S		A	D	A	P	T
O	R	A	L		G	I	O	E		M	A	R	I	O
B	E	L	A		B	O	N	E		B	R	I	N	E
O	N	L	Y		L	U	G		G	A	I	T	S
S	E	E		E	Y	E		O	E	Y	E
		D	A	M			R	E	D	I	E	S	T
E	R	I	S		L	A	T	I	N		A	L	T	O
V	O	T	E		U	N	A	N	I	M	O	U	S	L	Y
A	M	O	S			S	K	E	A	N		E	D	S
N	E	W	T	O	N	S			N	C	O
			B	E	D	F	O	R	E	M	I	N	D
A	N	D	R	E	W	E	V	E		E	M	I	R
R	A	R	E	R		A	V	E	R		L	A	M	E
E	R	A	T	O		H	E	R	L		E	G	O	S
A	D	M	E	N		A	R	T	Y		T	E	Y	S

10/29/84



©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Cheeseburger
Corn Fritters/
Sausage Links,
Syrup

BASICS LUNCH
Spinach Noodle
Casserole
Golden Burgers

DINNER
Roast Lamb/
Gravy,
Mint Jelly
Chicken a la King/
Puff Pastry
Italian Garden Plate

BASICS DINNER
Golden Carrot Bake/
White Sauce
Chicken a la King/
Puff Pastry

Bon Appétit!

TODAY the semester is HALF OVER and we haven't heard from YOU

CALL US, CALL "TIPS" at 545-1540

the University's TAPED INFORMATION PHONE SERVICE for current campus athletic and cultural events. For information not on tape CALL "I D B" the INFORMATION DATA BANK at 5-1555

TIPS is open: Mon.-Fri. 8:30 a.m.-9 p.m. weekends 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

INFORMATION DATA BANK
TAPED INFORMATION PHONE SERVICE

idb tips

A Service of the Dean of Students Office

UMASS "class" shirt
11.50
100% cotton long sleeve available in: 84-85-86-87-88 S-M-L-XL

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Eagles comeback to tie Minutemen 4-4 in OT

Volleyball splits four at tourney, Rugby wins

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Two goals down and 20 minutes from defeat, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team rallied to take a one-goal lead in overtime before settling for a 4-4 draw with Boston College Friday night at Chestnut Hill.

UMass opened the scoring in the 15th minute when Kurt Manal scored his ninth goal of the season. BC evened things when Todd Toensing scored the first of two goals at 26:28 of the first half.

After intermission the play became hectic. Four goals were scored by the two squads, with BC connecting on the first two to take a 3-1 lead with 20 minutes remaining in regulation. Toensing scored his second goal at the 57-minute mark to give the Eagles a one-goal edge. Twelve minutes later, Paul Connors, off an assist by Ara Barsamin, banged home a shot by UMass goalie Don Donahue to furnish BC a 3-1 advantage.

However, the Minutemen struck back quickly. A little more than a mintue after Connors' goal, Tom Giordano netted a goal to cut the lead to one. The comeback became complete in the 78th minute when Tom Uschok scored to knot the contest at 3-3.

In overtime UMass struck first as freshman Andy Bing scored an unassisted goal in the first 10 minute period. The Minutemen were three minutes from a victory in the second overtime period when BC's George Rico scored at the 107-mintue mark.

Goalie Don Donahue of UMass made six saves, while BC goalie Mike Wood collected seven.

The Minutemen, 8-5-3, have four games remaining in the regular season. Today at 2:30 on Boyden Field, they will entertain the Springfield College Chiefs. On Sunday, the Minutemen host Maine, and will finish the campaign with two road games, Nov. 6 at Harvard and Nov. 10 at nationally-ranked Hartwick.

In heated Rugby action in Worcester, the UMass Minutemen went to 4-1 on the season with a 33-6 demolition of Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

UMass had a 7-3 lead at halftime but poured it on in the second half to crush the Engineers.

Keith Kelly and "Goose" Gosselin scored twice for the Minutemen with Stephan Rutherford tallying once.

The game marked the final one of the regular season for UMass as the team and coach Doc Laurence await word on the playoffs.

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team went into this weekend's West Point Volleyball Tournament needing wins against the University of new Haven and Army to enhance their post-season playoff chances.

But while the former didn't happen, the spikers did get a boost towards the playoffs. UMass placed fifth in the sixteen team tourney with a 2-2 mark. UMass defeated the University of Bridgeport in straight games and Lemoyne-Owen College. They dropped matched to Brown University and New Haven.

While all this was going, Northeastern University, who is ranked number one in the Northeast, dropped three consecutive matches to put that ranking in jeopardy. The Huskies were previously undefeated.

Umass could move up in the rankings from their current number five spot due to the absence of number four Bryant Collge in the tourney.

With the West Point tourney behind them, the Spikers are now gearing for two back-to-back tourneys of grave importance in the next two weeks.

[Collegian reporters Alistair Atwood and Roger Chapman contributed to this story.]

HEALTH & BEAUTY SALE

all items available in the mini store

$1.25 4.6 oz. reg. $1.62
Aim MINT FLAVORED TOOTHPASTE FLUORIDE ANTICAVITY PROTECTION
REGULAR AND MINT FLAVOR

Shampoo and Conditioner 7 oz. $1.63 reg. $2.59

Good News Razor 6 pack $1.19 reg. $2.22

Unisol-4 $2.19 4 oz. reg. $3.27

$.79 reg. $1.19

$2.75 6 oz. reg. $3.69

Vanishing or Tinted Formula $1.89 6.5 oz. reg. 2.59

Mennen Speed Stick $1.59 reg. $2.39

$2.09 box of 26 reg. scented or unscented

Introducing DOUBLE MANUFACTURER'S COUPONS on all Health and Beauty Aids Products

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 10-3

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

★ football

Continued from page 12

Trifari looked nervous in his first varsity action and after fumbling out of bounds and being intercepted, Simeone was back in there.

The junior signal caller hooked up with brother again for their third TD pass of the season, a 41 yard bomb that came after defensive back Chris Seerra fell down chasing the elder Simeone down the left sideline. That score made it 17-14 with 12:22 to play and the sparse crowd of 3,161 was starting to worry.

In an 11 play drive that covered 72 yards in a clock eating 6:14, Lewis carried the ball seven times for 36 yards. The score came on a Mancini to Brooks 20 yard pass with 5:45 to go. The worries ceased, until the "fumble" that upset Stull.

In all, UMass fumbled six times and lost the ball four times to the Terriers, 6-2. The UMass running game also produced only 63 yards.

UM wrapped up the scoring with a Jim Simeone one yard run in the final minute.

Statistically the Terriers totaled 395 yards, UMass had 263. Both teams had 17 first downs. Simeone was 15 of 32 for 172 yards. Trifari was three of five for 28. Mancieni was 9 of 17 for 116. Simeone caught five passes for 86 yards.

★ Abraham

Continued from page 12

"Everybody decided on their own that we had something to prove," said linebacker Dave Cavanaugh, who scored a touchdown on a one yard interception return. "The Maine game was something we had to put behind us and I think we did."

"We lost and that's never good, but BU's a hell of a team and we stuck with them," Cavanaugh said. "You could tell we were pumped for this game, and not just because it was BU."

It may have been Stull indicating just how ready he was to change some starters by sitting quarterback Jim Simeone in favor of freshman Mike Trifari for a short time. It may have been the sting of the Maine loss or the fact that they were playing an old rival in BU. No matter the reason, one thing is clear, UMass has regained the guts they lost.

Three games remain, homecoming vs. UConn, at Delaware and against UNH at home. UConn is hardly as good as BU and with a good homecoming crowd the Minutemen have a good shot, Delaware is much hated and having a sub-par season beating a good UNH team at home to cap the season would erase a lot of bad memories.

A record of 5-6, considering the opponents, isn't all that terrible and a lot of respect would come their ways, it's a goal worth shooting for.

How the AP Top 20 fared

1. Washington (8-0-0) beat Arkansas 28-12
2. Oklahoma (5-1-1) lost to Kansas 28-11
3. Texas (5-0-1) beat SMU 13-7
4. Nebraska (7-0-1) beat Kansas State 62-14
5. Brigham Young (8-0-0) beat New Mexico 48-0
6. Ohio State (6-2-0) lost to Wisconsin 16-14
7. Louisiana State (5-1-1) lost to Notre Dame 30-22
8. Miami (Fla.) (7-2-0) did not play
9. South Carolina (7-0-0) beat East Carolina 42-20
10. Oklahoma State (6-1-0) beat Colorado 20-14
11. Boston College (5-1-0) beat Rutgers 35-23
12. Auburn (6-2-0) beat Mississippi State 24-21
13. Georgia (6-1-0) beat Kentucky 37-7
14. SMU (4-2-0) lost to Texas 13-7
15. Florida State (5-1-1) did not play
16. Florida (5-1-1) did not play
17. Iowa (6-2-0) beat Indiana 24-20
18. West Virginia (7-1-0) beat Penn State 17-14
19. Penn State (5-3-0) lost to West Virginia 17-14
20. Southern Cal (6-1-0) beat California 31-7

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Datsun 260Z runs good no rust nice interior $3500 serious call only 549-7854

1976 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $695/BO 256-6121

1980 Citation 57,000 mi, 4 spd, very good condition call evenings 546-1050

1972 Chevy Impala runs well $600/BO 256-8137

1975 Volkswagon Dasher sun roof AM-FM stereo $1500 549-6585 also VW Bug $600

BMW 2002 '73 excellent inside and out, eng tr tran very strong, well maintained, Sunroof, Blistens, Weber, etc $3800 or BO 546-8170

Toyota Corolla Deluxe 1974 excellent condition 665-2492

BUY THIS CAR

1973 Plymouth Satelite must sell 80 Wen ally 253-3396

CHEAP REFRIGERATOR

5 cu. ft. largest legal dorm size must sell, holds many cases only $35 or BO call Mitch 253-5204

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $5 - 7 an hour Must be 18 or older Have own insured, reliable car Apply in person Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

Rock A Disc Rock-A-Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area 549-7144

FOR SALE

One pr Rossignol FP 200 cm like new eighty five dollars 247-5067

Stereo System Gerard turntable receiver and two 30 inch speakers $100 323-4829

FOUND

You lost your gloves at the Edwin Newman speech Call 253-3180 and identify them

GAY

The People's Gay Alliance hosts a social hour each Wed from 3 to 5 Business meetings are at 6:30 each Thurs Check the Campus center schedule for room numbers New people are welcome and encouraged to attend!

HAPPY B-DAY, NANCY!

Our Sunday Copy Editor turns 21! Now's the time to do it make it a good one and remember - caddiness makes the world go around! Love, The News Desk

HELP WANTED

Now taking applications for full and part-time positions Must be 18 or older Apply in person Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

Need good meals? Sorority needs kitchen help Call Kathy 546-2152

General laborers apply at Rusty Nail 6 to 8 PM Wed through Sun

Experienced Ski Mechanic part time apply in person Western Village Ski Sports 32 Main St Northampton

MARKETING INTERN earn money while working on your resume "The Brassworks" on Route 9 minutes from UMass call James Doherty (617) 542-8905

Sweet Tooth hiring part time drivers must have own reliable car, willing to work nights and weekends Must be at least 18 years old Apply in person after 5:30 79 S. Pleasant St Amherst

Herdsperson to milk 60 cows in parlor plus odd chores Call between 9 am 3 pm 665-7174

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

Legal Assistants Wanted The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester Get hands-on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals preparation for Federal and State Court litigation, attendance at court hearings and participation in administrative hearings Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments To apply, for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th Writing sample required Further information, LSO 922 Campus Center

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 6-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Freshmen! Lost watch at dance in September reward no questions asked Kris 546-1223

Gold Bracelet if found please contact Janet 546-6327 reward if returned

PERSONALS

Congratulations Kenny! Gotta love that smile Leora

Amy Ellis who loves ya baby?

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. Government? Get the facts today! Call 1-312-742-1142 ext. 5931 A

Jiff Happy 22 B-day do us a favor get real dream! S & D

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on-campus low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

TRAVEL

Killington Ski Trip condos $195 Jan 20-25 call Sno-Search Brian or Kevin 549-1466

FREEPORT, BAHAMAS 7 days, airfare and hotel included! $229 over January Break call Paul 546-8819 or Alan 546-8841

WANTED TO RENT

2 women want to sublet room in home or apartment for winter session and spring call 546-5523 or 546-5619

Sports

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

UMass tailback George Barnwell (27) busts through the BU line as linebacker Bob Egan (48) follows. The Terriers beat UMass 31-21.

Terriers hold on, 31-21

BOSTON For a player that can run so fast, Boston University tailback Paul Lewis was moving very slowly.

"I picked up three New England records today and all I'm going to rememeber about this game was the hitting," Lewis said after his Terriers defeated the University of Massachusetts 31-21 Saturday at Nickerson Field.

Lewis set career marks in carries, points scored and touchdowns, ran for 137 yards, scored two touchdowns and threw for another.

UMass, 2-6 came into this game missing five starters due to injuries and having numerous others slowed by injuries, yet the Minutemen were down just 17-14 with 12:22 to go in the game.

"We really hung in there, I give the team a lot of credit, said UMass coach Bob Stull. "After the Maine game (a 20-7 loss) we wanted to go out there and look like a team, and if it wasn't for that call we might have even pulled off a win."

The call that Stull was still fuming over 30 minutes after the game came with 4:15 to go in the game and BU leading 24-14.

After taking the ball at their own 22, UMass had driven to the to the BU 14. On a crucial third and ten, quarterback Jim Simeone hit split end Bob Simeone (his brother) with a pass over the middle to the three yard line.

Simeone was hit by a gang of Terrier defensive backs and had his forward progress stopped. In the process of being pushed back, he fumbled the ball into the end zone.

Safety Phil Gaudette recovered the ball for a touchback. On the next play Lewis took a pitch and lofted a perfect strike to flanker Billy Brooks. The 6-1 speedster was alone in the end zone. One play, 80 yards, ballgame.

The game began with freshman Ted Barrett taking BU's kickoff and racing 86 yards to the ten. George Barnwell carried twice to the three before a holding call caused a third and 13. Simeone hit his brother for a 12 yard gain to the one. Stull went for the touchdown and Barnwell was stacked up at the line for no gain.

"It killed us," Stull said. "A score there would have given us a big lift. Then Cav did what he did."

UMass linebacker Dave Cavanaugh hasn't carried a football ever. From midgets to college he's been a lineman or a linebacker. No glory, no headlines.

Then BU quarterback Pat Mancini made the mistake of dropping back to his one yard line and attempting a pass in the flat to Lewis. Cavanaugh rushed in, deflected the ball with his left hand into his right hand and cavorted into the end zone to tie the game at seven after a Lewis one yard plunge three minutes before.

The score remained 7-7 at halftime. In the third quarter BU took a 17-7 lead as freshman Dan Green booted a 47 yard field goal and lewis capped a 29 yard drive after a Duckworth Grange fumble with a one yard run.

In the second quarter Stull replaced Simeone with freshman Mike Trifari.

Continued on page 11

The guts return for UMass

Peter Abraham

When people look at the score today, tomorrow or next year it will still be a loss, 31-21 to Boston University at Nickerson Field on Saturday October 21, 1984. Nothing can change that.

But the University of Massachusetts football team came away from Boston with more than a defeat, they regained a lot of lost pride.

BU tailback Paul Lewis ran for 137 yards against the Minutemen. He scored two touchdowns and threw for another on an option play. He also picked up some cuts and bruises to go along with New England records for touchdowns, carries and points in a career.

"I'll tell you one thing, I sure didn't expect them to come at us like they did," Lewis said. "After they got beat by Maine and us needing a victory like we did I expected an easier game, they're always tough but under the circumstances I thought it might be different. I was wrong and I've got the pain to prove it."

UMass did everything they didn't against Maine - they hit with a lot of authority, the cornerbacks kept the outside shut off and the offense played with desire.

"We hit hard in practice on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday," UM coach Bob Stull said. "I told every starter that their position wasn't a lock, they had to work for it. After that work I told them they had to keep it up during the game or they would be out fast. I guess it clicked."

The Minutemen, now 2-6, kept BU scoreless in the first quarter and hung tough at 7-7 at halftime despite numerous injuries. They were as close at 17-14 in the last period before the Terriers and Lewis closed the door with two quick touchdowns.

Continued on page 11

Minutemen score early, blow out Eagles, 5-0

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Senior co-captain Chris Taggart has two goals and an assist while fellow co-captain, Lori Stukes, added an assist to lead the fourth ranked University of Massachusetts women's soccer team to a 5-0 blasting of Boston College in both team's regular season finale's Saturday at Boyden Field.

The playoff bound Minutemen, who finished with a 12-2-2 record, never let the 11th ranked Eagles into the game scoring with just 18:12 gone in the game. Freshman forward Jolie DePauw took a rebound from a Taggart shot and put UMass on top for good.

"Scoring early was a key," Taggart said. "It helped us out a lot. It opened up the game for us. We wanted to score a lot."

"The defense seems to play better if we score points," coach Kalekeni Banda said.

And the offense also plays better wil a lead. Banda said that with a UMass lead, opponents cannot stuff the backfield with defenders and deny UMass the opportunity for the good shot, like Harvard and Brown did. The two Ivy League schools both beat UMass 1-0 this year.

It was 1-0 in favor of the Minutemen at halftime but UMass dominated outshooting the Eagles, 9-2. In the second half, UMass opened it up outshooting BC by a 13-3 margin.

Taggart headed in the ball off of a DePauw pass with 14:41 gone in the second half to make it 2-0, UMass. That was followed by goals by Monica Seta, defender Debbie Belkin (with an assist from Stukes, the sweeper), and Taggart (in a one-on-one situation).

"We had to play well and get up for the game and we did just that," Taggart said. "We just worked really hard and had our fullbacks take care of BC. Lori Stukes was awesome at sweeper. It was her best game of the year."

The Minutemen will find out who they play this afternoon when the NCAA seedings are announced. "Everything after this is gravy," Banda said. "It's been a good season."

UMass forward Jolie DePauw reacts to Chris Taggart's (11) goal. UM vs. Boston College at Boyden, Saturday. UM whipped BC, 5-0.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Sports at a glance

UMass schedule
Today: Men's Soccer ☆ Springfield, boyden, 2:30 p.m.

Absentee ballots notarized today and Weds.-p.3

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 37 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Tues, Oct. 30, 1984

Collegian photo by Alan Goodrich.

OCTOBER SUN--The end of daylight saving time brings early evenings to the Northeast, although weather is warmer than usual. Today should be cloudy in the 60's

Town Meeting: shift investment

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

Amherst Town Meeting members last night voted overwhelmingly to instruct the Board of Selectmen to develop a town investment policy requiring divestiture from all conipanies that do business in South Africa or are involved in the production of nuclear weapons or their components.

The vote was 129 to 11, in favor of th article, after about 15 minutes of debate.

According to Amherst College Professor John Childs, a sponsor of the article, the town now has $2,000 invested in American Telephone and Telegraph. The corporation is the only one which the town would have to divest from and would not have a significant effect on town finances, according to a finance committee statement.

Francis Fortino, another sponsor of the article, said this "certainly broadens the policy initiated in the spring." Fortino was the sponsor of the Nuclear Free Amherst Act passed at town meeting May 17. The act ws ruled unconstitutional by Massachusetts Attorney General Francis Bellotti as being beyond the town's jurisdiction.

Nathaniel Reed urged rejection of the motion. "It oversimplifies very complex" foreign policy issues, he said. "It doesn't take a position against all nations which oppress people. I don't think this is the proper place to debate this," he said.

Childs said that many of the same companies involved in nuclear weapons production are operating directly or indirectly in South Africa. Much nuclear technology has been given to South Africa by the United States, he said.

Finance Committee Member Pat Murphy said the committee recommended passge of the motion because "we believe enactment of the article is fully compatible with the generally enlightened stance" of the town.

In other action, town meeting members defeated by voice vote a motion to petition the state Legislature to allow the town to grant a 50 percent property tax exemption for citizens 65 to 70 years old.

Sponsor of the article, Frank Decker of the Amherst Taxpayers Association, said property tax increases have forces some residents to move out of Amherst, although Amherst is in excellent financial condition he said, the tax burden has and will continue to fall on property owners.

Ruth Curtis said elderly residents cannot be considered full members of society while not paying their share of the taxes. In many ways senior citizens spend less money than younger residents because stores in the area give discounts to them and mortgages on houses have been paid off in many cases, she said.

Nicaragua gears up for elections

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

[Editor's note: Collegian staff member Ian Polumbuum is in Nicaragua with a group observing that country's first election under the Sandinista government.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua -- As Nicaragua prepares for their Nov. 4 presidential and assembly elections, the Sandinista government is still awaiting word from one opposition party, the Independent Liberal Party (PLI), as to whether it will particeipate.

Candidates from the ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front (FSLN) and six other parties are on the ballots, which have already been printed.

Five of the non-Sandinista parties will definitely run candidates. But according to Supreme Electoral Council Member Leonel Arguello Ramirez, the PLI has not given the council "legal notification" of its particiipation.

PLI presidential candidate Virgilio Godoy announced two weeks ago that he would withdraw. But the newspaper, El Nuevo Diario, reported so many PLI campaign posters have been put up in the past few days that the Socialist Party complained its own posters were being obscured.

The newspaper continued that "prestigious founder members of (the PLI) publically expressed their absolute opposition (to withdrawing), because it would benefit the abstentionist policy of the ultra-right, erected by the Reagan administration."

The same edition carried a full page PLI campaign advertisement.

According to the electoral council, which Arguello said is independent of the FSLN, 90 percent of eligible Nicaraguans are registered to vote this Sunday.

Arguello said the Council has assured "fair and secret" voting by guaranteeing that every party fielding candidates will participate in "every stage in the election."

This includes, he said, counting the ballots, recounting them if necessary, and running the country's 3,896 polling places.

But assertions are frequent that the FSLN has coerced voters. Many assertions have come from Managua's opposition newspaper, La Prensa, which said Sunday, that the Sandinista Worker's Central had told farm laborers "who they should vote for."

A column in La Prensa asserted that the election will be "an electoral farce."

Arguello noted that La Prensa had previously accused him of being an FSLN member, which he said was not true.

"I don't now consider myself part of any political party," he said.

Students, officials form rape task force

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

A campus wide rape education and awareness program and a campus tour by University officials and students to plan more safety measures were planned last night at the first meeting of the rape task force set up by the Undergraduate Student Senate.

"... are the leading University rape survival services and rape awareness," said Kathy Alexander coordinator of the counselor advocate program of the Everywoman's Center. "But we have a long way to go."

Students, administrators and a University of Massachusetts police representative also attended the meeting in the Campus Center.

During the two hour discussion, meeting members agreed that education was most important because services are already available.

Women at the meeting emphasized the importance of involving men in the educational and awareness activities.

"Women are very aware of rape. Men need to be more aware because they can take the luxury of not dealing with the issue," said Lisa Trocki, coordinator of the Women's Leadership Project.

Alexander said the Everywoman's Center is geared toward helping survivors of violence.

"It's time for men to educate men," she said.

She said programs for men are set up but they lack support and funding. Men continued on p. 3

Inside:

Editorial face-off on the presidential candidates...p..5

Third World Student Leadership Conference...p. 7

Gorillas close fall season with win over Army...p. 12.

"You can observe a lot just by watching"--Yogi Berra

Yearbook staff selling surplus back issues

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Staff

About 6,000 back issues of the Index yearbook are on sale at reduced prices from a trailer in front of the Student Union to eliminate surplus stock.

The yearbooks, which originally cost $5, are being sold at $3 for the 1982 issue and $4 for the 1983 issue according to Index editor Cindy Orlowski.

"We felt they would have better marketability if we lowered the price," she said.

The 1982 and 1983 editions both came out months late "so there wasn't much of a chance to sell them," Orlowski said. She sid the 1982 and 1983 staffs did not fulfill their responsibilities.

"They didn't make their deadlines. The'83 staff had to finish of the '82 book, and the '84 staff had to finish off the '83 book," she said.

Because of the limited distribution in past years, Orlowski said, the demand for the back issues is fairly steady, and orders are still being received from members of the Class of 1982.

Orlowski said the last of the old Indexes should sell out at the homecoming football game this Saturday. The Index staff will be located on the west side of the William McGuirk Stadium during the game, she said.

The Index almost lost funding from the Student Government Association earlier this semester because the Senate budget committee did not want to fund a publication that did not publish on time.

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

AUTO WORKERS VOTE--Oshawa United Auto Workers lined up to vote on a new contract with General Motors of Canada, Inc., Monday. the agreement ended a strike at 13 plants that also forced more than 40,000 layoffs in the United States.

Baby Fae removed from critical list

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) - Baby Fae, her transplanted baboon's heart "working well," was removed from a respirator yesterday as hospital officials drew criticism for not trying to find a human donor before performing the operation.

The infant was removed from the critical list and doctors prepared to feed her orally for the first time since the operation, said Anita Rockwell, a spokeswoman for Loma Linda University Medical Center.

Meanwhile, doctors acknowledged they did not know the heart of a 2-month old human was available the day of the operation but said it would have made no difference because it was too large for the ailing infant, who was 14 days old and hours from death when she received the baboon's heart Friday.

By lat this morning, she would become the longest-surviving human recipient of a cross-species heart transplant, surpassing the 3½-day record set by a Benjamin Fortes, 59, a South African accountant who received a chimpanzee's heart in 1977.

Reagan, Mondale to visit Bay State on Thurs., Fri.

BOSTON AP --Massachusetts voters will get first-hand looks at both presidential candidates this week when President Reagan visits the state Thursday and Walter Mondale arrives on Friday.

Campaign aides to the candidates confirmed the dates Monday and said the back-to-back appearances will give Bay State voters a chance to compare the two men before casting ballots Nov. 6.

The president's brief Boston visit, scheduled for City Hall Plaza at noon, Thursday, is coming just in time in this largely Democratic state, according to Sen. David H. Locke, R-Wellesley, chairman of the Reagan-Bush '84 committee.

"This last-moment swing is perhaps more effective for Massachusetts," Locke said at a news conference confirming the appearance Monday.

"If we could have written the script this is when we would have wanted him. It indicates a clear recognition that Reagan has not in any way written off Massachusetts," Locke said.

He said Reagan will be joined at the rally by New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu and U.S. Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., Ray Shamie, the GOP nominee for U.S. Senate in Massachusetts and 10th and 5th Congressional District candidates Lewis Crampton of Plymouth and Gregory Hyatt of Methuen will also attend.

Most of the state's best known Democrats Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, Boston Mayor Ray Flynn and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. - are expected to be on hand to welcome Mondale Friday when he appears at a rally on the Boston Common at noon.

"We hope that it will just continue showing people the amount of enthusiasm for Mondale that we find is quite prevalent in Massachusetts at the moment," said Karin McCarthy, communications director for the Mondale-Ferraro campaign in the state.

It will be the first campaign appearances by either candidate in Massachusetts since the national political conventions. Both men scheduled the stops at noontime to capitalize on the large number of office workers who will be in the area on lunch breaks.

Mondale has avoided Massachusetts, which he hopes to easily carry, in order to spend time in areas like the Midwest and the South where he expected to have more trouble. Reagan's aides said they hoped to carry Massachusetts, as they did in 1980, as well as all 49 other states.

A Boston Globe poll released Saturday showed Reagan with a 53-41 percent lead in the state, with 6 percent undecided.

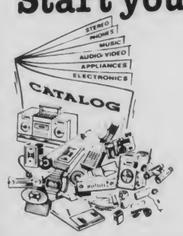
Todays Staff:

Night Editor: John O'Connell
Copy Editor: John Yonce
Layout Technician: Bruce Andrew
Photo Technician: Pam Madnick
Production Supervisor: Ansel Zinter

Production: Nancy Rivers, Maria Cahillane, Kate Davenport, Judy Hayden, Pete Forget, BethAnne Moskov

Correction:
Voting for Southwest Area Government presidential elections will take place in Hampshire, Berkshire and Kosher Dining Commons,

Start your future now!



- You don't need prior experience. You do need the desire to succeed and the ability to recognize this unique opportunity for your financial success
- You don't need a lot of time. You can sell our prestigious high-demand products at your convenience to friends, relatives, schoolmates, etc
- You don't need a big investment. There are no franchise fees, no deposits, no fixtures required. Upon receipt of your payment we'll rush you quick selling merchandise at greatly reduced prices
- You don't need to gamble. For as little as $100 you can select a wide variety of desirable products from our catalog. You may return any unused, unsold merchandise for any reason within 15 days for a full refund

Campus Connection is a rapidly expanding firm with access to worldwide manufacturers and jobbers of watches, calculators, recorders, stereo, radios and sunglasses. You can buy and resell these fast selling prestige items at rock-bottom prices (at 25% to 66% profit) to students, friends, townsfolk and relatives. Sell from your room, on campus, in town, at flea markets or anyplace. You can even sell to local storekeepers in volume for less than they're probably now paying their wholesalers ... and you can still make a hand some profit!

We're in the process of setting up a nationwide network of campus dealers. Get in on the ground floor NOW. You can't lose.

Mail to: CAMPUS CONNECTION, CORP.
Suite 1101, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010

YES, I'm interested in making money in my spare time as an independent on campus distributor of quality products.

Please send me your FREE, no obligation catalog so that I may select merchandise at rock bottom, discount prices.

I can't wait for the catalog to order. I want to start selling immediately. Please select hot selling products for me. I understand that I may return any unsold merchandise within 15 days for a full refund. Enclosed is my check in the amount of $_____ ($100 minimum)

NAME_____
ADDRESS_____
CITY_____ STATE_____ ZIP_____

CAMPUS CONNECTION CORP
Suite 1101, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010

WINTER BREAK

Help us sponsor your school's winter break ski trip and ski free!

LUV Tours
(800) 368-2006 TOLL FREE

COPIES IN A FLASH

OPEN
8 AM TIL MIDNIGHT MONDAY thru FRIDAY
SATURDAY 9-5 SUNDAY 11-5

COLLECTIVE 256-6425
Copies 25 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

TONIGHT FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge

YOUNGER BROTHERS LIVE 9:00

Draft Beer and Wine Party

50¢ Glass 9-1

★ Horror Movies All Nite in Pub ★

Rt. 9 Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

OOPS!

Now's the time to call...

North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

UTOPIA SPAS

Student Special

2 FOR 1 or ½ PRICE on 1 hour HOT TUB

every Monday and Tuesday
call for Reserations 253-7727
175 University Drive, Amherst, Mass
(next to Stadium Liquors in the Price Chopper Mall)
Open: Mon 4 pm - 1 am; Tues 11 am - 1 am

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

MEN AT WORK--Workers lower a safety net into place Monday morning at the North Pleasant street construction site. Buildings will house a D'Angelo's sub shop, a Steve's Ice Cream store, a copy center and two floors of office space.

Police report jewelry stolen

Students charged with DWI, drug possession

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

Jewelry valued at $1225 was reported stolen from a second-floor room in Cance House, University of Massachusetts police reported. According to police, the room was locked, but the jewelry was stolen sometime between 7 p.m. Thursday and 4:51 p.m. Friday when the theft was reported.

Police reported that a 19-year-old female UMass student was arrested for driving while intoxicated at the corner of Philips Street and Nutting Avenue. According to police, the woman was observed driving onto an embankment near the First Baptist Church, and then driving on the wrong side of the road. The woman who failed to recognize the pursuing police cruiser almost collided with other cars, police said.

A 20-year-old male UMass student was arrested and charges Saturday with cultivation and possession of marijuana, by UMass police. Police said various paraphanalia was also confiscated during the arrest.

Police reported that a 35-year-old Vermont man was arrested for trespassing after notice at 1:52 a.m. Saturday. Police said the man attempted to enter the School of Management by forcing a window open.

Police said that a fire extinguisher was thrown from a window in Patterson House and landed on the windshield of a parked 1978 Chevrolet causing more than $200 in damage. The incident was reported at 11:15 a.m. Sunday.

A 1979 Chevrolet was reported stolen from lot 22 at 1:42 p.m. Sunday. Police said the theft is under investigation.

A 1979 Volkswagen, parked in lot 22, was broken into and an AM/FM cassette stereo, valued at $400, was stolen over the weekend, police said. According to police, the right vent window was smashed and the dashboard was damaged during the incident that was reported at 1:52 p.m. Saturday.

A 1979 Mazda, parked in lot 42, was also broken into and an AM/FM stereo cassette and speakers, worth $400, were stolen, police said. The report was received at 3:26 p.m. Saturday.

A 1977 Datsun parked in lot 22 was broken into and it car stereo, valued at $300 was stolen, police said. The driver's side window was smashed and the dashboard was damaged. The report was received at 4:05 p.m. Saturday.

A 1965 Chevrolet van, parked on Fearing Street Extension was broken into and a tool box, blanket, wallet and jacket, all valued at $225 were stolen. Police reported that access was gained by forcing open the rear window.

13 appointed to FAC board

The Fine Arts Center directors recently appointed 13 businesspeople to a Community Advisory Board to help fund raising and promotion for the center.

Panel members were chosen because of their influence and contacts in the western Massachusetts area, said Fine Arts Center publicist Noel Lei Sporny. She said the aim of having an external advisory board is to broaden the fund raiding base of the center.

"We have an organization called 'Friends of the Fine Arts Center' who are people that contribute money toward our program, and the external board is very helpful in gaining new friends for the Center," Sporny said.

According to Sporny, the "Friends of the Fine Arts Center" give donations to the Center in return for small benefits such as quality tickets to Center events.

Some of the new Community Advisory Board members include Barry Gottehrer, senior vice president of Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co.; John Dill, vice president of Springfield Institution for Savings; Carey Jack, director of public relations at Western New England College; Jane Peters, of Kidder Peabody and Company; and Janice Throne, Director of the Thronja Gallery. The newly appointed vice-chairperson is Stephen S. Root, Senior Vice President of Marketing for Bay Bank Valley Trust.

The board members are appointed by Pru Arbib, Director of Community Relations, and John Jenkins, Associate Director of the Fine Arts Center.

Tom Vincent

★ task force

continued from p. 1

Against Violence Against Women has only three members and very little money, she said.

Mary Dumas, an administrator in the sensitive crimes unit of the University of Massachusetts police, said in most cases of rape, especially at a university, the victim knows her attacker to some degree.

"It's not a lot of people jumping out of bushes," she said.

But she said lights and call boxes are important. "We never meant for there to be only five call boxes on the UMass campus," Duman said.

Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) director Debra Piltch suggested that rape as an aspect of social behavior could be part of the first year student orientation program.

"Just letting them know that the institution has the mechanisms to deal with it might help," Piltch said.

Chris Alibrandi said it was necessary to target fraternities and off campus housing centers for education projects.

Informing people of the services available such as the hotline, the escort service, and Men Against Violence Against Women was seen as a first step in the program.

Piltch said it was important to get students to take a stand. She said SCERA was organizing a "take back the night" march to protest violence against women.

Two former UMass students hired by Legal Services

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

The student Legal Services Office has hired two new staff attorneys to replace senior staff attorney Michael Pill and temporary staff attorney Michelle Leaf, according to Charles DiMare, director of the office.

The two new attorneys, Thomas Coish and Jill Franks, are former students at UMass.

Coish, a 1975 UMass graduate, specializes in landlord-tenant relations, and Franks, who spent one semester here in 1978, works mainly with consumer complaints and racial and sexual discrimination and harrassment.

The LSO is a student-funded law office which provides free legal services to all student activities fee-paying students. The attorneys offer advice, representation, and/or referral in most legal matters affecting students.

Coish said he is looking forward to educating students about their legal rights.

"Many people have legal rights they're not even aware of," he said. "If they don't know the rights and they don't enforce them, they (rights) are meaningless."

"I'm interested in talking with students who are interested in organizing unions at their workplace and also organizing tenant unions in the area. They can be useful in informing tenants of their rights and helping them execute those rights," Coish said.

He said unions "can be a very effective political force like they've been in Boston in succeeding to obtain rent-control and controls on condominium conversions."

"There's no reason why that can't happen here," he said.

Franks, who worked for two years at a private practice in Northampton said she "would like all students to be aware that the services of the office are provided to them upon payment of the student activities fee."

"We're concerned with civil rights violations and we would like to represent those who feel that their rights have been violated," she said.

Franks received an undergraduate degree in political science from the University of New Hampshire and a law degree from Western New England Law School. Her private practice in Northampton concentrated on civil rights litigation.

Coish, originally from New Bedford, studied sociology at UMass and now deals with issues such as employment, discrimination, university housing and labor issues.

He received a law degree from Northeastern University Law School in 1980 after working in the Western Massachusetts Legal Services as a paralegal for three and a half years. Coish also spent a year at the Student Legal Srvices at the University of Maine in Orono.

For the past three years, Coish has been an attorney for Southeastern Massachusetts Legal Assistance Corp., a federally funded legal services program for low income people, specializing in landlord-tenant relations.

Michael Pill worked part-time at LSO for five years and served as senior staff attorney full-time for the last five years.

"Michael was the house counsel, which included advising and couseling and being a behind the scenes lawyer," DeMare said.

Pill will remain a consultant for the LSO until the end of this year and then go into business, DeMare said.

The LSO is staffed by four attorneys, two administrative and secretarial support staff law students, and during the school semester, six to eight undergraduate legal

Former art director Wozniak dies

James L. Wozniak, 57, a professor of art at the University of Massachusetts and a nationally known potter died a week ago in his Sunderland home after a long illness.

Wozniak, who retired last semester because of his illness, was known as an authority on ceramics, precious metals, gems and hand made jewelry. His sculptures are on display throughout the country in St. Paul, Minn., Dallas, Texas and Bloomington, ILL.

"He (Wozniak) was a respected craftsman and very dedicated to the quality of education in the crafts," said Paul Berube, art department chairman. "He was very committed to teaching students by example."

During his 15 years at UMass, Wozniak served as director of undergraduate art studies, an academic advisor in the school of arts and sciences and president of the UMass faculty club.

In the late 1970's, his illness caused him to direct his work towards the area of art metal but Berube said Wozniak continued to be a teacher who took personal interest in his students.

Wozniak gave demonstrations and workshops and led panel discussions on ceramics, and pottery nationwide.

He was born Jan. 15, 1927 in Milwaukee, Wis., and earned a bachelor of science and master of science and a degree in fine arts from the University of Wisconsin.

Wozniak taught at the University of Tennessee, Wisconsin State University at Eau Claire, Texas Christian University at Fort Worth and Illinois State University.

He leaves his wife Margaret, a son, daughter and grandson.

Notary Publics available foe absentee ballots

Notary publics will notarize absenttee ballots today and Wednesday in Memorial Hall (near the Fine Arts Center).

Students who are not registered to vote in Amherst but are registered in their hometowns can vote in the national and state elections by mailing the absentee ballot to their town or city hall by Election Day.

To be legal, absentee ballots must be notarized in Amherst, according to Student Government Association co-President Rick Patrick. Notary publics will be available from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days, Patrick said.

To get absentee ballots, students should write to their town or city clerk and provide their name and home and campus or off-campus address, Patrick said.

Collegian photo by Judy Fiola.

LIGHT AT THE END OF THE ROAD-- Haze covers North Hadley Road as the sun rises on a recent morning.

Letters to the Editor

An open debate challenge

The UMass Republicans Club has again demonstrated that image is more important to the Republican party then substance. On the first of November there was to have been a debate between their club and our organization, the University Democrats. These plans have been cancelled and I believe that the University community should know why.

It was our proposal that we have a traditional "political" debate format of one person against one person. We also proposed that the topic of discussion should be our respective party platforms. The Republicans objected to both suggestions.

The argued that we should debate in the "collegiate" team style. Any individual familiar with the format, realizes that more time is spent refuting evidence, because of technicalities, rather then discussing the issues. This would be absurd since the purpose of such a debate would be to inform the general public of the distinctive differences between their party and our party.

Similarly, the Republicans were not willing to debate our platforms. They claimed that the party platforms were not indicative of what the parties actually stand for. Having read my party's platform several times, I am confident that it represents full, the views of the Democratic Party. This can only lead me to believe that either the Republicans are afraid of their platform, or they are afraid to dicuss the real nuts and bolts issues of the compaign. Neither conclusion paints a particularly uplifting picture of the Republican party.

Even on this note we were willing to work out a compromise. We were willing to accept their resolve, "Will America be better off in four years? if they accepted our format. We felt that then we could inject issues into the debate, even if they tried to skirt them using their resolve. Of course they were not willing to compromise, because they were obviously not interested in the issues.

We of the University Democrats are still willing to debate the UMass Republicans Club, if they are willing to accept our logical compromise. Campus Center Room 168 is still reserved, and we would still be glad to confront them there this Thursday evening.

Kevin M. Sweeney
President, University Democrats

PERSONALS

Dynamic, exotic country seeks close, rewarding relationship with female and male students. Will send photos, details to sincere, motivated individuals. Contact The Israel University Center.

ISRAEL'S REMARKABLE UNIVERSITIES OFFER SEMESTER-TO-YEAR PROGRAMS, COURSES TAUGHT IN ENGLISH, TRANSFER CREDITS, MODERATE FEES, SCHOLARSHIPS, TOURING & MORE! SEND COUPON NOW TO: THE ISRAEL UNIVERSITY CENTER, 515 PARK AVENUE, 2ND FLOOR, NY, NY 10022.

The Israel University Center
515 Park Avenue
2nd Floor
New York, NY 10022.

I have a personal interest in great study abroad in Israel. Please send me more information.

Last Name First Name
Current School
School Address City State Zip
( ) ( )
School Phone Home Phone
Major Graduation Date

TUESDAY

RACK-A-VIDEO ENTERTAINMENT presents
- Giant Ten Foot Screen -

Video Music D·A·N·C·E Party

Experience our new menu. • Latest Video Releases • • 9 til 1 •

THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST./AMHERST MA
413-549-1200

IBM

Announcing IBM's Technical Career Information and Sign-Up Day

University of Massachusetts
Seniors and Graduate Students with the following majors:
- Electrical Engineering
- Manufacturing Engineering
- Mechanical Engineering
- Industrial Engineering
- Computer Science (COINS)
- Business Administration
- Finance
- Applied Mathematics

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1984
10:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.
CAMPUS CENTER
ROOM 101

Come informally any time during the hours indicated above and learn about technical and marketing career opportunities in IBM from many different locations. Then sign up on interview schedules of your choice for formal interviews to take place on November 1 and 2, 1984.

Bring 3 copies of your resume and transcript for admittance

Citizenship or permanent residence required for interviews

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Four more years? Or four too many?

Let the record speak for itself... But let's have the 'real' record

Stephen C. Erickson

On November 6 we, the voters of our nation, will be faced with a fundamental choice as to the kind of leadership that will guide us through the mid-80s and beyond. The options are as distinct as night and day. We can vote the tax and spend philosophy of Walter Mondale which consists of malaise, limits and economic redistribution or, we can endorse recovery through economic growth, limited taxation, and self confidence as we have seen under President Ronald Reagan. Like no other President in recent U.S. history, Ronald Reagan has dramatically turned around a deteriorating economy, the causes of which can be found in the failed policies and philosophies of Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale. Let the record speak for itself.

Inflation is perhaps the cruelest result of disasterous economic policy. When President Regan took office, inflation was running at an incredible rate of 12.4 percent. Today, it is down to a healthy 4.2 percent. Under Carter-Mondale, salaries could not keep pace with inflation and personal savings were eroding. Under the Reagan Administration the earnings of the average worker have consistantly risen. People on fixed incomes, like the elderly, were especially hurting.

The dream of buying a house was not only clouded by an inability to save, but by high interest rates which were primarily a result of inflation. When President Reagan took office the Prime rate was through the roof at a staggering 21 percent. Today it is down to about 13 percent. Housing starts have doubled since 1981.

As if the inflation and high interest were not enough of a burden on the American people, taxes had nearly doubled in the five years prior to the election of President Reagan. Reagan cut taxes fairly by 25 percent across the board, which significantly contributed to the economic recovery.

More Americans are working today than ever before in the nation's history. Jobs are being created at an accelerated pace as the economy booms with a GNP of 7.1 percent. The rate under Carter-Mondale was .3 percent in 1980.

Allegations that the poor are somehow worse off under President Reagan are unfounded. When Reagan took office 42 percent of social program benefits went to persons with salaries 50 percent above the poverty line. Funding was reallocated to the truly needy. Overall spending for child nutrition, food stamps, medicare, and medicaid, Supplemental Security income, and subsidized housing all increased. The rate of those falling below the poverty line has begun to decrease under Reagan-Bush.

The deficit is still a problem, but its annual growth has been slowed. The Reagan Administration is taking steps to limit waste in federal government, such as implementing portions of the waste finding Grace Commission report. Taxes will only be raised if absolutely necessary.

Put simply, a vote for President Reagan and Vice President Bush is a vote for a successful record. Walter Mondale is talking about the future because the past is riddled with his and Carter's failed policies and philosophies. He cannot talk about the present because it is a Reagan success story. Walter Mondale is a desperate man, for as we all know, you can't argue with success.

Stephen C. Erickson
Amherst

It is time for the gloves to come off. The Democratic Party leadership has been reluctant to attack personally a President who is seen by so many as a kindly grandfather figure. They are afraid of appearing to be negative. By adopting this policy, the Democrats have let him walk away virtually unscathed from every ignorant statement he has ever made and from every lie he and his people have told us.

However, as an irresponsible college commentator, I am under no such constraints. Perhaps the ears of small children and maiden aunts are too delicate for what I am about to say but I have faith that all you corrupted UMass students can take it. It is with this spirit in mind that I now enthusiastically join Ms. Ferraro's "truth squad".

How about we begin with a bit of name calling. Maybe it's crude, but it can help get a point across. The way I see it, Ronald Reagan andCo. are nothing more than a bunch of mean-spirited, money-grubbing, union-breaking, would-be aristocrats who hide their desire to create a caste system behind the symbols of God and country. Wealth is their sole measure of success and the determining factor when they choose friends and allies. I will even go so far as to guess that Ronnie holds people like Ray Shamie in higher esteem than he does Mother Theresa. We know that the G.O.P. doesn't buy all that network air time with donations from welfare mothers.

But hey, all these rich guys are doing one hell of a job with the economy. That is, if you measure economic prosperity only by the level of corporate profits. I doubt that all the new families below poverty level see things in quite the same way. What the hell, they are only good for cheap labor, anyway. The rosy picture the Republicans draw is also rather clouded by those 12-figure deficits. Excuse me, I forgot, R.R. has the perfect solution for them. All we have to do is pass a law requiring a balanced budget. That should work great, huh?

William J. Spain

Actually all these economic questions will turn out to be irrelevant if the Republicans keep the White House in their HANDS. You see, our air and water will be so poisoned by Ron's industrial buddies that a few debts will be the least of our problems. Yes, I speak of our environment.

I have seen even hard-core Reagan supporters squirm about this. The rape-and-pillage crowd is loose and you know who set them free. This president believes that the wilderness is only for those who can afford to buy a piece of it. When I saw him don a ranger's hat and brag about his environmental record, I almost threw up. James Watt, Rita Lavelle, Anne Burford who is kidding whom?

Then there is the repulsive way in which this administration sucks up to those right-wing anti abortion television preachers. YOU KNOW WHO I mean the guys who make you proud to be an American. I shudder to think that men likeJerryFalwell might have input into selecting our next Supreme Court. I don't know about you, but I'll take the Bill of Rights over some fanatic's version of the Bible anytime.

I submit that four more years of this crowd will leave unsightly scars not only on our environment, but on our Constitution as well. Please join me on November 6th and cast your vote to send Ronald Reagan and his latest bad movie back to Hollywood.

William Spain is a Collegian columnist and a member of University Democrats.

THE PRESIDENT SPOKE TODAY OF HIS FERVENT DESIRE FOR ARMS TALKS WITH THE SOVIETS...
WHILE HIS OPPONENT CAME OUT IN SUPPORT OF THE GRENADA INVASION AND AN INCREASE IN DEFENSE SPENDING...
AND SAID HE WOULD CONSIDER A QUARANTINE OF NICARAGUA
IT'S GOING TO BE A TOUGH CHOICE
YEAH, RONDALE OR MEAGAN
WASSERMAN

Letters to the Editor

There's blood in peacetime

As a soldier, I was deeply saddened by Rita Murphy's article on the Marine bombing. The very implication that those dedicated men died as a result of American hypocrisy, or were unwilling participants in an interventionist strategy is an affront to everything they stood for. If they could read her article they would roll over in their graves.

Those 241 people, for their own reasons, made a commitment to the American nation and its people by their lives, not their deaths. In life every man or woman who joins the Armed Forces says (by that act) that they will defend us and be ready to lay their lives on the line in that defense. Every one of them knows that he or she may be called upon to risk their lives and accepts the authority of the President to decide where and when. Yet, they make the commitment anyway, knowing that they may end up paying the price.

Given the nature of their sacrifices in life, how can Murphy hold up their deaths as the result of hypocritical ideas of peace? She says that there is no blood where peace is; no tears and no fears. I have sad news for her, as long as the world is divided into nations, there is blood where peace is. There is pain sacrifice, and the commitment of soldiers like those in Germany and South Korea. Peace must be earned. It is by their sacrifices that we live in as much freedom and peace as we do.

In death they should be remembered, but in life they should be honored.

David Julian Abram
Orchard Hill

'Undisputed' facts disputed

Peter Dow has done it again. He seems not to understand the meaning of the word "undesputed". His column Friday states that it is an undisputed truth that the guerillas in El Salvador are organized and directed by Cuba and Nicaragua. Undisputed means that no one disputes it. However, some do dispute the above "truth." He also states that the "communist guerillas" received only six percent of the vote. I was not aware that any communist guerillas participated in the elections. Dow should state specifically which party he claims represented communist guerillas in the elections. I was under the impression that the guerillas boycotted the election.

Geoffrey Feldman
Belchertown

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Arts

artslines...

Massachusetts-based Shakespeare & Company brings the full-length production of Romeo and Juliet to the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall on Thursday, November 1 at 8 p.m. Tickets for the evening performance are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office (545-1945), at DATATIX outlets, and at the Springfield Civic Center.

Poet Siv Cedering will give a reading from her work on Thursday, November 1, at 8 p.m., in the Third floor Lounge (Room 301) of Herter Hall. The reading is part of the University of Massachusetts Visiting Writers Series, and is sponsored by the M.F.A. Program in English. Events in the series are free and open to the public.

The Five College Orchestra, under conductor Dennis Burkh, will openits season with two concerts which feature a musical tour through Europe. They will be presented on Saturday, November 3, 8:15 p.m., at Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke College and on Thursday, November 8, 8 p.m., at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Both are open to the public free of charge.

Shakespeare & Company will present Romeo and Juliet at the Fine Arts Center Thursday night. For more information see Artslines.

Masks or mirrors?

By MICHAEL PHILLIPS
Collegian Correspondent

Auto Portrait, self-examination explored through the recent work of Guy Leblanc, will be exhibited from October 25-November 1 at the Wheeler Art Gallery located in Wheeler House.

The blurb on the poster reads "Some pieces are very personal self portrayals, while others make a more universal statement about the struggle of human kind." This theme which I have seen before borders on the tradition of the demented artist, angst ridden and mentally unstable. Leblanc says he is aware of this. "The theatricality and the dramatization of the image is important to the romantisized vision of the Artist. Some works are overstated to draw you in to discover the content."

What could possibly make a UMass student feel so bad?! Well, a second look reveals a little less tragedy and a little more comedy. The looks of fear and agony melt into those of surprise and self-conscious humor.

Leblanc spoke of his movement towards social masks. "They represent how people approach people in society, how they see themselves and how they expose their enotional states. You can't be honest all of the time."

By far the most outstanding images are his drawings. Gazing at the life-sized and larger than life sized self-portraits, State of Mind, the seething mass of eyes, ears, and noses struggling for dominance, I thought "is it a mask or a mirror?" It seemed to grin back while retaining a stupified look of surprise.

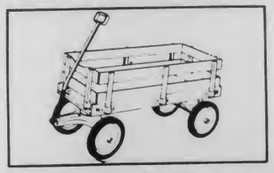
Leblanc's lithographs lack the vitality of the drawings. The print making process is apparently too overpowering to retain the immediacy of image that the drawings possess. He has not fallen into the trap of constructing a formula. Each peice is a progression, an experiment in a line of investigation into materials and technique.

Going clockwise around the gallery one can see a gradual development, which seems, to some extent, to have been resolved in the final piece. Untitled, acrylic on canvas, is far more fragmented than the others, the portrait being less dominant. It incorporates the peeling away of the lips revealing a strained grin (teeth always being a useful reminder of our baser side), and the Freudian slip lurking in the lower recesses, an ebony monument (a ferrite rod?). The whole image is laced together with smears of color and the balancing of under and over-painted areas. It is somewhat reminiscent of a Rauschenberg print, happily escaping the cliche of [illegible] ridden alcoholism.

One of the nicer aspects of the opening (apart from the food) was the complete lack of frames. This supported the vitality of the image, giving a feeling of greater intimacy as well as indicating an enthusiasm to simply show the work without the pretentions of the painting convention. Leblanc obviously enjoys the work, and I got the impression others did as well. AS HE SAID, "I'm trying, I really am." That is far more important and interesting than getting it right all the time.

ERIC'S
GIANT SUBS
Freshly Sliced Meats
Eat In or Take Out
BREAKFAST
Beef Stew, Soups, Chicken and Seafood
Try Us and See. . .
IF THEY AREN'T THE LARGEST TASTIEST SUBS IN THE AREA!!!
Rt 9 253-9521 314 College St.
Monday-Friday 6:00 am - 4:00 pm
Saturday 6:30 am - 3:00 pm

GREAT GIVEAWAY #2



WIN AN ALL TERRAIN VEHICLE (wagon)
Two vehicles to be given away
vehicle is on display in our Sporting Goods Dept.
OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES
1. To enter, complete the official entry form and bring it to the store. Enter as often as you wish by using only original entry forms. Enter Nov. 1, 1984
2. The winner will be selected in a random drawing on Nov. 2.
3. Employees of the University Store and their families are not eligible. Taxes on the prize are the sole responsibility of the winner.
Vehicle BONUS
Register to win an all terrain vehicle. Fill out the coupon & return. No purchase required.
Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

"Tired of missing your favorite soaps?" then join ....
"The Night of the Soaps" in the TOC Lounge
The country's first evening presentation of your two favorite daytime soaps
"ALL MY CHILDREN"
and
"GENERAL HOSPITAL"
Each evening from 7 pm-9 pm in the TOC Lounge
ADVANCED RESERVATIONS ARE HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor • Campus Center • UMass

Black Affairs

Speakers stress unity and struggles

By KIMBERLY BURGE
MARAAN CASSELL
and YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Encouraging to retrace one's roots and origins as Black Americans by means of education or traveling and to learn about the South African struggle against apartheid, ambassador Oumaru Youssofou, the Organization of African Unity's representative to the United Nations spoke to over 200 students at the Third World Student Leadership conference Saturday at The University of Massachusetts.

"As Black students and Americans, its important for you to understand what's going on in South Africa," he said. "Whatever affects Africa, effects Black students in America, sometimes indirectly, sometimes directly," he said.

"You better find out the truth about your roots and origins. Image is distorted in the media. If you continue to believe what is given to you, you'll be in serious trouble, he said.

Keynote speaker, Playthell Benjamin, political advisor for the National Fight Back Labor Organization in New York City agreed.

"If you think your only worry after graduation will be fitting in a big corporation, you're going to find a great disappointment...Even if you came out of Harvard with an MBA (master of business administration) it will not ensure that you'll reach the top."

Benjamin said his generation understood there would be obstacles on their road to progress, but they were able to wage a struggle to get rid of them.

"It can only be worse with another four years of Ronald Reagan," he said adding the democrats are not the "panacea" of the problems confronted by minorities, but "it should be the choice of working class and minorities."

"Is not an exaggeration to say that the rich are getting richer at a larger rate and the poor are poorer...You can expect it to get worse by the time you get out of college."

Benjamin said the power of organized labor has saved the working class because the corporate elite are not interested in social good and social welfare, but in increasing their profits.

Ambassador Youssofou said investment in South Africa must come to a halt, in order for the whites in South Africa to realize what it is like to experience hardships. He said, (Black) South Africans have now seen so much hardship that it won't make any difference to them.

Ambassador Youssofou said the only survival for the Black race will be through "collective self-reliance." He said students play an important role in the decision-making process. "People who are bringing revolution to South Africa aren't people like me, but people like you."

He also said the South African struggle can only be victorious if violence is applied. "We are not a violent people. However, we will support every killing, every destruction until South Africa is free."

"We have been pushed to the wall. We have no choice, we have to kill in order to be free," Ambassador Youssofou said.

Benjamin considered the Rev. Jesse Jackson's Rainbow Coalition "a great idea. It is the direction to go in. It is a vital concept." However, he said it was not radical enough.

Playthell Benjamin, political advisor for the National Fight Back Labor Organization, NYC, speaking at the Third World Leadership Conference Saturday.

Workshop educates students on world campus issues

By KIMBERLY BURGE
YADIRA BATENCES
and MARANN CASSELL
Collegian Staff

Attempting to find solutions, issues surrounding Blacks and minority students and administrators in predominantly white colleges and universities were discussed in various workshops at the Third World Student Leadership Conference Saturday at the University of Massachusetts.

The Africans and Afro-Americans in International politics workshop discussed the lack of power in African leaders. Mulugata Aganafer said leaders do have power, but they do not realize the potential of their leadership therefore, they feel powerless. This is shown in the minimum response to the situation of South Africa, he said.

In order to accomplish those goals, one must understand the problem fully and united Blacks and Africans together. "We must return home and despite the hardship continue the struggle and let the world know that we are no longer powerless."

In trying to define racism, at the Combating Racism Workshop, Mitchell Smith, director of Better Chance House (ABC) in Amherst found is no specific definition because the word entails so much.

There are two types of racism, overt and covert racism. Perhaps the most serious form is cultural racism, he said. All of the heroes, holidays, myths, and even toys in the American society are molded after the white culture, Smith said.

Smith said racism can be combatted by educating young minds. "Begin at home and at conferences to try and define racism. Initiate programs that will promote Black unity. Finally, we have to be prepared to unlearn what we have been taught and take the role of the teacher at the same time," he said.

Mentacide is the deliberate and systematic destruction of an individual's or a group's mind and is primarily caused by the media and language.

Nouns describing Africans and Afro-Americans have been extracted from distorted views of the race. One can see this in the difference between Black and White. Mulazimuddin Rasoul, who conducted the workshop said the word black comes from the Greek work necro, meaning death while white means light, knowledge and wisdom.

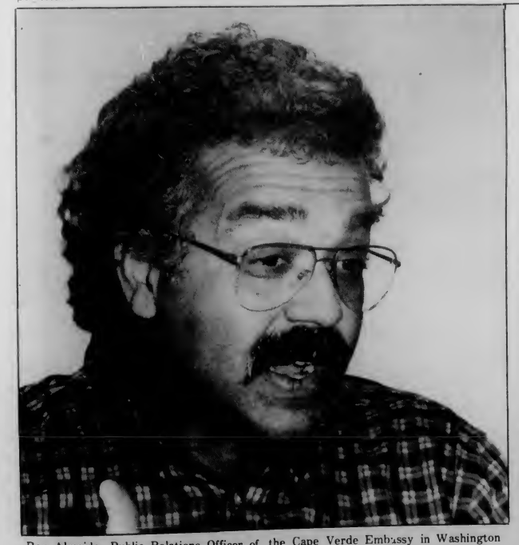
Black "is fine for them," he said adding the noun was appropriate during the Civil Right Movement when "we were trying to turn a negative situation into a positive situation."

Mentacide can be prevented by self-acceptance, self-help, self-discovery and self-preservation, he said.

Techniques on community organization discussed how to apply one's skill. Knowledge is not only what you know, but how to use what you know.

Exploring similarities and characteristics will be the best gap bridging technique between African and Afro-American women, the workshop concluded.

The majority of the participants felt the speakers were excellent, but more time should have been set for the workshops. Students were also disappointed by the low turn out of UMass student leaders.



Ray Almeida, Public Relations Officer of the Cape Verde Embassy in Washington between UMass and Cape Verde.

New program will join two cultures

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Plans are being drawn to develop an academic collaboration between the University of Massachusetts and the Cape Verde Island in an effort to build institutional connections with this developing country off the West African coast.

Ray Almeida, public relations officer for the Embassy of Cape Verde has been recently hired as special consultant to Chancellor Joseph Duffey to assist with these efforts. Almeida said UMass "is a logical place" for these efforts to be concentrated because of the large number of Cape Verdeans residing in Massacusetts.

UMass has approximately 80 Cape Verdean students and they are either American born or have lived in the United States a great part of their lives, he said.

Almeida said other American universities have exchange programs with Cape Verde, but until September, there was no such program at UMass.

"UMass has unique contributions it can make to individual students," he said.

Almeida added the academic exchange is "a means of creating personal and institutional relations with the University and this country."

Almeida was encouraged by Chancellor Duffey's enthusiastic support. But he noted connections between the Cape Verde Islands and the United States is "an ancient phenomena" dating back to almost 500 years.

Community leaders have also expressed their interest and commitment to assist these efforts with their time and networking, Almeida continued.

Paul Barrows, director of the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Blacks and other Minorities (CCEBMS) is excited about the exchange.

"We've got nothing but support from Dr. Barbara Burns, (director of the International programs at UMass)" Barrows said.

Barrows said with this kind of arrangement it is important to start small. "You do a good job with just a few."

"With one student, we got one hundred percent increase. If we can go for five, it will be a five-hundred percent increase," he said.

"These are efforts to expand the number of Cape Verdeans in UMass...It is an excellent support group for other Cape Verdean," Barrows said.

"The program is a success story already. The next step will take a leap to greater success," Almeida said.

MOUNTAIN GOAT SKIWEAR IS CHOCK FULL OF FRESH DOWN.

MOUNTAIN GOAT DOWN SKIWEAR

Hypercurricula

FILM: NOT A LOVE STORY — This film addresses the issue of pornography, and its harmful effect on women. This film was made and produced by women. 7:30 p.m., Morrill 329.

FINANCIAL AID WORKSHOP FOR STUDY ABROAD — Financial Aid Office workshop for students planning to study abroad for the Spring 1985 semester. 4-5 p.m., CC 903.

UNITED KINGDOM-UMASS EXCHANGES IN THE NATURAL SCIENCES — Informational meeting for natural sciences majors on studying abroad for the academic year in the United Kingdom. 7 p.m., Lederle GRC, 16th floor, Room 1634.

SPANISH TERTULIA-CONVERSATION HOUR — The UMass Spanish Club invites you to its second tertulia. Come practice your Spanish with us--all levels, beginners to native! Refreshments will be served. 2:30-4 p.m., 4th floor lobby, Herter Hall.

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS MEETING — Discussion of the General Education Proposal, Residential Academic Programming and CATE. 5 p.m., CC 177.

PEACEMAKERS GENERAL MEETING — Come join us in our work to stop the Nuclear Weapons race which threatens our very survival. Lots of pre-election happenings! 4 p.m., CC 164-171.

UPC GENERAL MEETING — Now Zappa's over, we have the rest of the semester to work on! You can still get involved. New members always welcome. 6:30 p.m., Commonwealth Room, SUB (Earthfoods).

AL ANON MEETING — Open discussion meeting for family and friends of alcoholics seeking help. 8 p.m., Baptist Church, No. Pleasant St.

Rent One of Ours

Car
Truck
Passenger Van

North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Check Our LOW Prices

HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES

500 Masks to Choose From

Grease Paints • Hands • Feet
Witches' Hats and Brooms • Wigs
Moustaches • Beards • Noses
Fangs • Teeth • Tooth Black Out
Colored Hair Spray

open Thursday and Friday nights October 25th & 26th

H.L. CHILDS & SON

open daily and Saturday 8-5:15 Thurs. nite until 9:00pm

25 STATE STREET 584-2604 NORTHAMPTON

HALLOWEEN

"It will scare the seeds out of your pumpkin." Bob Lape WABC-TV NEW YORK

Time: Tues. OCT 30th sponsored by EK
Place. Campus Center Aud.
5 pm - $1. 7, 9, 11 pm - $1.50

Doonesbury — By Garry Trudeau

THE ECONOMY. ERA. ABORTION. DEFICITS. THESE ARE JUST SOME OF THE ISSUES GEORGE BUSH HAS REVERSED HIMSELF ON TO BECOME A REAGAN TEAM PLAYER.
TO SHELTER WHAT REMAINS OF HIS CONVICTIONS, BUSH IS ABOUT TO FORMALLY PLACE HIS POLITICAL MANHOOD IN A BLIND TRUST. AND HERE COMES THE VICE PRESIDENT NOW!
MR. VICE PRESIDENT! MR. VICE PRESIDENT!
YES, ROLAND?
SIR, WILL YOUR MANHOOD BE EARNING INTEREST?
VERY LITTLE. THERE'S NOT THAT MUCH CAPITAL.
10-30
GBTrudeau

Today's Weather

Weather -- Mostly sunny weather in the morning should turn to clouds by Tuesday afternoon, with highs expected in the low to mid 60s. Tonight will be cloudy with patchy fog, temperatures 40 to 45. High temperatures expected 60 to 65 degrees Wednesday.

Bloom County — By Berke Breathed

♫ MMM. TA DO DO DO... ♫ YESSIR, ONE HAS TO LOOK SNAPPY FOR A DAY OF NEIGHBORHOOD CANVASSING. ESPECIALLY IF ONE IS...
...A STATESMAN!
A POLITICIAN.
I AM A STATESMAN!
A STATESMAN... IS A DEAD POLITICIAN.
WELL I DO NOT HAVE TO SIT HERE AND LISTEN TO MYSELF.
LORD KNOWS, WE NEED MORE STATESMEN.
10-30
BLOOM

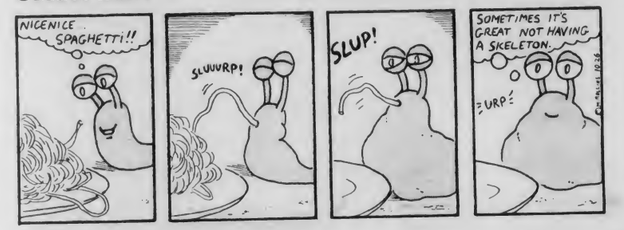
Attention Art and Graphic Design Majors

Want experience and money?

Apply at the Collegian for night paste-up work.

See Mark Roden

UMass Zone — By Mark Rollins



Gorde — by Gorde

IN OUR LAST SERIES ON "THE ART OF COMIC STRIPPING" I HAD A BIT OF DIFFICULTY IN STRESSING HOW IMPORTANT ORIGINALITY IS!
ERR 'SCUSE ME
HOW IMPORTANT IS IT?
OUT!
...OR I'LL GET YOU ALL CANCELLED! THERE, THAT SHOULD BE THE LAST TIME ANY OTHER COMIC STRIP INVADES MY TERRITORY AGAIN!
ZIP
GREETINGS, MY FRIENDS! I AM MR. ROURKE, AND WELCOME TO FANTASY ISLAND. SMILES, EVERYONE, SMILES! PSSST! TATOO, MORE VODKA!
CRAP

Bat Brain — By Bill Dearing

I LOVE FALL
DUE TO A CONTRACT WITH THE EDITOR, HE MUST BRING YOU UP TO DATE WITH THE BAT BRAIN COMIC STRIP.
THIS IS THE HEAD OF THE UNIVERSITY
AND THIS IS HIS ASSISTANT MR. WAISH
THE UNIVERSITY MADE A DEAL WITH THE MUKA CO.—" WHY I'D GET OUR USE 'EM ONCE AND BARROW 'EM AGAIN! MORE PROFITS AND REVENUE ONE HIGH RISE ROSES AND A D.C. FREE
THIS IS A FREE FROM THE MUKA CO.
WHO TURNED OUT THE LIGHTS?
HOLD BACK YOUR STRIP

Yeasthead — by Jason Talerman

I'll be myself But you're ugly
Yeasthead decides on an image.
But youre ugly? repulsiveness sells.
Geez, real life sure aint show biz.
no extras? People still buy chicken. But youre ugly Einstein.
Yeasthead sticks to his guns... why? Next: Fun on the road

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Fairy tale character
5 Container Abbr
8 Gawk
12 Small amounts
13 Memorable sayings
14 Little Glaswegian
16 Intone
17 Wretched
19 Part of RN
20 Stableman
22 Water sprite
23 Rubbed out
25 Wiltshire's neighbor
27 Against a thing Law
29 Stoic
30 —— War
32 Modernize
34 Vacillate
38 Moreover 39 Speck
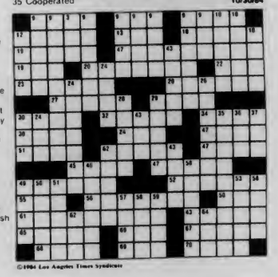
40 Withered
41 Brothers of movie fame
42 First appearance
44 Andean native
45 Holiday preludes
47 Roger Moore role
49 Certain bicycle
52 Submissive
55 Columbus inst
56 Feted, in a way
60 Romanian monetary unit
61 Takes up as a hobby
63 Sub
65 Verdi's —— Chorus
66 Commotion
67 Small change
68 Small spiny fish
69 Agile Bolger
70 Easter specialty

DOWN
1 Different
2 Oppose
3 Between LBJ and GRF
4 A Williams
5 Rover's feet
6 Sheepshank
7 Highlander
8 Husband of Titania
9 Practical joke
10 Celebrities
11 Kovacs
12 Land measure
15 Following
18 Moisten
21 Frankfurt's river
24 Napped
26 "William Tell" composer
28 Ancient Persians
29 Oxen of Asia
30 Blemish
31 Ring king
33 Collar
35 Cooperated
36 Rainbow
37 Affirmative
42 Enthusiast
43 Ribbon
46 In fact
48 Mussolini
49 Coliseum wear
50 With —— in My Heart
51 New, in Madrid
53 —— foot oil
54 Sounds of disapproval
57 From a distance
58 Kind of jerk
59 Where Priam ruled
62 Brother
64 Petition

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

L	I	T	M	A	S		P	R	O	D		T	I	S	L	E
A	R	I	S	E		E	A	S	E		G	R	A	D
D	E	L	I	G	H	T	F	U	L		K	I	N	G
E	N	I	A		M	E	E	T		I	S	L	E
	E	N	D	E	A	R		A	G	O	G
		E	N	D		C	H	A	P		L	O	N
H	A	B	I	T			R	A	T	S	B	A	N	K
O	R	E	G		L	E	A	S	E		E	N	G	E
S	P	A	N	N	I	N	G		B	A	T	T	E	D
F	E	W		I	T	T	I	S		G	I	S
		T	O	M	E	D		W	A	S	T	E	R
S	P	I	D	E	R		S	A	R	I	E		X	U	V
C	A	F	E		A	T	T	R	A	C	T	I	V	E
A	N	U	T		C	O	D	F		T	O	I	L	E	T
M	E	L	I	S		Y	A	P	I	S		S	E	R	G	S

10/30/84



©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Turkey Roll Florentine Sandwich
Fried Fish Squares/Tartar Sauce

DINNER
Ziti/Tomato Sauce with Tofu and Mushrooms
Chili Cheese Puff

BASICS LUNCH
Flat Bread Sandwich
Fried Fish Squares/Tartar Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Baked Ham/Fruit Sauce
Silver Palate Salad Plate
Baked Ziti

Bon Appétit!

(paid un-political advertisement)

The Great Debate.

SONY.

CDP-210ES Compact Disc Player $399

Three year limited warranty
Digital clarity and convenience at an affordable price.
Two-week no-risk home trial period — ask for details

THORENS

TD-166 Mk II with ortofon OM-10 $299

Five year limited warranty
Free "Q-Up" arm lifter* and Discwasher D-Stat mat Free "Toz mod" tonearm modification.
Free cartridge installation and alignment.
*when available

Digital Party Platform

1) Compact discs are a fundamental breakthrough in audio performance and ease of use.
2) No ordinary record or stylus wear.
3) Vanishingly low noise, distortion and flutter.
4) Up to 70 minutes of uninterrupted music on each four inch disc.
5) Over 1,600 titles already available.

Analogue Party Platform

1) Record technology is at its pinnacle.
2) The choice of music available on records far surpasses that of any other medium.
3) Record prices are still lower than either CD's or pre-recorded tapes.
4) With proper care, records can be enjoyed for many years.

SONY.
CDP-610ES with remote control and five free discs $700

SONY.
PS-LX310 with Shure M92E Cartridge $119

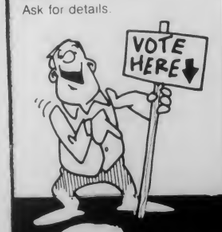
Debate Rebates:

$3.00 manufacturer's rebate with any Original Master vinyl disc. Limit: three per customer Expires Dec. 31, 1984

$5.00 to $25 manufacturer's rebate on selected SHURE cartridges and styli. Expires Oct. 31, 1984

Buy 10 CD's and get one free with your Sound & Music "CD-ID" card Ask for details.



REVOX
B225 $1,150

SOTA
Saphire with Premier MMT arm $1,075

Election Specials
(sample ballot)

Secretary of Tape

☐ SONY.

TCFX-41OR Auto Reverse $199

☐ ONKYO

TA-2055 w/ free head cleaner $285

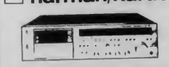
☐ harman/kardon



CD-391 Including calibration and 6 free XL-1190 $535

Speakers of the House

☐ BostonAcoustics

A-40 $135/pr.

☐ B&W

DM-110 $298/pr.

Dept. of the Interior

☐ CWD

Audio Furniture from $235

Dept. of Transportation

☐ PIONEER

KEA-330 $199

Endorsed by:

Acoustat
ADC
Apature
AR
Audio Technica
Avid
Boston Acoustics
BSR
B&W Carver
Celestion
Concord
CWD
dbx
Delos
Denon
Discwasher
Dual Empire
Fried
Fidelity Research
Hafler
harman/kardon
Revox
JVC
Maxell
Mobile Fidelity
Monster Cable
Nitty Gritty
Onkyo
Ortofon
Pioneer
Planstiehl
Pyramid
Reference Recordings
PS Audio
Sheffield Lab
Shure
Sonus
SOTA
Sony
Stanton
Sumiko
TDK
Teac
Telarc
Thorens

Sound & Music

90-92 King St. (Rte 5), Northampton • Mon-Sat 10-5:30, Thu 'til 9
VISA, MasterCard, American Express • Financing Available • 584-9547

Bruno's
- Quality Pizza - Subs - 256-0222
FREE DELIVERY
Monday - Saturday - 4 pm - 2 am
Sunday - 4 pm - 1 am

SPRING BREAK
Help us sponsor your Ft. Lauderdale trip and you go for free!
LUV Tours
(800) 368-2006 TOLL FREE

MASS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
• Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wahoba's Store
549-4704

★field hockey

Continued on from 12

Hixon feels BU will play much like past UMass opponents Harvard and Dartmouth. The Terriers should hit hard, make frequent use of the long pass, and try to outrun the Minutemen, Hixon said.

"They're the kind of team that has nothing to lose," Hixon said. Hixon said BU's best effort was a 1-1 tying of the University of New Hampshire (a top-ten team) in overtime earlier this season.

"They are a fiesty team. They don't do anything in particular so they're hard to read. We'll just try to keep the game in control," Hixon said.

Since the games of this final week are of importance so are the practices. Hixon feels that the team's intensity has not been a problem since the Harvard game (a 1-0 loss) and thus she has been working on refining certain aspects of the team's play.

"We've been working on our transition game, moving from defense to attack. We've also been working on special situations like penalty corners and free hits. We're trying to clean up some of the things we'll need to draw on in the next couple of games," Hixon said.

"We worked on situations in practice such as if we're ahead by one goal or behind by one goal. These are things that will help us keep a lead or regain a lead. We (the coaches) set time restrictions, we try to get the players to score a goal in ten minutes or draw five penalty corners. These are the special situations that will make a difference," Hixon said.

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
TUESDAY
"KILLER COMEDY NIGHT"
Best Comedy in the Valley!
9:30 pm
20 & over
Dennis Leary
Zito & Bean
Phil Van Tee

E - SALE SPORT Style SALE - SALE - SALE
Long sleeve shirt cotton/acrylic navy Blue
S-M-L-XL
9.95
sale on the concourse
photo by Dwayne Autery
Virg
Lisa
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $695/ BO 256-6121

1972 Chevy Impala runs well $600/ BO 256-8137

1975 Volkswagon Dasher sun roof AM/FM stereo $1500 549-8595 also VW Bug $600

BMW 2002 73 excellent inside and out; eng & tran very strong, well maintained, sunroof, Bilstens, Weber, etc $3800 or BO 546-8170

Toyota Corolla Deluxe 1974 excellent condition 665-2482

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn $6 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older Have own insured, reliable car Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

Rock A Disc Rock A Video Entertainment Agency. Discockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area. 549-7144

FOR SALE

Stereo System Gerard turntable receiver and two 30 inch speakers $100 323-4829

GAY

The People's Gay Alliance hosts a social hour each Wed from 3 to 5. Business meetings are at 6:30 each Thurs. Check the Campus center schedule for room numbers New people are welcome and encouraged to attend!

HELP WANTED

Now taking applications for full and part time positions Must be 18 or older Apply in person Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

Hardsperson to milk 60 cows in parlor plus odd chores. Call between 9 am - 3 pm 665-7174

General laborers apply at Rusty Nail 6 to 8 PM Wed through Sun

MARKETING INTERN earn money while working on your resume The Brassworks on Route 9 minutes from UMass call James Doherty (617) 542-8905

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

Legal Assistants Wanted The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester Get hands on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals, preparation for Federal and State Court litigation, attendance at court hearings, and participation in administrative hearings Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments To apply, for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th, Writing sample required Further information, LSO, 922 Campus Center

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 8-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Freshman! Lost watch at dance in September reward no questions asked Kris 546-1223

Gold Bracelet if found please contact Janet 546-6327 reward if returned

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on campus, low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

TRAVEL

Killington Ski Trip condos $135 Jan 20-25 call Sno-Search Brian or Kevin 549-1466

FREEPORT, BAHAMAS 7 days, airfare and hotel included $229 over January Break call Paul 546-8819 or Alan 546-8841

WANTED TO RENT

2 woman want to sublet room in home or apartment for winter/session and spring call 546-5523 or 546-5519

Sports

The championships for fall intramural sports take place this week. Soccer is today at 4 p.m. Football begins Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. with co-rec at 5:30. Ultimate frisbee is Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Minutemen outclass Springfield

...4 goal half seals win

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The soccer ball scooted all over slippery Boyden Field yesterday, but thankfully for the UMass men's soccer team, it bounced their way more often helping them to a 5-1 triumph over the Springfield College Chiefs before a small crowd yesterday.

The game was anybody's early in the second half until the Minutemen (ranked number four in New England) broke it open with four goals in a 19 minute span for their ninth win of the season against five losses and three ties.

"Honestly, we didn't play very well. We didn't raise the level of play. We finished and at times we played okay. But I can't be too harsh," said coach Jeff Gettler.

The score was only 1-0 UMass at halftime as both teams took awhile to adjust to the ball and the wet grass. They both created good scoring chances, but were foiled by the steady play of both goalkeepers, who stood their ground.

UMass Don Donahue stopped a head-on shot by forward Ed Beauregard of Springfield as a cross bounced over the head of defender Mike Rudd and left a clear shot for Beauregard, but Donahue caught it.

The Minutemen responded with more pressure at the other end. Kurt Manal and John Shannon had some nice passing plays, but were turned away by Springfield keeper Tim Miller or could not reach the free ball in time.

The pressure finally paid off for Manal, as he took a Tom Giordano feed off a sideline run and slid his tenth goal of the year into the right corner of the net past Miller at the 39:07 mark for a 1-0 lead.

The teams again needed time to adjust and get their games in gear early in the second half, but UMass surprisingly found Springfield down in their end more than they wanted.

But the Chiefs couldn't put it in the net and UMass was about to show they could. Nick Marciano opened up the scoring barrage at the 13:45 mark as he put on his jets, beat two defenders and lofted a Ferdie Adoboe pass over the goalie for a 2-0 lead.

Adoboe three minutes later picked up a loose ball off a deflection of a Manal indirect kick, maneuvered his way in front of the net and scored his first goal of the year to put UMass up by three.

Glenn Judge spoiled Donahue's shutout at the 19:58 mark as he booted home a free

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Paul Serafino overjumps an attempted header while teammate John Shannon looks on. Serafino had a goal and Shannon an assist in the Minutemen's 5-1 victory over Springfield at Boyden yesterday.

Umass 5, Springfield 1

UMass (9-5-3)	Uschok (3) - Shannon.
Springfield	Springfield: Judge - unassisted.
Goals: UMass: Manal (10) - Giordano, Marciano (2) - Adoboe,	Saves: UMass: Donahue - 6, Sarnacki - 1.
Adoboe (1) - unassisted, Serafino (4) - unassisted.	Springfield: Miller - 9.
	Shots: UMass: 22, Springfield, 10.

ball in front of the crease to cut it to 3-1.

Gettler then replaced Donahue (6 saves) with backup Mike Sarnacki, a sophomore (1 save), to give him some game time.

"Donahue played very well. He made some great saves in the first half. Sarnack came in and did what he had to do. We played everyone, and gave people a lot of time in the game. We took a look at some new people in different positions," added Gettler.

The scoring binge continued a few minutes later as wing Paul Serafino showed great hustle in beating the defenders ball back to the goalie and putting it over him for his fourth goal of the season and a secure 4-1 Minuteman lead.

Junior co-captain Tom Uschok closed out the scoring 52 seconds after Serafino's goal as he easily put in the rebound of a Shannon shot stopped by a defender for his third goal and a 5-1 final.

Freshman midfielder Matt Cushing was rested because of a pulled hamstring that has been bothering him for some time, and junior back Matt Dowd sat out because of a knee injury suffered in the Boston College game. The Minutemen outshot Springfield by a 22-10 margin.

Women to host no. 5 BC on Sat.

Look to Final Four

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The Boston College women's soccer team will get another crack at the explosive University of Massachusetts women's soccer team when the two squads square off in the first round of the NCAA playoffs, Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Boyden Field.

The Minutemen, who finished at 12-2-2 in the regular season, crushed BC on Saturday 5-0 in both team's regular season finales. The winner of the UMass game will face the winner of the Harvard-Vermonth matchup most likely, on Saturday October 10. Harvard beat UMass 1-0 on an early goal but the Minutemen popped Vermont 5-0, earlier this season.

"This is a young team," coach Kalenkeni Banda said. "This is a good team. There shouldn't be any pressure on them. They have nothing to lose."

Brown, who defeated UMass 1-0 this year, was seeded first in the 14 team tournament and North Carolina, the three time defending champion was seeded second. Both squads received first round byes and both are undefeated.

Six teams from New England made the tourney. Brown (2), UMass (4), UConn (6), Vermont (9), BC (11) and Harvard (7) all made the NCAA tourney. All rankings are from the last week's ISAA polls.

Cortland State faces UConn for the right to take on Brown. Third seeded Gerorge Mason takes on Colorado College, the University of California-Berkley faces rival UCal-Santa Barbara, and William and Manry takes on Central Central Florida in other first round games. North Carolina takes on the Central Florida-William and Mary victor.

"In the playoffs, its anybody's game," Banda said. "They're all good teams. You need a little luck to go farther."

The Minutemen-Eagle playoff game will cost students with an ID a dollar for admission. People without an ID will be charged $2. Admission is being charged because it is an NCAA sanctioned playoff game.

Against the 14 playoff teams, UMass posted an 8-2-2 record. The only teams UMass didn't face was North Carolina, George Mason and Central Florida.

The Minutemen beat UConn, Cortland State, Colorado College, UCal-Santa Barbara, BC, and Vermont. Brown and Harvard tagged UMass with 1-0 defeats while UCal-Berkley and William and Mary tied the Minutemen 2-2.

Gorillas ambush Army to close Fall

Garber 'enthused' about upcoming lax season

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts lacrosse team capped off the fall season in fine fashion Sunday afternoon as they held off the West Point cadets of Army by 14-11 count before a nice sized crowd down at Lower Boyden Fields.

Collegian Photo by Brian Gonye

UMass lacrosse co- captain Karl Hatton played a strong game at both ends of the field as the Gorillas beat Army on Sunday.

"They played pretty well. I was pleased and I think they were pleased," said coach Rick Garber of his Gorillas. "I was really concerned that we might get our socks blown off physically and that both of our freshman goalies never played a college game before, but both played really well. We got the making of a good team."

UMass quickly built a 4-0 lead on goals by Tom Carmine, Mike Fiorini, co-captain Karl Hatton and Bubba Sandford. Goalie Quint Moore stopped some big shots and the defense led by junior Gerry Byrne held tough in front of him.

But Army, the number four team in the nation last year, showed they were no slouch, as they used their superior shape to slow down the Gorillas fast break and put themselves back in it.

They scored three straight goals, before Doug Museo finally blasted one by Army's goalkeeper to make it 5-3.

The cadets then continued their assault as Garber looked to find the right combination to stop the attack. They scored three straight goals again to take the lead for the first time at 6-5 before Matt O'Reilly evened the score again.

West Point took a 7-6 lead on a man-up situation, something Garber admitted his team had not worked on enough during practices. Sandford's second goal tied it up again, and Carmine put UMass ahead with a nifty inside to outside move for an 8-7 lead at the end of three quarters.

The second stringers came in for the fourth quarter and Army jumped all over them at first. They scored two quick goals, and the Minutemen offense couldn't find the target. Hatton then stepped back in and fired in his second goal of the day, a much needed one, to tie it once again at 9-9.

Ken Freeman got a goal to put the Gorillas ahead to stay. He assisted on John Blaze goal, and freshman attackman Pat Cain (the younger brother of former All-American defender sleepy Cain) showed some deft moves in scoring two goals and adding an assist to secure the UMass victory.

"We got a look at some new people and blended them in with some of the old. We emphasized the fast break and run and gun type of game we like to play. We didn't spend enough time on man to man defense and riding. There's a pretty clear picture of where we're going to start for the spring. It looks like it ought to be an awful exciting team. I'm enthused," concluded Garber.

Field hockey gears for BU

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

For athletic teams vying for post-season playoff berths the final week of the season is crucial. Such is the case with the University of Massachusetts field hockey team, currently ranked fourth in the nation, as they play Boston University today at NOPE at 2:30 p.m.

"These last two games are must wins," UMass coach Pam Hixon said of BU and her team's final game against UConn on Saturday. "If we want to stay or move up (in the national rankings) that's what we have to do." The national rankings are used by the NCAA to determine playoff status. Umass is 12-3 on the season.

Continued on page 11

sports at a glance

UMass schedule:

Field Hockey: Boston University, NOPE field, 2:30 p.m.

The Daily legion

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST ADVERTISING DAILY

Volume 48% ads, Issued just this morning UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS PIZZA Dial 911 July 21, 1961

Reagan coming to UMass

Collegian photo by G. Bush

Ronald Reagan who will be at UMass tomorrow is shown passing a campaign secret to his new friend "Babs" who has been travelling with the president everywhere as of late.

Smallest crowd ever expected

By RITA FERRARO
Collegian Staff

President Ronald Reagan will visit the University of Massachusetts tomorrow following his campaign stop in Boston, sources announced yesterday.

Reagan will give a short speech near the Campus Center Pond to what some authorities expect will be the smallest gathering in UMass history.

Bill Wilkinson, the Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, who resides in nearby Connecticut is expected to be master of ceremonies.

The UMass Republican Club, holding its weekly meeting at the Lord Jeffrey Inn in Amherst issued a brief statement saying UMass should be proud that Reagan chose it to to make his Western Mass. stop.

"We're all very proud in the Republican Club, all six of us are very, very, proud," according to the statement.

The University Democrats, when reached at their weekly meeting at the Hatch said they were "surprised" by Reagan's decision to come to Amherst. But in a statement released late last night, the Democrats changed their minds, however.

"We're not surprised," was all the statement said.

It is not yet clear what time the President will arrive at UMass or what kind of rally will take place. A source at Tilson Farm said it was "highly likely" the President would arrive riding on an elephant.

A Reagan aide would neither confirm nor deny the rumor but did say the President "wanted to do something to make UMass take notice."

"UMass students are so damn boring, maybe this will put some excitement in the campus, but then again maybe it won't, it really depends on whether or not he (Reagan) can stay awake during the rally," the unidentified source who told the Collegian his name but due to a lack of ink in the pen, the reporter forgot it.

The source also said plans were in the making to have the Campus Pond swans carry Reagan/Bush banners around the pond, but because of fear the University Democrats might strangle them its not sure if the Republicans will risk it.

Collegian photo by Pam Snow

MAKIN' SURE IT'S PURE — These ambitious UMass students try out the newest 'medicine' at the Health Center.

Students hope for bombing

by High Asa Kite
Collegian Staff

It could be June, October, or February, or May when the Snowstorm hits UMass.

The Snowstorm. A Nuclear Winter that turns the sky pale, raises the flakes of human existence down upon the earth, causes Brown University students to ingest their cyanide, and UMass students their cocaine.

The governing board of University Health Services last night agreed to the stocking of some 800 pounds of 80 percent pure cocaine for consumption by students and all members of the Valley Health Plan in the event of a nuclear holocaust.

Spurred by the decision two weeks ago of Brown University students to ask their administration for supplies of cyanide to be consumed in wartime, the decision enforces the ideal that "instant reaction, rather than instant paranoia be the basis for which we, the University of Massachusetts, seek an end to the nuclear arms race," Health Services said in a prepared statement.

The motion must still be approved by the University's Board of Trustees before going into effect, though approval does not seem a point of disparity.

Board chairman Hope Idont Sinn, whose nose had a perpetual drip during a recent interview, said the board would solicit public opinion before moving on the decision.

"Obviously, the matter is of a very controversial nature," the chairman said. "I think the public will agree that the cause is worthy, although the drug 'prescribed,' as it be, is a little extreme. Qualuudes, mushrooms, marijuana maybe, but the expense of the secret transport alone for the cocaine is going to cost taxpayers a lot of money. And with all the hands it must go through, who can be sure it'd be pure enough to get the kids off, when and if they ever have to take it?"

Student senate member Para Fernalia noted that security costs may also have to be raised in the event the Health Services is allowed to stock the cocaine.

"I know 10 or 15 people who would try to pay for their college educations with that (the cocaine supply)," she said.

"Then again, I think some people might even come to support a tiny nuclear war, just so they could do a few lines."

The Undergraduate Student Senate has offered to conduct a referendum of whether to commend the administration for undertaking this effort in their behalf.

"I know a lot of people who would feel a lot less gloomy about the prospect of a nuclear war if they knew they would have the resources to afterward to recover from it," she said. "We will, of course, continue our lobbying for a nuclear freeze.

But if a disaster ever occurs, at least we can know that as hell freezes over, there will be a snowstorm in Amherst."

Panic around campus as leaves fall to ground

Leaves have been turning brown and falling off trees all over campus, the lone Collegian reporter who goes to classes noted.

University of Massachusetts botany professor John Muir held a press conference to prevent "widespread panic."

"Don't worry, it's natural," Muir said.

"Don't worry, it's natural."

—John Muir

He said leaves turn brown and fall off the trees every fall as part of a natural cycle.

Muir said students should rake up the leaves in order to prevent them from inhibiting the growth of the lawns but, "other than that, fallen leaves are healthy and natural."

Tom Sawyer

Nancy freaks out.....p.2
How does a pumpkin have sex?.....p.3
Food is fun.....p.7
Sports is not.....p.16

Harumph! They call this a paper? —Anonymous

Students washing hair

By JO JOBA
Collegian Staff

A campus-wide shutdown was narrowly avoided last week when dormitory water pressure levels fell dangerously low, officials announced yesterday.

Physical Plant spokesperson Will Duit said the water shortage was caused because "Every morning between 7 and 10 a.m. everyone on this campus decides to take a shower and wash his hair. It's not the showering that causes the problems, it's all that extra time that goes into shampooing their hair," Duit said.

"Millions of gallons go down the drain daily in an effort to rinse out conditioners and anti-tangling formulas," Duit said.

UMass students were asked by the Collegian what they did with their time while they weren't attending classes or studying. The answer given by a majority of respondents came as a surprise. They were indeed washing their hair.

Professor of Polymer Research, Alberto Veofive, with a grant from the Prell Foundation, has developed a new shampoo that has to be used only once a year. Veofive's invention should revolutionize the world of shampoo as we know it today.

"An annual application will effectively repel dirt, oils and other foreign particles known to necessitate daily shampooing," Veofive said.

The cost for a one-time application should be around $5.00. This is far less than the $40 annual cost of daily shampooing. Student reaction has been favorable. Mary Breck, a Fashion Marketing major, "It's technology like this that makes the University of Massachusetts stand up head and shoulders above the rest".

Diana new TV star

By ROSS MY'EART
Collegian London Staff

A Buckingham Palace Spokesman said yesterday that Princess Diana has decided to provide a weekly televison broadcast for the British nation on the state of her womb.

The spokesman, Nosmo King, said that "Diana feels it is only fair that the British people have the up-to-the-minute information on her reproductive status."

In this way, King said, the British Public will not be kept "in the terrible 'is she or isn't she' type of suspense that occured before the birth of William and Harold."

Princess Diana will appear on the British Broadcasting Corporation channel two (BBC2) on Sunday nights at 10 p.m., between the wildlife program 'The World about Us' and the program 'A Book at Bedtime', in which boring English people read bits out of books they have read and loved.

Eileen Dover, chairwoman of BBC said that the program will be called "Diana on the Tube talking about her Tubes."

According to Dover, on the program Diana will be seen taking her temperature (to determine her position in the reproduetive cycle), doing her exercises to ensure the elasticity of her pelvic muscles, and talking about when her and Charles last 'did it' and whether or not its likely she is knocked-up.

This is a headline

Washington D.C.-(PU)-In an unprecedented attempt to emulate the democracy he witnessed in Nicaragua last weekend, President Ronald Reagan has created by executive order, four new seats in the U.S. Senate.

Reagan said yesterday he regretted the decision he made in a "mistaken effort to keep up with the Sandinistas."

"I didn't realize that by inviting the presidential candidates of the major opposition parties to take seats in the Senate, I would end up with the likes of Angela Davis, Gus Hall, Sonia Johnson and Dennis Serret," he said at a press conference.

Reagan said he realized that by describing the Sandinista regime totalitarian in the debate last week, he had put himself in the difficult position of trying to prove that the United States is at least as Democratic as post-revolutionary Nicaragua.

"What a mistake that was!" Reagan exclaimed.

"Angela Davis is not only a black woman, but she is a communist," he said.

Reagan said he was most worried about Davis because his advisors had explained to him that as a Marxist black woman who had undergone extraordinary persecution for advocating social change during the 1960's, her politics could possibly be "quite transforming."

PU photo by Jane Wyman

NANCY LOSES IT — The first lady finally cracked at this Washington elementary school and started throwing punches. "She's fuckin' crazy," yelled the school principal.

CECELIA'S
HALLOWEEN PARTY
WED., OCT. 31st
With
BRAFT
$3 Cover without Costume $2 with Costume. DRINK SPECIALS $1
Domestic Bottled Beer, $1 Bar Drinks
★ 1st PRIZE COSTUME wins Dinner for 4 in the Restaurant
★ 2nd PRIZE COSTUME wins Dinner for 2 in the Restaurant
Rte. 9, Hadley, Ma. 586-1202
AT THE WOK LOUNGE

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Slave Labor

Night Bartender Gerry "do it yourself" DeSimas
Halloween Editor Rita "Cash up front" Murphy
Xerox Ed Bob "I'm not afraid to be weird" Burgess
Pix'n stuff Tech Paul "I got this great shot Desmarais
Layman official Peter "I'm on another line" Soderhead
Boswoman Lesley "Move it or lose it" Clark
Slaves The Dodster, Kim "I'm reading as fast as I can!" Foster, Fran "Is it time to go?" Weinberg, Karen "Madonna" Darr, Nancy "Speed Queen" Rivers, Peter Sodomberg, Day, "We never get in the paper" Graphics

DISCLAIMER

Every Halloween and April Fool's Day, the Collegian prints an issue full of jokes and general nonsense that are intended to humor our audience. We hope readers take the issue in the lighthearted manner it was intended. To those we offend, we're truly sorry. But, if you can't take a joke, fuck it.

The New York Times
Best Sellers
New York Times BEST SELLERS
Fiction
1. The Fourth Protocol
2. God Knows
3. Strong Medicine
4. Love end War
5. . . .And Ladies of the Club
6. First Among Equels
7. Crescent City
8. Lincoln
9. Stillwatch
10. Job: A Comedy of Justice
NonFiction
1. Loving Each Other
2. The Bridge Across Forever
3. Moses the Kitten
4. Pieces of My Mind
5. The Good War
6. Hey, Wait A Minute, I Wrote A Book!
7. Close Encounters
8. The Rest of Us
9. The Kennedys: An American Drama
10. A Light in the Attic
$2.00 OFF List Price
All New York Times Best Sellers
*Hardcover editions only
Open M-F 9-5
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

HAPPY HALLOWEEN

If your name is on this list you have a Halloween Carnation and a message waiting for you, today, on the Concourse. Please stop down and pick them up.

Adam
Eddie A.
Cathy Abrams
Jonathan Adams
Christine Allbrandi
Audrey Alvarez
Barry Anderson
John Anderson
Kristin Anderson
Julie Angilone
Brian Archer(2)
Greg Archer
Anna Aurillo
Bob Beaumier
Jamie Bishop(2)
Janine Blundell
Audrey Bolen
Sue Bonacetto
Nicole Bonnano
Bonnie & Susan Boula
Cindi Brown
Sandie Burbank
Trisha Burns
Tara Berkowsky
Isabel Cachopo
Bruce Cantwell
Gayle Carlisle
Beth Carmitros
Karen Carr(2)
Jack Carr
Vicki Chapman
Tammy Cirillo
Catherine Couig
Karen Courtney
Maya Chaubhuri
Sonhui Chi
Chicquita
Gudy Conmorf
Trish Costa
Shell Csongor
Boby D'Ambrosio
Gene Daley(2)
Dandy
Fatty DeMarco
Donna (509 Dickinson)
Susan DiMusio
Dan Donovan
Ramin Doorandish
Dave Doran(2)
Cathy Dowd
Katie Dustin
Tom Emerson
Kimberly Erickson
Christine Faushing
Karen Fletcher
Tim Forbes
Karen Fortuna
Robin Gamache(2)
Pam Griffin
Chrysovalis
Chris Haddad
Bailey Hare
Kappa Kappa Gamma (3)
Jennifer Hartridge
'KAV'
Audrey Keithe
Mike King
Cindy Kingston
Kirsty
Kathy Knight
Elenor P. (307)
Rafi Laffitte
Kim Laposta
Bobbin' Robin Lawler
Sandy Leary
Dincy Lees
Ellen Levine(2)
Michele Linehan
Doranno Pano
Noelle M. & Jerry Epstein
Martini & the Portuges P.
Gina Mazzocco
Sue McCall
Bill McCarthy
Eric Nello
Molly McDonald
Beth Miller
Billie Munro
Nichol(@XO)
Kristelle Norcross
Deanna O'Dwyer
Lauren S.B.P. Parnes
Mary Peterson
"PIKE'S Scuba Team"
Todd Pombal
Lauren Prince
Anne Quackenbush
Terri Quinn
Agnes Quinones
Radar
Charlette
Carrie Robbins
Jim Robinson
Rock Lobster
Robin Roht
Andrea Roy
Michael Runeau
Lisa Rupprecht
Susan Sawula
Bonnie Samuels
Beth Selbst
Kathie Martin
Jersey Schneiders
Kelly Shaffer
Glenn Shane
Mike Sharp
Kes Smatos
Satin Sheedy
Jack Sheehan
Catrin Skelton
Sara Sloat
Lesley Stewart
Sh ron Spoon r
Cathy Swiss(5)
T.B.
Teddy-Bum
Ted (@OX)
Tuan Minh Tran
Liz Vastine
Jeremy Vishno
Wally
Lisa Williams
Mark Woodruff
Diana Yellen
My Roomies
280 Pufton
Kim from Leisure Tours
Robyn Shamad
Wendy Croft
Barbara Breitung
Kelli Conlin(2)
Kathy Godek
Jennifer Sam
Jubie
Leslie Silverstein
Julianne Murphy
Stephanie Howard
Gino Lorrico
Katie Stewart
Scott Pasler
Jill Osgood
Doug Wright
Janette Ridner
Tom Boback
Charlie Tyrrell
Kristine Fernald
Carol Green
Cathy Miele
Amy Finsilver
Daniela Smith
Susie Martin
Julie Cassar
Steven Megazzini (2)
Jen Baba
Kirsten Froede
Elliot "Stud" Grossman
Audrey Alvarez
Kathie McKeon
Robert Williamson
Jim Knopf
Cynthia Veliko
Sue Hope
Diane Marks
Lynne Dowd
Beth Simon
Nadine Cantor
Lauren Barnes
Carrie Mason
Mary E. Ahearn
Paul Berger
J. M. Bertreaux
Rochelle Chesler
Nancy Cashen
Ashley Cleland
Elaine & Susita
The Oblivios Figger
Sue Fitzgerald
Lynn Pratus
Linda Greces
Eileen Grima
Christine Haddad
Keg
Ken Koocher
Sinyoung Lee
Mark MacDonald
Kimberlee Milinazzo
Shaun O'Rourke
Tom Sinnott
Susan Varrichione
Erica Walker
Dawn Munsch
Tom Dougherty
Mat Atkins
Norm Achin
Mark Rich(2)

Students can now eat

by DERWOOD LEVENBURG
Collegian Stud

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst is agreeably responsible for most of the restaurants in this area's business.

So it came as no surprise that yesterday they finally made it official — the DC meal plans are now considered legal tender by all the restaurants in the Amherst area. The list includes Judies, Plumbleys, Delanos, Lord Jeff's, The Pub, The Sub, and all the pizza places.

For those restaurants that do serve alcohol, the DC meal plan will only be valid for those over the current drinking age of 20.

Currently available at the DCs are such dishes as Chicken Cutlets, Clam Strips, Chopped Beefsteak "special," Baked Chicken "supreme sauce," and Golden Burgers.

With this new plan, you can now enjoy such tantalizing delicacies as Pate Fois Gras, available at the Lord Jeffrey Inn, Chicken Cordon Bleu, available at Judies, and The Pub's famous Pubwich, which consists of a half-pound all-beef burger, grilled to order with sauteed onions, and your choice of soup and salad bar, just to name a few.

Bill Dollins, originator of the It's our dough, our food bill, said, "Now they don't have to choose between Roast Beef as tough as Mr. T., and Seafood that tastes like it came from the bottom of fishermen's shoes!" Dollins continued, "We can finally stroll over to Delanos and have a 'real' sandwich with 100 percent beef."

Dollins closed his remarks saying, "No more will we have to eat this meat with so much cereal filler that the crate the stuff comes in is marked Cap'n Crunch."

Marie Primadonna, Director of Food Services, who was the chief dissenter of the bill said, "We will fight fire with fire. There will now be a happy hour every Wednesday and Friday afternoon at the DCs. We will not card the IDs and will rely solely on the honor system to determine who is of age and who isn't," she said smiling defiantly.

When confronted with the issue of the DCs providing nutritious meals, Primadonna countered, "We will have our pizza at the happy hour mixed with an extra dose of Vitamins A, E, and D."

The students seemed pleased as a whole, with the exception of the student senate, who were understandably confused by a decision that directly benefitted the students.

Ray Funn, a senate member, said, "It's not clear who we can take to court in this matter. Can we take anyone to court? Where are we?" No further questions were asked of the senate.

Other reactions were from our Chancellor Joe "if Fritz is in I'm out" Duffey who said, "Well, if the students are for it, so am I."

The plan will begin in the year 1994.

Hyperactive

STONE YOUR KIDS — Sociology Professor Mary Jane Fryen holds a workshop on alternatives to conventional childrearing. 10 p.m. in the stairwell behind the Campus Center Auditorium. Refreshments and kaleidoscope glasses provided. Bring your preschool children and about 48-60 hours of free time.

STOCKS AND BONDS SOCIETY — invests where most other clubs don't dare to! Own equity in S. African, Filipino, Chilean companies. Meeting in S.B.A. south janitor closet, 4 a.m.

ANTI-TOFU COOKING WORKSHOP — beef and pork are good high-protein substitutes for green vegetables, miso soup and that slimy earthy-crunchy stuff. 3 p.m. at Tillson Farm.

LUNCH WITH THE RABBI — "What's green, hangs on the wall and whistles?" "What?" "A herring." "A herring is green?" "So you paint it green." "It hangs on the wall?" "So you hang it on the wall." "A herring whistles?" "...so it doesn't whistle."

HECKLING CLUB — form strategy for last-ditch anti-Fritz effort. Emphasis on loudness and disruption techniques. Must have Marine haircut and drink lots of beer. Meet at end of Fraternity-Sorority Park.

LUNCH WITH REV. MOON — Brainwash yourself into our beautiful world and work to pay the Reverend's back taxes - uh, for the good of humanity.

LUNCH WITH GOD — SBA 111, noon. Sponsored by the UMass Republican Club.

PIZZA! Dial 911

AMHERST INVADED — No one knows for sure when they arrived, but white sheets began beaching themselves in Amherst center at 2:45 yesterday.

Collegian First annual What-The-Hell -Is-It Contest

Hint: the object at lower left is not an egg, nor an illicit drug.
SUBMIT ENTRIES TO THE COLLEGIAN

Guess who just came to Amherst? Yup, and he wants you! Come and visit nearby, okay?

Collegian photo by Hugh Hefner

IMPOTENT, IT AIN'T — This local pumpkin and squash prove opposites attract as they passionately have sex.

Students can now live

By ELIZABETH LOOSEPIANO
Collegian Staff

Housing director Joseph Nazizzi surprised UMass administrators, faculty, and students alike yesterday morning when he announced plans to level the Northeast Residential Area by next semester.

"I've never liked Northeast much, personally," he said. "It looks so damned much like Central, I keep getting the two of them mixed up."

The 1,500 students who live in Northeast will receive eviction notices beginning next week.

"We sure as hell can't have them in the buildings when we bring in the dump trucks and demolition crews," he said.

The University will not be responsible for providing housing to the soon-to-be-homeless students. Nazizzi suggested that students begin practicing yoga, so they can fold themselves into lockers in the Campus Center.

"I think this is a great opportunity for people to show some creativity and initiative. Think of it as a challenge to turn something negative into something positive. It's a chance to rely on yourselves as adults. I mean, this is college. You can't go around with a silver spoon in your mouth for the rest of your life, you know," Nazizzi said.

Plans for a suburban-style residential area to replace Northeast are on the drawing board, according to the Housing director. This will give students from Long Island and New Jersey an area in which they can feel at home, "without living in a ghetto, or out in the boonies, surrounded by a bunch of dumb old trees."

Homes in the new area will include dishwashers, side-by-side refrigerator freezers, and used Ford Country Squire station wagons. Amherst area children will live with students in the homes, to help foster a feeling of commitment to the nuclear family, Nazizzi said. Students will be required to sign the children's report cards, go to their school plays, and make sure they eat all their vegetables.

Trip or treat or tripping?

By SUGAR FIXX
Collegian Stuffed

A number of local children plan to expand their annual quest for goodies this Halloween. Youngsters will be knocking not only at houses, but at UMass dormitory rooms as well.

Several primary school pupils told the Collegian that trick-or-treating in residence halls has the added attraction of receiving drugs and alcohol as well as candy.

"We're sick of Unicef pennies and all that crap," said Frank Lee O. Beese, Jr., age seven. "This way, if they don't give us candy, they can give us Doonesbury blotter acid instead of us throwing eggs at them and shaving-creaming their doors.

"But if they don't have anything, not even a few beers, we'll really let them have it," Beese warned. "I'm out for all the fattening stuff I can get my hot little hands on."

Police will not be caught unprepared for the unexpected increase in sugar-related incidents. Sergeant Bill E. Clubb said officers will be issued tranquilizer darts with which to subdue "littluns" speeding on too much candy corn.

"I'm happier'n a cop in shit about these new weapons," Clubb said.

Nine-year-old Sheena Hyena of Amherst said she had not known about the dart guns but was not worried.

"I'll mess 'em up if they come near me," she said. After a moment of thought, she added, "actually, tranquilizers are fun to do. They sorta make you feel like you're made of rubber."

"I don't care too much for candy. I'm out for real drugs," she said.

Thanks to the efforts of some Southwest Residential Area residents, Hyena and like-minded children may not have to look far. Students in Kennedy, Melville and Pierpont houses, all of whom declined to be identified, said they planned to "saturate" the campus with illicit drugs for trick-or-treat distribution.

"Sometimes it'll be obvious what it is, like little vials of coke or something," said one Pierpont resident. "But other times they might get an 'Electric Three Muskteers' bar and not know if it's MDA, acid or what."

"It's sort of like pot luck — no pun intended," said another student.

Teachers are misguided

by LAURA LENIN
Collegian Communist

In a heated six-hour debate, Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey told the faculty senate yesterday that all Marxist professors "had to be evicted from the University."

Duffey presented a motion barring all Marxist professors from the faculty that was unanimously passed by the senate. He said this motion would affect "most or all of" the professors in the political science department.

Duffey pressured the senate to convene in a special meeting yesterday because of "the overwhelming concern for the spread of communism on campus."

"I've received a number of complaints of professors in the political science department. We all know that the polisci professors are Marxist and for the sake and future of the University, we must terminate their emplovment immediately."

Rules Committee Chairman, David Booth, and political science professors denied all accusations.

"I am outraged, sir Chancellor," Booth said. "In all my years of service to the University, this is how I am repaid. I won't stand for this."

Booth tried to appeal to Linda Lockwood, delegate to the Massachusetts Society of Professors, but she emphatically said her "hands were tied."

Students who attended the meeting said they "were relieved." But were confused as to who would now teach their classes.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1990
Editors in Briefs Peter Soderberg Lesley Clark Dode Levenson

Drug Editor John O'Connell
Greed Editor Andrew Might Miser Editor Elizabeth Old
Biscuit Editor Mark Rodent
Democratic Editor Rita Muffy
Groupie Editor Greg Brown

Grass Roots Editor Yadira Betances
Radical Editor Margret Thatcher
High Society Editor Christine D. Marina
Oregon Editor Peter Abraham
Exposed Editor Andrew J. Heller and James P. Shanahan as the Beaver

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the view of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

Newman: Speak Good

Last week journalist reporter and TV journalist Edwin Newman says that language misusing is something we shouldn't do. He said it is undesirable for journalists and other users of the English language to include incorrect grammar or redundancies in what they wrote or said. Repeating oneself over and over again in a numerous different ways is another practice Newman condems.

We are in the most pronounced agreement.

The use of language in correct ways, something we all should strive towards. The instigation of the UMass's writing requiremement for each and all students approximately a couple of years ago is step in the direction we want to go, it held promising outlooks for someday learning to write and talk good.

But more is needed — our resolve to commitment to to promise to make efforts to commit ourselves full-heartedly to realize that to write and talk good we gots to learn good. Any other philosophy: means that we never express nothing right.

We in the Collegian strongly urge for every boy and girl at University of Massachussetts to follow in the footsteps of decent grammar, we could like push forward in our destiny more affectively as such. As it were, we replenish our committedness. To clarity accuracy lack of redundancy accurate word choice and Newman's right when he said "if the level of English we speak declines, we decline with it," Newman said. And he's right.

Unsigned editorials don't reflect anyone's opinion but the editorial editor who doesn't want to put her name on the above crap.

Letters to the Editor

Stop it and, stop it now

What is all this liberal shit I keep reading in the Collegian? I'm sick of it, I say, sick of it. Piss and moan, moan and groan, what next? Can't you liberals do something better with your time than trying to better the world? Maybe if you spent a little more time lying awake in your beds helping keep Catholic Bishops happy, and less time fighting for equality and all that shit, well maybe the rest of us wouldn't have to keep so many secrets. Stop it and stop it now.

R.A. Shame
Boston

Bird Squished

I'm appalled. Last Friday while leaving my dorm room, I accidently stepped on my neighbor's bird and squished him. His guts splattered all over the floor. But it wasn't until Monday that our floor janitor cleaned the birdie up. Several people got sick Saturday and Sunday. Can't the University afford to pay janitors to work on weekends? How many birds must stay on the floor for three days until they are removed?

E.F. Fowl
Belchertown

Flunked out

Last week I flunked my history midterm. How dare the Collegian force teachers to give tests. You're all a bunch of jerks who are responsible for everything. You can all rot for all I care.

A. Hole
Belchertown

Letters Policy

The Collegian receives too many letters already and the Editorial editor is too busy to read them all, which are very boring anyway, so please keep your opinions to yourself, because she doesn't care what you have to say and neither does anyone else so shut up, double spaced with margins of 10 and 77 . We reserve the right to change everything.

Hey! The Collegian
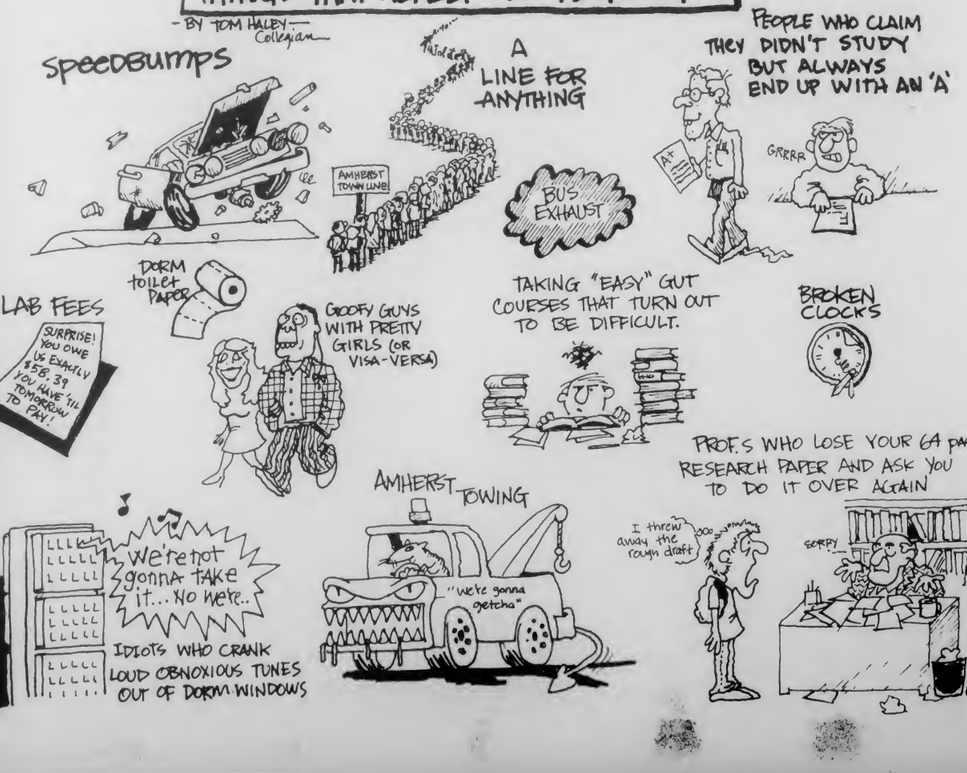
actually prints
students' Letters to the Editor



THINGS THAT REALLY PISS PEOPLE OFF:
-BY TOM HALEY— Collegian
speedbumps
A LINE FOR ANYTHING
AMHERST TOWN LINE
BUS EXHAUST
PEOPLE WHO CLAIM THEY DIDN'T STUDY BUT ALWAYS END UP WITH AN 'A' GRRRR
DORM toilet PAPER
LAB FEES
SURPRISE! YOU OWE US EXACTLY $58.39 YOU HAVE 'TIL TOMORROW TO PAY!
GROOFY GUYS WITH PRETTY GIRLS (OR VISA-VERSA)
TAKING "EASY" GUT COURSES THAT TURN OUT TO BE DIFFICULT.
BROKEN CLOCKS
PROF.S WHO LOSE YOUR GA PAGE RESEARCH PAPER AND ASK YOU TO DO IT OVER AGAIN
AMHERST TOWING
"we're gonna getcha"
I threw away the rough draft
SORRY
We're not gonna take it... No we're..
IDIOTS WHO CRANK LOUD OBNOXIOUS TUNES OUT OF DORM WINDOWS

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 40 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, October 31, 1984

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

"A BEAUTIFUL DAY IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD" — Students procrastinate on their way to class to enjoy yesterday's sunshine at the Fine Arts Center.

Senate to debate on question of elections

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate will decide tonight whether to have new elections this semester for two senate officers who were elected last spring.

Senators will be voting at tonight's meeting on a two part proposal sponsored by commuter senator Gilbert Stair which calls for dismissal of last spring's senate election of senate speaker and Student Government Association treasurer, and for new elections for these positions.
Chris Sullivan is now speaker, and John Mooradian is treasurer.

According to Stair yesterday, the motion was made "in order that the present body of senators may be allowed to participate in the election of their speaker and treasurer for this school year." Stair said he thinks it is unfair that senators elected to the 1984-85 senate on Oct. 1 and 2 have to wait until March to vote for new officers.

Among other duties, the speaker sets the agenda for the senate and moderates weekly meetings. The treasurer monitors spending of the $2 million Student Activities Trust Fund, which is made up of mandatory student activities fees.

While Stair maintains that his proposal is not "intended as an attack" on either Sullivan or Mooradian, both feel otherwise.

"I'm personally hurt by this motion," Mooradian said yesterday. "It is being made by a senator who has never spoken to me. He wants me and Chris out, and I don't know why."

Stair said that this action is "part of an ongoing effort among various groups to make people in the senate more aware of the (senate leadership) process."

"If nothing else," Stair said, "this will be a learning experience for new senators" on what the speaker and treasurer's jobs are.

Sullivan has been criticized for speaking in support of senate motion funding a Gay/Lesbian Awareness educator at the Oct. 17 meeting. The senate voted 43-17 in favor of Sullivan retaking the chair after he spoke that night.

"When people call into question how I feel," Sullivan said Monday, "I answer them. But I try to treat people fairly and objectively."

Mooradian said senate officer elections are held in the spring so that senators elected in October have enough time to see how the senate works, how candidates for these positions vote in the senate, and what officer responsibilities are.

Groups promote candidates

Students to see Mondale and Reagan in Boston

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

With eight days to go before the presidential elections, student groups supporting both parties are out to make their candidates win.

The University of Massachusetts Republican Club has organized a Reagan Bush and Shamie rally to begin at noon today on the steps of the Student Union Building. The club has also rented a Western Mass. Buslines bus at a cost of about $300 to take club members to see President Reagan in Boston Thursday.

The bus which will hold about 50 people and will leave at 8:30 a.m. from Haigis Mall, is free for club members who have paid their dues and will cost $3 for others. Preference will be given to dues-paying club members in the event that all students cannot be accomodated.

Due to a lack of support and schedule conflicts, University Democrats have not rented a van to transport students to see Walter F. Mondale Friday in Boston, though some members will be carpooling and interested students should sign up at concourse table or contact group President Kevin Sweeney. The group is on standby for a table the rest of this week and had secured a space for Monday and Tuesday.

Over the weekend, the Democrats will concentrate on visibility at the homecoming football game at 1 p.m. Saturday on the Amherst Town Common. Candidate for the U.S. House from the First Congressional District, Mary Wentworth, and local activist Frances Crowe will be among the rally's speakers.

The Republican Club has no weekend plans, but will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Campus Center rooms 162-175 to organize students at the polls on Tuesday.

Republican Club members will also convene election night at 7:30 p.m. at Haigus Mall to carpool to a Smith College Republican Club election party to be held in the Gammet at Smith.

In addition, members of the non-partisan UMass Big Vote '84 coalition will be telephoning registered voters Sunday and Monday night to urge them to go to the polls. The group has also given voter lists, which include voters' party affiliation, to the Democratic and Republican student groups.

A Big Vote table on the concourse next week will have information on poll locations and vans to take handicapped students to them.

Students dislike Halloween guest policy restrictions

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS and LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Although the Halloween restrictions kept the University of Massachusetts campus calm this past weekend, many students expressed dissatisfaction with the restrictions on campus visitors.

Only two guests per dormitory room were allowed and the guests had to be UMass students. Twenty-four security was also in effect throughout the weekend.

The restrictions are a result of committees put together to change the Halloween policies after the campus was vandalized in 1979.

In 1979, the Campus Center and Hampden Dining Commons in Southwest were severely damaged. Windows were broken, furniture was destroyed and cars were vandalized.

"There was thousands dollars worth of damage in 1979," UMass police chief Robert Joyce said. Forty-two students were either arrested, or put into protective custody. Thirty-two were non-UMass students.

After Halloween in 1979, representatives from Housing, public safety, the Campus Center, Student Government, and Dean of Students office met with vice-chancellor Dennis Madsen to change the Halloween policies.

"In 1980, the entire place was shut down," Joyce said. "We called in extra security. It was very busy that year. That was the turning point. Things started to settle down after that."

In 1981, written policy of regulations was implemented and it is the same policy that is being followed today.

There was only five arrests on campus this weekend, UMass police said, and only one non-student was arrested.

"I think it does restrict students a bit," Laura Gottschalk, 19, of Concord, said. "It was defintely a hassle with 24 hour security and having to show your ID at one in the afternoon to get in your dorm."

"We thought security was pretty tight," Nancy Stevens,20, of Concord said. "We had to sign in and out all the time. It was irritating."

SGA co-president Rick Patrick said students are paying for past student mistakes.

"Students now are different (than in 1979)," Patrick said. "They've proven themselves to be responsible and can act in a civilized manner. Hopefully, in the future, these (restrictions) will be eased."

"Despite the restrictions, I think students had a good time this weekend," he said.

Collins, Goldstrich win in Southwest

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

With about 25 percent of the area turning out to vote, Bill Collins and Laura Goldstrich were elected co-presidents of the Southwest Area Government (SWAG).

Jay Flynn, a member of the Student Government Association's Governmental Affairs Committee and coordinator of the SWAG elections, announced last night that the candidacy of Collins and Goldstrich received 628 of the total 1110 votes during the Monday and Tuesday voting period.

Their closest opposition, Sharon Jackson and Rich Stewart, received 347 votes, while the team of Arthur Stephenson and Michael Gilbert got 135 votes.

Flynn said last night that this "is the highest turnout in any election of its size, to my knowledge. Almost twice as many Southwest residents turned out to vote for co-presidents as to vote for senators."

The election was necessary as a result of an Undergraduate Student Senate vote to accept all SWAG election results from last spring except co-presidents.

Collins and Arthur Stephenson were elected at that time, but due to a controversy over Sharon Jackson's being barred from the ballot, the result was not recognized by the senate.

Fantasia

Uncommon Plants
For Home, Gifts,
and Greenhouse

266 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
253-7070

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

Come In And Browse!

Lots to warm you up this fall!!

We have a wide selection of lingerie in an array of sensuous fabrics.

Snuggly Chenille Robes,
Silk Long Johns
for women and men
Cotton P.J.'s and long underwear
Nightgowns in flannel and cuddleskins
and much more

*Calvin Klein Underwear for women is available

Carriage Shops, 233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-6915

Tonite at
Changes

HALLOWEEN PARTY
and
Best Costume Contest
$50 in CASH PRIZES
Come in for a frightfully delightful evening!
Sponsored by the UMass Greek System
Lip-Sync to continue next week

99¢ BAR DRINKS ALL NIGHT
25¢ Champagne till 10 with Dynasty

RENT YOUR OWN NIGHTCLUB!
For Semi-Formals, Christmas,
Dormitory, Fraternity and Private Parties.

Linda A. Randolph M.D.
Director of the Office of Public Health
State of New York

Careers in Public Health
with State Governments

Friday, November 2, 1984
1 pm Room 120, Arnold House
sponsored by The Division of Public Health

The Complete Audio-Video Center
BERTS
ELECTRONICS, INC.
Panasonic
HOME VIDEO • TELEVISION • HOME ENTERTAINMENT • RADIO CASSETTE TAPE RECORDER • TELEPHONE EQUIPMENT • CALCULATOR • MICROWAVE OVEN

CTF 1923 reg. $479.95
On Sale $429.95
Halloween Week
All 19" Color T.V.'s in store
$50.00 OFF

228 Triangle St.
Amherst, MA 549-7121

MANAGE YOUR CAREER WITH A ROCHESTER M.B.A.

At the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management you can manage your career with a highly respected M.B.A. With our wide variety of financial aid and loan programs, you can manage your finances, too. So, take charge, and manage your way to a top quality management education.

SEE OUR REPRESENTATIVE
Our representative will be at your placement office
Nov. 7, 10:00 am-3:00 pm

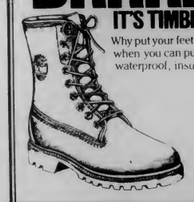
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, CALL TOLL FREE:
From anywhere in the U.S. outside N.Y. State call 1-800-621-0095
From within N.Y. State call 1-800-462-0073
Call toll free during these hours:
Monday - Friday 8:30 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Tuesday 5:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.
Saturday 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ROCHESTER
GRADUATE SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT
Rochester, NY 14627

Any undergraduate major can qualify you as an M.B.A. candidate.

Timberland

BRRRRRRRR!
IT'S TIMBERLAND TIME AGAIN.
Why put your feet through the cold wet misery of winter when you can put them in the warm dry comfort of waterproof, insulated Timberland boots?



Mathews SHOE STORE

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Founded 1870

Editor in Chief James P. Shanahan

Managing Editor John O'Connell
Business Manager Andrew May
Business Manager Elizabeth Young
Production Manager Mark Roden
Executive Editor Rita Murphy
News Editor Greg Brown
Black Affairs Editor Yadira Betances
Women's Issues Editor Rebecca Thatcher
Arts Editor Christine D. Marini
Sports Editor Peter Abraham
Photo Editor Andrew J. Heller

OPINION

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the university unless otherwise noted.

"HEY, RONNIE, WHAT IF THERE REALLY ARE GHOSTS WHICH I KNOW THERE AIN'T BUT WHAT IF THERE REALLY IS, RONNIE" NOT THAT I'M SCARED OF COURSE BUT WHAT IF ?

A lawbreaking government

George R. Leaman

In the last year we have heard most of the U.S. Government portray the invasion of Grenada with seductive images of American power as defender of liberty and justice. We all want to believe that our government stands for, and acts upon, clear and unchanging standards of justice and legality. It is this desire to see ourselves in a positive light that motivates unreflective praise; it is this same desire that compels us to ask questions when confronted with questionable acts. Approval or condemnation of an action must be more than an expression of its popularity. A lynching can be very popular, and everyone might feel that they did the right thing. But it is still antithetical to the principles, embodied in law, that we live by. Grenada is another such instance. Our government not only violated the law, it violated the bounds of credible argument. We were told that the main reason for the invasion was a request made by Eugenia Charles, representing something called the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States (OECS), for American assistance in restoring peace to a situation of local turmoil and violence. We were told that the U.S. was simply honoring the terms of the OECS Treaty of 1981. But our action violated provisions of the Rio Treaty, the Charter of the Organization of American States, the United Nations Charter, and our own Constitution (Article I, Section 8, paragraphs 10 and 11). Now either we have made a commitment or we haven't; we cannot suspend treaties and law when they are inconvenient. One does not endorse treaties by violating treaties.

Realizing the difficulties with this reasoning, we were then told that we had to act immediately to secure the release of hundreds of medical students in imminent danger. There was no time for 'formalities' of democratic government. Assuming that this is true, although many of the students themselves dispute it, we can well ask what rescuing students has to do with overthrowing governments. If the U.S. military had 'rescued' the students and left, this part of the official explanation might be more plausible. To be still more plausible, the Army's After Action Report would have to be altered. In it the Army acknowledges that it did not know how many students there were on the island or where both of the school's campuses were located before the attack. If the students were a central feature of this operation someone could have at least called the school on the phone and asked; communications with the medical school were never cut.

The rationale of a rescue projects a different image than an otherwise obvious intervention. This alteration of impressions was made easier by the exclusion of any media presence during the first 48 hours of the operation. Why? The Defense Department said that it was concerned for the safety of the reporters and couldn't spare transport space anyway. Reporters were at Inchon, at D-Day, at Iwo Jima, etc., etc. If the Defense Department cannot make space for witnesses to the use of deadly force we need to examine ourselves very closely. Since World War II over 115,000 Americans have died in 'police actions' or undeclared wars. If we really believe in any of the principles embodied in our Constitution we need to soberly examine the reasoning and motivations behind the actions of our government. Only we have the power and the duty to make our government obey and live by our laws and traditions.

George R. Leaman is a UMass graduate student.

When laughter turns to fear

Mary Cresse

"There is nothing more frightening than ignorance in action."
Johann Von Goethe

"Sheikh!"

One of the men leaned over and ripped from her shoulder a bit of the old white sheet that served as part of a simple sheikh costume. She reached around the entranceway of the house and struck on the arm one of the eight or so men assembled there. A chorus of mocking male voices followed:

"Oooh, I'm scared."

"Real tough, man. Watch out for that chick."

Earlier in the evening, they'd been making jokes, some innocent, some a little uncalled for, but hell, it was Halloween, she said later, and everyone was drunk, saying things they probably didn't mean or that they'd probably forget.

Inside, a non-costumed man wearing a pair of Ray Bans, breathed beer in her face and caustically shouted, "Yeah, man, you PLO. YOU f---- PLO. PLO. You stupid Arab fool..."

The sheikh said nothing.

An impersonator of a bishop caught a little flak from some Catholics; a man going as Keith Richards caught 'homo' jokes because of his eyeliner. But the sheikh felt especially vulnerable and at times fearfully aware of being a five-foot tall, 115-lb. woman without a male companion.

As the keg emptied, everyone floated in drunken confidence from room to room, singing, arguing, and dancing louder and longer on their increased currents of adrenalin, courtesy of Anheuser-Busch.

The sheikh suddenly wanted to leave, and thought of running through the entranceway where the men stood.

One of them, dressed as a soldier, liked to shout 'Arab' across the room. He did it again as she hurried through the foyer, but not after her headress was pulled off by an unknown hand and another hand ripped the sheet down her back.

Using her only weapon, a cup of beer, she spun around and threw it in the face of a man who had laughed and jeered at the proceeding but claimed he never participated. She kicked another in the shin and was followed out of the house by three taunting men throwing beer in her face and ears, yelling repeatedly what is known in more civilized circles as the "c" word.

The man had trouble breathing. He was over 200 lbs, maybe and the sheikh could only reach his chest, but aimed instead for his ear.

"You don't know do you? Do you know what it's like to have someone do that? Do you know? Do you —"

He stood up and screamed again as his friend threw beer in her face.

It continued as the men followed the women out to their car, after pleas of "it's over, stop it, just please, it's over"; it continued as the heavy man hit one of the women; it continued as the women fought back in self-defense, and tried to ignore the vows of the men "going to get you bitch." And it hasn't ended.

Events like this will continue after attempts to reason, to explain, to reveal, for instance, that the sheikh chose her costume because she had neither the time nor money but instead an old white sheet. That she thought dressing as a ghost would be "kind of boring." No problem.

But apparently it was, to those men ignorant of how it feels to be chased by three beings so much bigger and stronger that it would be a nightmare to imagine what it would have been like if neither of the women had a car or friends ready to defend them.

The sheikh now jokes about next Halloween, about not going out as a witch: someone might think she belongs to a coven. About not going out as a nun: someone might think she's anti-Catholic...what she thinks she'll do instead, maybe, is skip the parties or maybe UMass altogether and hit a good Rocky Horror Picture Show where people are used to costumes, every week of the year.

What she forgets is that we at UMass wear them all the time.

Mary Cresse is a Collegian columnist.

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Correction

Due to an editing error, Stephen C. Erickson was not identified in yesterday's opinion page. Erickson is a Collegian columnist and president of the Republican Club.

Letters to the Editor

Great debates that weren't

Kevin Sweeney's letter to the editor yesterday on behalf of the University Democrats regarding recent discussions about a debate with the UMass Republican Club is rubbish.

Our organization proposed the debate.

The University Democrats, apparently, have only one member in their organization capable of debating, and therefore refused to have anything more than a one-on-one debate.

It was our hope that a panel debate would be more entertaining and informative to students and would provide a comparison of the relative depths of our two organizations.

We were hoping to organize something less rhetorical and less superficial than the Presidential debates. It is not surprisng that the University Democrats are afraid of the facts.

We have made a genuine effort to promote a good working relationship with the University Democrats. It is too bad they are so wrapped in their ideology that they cannot deal reasonably with us

The Executive Board
UMass Republican Club

Men can help prevent rape

Dave Johnson was correct in his letter to the editor in Friday's Collegian; not all men are rapists. However 2 out of 3 women in this country will be raped in their lifetime. How many "cretins" does Johnson think are raping 66 percent of the women in this country? The number of men who rape is much greater than Johnson is willing to admit.

How can a woman tell a rapist from a non-rapist? Hearing men defensively say "I do not rape or batter women," is not enough. Should women really trust every man who says that? Rapists are fathers, boyfriends, bosses, public service workers, doctors, lawyers, and friends. In other words, people from all walks of life.

What men can do is try to actively prevent rape. Men can refuse to participate in discussions and activities which degrade and abuse women, join Men Against Violence Against Women, the Men's Center, or the Escort Service on campus, work to educate friends and peers whose attitudes perpetuate violence against women. Only when men are part of the solution are they no longer part of the problem.

Johnson's claim that most feminists are man haters is a common tactic used against feminists to try to invalidate the message of feminism. As someone who is called a man hater on practically a daily basis, I would like to say that I am not intimidated by the charge. I see it as a reflection of the ignorance people have about women and about feminism. Most feminists do not hate men, they hate what men do to women. And that is simply a sane response in this insane society we live in.

Finally, as for Johnson's claim that there is "a letter about rape almost every day" all I can say is I wish he wasn't wrong. Unfortunately, the subject of rape is immobilizing for many women, and we often find it difficult to continue to raise our voices against it. I would like to encourage all women to speak out against rape and all other issues which affect women at every opportunity and in every forum available. Writing letters is an easy way to start, or perhaps joining area women's groups and organizations of the Student Union and talk to other women who are concerned. I hope to see you soon.

Liisa Trocki
Women's Leadership Project Coordinator

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND
"An upbeat & exultant ensemble..." N.Y. Times
The five-college B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations present the KLEZMER CONSERVATORY BAND
"Jewish Jazz"

Saturday Nov. 3 8:00 P.M.
John M. Greene Hall Smith College
CONTRIBUTION: $7 General Public, $5 Students & Senior Citizens
TICKETS AVAILABLE: UMass Hillel • Smith Hillel • Downtown Sounds, Northampton • Food for Thought, Amherst • TICKETS AT THE DOOR

FUNNY HOUR
FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge
99¢ BAR DRINKS
with Vodka, Gin, Rum, Tequilla, Whiskey
99¢ BOTTLED BEER
15 kinds, Domestic and Imported
$1.49 TOP SHELF
all brand liquors, all mixed drinks
3-7 PM Mon-Sat, 1-7 Sun
Rt 9 Hadley (across from Mt Farms Mall)

SPRING BREAK
Help us sponsor your Ft. Lauderdale trip and you go for free!
LUV Tours
(800) 368-2006 TOLL FREE

WINTER BREAK
Help us sponsor your school's winter break ski trip and ski free!
LUV Tours
(800) 368-2006 TOLL FREE

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
• Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

Rent One of Ours
Car
Truck
Passenger Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
549-5610
FREE HAIRCUT with any perm $30.-$40.
STYLE CUTS $7.00
expires 11/31/84
valid with this ad

"The Best Chinese Food"
家酒園湘潮
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE
The Best Chinese Food"
Try Our New
Luncheon Specials From $2.25 served 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
and
New Buffet & Sunday Brunch
Buffet Served 5-8 Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served Sunday 11:30-3
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 $3.00
1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot & Sour Soup
Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.
10 Belchertown Road at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
In the Carriage Shops, Amherst, since 1975!
On-Campus & Apartment Delivery Available • 549-6314
•Overstuffed Sandwiches
•Foot-Long Subs
•Fresh Soups & Salads
•Bagels & Lox
•N.Y. Cheesecake
THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
233 No. Pleasant St., Amherst • 549-6314
Open Mon.-Sat., 9 a.m.-10 p.m. — Sun., 9-6

COUPON-COUPON-COUPON
FREE 16 OZ. SODA
with purchase of whole sub.
the sub
11 A.M. TO 2 A.M. / 7 DAYS
33 E. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST / 549-5100
The Kick Off
expires 10/26/84

FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge
HALLOWEEN BALL!
The phantom of the opera spins all your favorite hits
DRESS TO DISTRESS. . .
come in COSTUMES
Beauty, Beast, and the best of the rest Judging
Don't forget it's
PENNY DRAFT NITE
every other draft just 1¢
Rt. 9, Hadley (across from Mt. Farms Mall)

Pearl Street
Get On Your Feet and Down to Pearl Street
For the Best Dancing Time Wednesday through Saturday
WEDNESDAY 31st OCT.
TONIGHT
THE HALLOWEEN COSTUME PARTY
you've all been waiting for
First Prizes of Dom Perignon for best costumes (male, female, couple, most bizarre) and many other prizes
The Only Vampire - D.J. West of Transylvania
COUNT DREAD
$3.00 Cover
Friday 2nd Oct.
DA' UNO DA' DUO D.J.'s
They're Spinning Dancing Disks Every Friday
And Every Saturday
Spinning Dancing Disks is
ANDREW WOLFE of KISS 108 FM BOSTON
Coming Up: Eight to the Bar Wed. Nov. 28th
Starting Sunday Afternoons 11th Nov. Polka Party from Chicago - MARION LUSH
Positive ID's Required at the door. Photo Driver's License ; A.B.C. card
10 PEARL STREET NORTHAMPTON, MA. 413 584-7771

School of Management
CAREER DAY '84
November 14th
First Floor Campus Center
Over 30 Companies Represented!
Presentations, Luncheon, Career Fair, Reception
Luncheon Tickets on Sale SOM Lobby through November 9th
Sponsored by Undergraduate Business Club
All Majors Welcome!

HALLOWGRAMS

"Have you been treated?"

Pick up at CC between 8-4 today. Sponsored by Mortar BoardHonor Society

Andris Affannato
Mary E. Ahearn
Amy (208 washington)
Julie Anderson
Tracy Anderson
Jennifer Andrews
Leslie Armstrong
Katy Arnold
Elizabath Auger
Steven Bailey
Chris Barber
Kim Barber
Brian Bartlett
John Barrasso
Dianna Barry
Linda Battye
Kelly Baxter
Sir Bennett
Julie Berman
Karen Berns
Tony Betros
Sue Bird

Chrissie Birmingham
Lynne Blackinton
Peter Blackmon
Allison Blount
Susan Bomaceto
Ann Bonanno
Alice Bonsignore
Debbie Bori
Debbie Bornstein
Ruth Boule
Lisa Bowar
Donna Brabazon
Julie Brodsan
Chris Branco
Maura Brattin
Susan Braitstein
Jill Brasnick
Laura Brawer
Betsy Broadsant
Jenny Brumberg
Catharina Brundage
Linda Buck
Thomas Bushman
Player Butler
Nancy Buttina
Isabelle Cachopo
Bubbles Callahan
Paul Caniaero
Jeff Capuana

Carmine Caporelli
Laurie Carroll
Nebbie Cavallaro
Jennifer Casper
Chris Chadwick
Tricia Chambers
Cathy Chilson
Dianna Churchill
Sue Collagan
Susan Collins
Rosemary Conlen
Kevin Connors
Mark Connelly
Norman Cooper
Ana Correa

Frank Correro
Joann Costentini
Jean Cowen
Karen Coyne
Michael Jeffery Cresto
Grace Cucchiari
Amy Custence
Catestuffin
Linda Dehco
Virginia Denner
Nancy Dardzinski
Gary Dern
Kenny Devanport

Erin Dempsey
Karen Denker
Lisa Desgroseilliers
Ruth Devine
Elizabeth Ann Dibble
Lenore Difiore
Janet Dillingham
Gery Dixon
Stephen Doreto
Patricia Driban
Jennifer Dresens
Judith Drobnyk
Karen Drummely
Dave Duggal
Timmy Durkin
Kris Dyer
Sue Eastham
David Elkins
Julie Embrieno
Paul Endara
Meaghan Fahey
Greg Fahn
Lisa Fajnor

Valerie Falk
Wendy Fean
David Feldman
Scott Ferrazzani
Dave Fick
Karen Fields
Helene Fingold
Amy Finsilver
Leslie Fisch
Nancy Fisher
Heidy Fishkind
Keri Fleischman
Wayne Fletcher
Tom Flynn
Mark Fogarty
Dianne Fonseca
Erika Frenzel
Russell Friedman
Liz Gagliardo
Gary Gauthier
Laura Guantor
John Gazzinige
Malcolm George
Farhad Ghadiasbeby
Michele Giuditts
Janet Glavin
Jill Goodwin
Paul Frenz Gorter
Pamela Goldsmith

Susie Graham
Susan Granzer
Barry Greenwood
Bob Griffin
Ellen Gross
Beth Gross
Matthew Grouy
Jodi B. Green
Brian Greenwood
Roberto Guadalope
Meryl Gura
Yuonne Gutierrez
Robin Hamil
Martha Hanley
Erik Hardy
Pat Hartigan
Jana Hastan
Kristin Hawes
Christopher Heyduk
Randi Haiman
Susan Henning
Bertha Hernandez
Marc Hershon

Kevin Hill
Scott Hill
Perry Hobson
Lauri Hochberg

Rodney Holt
Lisa Horen
Jim Horgan
Sue Horn
Sandra Horne
Mark Hull
Suzanne Ingels
Victoria Tritsky
Bill Irwin
Chris Irzyk
Kirstin Jahn
Neil S. Jensen
Sheila Jewett
Janice Cubic Jordon
Jeff Juneau
Lynn Kachuvek
Phil Kaiser
Jennifer Keenen
Debby Kelley

Jen Kennedy
Maureen Renney
Cassandra Klotz
Sandi Knowlton
Robyn Korsengold
Scott Kresge
Tim Kronk
Carl Kropewniki
Jack Kuncea

Lacey, Lydia
Ladenberg, Kathy
Laffiate, Rafi
Lam, Elizabeth
Langford, Sandra
Laroche, Laura
Larry &Wally
Lavole, Michael
LeBrun, Elaine
Lee, Adeline
Lee, Peter Erick

Leferve, Jeannine
Leonard, Daniel
Leshine, Jody
Levenson, Ilana
Levine, Ron
Liban, Jay
Libardi, Gene
Libman, Brian
Lomp, Jennifer
Long, Lannae
Lucchesi, Frank
Lucia, Tas
Lunn, Susan
Lutz, Norma Jean

Maciver, Leslie
Magnolia, Doug

Maguire, Joe
Maher, Sharon
Mainville, Molly
Malony, Pete
deMarco, Carlo T.
Martin, Dawn
Martin, Kathie
Mastrototaro, Julie
Mattel, Jonathan
Mattera, Beth

Matthews, Jim
Matukaitis, Bill
Maxwell, Mike
McAllister, Dawn
McCarthy, Mary Beth
Mc Carthy, Greg
McDawit, Brian
McDonald Kelly
McGoram , Terry
McKay, Kelly

McKenna, Carol
McManus, Kathleen
McNichols, Diane
Mejia, Marcia
Melilli, Beth

Melvin, Rebecca
Mendelson, Karen
Meyer, Estephanie
Moramhae, Mike
Muiez, Lauretta
Mulherin, Joan
Mullett, Donnamichi
Mundt, Diane
Mufphy, Donna

Neff, Tracy
Nettleton, Kimberly
Naylor, Marjorie
Nichols, Russ
Niewiwiadek, Walter
Noel, Debbie
Noonan, Louise
Nordy, Craig
North, Jennifer
North, Jennifer

O'Brien, Mary
O'Connell, Patricia
Ogintz, Elise
Loson, Susan
Opprecht, Kerrie
Ordway, Melinda
Ortler, Faith
O'Shea, Jim
Osherow, Ilene
Ostraw, Adam
Ott, AnnMarie

Packard, Debbie
Palazzo, Martylee
Parsek, Janice
Peltier, Craig
Perrera, Luis
Pfister, Kim
Pfister, Kim
Pisano, James
Platt, Sandy
Proto, Pam
Pruskin, Laurie
Pugsley, Andrea

Quinn, Sean
Quinn, Terry

Rane, DianaLee
Ravitz, Terri'S.ST
Ready, Kathy
Reidy, Mary
Reidy, Mary
Reise, Robin
Reynolds, Fifi
Rhyder, Katherine
Ricord, Joann
Robert&Andy
Rita, Bevedy
Robineon, Diane

Rodriguez, Luis
Rosen Diane
Rosenthal, Michael
Ross, Jimmy
Roth, Vanessa
Roy, Christopher
Roy, Mike, Rob, Peter
Roye, Mitch
Russell, Nancy

Sawula, Sue
Schlemmer, Dean
Sciappi, Jennifer
Schobk, Jennifer
Shuback, Deb
Schulze, Vicki
Senna, Buddy
Shapiro, Linda
Sheehey, Brian
Sheppard, Laurie
Short, Brent
Simon, Beth
Skvoric, Vielet

Sliney, Donna
Smith, Holly
Solberg, Larry
Spellos, Carol
Spencer, Jane
Spits, Caryn
Steadman, Kim
Stemetra, Curt
Stern, Erica
Strauss, Joni
Stolle, Tracy
Sullivan, Kevin
Swanson, Ronald
Switko, Shari

Talbot, Mary
Tausen Amy
Thatcher, Becky
Thereau, Mark
Toto, Julie
Trahan, Michelle
Tucker, Lynne
Tucker, Margie
Turetsky, Rachel
Uehio, Yumio
Vasil, Paul

Waite, Dana
Walcek, Rick
Walk, Emily
Walsh, Mary
Waxman, Susan
White, Ken

Whiteford, Cory
Wiederlight, Stacy
Willett, B. Timmy
Williamson, David
Williamson, Bob
Wilser, John
Winey, Kathy
Winslow, Pam
Winter, Kristina
D-hoop, Julianne
Young, Carolyn
Zirkes, Marla

SWEET TOOTH
FAST FREE DELIVERY
of individual servings

CAKES & PASTRIES
ECSTASY BY CHOCOLATE CAKE - Could be a substitute for sex 2.50
The cheapest taste of sin you'll ever experience
CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE - Another temptation for the chocoholic 1.50
A whole new approach with chocolate cream and raspberries
CONTINENTAL - A rich pastry horn filled at both ends with chocolate cream 1.50
For the chocolate sophisticate
CHEESECAKE - We've saved you a trip to New York. The best cheesecake 1.75 north of the Big Apple. Toppings make it even better: strawberry or cherry .35 CARROT CAKE - We can't promise, but it may help you find what you 1.50 want in the dark. Dress to kiss?
NAPOLEON - One bite and you'll surrender to the joy of custard and pastry 1.50 with frosting on top

ICE CREAM From Bart's - the best in the Valley 1.55
Vanilla Chocolate Strawberry Mud Pie Coffee Heath Crunch Oreo Crunch
Ask about our flavor of the week A double is 100

MUNCHIES
OATMEAL FUDGE BAR - A BIG chewy bar laced with thick fudge. Irresistible 1.50
CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIE - A superbe cookie loaded with goodies. Yummy .75
FRUIT BREAD - A change of pace. Could be banana nut, lemon nut .75 cranberry nut or pumpkin raisin. Ask BAKLAVA - A Greek delight! A small rich triangle of pastry and nuts 1.05 drenched in honey. You'll love it

FUDGE and CHOCOLATE Superior confections to make your taste buds delirious
You never had it so good!
FUDGE FLAVORS - Chocolate Chocolate Walnut ½ pound 4.00
Rocky Road Chocolate Peanut Butter 1 pound 7.50
BLOCK CHOCOLATE - Milk or Dark ½ pound 3.75
1 pound 7.00

CALL
256-8102
Friday and Saturday 6:00 pm - 2:00 am
Sunday thru Thursday 6:00 pm - 1:00 am
79 S. Pleasant St., Amherst
Minimum order $5.00 Prices do not include tax

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Wednesday thru Saturday
October 31 - November 3
American Werewolf in London 7:15
Animal House 9:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

Sports

Field hockey grinds out 2-0 win over Terriers, Donnelly shines

By ED HAYWARD
Collegian Staff

With junior All-American Megan Donnelly providing the offense, the University of Massachusetts field hockey team defeated Boston University 2-0 yesterday at NOPE field.

While BU put an unranked team on the field to face the fourth ranked Minutemen the game carried some extra tension with UMass' next opponent, a powerful University of Connecticut team (ranked fifth in the nation), waiting in the wings. The Minutemen play UConn this Saturday in their regular season finale. UMass will take a 13-3 record into the contest.

"It was a hard game to play, knowing we have a big game against UConn but we had to win this one. We couldn't help looking to Saturday but we couldn't look past this game. We knew we had to win; we had to do it," UMass coach Pam Hixon said.

UMass started the game strong taking the ball deep into BU territory. Minuteman forwards Judy Morgan and Erin Canniff applied strong pressure to Terrier defenders and goalkeeper Mary Linham.

But it was Donnelly, a midfielder, who put UMass on the scoreboard.

After a struggle for possesion in front of the goal, Linham was called for illegal obstruction of the ball and UMass was awarded a penalty stroke. Hixon called on Donnelly and the junior confidently put the ball in the lower right corner of the goal. The goal came nine minutes into the game.

At 9:38 Donnelly scored the final goal of the game. With UMass awarded a free hit following a BU foul, senior midfielder Pam Moryl faked several swings at the ball, unsettling the BU defense. Moryl then tapped the ball to a nearby Donnelly who blasted a shot into the lower left corner of the BU goal from twenty-five yards out.

The remainder of the first half along with the remainder of the game consisted of a see-saw battle between the two teams. Both succeeded in taking the ball deep into the opponent's territory yet neither team could produce any results.

"BU used the long ball and they got their transition game going. The game became the ping-pong type of contest: back and forth, back and forth. It turned into a midfield battle," Hixon said.

Statistically, UMass dominated the game. The Minutemen out shot the Terriers 30 to five. UMass goalie Lynn Carlson saved all five BU attempts and Linham saved seventeen. BU was awarded six penalty corners but yielded fourteen.

"We played ok," said Hixon. "It wasn't a stellar performance but we did what we had to do. I would have liked to have seen a little more passing...I thought there were more one-on-one situations than I wanted. But BU moved the ball well and they took away a lot of our chances."

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

UMass forward Erin Canniff (right) battles a Boston University defender for the ball in action yesterday at NOPE. UMass won, 2-0.

"It was a long game to watch," Hixon said. "When you over-emphasize the outcome of the game the time between the beginning and the end drags and you can lose sight of what you have to do. So you just have to hold on and we did."

"With UConn in the back of our mind this game was made even tougher. UConn is a big rival. We don't need to work on psyching ourselves up, we know what they present. But we still had to play this game and get it out of the way. I'm glad it's over and I'm glad we won. Now we can start devoting all of our thinking towards UConn," Hixon said.

UMass 2, BU 0

UMass	2-0-2
BU	0-0-0
Scoring:	UM: Donnelly (6) unassisted, Donelly (7) from Moryl (4)
Shots:	UM: 30, BU: 5
Saves:	UM: Carlson 5, BU: Linham 17
Corners:	UM: 14, BU: 6

Donnelly gets an 'assist' from the senior class

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

It wasn't your ordinary field hockey win at the NOPE field as the fourth ranked University of Masachusetts disposed of unranked Boston University, 2-0 yesterday.

It was, maybe, the last home game for seniors Pam Moryl, a midfielder, defender Andrea Muccini, forward Judy Morgan and forward Maura Coughlin.

Junior Megan Donnelly, who has scored just once since her four goal, one assist outburst in the first three games, tallied both Minutemen goals.

And the 13-3 Minutemen didn't play their best because their minds were on Saturday's upcoming matchup with arch-rival Connecticut, who UMass hasn't beaten in over four years.

"Overall, it was a tough game to play," Donnelly said. "BU was a pretty scrappy team. No one had a chance to develop the passing game. You just tried to survive."

Donnelly scored her third penalty stroke of the year (she previously scored against North Carolina and Virgina) to give UMass the 1-0 lead and took a nice pass from Pam Moryl to score the second goal.

Moryl passed her stick over the ball and Donnelly fired it into the net from 25 yards out. "It was a great pass from Pam," Donnelly said. "All I had to do was hit it. She saw the space and told me. We work on those plays a lot."

"Those plays," coach Pam Hixon said, "are designed to get the ball on goal-not necessarily score. Our philosophy is try to get the goalie to play as many balls as possible. We try to wear them down."

"She (Megan) played well," Hixon said. "She controlled the flow of play."

The seniors also played well in their last home field appearance unless they are seeded in the top four in NCAA playoffs and get the home field advantage. "Andrea (Muccini) played well and Judy Morgan did a good job," Hixon said.

But to have any chance at home field advantage for the Nov. 10-11 playoffs, UMass has to beat UConn on Saturday, Hixon said.

Minutemen cross country look to New Englands

By CHRIS TREMBLAY
Collegian Correspondent

The men's cross country team went into Van Cortland Park, New York to compete against Manhattan College, St John's and Rhode Island this past weekend. When they came out they had defeated Rhode Island 22-37, but lost to St John's 26-29 and Manhatten 17-38.

"I thought we would beat Rhode Island and lose to St John's and Manhattan," coach Ken O'Brien said, "But I didn't think we'd come as close as we did to St. John's."

The Minutemen had left seven of their top 10 runners at home to rest up for the next few weeks when they participate in the New Englands and IC4A's. Of the runners that did show up in New York it was John Pannichione who came across first for UMass, sixth overall. Ricky Dow (ninth) and Tim Flynn (10th) were the next two runners in for the Minutemen.

While the men's team was preparing for next weeks New Englands women's team was in Boston at Franklin Park competing in their New England meet.

UMass took ninth place overall out of the 36 competing teams, with Boston College winning it and Holy Cross and Boston University taking second and third respectively.

"I was hoping the team would place a little higher," coach Caroline Gardiner said, "But it was really tough. Holy Cross (who came in second) wasn't there last year, so they made a difference in the standings."

The Minutemen did very well, according to Gardiner, but still lack the runner to place in the top 15.

The Tigers win again

Hernandez wins Cy Young in relief

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Hernandez, whose near-perfect relief pitching played a major role in the Detroit Tigers' drive to the World Series Championship, was named Tuesday the winner of the American League Cy Young award as the league's best pitcher.

The Puerto Rican left-hander, who joined the Tigers in a trade with the Philadelphia Phillies just before the 1984 season, had 32 saves in 33 save oppportunities, five more saves than he had in a mediocore seven-year career in the National League.

He combined that with a 9-3 won lost record and a 1.92 earned run average as the Tigers coasted to the AL East crown, then went on to win the playoffs over Kansas City and World Series over San Diego. Hernandez saved the third and deciding game of the playoffs, then added two more saves in the World Series, in which he had a 1.69 ERA. The voting was based on regular-season performances.

Hernandez, who will turn 30 on Nov. 14, had 12 of the 28 possible first-place votes and 88 total points to edge another relief pitcher, Kansas City's Dan Quisenberry, in the balloting by two baseball writers from each of the 14 American League Cities. Quisenberry, who had a 6-3 record, a 2.64 ERA and 44 saves as the Royals won the AL West, had nine first place votes and 71 total points.

Rick Sutcliffe of the Chicago Cubs was named the National League's Cy Young winner last week.

Sports at a glance

UMass schedule:
Volleyball: at Southern Conn

the party never stops
UPSTAIRS ...
JR's Nightly Specials:
HALLOWEEN PARTY
Cash Prizes
3 Categories
$100 GRAND PRIZE
Sing Along with Gordy Milne
Special Witches Brew
AND DOWNSTAIRS!
at JUSTIN RYAN'S
the meeting place
KICK-OFF LOUNGE

CALL CAMPUS AUTO PARTS
549-3945
FOR VERA VERA
ORIGINAL QUALITY IMPORT CAR PARTS
IMPORT CAR PARTS

YOU WON'T BE SORRY WHEN YOU INSTALL THE REAL THING! We carry Vera Imported Car Parts ... the original quality parts from Japan, England and Western Europe ... made precisely to maintain your car s original performance!
AUTHORIZED SUPPLIER VERA VERA ORIGINAL QUALITY IMPORT CAR PARTS
Campus Auto Parts
107 Sunderland Road
No. Amherst
The store where you get the real thing!

Miller HIGH LIFE Rock Series

THE WHITEWALLS
Beer Brewed by The Miller Brewing Company, Milwaukee, Wisconsin
WELCOME TO MILLER TIME

Miller HIGH LIFE Rock Series
HALLOWEEN PARTY!
with
THE WHITEWALLS
JOEL GRAMOLINE formerly with Southside Johnny and the Asbury Jukes
CHRIS LANNON formerly with Pure Prairie League and Midnight Traveler
DERIC DYER formerly with the Reflectors, the Shaboo All-Stars, and Joe Cocker
JOE DONNELLY formerly with Midnight Traveler
ALAN GADDE formerly with Midnight Traveler
EVAN HARRIMAN formerly with Brg 16 and special guest
THE RADIATORS
WEDS. OCT 31, 8:00pm
THE RUSTY NAIL
ADMISSION $2.00 ADMISSION
$.25 MILLER DRAFTS UNTIL KEGS RUN OUT
Beer Brewed by The Miller Brewing Company, Milwaukee, Wisconsin

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS

HAPPY HALLOWEEN

St. Pauli, Grolsch, Steinhauser	$4.25 6 pk + dep.
Grizzly Canadian Beer	$3.59 6 pk	$13.95 case + dep.
Narragansett 16 oz. cans	$2.50 6 pk +	$9.50 case + dep.
Busch 12 oz. cans		$9.95 case + dep.
Strohs 12 oz. cans		$10.95 case + dep.
Miller Lite 12 oz. cans		$10.95 case + dep.
Peppermint Schnapps 60°		$5.99 liter + up
Vodka or Gin 80°		$8.49 1.75 liter
Champagnes & Spumante		$2.99 750 ml + up

Shear Delight

Beauty Salon
228 Triangle St.
Amherst

549-1502

COMPLETE HAIRSTYLING FOR MEN and WOMEN

Hours: Tues-Sat 9:00-5:30

Walk Ins Welcome

HAIRCUT $7.00

CELLOPHANES $16.50

Offer good thru 12/1/84

COUPON SPECIALS

Keri Lotion 6 oz.
$1.99 with coupon
Reg. $4.29
expires 11/3/84

Flex Shampoo and Conditioner 15 oz.
$1.79 with coupon
Reg. $2.59
expires 11/3/84

Curity Cottonballs
79¢ with coupon
expires 11/3/84

Softlens Enzyme Tablets 24's
Reg. $8.77
with coupon $5.99
expires 11/3/84

COLLEGE DRUG
6 MAIN STREET AMHERST Phone 253-7573

Colgate Pump Toothpaste
99¢ with coupon
Reg. $1.79
expires 11/3/84

Coke 2 liter bottle
$1.04 + deposit
with coupon
expires 11/3/84

Durabeam Compact Light
$3.49
with coupon
Reg. $4.99
expires 11/3/84

Fostex Benzoyl Peroxide Clensing Bar 3¾ oz.
$2.99 with coupon
reg. $3.96
expires 11/3/84

DISTINGUISHED TEACHERS AWARD NOMINATIONS

DEADLINE: NOVEMBER 15, 1984

IF YOU KNOW A FACULTY TEACHER OR TEACHING ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE (GRADUATE STUDENTS AND UNDERGRADUATES, TEACHING COURSES WITH THE APPROVAL OF THE DEPARTMENT) WHO IS CURRENTLY TEACHING, TRULY OUTSTANDING AND DESERVES RECOGNITION, SUBMIT A NOMINATION IN WRITING WITH A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF WHY YOUR NOMINEE DESERVES THE AWARD.

ANY STUDENT, PAST OR PRESENT, MAY MAKE NOMINATIONS.

SUBMIT NOMINATIONS BY THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1984

TO: DISTINGUISHED TEACHING AWARD COMMITTEE
GRADUATE STUDENT SENATE
919 CAMPUS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Ahts

Pooperscoop

By COUNT RAZORHEAD
Collegian Staff

You wild movie-goers out there who just love to sit in the dark all your lives cuz you're too ugly to walk the streets, do I have some scoops for you.

This season's highlight The Worms that Live in Our Ears stars Drew Barrygore, Jerry Lewis, Yawn McEnroe and the ears of Prince Charles. The best part of this production is said to be the elegantly-photographed sequence where the stars march into a gigantic La Machine. Also appearing in this blockbuster are Barishnicough, Roman Impotensky, and the Arab sheik talking about their follies with Nastrasha Kinki and her boa.

Weekend Winner: Amherst Cinema has the number one box office hit of the year Watch Jane Fonda Have a Heart Attack After Working out with Richard Simmons. This is running with the shortest feature in film history - a nineteen-second documentary on the sweet innocence of Pia Zadora and the modesty of Rob Low.

Local Loser: Bo Derek plays Snow White to Dudley Moore's Seven Dwarves in the latest Disney production of the favorite fairy tale. Mrs. Bush sings her hit single Words that Rhyme with Rich in a melodic sequence which also involves Senator McCarthy and Jerry Falwell singing Happy Days are Here Again. Only recommended for Grenadian children.

If you enjoy reading books about films, I have a few suggestions. Jodie Foster's Starving Yalie, Joan Collin's Very Very Ancient Evenings, and Victoria Principal's My Plastic Surgeon, Myself are required readings for this semester.

New Film Courses: This course which serves as a prerequisite for all other film courses is titled Elementary Pretentiousness and is taught by student Suzanne Saliva. The purpose of the course is to enable the student to become sexually frustrated and see phallic symbols in every thing and to dominate discussions in class. Warning: Professor Saliva is known to spit on students when she talks about Freud.

Killer Question: Ed Jeye, Marcie Moscowitz, Queen of England and the Ayatollah got the right answer last week. Yes, it was my mother who cooked my pet chicken for lunch. Next week's question is very simple. Does Yoko Ono rhyme with rich, and is her son really a spoiled idiot?

The Great Pumpkin visits the set of Dune in Mexico. Move over Sting!

Refrigaletto is "chilling"

By PIA ZADORA
Special to the Collegian

The Amherst Lite Opera Company opened the winter season with a production of Refrigaletto, with libretto by Guiseppi Verti and music by Lev Strabinsky. Although certainly an interesting opera, Refrigaletto failed to sustain the suspension of disbelief that its fantastic premise required.

Sally, our heroine, wants to have something for lunch. She is unable to make up her mind what to eat. When she goes off to decide, the foods fight amongst themselves; each wants to be eaten, thinking it a form of religious transcendence.

The Egg (a holy and educated interdominal priest figure) is the only one who realizes that after the 'fridge, there is nothing but death. The others ridicule his blasphemy and eventually kill him.

Despite the efforts of the Bread to unite everybody, a war breaks out between the meats and the milk products. Destruction is widespread. When Sally returns, she sees the place is a mess and decides to go out for Pizza, and the opera draws to a close.

Unfortunately, the opera isn't sure whether it wants to be an action-packed, free-for-all, or a philosophical discourse. The murdering of the Egg, and the "Sacrifice of the Leftovers" scenes are among the most gruesome ever produced on stage, while the poignant aria "I Will Be Devoured Tonight" by the Chair questions the palatability of inanimate objects.

The Amherst Lite Opera staged a remarkably bad production: the Bread's voice cracked so often I thought he was an egg. Their show left me, like the food, cold.

A Real food fight from the Amherst Lite Opera Company's production of Refrigaletto.

Song of the week; Boy George sings the soundtrack of* The Wives of the Seven Samurai, *"Church of the Poison Suchi," accompanied by Liberaci.

Joyce it ain't!

Regulation & Policies
by Dennis L. Madson,
Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, et al.
UMass Press
30p $0.00

by Lenny Lit'rachur
Koleegeein Staff

UMass Press, which has brought us such best-sellers as Course Catalogue and Schedule of Classes, takes a turn for the worse with their recently released Regulations & Policies.

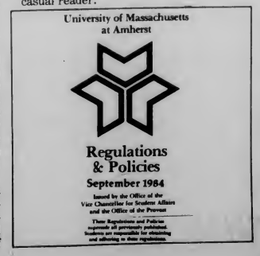
This slim and rather uneventful book chronicles the misadventures of A. Student as he journeys through an ambiguous terrain. The main flaw is the characterization: A. Student is very much a passive hero, with little control over his own life.

The book starts off with a confusing and long-winded description of the forces which govern our protagonist, and try to guide him to an ideal which includes "...honor, self-respect, and consideration for the rights of others." The author apparently considers this an unobtainable goal, since he goes on to describe the various punishments and agonies A. Student will suffer.

Although it is unclear, A. Student evidently tries to escape, but fails after two attempts. These are chronicled in the confusing Administrative Withdrawal and Health Withdrawal chapters, the latter of which is thankfully short.

Sense is completely lost in the ludicrous Alcohol Beverage Policy section, which abandons all previous pretensions of reality. Subsequent chapters only add to the deterioration of plot, although they are worth noting in their own right. The lengthy section entitled Educational Record & Privacy is one of the great masterpieces of paranoid dystopian fiction since Rand's Anthem.

Madson's Regulations & Policies is far from a tour-de-force. It tries to be daring by ignoring the usual delineations for plot and structure, but only succeeds in bewildering the audience. It is a mildly interesting book, but far too abstract for the casual reader.



Movies and Manhood

by HERB DRESSING
Collegian Salad Bar

This summer a very special anniversary came and went — that of a certain type of movie. In most learned circles these films are referred to as "socially aware theatrical events." Unfortunately, many of you may know them by the original name they were unfairly christened with: "teenage sex flicks." It may be a little late, but I think it's high time someone gave these fine films their due.

Any look back at these works of art must begin with Porky's. The plot of this film revolves around a small group of friends, incorporating stellar acting and directing. A secondary theme that runs through the film is the members' attempt at passage into manhood. Many parallels can thus be drawn betwen this movie and such literary classics as the Illiad and the Odyssey.

There is one problem with this movie. The director wasn't as explicit about sex as he should have been.

Porky's is considered to be the predecessor of all modern day "teen film," and should be allowed this one error. The next film we will look at learns from Porky's mistake, and is considered the best of this genre. My Tutor shares a basic theme with Porky's, a boy's trek towards manhood. Here, the similarities end. The main character has just graduated from high school, but failed his French class. He needs this class in order to get into the college of his choice. To help his son, the boy's wonderful father hires a live-in French tutor. After many weeks in close proximity, their relationship blossoms from one of student/teacher to that of lovers. On the point of the boy maturing into a man the film excells. Not only does he become a witty, urbane, and sophisticated adult, but he also turns into a caring lover. Not bad for a two-hour movie. Although the romance inevitably breaks up, our new man goes on to pass his French exam. At this point I would like to point out that themes such as true love and college acceptance are rarely discussed in "sex flicks." I'm glad I could find nothing wrong with this film, and rate it a ten.

I can still remember the joy I felt first seeing these films more than two years ago. Unlike such trifling pictures as Gone with the Wind and Casablanca these movies had concrete and enjoyable endings. Above all else, these movies realistically portray life as we know it. In this sense they may be the greatest film achievements of our time.

Yes, Bradlees!

Corduroy shirts and Wrangler® jeans go great together!

Team up these separates for a comfortable, casual look! Solid cotton corduroy shirts with plaid flannel lined collars and cuffs, and 2 button-thru flap pockets, S-M-L-XL. Wrangler® No-Fault® denims or fashion denims, both of cotton, 28-42; cotton-polyester corduroys in basic and fashion colors, 28-38. All with 5 pockets.

SHIRTS 10.99 REG. 13.99

JEANS 14.99 REG. 18.99 AND 19.99

SALE NOW THRU SATURDAY

the department store with a difference

Bradlees

One of The Stop & Shop Companies

AMERICAN EXPRESS · MasterCard · VISA

CHICOPEE • NORTHAMPTON • SPRINGFIELD • W. SPRINGFIELD

10-4-1

Excitement!

"You'll never be bored at Advanced Micro Devices". That's what the authors of The 100 Best Companies to Work for in America said. They ranked AMD right up there in the top 15, with high points for benefits, job security, ambience and — perhaps most important — the chance to move up.

AMD is the fifth largest and fastest growing major integrated circuit company in the U.S. producing both Bipolar and MOS products.

Opportunities for graduating engineers are expanding at our Sunnyvale, California headquarters and in Austin and San Antonio, Texas.

Your BS, MS or PhD in Electrical Engineering, Solid State Physics, Materials Science or Computer Science could be the first step in your move up with AMD.

On Campus Interviews
November 14, 1984

If our campus interview schedule is full, send your resume to Toni Doyle, College Recruiting, Advanced Micro Devices, Dept. UMC-1031, MS-57, 901 Thompson Place, P.O. Box 3453, Sunnyvale, California 94088. Or call TOLL FREE (800) 538-8450, ext. 2377. An equal opportunity employer.

*Copyright 1984 by R. Levering, M. Moskowitz and M. Katz. Published by Addison-Wesley.

Advanced Micro Devices

Catch the wave

LEARN to FLY
For ½ the usual cost with U.Mass R.S.O. Club.
Free Bus Line. Pilots are welcome.
UNDERGRADUATES NEEDED NOW!
Course Credit Possible
253-7475 665-2577

Ticket Connection

PROMPT TICKET DELIVERY SERVICE
FOR ALL CONCERTS AND SPORTING EVENTS

We deliver choice tickets to

HALL & OATES	Nov. 1, Hartford
ELTON JOHN	Nov. 2, Hartford
CULTURE CLUB	Nov. 13, Worcester
	Nov. 20, Hartford
KISS	Nov. 23, Worcester

Call Jon anytime in Springfield
413-788-6938

the Hungry U Restaurant

check out our happy hour munchie menu daily!

WEDNESDAY IS PASTA NIGHT for only $4.25

includes spaghetti with a choice of homemade meatball, sausage, fresh eggplant, sauteed mushrooms, or broccoli served with salad or soup, bread and butter, and a glass of wine or beer

Happy Hour 3-6, 9-close 7 days per week
2 in 1 drinks
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

1981 Bordeaux Tasting

November 1, 1984
Lord Jeffery Inn, Amherst
$18.00 per person

reservations & information 253-5384

Spirit Haus
sponsored by Rte. 9, Amherst

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Monday - Thursday 8:45 - 3:45 • Friday 8:45 - 2:30 • Cash in advance • 5 consecutive days 5% discount • 10 consecutive days 10% discount • 15 consecutive days 15% discount • phone number free

AUTO FOR SALE

1979 Opel Isuzu excellent running condition, good gas mileage, $650/ BO 256-6121

1976 Volkswagon Dasher sun roof AM/FM stereo $1600 549-0595 also VW Bug $600

BMW 2002 '73 excellent inside and out; engine very strong, well maintained, sunroof, Bilstiens, Weber, etc $3800 or BO 546-8170

Toyota Corolla Deluxe 1974 excellent condition 665-2462

VW Bug great mileage, rebuilt engine w/only 1000 miles, $800 call after 6 256-1886 Kevin

76 Audi Fox wagon, Four speed chocolate brown with sunroof. Needs alternator. As is $500. Call 549-0159

1978 Toyota Corolla good condition $800.00 call before 11:00 am or after 7:00 pm 546-1277

DRIVERS WANTED

Earn 06 - 7 an hour. Must be 18 or older. Have own insured, reliable car. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

WICKED AND WILD DJ's audio and visual entertainment for the 80's 584-6712

Rock-A-Disc Rock A-Video Entertainment Agency. Discjockeys and large screen video parties for the five college area. 549-7144

FOR SALE

Stereo System Gerard turntable/ receiver and two 30 inch speakers $100 322-4629

LIVE CONCERT TAPES on TDK-SA Cassettes Springsteen, Floyd, Dead etc. Free list. Box 798 Stoughton, MA 02072

14 kt gold nail $2500 call Carolyn after 5 8-5466

Soft Contact Lenses. Most daily wear lenses $18.00 to $25.00 ea. Extended wear lenses $36.00 to $48.00. Soft tinted $35.00 to $45.00. Lowest prices on contact lens solution. Heat units $12.95 Amherst Optical Shoppe, Amherst 413-253-9412, 256-6403

Sklis Dynastar Omegaseas II with Marker M40 bindings excellent condition call 546-7144 ask for Greg

1987 cherry red Gibson SG great action mint condition $250; Ibanez AP-50 black double cutaway smooth fast neck mint condition $200 call 6-8088

FOUND

Gold-color watch, near Campus pond, N Pleasant St side. Call and describe Mary 665-2940

Set of keys found after Ferraro Rally Ellen 548-6378

GAY

The People's Gay Alliance hosts a social hour each Wed from 3 to 5. Business meetings are at 6:30 each Thurs. Check the Campus center schedule for room numbers. New people are welcome and encouraged to attend!

HELP WANTED

Now taking applications for full and part time positions. Must be 18 or older. Apply in person. Domino's Pizza Rt 9 Hadley

General laborers apply at Rusty Nail 6 to 8 PM Wed through Sun

MARKETING INTERN earn money while working on your resume "The Brassworks" on Route 9 minutes from UMass call: James Doherty (617) 542-8805

Herdsperson to milk 80 cows in parlor plus odd chores. Call between 9 am - 3 pm 665-7174

The Sub Restaurant is now accepting applications for part time evening work. 20-30 hours

Have fun and earn good money part-time must have Monday evenings free for free training. Earn $30-$150 in about 4 hours part time flexible own hours call 665-2847

HEY WEISSBLUTH!

You better be careful! I am watching you! LHUFF, T

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

Legal Assistants Wanted The Legal Services Office, an on-campus agency serving University students, is looking for legal assistant interns for the Spring 1985 semester. Get hands-on job experience in the legal field, assisting attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, investigations, negotiations, legal research, giving advice and referrals, preparation for Federal and State Court litigation, attendance at court hearings, and participation in administrative hearings. Interns maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervision. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. To apply, for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Wednesday, November 7th. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO. 922 Campus Center

LOST

Stolen in Sylvan area or Boyden Gym. Brown leather wallet containing license, bankcard and other essentials. Substantial reward for return call 5-4098 no questions asked the name is Kelley McCormick

Gold Bracelet if found please contact Janet 546-6327 reward if returned

Royal blue jacket in Bartlett. Says Robert on front, Oceanside on back. Reward. Please call 546-7980

Pearl (with alternating gold beads) bracelet. Please call 549-8671 anytime

LOST - DOG

Lost: Siberian Husky one blue eye and one brown eye. Her name is Pande no tags on her. Black outer coat white chest. Call Eric evenings 665-3201 work 549-3490 ext 276 Reward

PERSONALS

Toby from Sonoma St. You still here? Steve 546-7123

Heidi, Friday in GRC, our glances incited in each other an indeterminate bliss and excitment. Would like to consider furthering it. Nice to meet you - Jim 549-6147

Contact Lenses Replaced Most brands $20 - $25. Dr Spencer University Drive 256-8561

Susanne - Happy Halloween! I wish I could be saying Happy Anniversary also! But I guess not. I hope you're happy. Love, Linus

Chip Had a great one! Working on two! Love RMU Mari

Cathyee - Happy Halloweanyee! Hang in there - 1 more week love Cub

Deve B. - I figured you'd forget so I didn't leave one. Guess I underestimated you. Well, good things come to those who wait! Please Reply. - Robyn

Andrea, It was great to see ya again! I hope you didn't find my approach too strong. Perhaps there's still time to repair the damage. Call me always yours Adolfo

AASA Members - November 1st meeting has been postponed until Tuesday Nov 6

SOM Career Day '84. Nov 14 1st floor Campus Center. Sponsored by Undergraduate Business Club. Luncheon tix on sale thru Nov 9 in SOM Lobby $5.00 members, $6.00 non-members all are welcome to attend

Hi Beth How are things? DPW

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, Cases, Dissertations, Theses, on campus. low rates guaranteed acceptance Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

To Rochester NY November 9 (Friday) will share expenses. Desperate! 6-5774

Rides needed to Buffalo or Rochester/Syracuse Share $ Nov. 2 546-8125

RIDERS WANTED

Riders to Rockland County NY or anywhere on route on 11 2 return 11-4 Jody 253-5222

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female wanted for single in 2 bedroom in Presidential $175 549-1063

To share one bedroom apt in Crestview Non-smoking female, 22 + years. Studious 182.50/month plus utilities. Call 548-5469 evs/ete @ Dec 20

RUBBER BRACELETS THERE HERE

Black rubber O-ring bracelets!! Madonna?! Campus Center Concourse Wed-Fri

SAVE MY LOVELIFE

I need a ride to Boston (Brighton, specifically) on Fri Nov 2. Call Liz at 6-8704, or at the Collegian Editorial Desk. Please keep trying!

TRAVEL

Killington Ski Trip - condos #195 Jan 20-25 call Sno-Search Brian or Kevin 549-1466

WANTED TO RENT

2 women want to sublet room in home or apartment for winter/season and spring call 546-5523 or 546-5519

2 women want to take over apt. lease in Jan Townehouse, BW, Puffton Jan 546-8086

Lease wanted starting Jan for Brandywine, Puffton or Townhouse reward 549-3914 Mike or Tom Score!

Football to get help against UConn

by Red Smith
Collegian Staff

In a shocking decision announced yesterday in Boyden, University of Massachusetts athletic director Frank McInerney revealed that football players at UMass would be replaced for the remainder of the season by varsity lacrosse players.

The football team, 2-6 on the season and losers of their last four games, "just wasn't cutting it," according to McInerney.

"Hey, we hired a new coach, gave them a few more scholarships, and they're 2-6," said McInerney. "The lacrosse team gets nothing and they're always nationally ranked, so what the hell."

Lax coach Richard Garber, although admitting he was surprised by the move, said that the Gorillas would give it their best shot.

"We've been working out anyway for the spring season, so we'll just go over to the stadium from now on," said Garber. "I'll probably run a wide open offense with a lot of sets and defensively we'll front our man and keep him between us and the goaline, it's no different than lacrosse."

Football coach Bob Stull, in his first year after coming from his offensive co-ordinator position at the University of Washington, was unavailable for comment.

"I think Bob packed up and headed back to Washington," said assistant coach Jimmy Reed. "He was never too happy here anyway."

The Gorillas, tenth ranked nationally last season and expected to compete for national title this season, face Connecticut this Saturday at Alumni Stadium. The game is UMass' Homecoming contest.

"A lot of us played in high school anyway and we're in pretty good shape, so why not," said lax captain Karl Hatton. "If we can beat Army, we can beat UConn."

Garber said that although no positions were definite he plans on using attackmen on offense as backs and receivers, midfielders will play the line, and defensemen will play linebacker and defensive backs. Goalies will come in in the nickel back situation.

"We're pretty pissed," said football co-captain Peter Tracy. "OK, we're not the best football team in UMass history, but we try pretty hard."

McInerney said that all football scholarships would be taken from the football players and distributed among the lax players.

"I figure that each lacrosse player will get about $200.00 each," said McInerney.

Also, on the UMass helmets, the Minutemen will be pictured holding a Brine lacrosse stick instead of his usual musket.

"I've always wanted a bigger office," said Garber, "And the players have always wanted to play in the stadium. So I think it's a good move."

Scallegian photo by the Madman

The UMass men's lacrosse team will take on UConn Saturday in Alumni Stadium for Homecoming.

Women's varsity teams reduced to club status

by ARCHIBALD V. BUNKER
Former Collegian Women's Sports Editor

In a stunning development, the University of Massachusetts athletic department has cancelled all varsity women's athletic programs, effective immediately, according to a department spokesman.

The move will save the University $70,000 and the extra money will go to the football and basketball programs. UMass will also set up a home economics department for the women left with no teams.

"It's high time the University got down to basics," Athletic department dean David H. Whaler said. "Women need to learn real skills that will help them in life like cooking, cleaning and ironing. Playing soccer, field hockey, and lacrosse just doesn't hack it."

Whaler said one of the first benefits of the program would be women sewing numbers on the shoulders of the UMass football team's uniforms so the spotters in the press box will have an easier time identifying players.

Former women's soccer coach Kalekeni Banda was very upset at the move. "First they eliminate the women's soccer program, which goes to three national championships. What's next? The men's soccer team? Don't they like soccer around here? What's their problem, anyway? Besides, what am I going to do with the five different sets of uniforms?"

"What do we have to do to please the administration," former field hockey and lax coach Pam Hixon said. "All we do is go to the Final Four every year? What's the football team done around here but lose to Maine? We haven't lost to Maine in ten years."

The women's varsity sports, soccer, field hockey, basketball, gymnastics, softball and women's lacrosse, will all be reduced to club level sports and the coaches will be reassigned or let go.

"Oh, well. You win some. You lose some," athletic director Frank McInerney said. "We had to make a decision somewhere. We feel we are taking a strong moral stand on the issue. America is in a bad way because women are out running around instead of learning how to act properly in society.

The athletic department also announced that they will take over the annual Pumpkin Bowl and will move it in Alumni Stadium in 1986. This year's game was held in Salem, Mass. in Jack O'Lantern Memorial Stadium. BYU upset South Carolina, 52-46.

"We look forward to playing in Amherst," Pumpkin Bowl director Beth Reilly said, "and we expect to sign a big money contract with Channel 57 very shortly. We're looking for Tony Betros to do play by-play.

Muscles photo by Howard Kilpatrick

Football Coach Bob Stull has announced that Scottish strongman Sean O'McGovern has been employed as a walnut crusher.

sports at a glance

UMass Schedule:

Australian Rules Football: at Sydney, 3 p.m.

Professional Wrestling: The Iron Sheik vs. Hulk Hogan, 3 p.m. Boyden Gym.

Curling: Newfoundland Tech, Campus Pond, 5 p.m.

Trivial Pursuit: MIT at Tower Library (18th floor), 6 p.m.

New England Quarters Championship: At the Pub, 9 to 1.

Nerf Football: Townhouse Apartments, front lawn.

Swan Shooting: Campus pond after curling.

Radical shooting: sponsored by Republican Club, Earth Foods Cafe, noon to 6 p.m.

Keg Rolling: Stadium parking lot, Saturday only.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 31 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, November 1, 1984

Photos by Julie Monahan

Stephen Erickson, president of UMass Republican Club, speaks to a crowd outside the Student Union Building yesterday at a rally for Ronald Reagan. Erickson confronted many hecklers and Democratic supporters waving signs.

Republicans rally, heckled by crowd

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

More than 100 students attended a political rally sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Republican Club on the steps outside of the Student Union Building at noon Wednesday.

Six speakers lectured on subjects ranging from the economic recovery to foreign policy at the rally. About as many Democratic supporters as Republican supporters attended the rally which lasted about 45 minutes.

Stephen Erickson, president of the Republican Club, speaking on the candidacy of Republican Ray Shamie for the U.S. Senate, said, "Shamie realizes there are no limits to the American people. Liberals like Kerry and Mondale put limits on everything but the government."

Erickson stopped in the middle of his speech to address hecklers who harrassed speakers throughout the rally. "As a university, we place a lot of emphasis on social tolerance," he said. "We need more political tolerance. Our organization made a conscious decision not to heckle at the Ferraro rally. If ideas cannot be heard then our society is in a lot of trouble," Erickson said.

Erickson continued his speech, stressing the importance of pluralism in Massachusetts, which has only on Republican representative in Congress. With a Republican president, it is important to have Republicans to represent this state in Congress, he said.

Hecklers shut off power to the public address system while master of ceremonies Kim Hackett was speaking. As one speaker was talking about Nicaragua, several students walking by shouted "liar" and "shut up". One student, dressed in a white sheet and wearing a gas mask held a sign reading "Mutants and Nukes, vote Reagan-Bush."

After the rally, a Mondale supporter apologised to Erickson for the hecklers and said there was no place for that kind of behavior, Erickson said.

Susan Mitchell, speaking on the economic recovery, said, "Inflation is down, unemployment is down, taxes are down. It only makes sense to continue the policies of the Reagan administration in an effort to reinforce the economic recovery that Americans have come to enjoy."

"We're making a statement about UMass, that the conservative voice cannot be silenced," Erickson said after the rally.

Gandhi death shocks Indian students

By MATTHEW BERMAN and PETER MENTOR
Collegian Staff

The assassination of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi by Sikh extremists sent emotional shock waves throughout the local Indian community, who feared a renewal of religious strife between Hindus and Sikhs in their homeland.

"I think it's terrible," said graduate student Amala Reddy. "Gandhi was very popular with people in the villages. She's done a lot for them in terms of land and social reforms. Now everyone is going to turn against the Sikhs."

"My first reaction was total shock," said Indian graduate student Rema Pai. "The assassination could trigger mass hysteria. Rioting could spread. There could be a major bloodbath. It's unsettling to people like me who want to go back someday."

Political science professor Anwar Syed said he was not optimistic about the situation. "I think the thing to worry about is reprisals against the Sikhs," he said. "I think the possibility exists that Hindu extremists will want to take revenge against the Sikhs."

According to Syed, who is from neighboring Pakistan, there has been a tradition of hostilities between India's Hindus and Sikhs, who make up less than one percent of the population. Earlier in the year, the Indian Army put down a major Sikh rebellion.

Sanjiv Dugal, president of the University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate and a Sikh, said he was "quite upset" at the news. "I felt a little ashamed," he said. He added that he didn't attend classes because of the way he felt.

Continued to p. 5

Gandhi assassinated by Sikhs

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - A tearful, vengeful India mourned the assassinated Indira Gandhi on Wednesday and turned to the slain prime minister's son to lead the huge nation through its time of crisis.

The 66-year-old Mrs. Gandhi was cut down outside her home Wednesday morning in a rain of submachine-gun bullets fired by her own Sikh bodyguards, officials reported. At least one of the two or three gunmen was killed, the reports said.

The mortally wounded prime minister, a Hindu, died five hours later, setting off a wave of anti-Sikh violence across the nation.

"Return blood with blood!" Hindu crowds shouted in New Delhi, where Sikh shops were set ablaze and Sikh shrines stoned. Hundreds were reported injured.

Extremist members of the minority Sikh religion had threatened repeatedly to kill the prime minister, especially since she ordered a bloody army assault against the Sikhs' holy Golden Temple last June to crush the Sikh separatist movement in Punjab state.

National legislators of Mrs. Gandhi's governing Congress Party met in emergency caucus Wednesday and unanimously chose her son, Rajiv, 40, a party general secretary, to succeed her.

Later, under heavy security at the presidential palace, President Zail Singh adminstered the oath of office to Gandhi, a member of Parliament and former airline pilot who had been groomed by his mother to continue the "Nehru dynasty."

Continued to p. 5

Senators bar SGA funding censorship

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night prohibited using student fees for funding Student Government Association groups that "attempt to implement censorship and other forms of media control."

Earlier in the meeting, the senate voted 61-27 against having new elections for the speaker and SGA treasurer seats presently held by Chris Sullivan and John Mooradian.

The support for the two officers denied a motion made because new senators had not participated in the officer elections last spring.

In a lively debate, the senate voted 40-37 to freeze funding to Recognized Student Organizations (RSO's) and other SGA groups which "attempt to implement censorship."

Jordan Rosner, a senator from John Adams, said that the motion upholds, "Not only the Senate constitution, but also the constitution of the United States."

"I think that any student on this campus has the right to freely express him or herself, read any magazine they want, or see any movie they like. UMass students pay $96 every year, and that money should not be used to inhibit their rights to freedom of expression, speech, or the right to form opinion," Rosner said.

Many senators argued that the campus-wide censorship issue, which surfaced last spring when playboy and Playgirl were removed from the University Store, infringed upon student's First Amendment rights.

Commuter senator Marilyn Bou said that "All the progressive work which the senate has done on anti-oppression and anti-racism would be stepped on," if the proposal was approved.

The senate is presently holding anti-oppression workshops which are mandatory for all senators.

The Student Center for Education and Research Advocacy (SCERA) student coordinator, David Martin, said he did not like working of the motion.

"This motion is dangerously vague," Martin said. "What is the definition of censorship, and freedom of expression? This is too broad and I urge you to vote against it."

Others complained about the motion's wording. Its intent is to freeze funds of "groups that attempt to implement censorship, prior restraint, and other forms of media control."

According to chief engineer Bill Stepchew, radio station WMUA is required by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) "To exercise prior restraint and censorship in all broadcasts."

Stepchew, who did not address the senate, said that the use of profanities over the air is an example of this. "If we don't adhere to FCC requirements, we can lose our license. Stepchew also said after the meeting that he now considers all funds which WMUA receives from the senate to be frozen.

Rosner defended that senate vote, saying that the motion "Stops people from saying 'you can't read that book or see that movie,' " but not from students' rights to protest against the material.

Inside:

UMass meds seek accreditation... p.3
Student notes being abused?..... p.3
New Right and Reagan..... p.7
Russ returns, firing away..... p.16

"He who makes a beast of himself gets rid of the pain of being a man."
—Dr. Hunter S. Thompson

BEDTIME FOR BONZO
(THE MOVIE)

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2
ENGIN. EAST AUD.

STARRING:
RON REAGAN
&
BONZO

5.7.9.11 $1.00

Mass. registration peaks

BOSTON (AP) - Official totals aren't in, but it appears Massachusetts residents have set an all-time record for registering to vote, election officials said Wednesday.

"It's the highest ever," Nancy Driscoll, a spokeswoman for the Secretary of State's elections division, said of 3,254,004 registered voters. Of that number, 22,000 signed up since the August registration deadline for the Sept. 18 primary.

The previous record was set in October 1980, another presidential election year, with 3,156,672, she said.

"The actual, certified numbers may be a little different, but nothing major," Ms. Driscoll said, who added that figure for those signed up since August cannot be described as "newly" registered because they may represent people who have moved.

Of the total, about 48 percent are Democrat, 13 percent Republican and the rest are independent, she said.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly said the new total means 73 percent of the state's eligible voters are registered. He also predicted a turnout of better than 85 percent for next Tuesday's election.

"The people of Massachusetts take their politics very seriously and they want to make their voices heard," he said, adding that a lively U.S. Senate race between Republican Raymond Shamie and Democrat Lt. Gov. John Kerry, as well as the presidential contest, should attract voters.

Connolly, noted that while 54 percent of voters turned out nationwide for the 1980 election, Bay State turnout was more than 81 percent.

Duke unveils plan

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Gov. Michael S. Dukakis unveiled a four-year, $545 million plan Wednesday to upgrade Massachusetts' public education, but said local school districts would have the option of participating in many of the grant projects.

Dukakis told about 75 secondary school and college administrators that the money would be distributed in addition to the revenue-sharing funds communities already receive from the state.

Dukakis' proposals are in the form of amendments to an education reform bill in the House Ways and Means Committee. Rep. Jame Collins, D-Amherst, is one of the co-sponsors of that bill.

"One of the most important priorities is passage of this legislation," Dukakis said, adding that the bill may be the "most important education bill we pass this century."

Dukakis said his proposal also would require statewide testing of students in grades 3, 5 and 7 and evaluation of teachers and administrators every two years, but he said communities would help create the tests. The governor's proposal also would set course requirements for high school graduation and a disciplinary code for every school.

Dukakis' plan earmarks the largest amount of money for new Equal Educational Opportunity grants to help poor school districts meet minimum per-pupil spending within four years. By law, all school districts must spend at least 85 percent of the statewide average spent per child on education by 1989.

The average per pupil is currently $2,600 a year.

Frank Keefe, secretary of the Executive Office of Administration and Finance, said 130 of the state's 430 school districts fall sharply short of that spending standard.

Most of those school districts are in southeastern Massachusetts, northern Worcester County, the Berkshires and in Springfield, Holyoke and Chicopee, Keefe said.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Richard Martin
Copy Editor	Larry Bouchie
Layout Technician	Brian Gonye
Photo Technician	Michelle Segall
Production supervisor	Ed Tausky
Production	Becky McGee, Mary Ellen Riley, Cris Schuster, Suzanne Reynolds, Nancy Muller, Steve Higgins, BethAnne Moskov, Andy Taylor

WORK FOR THE FASTEST GROWING AIRLINE IN THE INDUSTRY.

PEOPLExpress is coming to campus in search of CO-OP EDUCATION STUDENTS

SOPHOMORES...JUNIORS...
SENIORS...GRAD STUDENTS

START NOW AS A RESERVATIONS SALES ASSOCIATE. You'll be the first point of contact between PEOPLExpress and our customers, providing accurate scheduling and price information—and selling seats for PEOPLExpress flights. You'll be based at NEWARK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT.

THE JOB OFFERS ALL THIS:

- $5.00 an hour to start—with regularly scheduled raises
- UNLIMITED TRAVEL PRIVILEGES ON PEOPLExpress (Not only for you but spouses, too, after 30 days of employment)
- FREE PARKING AT THE AIRPORT

THE MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM HOURS YOU MAY WORK ARE:

- Minimum of 4 hours per day
- Minimum of 20 hours per week
- Maximum of 40 hours per week

TO QUALIFY, you must have a GPA of 2.5 or better, be currently enrolled, be articulate—and have a mature attitude and business-like appearance. Previous work experience is a must.

PRESENTATIONS WILL BE HELD ON WEDNESDAY, NOV. 7th AT 1:00 PM. INTERVIEWS WILL FOLLOW. CONTACT YOUR CO-OP OFFICE, 110 THOMPSON HALL, TO SIGN UP. PLEASE BRING A CURRENT TRANSCRIPT TO THE INTERVIEW.

Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

PEOPLExpress
FLY SMART

a unique opportunity for Math/Science
(Majors/Minors/Aptitudes)

The toughest job you'll ever love

PEACE CORPS

For you and for the world. Peace Corps will combine your education with training to prepare you for a volunteer position in: ● Education ● Fisheries ● Health ● Agriculture ● Forestry or other areas. You'll meet new people, learn a new language, experience a new culture and gain a whole new outlook. And while you're building your future, you'll be helping people in developing countries learn the basics of technological advancement.

Contact Tim Quick or Valerie Mailler, 12 Draper Hall, University of Massachusetts, 545-2105.

Collegian photos by Michelle Segall

HALLOWEEN HIJINKS—Band member Brian Curro (left) grows a beard while practicing his rifle drill in front of Old Chapel yesterday. Melissa Christenson (right) easily gets people to smile for the camera as she works in the student I.D. office in Hampden Dining Common.

University status under review

By WILLIAM COLLINS
Collegian Correspondent

A team of investigators has been meeting with students, staff and faculty to determine whether the University of Massachusetts meets the requirements for accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

According to Fern L. Johnson, associate provost for undergraduate education, and acting liaison between the accreditation group and the University, the committee has planned to examine and evaluate the faculty, students, curriculum, undergraduate budget allocations and the Long Range Plan.
